THE TESTIMONY OF George Fox CONCERNING Isaac Penington.

Concerning our dear Friend and Brother Isaac Penington, who is lately Deceased, and whom the Lord hath lately taken away from among his People, and from his Wife and Children; who was a Serviceable Minister of the Gospel of Salvation, and of the Word of Life, which did Spring through him often, to the Refreshing and Comforting of the Church of Christ, and to his own Comfort, and to the Praise and Glory of the Lord God, Amen.

And now all must be content with and in the will of the Lord God, who giveth and taketh at his own pleasure, who hath all Breath and Life, and the length of days in his hand. And so he is well in the Lord, blessed be the Name of the Lord, who is over all forever, and as John saith; Blessed are the Dead which die in the Lord, from henceforth; Yea saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their Labours, and their works do follow them. And you may see what a cloud of witnesses the Apostle speaketh of which died in the Faith, and obtained a good report, which Holy and Divine Faith is the Victory, and in which Faith they pleased God; and so by this Faith, the gift of God, they had access to God, and so died in the Lord, and have his blessing from him the Fountain then and now. And so all true Christians are to live that Christ may be Magnified in their Bodies, whether it be by Life or Death, as the Apostle saith, Phil. 1. 20. And the Apostle saith to the Saints; None of us liveth to himself and dieth to himself; for whether we live, we live unto the Lord; and whether we die, we die unto the Lord: Whether we live therefore or die we are the Lords, Rom. 14. 7,8. And Christ saith, Whosoever liveth and believeth in me, shall never die: Believest thou this? Joh. 11. 26. For they are grafted into Christ by believing in his Light, which is the Life in him. And the Memorial of the Just is blessed, Even the Lord God of Hosts, the Lord is his Memorial, Hos. 12. 5. But the name of the wicked shall rot, Prov. 10. 7. And his memory cut off from the earth, Psal. 109. 15. So ye may see the Memorial of the Just is recorded by the Just in the Holy Scriptures of Truth: But my desire is, that all may see their Names written in the Lambs Book of Life, before the Foundation of the World, and rejoyce in that; And praise God that their Life is hid with Christ in God, Col. 3. 3. And precious in the sight of the Lord, is the death of his Saints, Psal. 116. 15. And therefore live the Holy and Righteous Life, that ye may die the death of the Righteous.

The Teſtimony of George Fox concerning Iſaac Penington.

And now it is above twenty years ſince that Iſaac Penington came among Gods People; and ſince that time he hath gone through many Exerciſes, and Tryals, and Temptations, and Snares, both by them that were without, and Falſe Brethren, beſides all his Sufferings, and Cruel, and Tedious Impriſonments, and Perſecutions for the Name and Life of Chriſt Jeſus and true Chriſtianity; which in the end, ſome years before his death, the Lord in and with his power ſet him free from, and gave him dominion over all, and eſtabliſhed him upon his living rock and foundation, to praiſe his holy name in his Church, and among his Saints and people in the Lords freſh living power and Spirit: And he did freely miniſter of his living bread and water, which he had received from above, from the living God and his Son, to the comfort of them that feared the Lord, and kept their habitation in the Truth, in meekneſs and in humility. And I do know that he is well in the Lord, and in Peace with him through the Lord Jeſus Chriſt. And ſuch as are puffed up, and do ſwell in their Notions, may rejoyce and be glad that he is taken away, and is gone out of their way, and they may think they will have the more liberty; becauſe that he being a living Stone and Member of the living head, had no Fellowſhip nor Unity with ſuch as were full of high ſwelling Words without the Life of Chriſt, the Heavenly and Spiritual man, but did Reprove ſuch, and Admoniſh them: And ſuch their gladneſs and joy will be turned into bitterneſs, and ſorrow, and mourning in the end. And therefore let all ſuch take heed and be warned, leſt the hand of the Lord do ſuddenly turn againſt them; for I could deſire, that all were in that Innocent Life that he departed out of this World in: And I know that he died in the Lord, and ſo Bleſſed. And ſo let his Works follow him, who is well and at his reſt with the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, who is the reſt of all his Faithful. To him be glory and honour, thanks and praiſe now and for ever, Amen.

THE TESTIMONY

Of G. Whitehead concerning I. Penington.

Precious in the Sight of the Lord is the Death of his Saints, Pſal. 116. 15.

THat the Lord God, who is the Father of Mercies, is truly good unto all, that wait for him, and diligently ſeek after him; hath been ſignally manifeſted and experienced in our days as in former Ages, and that he fails not to anſwer the Deſires and Travail of that Soul, that hath Sincerity towards him, however it be for a time clouded and bewildred under various Profeſſions and Notions: Sincerity and Honeſty of Heart in enquiring after the knowledge of Truth, ſhall not be diſappointed, nor miſs of its Bleſſed end. I hope I ſhall not need to Write an Apologie for this Man's many Writings, but let the Sincere Meaning and Honeſt Intent thereof, and the Lines of True Senſe and Good Will therein, ſpeak forth the Chriſtian Mind and Spirit of the Author. Nor is it altogether proper for me to Apologize in ſuch a Caſe, having not read all theſe his Books and Writings now to be expoſed to publick view, though ſome of them I have at times formerly converſt with as opportunities have admitted: Which as I have perceived the Teſtimonies and Inſtructions thereof to be both Savoury and Experimental, ſo I Charitably believe and Hope of the reſt. But in this I can be more General and Abſolute concerning the Perſon; that he was a man that Sincerely ſought after the knowledge of the Lord God and his Holy Truth, and that accordingly the Lord did vouchſafe graciouſly to anſwer the Sincere Deſires of his Soul in due time, to the ſettling of his Mind, and ſtaying his Soul in a Secret Senſe and Feeling of his Living Truth, Power and Spirit, to his Confirmation in that moſt precious and living Faith, which was once delivered unto the Saints in Light: And as God opened his heart to the tender reception of his Holy Truth and Goſpel of Peace, and embracing the Faithful Meſſengers thereof; So he wrought both immediately by his Spirit, and Inſtrumentally by his Meſſengers for his Confirmation in that Light and Grace, from whence he had often before received many true Diſcoveries, Sights and Openings; having alſo often heard the ſound of that Divine Breath or Spirit of Life, which moved in his Heart, before the Immortal Birth thereof was brought to Light, or the Man Child (for which his Soul Travelled) was brought forth into the World. He was not willing to obſcure his Divine Diſcoveries, nor to put his Candle under a Buſhel, nor hide his Talent in the Earth; but was Induſtrious on the Lords behalf, in telling and ſhewing to the Sons of men what Diſcoveries he had made to him of the way of Life and Salvation from one degree to another. His Inward Exerciſe of Mind and Attention upon our Lord Jeſus Chriſt in his Light, was Serious, and his Converſation Innocent; for he knew the Preſence and Bleſſings of God were only to be enjoyed in ſuch a Condition. The remembrance of his Zeal for the Holy Truth in the Improvement of his Gift is never to be extinguiſhed, nor the Record of his Integrity and Faithfulneſs ever to be obliterated: His Tenderneſs and Compaſſion towards the miſled Captives was ſuch, that he was not wanting in his Induſtrious duſtrious Endeavours for their Deliverance out of their Darkneſs and Spiritual Blindneſs of Thraldom. He earneſtly laboured with the Barren Profeſſors under various Notions, and the Fleſhly Chriſtians of our Times, to invite them to the True Light, Life and Spirit of Chriſtianity, that they might not ſtick in their Empty Forms and Literal Profeſſions, ſhort of the Power of Godlineſs. For his Eye was to the Principle of Life, the true Seed wherein the Bleſſing is, and to the Spiritual, Immortal Birth, that breaths to God, and receives Life, Nouriſhment and Strength from him and lives to him, as knowing, that the fleſhly Birth muſt not inherit the promiſe, nor the Son of the Bond-women be Heir with the Son of the Free. He truly eſteemed of the Holy Scriptures, and ſeriouſly and frequently converſt with them: His Eye being to that Divine Light and Spirit of Chriſt Jeſus, which opens them and gives the True Underſtanding and Experience of them; for he preferred the True and Spiritual Knowledge of Holy Scriptures, before all Literal Knowledge and Underſtanding, exalting the Spirit above the Letter, the Power above the Form, the Subſtance above the Shadow, as knowing that the Holy Spirit and Power were the Foundation and Cauſe of Scriptures and Form of Godlineſs. His Patience and Innocency have been well known, even towards ſuch Contentious and Prejudicate Profeſſors, as evilly requited his Labours of Love, (for their good) by perverſly expoſing him in Print: But he well knew, that Truth and Innocence would out-live all Envy and Evil-mindedneſs. It was given to him not only to believe, but alſo patiently to ſuffer for the Name of Chriſt; he patiently ſuffered by Reproaches, Contradictions of Evil-men, Perſecutions and Impriſonments. I cannot forget the Sweet Communion and Society in the Truth which we have often had together, eſpecially of latter years, being fully ſatisfied, that 'twas a real Earneſt of that Glorious Communion we ſhall Eternally enjoy together in Reſt and Glory, where this precious and ſincere Soul is entred, with the Lord and all his Saints, and Angels, and Spirits of juſt men made perfect, who are written in Heaven, having obtained a part in Chriſt Jeſus, the Reſurrection and the Life, where the ſecond Death hath no Power. And to this Glorious End and Reſt from our Labours, others of us yet ſurviving, are travelling and haſtening; Glory and Triumph for ever!

Now Serious Reader, in Love to the Truth and thy Soul, I could leave this Caution with thee in relation to the Books and Writings of this our Deceaſed Friend and Brother; that if thou meeteſt with any thing therein, which thou doſt not underſtand; Cenſure it not, be not prejudicate in any Caſe; but wait till the Lord come who reveals Secrets and unfolds Myſteries. And if any thing, (eſpecially of what was early Writ, as in a time of Infancy) ſeems doubtful or not ſo clear to thy Underſtanding, let it have ſuch Charitable Conſtruction, as becomes a Chriſtian Spirit towards an Induſtrious, Honeſt-hearted and Well-meaning Servant of Chriſt in his Life-time, who was and is ever Bleſſed of the Lord, and now gone to his Reſt from his Labours; the General Tenor and Import whereof clearly evince his Pious Endeavours for the good of the Children of men, and proclaim his Chriſtian Deſign and Induſtry to promote Truth and Righteouſneſs in the Earth, Pure Religion and Chriſtianity in Spirit and Life among men. The Lord of the Harveſt ſend forth more Faithful Labourers into his Harveſt and Vineyard, for the Harveſt is Great.

A TESTIMONY

Concerning that Faithful Servant of the Lord, and our Dear Friend Isaac Penington, whom God hath lately removed from us, and fixed in his Eternal Reſt.

STrong and Powerful is that excellent Arm of the Lord, which hath been revealed and made bare in this our day, and very effectual hath been the operation of it for the gathering of many into a nearneſs to the Lord, and leavening of them into the nature of its own purity: amongſt whom God hath numbred this our Dear Friend, and dignified him with that honour. And ſince God hath impreſſed upon our Souls ſuch a ſenſe of him, I could not be clear, in reſpect of my duty to God (and love to him) to ſhut it up only in my own boſom, without giving this publick Teſtimony of him: Although I know I can add nothing to him, as to his immediate enjoyment, yet let it be as an evidence of the eſteem I had of him, when with us, and of his memorial now removed from us, which God will perpetuate among the righteous, when the name of the wicked ſhall rot.

As to the Innocency of his Converſation in general (which is the moſt evident token of the Indwellings of Truth and Sincerity) I have this to ſay upon my own Obſervation of it, I know none that did exceed him, for in that God made him an Adorning to the Doctrine of the Goſpel. To mention particularly thoſe Divine Gifts, wherewith he was eminently endued, would be too large: Yet I cannot wholly omit them; wherefore I ſhall firſt mention, that which had the firſt and chiefeſt place with him, namely his deep Travel, Labour, Care and Deſires for the Proſperity of that Weighty and Bleſſed Work, which God is carrying on in the Earth, to wit, the gathering of loſt man to himſelf, and bringing him to know Salvation in him, in which Labour God Bleſſed him with Succeſs, and gave him the Tongue of the Learned to ſpeak a word in due ſeaſon, fitly comparable to Apples of Gold in in Pictures of Silver.: And by the force of this Word he reached to many, to the turning of them from the evil of their Ways, which remains as a Crown upon him, and ſhall cauſe him to Shine as a Bright, Fixed Star in the Firmament of God for ever. And how many Living Witneſſes are left behind, of the Uſe and Service that God made him to be of to them, who are deeply Affected with the ſenſe of their Loſs in him, yet dare not complain, becauſe the Lord hath done it! O how hath my Soul, with many others been conſolated with him, in the Communion we have had together with God, when the Lord hath opened his mouth in Wiſdom, and cauſed his Doctrine to drop as the Rain, and his Speech to diſtil as Dew on the tender Plants.

O my dear Brother, (or rather to many of us waſt thou in God a Father) my Soul is often pained in the ſenſe of thy Abſence, for our ſakes; yet greatly Comforted and Satisfied in God for thy ſake: For our loſs (though great) doth not equal thy gain. O how often haſt thou been opened, and thy Spirit ſweetned, and in that ſweetneſs drawn forth to miniſter to thoſe that were Iſraelites indeed, when thy Words were ſofter then Oyl, ſweeter then Honey, and more refreſhing then the pureſt Wine; but to the wicked and deceitful as penetrating Arrows! And although it were ſo contrary to his Nature to touch with Strife (being of ſo Meek a Spirit) yet God, that guides the Meek in judgment, did ſometimes concern him in a dreadful, yet true, Teſtimony againſt all that would divide in Jacob, and scatter in Israel. Yet how entire was his Love to all those, who had aright value of; and abide in the unity of the pure Truth against all the Contemners and Invaders of it! How Affectionately and Reverently have I heard him speak of those, who were the Messengers of the glad Tydings to us, and Publishers of that Peace, which he is now in the certain possession of, as the reward and end of the Just and Upright! But especially great was his regard to, and esteem of those who have Faithfully born the heat and burthen of the day, whose Arrows the Lord directed to the wounding of the man Sin, and who yet remain as a Bow that abides in its strength, and wax yet stronger and stronger: Those he did account (as indeed they are) worthy of double Honour. And although (through the Infirmity of his Nature, and Weakness of his Constitution) he was made unfit for much hard and Publick Travel; yet his Constant Practice did declare, he had a Vigorous and Active Mind, truly bowed to the service of Truth, as may appear by the many Private and Seasonable Visits he made by Writing, unto those whom he had no other opportunity of being helpful to; and much service he had of this kind, beyond what many were sensible of. And many Young, and Tender, and Distressed ones will lament their loss in him, who was so easily touched with a feeling of their exercise, from the sense and remembrance he had of his own; and was very ready, and also fit to contribute something to their relief: For as he was once a man of sorrows, and well acquainted with grief; so this benefit did he reap by it, to learn experience by the things he suffered: and all the Tribulation he met with, did but make way for the super-abounding of his consolation through Christ.

What he was in his Family, and especially to his dear and tender Relations (whom he left Weeping behind him, though not without hope) I shall not need to say much, knowing they themselves cannot be without a larger Testimony then mine concerning the matter: Only this I shall say, I would God there were more so fit for our example in each Relation.

Having thus far Sincerely discharged my duty, in giving this Testimony, I am willing to confine my self to as much brevity as I can; though much more might be truly said of him, and 'tis hard to say so little. Yet for further satisfaction to any concerning him, that are desirous of it, I refer them to his Writings, now published together for common benefit: Only let me give the Reader this advice, that as God gave him Wisdom to divide his Word aright, so do thou read it in the same Wisdom to receive it aright; for in that only canst thou take a right measure of him, or have true Fellowship with him. I have only this to add as a Caution to all, that as Truth hath many Enemies, so this our dear Friend, for Truths sake, had some also, concerning whom I have a feeling, that they will be ready to grudge and take offence at this our Innocent and justifiable practice, to preserve the remembrance of the faithfulness of those, who have Faithfully finished their course, and through the power of Christ have had victory over the last Enemy. There can be no other ground for this, but Envy or Ignorance; and therefore, to prevent so ill an effect (let it spring from who it will) let such know, that it was once not only allowed, but commanded of God, to Write the Dead Blessed, that die in the Lord, as well as to esteem them so. And since it is undeniably the mind of God, That the just shall be had in everlasting remembrance: What can be more effectual to it, then by our Written Testimony to commend their Memorial to our Posterity, that they may glorify the God of their Fathers, and after their example walk in his way, in which the Lord, who delivered us into it, preserve us to the time of our death, that with the Worthies of the Lord, that are gone before us, we may receive the Crown of Life?

Ambroſe Riggs's

TESTIMONY

Of the Life and Death of Iſaac Penington.

THE Spirit of the Lord is upon me; and the fountain of Love and Life is open in my Soul, and freely floweth towards all my dear Brethren and fellow-Labourers in the great Harveſt of our Lord and Maſter, who are yet in the body, and the renewed remembrance of them whoſe earthly tabernacles are diſſolved, and have put on Immortality, is often with me in indeared Love, in which at this time I behold dear Iſaac Penington, in laſting union with us, though abſent in body: whoſe work and labour of love in his day, is not forgotten of God, nor his People. He was brought to the true fold in an early hour of the Goſpels day, as it broke forth in our times, and a reſt was prepared for him in a weary land, and the Lord heard the cry of his Soul in the deep, and prepared a deliverer for him, out of the great Sea of waves, troubles and uncertainties; and he came to the rock with joy when he ſaw him, and he built upon him, and was eſtabliſhed, and fortified againſt every ſtorm and tempeſt of the boiſterous Seas, which lifted up themſelves againſt him; and they were not a few, nor of ſmall conſequence: his tryals were great, both inward and outward, in which he quitted himſelf as a valiant Champion in the Lambs war: The Lord was with him and delivered him out of all his troubles, and filled his cup, and often cauſed it to overflow, to the refreſhment of many, and freely he dealt his bread to the hungry, and his cup he handed to the Thirſty; many Widows and Fatherleſs were relieved by him; his life flowing forth as a fountain moſt clear, both to the Freed and Impriſoned ſeed; a man of a contrite and humble Spirit, in the innocency of a little child, by which he had entrance into the kingdom of Immortality, where he now reſteth out of the reach of the Oppreſſor. He was a man of ſorrows, and acquainted with griefs; his life was a Pilgrimatory paſſage to Eternity: Who can ſay he Oppreſſed them, or was Chargeable to them? though part of his outward ſubſtance he loſt for the Truths Teſtimony. He was a man filled with the power and ſpirit of the Lord, who both in word, writing, and converſation gave Teſtimony to the World, that he ſought a City whoſe builder and maker was God. He was a faithful witneſs for the ſaving Truth, againſt all bad Spirits and unſound members, unmeet for that body which God hath now prepared to do his will: And his Manuſcripts left behind, proclaim him a witneſs againſt all falſe Hirelings, and their unrighteous Practices, and deceitful Doctrines, whereby the earth both is, and hath for Ages been corrupted; and the minds of young and old filled with unſound Principles, and beliefs in the weighty things relating to another world; and gave a true and laſting Teſtimony to the ſtrait and narrow path of Life and Righteouſneſs: He was endowed with wiſdom to diſcover the living childs Mother, and give her the poſſeſſion, for the ſpirit of diſcerning was in him, and of a ſound mind, and the ſecrets of the Lord were upon his tabernacle; his upright Chriſtian ſpirit rendred him lovely to the upright, and formidable to the wicked. My heart is full of tender love to his life, who died in the Lord, and his works follow him, and therefore doth my ſoul believe him bleſſed with the righteous in his death. He was a man of a retired ſpirit, and little minded the things of this life, but loved Juſtice, and delighted in Mercy: The products of his life were the fruits of the Spirit of Truth, therefore he is recorded amongst the living, as one of the Lords worthies, whose remembrance shall live to generations to come, his Testimony he kept to the end, and finished his course with joy; so on his behalf let the living praise the Lord, as doth my Soul at this time, even so for ever.

Thomas Zachary's TESTIMONY for Isaac Penington.

AH my dear and ancient Friend: what shall I say of thee? Thou hast been a long Traveller, even from thy Youth, through Egypt and Babylon, and therein desolate, seeking rest, but finding none, till the Lord God the Shepherd of Israel (who heard thy bemoanings) found thee out, and gathered thee by his Shepherds Crook, out of and from all the barren mountains and wild obscure places, wherein thou wast wearied and lost; even in the wilderness did the Lord allure thee, and bring thee out to his own flock, to hear and know his own voice, from the voice of all strange Spirits, and to feed among his Lambs in the Pastures of Life, whereby thou grew strong in the living Word of power, and hadst wherewith to minister of the Words of Life plentifully to others, through the Divine presence and overflowing Life of the Father in thee and with thee, whereby many have been awakened, strengthned and comforted in the Lord alone, and the very joy of Gods Salvation hath reached to the mourners of Israel. Ah a true Labourer hast thou been in Gods vineyard, and sowed in much brokenness of heart and tears, the precious seed of Gods Kingdom, and waited in the Faith and Patience for the coming up thereof, and hast seen the desire of thy Soul answered! and now is thy work, labour and travail over, and as thou hast sowed in the Spirit, art now reaping of the Spirit, Life everlasting, and released out of this strait and troublesome world, wherein thou wert long a stranger and sufferer, and hadst no resting place in it; for thou earnestly sought for a City that had foundations, whose builder and maker was God alone: And now thou hast found it, and art gathered into it, inheriting thy own mansion of peace, rest and joy, which the God of the just hath provided for thee. O blessed and praised be the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, who is not the God of the dead, but of the living! and from the living ascends heavenly praises and Hallelujahs to him for ever and for ever.

Thomas Zachary.

Robert

Robert Jones's
TESTIMONY
Concerning Iſaac Penington.

IN the remembrance of my dear Friend deceaſed, I had ſomething lived with me to give in as in a way of Teſtimony, according to the knowledge and ſenſe I had of him: He was a man very tender in Spirit, and of a broken heart before the Lord, as I often had a living ſenſe thereof, the ſenſe of the power of an endleſs life being often upon him, which did affect many, breaking them down in great tenderneſs; his Teſtimony for the Lord and his bleſſed Truth was very ſound and weighty, to the reaching the Conſciences of many; his labour in Writing was in great tenderneſs, to the gathering of the ſcattered, to the building up of the convinced, and to the comfort and conſolation of the broken hearted; for great were the bowels of mercy in him, even to all, eſpecially to ſuch who had breathings in their hearts after the Lord, and the way of his holineſs, his travel was greatly for ſuch; and by his tenderneſs in the Lambs Spirit he had an influence upon many, by reaching to the good in them, for his bowels was moved for them, Well, his reward is with the Lord for ever. In his Family he was a man of knowledge, and of true watchfulneſs, that all thoſe that were under his care might be kept ſavoury in all things, being as a weaned Child from the World, and thoſe things that periſheth with the uſing; his Moderation in all things was well known to many: What ſhall I ſay? he was a man wholly devoted in his heart to ſerve the Lord his God; yea, I am perſwaded it was his delight to do his will: I have had knowledge of him near twenty years, eſpecially in ſuffering, for it pleaſed the Lord ſo to order it, that our lot fell together in Priſon ſeveral times, and I may ſay, it was well it was ſo, for he being made willing by the power of God, (that did attend him) to ſuffer with great patience, cheerfulneſs, contentedneſs and true nobility of Spirit, he was a good example to me and others; I do not remember that ever I ſaw him caſt down or dejected in his Spirit in the time of his cloſe confinement, nor ſpeak hardly of thoſe that perſecuted him; for he was of that temper as to love enemies, and to do good to thoſe that hated him, having received a meaſure of that vertue from Chriſt his Maſter, that taught him ſo to do; indeed I may ſay in the Priſon he was a help to the weak, being made inſtrumental in the hand of the Lord for that end, with much more then at preſent I ſhall expreſs. O the remembrance of the Glory that did often over-ſhadow us in the place of Confinement, that indeed the Priſon was made by the Lord unto us (who was powerfully with us) as a pleaſant Palace! I was often with many more, by thoſe ſtreamings of Life that did many times run through his Veſſel, greatly overcome with the pure preſence and overcoming love of our God, that was plentifully ſhed abroad in our hearts; if I ſhould look back and call to remembrance my knowledge further of him, I could Write much, but this ſhort Teſtimony readily ſpringing up in my heart, as with me to give forth in the behalf of my dear Friend: And this further I have to add, indeed when I heard of his departure it came near me; but conſidering how it was with him, being fully perſwaded he was fitted for his change, in the will of the Lord I was ſatisfied, counting his ſtate happy, having Faith in God that he had laid down his head in Peace, and entred into endleſs Glory, where ſorrow ſhall be no more, having done the work of his Maſter (Chriſt the Lord) gave him to do, who kept the Faith to the end, and has finiſht his courſe with joy, leaving a good ſavour behind him; with his Spirit my Soul has union: At the writing hereof, my heart being broken into tenderneſs, and mine eyes running over with tears: Oh let us follow after him in faithfulneſs, fulfilling what is behind of our Teſtimony for the Lord and his Truth, being faithful to the death, as our Brother that is gone before us was, (who has left a good example behind him) ſo will the Crown of life be our portion for ever! That it may be ſo with my own Soul, and with the Souls of all my tender Brethren and Siſters every where, is the cry of my heart to the Lord my God, and I hope it will be ſo till time ſhall be no more with me in this world.

Robert Jones.

Concerning our dear Friend and Brother Iſaac Penington, I have a Teſtimony riſeth in my Heart.

I with many thouſand more in this our Age, Day and Regeneration, have cauſe to admire, bleſs and praiſe, and magnifie the Name of the Lord God of Heaven and Earth, in that he hath ſo largely manifeſted himſelf in the hearts of Male and Female, to the tendring their hearts and enlightning their underſtandings, and to the gathering them out of the empty Profeſſions, and by ways and crooked paths of this world, and to the purifying and ſanctifying their hearts by his powerful Word: And giving them a good underſtanding in the knowledge of himſelf, and the deep Myſteries of his heavenly kingdom, and enabling many of them in the openings and motion of the ſame life and power to Speak and Write, to the anſwering unto the witneſs of God in many, and for the joy, comfort and eſtabliſhment of others. I can truly ſay, dear Iſaac Penington was one of that number; for after full ſeven years travel and deep exerciſe of mind amongſt the empty Profeſſions, and that God had ſhewed me mercy in drawing a little nearer to me, and ſhining by his glorious Light into my Conſcience, whereby I came to ſee the formality of Profeſſors, and the emptineſs of all Forms and Profeſſions, that ſtood in mans will, and the vileneſs of my own heart, and the neceſſity of being ſaved and ſanctified; and that there was no other way, but through and by the Light of Chriſt Jeſus, that had wrought thus powerfully to convince me; then did ſome of this good mans Writings come to my view, which anſwered to the Light, Life and Truth, which was raiſed of the Lord in my heart, as face anſwers face in a Glaſs; I can truly ſay, to my joy, and comfort, and conſolation, and eſtabliſhment in the Truth; ſo that the Life and Teſtimony of him was and is truly as precious to me, and to all the Faithful; and he ſhall be had in everlaſting remembrance, who in the time of his Life was a true Subject in the kingdom of Jeſus, and a faithful labourer in his vineyard, and ſufferer for the Truth, in the patience of the Lamb, whoſe delight was to devote himſelf to retiredneſs, and to wait upon God, to feel his powerful love to abound in his tender heart (this he accounted his greateſt glory and riches) by which he was made intirely to love and have a good eſteem of his faithful Brethren in the Truth: and was a man of Peace and Love to all, and greatly delighted in the Love and unity of the Brethren, and where the contrary appeared, it grieved his tender heart. And glad I am, that it was my lot to be with him the two laſt Meetings that he was at, the firſt of which was in the City of Canterbury, I being at that time very weak in body; and it lay upon me from the Lord, to go to the Meeting where I found him, together with Friends, waiting in Silence upon the Lord; and when I had ſate down with them, O the mighty power of the Lord God that deſcended upon us, that I could ſay, that the fountain of the great deeps were opened! and O the powerful, pleaſant and chryſtal ſtreams, how did they abundantly flow into our hearts! And his cup was made to overflow, to the watering and refreſhing of the tender-hearted; ſo that God did make me a witneſs of the Seal of his Teſtimony, with many more, at thoſe two laſt Meetings, as at ſome other times, where the Life and Power of God did abound in him, and ſweetly flow from him; and fully ſatisfied I am that the Lord hath taken him in a good time, and from the evil to come, and that he hath laid down his head in reſt and everlaſting Peace with the Lord, where he is at reſt from his Labours, and his Works follow him, and is in a full and perpetual enjoyment of Life and Glory. And although his Body be in the duſt, yet his Life ſpeaks, and his Name is precious, and ſhall be had in everlaſting remembrance.

where

Farewel dear Iſaac, bleſſed man of peace and love;
Thou art 'ith glorious reſt with God above.
And this upon my heart the Lord hath Seal'd,
For by his Spirit to me it is reveal'd.

Chriſtopher Taylor's
for Iſaac Penington.

BLeſſed be the God of Abraham, Iſaac and Jacob, and of all his holy ones, from the beginning of the world until now, who hath kept all his, by his mighty power and terrible Name, who in all Ages and Generations, and under all Miniſtrations and Diſpenſations have feared and ſerved him, glory be to his Name for ever. And he hath been a God of eternal love unto them, and it hath been his banner ſpread over them, and is at this day, and hath been in all Ages, and they have faithfully ſerved him, and offered holy offerings unto him, in his pure fear and reverence, from the ſenſe of his living and pure ſtreaming love; and the bleſſing of God hath been, and is with them, and his glory he ſtill puts upon them, that they may bring forth unto him; and in the end, when they have faithfully ſerved the Lord in their Day and Generation, they may return to their long home, and be at reſt with God for ever, their portion for evermore.

Of this number was dear Iſaac Penington, a worthy man in his Generation, dearly beloved of his God, and preſerved by him, ſo that many can ſay, how dear he was unto them while he lived amongſt them: and though dead, yet liveth and ſpeaketh in thoſe pure and holy Teſtimonies he hath born unto Truth, both in word

and writing, ſo that many hearts can teſtify and bear witneſs, that he was truly ſent of God to publiſh his moſt bleſſed and holy Name; for he was a tender-ſpirited man, and dear to the Lord, and near unto his heart, where he tenderly lived and breathed, that in all things he might do his Sacred will. Ah dear Iſaac Penington was a man near and dear unto my Soul, as he was unto many others, becauſe of his inward tender-ſpiritedneſs! And methinks I feel him ſtill in the courſe of his life, ſince I have of late years more eſpecially known him; he was a man truly endued with humility; and when we have been together, and he would open his heart unto me, it would ſo anſwer my own life, and the exerciſes of my own condition, that my heart would be ſo affected with joy, that with melting bowels of Gods eternal love, we have often met and ſaluted each other; and I may ſay, dear Brother Iſaac Penington, thou liveſt indeed, and my Soul liveth with thee, and what happineſs is it that though dear and tender friends may be outwardly parted, yet are they dearly united together in the Lord Jeſus? and my Soul at this time is overcome, melted and broken within me, at the dear remembrance of thee; O dear Iſaac liveth, and his life is with us, and not ſeparated from us, and I pray God that every one who now profeſſeth the holy Name of God, may live as he did in the ſingleneſs of their hearts, intirely above all things preſſing to be united unto the holy power of God alone! His cries were dearly to God, that all Truths Profeſſors might be really poſſeſſors of Eternal Life, and his Miniſtry was accompanied with a holy, heavenly zeal, in the opening life of Gods eternal power and wiſdom, ſo that the true birth within would many times leap at the ſweet ſalutation of his life, and the tender power of God that ſpoke through him would preciouſly raiſe the life in others into a ſweet, harmonioufneſs, livingly to praiſe God: For what he innocently and humbly aimed at, both in his Words and Writings (I can teſtify with many others) was Gods pure glory; an intire innocent man he was, without guile in his heart, a true Nathaniel indeed, a lovely inſtrument in Gods hand to the turning many to righteouſneſs, both by Word and Writing; a true tender friend to all that waited for Gods ſalvation every where, and ſuch who laboured under inward exercifes and travels of Soul, he travelled with and for, and miniſtred unto many ſuch, both by Word and Writing, that they might come to be led by the Spirit of true Sanctification, and know Gods Salvation.

About thirty years ſince (as I remember) in the North of England, I met with a Book of Iſaac Peningtons, which had this Scripture following as the Subject whereof he treated, Job 38. 2. Who is this that darkeneth counſel by words without knowledge? This Scripture and the matter of his Diſcourſe upon it, in that Book, at that time I was affected with; for at that time, I with others had precious openings of many heavenly things, being then ſenſible that no man could be a Miniſter of Chriſt Jeſus, without the work of regeneration wrought in his own heart, and not only ſo, but he muſt be ſent of God to publiſh the everlaſting Goſpel, in the alone evidence of his Power and Spirit, without the mixture of his own will, and obſerving his own time, when to ſpeak and alſo to be ſilent; ſo that we believed and were convinced it was to be a Spiritual Miniſtry, and to be diſpenſed in the motion and evidence of the ſame Spirit, otherwiſe it was a darkening of counſel by words without knowledge: This was my condition with many others at that time, becauſe we ſpent many precious openings upon our own wills, and the wills and luſts of others.

Now this I bring to ſignify that dear Iſaac Penington in thoſe days had precious openings of Truth, and was a man waiting for the Kingdom of God, to be further inſtructed therein, and came to attain the end of his divine breathings and heavenly deſires:

deſires: And thoſe that honeſtly in the fear of God, read his Writings, may ſee, how clearly he hath writ concerning the things of Gods kingdom; that ſo both ſmall and great profeſſors, and profane, may, as in a glaſs, ſee their conditions, and that as yet have not repented, may conſider betimes, and repent leſt they periſh.

Chriſtopher Taylor.

This came upon me to Write in the behalf of our dear Brother Iſaac Penington, as I Rid by Feverſham in Kent, a little after his Deceaſe; and as a Teſtimony to that Spirit of Love and Life that dwelt in him, and his Faithful Labours and Services for God in his day, whom I very dearly loved, and could ſcarce part with the laſt time that I ſaw him.

THou Innocent Iſaac, that was a man of Love, of living Faith and Power, harmleſs as a Dove.
Of great ſelf denial waſt thou, and forſook all,
The pure Truth to receive, and did anſwer its call.
And didſt obey it in readineſs of mind;
So Peace and Reſt unto thy Soul didſt find,
Which thou valued more then any thing,
That's viſible of this World and periſhing.
The Glory of this World in thee was ſtain'd,
But Heavenly Glory and Honour thou haſt obtain'd;
As an everlaſting reward from him thou lov'd,
And followed with all thy might and was not mov'd.
From that Goſpel-hope which in thee was begot,
The end thereof to inherit Salvation that's thy lot.
Thy Name is writ i'th' Book of Life full plain,
Tho' outwardly diſappear'd, thy Life we do retain.
And thy Life's hid with Chriſt in God,
But thy removal from us ſeemeth as a Rod.
Appointed for us to hear its ſpeaking voice,
In the loſs of Iſrael's Chariots and Horſemen choice.
And tender Warriers for Sions proſperity,
Againſt that which hinder'd her Childrens unity.
But a Friend to all waſt thou; and Enemies did Love,
For evil wouldſt thou Mourn as a Turtle Dove.
Methinks I ſee him weep for others Abomination,
But joying in the God of his Salvation.
Thou Noble Penington thy Pen thou us'd,
Truth to defend by Babal's Sons traduc'd.
The confuſed Babel-builders thereby confounded,
The Head of Serpent thou ſtruck and wounded.
To ſhoot at Babylon he bent his Bow,
To bring upon that Whore her due ſorrow.

His

His Arrows he Shot with ſuch right Skill,
They helped to bring down that exalted Hill;
That lifted up it ſelf againſt Sion's King,
That they Sons of Sion might rejoyce and Sing.
Againſt Babel's Fenced Cities and High Towers, he Freely bent his Bow and let his Arrows flee.
To bring Diſtreſs and Torment on her Merchants Rich,
That by her Sorceries Kingdoms did Bewitch.
And Kindreds, Tongues and People did deceive,
And of laſting Joy and Comfort did them bereave.
Godly Simplicity thou tendered much,
And the Seed of God in many hearts did reach.
Which makes many ſay by way of Lamentation,
Our Friend's gone, a True Friend to this Nation.
Who warn'd its Inhabitants for to repent,
For the good of all men was his Spirit bent.
To diſintangle their Souls from Death and Hell;
Made willing by Gods Power, of his Works to tell.
And wonders which by his right hand was wrought,
The Churches Peace and Welfare much he ſought.
His Body ſubject was to Pain and Miſeries,
But now he's freed from all Infirmities.
Now he's where no Pain can him Annoy,
Now he's in the fulneſs of his Fathers Joy.
Now thou haſt received the Kingdom prepared for thee,
It to Inherit to all Eternity.
Thy Crown thou kept, waſt Faithful to the end,
Still thou didſt truſt in God, and on him depend.
Our loſs in thy removal is not ſmall,
Yet thy great gain now ſpeaketh to us all.
Prepare, prepare for your Diſſolution,
Behold the King of Terrors near to Execution.
For to diſſolve this earthly houſe of clay,
Then bleſs'd prepar'd ones are, when call'd away.
Which this our dear Friend was before his end,
And to fit others God did him forth ſend.
Methinks I hear his Diſtreſſed Widow ſay,
What means this Rod and Tryal of this day?
God hath bereav'd me of my Husband dear,
Was I worthy of him no longer here?
A Kind and Tender Husband he was to me,
The World was not worthy of him I ſee.
Little did I think when he from home laſt went,
That he was ſo ſoon to lay down his Head in Kent.
For which Grief and Sorrow fills my heart,
That with ſo near a Friend now I muſt part.
Who ſuch a meet help was made to me,
That every way few like him do I ſee.
In Heavenly things did he much delight,
And meditated thereof Day and Night.

And ſpoke of them as God opened his Mouth,
To many both Old Age and of Youth.
He honeſtly inſtructed and taught Gods fear,
And Gods Holy Truth moſt precious and dear.
He ſtrongly breathed that all might it receive,
And with Gods Heritage a portion might have.
That from Sin and evil people might ceaſe,
And enjoy from God everlaſting Peace.
He frequently loved his Brethren that were true,
Yea Gods whole Heritage, and could give all their due.
Tendering the leaſt, or hindermoſt of Chriſts flock,
That were of the right Seed and Abraham's ſtock.
Now bleſſed Iſaac of thy Father dear,
Thou'rt gone to reſt, thou'rt out of doubt and fear.
Faithfully haſt thou run thy bleſſed race,
With Iſraels Horſemen haſt thou kept due pace.
Thou preſs'd on forward, and didſt not draw back,
To obtain the mark thou aim'd at was not ſlack.
Remembrance of thee is and will be ſweet,
To us that knew thee a Lamb that ſate at Jeſus feet.
Where 'tis good for all thou haſt left behind to keep,
Till we go hence and in endleſs reſt thee meet.
His dear Childrens loſs I cannot but mind,
Of him ſo dear a Father loving and kind.
Who watched over them and many for good,
Waiting to feed upon, and feed with Heavenly food.
You Children of our Iſaac Penington,
As he gave you example let Gods will be done.
Follow your Fathers ſteps in the narrow way,
Which will lead you to life everlaſting I ſay.
In that you will be bleſs'd whilſt you are here,
And with your Father hereafter in endleſs joy appear.

A TESTIMONY

Concerning I. Penington by Tho. Ellwood.

ALthough I am not ignorant that many weighty and living Teſtimonies have been already given in by true and faithful Witneſſes, upon the ſame occaſion, which might well ſeem ſufficient to excuſe mine, yet am I not thereby clear, but find a preſſing upon my Spirit to write a few lines alſo, concerning this my dear deceaſed Friend; to which (I confeſs) I am induced, and in ſome ſort engaged, by the double obligation of affection and gratitude. Love him I did, and that entirely, and (ſure I am) very deſervedly; for he was worthy indeed of love from all men, but more eſpecially from me, to whom he had been abundantly kind. For in the day wherein it pleaſed the Lord to awaken my Soul, and call me out of the pollutions of the world, with reſpect alike to worſhip and converſation (for which I became the deriſion of my Country, the ſcorn and contempt of my Familiars and Acquaintance, and in a manner, an out-caſt alſo, expoſed, as it were, to the world to ſhift in) how welcome was I then to him? How affectionately did he receive me? How regardfully did he take care of me? How tenderly and like a Father did he watch over me, that I might not be drawn back, or any way betrayed from the ſimplicity of Truth, as I had received it? And can I ever forget his love, or let his manifold kindneſs ſlip out of my mind? Oh no, the remembrance of him is pleaſant to me, and I think not of him without delight! For as a Friend I truly loved him, as a Father (for ſuch his care of me rendred him to me) I reverenced him, as an Elder I honoured him, and that (as he right well deſerved) with double honour: My Spirit was truly united to his, yea my Soul was linked and knit unto him in the holy Covenant of life, which death hath not been able to diſſolve. Bear with me therefore a little, I entreat thee, whoever thou art, under whoſe eye theſe lines may chance to fall, if I take liberty to expreſs my ſenſe of this my beloved friend; wherein if I ſeem ſomewhat particular, know that my Acquaintance with him was ſo.

He was naturally furniſhed with a ſharp and excellent wit, and that well cultivated and poliſhed with an ingenuous and liberal Education: His diſpoſition was Courteous and Affable, free from Pride and Affectation. His ordinary Diſcourſe Cheerful and Pleaſant, neither Moroſe nor Light, but innocently ſweet and tempered with ſuch a ſerious gravity, as rendred his converſe both delightful and profitable.

From his Childhood, (as I have heard him occaſionally ſay) he was religiouſly enclined, and ſought the Lord in his tender years. And although the way of Truth was not then ſo caſt up unto him, as ſince through the goodneſs of the Lord it was; yet that he had then, at times, ſome true touches and taſts of Life, ſome openings and ſights of heavenly things, (though not ſo clear, unmixt and abiding, as after) the Treatiſes which he then writ do manifeſtly declare. And albeit at the firſt manifeſtation of Truth unto him in this preſent diſpenſation, he was not without doubts and jealouſies concerning it, (as himſelf relates) nor free, for ſome time from diſputes and reaſonings againſt the meanneſs of its appearance; yet after it pleaſed the Father, in the riches of his grace, to reveal his Son in him, thereby giving him to ſee, and certainly to know what was that good and acceptable

table and perfect will of God, O how joyful did he receive it! How willingly did he bow unto it! How readily did he yield his neck to the yoke of Chriſt! And how conſtantly and delightfully did he wear it! Did he then regard the Pleaſures of the times, or value the Preferments and Honours of the world, though living at that time in the favour and affluence of it? No, no, he turned his back upon it all, eſteeming the reproach of Chriſt greater riches then the Treaſures of Egypt, and caſting down his Crown at the foot of Jeſus, he willingly became a fool to the world, and to the wiſdom thereof, that he might be made truly wiſe to God. And ſurely he obtained his deſire hercin; for as he honoured the Lord, and preferred him above all; ſo the Lord did highly honour him, and gave him liberally of the true and heavenly wiſdom, adorned with humility; ſo that he was learned and yet humble, full of knowledge (Heavenly knowledge) yet not puffed up thereby. And as he had freely received of the Lord, ſo did he freely and readily communicate thereof (as the following ſheets do witneſs) unto ſuch as ſtood in need of Counſel, Advice, Information, or Direction in their travel to the heavenly Country. To which ſervice he was fitted and very well furniſhed, by the experiences of his own travel: For the Lord had led him through many a ſtrait and difficulty, through many temptations, tryals and exerciſes (by which he had tryed and proved him) not only through the red Sea and the wilderneſs had he paſſed, but the bottom of Jordan alſo had he ſeen, and the upholding delivering arm of the Lord through all he had known and felt; whereby he was able to ſpeak a word of information to the bewildred paſſenger, a word of encouragement to the weary and fainting Traveller, a word of comfort to the afflicted ſoul, and of conſolation to the wounded ſpirit. And ah how ſweetly have I heard it flow from him! how has it dropt like the dew, and diſtilled like the gentle rain! Ah how tender, how compaſſionate, how full of bowels and feeling ſympathy was he! Surely his words have been many times like Apples of Gold in Pictures of Silver. For of a truth the Lord was with him, and his heavenly power did often fill his Temple; and the Spirit of the Lord reſted upon him, and the fruits thereof were plentifully brought forth through him in love, in joy, in peace, in long-ſuffering, in gentleneſs, in goodneſs, in faith, in meekneſs and in temperance, ſo richly did the Word of the Lord dwell in him. His delight was in the ſervice of God, to which he was wholly given up, and in it ſpent moſt of his time, either publickly in Meetings waiting upon God, or privately in viſiting and miniſtring unto thoſe that were diſtreſſed, or any way afflicted in mind or body; and when at home, he was frequent in retirements, and very inward with the Lord. Very fervent he was in Prayer, and very frequent: for the Spirit of grace and ſupplication was plentifully poured upon him, by which he often wreſtled with the Lord, and not in vain: The holy Scriptures he read much, and with great delight and profit. He made it not a curſory or formal buſineſs, nor ſought to pick out the meaning by his natural wit or learning, but with a great compoſedneſs of mind, and reverence of Spirit, waited to receive the true ſenſe of them from the openings of that divine Spirit, by which the Penmen of them were inſpired. Great and ſtrong was the travel of his Spirit for the converſion of others, and in a more eſpecial manner did his love flow, and bowels yearn after the Profeſſors of Religion, for whom he continually and earneſtly laboured both by word and writing (not ceaſing to ſeek them to his dying day) that they might be brought off from the ſhadows, and come at length to inherit ſubſtance. And bleſſed be the Lord, by the powerful operation of the Spirit of God, through his Miniſtry many were turned to the Truth, and many confirmed in it: For the Lord was with him, and ſpake by him, ſo that his teaching was with divine authority, in the demonſtration of the Spirit and of power. To the world and the affairs of it he was very much a ſtranger, but deeply experienced in the things of God: For his affection being ſet on things above, his converſation was in heaven, and his life hid with Chriſt in God. He was but a Pilgrim on the earth, and is now gone home. In his Family he was a true pattern of goodneſs and piety, not only by his grave example, but by his ſavoury inſtructions and exhortations to godlineſs. To his Wife he was a moſt affectionate Husband, to his Children a loving and tender Father, to his Servants a mild and gentle Maſter, to his Friends a firm and faſt Friend, to the Poor compaſſionate and open-handed, and to all courteous and kind. Very zealous he was for the Truth, unwearied in promoting it, bold and undaunted in the defence of it, faithful in his Teſtimony to it, patient and cheerful in his ſuffering for it. A right good and pious man indeed was he, one that truly feared God and warily eſchewed evil.

How great and various his exerciſes were in the times of his former Profeſſions, how earneſt and preſſing his Spirit then was after the pure enjoyment of God, how ſtrange and admirable the dealings of the Lord were with him, and how far he came at length to ſee the travel of his Soul, and to be ſatisfied, as himſelf of all men beſt knew, ſo he hath occaſionably ſcattered here and there an hint thereof, in ſeveral pieces of the following Books; which (for the Readers ſatisfaction) I had once thought to have collected and preſented here together: But finding amongſt his looſe Papers a ſummary account thereof, written with his own hand, above a dozen years ago, when being in bonds for Chriſts ſake, he was Sick near unto death; I choſe rather to tranſcribe that hither, and refer the more curious and induſtrious Reader to the ſeveral Books and Papers of the enſuing Volume, wherein he hath touched the ſame Subject; as namely, The way of Life and Death, &c. in the Preface and in the Poſtſcript, p. 37. Babylon the great deſcribed, &c. p. 63, 64. p. 89. The ſcattered Sheep, &c: p. 74. An Examination of the grounds, &c. p. 197, 198. and 247. A Glaſs for Profeſſors, p. 107. Where is the Wiſe, p. 256. Obſervations on Rom. 14. 20. p. 401. Of the Church in its firſt and pureſt ſtate, p. 88, 89, 90. Obſervations on ſome paſſages of L. Muggleton, p. 42. The holy Truth and people defended, p. 122, 126. not to enumerate each particular.

The Account he gives of his Spiritual Travel is as followeth.

A true and faithful Relation (in brief) concerning my ſelf, in reference to my ſpiritual Travels, and the Lords dealings with me. I ſay true and faithful, becauſe it is of the Truth, and not given forth in my own will, but in the Lords will, and requirings of me at this time, for his ſervice. The Relation is as follows.

I have been a man of ſorrow and affliction from my Childhood, feeling the want of the Lord and mourning after him, ſeparated by him from the love, nature and ſpirit of this world, and turned in ſpirit towards him, almoſt ever ſince I could remember.

In this ſenſe of my loſt eſtate, I ſought after the Lord, I read Scriptures, I watched over mine own heart, I cried unto the Lord for what I felt the want of, I bleſſed his Name in what he mercifully did for me, and beſtowed on me, &c. Whatever I read in the Scriptures, as the way of God to my underſtanding, I gave my ſelf to the faithful practice of being contented to meet with all the reproach, oppoſition and ſeveral kinds of ſufferings, which it pleaſed the Lord to meaſure out to me therein. And I cannot but ſay, that the Lord was good unto me, did viſit me, did teach me, did help me, did teſtify his acceptance of me many times, to the refreſhing and joy of my heart before him.

But my Soul was not ſatisfied with what I met with, nor indeed could be, there being further quicknings and preſſings in my ſpirit, after a more full, certain and ſatisfactory knowledge; even after the ſenſe, ſight and enjoyment of God, as was teſtified in the Scriptures to have been felt and enjoyed in the former times: For I ſaw plainly, that there was a ſtop of the ſtreams, and a great falling ſhort of the power, life and glory which they partook of. We had not ſo the Spirit, nor were ſo in the faith, nor did ſo walk and live in God, as they did. They were come to Mount Sion and the heavenly Jeruſalem, &c. which we had hardly ſo much as the Literal knowledge or apprehenſion what they were. So that I ſaw the whole courſe of Religion among us, was (for the moſt part) but a talk to what that they felt, enjoyed, poſſeſſed and lived in.

This ſenſe made me Sick at heart indeed, and ſet me upon deep crying to God, cloſe ſearching the Scriptures, and waiting on God, that I might receive the pure ſence and underſtanding of them, from and in the Light, and by the help of his Spirit. (And what the Lord did beſtow on me in that ſtate, with thankfulneſs I remember before him at this very day: For he was then my God, and a pitier and a watcher over me; though he had not pleaſed then to direct me, how to ſtay my mind upon him and abide with him.) And then I was led (indeed I was led, I did not run of my ſelf) into a way of ſeparation from the Worſhip of the world, into a gathered Society: For this both the Scripture and the Spirit of God in me gave Teſtimony unto; and what we then met with, and what leadings and help we then felt, there is a remembrance and Teſtimony in my heart to this day. But there was ſomewhat wanting, and we miſtook our way: For whereas we ſhould have preſſed forward into the Spirit and Power, we ran too much outward into Letter and Form: And though the Lord in many things helped us, yet therein he was againſt us, and brought darkneſs, confuſion and ſcattering upon us. I was ſurely broken and darkned, and in this darkened ſtate, ſometimes lay ſtill for a long ſeaſon, ſecretly mourning and crying out to the Lord night and day; ſometimes I ran about, hearkning after what might appear or break forth in others, but never met with any thing, whereto there was the leaſt anſwer in my heart, ſave in one people, who had a touch of Truth: But I never expreſſed ſo much to any of them, nor indeed felt them at all able to reach my condition.

At laſt, after all my diſtreſſes, wandrings and ſore travels, I met with ſome Writings of this People called Quakers, which I caſt a ſlight eye upon and diſdained, as falling very ſhort of that Wiſdom, Light, Life and Power, which I had been longing for and ſearching after: I had likewiſe (ſome pretty diſtance of time after this) opportunity of meeting with ſome of them, and divers of them were by the Lord moved (I know it to be ſo ſince) to come to me: As I remember, at the very firſt they reached to the Life of God in me, which life anſwered their voice, and cauſed a great love in me to ſpring to them: but ſtill in my reaſonings with them, and diſputes alone (in my mind) concerning them, I was very far off from owning them, as ſo knowing the Lord, or ſo appearing in his Life and Power as my condition needed, and as my Soul waited for. Yea, the more I converſed with them, the more I ſeemed in my underſtanding and reaſon to get over them, and to trample them under my feet, as a poor, weak, ſilly, contemptible generation, who had ſome ſmatterings of Truth in them, and ſome honeſt deſires towards God, but very far off from the clear and full underſtanding of his way and will. And this was the effect almoſt of every Diſcourſe with them, they ſtill reached my heart, and I felt them in the ſecrets of my ſoul, which cauſed the love in me always to continue, yea ſometimes to increaſe towards them: But daily my underſtanding got more and more over them, and therein I daily more and more deſpiſed them.

After a long time I was invited to hear one of them (as I had been often, they in tender love pitying me, and feeling my want of that, which they poſſeſſed) and there was an anſwer in my heart, and I went in fear and trembling, with deſires to the moſt High, who was over all and knew all, that I might not receive any thing for Truth, which was not of him, nor withſtand any thing which was of him, but might bow before the appearance of the Lord my God, and none other: And indeed, when I came, I felt the preſence and power of the moſt High among them, and words of Truth, from the Spirit of Truth, reaching to my heart and conſcience, opening my ſtate as in the preſence of the Lord. Yea I did not only feel words and demonſtrations from without, but I felt the dead quickned, the ſeed raiſed, inſomuch as my heart (in the certainty of light and clearneſs of true ſenſe) ſaid, This is he, this is he, there is no other; this is he whom I have waited for and ſought after from my Childhood, who was always near me, and had often begotten life in my heart, but I knew him not diſtinctly, nor how to receive him or dwell with him. And then in this ſenſe (in the melting and breakings of my Spirit) was I given up to the Lord, to become his, both in waiting for the further revealing of his ſeed in me, and to ſerve him in the life and power of his ſeed.

Now what I met with after this, in my travels, in my waitings, in my ſpiritual exerciſes, is not to be uttered; only in general I may ſay this, I met with the very ſtrength of Hell. The cruel oppreſſor roared upon me, and made me feel the bitterneſs of his captivity, while he had any power: Yea the Lord was far from my help, and from the voice of my roaring. I alſo met with deep ſubtilties and devices to entangle me in that wiſdom, which ſeemeth able to make wiſe in the things of God, but indeed is fooliſhneſs and a ſnare to the ſoul, bringing it back into captivity, where the enemies gins prevail. And what I met with outwardly from my own dear Father, from my kindred, from my Servants, from the people and powers of the world, for no other cauſe but fearing my God, worſhipping him as he hath required of me, and bowing to his Seed (which is his Son) who is to be worſhipped by men and Angels for evermore; the Lord my God knoweth, before whom my heart and ways are, who preſerved me in love to them, in the midſt of all I ſuffered from them, and doth ſtill ſo preſerve me, bleſſed be his pure and holy Name.

But ſome may deſire to know, what I have at laſt met with: I anſwer, I have met with the Seed. Underſtand that word, and thou wilt be ſatisfied, and enquire no further. I have met with my God, I have met with my Saviour; and he hath not been preſent with me without his Salvation, but I have felt the healings drop upon my Soul from under his wings; I have met with the true knowledge, the knowledge of life, the living knowledge, the knowledge which is life, and this hath had the true vertue in it, which my ſoul hath rejoyced in, in the preſence of the Lord. I have met with the Seeds Father, and in the Seed I have felt him my Father: There I have read his nature, his love, his compaſſions, his tenderneſs, which have melted, overcome and changed my heart before him. I have met with the Seeds Faith, which hath done and doth that, which the Faith of man can never do. I have met with the true Birth, with the Birth which is Heir of the Kingdom, and inherits the Kingdom. I have met with the true Spirit of Prayer and Supplication, wherein the Lord is prevailed with, and which draws from him whatever the condition needs, the Soul always looking up to him in the will, and in the time and way which is acceptable with him. What ſhall I ſay? I have met with the true Peace, the true Righteouſneſs, the true Holineſs, the true reſt of the Soul, the everlaſting habitation, which the redeemed dwell in: And I know all theſe to be true, in him that is true, and am capable of no doubt, diſpute or reaſoning in my mind about them, it abiding there, where it hath received the full aſſurance and ſatisfaction. And alſo I know very well and diſtinctly in Spirit, where the doubts and diſputes are, and where the certainty and full aſſurance is, and in the tender mercy of the Lord am preſerved out of the one, and in the other.

Now (the Lord knows) theſe things I do not utter in a boaſting way, but would rather be ſpeaking of my nothingneſs, my emptineſs, my weakneſs, my manifold infirmities, which I feel more then ever. The Lord hath broken the mans part in me, and I am a worm and no man before him: I have no ſtrength to do any good or ſervice for him, nay I cannot watch over or preſerve my ſelf: I feel daily that I keep not alive my own Soul, but am weaker before men, yea weaker in my Spirit (as in my ſelf) then ever I have been. But I cannot but utter to the praiſe of my God, that I feel his Arm ſtretched out for me; and my weakneſs (which I feel in my ſelf) is not my loſs, but advantage before him. And theſe things I write, as having no end at all therein of my own, but felt it this morning required of me, and ſo in ſubmiſſion and ſubjection to my God, have I given up to do it, leaving the ſucceſs and ſervice of it with him.

Alisbury 15*th.* of 3*d.* Month, 1667. I. P.

Neither to him was it given only to believe, but to ſuffer alſo for the ſake of Chriſt. His Impriſonments were many, and ſome of them long, which with great conſtancy and quietneſs of mind he underwent. But becauſe ſo general an Account may perhaps not anſwer the expectation and deſire of the Reader, I will here ſubjoyn a more particular, but that as contracted and ſhort as may be.

His firſt Impriſonment was in Alisbury Goal in the years 1661, and 62. being committed thither for Worſhipping God in his own Houſe, where for 17 weeks (great part of it in Winter) he was kept in a Cold and very Incommodious Room, without a Chimney; from which hard uſage his tender body contracted ſo great and violent a Diſtemper, that for ſeveral weeks after he was not able to turn himſelf in his Bed.

His ſecond Impriſonment was in the year 1664. being taken out of a Meeting, where he with others were peaceably waiting upon the Lord, and ſent to Alisbury Goal, where he again remained a Priſoner between 17 and 18 weeks.

His third Impriſonment was in the year 1665, being taken up (with many others) in the open Street of Amerſham, as they were carrying and accompanying the body of a Deceaſed Friend to the Grave. From hence he was again ſent to Aliſ-bury Goal; but this Commitment being in order to Baniſhment, was but for a Month, or thereabouts.

His fourth Impriſonment was in the ſame year 65. about a Month after his Releaſe from the former. Hitherto his Commitments had been by the Civil Magiſtrates, but now (that he might experience the Severity of each) he fell into the Military hands: A rude Souldier (without any other Warrant than what he carried in his Scabbard) came to his Houſe, and told him he came to fetch him before Sir Philip Palmer (one of the Deputy-Lieutenants of the County.) He meekly went, and was by him ſent with a Guard of Souldiers to Alisbury Goal, with a kind of Mittimus importing, That the Goaler ſhould receive and keep him in ſafe Cuſtody, during the pleaſure of the Earl of Bridgwater; who had it ſeems conceived ſo great (as well as unjuſt) diſpleaſure againſt this innocent man, that although (it being the Sickneſs year) the Plague was ſuſpected to be in the Goal, he would not be prevailed with, but permit Iſaac Penington by the earneſt importunity of a perſon of conſiderable both Quality and Power in the County, to but permit Iſaac Penington to be removed to another Houſe in the Town, and there kept Priſoner until the Goal were clear. Afterwards a Priſoner dying in the Goal of the Plague, the Goaler's Wife (her Husband being abſent) gave leave to I. P. to remove to another Houſe, where he was ſhut up about ſix weeks; after which, by the procurement of the Earl of Ancram, a Releaſe was ſent from the ſaid Philip Palmer, by which he was diſcharged after he had ſuffered Impriſonment three quarters of a year, with apparent hazard of his Life, and that for no offence.

By that time he had been at home about three weeks, a Party of Souldiers from the ſaid Philip Palmer (by order of the Earl of Bridgwater, as was reported) came to his Houſe, and ſeizing him in Bed, carried him away to Alisbury Goal again, where without any cauſe ſhewed or crime objected, he was kept in Priſon a year and a half, in Rooms ſo Cold, Damp and Unhealthy, that it went very near to coſt him his Life, and procured him ſo great a Diſtemper, that he lay weak of it ſeveral Months. At length a Relation of his Wifes, by an Habeas Corpus, removed him to the Kings-Bench-Bar, where (with the wonder of the Court that a man ſhould be ſo long Impriſoned for nothing) he was at laſt releaſed in the year 1668. This was his fifth Impriſonment.

His ſixth Impriſonment was in the year 1670. in Reading Goal, whither he went to viſit his Friends that were Sufferers there for the Teſtimony of Jeſus. Of which notice being given to one called Sir William Armorer (a Juſtice of the Peace for that County, and living in the Town) he was forthwith ſent for before him, and committed to the Goal, thereby becoming a Fellow-Sufferer with them, whom being ſufferers for the Truth, he came to viſit. Here he continued a Priſoner a year and three quarters, and was brought under the Sentence of a Præmunire; but at length the Lord delivered him.

Thus through many Tribulations did he enter into the Kingdom, having been exerciſed, tryed, proved and approved by the Lord. Long was he in the Warfare, and like a good Souldier manfully endured the fight of Afflictions: But having fought the good fight, and kept the faith, he hath now (in the Lords good time) finiſhed his courſe, and is gone to poſſeſs the Crown of Righteouſneſs laid up for him, and all thoſe that love the bright appearance of the Lord. A Faithful Labourer he was in the Lords Vineyard for many years: but now hath he ceaſed from his Labour, and his Works follow him. He walked with God, and is tranſlated. To the Lord he lived, and in the Lord he died, and by the Spirit of the Lord he is pronounced bleſſed. Bleſſed for ever be the Name of the Lord therefore.

THE TESTIMONY Of William Penn concerning Isaac Penington.

AS the Memory of the Just is Blessed, so to me there seems a Blessing upon those that have a Right Remembrance of them: Wherefore to the Memory of this Just man, my Dear Friend, and Relation, Isaac Penington, I do, with a sincere and Religious affection, dedicate this ensuing Testimony.

And first give me leave to say something of his Manly Capacity: The best comes after.

He was well descended as to his worldly Parentage, and born Heir to a fair Inheritance; his Education was suitable to his Quality among men, having all the advantages the Schools and Universities of his own Country could give him, joyned with the Conversation of some of the knowingest and considerablest men of his own time. But his Natural Abilities, the gifts of his Creator, they excelled: He was a man Quick in Apprehension, Fruitful in Conception, and of a Lively Wit and Intelligence, all adorned with an extraordinary Mildness; that as other men are wont to show their Pregnancy by Sharpness, he manifested his with an Engaging Sweetness.

His Fathers Station in Publick Business, gave him pretence enough to a share of the Worlds Greatness; but, which brings me to his better and Religious Capacity, he with Blessed, Meek Moses, refused the Egyptian glory of the World, and chose rather a life dedicated to an enquiry after God, and holy fellowship with him and his despised Israel.

Very early did the Lord visit him with a more then ordinary manifestation of his love; and it had that good effect upon him, that it kept him from both the evils and vain Worships of the World, and he became the wonder of his Kindred and Familiars for his awful Life, and serious and frequent Retirements; declining all Company that might interrupt his Meditations: And by giving himself over to a Life of Mourning and Pilgrimage, he was as unpleasant to them, as the world was to him. Nor did this sorrow flow from a sense of former Vice, for he was Virtuous from his Childhoood, but with holy Habakkuk, from the dread he had of the Majesty of God, and his desire to find a resting place in the great day of trouble. Nothing in these exercises gave him ease or comfort, but the smiles of Gods countenance upon his Soul; and that it was he thirsted after, with a perpetual solicitation: First, How shall I appear? and then, O that I may appear before God!

His Inward Exercises and Enjoyments being of a very peculiar nature, made him take little comfort in any of the Religious Societies there known to him. He was as one alone; for he saw so much of that uncircumcised and uncrucified flesh (which is as grass) profess the Mysteries of the heavenly Kingdom; I mean people but under ordinary convictions, that had never known Jacob's troubles, nor the Fear and Trembling with which the true Salvation is wrought, and that the Spirit and Abilities of man took up so great a part and share in Religious Duties among them, and the Spirit of the Lord so little, if any at all, that he felt them of little or no use to him: On the contrary, he was often burden'd with them, and prest in Spirit to lay open their Carnal State under a Christian Profession, and though they held the Notions of the Truth, it was not in the precious and experimental sense of the holy vertue and Life of the Truth; insomuch as he found it his duty to endeavour to break their falſe Peace, and bewilder their loſty Wiſdom and Profeſſion, rather approving of a ſtate of humble doubting, then hypocritical confidence; and that waiting for the Lords coming in Spirit without ſin, to the Salvation of the Soul, that people may truely know the Lord and his work, and from thence ſpeak forth his praiſe to others, then profeſs the Enjoyments of other Saints that had been obtained through great Tribulations, when they had never known any ſuch thing in themſelves, and ſo had no true ſenſe of Gods inward work, nor the true ſacrifice of Gods preparing to offer to him, which only is accepted with him.

This drew reproach upon him, as a man Singular and Cenſorious, from the Worldly Profeſſors, particularly the Clergy (that common Eclipſe between God and the Souls of people) yet thoſe that with him waited for the conſolation of Iſrael, and the coming of the Son of man in power and great glory, they found him out, valued and honoured him, and ſweet was their fellowſhip to him; who boaſted in nothing more, then that they had nothing to baaſt of, whilſt the Laodicea of their Age thought ſhe wanted nothing: And in that emptineſs they waited to be filled of him that filleth all things, at his coming and kingdom, that they might be the witneſſes of his reſurrection and appearance: Some of them died before that bleſſed time came, ſome ſaw it, and were glad, and with good old Simeon departed in peace, and others liv'd to ſee the glory of that bleſſed day both dawn and break forth upon them, to their admiration and comfort, among whom my Dear Father-in-Law Iſaac Penington, was not the laſt, nor leaſt of note.

About the year 1657. it pleaſed the Lord to ſend him a Peter to declare to him, that the time of the powring forth of the Holy Spirit, and breaking forth of the heavenly work of God in the Souls of men and women was come, and many Aquilas and Priſcillas came after, who inſtructed him in the way of God more perfectly. And however he was advanced above many in his knowledge of Scripture, and had formerly received many heavenly openings of Truths Myſteries in his Soul, yet did the Lords way of appearance diſappoint his expectation, and when the Light broke forth in his heart, which his ſincerity longed for, he found a great mixture, and that he had much to loſe and part with before he came to be that bleſſed little Child (that new and heavenly Birth) which inherits the kingdom of God; which made him cry, Narrow is the way, and ſtraight is the Gate indeed that leads to Life.

But to the glory of the living God, and praiſe of this Juſt mans Memory, let me ſay, neither his worldly Station, the moſt conſiderable of any that had clos'd with this way, nor the contradictions it gave to any former conceptions, nor the debaſement it brought upon his Learning and Wiſdom, nor yet that reproach and loſs that attended his publick eſpouſing of it, did deter him from owning, and cordially embracing of it: But with an humble and broken ſpirit he fell before this holy appearance of Jeſus, that true Light of men, whoſe Power and Life he felt revealed in him, to the ſaving of his Soul; and boldly owned and confeſſed this ſpiritual coming of the great Meſſiah, that was able to teach him all things, to his Name his knee truly bowed, and the Scripture was in him fulfilled; with Nathaniel, he cryed, Thou art the Son of God, thou art the King of Iſrael. Now he ſaw clearly between the precious and the vile in himſelf, between that which was truly of God and that which was meerly of man in his former exerciſes, and he was not ſtiff nor ſtout in defence of his own Building and former conceivings; no, but ſold all for the Pearl, and became willingly a poor man in Spirit, that ſo he might enter into the Kingdom of God. Thus parting with all he had not received of God, he received a new ſtock from Heaven, wherein God proſper'd him, the dew of Heaven reſted upon his Branch and Root, and he

ALEXANDER PARKER's

TESTIMONY

Concerning ISAAC PENINGTON.

HAving ſeen and read many lively and freſh Teſtimonies of ſeveral of my dear Brethren concerning our dear Friend and Brother Iſaac Penington deceaſed, I did ſatisfy my ſelf with what was written by them, being ſo full and large, and anſwering my own ſenſe, that I did acquieſce in my own mind, not intending to appear in publick in this matter; but of late hearing a Teſtimony read, written by his dear Wife M. P. did ſo revive the remembrance of him, that the ſenſe of that love and endeared affection which I always had for him, did ſo work in my mind, that I could not be clear without caſting-in my Mite amongſt the reſt of my Brethren, having known him from the early dayes of his Convincement of the bleſſed Truth, in which he lived, and for which he ſuffered, and in the faith of which Holy Truth he finiſhed his courſe. The firſt time, that I ſaw his face, was at Reading in Barkſhire, in the 12 Month, called February, 1656. And though at that time he had not the outward garb and appearance of a Quaker, yet did mine eye behold an inward beauty and hidden vertue of Life in him, and my ſoul in the bowels of the love of Truth did cleave unto him, and I could have embraced him in the ſenſe thereof, but in thoſe early days we were cautious and laid hands on no man ſuddenly: he did not haſtily joyn in ſociety with us, but for ſome time did reaſon about many things, though he owned the Principal Doctrines of Truth, yet the Inſtruments that declared it and their way and manner ſeemed very contemptible to him, untill he heard that faithfull Servant of God G. F. (who was the firſt Man that proclaimed the Goſpel of Life and Salvation amongſt us) at a Meeting at J. Crook's in Bedfordſhire, at the time called Whitſuntide in the Year 1658. At which meeting the Myſtery of Iniquity was ſo opened, and the Myſtery of the Goſpel of Peace ſo plainly manifeſted, that he was fully ſatisfied, and from that time gave up himſelf to the obedience of Truth, and took up the Croſs, and became a Diſciple and follower of Chriſt, and ſuffered with us for the Name and Teſtimony of Jeſus, and bore the ſcoffings and reproaches of the Ungodly with much patience, accounting it his riches: and in much love did he imbrace and receive the Meſſengers and Servants of God into his houſe, where were many precious Meetings, and many were convinced and brought into the way of Life, amongſt whom he was a good pattern and an Help unto them, and when any were bowed down in ſpirit and afflicted in mind, he was a great Help and Comfort to ſuch, having himſelf travailed through various and deep Exerciſes, through which the LORD brought him and eſtabliſhed him in Righteouſneſs. He was a Man of a Quick Apprehenſion, and when any Sparks of LIGHT did ariſe from the coales of God's Altar, it quickly kindled in him a flame of Holy Zeal for GOD and his Truth, even in the morning of his convincement, and in the freſh openings of Life many living teſtimonies were given forth by him, as in his Writings may be ſeen, to which which the Reader is referred. His heart and Soul was much drawn forth unto the Profeſſors of Religion of all Perſwaſions, having a deep travail for them, and in much Bowels of Love and tender compaſſion did he intreat and beſeech them to turn to the true LIGHT, that they might be converted and healed: But few did regard his deep travails for them, which doubtleſs will riſe in judgment as a teſtimony againſt them. And I do deſire that thoſe, whoſe Day is not over, may yet conſider, and take a further view into his Writings, and ſearch into their own hearts, that with the Light of JESUS, that ſhines there, they may come to a true ſight of their ſins, and ſo to a godly ſorrow, which may work repentance unto life, that they may find mercy with the Lord, and peace to their immortal ſouls. In all his Writings and Declarations he ſtill pointed to Life, and preſſed all to mind the power of Godlineſs, and not to ſettle (or content themſelves) in the Letter or form of Religion: this, Oh this was the very bent of his mind and the ſtrong cries of his ſoul to the Lord, that all might partake of Life, even the Life of JESUS in their mortal bodies, which he through the death of the Croſs was made a partaker of, in which Life he lived unto God, and was a lively pattern of humility, walking uprightly (in innocency) before the Lord. He was a man weaned from the World and redeemed from the Earth, his mind being daily exerciſed in things of an higher nature, drinking daily of the water that Chriſt gives, which was in him a well of living Water ſpringing up into eternal Life, which filled his veſſel and cauſed his cup to overflow. Much might be ſaid of this good man, but words are too ſhort to ſignify the depth of his inward life. I write not theſe things to exalt or ſet up man, but to exalt and magnify the Grace of GOD, which was in him, which was ſufficient for him, by the power of which he was carried on through all his troubles and exerciſes, by which he was taught to deny ungodlyneſs and all the evil luſts of this wicked World, and to live righteouſly, ſoberly and godly in this world, in which godly life he perſiſted to the end of his days. And as he lived in the Lord, even ſo he dyed, laying down his head in peace, and liveth with the LORD in the enjoyment of his Love, where there is joy and felicity for ever, and his memory is ſweet and bleſſed. O! that every one that profeſſeth the Holy Truth may ſo run that they may obtain the crown of eternal life. This is the travail and the earneſt deſire of him who ſeeketh the good of all Mankind.

Mary Penington her

TESTIMONY

Concerning her Dear Husband.

WHilſt I keep ſilent touching Thee, O Thou bleſſed of the LORD and his People, my heart burneth within me. I muſt make mention of thee, for thou waſt a moſt pleaſant Plant of renown, planted by the right hand of the Lord, and thou took'ſt deep rooting downwards, and ſprang upward. The dew of Heaven fell on thee, and made thee fruitful, and thy fruit was of a fragrant ſmell, and moſt delightfull. O! where ſhall I begin to recount the Lord's remarkable dealings with thee? He ſet his love on thee, O thou one of the Lord s peculiar choice, to place his Name on! Waſt not thou ſanctified in the womb? Thy very babiſh dayes declared of what ſtock and lineage thou wert. Thou deſired ſt after the ſincere Milk of the Word, as a new-born babe, even in the bud of thy age. O! who can declare how thou haſt travelled towards the holy Land in thy very infancy as to dayes? O, who can tell what thy Soul hath felt in thy travel? O, thou waſt gotten to be in the mount with the Lord and his ſpiritual Moſes, when the Princes and Elders ſaw but his back-parts, and feared and quaked to hear the terrible Thundrings in mount Sinai. The breaſt of Conſolation was held out to thee early, and thou ſucked ſt thy fill, till the veſſel could not longer contain, for thou couldſt not in that fulneſs ſee God and live in this tabernacle, ſo that thou beſought ſt the Lord to abate this exceeding excellent glory, and give thee ſuch a meaſure as was food convenient. O, the heavenly, bright, living openings that were given to thee many years paſt: His Light ſhone round about thee, and the book of the Creatures was opened to thee, and his Myſteries made known to holy men of old, who ſpoke them forth as they were inſpired by the Hol, Ghoſt, were made known to thee to diſcern. Such a ſtate as I have never known any in, in that day, have I heard thee declare of. O, this did it pleaſe the Lord to withdraw and ſhut up as in one day, and ſo leave thee deſolate and mourning many a day, weary of the night and of the day; poor and naked; ſad, diſtreſſed and bowed down. Thou refuſed ſt to be comforted, becauſe it was a time of night and not day; and becauſe he that was gone, was not come. His time of manifeſting his Love was not at hand, but he was as a ſtranger, or one gone into a far countrey, not ready ready to return,& thou would'ſt accept of no beloved in his abſence, but teſtified'ſt, that he thy Soul longed for, was not in this or that obſervation, nay nor opening; but thy Beloved, when he came, would ſit as a Refiner's fire, and would come with his fan in his hand, and throughly purge his floor. No likeneſs, or appearance, or taking ſound of words, or viſions, or revelations would'ſt thou take up with in ſtead of him that was Life indeed. O! the many years thou put'ſt thy mouth in the duſt, and went'ſt ſoftly, and bowed down, and hadſt anguiſh of ſoul, weeping and groaning, panting and ſighing! O! who can tell the one half of the bitterneſs of thy ſoul, becauſe Subſtance was in thy eye, all ſhaddows did fly away from before thee; thou could'ſt not feed on that which was not bread from heaven! In this ſtate I married thee, and my love was drawn to thee, becauſe I found thou ſaweſt the deceit of all notions, and lay as one that refuſed to be comforted by any thing that had the appearance of Religion, till he came to his Temple, who is Truth and no ly: for all thoſe ſhows of Religion were very manifeſt to thee, ſo that thou wert ſick and weary of them all. And in this my heart cleft to thee, and a deſire was in me to be ſerviceable to thee, in this deſolate condition; for thou waſt alone and miſerable in this world, and I gave up much to be a companion to thee in this thy ſuffering. O! my ſenſe, my ſenſe of thee and thy ſtate in that day even makes me as one dumb; for the greatneſs of it is beyond my capacity to utter.

This little teſtimony to thy hidden life, my dear and precious one, in a day and time, when none of the Lord's gathered People knew thy face, nor were in any meaſure acquainted with thy many ſorrows, & deep wounds and diſtreſſes have I ſtammered out, that it might not be forgotten that thou waſt in the land of the living, and thy freſh ſprings were in God, and Light was on thy Goſhen, when thick darkneſs covered the people. But now, that the day is broken forth, and thou wert ſo eminently gathered into it, and a faithfull Publiſher of it, I leave this bright ſtate of thine, to be declared of by the Sons of the Morning, who have been witneſſes of the riſing of that bright Star of Righteouſneſs in thee, and its guiding thee to the Saviour, even Jeſus the firſt and the laſt; They, I I ſay, who are ſtrong, and have overcome the evil one, and are fathers in Iſrael, have declared of thy life in God, and have publiſhed it in many teſtimonies here, to the glorious, ſaving Truth, that thou wert partaker of, lived'ſt and paſſed'ſt hence in, as in a fiery chariot, into the eternal habitation with the Holy Saints, Prophets and Apoſtles of Jeſus.

Ah me, he is gone! he that none exceeded in kindneſs, in tenderneſs, in love inexpreſſible to the relation as a wife. Next to the love of God in Chriſt Jeſus to my ſoul, was his love precious and delightfull to me. My boſom one that was as my guide and counſellour, my pleaſant companion, my tender ſympathizing friend, as near to the ſenſe of my pain, ſorrow, grief and trouble as it was poſſible. Yet this great help and benefit is gone, and I, a poor worm, a very little one to him, compaſſed about with many infirmitys, through mercy let him go without an unadviſed word of diſcontent, or inordinate grief: Nay further, ſuch was the great Kindneſs of the Lord ſhewed to me in that hour, that my ſpirit aſcended with him, in that very moment that his ſpirit left his body, and I ſaw him ſafe in his own manſion, and rejoyced with him, and was at that inſtant gladder of it, than ever I was of enjoying him in the body. And from this ſight my ſpirit returned again to perform my duty to his outward Tabernacle, to the anſwer of a good Conſcience.

This was written at my houſe at Woodſide, the 27. of the 2. month 1680. between 12 and 1 at night, while I was watching with my ſick child.

This Teſtimony to dear I. P. is from the greateſt loſer of all that had a ſhare in his life.

MARY PENINGTON.

grew rich and fruitful in all Heavenly Treaſure; Full of Love, Faith, Mercy, Patience and Long-ſuffering; diligent in the work of the Lord, and exemplary in his duty to God and men; Inſomuch, that I may ſay, he was one of a thouſand: Zealous, yet Tender, Wiſe, yet Humble: A conſtant and early comer to Meetings, and Watchful and Reverent in them: One that ever loved Power and Life more then Words; and as for that he waited, ſo would he be often deeply affected with it, and made to utter ſuch Teſtimonies as were greatly to the help of the poor and the needy, the weary and heavy laden, the true Sojourners and Travellers to the Eternal Reſt and City of God. To this, his Writings as well as Miniſtry tended, as his enſuing Worthy Labours will abundantly witneſs, wherein it will be eaſie for the Reader to obſerve his peculiar and mighty love to the great Profeſſors of Religion in theſe Kingdoms whom carnal apprehenſions or unjuſt prejudices have hinder'd from cloſing with the Bleſſed Truth, as it is known and felt amongſt us; and his fervent labour to remove thoſe obſtructions, with ſuch tenderneſs, yet great clearneſs, that I may venture to ſtile him their Apoſtle, for as in almoſt every Meeting, ſo in every Book the bent of his Spirit was towards them, that thoſe who made a more then ordinary profeſſion of God, not without ſome ancient touches of the divine grace and experience of Gods viſitation (though much extinguiſht with humane and worldly mixtures) might come to know what that was they once taſted of, how they loſt it, and which is the way to recover the living and full enjoyment of it, even the inward knockings and appearance of Jeſus the Saviour, to the ſalvation of their Souls: And I pray God they may anſwer his love, for he was much ſpent on their account, that ſo his Miniſtry, Writings, Travels and Tears may not be matter of charge and evidence againſt them in the day of their Judgment.

As his outward man grew in Age, his inward man grew in Grace, and the knowledge of our dear Lord and Saviour Jeſus Chriſt, for the excellency of which, he had juſtly counted all things elſe but as droſs and dung; for it was obſervable among them that righly knew him in his declining time, when the Candle of his Natural Life burnt dimmer, his Soul waxed ſtronger, and like a repleniſht Lamp, ſhin'd with greater Luſtre: And truly he had a double portion of the Spirit upon him, and was anointed with Judgment and Zeal for the Lord, which appeared in two eminent reſpects.

Firſt, That he was very urgent that all thoſe who knew any thing of the Heavenly gift of Miniſtry unto others, would always wait in their ſeveral exerciſes to be endued with matter and power from on high, before they open'd their Mouths in a Teſtimony for the Lord; And that at all times, as well out of Meetings as in them, they might live ſo near the Lord, as to feel the Key of David opening the Myſteries of the Heavenly Kingdom, and by experiencing the depth of the Heavenly Travel, and the Tryals, Deliverances and Conſolations of it, with that dominion and victory that in the end by perſeverance are obtain'd, they might be as true Saviours on mount Zion, the Salt and Lights of the World, throughly furniſhed to every good word and work, and maſter builders in Gods houſe, that a pure and living ſtream of Miniſtry might be continued and conveyed to the Generations to come; that they might not only hear, but taſte of what we have known of the word and work of Life and Redemption in this our Age: Herein he was very careful.

But his excellency in the ſecond reſpect, Was his fervent love to the heavenly union of Brethren; and whatever ſtruck at that, though under never ſuch ſpecious pretences, he no ſooner perceived it, and the ſubtil but miſchievous workings of it, then with deep Wiſdom he detected, and with his whole Might encounter'd and oppos'd it.

[a 4]

And though by nature he was Suffering to a degree of letting his Mercy to others, almoſt wound his own Soul; yet ſo deeply did his Love to the Lord and his people, (and to that Comely Order God had ſettled them in) engage his Soul, that he was as bold as a Lyon; yea as warlike as a Champion againſt that Spirit that went up and down to ſowe Jealouſies, to ſmite and reflect upon the Holy Care of the Brethren, carnally interpreting their tender Love and great pains, as if what was done by them were not intended to the edification of the Body, but exaltation of ſome particular perſons over it: This Ingratitude and Injuſtice his Soul abhorred, and often mourned for ſuch as were ſo ſeduced, as if it were the deſign of thoſe that had from the beginning laid out themſelves in the Service of God, and his people, to bring them at laſt to a blind and unwarrantable ſubjection, that they might the better exerciſe dominion over them: This evil Eye he helpt to put out; and in his oppoſition to this wandring and deſtroying Spirit, that leads out of the Love and Unity of Brethren, he approved himſelf a Valiant of Iſrael, a Phineas for the God of his Salvation; and the rewards of Heaven were poured into his Boſom, for his Holy Miniſtry manifeſtly encreaſt in Life and Power, and his Peace flowed as a River, and many were the Witneſſes of his Enlargements. Let thoſe that have loſt their firſt Love, and are gone from their Ancient Habitation, Rage and imagine vain things if they will: Surely their Travails and Teſtimonies of this Bleſſed Man will be a Witneſs againſt them that will not eaſily be ſilenced, and a burden upon their backs that will not be eaſily taken off. But becauſe he deſired not their Deſtruction, but prayed earneſtly to the laſt for their return, let not me, whilſt I am Writing of his Character, fall ſhort of his Compaſſions; no, I pray God alſo with my whole Spirit that they may repent, be contrite in heart, and Faithfully return, at which if the Angels in Heaven, certainly the Spirits of the Juſt that dwell in Heavenly places, will abundantly rejoyce too.

Theſe two Cares were chiefly and almoſt continually before him. Thus he drew near to the Grave, and I now draw to an end; but becauſe this Service is never to be done again, let me ſay, that as he was a Light in the Church, ſo he was a Bleſſing to his own Family: A moſt Chaſte and Loving Husband, a very tender and Prudent Father, and a Juſt and Kind Maſter. I will add, and a good Neighbour, and a moſt Secret and Firm Friend; of all unapt to believe ill, but never to report it, much leſs to do it to any; a man that ruled his Tongue, ſwift to Hear, ſlow to Speak, but when he did Speak, he was Serious, yet ſweet and not uncheerful. What ſhall I ſay, but that great and many were the gifts God honoured him with, and with them he truly honoured his Profeſſion: Being thus fit to live, he was prepared to die, and had nothing elſe to do when that Summons was ſerved upon him, which was in the 63 year of his Age, at what time it pleaſed the Lord he fell very Sick, under a ſharp and painful Diſtemper, which haſtned his Deſolution; however the anguiſh of that bitter exerciſe could give no ſhake to Internal Peace, ſo well eſtabliſht before it came: But he died as he lived, in the Faith that overcomes the World, whoſe Soul being now releaſed from the confinements of time and Frailties of Mortality, is aſcended into the Glorious freedom and undiſturbed Joys of the Juſt, where with his Holy Brethren, the Patriarchs, Prophets, Apoſtles and Martyrs of Jeſus, he for ever bleſſeth and praiſeth the God and Father of the righteous Generations by Jeſus Chriſt, Gods Lamb and our Heavenly Redeemer, to whom with the Father be all Honour, Glory, Might, Majeſty and Dominion, through all the Ages of his Church, and for ever, Amen.

THE TESTIMONY OF John Penington

To his dear deceased Father

Isaac Penington.

Give me leave also, in a few words, to express my sence of him, seing I have been no small a sharer in the loss. A man that had known the depths of Sathan, and had a Stock to lose before he could embrace Truth in the simplicity of it, yet came forth in clearness, which is the more remarkable, in as much as few came near him in those bright openings and piercing Wisdom he was endu'd with in those days, whereby he struck at all false Foundations and Professions, and saw their shortness, and the very thing they wanted. So that when I have taken a view of his former Writings, and beheld the Glory he once had, and withal reflected on his present Condition, on his Poverty, on his Nothingness, on his Self-denial and Self-abasement, how little he esteemed all his former Knowledge, and Sights of the heavenly Things themselves, in comparison of the more excellent Knowledge he afterwards received, and how he could be a Fool for Christ's sake, the thing hath affected me, and that not a little many times. O, he was not one that could deck himself, or desired to appear before men, (or his very Brethren;) but ever chose to be more to the Lord than to men! And when any have been deeply reached through his tender, yet searching, lively Testimony, Oh how great was his care, that none might look out too much at the Instrument, or receive Truth in the affectionate part! He was also a meek man, and very loving; courteous to all; ready to serve his very Enemies and Persecutors; of whom, some from an ill Opinion of him, were gained to love and esteem him. And whereever he entred into a Friendship with any, he was constant; Whatever provocations he might afterwards receive from any of them, he could not let go his hold; but ever retained a good will towards them, and an earnest desire for their well-fare. I have also observed, where he hath been engaged (on Truths behalf) to rebuke any ſharply, who were declining their firſt love, and deviating from the Truth as it is in Jeſus, it hath been with ſo much Reluctancy and Averſeneſs to his natural Temper; as I never diſcerned the like in any, and herein I am not alone; So that it may be ſafely ſaid, He never uſed the Rod, but with Bowels to reclaim; and in the Love was drawn to ſmite what the pureſt Love could not ſuffer to go unrebuked. What he was in the Church of God for Exemplarineſs, for deep Travel, for ſound Judgment and heavenly Miniſtry, I know not a few are very ſenſible of: And have not I ſeen his Cup many times over-flow, and him ſo filled, that the Veſſel was ſcarce able to contain! O, it was delightful to me to be with him (as it was often my lot) in his Service on Truths account! And my cry is, That I may walk worthy of ſo dear a Parent, ſo unwearied and earneſt a Traveller for my and others eternal well-being, and ſo faithful and eminent a Labourer in God's Vineyard, who is now gone to his Reſt in a good day, having firſt ſeen the effects of the Travel of his Soul, and been ſatisfied in the Lord. But he hath left us (his Children) behind, for whom he hath often prayed and beſought the Lord with Tears, That we might walk in his ſteps, and our Fathers God might be our God, and that the Bleſſings of our Fathers Life might deſcend upon us. And we are ſtill (after much weakneſs) upon the Stage of this World, which that it may be ſo rightly improved, that we may walk worthy of the manifold Viſitations we have had from him in particular, and many faithful Labourers in general, is the inceſſant deſire of (Him that hopes, with thankfulneſs to the Lord, to reverence his Memory, as well as that he honours him in the relation of a dear and tender Father)

Truths

JOHN PENINGTON.

9th. of the 3*d.* Month, 1681.

IT pleaſed the Lord to remove Him from us, and take Him to Himſelf, on the 8*th.* day of the 8*th.* month 1679, between 3 and 4 in the morning, at one of my dear Mothers Farms in Kent, in the Pariſh of Goodneſtone called Goodneſtone-Court. They had been among their Tenants in that Country, and in their return home ſpent ſome time here; But the day appointed for my dear Father to return, he was viſited with this Sickneſs, whereof he died, having lain juſt a week. His body was conveyed thence (ſome of his Relations and London Friends accompanying it) to London, thence into Buckinghamſhire to his own Houſe, and ſo to the Burying-place of Friends belonging to Chalſont-Meeting, (called Jordans) where he was honourably buried; being accompanied by ſome hundreds of Friends and Neighbours.

LEt the Reader observe, That the Titles of the several Books comprized in this Volumn, or rather so much of them as was thought needful to be here transcribed, are distinguished from the other Heads, which are the Contents of the said Books, by being Printed in a Black Character: So that the Heads thus Alphabetically digested, may be helpful to such, as being less conversant with the Author's Writings, could not well otherwise have so ready recourse to, or find out the subject or subjects they handle; And lest that others, who had read them, and perhaps best knew them by the Titles prefix'd might be at a loss, except they were set down, and thus visibly distinguished, have chose this method, which hope will answer them both: But withal, let me add, That having been thus particular in the Heads, have confined my self to the more Brevity in the Title-pages, except where there is need of no other Head but what the Title-page affords.

who have generally erred from the Faith for these many Generations, since the Days of the Apostles; And with what which they have pleaded for, are they confounded.

LONDON,

Printed for Benjamin Clark in George Yard in Lumbard-Street, 1653.

MY Soul hath still in remembrance the grievous shakings and rendings that have been in this Nation, which entred deep into the Bowels of it, and made every heart ake, and every heart astonished. This Nation was settled in Religion and outward Peace, in such a way as was pleasing to most: but yet there was a Spirit within, which had been long groaning under oppression, whose sighs and cries entred into the ears of the Lord; and he rose up in his fury and jealousie, and rent the Heavens, and rent the Earth, so breaking the very Foundation of both, that men generally were amazed, and wondered what would become of all. The former Religion was almost buried in confusion, and in danger of being utterly lost: a long-spun corroding War were we entangled in, which administred no hopes nor likelihood of Peace. The hand of the Lord reacheth through all these Dominions; Magistracy, Ministry, the Common people, the people of God (both such as were accounted so, and such as were indeed so) the line of confusion was stretched over them all; they did all reel and totter like a drunken Man, as if they had been so to fall, as to rise up no more.

But behold, how suddenly and unexpectedly was there a settlement of all again! The Nation settled in Peace, Magistracy settled, Ministry settled, the Common-people settled, and those which were shaken in their Spirits, got into their several ways in Religion and settled again. Thus there was a general healing of all again, save only of a few, whose Spirits God had so reached, that their wound was incurable: and unless somewhat of God had been brought forth, which the World cannot know (nay the Religious Spirit of Man which is below, can no more reach it, then the common Spirit of the World) they had remained miserable, lost, scattered and confounded to this day. But the Lord hath in infinite Mercy visited them, in the season of distress; and there hath a little foolish thing broke forth (at which all the Wise, and Religious in the Spirit of this World, cannot but stumble) which hath administred relief, and discovered the foundation whereon they also can settle. So that now there is as it were an universal settlement, as every Creature is gathered into the Center, which is proper and suitable to its Spirit to bottom on.

Now this I have to say to all; Let every one look to his foundation, for the Lord can arise again, yea and will arise again, and shake once more; and then the Heavens and the Earth which have not a true foundation, cannot but fall. If the Earth be not founded upon and settled in Righteousness, its present establishment will not stand. If the Heavens be not founded upon and settled in Truth, they will melt and pass away before the Fire of the Lord. There is a Spirit that mourneth deeply to the Lord, groaning inwardly, and his Ears are open to it, and he will plead the cause of his Seed: and the Churches and Religions, wherein the Seed of the Serpent can live and flourish, shall wither and come to an end. Dust is already become the Serpent's food; the Spirit of man in all his Exercises of Religion, knoweth not the bread of life: but the dead feed upon the dead, and the dead Spirit of man loves to have it so. But this cannot continue, for the Lord hath been at work all this while, and when he brings forth the people which he hath been forming, and their Religion, the Religion of Man will appear what it is; and shame and sorrow will be the portion of all who have pleased themselves therein, and trifled away the day of their visitation.

Be Wise now therefore, O ye Wise ones; be Religious, O Religious ones! Open the Eye and Ear that hath been shut, shut the Eye and Ear that hath been open: Stumble no longer, lest ye fall and rise no more. I know ye cannot see for the wrong Eye is open, and the Lord hath designed to hide his Wisdom from that Eye: If it be possible for you, become poor in Spirit, lest ye at last prove to be the Rich, whom the Lord will send empty away. Sell all apace, that ye may have wherewith to buy the Pearl. Ye have not known the appearance of the Lord, but in your Wisdom have disdained it, and he hath disdained to make use of you in this great work; but it hath been pleasant to him to lay stumbling-blocks before you, that ye might fall and be broken. The Children, the Fools, the Blind can see the way, and enter into life: but ye that are Men, that are Wise, that have both your Eyes, that can judg in Religion, and determine what is Orthodox and what Erroneous, yet cannot.

O hear, that your Souls may live! Ye know not how short your time is, the day of your visitation passeth away faster then you are aware. The crie hath long gone forth, Behold the Bridegroom cometh, and his Spouse hath been preparing for his Bed. Ye must off with your old garments and have the new on, ye must have the true Oyl in your Lamps, or the door of the Kingdom will be shut upon you, and there will be no entrance for you. In plain terms, you must part with all your Religion which you have gathered in your own Wisdom, which hath grown up in the Apostacy, and which only can make a fair shew in the dark, but cannot endure the searching light of the day of the Lord; and ye must purchase the true Religion, the true Righteousness, the true Innocency and Purity of Christ: the old must be done away, truly done away, and the new come in the place; So that flesh and self may be quite destroyed, and nothing but Christ found in you, and you found no where but in Christ, if you enter into his Kingdom: for no unclean thing can enter. Therefore put away Pride, and Passion, and Enmity, and fleshly Reasonings, and seek out that which is pure, and enter into it, and take up the Cross against all that is contrary, that so you may be wrought into it, and found in it. And turn from all Imaginings and Conceivings about the meanings of Scripture in the uncertain and erring mind, and come to that which is infallible. And know the silencing of the fleshly part, that the Spiritual part may grow in the Wisdom, that so ye may learn in the Spirit, and know the Word of God, and be able to speak it.

My Bowels are towards you, and in Bowels hath this been written, not to anger or shame you, but to provoke you to jealousie against that dark and evil Spirit, which leads you to destruction, under the guise and appearance of a light and good Spirit. Nor is it to glory over you, for my Soul lieth down in shame and sorrow before the Lord, and the reproach of mine own Apostacy, and seeking relief from the World (turning from the Lord, who had wounded me, to earthly vanities for ease) will not easily be recovered.

The Lord hath been kind to me in breaking of me in my Religion, and in visiting me with sweet and precious light from his own Spirit, but I knew it not. I felt, and could not but acknowledg a Power upon me, and might have known what it was, by its purifying of my heart, and begetting me into the Image of God: but I confined it to appear in a way of demonstration to my Reason and earthly Wisdom, and for want of satisfaction therein, denyed and rebelled against it; and so, after all my former misery, lost my entrance, and sowed seeds of new misery and sorrow to my own Soul, which since I have reaped. So that I have no cause to boast over others, but to lie low in abasement of Spirit. And what I write, is not in any Dominion and Authority of mine own, but to bring others into that Dominion and Authority, which it is good for me, and for every one else to be subject to. The Lord strip us of our own understanding, and of that Righteousness which is but ours (though we have called it his) that so we may be gathered into, and receive his understanding, and be cloathed with his Righteousness, and feel his Rest and Peace. And happy is he that looseth all to gain this; but he that keepeth what he hath too long, shall in the end lose all, and yet not gain this neither. Therefore be no longer wise in the Eye of flesh, or according to what Man calleth Wisdom, but be truly Wise.

Some POSITIONS concerning the Apoſtacy from the Chriſtian SPIRIT and LIFE.

POSITION I.

THat there hath been a great Apoſtacy from the ſpirit of Chriſt, and from the true light and life of Chriſtianity; which Apoſtacy began in the Apoſtles days, and ripened apace afterwards.

That the Apoſtles, and Chriſtians in their days had the true Spirit, the true Light, the true Life, I think will not be denyed. We know that we are of God, and that the Son of God is come, and hath given us an underſtanding that we may know him that is true: and we are in him that is true, in his Son Jeſus Chriſt: This is the true God and eternal life, 1 Joh. 5. 19. 20. They were truly born of God, and knew the Son of God come, receiving from him a true underſtanding, and the true light and knowledge in that underſtanding, and both the underſtanding and knowledge was rooted and ſeated in him that is true, where their ſcituation and abiding was (we are in him that is true) where they meet with the true Spirit, the true God, the true Life, even life eternal. That they had the true ſpirit from God (becauſe ye are Sons, God hath ſent forth the ſpirit of his Son into your hearts, Gal. 4. 6.) that they had the true light from God (God who commanded the light to ſhine out of darkneſs, hath ſhined into our hearts, &c. 2 Cor. 4. 6.) that they had the true life from and in the ſpirit (if we live in the Spirit, let us alſo walk in the Spirit, Gal. 5. 25.) is generally ackowleged concerning them.

Now of an Apoſtacy from this, beginning even in their days, and to be compleated not long after, the Scriptures alſo make mention. The Apoſtle Paul ſpeaks expreſly of the thing, that there muſt come a falling away, and a revealing of the man of ſin, the ſon of perdition, 2 Theſ. 2. 3. Chriſt the man of Salvation had ſhewed and declared the path of life, had diſcovered the true Church, which was the pillar and ground of truth, againſt which the gates of Hell could not prevail; had ſent the true ſpirit, which could lead into all truth, and preſerve in the truth: but there muſt ſpring up a man of ſin, a ſon of perdition, who in a myſtery ſhould work againſt this, and cauſe a falling from this to another thing. And this the Apoſtle did not only give a touch of here in writing, but he had likewiſe told them of theſe things by word of mouth, to which he refers them, verſ. 5. This were enough to an eye opened, but for farther illuſtration to thick underſtanding of man, which is ſurrounded with fogs and miſts of darkneſs, ſome more evidences of Scriptures may be given.

Chriſt fore-told of falſe Prophets, Mat 7 15. Beware of falſe Prophets, which come to you in Sheeps clothing, but inwardly they are ravening Wolves. The Lord ſent true Prophets under the Law, and gave them true viſions to declare: Chriſt ſent true Apoſtles and Miniſters under the Goſpel, and gave them the truth which they ſhould preach and propagate: But then there were falſe Prophets, falſe Apoſtles and Miniſters to come after, who never were ſent by Chriſt, nor never received the truth from his ſpirit. Now theſe do not come to gather into the life and truth of Chriſt, but to ſcatter from it; and ſo either to begin, or uphold an Apoſtacy. And, ſaith Chriſt, beware of them, for they come very ſubtilly, they come in Sheeps clothing: They get the garment of the Sheep upon their backs, even that very garment which the Sheep did wear; but they have not the nature of the Sheep, but the nature of the Wolf, which is ravenous after the life of the Sheep. Mark where there is the Garment without, but not the Nature within; where there is the form of Godlineſs, but not the Power; where there are Scripture words and practiſes, but not the Spirit of life, from which they came, there's the falſe Prophet, there's the Wolf, there's the Apoſtate, there's the Seducer from Chriſt.

Again,

Again, Christ fore-tells of many false Prophets, Mat. 24. 11. And many false Prophets shall rise, and shall deceive many: and verse 24. For there shall arise false Christs and false Prophets, and shall shew great signs and wonders: insomuch that (if it were possible) they shall deceive the very elect.

And as Christ himself, so his Apostles also after him, by the same spirit fore-tell of the same thing.

The Apostle Paul speaks of seducing spirits in the latter times, and of Doctrines of Devils, which should prevail to cause a departure in some from the Faith, 1 Tim. 4. 2 And if in those days the power of Seducers was so great, as to draw from the truth, which was then so manifest and living, how easie would it be to keep from the truth afterward, when it had been long lost and out of remembrance, and thereby deceit got into the place and name of it.

The Apostle Peter also fore-told of false Teachers, who should privily bring in damnable heresies, even denying the Lord that bought them: and that they should so prevail, that their pernicious ways should be followed by many, and the way of truth evil spoken of, 2 Pet. 2. 1, 2.

Again, Paul in his 2*d.* Epist. to Tim. speaks of the last days, that the times therein should be perilous, Chap. 3. Christ had said, The love of many should wax cold, and iniquity abound, Mat. 24. 12. And Paul shows how the times would prove very perilous by the abounding of iniquity. In the last days perilous times shall come; for men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to Parents, unthankful, unholy, without natural affection, truce-breakers, false accusers, incontinent, fierce despisers of those that are good, traytors, heady, high-minded, lovers of pleasure more then lovers of God, 2 Tim. 3. verse 1, 2, 3, 4. Behold what kind of fruit sprung up from the false doctrine of the false Teachers in the Apostacy from the truth. And yet all this under a form of godliness, Having a form of Godliness, but denying the power thereof, ver. 5. Christ sent the power of Godliness into the World; to subdue the root from whence all this springs, to kill the evil nature inwardly: but in the Apostacy the evil nature is not killed, but the power denyed which should kill it, and the form kept up to cover the evil nature with. The inwardly ravening nature, which devours and destroys the stirrings and shootings forth of the just one in the heart, that gets the Sheeps clothing, the form of Godliness to cover it self with. Look any where among the Apostates from the Apostles spirit and doctrine, and see; Is self-love killed? is covetousness killed? is boasting and pride killed? is the love of pleasures killed? are Persecutors and Oppressors killed? and is your honour and glory laid in the dust? Nay they are but covered with the form, their life is still in them; the power wherewith they should be killed was at first denyed, and now is lost and not known, where there is the life, there is the power; and where there is the power, the evil nature is killed: but where the evil nature is not killed, there is only a form of godliness, a covering, a painted Sepulchre, but rottenness within.

Now those last days and last times were not far off, but began then: For the Apostle exhorts Timothy to turn away from such, verse 5. From such turn away: intimating that even then there were such to be turned away from. And he saith, verse 8. that they did then resist the truth like Jannes and Jambres, who with a likeness of what Moses wrought, but without life, did strive to resist the life and power that was in Moses. (And this is the Work of all deceivers, to get their own spirit into the likeness, and then to make use of the likeness to oppose and suppress the true life and power.) So that they were come even then, when the Apostle wrote this Epistle to Timothy.

And Jude saith that ungodly men, turning the grace of God into lasciviousness, and denying the only Lord God, and our Lord Jesus Christ, were crept in already, verse 4. of his Epistle.

And the Apostle John speaks very expressly, 1 Joh. 2 18, 19. Little Children, it is the last time, and as ye have heard that Antichrist shall come, even now are there many Antichrists, whereby we know that it is the last time, They went out from us, &c. Christ instructing his Disciples concerning the last times, tells them there shall arise false Christs, with great power of deceit, Mat. 24. v. 24, Now saith John here' there are come many Antichrists: whereby we know it is the last time. Mark, There were many Antitichrists to begin and lay the foundation of the apostacy, and make way for the great Antichrist (who was to be their successor in the apostacy, and not the successor of the Apostles in the truth:) And these did not abide in the doctrine of the Apostles, who preached the everlasting Gospel, nor in the spirit and principle which they were in; but went out from them, from their spirit (from the annointing to which they kept, and by which they were kept) into another spirit, and preached another Gospel, a Gospel which was not the power of God to kill the earthly, but consisted in such a dead literal knowledge of things, as the earthly might be fed and kept alive by. And as the great Antichrist was to come, so these Antichrists who were to make way for him, were already come, and were already laying the foundation of, and beginning the apostacy. So that the Spirit of Antichrist (that very spirit wherein Antichrist suceeded, and in which he grew up, and perfected the apostacy) was then in the world, as this Apostle saith yet more manifestly, 1 Joh. 4. 3. This is that spirit of Antichrist, whereof ye have heard that it should come, and even now already is it in the world.

Nor was it idle, but it was at work, working it self into the form of godliness, that it might eat out the power, drive out the true spirit, and make a prey of the life. The mystery of iniquity, saith the Apostle Paul, doth already work, 2 Thes. 2. 7. This spirit did work in a mystery of iniquity to eat out the mystery of godliness, and to set up this mystery of iniquity in the world, instead of the mystery of godliness. And it did prevail to wind it self in the form, and get possession of the form, and also to trample upon, and keep under the life. It gained the outward Court, (for when that spirit had corrupted it, the Lord did not regard it, but gave it up to it) and it trod down the holy City, Rev. 11. 2. And this mystery of iniquity did not begin to work many ages after the Apostles, but even then, in their dayes, already: The Mystery of iniquity doth already work.

And look now into the estate of the Churches then, according to what the Scripture records of them, and the symptoms of its working will plainly appear. The Church of Ephesus (among whom some of the grievous wolves had entred, Act. 20. 29.) had left their first love, Rev. 2. 4. The Churches of Galatia were bewitched from the Gospel, Gal. 3. 1. The Church at Colosse was entangled and made subject to the rudiments of the world, and ordinance (which perish with the using) after the Commandements and Doctrines of men, Col. 2. v. 20, 22. (Mark. When once one comes to be subject to the Commandments and Doctrines of men, to perishing Ordinances, and worldly rudiments which men teach and command, the true state is lost, and the apostacy is entred into. Here the wrong Teacher is teaching, and he teacheth the wrong thing, the wrong Doctrines, the wrong Commandments; and the wrong ear is hearing, which hears the wrong voice, and knoweth not the true: and so the more it heareth and practiseth, and the hotter its zeal groweth, the deeper it stils runs into the apostacy.) The Church at Corinth also was haunted with false Apostles, 2 Cor. 11 v. 12, 13. insomuch as the Apostle was afraid lest that Church should be corrupted by them, vers. 3. The Church in Pergamus had them that held the Doctrine of Balaam, Rev. 2. 14. The Church in Thyatira suffered the woman Jezabel, which called her self a Prophetess, to seduce and bring forth children in the apostacy, Rev. 2. v. 20. and 23. The Church in Sardis had a name to live, but was dead, Rev. 3. 1. Having defiled her Garments, vers. 4. The Church in Laodicea, looked upon her self as rich, and increased with goods, and as having need of nothing: but was wretched, miserable, poor, blind, (so then the eye was put out) and naked, wanting the gold, wanting the rayment, wanting the eye-salve, Rev. 3. 17. 18. And lastly all the Gentiles were warned by Paul, in his Epistle to the Church at Rome, (whereby that Church might look upon her self as more particularly concerned therein) to look to their standing, lest they falling from the faith, from the truth, from the life into the apostacy (as the Jews had done) might also feel the severity of God, as the Jews had, Chap. 11. vers. 20, 21, 22.

Thus it is evident that the apostacy had got footing, and began to spread in the Apostles dayes: and the Apostle John in the spirit beholding the future state of things, sees it over-spread and over-run all, all Nations drunk with the cup of fornication, Rev. 18. 3. The way of truth had been evil spoken of long before, 2 Pet. 2. 2. and the rock of ages, which alone can eſtabliſh in the truth, had been forſaken, and all became as a Sea, and up gets the beaſt (which could not riſe while the power of truth ſtood) and the woman upon the beaſt, with the cup of deceit, and of errour from the life, in her hand; and this ſhe gives all the Nations to drink, and they drink and are drunk with it, ſo that all Nations have been intoxicated with the doctrines and practiſes of apoſtacy. They have took that for truth, which the Whore told them was truth, and they have obſerved thoſe things as the commands of God, which the Whore told them were the commands of God. And by this means they have never come to be married to Chriſt, to be in union with him, to receive the law of life from his ſpirit, and to know the liberty from the bondage of corruption, but have been in the bed of fornication with the Whore, and have pleaſed, glutted, and ſatisfied the whoriſh principle in themſelves with this fornication. And thus corruption did over-ſpread all the earth: for taking in a corrupt thing inſtead of the truth, it cannot purifie the heart, but corrupt it more. A corrupt profeſſion, corrupt Doctrines may paint, and make a man to himſelf ſeem changed, but the corrupt ſtill lodges within, which a ſpiritual eye can eaſily diſcern, though he that is in the corruption cannot: The Phariſees did ſeem glorious to themſelves, but Chriſt ſaw through them. And every ſort of people now, in their ſeveral ſtrains and forms of apoſtacy, ſeem glorious to themſelves, but the ſpirit of Chriſt ſees through them all, to that which lies underneath (in whom it raigns) and there it finds corruption increaſed and ſtrengthned in its nature by the form, though outwardly painted with it. Doth not fornication defile, corrupt? ſo doth the fornication of the Whoriſh ſpirit: the earth was corrupted with it, Rev. 19. 2. So that this hath been the univerſal ſtate of Chriſtendom ſince the apoſtacy, the errour, the deceipt, the fornication of the Whore hath corrupted them, and withheld their eyes from the ſight of that life and truth which hath power in it to purifie them. Peoples, Multitudes, Nations, Tongues, have been all waters; weak, unſtable, without any foundation in religion, but fit to be ſwayed and toſſed up and down with every winde or breath of the Whore, of whoſe cup they had all drunk, and by whoſe ſpirit they were all guided: for the whore ſate upon them, Rev. 17. 15. The whore, which had whored from God, and ſo was not the true Church, ſate upon People, Multitudes, Nations and Tongues. She ſate upon them, ſhe had them under her, ſhe ruled and guided them by her cup of fornication, and with her ſpirit of fornication; as a man would guide the beaſt whereupon he rides. So that all that the Nations do from henceforth in Religion, is under the Whore, according to her guidance, by virtue of the wine that they have drunk out of her cup.

And though God reſerved to himſelf a remnant to worſhip him, and give ſome teſtimony to his truth all this time, yet the beaſt (which was mangled by the Whore) had power over them: power to make War with them, power to overcome them, Rev. 13. 7. The beaſt had power over all kindreds, tongues and nations, every where to overcome the Saints, and ſuppreſs the truth they at any time were moved to give teſtimony to, and to ſet up the worſhip of the beaſt, and make all the earth fall down before that, Rev. 13. 7. 8. And the ſecond beaſt had and exerciſed all the power of the firſt beaſt, and ſet up his image, and gave it life, and cauſed men generally to worſhip it, Rev. 13. 12. And he cauſed all both ſmall and great, rich and poor, free and bond to receive his mark, ſome way or other, either in their right hand or in their forehead, verſ. 16. And ſuch as would not receive his mark, nor worſhip him, he had power to perſecute and kill, and he did kill them, verſ. 15. And the Whore drunk their blood, Chap. 17. 6. And God required it at her hand, Chap. 19. 2. Though ſhe made the hand of the beaſt execute it, and would ſeem to waſh her own hands of it.

So that now ſince the dayes of the Apoſtles, even all this time of the Apoſtacy, ſince the man-child hath been caught up to God, and was not to be found in the earth (which makes it ſeem ſuch a ſtrange thing for people to ſay Chriſt is in them) and the woman hath been in the wilderneſs, and not in the habitable part of the world, Rev. 12. 5. 6. if all this time, any one will look for the true Religion, for the true Church, for the true knowledge and worſhip of God, he muſt not look on any Nation, or any People, or among the Tongues, which are cried up in Nations and people, for the original, and as the chief interpreters of the original; for they are all drunk with the whores cup; they are under the power, dominion, authority and service of the whore, who rides upon the beast, to whom power was given over all kindreds, tongues and nations. But look among the Nations who were persecuted, whose blood was drunk, whom the powers of the Nations made War against, there alone the testimony of Jesus is to be found, Rev. 12. 17. There alone are the witnesses against the present Idolatry and corruption, and to some truths or others of Christ which God enlightned them with, and whereto he stirred them up to give their testimony, though with the loss of their Estates, Liberties or Lives.

Now by what hath been expressed, is it not manifest to every Eye, that hath room but to let in the letter of the Scripture, in simplicity and plainness, that there hath been a great apostacy from the true knowledge of Christ, and an universal corruption and power of death sprung up, instead of the power of his Life and Grace? The grace of God which bringeth salvation, hath disappeared; and the abomination of desolation hath took up its place, and filled it with deadly venom against the truth and against the life, so that enmity against God, under a pretense of love and zeal to him, hath reigned generally in the hearts of men, from the times of the Apostles to this present day. And as the light breaks forth, and their eyes come to be opened, they will see that they have been and are hatters of God, and of his life and spirit, but lovers of the world, and of such a Religion as suits the worldly Spirit.

Position II.

That in this great Apostacy, the true state of Christianity hath been lost: This must needs be: for if there was an Apostacy from the thing, there could not be a retaining of the thing, about which the Apostacy was. If they apostatized from the spirit, from the light, from the life; then they were gon from it, they lost it.

Now it may be instanced in every particular, how the state of Christianity was lost, but that would be too vast and tedious: it may suffice therefore to instance in some considerable ones, which may lead into the discovery of the rest.

The true rule of Christianity, or the rule of a Christian, which is to direct, guide and order him in his whole course, was apostatized from and lost.

What is a Christian's rule, whereby he is to steer and order his course?

A Christian is to be a follower of Christ, and consequently must have the same rule to walk by, as Christ had. A Christian proceeds from Christ, hath the same life in him, and needs the same rule. Christ had the fulness of life, and of his fulness we all receive a measure of the same life. We are members of his body, of his flesh, and of his bones, Ephes. 5 30. Yea we came out of the the same spring of life, from whence he came: For both he that sanctifieth, and they who are sanctified, are all of one: for which cause he is not ashamed to call them brethern, Ebr. 2. 1. Now what was his rule? Was it not the fulness of life which he received? And what is their rule? Is it not the measure of life which they receive? Was not Christs rule the law of the spirit, the law which the spirit wrote in his heart? And is not their rule the law of the spirit, the law which the spirit writes in their heart? How was Christ made a King and a Priest? Was it by the law of a carnal commandment? Or by the power of an endless life? And how are they made Kings and Priests to God? Rev. 1: 6. Is it by the law of a carnal commandment? Or is it by the power of the same endles life? Lo I come to do thy will, O God, saith Christ, when he cometh into the World, Ebr. 10. ver. 5. and 7. But by what rule? By what law? Thy law is within my heart, Psal. 40. 8. And the same spirit who wrote it there, is also to write the new Covenant with all the laws of it, in the heart of every Christian from the least to the greatest. Ebr. 8: 9. 10. Yea the same spirit that dwelt in Christs heart, is to dwel in their hearts, according to the promise of the Covenant, Ezek. 36. 27. This was Pauls rule, after which he walked, the law of the spirit of life in Christ Jesus, Rom. 8. 1, 2. This made him free from the law of sin and death. Where is the law of sin Writ? Where is the law of death Writ? Is it not Writ in the heart? And must not the law of Righteousness and Life be Writ therealso, if it be able to deal with sin and death? The spirit forms the heart anew, forms Christ in the heart, begets a new creature there, which cannot sin (He that is born of God sins not) and this is the rule of Righteousnes, the new creature, or the spirit of life in the new creature, Gal. 6. 15. 16. In Christ Jesus neither circumcision availeth any thing nor uncircumcision, but a new creature. And as many as walk according to this rule, peace be on them. Mark there's the rule, the new creature which is begoten in every one that's born of God. If any man be in Christ, he is a new Creature; and this new creature is to be his rule. And as any man walks according to this rule, according to the new creature, according to the law of light and life that the spirit continually breathes into the new creature, he hath peace: but as he transgresses that, and walks not after the spirit but after the flesh, he walks out of the light, out of the life, out the peace, into the Sea, into the death, into the trouble, into the condemnation. Here then is the law of the converted man, the new creature; and the law of the new creature is the spirit of life which begat him, which lives and breathes and gives forth his lavv continually in him. Here's a Christian, here's his rule: He that hath not the nevv creature formed in him, is no Christian: and he that hath the nevv creature, hath the rule in himself. Ye have an unction from the holy one, and ye know all things, 1 Joh. 2. 20. How came they to know all things? Doth not John say, it was by the unction? The anointing was in them, a foundation or wel spring of light and life, issuing forth continually such Rivers and Streams of life within, as they needed no other Teacher in the truth and way of life, ver. 27. The Comforter did refresh their hearts sufficiently, and lead them into all truth. Search the Apostles Epistles, and ye shall find them testifying of the Lords sending his spirit into the hearts of Christians, and exhortations to them not to grieve or quench the spirit, but to follow as they were lead. They were to live in the spirit, and to walk in the spirit, Gal. 5. 25. And the spirit was to walk, and live, and bring forth his own life and power in them, 2 Cor. 6. 16. And what can be the proper and full rule of Gods Sons and Daughters, but the light of the spirit of life, which they receive from their father? Thus God did advance the state of a believer above the state of the Jews under the Law: for they had the Law, though Written with the finger of God, yet but in Tables of Stone; but these have the Law, Writ by the Finger of God in the table of their hearts. Their's was a Law without, at a distance from them, and the Priests Lips were to preserve the knowledge of it, and to instruct them in it: but here is a Law within, nigh at hand, the immediate Light of the Spirit of Life shining so immediatly in the Heart, that they need no man to teach them, but have the Spirit of prophesy in themselves, and quick living teachings from him continually, and are made such Kings and Priests to God, as the state of the Law did but represent. The Gospel is the substance of all the shadowes contained in the law, A Christian is he that comes into this substance, and lives in this substance, and in whom this substance lives, and his rule is the substance it self, in which he lives, and which lives in him. Christ is the substance who lives in the Christian, and he in Christ: Christ lives in him by his Spirit, and he in Christ by the same Spirit: there he lives, and hath fellowship with the Father and the Son, in the Light wherein they live, and not by any outward rule, 1 Joh. 1. 6. 7.

But what is the rule now in the Apostacy?

Among the Papists the rule is the Scripture, interpreted by the Church (as they call themselves) with a mixture of their own precepts and traditions.

Amongst the Protestants the rule is the Scriptures, according as they can understand them by their own study, or according as they can receive the understanding of them from such men as they account Orthodox. And hence arise continual differences, and heaps, and sects, one following this interpretation, another that.

And this is a grievous apostacy, and the root, spring and foundation of all the rest: for he that misseth in his beginning, he that begins his Religion without the true rule, how can he proceed aright in any thing afterwards?

Object. But are not the Scriptures the word of God? and is not the word of God to be a Christians rule? If every one should be left to his own Spirit, what confusion and uncertainty would this produce?

Answ. The Scriptures are not that living word, which is appointed by God to be the rule of a Christian; but they contain words, spoken by the Spirit of God, testifying of that word, and pointing to that word which is to be the rule. Search the Scriptures, for in them you think to have eternal life, and they are they which teſtifie of me: and ye will not come to me that ye might have life, John 5. 39. 40. The Scriptures are to be ſearched for the teſtimony which they give of Chriſt; and when that teſtimony is received, Chriſt is to be come to, and life received from him. But the Phariſees formerly, and Chriſtians ſince (I mean Chriſtians in name) ſearch the Scriptures, but do not come to Chriſt for the life; but ſtick in the letter of the Scriptures, and oppoſe the life with the letter, keeping themſelves from the life by their Wiſdom and Knowledge in the letter. Thus they put the Scriptures into the place of Chriſt, and ſo honour neither Chriſt nor the Scriptures. It had been no honour to John to have been taken for the light, his honour was to point it: nor is it any honour to the Scriptures to be called the Word of God, but their honour is to diſcover and teſtifie of the Word. Now hear what the Scriptures call the Word. In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God, John 1. 1. And the Word was made Fleſh, verſe 14. This was the name of Chriſt, when he came into the World in the Fleſh, to ſow his life in the World. And when he comes again into the World, out of a far Country, to fight with the Beaſt and falſe Prophets, and to cleanſe the earth of the Whores Fornication and Idols, wherewith ſhe had corrupted it, he ſhall have the ſame name again, his name is called, The Word of God, Rev. 19. 13. So Peter calleth that the Word of God, which liveth and abideth for ever, 1 Pet. 1 23. And this Word that liveth and abideth for ever, was the Word that they Preached, verſe 25. And they that believed, did not cry up the Words that the Apoſtles ſpake, for the Word; but received the thing they ſpake of, the ingrafted Word, which being received with a meek, quiet, and ſubmiſſive ſpirit, is able to ſave the Soul, Jam. 1. 21. This is the Word of Faith that is nigh, in the heart and in the mouth, Rom. 10. 8. This is the Word that ſtands at the door of the heart, and ſpeaks to be let in (Behold I ſtand at the door and knock:) and when it is let in, it ſpeaks in the heart, what is to be heard and done. It is nigh, it is in the heart, and in the mouth, to what end? that thou mighteſt hear it, and do it. The living Word, which is quick and powerful, and ſharper then any two-edged ſword, divides in the mouth, and divides in the heart the vile from the precious, yea it reacheth to the very inmoſt of the heart, and cuts between the roots, Ebr. 4. 11. and this thou art to hear and do. Thou art to part with all vile Words, the vile Converſation, the vile courſe and Worſhip of the World outwardly, and the vile thoughts and courſe of ſin inwardly, as faſt as the Word diſcovers them to thee, and to exerciſe thy ſelf in that which is folly and madneſs to the eye of the World, and a grievous croſs to thine own Worldly nature; yea when the Word reaches to the very nature, life and Spirit within, from whence all that comes; that Strong Wiſe root of the fleſhly life in the heart, muſt not be ſpared, nor that fooliſh weak thing (to mans wiſe eye) which is brought inſtead thereof, be rejected: which when it is received, is but like a little Seed, even the leaſt of Seeds; and when it grows up, it is a long while but like a Child: and yet keeping in that childiſhneſs, out of the Wiſdom, it enters into that Kingdom, which the greateſt Wiſdom of man (in all his Zealous ways and forms of Religion) falls ſhort, and is ſhut out of. This is the Word of life, this is the true living rule, and way to eternal life; and this is the obedience, this is the hearing and doing of the Word. He that hath an ear, let him hear. Examine your ſelves whether ye be in the faith: prove your own ſelves. Know ye not your own ſelves, how that Jeſus Chriſt is in you, except ye be reprobates? 2 Cor. 13. 5. Are ye in the Faith? Then Chriſt is in you. Is not Chriſt in you? Then ye are in the reprobate ſtate, out of the Faith. Is Chriſt in you, and ſhall he not hold the reins, and rule? Shall the living Word be in the heart, and not the rule of the heart? Shall he ſpeak in the heart, and Man or Woman in whom he ſpeaks, run to Words of Scripture formerly ſpoken, to know whether theſe be his Words or no? Nay, nay, his Sheep know his voice better then ſo. Did the Apoſtles John, who had ſeen, and taſted, and handled, and preached the Word of Life, ſend Chriſtians to his Epiſtles, or any other part of Scriptures, to be their Rule? Nay, he directed them to the annointing, as a ſufficient Teacher, 1 John 2. 17. He that believeth on me, as the ſcripture hath ſaid, out of his belly ſhall flow Rivers of living Water, John 7. 38. He that hath the Fountain of Life in him, iſſuing out Rivers of Living Water continually, hath he need to go forth to fetch in Water? The Kingdom of Heaven is within you, ſaith Chriſt, and he bids ſeek the Kingdom. Light the Candle, ſweep thine own Houſe, ſeek diligently for the Kingdom; there it is if thou canst find it. Now he that hath found the Kingdom within, shall he look without, into words spoken concerning the Kingdom, to finde the Laws of the Kingdom? Are not the Laws of the Kingdom to be found within the Kingdom. Shall the Kingdom be in the heart, and the Laws of the Kingdom Written without, in a Book? Is not the Gospel the Ministration of the Spirit? And shall he who hath received the Spirit, run back to the Letter to be his guide? Shall the living Spirit, that gave forth Scriptures, be present, and not have preheminence above his own words? What is the proper intent of the letter? Is it not to testifie of the Spirit, and to end in the Spirit; the Law, the Prophets, John led to Christ in the flesh, and he was to be the increasing Light, when they should decrease. Christs Words in the Flesh, the Apostles words afterwards, and all words since are but to lead to Christ in the Spirit, to the eternal Living substance; and when the words of Christ, of the Apostles, or any Words spoken from the same Spirit in these Dayes, have brought to the Spirit, to the feeling and settling of the Soul in the living foundation, and to the Building and perfecting of the Man of God therein, they have attained their end and Glory. But to cry up these, not understanding their voice, but keeping at a distance from the thing that they invite to; the Words hereby are put out of their place, out of their proper use and service, and so attain neither their end nor their Glory. And though Men put that upon them which seems to be a greater Glory, namely to make them his rule and guide, yet it being not a true Glory, it is no Glory but a dishonour both to them, and to the Spirit who gave them to another end.

for

Now for the other part of the Objection, that if men should be left to their own Spirits, and should follow the guidance of their own Spirits, it would produce confusion aud uncertainty: I do acknowledge it, it would do so. But here is no leaving of a man to his own Spirit, spoken of or intended, but the directing and guiding of a man to the word and Spirit of Life; to know and hear the voice of Christ which gathers and translates man out of his own Spirit into his Spirit: and here is no confusion or uncertainty, but order, certainty and stability

The Light of Gods Spirit is a certain and infallible rule, (and the Eye that sees that, is a certain Eye) whereas mans understanding of the Scriptures is uncertain and fallible: he having not the true Ear, receiveth such a literal uncertain knowledge of things, into his uncertain understanding, as deceives his Soul. And here man in the midst of his Wisdom and knowledge of the Scriptures, is lost in his own erring and uncertain mind, and his Soul deceived, for want of a true root and foundation of certainty in himself. But he that is come to the true shepherd, and knows his voice, he cannot be deceived. Yea he can read the Scriptures safely, and taste the true sweetness of them: for he being in the Life, can taste the sweetness of the Words that came from the Life; but man who is out of the Life, feeds on the husks, and can receive no more. He hath gathered a dead, dry, litteral, husky knowledge out of the Scripture, and that he can relish: but should the Life of the Words, and things there spoken of be opened to him, he could not receive them, he himself being out of that wherewith they were Written, and wherein alone they can be understood. But poor man having lost the Life, what should he do? he can do no other, but cry up the Letter, and make as good shift with it as he can, though his Soul the mean while is starved, and lies in Famine and Death for want of the Bread of Life, and a wrong thing is fed,

The Scribes and Pharisees made a great noise about the Law and Ordinances of Moses, exclaiming against Christ and his Disciples as breakers and profaners of them; yet they themselves did not truly Honour the Law and ordinances of Moses, but their own Doctrines, Commandements and Traditions. So these now who make a great noise about the Scriptures, and about the Institutions of the Apostles, do not Honour the Scriptures, or the Institutions of the Apostles; but their own meanings, their own conceivings, their own inventions and imaginations thereupon. They run to the Scriptures with that understanding which is out of the truth, and which never shall be let into the truth, and so being not able to reach and comprehend the truth as it is, they study, they invent, they imagine a meaning; they form a likeness, a similitude of the truth as neer as they can, and this must go for the truth: and this they Honour, and bow before as the will of God: which being not the will of God, but a likeness of their own inventing and forming, they Worship not God, they Honour not the Scriptures tures, but they Honour and Worship the works of their own Brain. And every Scripture which Man hath thus formed a meaning out of, and hath not Read in the true and liviug Light of Gods eternal Spirit, he hath made an Image by, he hath made an Idol of, and the respect and Honour he gives this meaning, is not a respect and Honour given to God but to his own Image, to his own Idol. Oh how many are your Idols, ye Christians of England (as ye think your selves to be!) how many are your Idols, ye gathered Churches! how full of Images and Idols are ye, ye Spiritual Notionists, who have Run from one thing to another, with the same mind and Spirit wherewith ye began at first! But the founders of Images have never been discovered and destroyed in you, and so he is still at work among you all: and great will your sorrow and distress be, when the Lords quick Eye searcheth him out, and revealeth his just wrath against him.

In my Heart and Soul I Honour the Scriptures, and long to Read them throughout with the pure Eye, and in the pure Light of the living Spirit of God: But the Lord preserve me from Reading one line of them in my own will, or interpreting any part of them according to my own understanding but only as I am guided, led and enlightened by him, in the will and understanding which comes from him. And here all Scripture, every Writing of Gods Spirit, which is from the Breath of his Life, is profitable to build up and perfect the Man of God: but the instructions, the reproofs, the observations, the rules, the grounds of hope and comfort, (or whatever else) which Man gathers out of the Scriptures, (he himself being out of the Life) have not the true profit, nor build not up the true thing; but both the gatherings and the gatherer are for destruction. And the Lord will ease the Scripture of the burthen of Mans formings and inventions from it, and recover its Honour again, by the living presence and power of that Spirit that Wrote it: And then it shall be no longer abused and wrested by Mans earthly and unlearned mind, but in the hands of the Spirit come to its true use and service to the seed, and to the World.

2. The true Worship was lost.

The true Worship of God in the Gospel, is in the Spirit. The hour cometh, and now is, when the true Worshippers shall Worship the Father in Spirit, and in truth; for the Father seeketh such to Worship him, Joh. 4: 23: The true Worship is in the Spirit, and in the truth, and the true Worshippers Worship there, and such Worshippers the Father seeks, and such Worship he accepts: but all other Worship is false Worship, and all other Worshippers are false Worshipers, such Worshippers as God seeks not, nor can accept their Worship. Did God refuse Cains sacrifice formerly, and can he accept any sacrifice, or Worship now that's offered in that nature? Why, he that Worships out of the Spirit, he Worships in that nature. But he that Worships aright, must have his nature changed, and must Worship in that thing wherein he is changed in that Faith, in that Life, in that Nature, in that Spirit whereby and whereto he is changed. For without being in this, and keeping in this, it is impossible to please God in any thing. He that is the true Worshipper is a believer, and in his Worship he must keep to his rule, the Law of Faith, the Law of the Spirit of Life in him, the Law which he receives by Faith fresh from the Spirit of Life continually. He must hear and observe the voice of the Living word in all his Worship, and VVorship in the presence, and power and guidance of that, as that moves, and as that carries on, or it is not VVorship in the Spirit. I shall instance only in Prayer. Praying alwaies with all Prayer and Supplication in the Spirit, Ephes. 6. 18: Mark, all Prayer and Supplication must be in the Spirit, yea it must be always in the Spirit, which speaks in the Heart to God, and makes the Intercession, or it is no Prayer. If a man speak never so much from his own Spirit, with never so much earnestness and affection, yet it is no Prayer, no true Prayer, but only so far as the Spirit moves to it, and so far as the Spirit leads and guides in it. If a Man begin without the Spirit, or go on without the Spirit, this is out of the VVorship; this is in his own will (and so VVill-worship) and according to his own understanding (and so fleshly VVorship) both which are to be crucified, and not to be followed in any thing under the Gospel. We are the Circumcision, which Worship God in the Spirit, (here are the true VVorshippers, the Circumcision; and here's the true VVorship, in the Spirit; and they have no bounds and limits in the flesh, wherein their strength and confidence is broke) and have no confidence in the flesh. If a man address addreſs himſelf to any Worſhip of God without his Spirit, hath he not confidence in the Fleſh? If he begin without the moving of his Spirit, doth he not begin in the Fleſh? If he go on, without the Spirits carrying on, doth he not proceed in the ſtrength and confidence of the fleſh? But the Worſhip of the Spirit, is in its Will, and in its time, and is carried on by its Light and Power, and keeps down the underſtanding and affectionate part of man, wherein all the World worſhip, and offer up the unaccepted ſacrifices, even the Lame and the blind, which God's ſoul hates.

Now this Worſhip, as it is out of Mans Will and Time, and in that which continueth, ſo it is continual. There is a continual praying unto God. There is a continual bleſſing and praiſing of his name, in eating, or drinking, or what ever elſe is done. There is a continual bowing to the Majeſty of the Lord in every thought, in every word, in every action, though it be in worldly things and occaſions, yet the Spirit of the Lord is ſeen there, and the tongue confeſſeth him there, and the knee boweth to him there: this is the true VVorſhip. And this is the Reſt or Sabbath wherein the true VVorſhipers VVorſhip. VVhen the Creation of God is finiſhed, when the Child is formed in the light, and the life breathed into him, then God brings him forth into his holy Land, where he keeps his Sabbath. They that are in the Faith, which is the ſubſtance of the things hoped for under the Law, are come from all the ſhadows and types of the Law, and from all heatheniſh obſervation of days and times in the Spirit of this VVorld, where the Spirit of man is hard at work, into the true Sabbath, into the true Reſt where they have no more to work, but God works all in them in his own time, and according to his own pleaſure. We which have believed, do enter into reſt, Heb. 4. 3: and he that is entred into his reſt, hath ceaſed from his Works, as God from his, verſe 10. He that hath the leaſt taſt of Faith, knows a meaſure of reſt finding the life working in him, and his Soul daily led farther and farther into Life by the working of the life, and the heavy yoak of his own labouring after Life taken off from his ſhoulders. Now here is the Truth, here is the Life, here is the Sabbath, here is the worſhip of the Soul, that is led into the truth, and preſerv'd in the truth.

But what is the Worſhip now in the Apoſtacy?

Among the Papiſts a very groſs Worſhip. a Worſhip more carnal then ever the Worſhip of the Law was: for that though in its nature it was outward and carnal, yet it was taught and preſcribed by the Wiſdom of God, and was profitable in its place, and to its end: but this was invented by the corrupt Wiſdom, and ſet up in the corrupt Will of man, and hath no true profit, but keeps from the Life, from the Power, from the Spirit in fleſhly obſervations, which feed and pleaſe the fleſhly nature. Look upon their days conſecrated to Saints, and their canonical hours of Prayer, and their praying in an unknown tongue, with their faſtings, feaſtings, ſaying of Ave-Maries, Paternoſters, Creeds, &c. are not all theſe from the life, out of the Spirit, and after the invention, and in the Will of the fleſh? Ah their ſtink is greater then the fleſh-pots of Ægypt.

And the Worſhip of the Proteſtants comes too near them: for their Worſhip is alſo from a fleſhly principle. and in their own times, and wills, and according to their own underſtanding and apprehenſion of things, and not from the riſing up and guidance of the infallible Life of the Spirit in them (for that they will quench) They alſo obſerve days, and times, and periſhing ordinances, and are not come out of the Fleſh into that Spirit, where the Worſhip is to be known and to be in.

3. The Faith, the true Faith was loſt. The Faith which gives Victory over the World; the Faith which feeds the life of the Juſt, and ſlays the Unjuſt; the Faith which is pure, the myſtery whereof is held in a pure Conſcience; the Faith which gives entrance into the Reſt of God; the Faith which is the ſubſtance of things hoped for, and the evidence of things not ſeen; this hath been loſt, and is not yet to be found among thoſe who go for Chriſtians.

For thoſe who Challenge the name of Chriſtians, and ſay they believe in Chriſt, and have faith in him, cannot with their faith overcome the World, but are daily overcome by the World. Where is there a Chriſtian, but he is either in the Honours, or in the Faſhion, or in the Cuſtoms, or in the Worſhips of the World, if not in them all? He is ſo far from overcoming theſe, that he is overcome with them: yea ſo overcome, ſo drunk therewith, that he hath even loſt his ſenſes, and thinks he may be a Chriſtian, and in a good ſtate, while he is there.

And

And the life of the Juſt is not fed by their Faith, but the Unjuſt nature is fed, and the Righteous witneſs (which is raiſed up and lives by the true faith) is kept down, and cannot bring forth his life in them, becauſe of their unbelief; for that is the proper name of their Faith; for being not true Faith, it is not Faith, but Unbelief.

And the Faith of Chriſtians (ſo called) is not a myſtery, (they know not the myſtery of it, which is held in a pure Conſcience) but conſiſts in believing an Hiſtorical relation, and in a fleſhly improving of that, and can be held in an Impure Conſcience.

Neither are they entred into Reſt by their Faith: for they know not the Sabbath in the Lord, but are ſtill in a ſhadowy Sabbath.

Neither is it the ſubſtance of what they hope for, but the ſubſtance of what they hope for is ſtrange to them. They are not come to Mount Sion, to the City of the living God, the heavenly Jeruſalem, to the innumerable company of Angels, to the general aſſembly and Church of the firſt-born, to God the Judg, Chriſt the Mediator, and the blood of ſprinkling, and ſo to unity and certainty in the life: but are in opinions, ways, and practiſes ſuitable to the earthly ſpirit which may eaſily be ſhaken, and muſt be ſhaken down to the ground, if ever they know the building of God, and the true Faith.

4. The love, the true love; the innocent love, which think no ill, nor wiſhes no ill much leſs can do any ill to any; but ſuffereth long and is kind, meek, humble, not ſeeking its own, but the good of others, this love is loſt. The love unfained is baniſhed, a fained love, ſuch a love as enmity and violence proceeds from, is got in the place of it. The true love loves the enemy, and cannot return enmity for enmity, but ſeeks the good of them who hate it: but this love can perſecute and hate that which it calls the friend, nay the brother, becauſe of ſome difference in opinion or practice. The love that was in Chriſt, taught him to lay down his life for his ſheep: and he that hath the ſame love, can lay down his life for his Brother. But the love that is now amongſt Chriſtians rends rather to the taking away of life.

What is the love amongſt the Papiſts? See their Inquiſitions, their wraths, their fire and fagot, &c.

What is their love in New-England? Is it not a love that can Impriſon or Baniſh their Brother, if he differ but a little from them in judgement or practiſe about their Worſhip? Yea they can Whip, Burn in the Hand, cut off Ears, juſt like the Biſhops of old England. If one had told them, when they fled from the perſecution of the Biſhops here, that they themſelves ſhould have done ſuch things, they would have been apt to reply with Hazael, what, are we Dogs? But they fled from the Croſs, which would have crucified that perſecuting Spirit, and ſo carried it alive with them; and being alive, it grew by degrees to as great an head there, as it did in the Biſhops here.

And what is the love here in old England? Is it not a love that Whips, Stocks, Impriſons, Stones, Jeeres? Yea the very Teachers (which ſhould be patterns of love to others) they will caſt into Priſon, and diſtrein the goods of their Brother, even almoſt to his undoing for maintenance, according to a Law of the Land made in the Apoſtacy. See the Record of Sufferings for Tyths in England, which may make any tender heart bleed to read it, and is like to lie as a brand of infamy on the Magiſtracy and Miniſtry of England to ſucceeding generations. Is this the love of the Righteous ſeed? Or is it Cain's love which is in Profeſſion, in Word, in Shew; but not in Deed and in Truth? And how can theſe love God? nay if the true love of God were in them, this enmity could not ſtand, nor ſuch fruits of it ſhoot forth. But they have not ſeen the Father or the Son, and that life of them which appears in the Earth, the Evil ſpirit in man ſeeks to deſtroy, that he may keep up his own Image and ſhadow of life, which the nature of the true life (in its appearance) fights againſt. By this ſhall men know that ye are my Diſciples, if ye love one another. And by this may all men know, that thoſe that now go for Chriſtians are not Chriſts Diſciples, in that they do not love one another. They are not at unity in the light, and ſo cannot love one another there? but are only in unity in forms in opinions, in profeſſions, practiſes; ſo any difference there ſtirs up the enmity, cauſing riſings in the heart gainſt them at leaſt, if it proceed not further. The true love grows from true union and fellowſhip in the light, where that is not known, there cannot be true love in then a Spirit, but a feigned love in the Fleſh.

5. The true Hope, Joy, and Peace is lost.

The true ground of hope, is Christ in the heart, and the true hope is that hope which ariseth from this ground, from the feeling of Christ there, Christ in you the hope of Glory, Col. 1. 27. What is the true Christians hope? it is Christ in him, he hath eternal life abiding in him, and he knows that cannot but lead to glory. But what is the common Christians hope? He fastens his hope upon the relation and his belief of an History. He that believeth shall be saved. I believe, therefore I shall be saved. And thus as he hath got up a wrong Faith, and a wrong Love, so he gets up a wrong Hope. And this hope will perish: for this is the hope of the Hypocrite, or an hope in the hypocritical nature, which complies with Scripture-words, but is not in union with God, nor with the Life of the Scriptures; and so being without the Anchor, is tossed in the Waves of the Sea.

And the true joy is in the Spirit, from what is felt, and enjoyed, and hoped for there. But the common Christians joy is from things which he gathers into, and comprehends in his understanding, or from flashes which he feels in his affectionate part, from a fire and sparks of his own kindling, from whence he fetches his warmth and comfort.

And the true Peace stands in the reconciliation with God, by having that broken down which causeth the wrath, and to which the wrath is, where ever it is found. The Lamb of God breaks down the VVall of separation in the heart, the Bloud of Jesus (wherein is the life) cleanseth away the sin there, maketh the heart pure, uniteth the pure heart to the pure God; here's Union, here's Fellowship, here's Peace. But the common Christians Peace is from a mis-understanding of Scriptures, while the VVall of separation is standing, while wickedness lodges in the heart. They reason themselves (from Scripture-words) into an apprehension that God is at peace with them, and that they are in union with him, while that of God which is in them witnesseth against them, and checks them, and wars with them: and they are not one with it, nor cannot be in that nature and understanding wherein their life lies, to which belongs no peace.

6. The true Repentance, Conversion, and Regeneration hath been lost.

The true Repentance is from dead works, and from the dead principle whence all the dead works proceed: but these have not been repented of, but cherished in the Apostacy. The praying, the striving, the worshiping, the fighting hath been from the dead principle. The building up, and whole exercise of Religion in the Apostacy, hath been in that understanding which is to be destroyed: and the will which should have been crucified, hath been pleased and fed with its Religion.

The true Conversion is from the power of Satan to God, from the darkness to the light. But in the Apostacy men have not known God or Satan, the light or the darkness, but have mistook, taking the one for the other, Worshipping the Devil in stead of God, Rev. 13. 4. and following the dark conceivings of their own and other mens minds concerning Scripture, and calling them light.

Regeneration is a changing of man, whereby the birth is born of the Spirit: the stripping of the creature of its own nature, of its own understanding, of its own will, and forming it a new in the Womb of the Spirit: so that the old creature is passed away, and comes forth a new thing, which grows up daily in the new life towards the fulness of Christ. But men have been so far from being born of the Spirit, that they have not so much as known the gift of the Spirit in them; but to this day are enemies, and at a distance from that of God in them which is pure. And if they could but open their eyes, they would see that their birth is fleshly, and consists (at best) but in such a conforming to the letter; as the old nature may intimate and attain: but the immortal seed is not sprung up in them, nor they dead to the mortal, or alive to the immortal.

7. The true Wisdom, Righteousness, Sanctification, and Redemption is lost.

The true wisdom stands in the fear of God and departing from evil: This, those that are taught of God learn, and thereby are made wise unto salvation. But most that are called Christians, are not come to the fear of God, and many are got above it, looking upon it as legall, and not appertainig to the Gospel; but the Gospel state, for love, which casteth out fear. Doth the love of God refuse, or cast out the fear of God? Nay it casts out the fear that brings bondage, the fear that came in by transgression, which fear is stirred up, and discovered by the Law. And this is a fear of sin, or a fear arising from sin, through the Laws manifestation of it, and the wrath against it, which causeth both the fear, and much bondage from the fear: And this the Gospel (which discovers the love, the mercy, the grace, the power, and unites to them) frees from, and casts out. But then there is a fear of God, a fear wrought in the heart by his Spirit, a fear which is part of the new Covenant, (I will put my fear in their Hearts, and they shall not depart from me,) a fear which is part of the everlasting Gospel, Rev. 14. 6, 7. and endureth for ever, Psal. 19. 9. And this fear is not bondage, but liberty; it is indeed bondage to the unjust, but liberty to the just: for where this fear is, sin is departed from; it sets free, it delivers the Feet out of the Snare of Iniquity: there's true liberty. Can sin prevail in that heart, where the pure clean fear of God is placed by God to keep it down? The love of God doth not cast out this fear, but keeps in this fear: and this fear keeps the heart clean from the evil which defiles, and preserves the love from the enmity, which springs up where this fear is not. Now this fear in the Apostacy was lost, or else what needed there an especial Ministry to be raised up to Preach it again, Rev. 14. 6, 7. And the estate of Christians every where doth manifest this loss, for their hearts are not kept clean, which sheweth that the fear, (which doth keep clean, where it is) is wanting in them. There's pollution, there's filth, there's deceipt, there's high mindedness, self-conceitedness, and love of the world and worldly vanities, and many other evils to be found in the hearts of those that go for Christians; and the purity of heart (which comes from the fear, and stands in the wisdom) is not known. They are wise to do evil, but want the Knowledge to avoid the evil, and do the good: They are wise to get and enjoy the World, but know not the true riches: They are wise to gather together many Scripture-words against Sin, and yet still keep the nature and Life of it in the Heart, and it is as a sweet morsel under the Tongue: They are wise to apply promises to comfort themselves with (when sometimes they receive a just wound in their hearts from the righteous one) but know not that nature, or that estate and condition to which all the promises are made, but are yet in that nature, and in that estate and condition to which the curse appertains,

The true righteousness stands in the faith, in hearing and obeying the word of Faith. How comes the righteousness of the Law, but by hearing and obeying the voice of the Law? And how comes the righteousness of the Gospel, but by hearing and obeying the word of Faith, who is Preached, and the Preacher of righteousness in the heart? The Apostle Paul makes this comparison, Rom. 10. The righteousness of the Law speaketh on this wise, The man that doth those things, shall live in them. But how speaketh the word of Faith? The word is nigh thee, in thy mouth, and in thy heart, he that doth that, he that heareth that, shall live in that. The hour is coming, and now is, when the dead shall hear the voyce of the Son of God: and they that hear shall live. Disobedience to the law is unrighteousness, and brings Death; and disobedience to the living word is unrighteousness, and cannot be justified, but condemned: and obedience to it cannot be condemned, but justified: So that when the Soul hears, believes and obeyes, then it is justified: then its former sins are forgotten, and this is imputed to it unto righteousness. But when the Soul will not hear, will not believe, will not obey; this unbelief is judged in him, and his sins retained, and not remitted. Now is not this a just and equal way of justification, O ye sons of men? is not your way unequal; shall a man continue in the unbelief and rebellion against Christ, against the Light, against the Faith; and yet be justified by Christ, by the Light, by the Faith? This cannot be, Gods way of imputation will stand; but mans invented way of imputation which sprung up in the Apostacy, will not stand. If we walk in the Light, as he is in the Light; the blood cleanseth, but not otherwise, If we walk after the spirit, and not after the flesh, there is no condemnation, and not otherwise: The true Baptism is the plunging down of the old thing, with all its filth; and the raising up of a new thing: and it is the new thing, the Circumcision, the Baptism which is justified. God justifieth his Son, and man onely so far as he is found in his Son.

The true sanctification consists in the growth of the seed, and its spreading (like a leaven) over the heart, and over the whole man. By Faith Christ is formed in the heart, the hidden man in the mystery is formed there: and as this seed, this leaven, this man grows; so he makes the man holy in whom he grows. The seed of life, the Kingdom of Heaven is an holy thing; and as it grows and spreads, it purgeth out the old leaven, and makes the lump new. But now, in Christians that have grown up in the Apostacy, this seed is not known, this leaven is not so much as discerned; but their holiness consists in a conformity to rules of Scripture, received into the old heart and understanding. And what a noise hath this made in the World, all this night of the Apostacy, as if this were the Heir, and should inherit the Kingdom: Nay, nay, The Heir hath appeared (by whose presence it is seen, that this is not the Heir) and ye shall not be able to kill him, but he shall live to enjoy his inheritance, and the inheritance shall not be yours.

Redemption consists in being bought, by the price of the life, out of sin, out of Death, out of the Earth, out of the power of the Devil. It is a casting off the strong man out of the heart (with all that he brought in) and a delivering from his power. It is dissolving of the work of Sin, which the Devil hath wrought in the heart, and a setting the Soul (which is Immortal) at liberty; free from Sin, and free unto Righteousness: this is the true Redemption. But this Redemption in the Apostacy is a fained Redemption; wherein Salvation from Sin, and the Devil and his power is not felt: but the strong man is still in the heart, and keeps the Soul in Death, and brings forth fruits of Death daily.

The Christians formerly (in the first day of the breaking forth of Gods power) had Christ in them, the living word; opened their hearts to him, received him in, felt him there, found him made of God to them, their Wisdom, their Righteousness, their Sanctification, their Redemption, 1 Cor. 1. 30. They had the thing that these words signifie and speak of, and knew the meaning of the words by feeling of the thing. But Christians now, in the Apostacy, have got several apprehensions from the words, without feeling the thing the words speak of, and there lies their Religion. And now the true Heir being come, holding forth the thing they have been all talking of, all Sects upon the earth are mad against him, and would fain kill him: They would not have the living substance (which is the Heir) live, and nothing be esteemed life but that; but they would have their dead apprehensions from the words live, and their dead forms and practises owned: and the Heir of life must come in their way, in the way that they have hoped and waited for him, or they will not own him. Awake, awake, O ye Sons of the Apostacy, and of the night, rise up out of the fleshly Wisdom, out of the dead fleshly interpretations of Scriptures, out of the dead invented forms of Worship, and bow to the Heir, kiss the Son, lest ye feel the force of that dreadful sentence, These mine enemies, which would not that I should reign over them, bring hither, and slay them before me. For of a truth the great Prophet is risen, and speaks in the Heart, and his Sheep hear his voice (there are many faithful witnesses thereof) and he that will not hear his voice, must be cut off; there is no avoiding of it. for the two edged Sword is in his hand, and he will cut down the Transgressor.

8. The Church, the true Church was lost.

The true Church was a company gathered out of the VVorld into God, begotten of, and gathered into his life, by the living word, and so had a true place and habitation in God. The Apostle Paul writing to the Thessalonians, stiles them a Church in God. A Church under the Gospel is made up of true Israelites, gathered out of their own Spirits and Nature, into the measure of the Spirit of God in them, as Christ was into the fulness. They are such as are begotten of God, born of his Spirit, led by him out of Egypt, through the VVilderness to Sion the holy Mount, there they meet with the elect precious corner stone which is laid in Sion, and they being living Stones are built upon it into Jerusalem the Holy City, Pet. 2. 5, 6. Ebr. 12. 22. This is the true Church. Every one that believes in Christ, is a living Stone, and being a living Stone, he is laid upon the living Foundation, and so is a part of the building in the Temple of the living God. Yea, his Body and Spirit being cleansed, he himself is a Temple wherein God dwels, appears, and is worshipped. And the gathering of any of theſe together at any time in the Life, in the name of Chriſt, is a larger Temple, and ſuch a Temple as Chriſt never fails to be in the midſt of. But the great Temple, the full Church is the general aſſembly of the firſt born. This is the unerring Pillar and ground of truth. This always bare up truth, truth never failed here; but when it was at any time loſt in the World, it might from hence be recovered again when God pleaſed, and as far as he pleaſed. Indeed the Law of the Lord hath always gone forth from this Sion, and the living Word from this Jeruſalem.

But what hath the Church been in the Apoſtacy? A building of Stone, ſay ſome: and that not only among Papiſts, but here in England alſo; many have called the old Maſs-houſe a Church, a Temple, the houſe of God, pleading for it to be a holy place; and have ſhewed it by their practiſes, keeping off their Hats while they were in it.

Others ſay, not the Stone building, but the people that meet there, is the Church: whereof many are openly prophane, yea ſo far from being gathered into the Spirit, and ſo ignorant of his motions, that they are ready to ſcoff, if they hear a man ſpeak of being moved by the Spirit. What are theſe? are theſe living Stones, whereupon the true Church alone can be built? Are theſe Children of the day? Nay, theſe are Chidren of the night, Children brought up in the Apoſtacy from the true light, the true life, the true rule of Chriſtianity, the true Worſhip, the true Faith, the true Love, &c. and ſo are dead Stones in that building, but not true living Stones in God's building.

Other ſorts ſeparate from theſe, and gather Congregations out of theſe; but ſtill in the ſame Spirt, in the ſame nature, being not themſelves gathered out of the Apoſtacy from the Spirit, into the Spirit again; and ſo they build but with the ſame Stones as were in the old building, and not with the new and living Stones, and ſo are but a more refined appearance of a Church, but not a true Church, not a Church in God, and by the gathering of his Spirit; but of their own gathering, after a form, according as they have imagined from their reading and ſtudying of the Scriptures.

9. (Which may be the laſt inſtance) The Miniſtry, the true Miniſtry hath been loſt.

The true Miniſtry was a Miniſtry made and appointed by the Spirt, by the gift of the Spirit beſtowed on them, and by the Spirit ſending of them, and appointing them to their Work. Chriſt bid his Apoſtles and Diſciples wait at Jeruſalem for the promiſe of the Spirit; and when he had given them the Spirit, he gave them to the Church for the Work of the Miniſtry, Epheſ. 4. 11, 12. Acts 20. 28. And if none can be a member of the true Church, but by being begotten out of death into life by the Spirit, ſurely none can be able to miniſter to him who is ſo begotten, but by the ſame Spirit. So theſe receiving their Miniſtry of the Lord Jeſus, Acts 20. 24. and the gift of the Spirit from him, they were made able Miniſters of the new Teſtament, not of the letter, but of the ſpirit, 2 Cor. 3. 6. They were able in God, to miniſter from his Spirit to the Spirits of his people, and they did not miniſter a literal knowledge of things to the underſtanding of man: but they led men to the Spirit of God, and miniſtred Spritual things to that Spiritual underſtanding which was given them of God. Neither did they make uſe of their own Wiſdom and Art, to tickle the natural ear; but ſpeak to the Conſcience, with the domonſtration of the Spirit, in the ſight of God, as it pleaſed the Spirit to give them utterance.

But how have Miniſters been made in the Apoſtacy? By orders from men, ſet up in their own wills, after their own inventions. And how have they been qualified, but by humane Arts and Languages, which have been of high eſteem in that which men call the Church, ſince the language and skill of the Spirit of God hath been loſt; God (who choſe in his own Church) doth not chooſe here, who ſhall be his Miniſters; but any man can appoint his Son to be a Miniſter, if he will but educate him in learning, and ſend them to the Univerſity, and ſo bring him into that way of order wherein men make Miniſters: and then he is able to miniſter unto man, the things of man, according to Humane skill. And this in the dark night of Apoſtacy, muſt go for a true call to the Miniſtry of God. Indeed they are as true Miniſters, as the Church is to which they miniſter: but they never were, nor never can be thus made Miniſters of the Church of God: but as God alone can form and build his Church, ſo he alone can fit and appoint the Miniſters thereof. And though others, having ſeen the groſneſs of this, make their Miniſters by a call in their Church, yet neither is that out of the Apoſtacy, but only a ſtriving of man to get out of it; which man cannot poſſibily do, till he meet with the Spirit of God to lead out of it. So that that Ministry also is but an invention of man made by man, and comes not from the spirit, nor is able to minister spirit to the spirit.

Object. But hath there been no true Religion since the days of the Apostles; no true Rule, no true Worship, no true Faith, no true Love, no true Hope, Joy or Peace, no true Repentance, Conversion and Regeneration, no true Wisdom, Righteousness, Sanctification and Redemption, no true Church, no true Ministry? What hath become of all our Fore-fathers? Did they all perish? and hath not this Ministry converted many to God? Were not ye your selves converted by it? Nay, have not many of them been Martyrs, any witnessed to the Truth of God? And though some of them are bad, yet are not many of them zealous and conscientious Preachers of the Word at this day? By such reasonings as these, the wisdom of man much strengthens and hardens it self against the Truth.

Anſ. The rule in Nations, the worship in Nations, the Faith, Love, Hope Joy, Peace, Repentance, Conversion, Regeneration, &c. which have been cried up in Nations for the Truth, the Churches in Nations, the Ministry in Nations, all these have been corrupted, and never recovered their true state to this day. There have been changes from one thing to another, but the restoration hath not been known. The whorish Spirit hath been hunted and pursued, and so run out of one form into another, traversing her way, and changing her ground and garments, but hath not been taken and judged to the death: and the true spirit hath not been able to find the bed of her Husband, but hath wandred from Mountain to Hill, all the time of this cloudy and dark day, forgetting her resting place.

Yet, though the whole Earth was corrupted, and false Doctrine and Worship set up every where among the Nations, which continued the Fornication and Whoredom from the spirit of life in the publick ways and national Worships; notwithstanding this, even all this while God reserved a seed to himself, which he caused to spring up in a remnant, and which he moved and carried on to witness against somewhat of these corruptions, in their several Ages and Generations. And as fast as the Beast killed and knocked down these, God raised up more: yea, though the whorish Spirit, in some Nations, painted her self curiously, leaving some of the gross Doctrines and Worships of Popery, and got into a more refined way: yet God raised up Witnesses against her there also, and still doth, into what form soever she gets: for though of late she hath decked her self very pleasingly, as she thinks, and covered her self round with Scripture-words and professions, and practices as like as ever she can form them to the practices of former Saints, yet quick and lively is the Spirit of God that searcheth after her, who hath found her out, and raised up Witnesses against her there also.

Now this Seed, this Remnant, though they were not able to recover the possession of the Life and Power that was lost, yet they had a true taste of it, and their Testimony which they gave out from that taste was true: and so far as they kept to this Testimony in the Faith and in the Patience which they had learned and received from God, (tho' but in a low measure) they were accepted of him. So that all were not lost in this night of darkness; but such as feared God, and knew and hearkened to his voice, had the Testimony of his presence with them, and tasted of his Life and Power in measure: God was not an hard Master to them, but tender and gentle, and contented to reap what he sowed. But the appearance of God in this dark time was weak, and low, and easie to be made a prey of. And this is very observable, that so long as the simplicity ran pure it was preserved; but so soon as ever the Spirit of man was tempted either into any old, or into any new invented form, the wisdom of the Flesh got in with it, grew up more than it; and when it had gathered strength, corrupted the vessel, betrayed the simplicity, and lost the life. There was a precious thing stirring in Queen Maries days, the life whereof was more hurt and suppressed by that dead form of Episcopacy succeeding afterwards, than by the foregoing Persecution. The Persecution did clear and brighten it, but the fleshly form of Episcopacy brought death over it. Thus many precious beginnings and buddings forth of life have been betrayed in these late days. And the forms of Presbytery, Independency, Anabaptism have been little less than Graves to bury and keep down the life. How many Spirits that had a precious savour in them at their entrance into those forms, did soon become fleshly, earthly and very unsavory, losing the quickness and freshness that was in them before, and falling into the deadness of the form, withering with it.

And

And as touching the Ministry, though in it selfit was evil, being in the degeneration from the true Ministry, all this time of the Apostacy; and the persons therein for the most very corrupt, being brought up to it as a trade, and making use of it as a trade: yet I do believe that there was a simplicity of heart in some persons among them, which did cause them in some degree of faithfulness, to seek the Lord, his service, and the good of Souls. And in the time of ignorance and darkness, it pleased God to wink at, and over-look the evil; and to cause good to pass from the good in them to the good in others, through the evil that hung about both. And this was the great tenderness of the Lord, in pity to his poor creatures (who were very destitute of help in the thick night of darkness) and should not now be made use of to justifie and keep up the evil. Do ye thus requite the Lord, O foolish people and unkind? Because his mercy and goodness extended to you, notwithstanding the evil (which might have hindered) will ye make that an argument to keep up the evil, and to oppose the light which discovers it? Because God causeth light to shine through the darkness, and visiteth man in the dark, will ye therefore set up the darkness as his proper way of ministration? The corrupt way, call, and exercise of the corrupt ministry, could not keep out the tender love of God, but he had respect to the simplicity of some who were found in it, and to the simplicity of others who waited on him for instruction there, and did please to give some answer to both. And will ye make this uningenious use of it, to interpret it as his approbation of that ministry, which sprung up in the Apostacy from him, among those that were apostatized, and is a great dishonour to him, and the abhorring of his Soul? A ministry of Christ, a ministry set up by his Spirit is precious; but a ministry made by man, according to his Will, and ministring in his Wisdom, the Soul of the Lord beareth as a burden, and is pressed with it; and as he raiseth up his own life, will ease himself of it. And what do they minister from, but the literal part of the Scriptures, which killeth and cannot give life? and what do they minister with, but their own understanding part? what meanings they can invent, what deductions the Wisdom can draw from the Scriptures, but do not see the true meaning in the infallible and unerring light: and what do they minister to, but the understanding part in you? whereas there is somewhat else to be ministred to by the true Minister; and what do they minister to you, but food for the understanding, food for the Serpentine-Wisdom, which always fed upon knowledge, but never upon the true bread? and hereby another thing is fed in you, and not your Souls, but they are kept in leanness and barrenness, under death and the bondage of corruption (which Paul cryed out upon as a wretched state, and could find no ease, rest, or freedom for condemnation there) and without the true life and redemption. I do not deny but ye may there meet with some kind of warmth in the affectionate part, which may be heated by a fire and sparks of mans kindling and and blowing up, and this may go for life with you now: but in the presence of the truth, where the eye is opened it vanisheth: yea the Spirit of the Lord hath so blown upon it, that it is even withered in the sight of a more inferiour eye in many people.

Position III.

That there is to be a recovery, a true recovery out of this state of Apostacy, into the true state of Christianity again.

God will not let the desolations of Sion remain forever, but he will again build up Sion, and appear in his glory. He will set his King upon his holy Hill of Sion. The new Jerusalem shall again come down from Heaven. The Man-child which was taken up, shall come down again conquering, and to conquer, and the Lamb shall get the victory over the Whore, and over all her apostatized Nations and Churches, that have a name and not the life; and he shall rule them with a rod of Iron; and make them a desolation which have made his Holy City desolate, and trample them down which have trampled upon it. The lofty City he will lay low, he will lay it low, even to the ground, he will bring it even to the Dust: The foot shall tread it down, the feet of the poor, the steps of the needy. The Whore shall be judged, with the Beast whereupon she rode: the life, which they trod upon, shall rise up in the mighty power of the Lord, and over-turn them. The everlasting sting Gospel shall be again preached to them that dwell on the earth, and to every Nation and Kindred, and Tongue and People, Rev. 14.6. Mark, the Gospel that was preached to the Nations all the time of the Apostacy, was not the everlasting Gospel, that Gospel did not bring life and immortality to light, but they were hid from mens eyes, and men had only a sound of words instead of the thing: And thus poor Nations, Kindreds, People, Tongues, were every where bewitched with a form of things, with an outward knowledg, a perishing knowledg in the perishing part, a vain traditional invented Worship, which stands in the wisdom and will of man, but had no union and fellowship with that which is everlasting. And thus all the Nations in the smoke of the bottomless Pit, run into the Pit from whence the smoke came. But the Lord hath a time to pity the poor Nations, and to send forth his true everlasting Gospel again, to deliver the Nations from that witchery, and sorcery, and spiritual inchantment which got up in the dark. And as this everlasting light springs up, then down goes Babylon, down go all invented Doctrines, all invented Forms, all invented Worships, and that wisdom and evil spirit that raised them up. Babylon is fallen, is fallen, that great City, because she made all Nations drunk of the wine of the Cup of her Fornication, Rev. 14. 1. And now the New Wine of the Kingdom, which is tasted of in the everlasting Gospel, purges out the old Wine, and the Drunkenness, which thereby came upon the Nations, wasts. And they that have tasted of this life, and know this life can never be bewitch'd back again, by the whorish spirit, to dead forms and likenesses without life: Nay, when Babylon falls she can rise no more, Though the life fall often, it can rise again; but when the witchery from the life is discovered and cast into the Pit, it can get out no more. Indeed the Beast hath had all the strength of the Nations, and the Whore hath had all the wisdom, all the esteem, all the honor: who can make War with the Beast? who can shew Miracles and Wonders like the false Prophets? who can teach but the wise, learned, orthodox men, that have the Arts, and know the Original? yea there's another that can make War, and a Prophet that can Preach better than them, one that can preach life, one that can preach the everlasting Gospel, and knows the Original of it, one that is wiser and stronger than the Whore, and by his wisdom and strength is able to judge her, and cast her out of the Nations, though she hath got very strong possession, Rev. 18. 8. Now learn wisdom, know the Parable of the Figtree, come to the life that is arisen, and abide not in the Death, that is passed, and passing away. Ye have heard the voice of the Whore, ye have drunk of her Cup, ye have been bewitched, ye have set up her inventions, but have wanted the thing which cannot be invented, and which the inventing understanding cannot comprehend. But if the force of the Wine still remain upon you, so that ye cannot hearken after, or let in that which is everlasting, assure your selves, as the life rises, ye will meet with Plagues and Wraths from it, instead of the refreshment it brings to others, and know what it is to sit down under a dead talk of, without feeling the living power of redemption. Therefore be wise and know the times and seasons. That will not be born with now, which was born with formerly: but as the love and power of God to Salvation hath more appeared, so the severity against those who now resist, will appear more also: And Death shall have its sting, which they that will love darkness and hate the light, shall feel.

Position IV.

That they that are in those things which have been set up in the times of the Apostacy, are not yet come to the recovery from the Apostacy.

They that are in the Doctrines and bodies of Divinity, which have been formed since, are not in the true Doctrine.

They that are in the rules of life which wise Church-men, or Synods, or Councils, have given, or which they themselves have gathered by their industry out of the Scriptures, are not in the true, living and everlasting rule. They that are in the worship, or under the Ministry, or of any Church which hath been set up since by the power of man, or from the inventing Wisdom (though this Wisdom hath founded its inventions upon the Scriptures) are not in the true Worship, in the true Church, or under the true Ministry. They that are in the faith, which hath since been gathered red into the underſtanding, and did not ſpring up from the Miſtery of Life, in the Heart, are not in the true faith. The ſame may be ſaid of love, hope, joy, peace, and all the reſt mentioned before, yea and all other things in Religion, for all hath been corrupted, even the inward part. And while here hath been a great contention about forms of Worſhip, and Church Government, the power of godlineſs, and the Government of Chriſt in the heart hath been loſt.

Obſerve diligently what we have now to ſay, When the Apoſtles, who had the true Miniſtry, preached the Goſpel, they ſtirred and raiſed up the power of God in the heart, and the power of ſin, corruption and deceit ſunk down, and was underfoot, and trampled upon by the power. But when Antichriſt and the falſe Prophets aroſe, they raiſed up the corruption again, and fed it with Doctrines of deceit, but the power ſunk down, and was not felt, but buried all that time of the prevailing of the corruption and deceit. Now the power was not loſt all this while in it ſelf, but onely loſt to man, ſo that he knew not where to find it. Yet this power in this time of loſs did ſtir, and move, and make men in ſome degree ſenſible of the loſs, cauſing them to pant and ſeek after the living truth. And this was good, this was of God. But then there was an evil ſpirit, which was near to the good, and lay lurking in the ſerpentine wiſdom of the heart, and that drew the mind (which was bent toward the ſeeking of a right thing) a wrong way, that cryed lo here, lo there; look into the Scriptures, the Church was ſo and ſo, go get into ſuch a thing: the Chriſtians there did ſo and ſo, go do ſuch a thing: there's the way, there thou ſhalt meet with the life and the power. And thus it drew from that which ſtirred within, into an imitation of a form without, and there they came to a loſs. I dare appeal to all honeſt hearts, Was there not a good thing ſtirring in you, when ye went into your Church forms? were ye not led in ſimplicity, hoping to meet with life and power there? nay, did ye not loſe it there, and become deader? I know, if did ye find it ſo? did ye meet with the life and power there? ye have not forgotten the taſte of life, ye will confeſs to me, that that which now ye have is not life, but far ſhort of that which ye had, when ye entred into your form. Ah poor hearts, the Whore bewitched you. the Harlot in your boſoms, and the falſe Prophets without, helped to increaſe the Witchery, crying lo here, and loe there, but ye knew not that the Kingdom of Heaven was within, from whence that ſtirring of life was in you, where ye ſhould have kept, and not have gone forth. But now ye are dead and buried in your Graves, lying there without ſenſe, and are now got into the ſpirit of the World, and into the enmity againſt that life in others, which was then your own life. And do ye know where ye are, and what ye are doing? Can ye bear to hear it.

Of a truth ye are in the Snare of the Enemy, in the Inchantment from the life, in the Whores Bed, in the Strumpets Boſom, and not in the Boſom of our beloved. And your practiſes are branches of the fornication, parcels of the Whoredom, inventions which have been gathered in by that underſtanding, and ſet up by that will which whored from God. They are the effects and products of the Whores Cup, which gets new dreſſes, new habit, new forms, new ways to couſen and deceive the ſimple with; but ſtill ſhe remains the Whore, and thoſe who are ſeduced by her, are led into her Whoredom. For when God diſcovers and hunts her out of one form, then ſhe decks her ſelf with another, perhaps more ſeemingly ſpiritual, more Scripture like, and ſo more likely to take with the ſimple Heart: and then ſhe lies in wait for the young man to entrap him again, ſaying, Come in hither, This is the true way of God without doubt; did not the Saints meet with life here formerly? Come thou hither alſo, here's the Bed of thy beloved, take thy fill of Life, thy fill of Love. And thus the poor honeſt ſimple heart follows her, going like a Fool to the correction of the Stocks not knowing that it is for his life, until he come to feel the loſs of Life. And then if ſhe find ſhe cannot keep him there, but freſh ſtirrings of Life Spring up in him again, and withdraw him from that which had deceived him, then ſhe Paints again, and lies in wait for him again, to catch him in ſome more refined appearance, or in ſome elevated notion, or at leaſt in the ſhadow of that which was true: for the Whore hath not onely art and power to invent forms and likeneſſes of that which is true, and make Idols and Images of them: but it hath power alſo given it over the outward Court, ſo that that which is found there, it can make Idols and Images of. That which is corruptible, it can get into and corrupt, and make an enemy to that life, life, which lived in it before it was corrupted: and when it is corrupted, then there is no more truth or Life to be found there, but the Idol, and the Idolatry.

The Apostle John who fore-warned of Antichrist, and gave a mark whereby he might be known, namely by his not confessing Christ come in the flesh, 1 John 4. 3. (which he that setteth up any thing of the old Covenant, or any invention or imitation of any thing therein, doth not) he bids also beware of Idols: Little Children, keep your selves from Idols, 1 John 5. 21. Now what is an Idol? The Apostle Paul saith, An Idol is nothing in the world. An Idol is no true thing in its place, but a false thing set up instead of the true. A false conception of God in the mind, is an Idol: a false Church or Temple is an Idol: a false Minister, who is not made according to the appointment of God, and by the gift of his Spirit, but came in another way, by the appointment of man, is an Idol-shepherd: and the Worship in this Church, and by this ministry, is publique Idolatry; and all the worship in Families, which have been erected after the same manner, without the guidance of the Spirit of God, is private Idolatry. Where the Heathens Temples, Altars, Priests, Sacrifices, and other inventions of theirs (in imitation of the Jews) Idolatrous? And are not the inventions of the Heathnish Spirit, or Antichristian nature in man, are not they also Idolators?

Object. But is praying Idolatry, Preaching Idolatry, Singing Idolatry, Baptising of Infants Idolatry, breaking of bread Idolatry?

Answ. The Praying which God appointed is not Idolatry: Praying in the Spirit of God, when he moves, and according to the will of God, which is only known in the Spirit, is not Idolatry; but thy Praying in thine own Spirit, and at thine own times, and according to thine own will (perhaps in way of imitation of the Jewish morning and evening Sacrifices) this is Idolatry. This is that which thou hast set up, instead of that which God set up, and so it is not the true thing which God set up, but an Idol of their own making: and so thou worshippest not God therein, but that Spirit which helped thee to invent and set up the Idol. The same might be said concerning Preaching, Singing, washing with Water, breaking of Bread, and whatever else is practised in Religion upon these terms.

Object. But doth not the Scripture mention these things? and did not the Saints practise these things? Surely they were not Idolaters. Can I be an Idolater in practising that which they practised?

Answ. Nay, thou art mistaken; they are not the things which they practised. The stress of their Religion lay in the life of it, in the presence of the Spirit of God in it: it was his breath made it the truth. Now if thou couldst have the same thing that they had, yet without the same living breath, they would be but dead things, but Idols. But thou hast not the true form of things neither, thou hast not the true Church, the true Ministry, the true Ordinances according to the form, but things set up in their stead, by the invention of man, in the time of the Apostacy from the true things, and what can these be, but Idols;

The World wandred after the Beast, and they worshipped the Dragon which gave power unto the Beast, and they worshipped the Beast, Rev. 13. 3. 4. Behold what was worshipped at the time of the Apostacy! That which arose from the Beastly invention of man, and not from the true spirit of life. And the inventing and setting up of these, and worshipping according to these inventions, is worshipping the Dragon, (for he getteth in, and lodgeth in mans inventions) and not the living God. And therefore God, at the end of this Apostacy, raiseth up a new ministry to recal the Nations from worshipping the Dragon, to the worship of God again, ver. 6. 7. of that Chapter, What the Gentiles sacrificed of old, they sacrificed to Devils and not to God, 1 Cor. 10. 20. And what the late Gentiles sacrifice, (I mean Christians in the Heathenish nature, Christians to whom the outward Court was given, Rev. 11. 2. and who have not a profession of the Saints words and practises, but without life) they sacrifice not to God neither, but to that spirit that helped them to invent, and form a likeness or Image of the truth. Transgressing the principle of God within, they go from God, and from his worship; and the Devil (who went out from the truth) gets in, and they go into his power, and whatever they perform, in worship there, is to him: for when they go from the principle of God in them, the Devil gets into their hearts, and God goes out, and his true life, power and worship is not known, but an image or likeness which the Devil sets up instead instead of the true thing. So then, in that state, let men consider what they worship: for there they cry up Ordinances and Duties, and kill one another about them, thinking that they Worship and Honour God thereby; but know not, nor are come to that wherein God alone can be Worshipped and Honoured.

I know the blasphemy of them which say they are Jews, and are not, saith the Spirit, Rev. 2. 9. Is this blasphemy? For a man to call himself a Christian, who is not, what is that? To call that a Church which is not, what is that? to call him a Minister of Christ, who is not, what is that? To call those the Ordinances of Christ which are not, what is that? To call that Faith which is not, that Justification which is not, &c. what is that? Can ye spy out the blasphemer? Ye have made a great out-cry against him long, are ye willing now he should be put to death? The Lord hath lighted his Candle, he is searching for him, and he will find him out: and as we have desired, so it shall be; the Lord will not spare him. O be awakened, be awakened, ye heathenish Christians; Open the eye that can see, and behold where ye are, and what ye are doing, and how fast ye are running into the Pit. Ye have forgotten God, ye have lost the true line of Judgement, ye have lost the key of knowledge, and the light that is in you is darkness, and leads to darkness, though ye cannot possibly believe it, Oh come back to the remembrance of God, and to true holiness, without which no man shall see him: for the Wicked shall be turned into Hell, and all the Nations that forget God, and ye have forgotten him days without number.

Position V.

That the only way of recovery out of the Apostacy, is by returning to, and keeping in that Spirit, from which the Apostacy was.

The Apostacy came by leaving the Spirit of God, and running after another Spirit: and the recovery must be, by leaving that other Spirit, and returning to the Spirit of God again. How did Christians formerly begin their Religion? They began in the Spirit, Gal. 3. 3. And so they were to go on to perfection, and not to intermix any thing of the flesh. And had the anointing been kept to, Antichrist and the mystery of Iniquity had been kept out; and where that is returned to, the Antichristian spirit is purged out by degrees, and the ways thereof discovered and forsaken. Therefore know the Whorish Spirit in thy self, which is busy to form likenesses in thy mind to seduce thee. and to make thee fall in Love with the likenesses which he hath formed in other mens minds, and let her not deceive thee with her Paint and Gaudy appearances, but know likewise the little Seal of Life from which Truth springs up in thee. And in which the spirit of truth dwells, and is to be found; and take heed least the serpentine wisdom teach thee to despise and turn from it. From this spring it was that that truth sprung up in the witnesses, all the time of the Apostacy: for they had their testimony from the spirit of Prophesy, Rev. 19. 10. So far as they kept to that, they gave a true Testimony: so far as their own spirits mixed with it, they corrupted it. But to abide in that was very hard, and there was need of much affliction and persecution to keep the flesh down, and to preserve the life pure. But as the life springs up more strongly, and overcomes that spirit inwardly, (I mean the wise, fleshly spirit) there will be less need of outward afflictions or persecutions, yea or inward either; but there will be a safe entrance into, and abiding in the joy, the rest, the peace, where the Whore within (which seduced from the life, where the power is, into some form, where the power is not,) is burnt. Learn then, and know in thy self that spirit of Prophecy, which spake in all the Martyrs. Hear that, come to that, keep to that: feel the union, the fellowship, the spreading of that in thee. When that bids thee go go: when that bids thee come, come: when that bids thee do this, do it. But the flesh is grown strong, and strongly resisteth this spirit, both inwardly and outwardly; and will not suffer him to rise up in the heart, or to rise up in the Nation: but at any time when he stirreth, and offers to speak, or lead to God; there's a reason rises up in the fleshly wisdom, that knocks him down, and denies his voice, and hearkens to another voice instead of his. Thus they first give way to the fleshly Wisdom, and suppress the truth in themselves, and then they would go forth and suppress it in others: and they think them mad, and their rage riſeth againſt them, where the truth is ſuffered to grow, and mans reaſon or fleſhly wiſdom denyed. And thus is the Lord of Glory evil intreated, and ſlain at this day by this generation of Chriſtians, as he was by the Jews ſlain formerly in the Prophets, in that his appearance in a fleſhly form, and in his Apoſtles: and his blood will be required; for the earth ſhall not always drink it up and cover it, nor the Adulterous Woman be always able to wipe her mouth, and ſay ſhe hath done no Wickedneſs. Ye have ſaved alive the Unjuſt and killed the Juſt. The Murthering Nature is alive in you, O ye Chriſtians, but the Holy One is ſlain, and lies buried in your Graves: and ye have painted your Graves and ſpeak good words of him, but ſtill keep him down, and let another riſe up and live in you, Ye cry up that appearance of Chriſt in the fleſh, and the words he then ſpake, and the words of his Apoſtles, and think that if ye had lived in thoſe days, ye would not have killed either him or his Apoſtles, and yet ye reſiſt and oppoſe the ſame life in your ſelves and in others, with ſuch a kind of wiſdom in the Letter as the Phariſees had. O what will ye do! the uncircumciſed ear is got up in you, and ye cannot hear; and the uncircumciſed heart, and ye cannot underſtand; but when this is told you, ye deſpiſe, and wonder, and go on in the periſhing ſtate. My Bowels, my Bowels, I am pained at my Bowels! O England, England, thou that killedſt the Martyrs in Queen Maries days, thou that perſecutedſt the Nonconformiſts afterwards, thou that wouldſt not ſuffer the people of God to meet together, to ſeek him with an honeſt heart, but wouldſt confine them, to thy groſs formal ways of Worſhip? Though the Lord hath appeared and broken the Horns of the Oppreſſors, yet the perſecuting ſpirit is not broken in thee, but thou ſtill hunteſt after the precious life of the ſeed, and wouldſt not let it ſpring up in the Nation. The ſpirit of enmity is ſtill up in thee, which knows not the Lord of life, but by a natural inſtinct oppoſeth him, and would fain keep up ſome Grave or other, it cares not what, ſo it might but thereby keep down the life: for thou canſt now bear with any form, and cheriſh it: and thy only enmity is againſt thoſe, who are ſent by the Lord, to gather out of all forms into the life. How often would the Lord have gathered thee, but thou wouldſt not! and yet ſeeks to gather thee, but ſtill thou wilt not; but as if the former laws, made in Queen Maries days, were not ſufficient, deſireſt new laws to enſnare and entangle the innocent! What will become of thee! or what wilt thou ſay to the Lord, when he ariſeth to plead the cauſe of the innocent? for that Spirit, which he raiſed up to witneſs againſt the Whoriſh ſpirit, (which lies hid in thy forms of Worſhip and Religion, and appears in all thy Laws, Councils and ways of Government, ſo far as they were formed, and ſo far as they are guided by the wiſdom of the fleſh) is innocent: even as that ſpirit, which witneſſed formerly againſt Popery and Epiſcopacy, was innocent before the Lord, though accuſed by them as guilty of error in it ſelf, and of diſturbance to the Publick peace, as this is now by thee.

Some Principles guiding out of the Apoſtacy to the Chriſtian Spirit and Life again.

1. THat there is no Salvation but by the true knowledge of Chriſt. The Jews had received the Ordinances of God, and knew of the Meſſiah to come, and believed it, and were very zealous in their worſhip, in obſervation of Circumciſion, the Paſſover, New moons and Sabbaths, &c. (Wherewith ſhall I come before the Lord, and bow my ſelf before the High God? and yet God complains of them by his Prophet, My people periſh for lack of Knowledge. And the ſtate is the ſame under the Anti-chriſtian Apoſtacy, wherein the Whore hath made all Nations, Kindreds, Tongues and Languages drunk with the Cup of her Fornication, the true Knowledge and Worſhip hath been loſt, though the eyes of them that have been in the Apoſtacy, and drunk with the Cup could not ſee it, no more than the Jews could in their day. But to come cloſe to the thing.

The knowledge of Chriſt is not Literal, Traditional or fleſhly; nor can it be received by the natural underſtanding: but it is ſpiritual, and the underſtanding muſt be given by God which receives it, He hath given us an underſtanding, that we may know him him that is true, 1 John 5. 20. A man may read Scriptures, hear Sermons, &c. and thereby gather a knowledge into the old understanding: but neither this understanding into which the knowledge is gathered, nor the knowledge it self which is gathered, is spiritual, but fleshly, and so cannot save. He that comes once to receive an understanding from Christ, and to have the knowledge of Christ powred forth from Christ, into his Heart, knows the difference between that, and the understanding into which he gathers things. The knowledge of Christ after the Letter, (and a faith in him answerable to such knowledge) will not save: but a man must know him in that spirit life and power wherein he lived, if he groundedly hope to be saved by him, 2 Cor. 5. 16, 17.

2. That Christ saves by the new Covenant: Not by any thing got into the mind by the oldness of the Letter, but by a life begotten which is new. There are two Covenants made mention of in Scripture, one whereof is called the old, the other the new. The old belonged to the Jews, which is done away with their Ceremonies, State, and Polity: the new, which is better then the former, Christ is the Mediator of, Heb. 8. 6. By mediating between God and the Creature, or by bringing them together in, and according to this Covenant, he saves. Man by his disunion and distance from God, he perisheth: by being brought again to God, he lives again; which thing Christ effecteth by the new Covenant; So then, he that is not led by Christ into that Covenant, is not in the state of Salvation.

3. That the new Covenant is written in the heart. or there is no other way of coming into the new Covenant, whereof Christ is High-Priest and Mediator, but by having the Laws of God written in the heart. This is the Covenant, &c. I will put my Laws into their minds, and write them in their hearts, &c. They shall not teach every man his Neighbour, and every man his Brother, saying, know the Lord: for all shall know me, from the least to the greatest, Heb. 8. 10, 11. He is speaking of the Covenant, whereof Christ is Mediator, ver. 6. which he calls a new Covenant, ver. 8. and saith it is not like the old, ver. 9 instancing in two main particulars, wherein it is very unlike. 1. The Old was writ outwardly in letters, to be read by the outward eye: but this is writ inwardly in the heart and mind, and so can only be read by a Spiritual eye. 2. Under the old they needed teaching from men, the Priests lips were to preserve Knowledge, and they were to seek the Law at his mouth; but now they should have the Law so near them, so clearly written in them, that they should need none to teach them. From the Law is the knowledge of God; the Law is in the heart; and from the Law in the heart springs up the knowledge of God in the least, and in the greatest that are within this Covenant, that they need not say, know the Lord. This is the state of the new Covenant, which the Christians came to in those days, 1 John 2. 27. But it hath been a strange thing in this dark night of Apostacy, and is yet a strange thing to many. But let such consider, can a man be a Christian, and be out of that Covenant, whereof Christ is the Mediator? Can a man be brought back again to God by Christ, and yet be out of that Covenant whereby Christ brings men back to God? O how hath Satan deluded poor Souls in this thick night of darkness, to make men believe they have Faith in Christ, and shall be saved thereby, while they are quite ignorant of, and strangers to that Covenant, whereby Christ the Mediator saves. They shall all know me, from the least to the greatest. Mark, there is not the least in this Covenant, but hath the Law so written in his heart, that he need not seek out for knowledge.

4. That the Spirit of God alone can write the Covenant in the heart, or that Christ writes the Covenant by his Spirit. Man by all his Wisdom cannot attain it. Man is driven out from God, and cannot find the way back again to him, without the teachings and leadings of God's own Spirit. It is not the being educated in any way of Religion from ones childhood, or the leaving of that, and running into any Sect afterwards, that will avail any thing hereto; but the alone hearkning to the true Voice of the true Spirit. It is written in the Prophets concerning the Children of this Covenant, that they shall be all taught of God, And all thy Children shall be taught of the Lord. It is the Lord alone, who by his Spirit teacheth them to come to Christ, and to receive the new Covenant into their hearts from Christ: For man is in an incapacity to know or receive Christ or his Covenant, until the Spirit hath fitted and taught him, John 14. 17. But when he hath prepared and fitted his heart, then with his own finger he writeth the pure Law of the Nature and Life of Christ therein, by the receit whereof he cometh out of his old dark Spirit and Nature, into the true knowledge of God, and union with him. I will put my Spirit within you, Ezek. 36. 27. This is part of the Covenant, and indeed that part whereby all the rest is wrought.

5. Therefore the first proper step in Religion, is to know how to meet with God's Spirit. There is no progress (no true progress) to be made in the true Religion, till a man comes into the Covenant: and there is no coming into the Covenant, but by the Spirit: therefore the first thing that is absolutely necessary to be known in Religion, is the Spirit, his Writing, or at least his Motions and Stirrings in the heart. It may further be evidenced thus, all things in Religion, acceptable to God, flow from the Spirit: All knowledge is to come from him; for he alone hath revealed and can reveal truth, and is appointed by Christ to lead into all truth: All Worship is to be offered up in him, they that Worship the Father, must Worship him in the Spirit, and in the truth; for the Father seeketh such to worship him, but rejecteth all other Worshippers and Worship, how glorious soever their Worship may seem to them: Particularly Praying is always to be in the Spirit, Ephes. 6. 18. Jude 20. so singing &c. yea, the whole life and conversation is to be in the Spirit, Gal. 5. 25. The mortifying of all corruption is to be done by the Spirit, If ye through the Spirit mortfie the deeds of the Body ye shall live, Rom. 8. 13. Indeed a Christian is nothing, and can do nothing without the Power and presence of the Spirit of God in him. So then, if nothing in Religion can be done (with acceptance to God) without the Spirit, then the Spirit is the first thing to be looked after, by him who would be truly and well-groundedly Religious.

6. The first way of meeting with the Spirit of God, is as a Convincer of sin. (Here is the true entrance, this is the Key that opens into life eternal; He that can receceive it, let him. It is not by soaring aloft into high imaginations and forms of Worship, but by coming down to this low thing.) This is the first and most proper work of the Spirit of God toward fallen man (whereby he makes way toward the Writing of Gods Law in the heart) namely to convince of sin. And where should man look first to meet with him, but in his first Work upon him? When Christ promised the comforter, the Spirit of truth, he said this concerning him, that he should convince the World of sin, John 16. 8. They who are created a new in Christ, and become his Disciples, receive comfort from the Spirit: But what is he to the World? Or how may they feel any operation of him? Why he is to them a convincer of sin, and they may find him checking them for, and convincing of their sins. So that the great Work for man, while he lies in the darkness (for when he is translated into light, it will be easie) is to know how to distinguish the movings and stirrings of the Spirit of God: And this is the best way for man in this state to know them by. That which discovers that which is evil, that is good: that which discovers that which is spiritually evil, that must needs be spiritually good: for evil is darkness and cannot make it self manifest. That which discovers that which is undoubtedly pure, and inclines to it, that must needs be of God. Now to know this, and be joyned unto it, is a joyning of the Creature unto God, by somewhat of him that comes from his Spirit, and so is a true beginning of Life eternal.

That whereby the Spirit of God convinceth of sin, is his Light shining in the Conscience. Fallen man is darkness; The light shines in the darkness, and shews man the evil which otherwise would lie covered in him. Man fell from God, lost the Image of God, and became wholly darkness: but the Spirit of God is light, and shines in the darkness, and strives with man to reduce him back again to that light from which he fell. God who commanded the light to shine out of darkness, hath shined in our hearts to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God, &c, 2 Cor. 4. 6. Where did the Apostles, and Christians in those days, meet with the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in Christ? God shined it in their heart. He that made the light to shine out of the dark deep, Gen. 1. 2. By his Spirit, he by the same Spirit made the light of the knowledge of life shine in their dark hearts? and there it is also that the Work of conviction is wrought by the same Spirit. He that perfects the good Work in the heart, the same is he that begins it there; and his beginning is, by reproving and convincing of sin, and so turning the heart from it unto God, and unto the Obedience of that Righteousness which he makes manifest. And he that meeteth not with the Spirit in the beginning of his work, or ſlinketh back, and goeth not on with him, but ſmothereth his reproofs, not forbearing that, or parting with that, for which he is reproved, is never like to meet with him in the end. And then it will be too late for him to blame that Religion wherein there was only a dead form, but not the living power of God. He that will come to life eternal, muſt be tranſlated out of his dead underſtanding, and all his dead ways and worſhips, (which pleaſe that underſtanding) into a living principle, and keep in that principle, and then he ſhall know life indeed, and the true food of that life, and the true Worſhip and Service from that life, and the reward belonging to all.

8. That this light convincing of Sin, ſhineth in every Conſcience. He hath ſhewed thee, O man, what is good, Micah 6. 8. The Life, which was in Chriſt, was the Light of men, Joh. 1. 4. Chriſt is the Light of the World, Joh. 8. 12. God as he loved the World, ſo he manifeſted his love to the World, by ſending his Light into it to enlighten every man that cometh into the World, that with the Light they may ſee his Son, and as many as receive him, to them he gives power to become the Sons of God. As God would have all men to be ſaved, and come to the knowledge of the Truth: So he hath given that light to all, which may bring to the knowledge of the Truth which ſayeth: He is the true light, which enlighteneth every man that cometh into the World, John 1. 9. The Grace of God, which bringeth Salvation, hath appeared to all men, &c. As the enemy got poſſeſſion of every mans heart, by filling it with darkneſs: ſo Chriſt purſueth, and ſeeketh to diſpoſſeſs the enemy, by the Light which he ſendeth after him into every man. And this is the condemnation of man, not that he wants a Light to witneſs againſt, and draw him from the enemy: but that he loves the enemy, and chuſeth to be one with the enemy; but hates Light, and turns from it, Joh. 3. 10. 20. He hearkens to the reaſonings of his mind againſt the Light, and ſo ſmothers and choaks it; but does not turn to the light, to have all the reaſonings of his mind ſubdued by it, and ſubjected to it.

9. The true way to life eternal, is by believing in the Light of the Spirit, which ſhineth in the Conſcience. Man is in darkneſs, which keeps him in death: and there is no way to come out of the death, but by coming out of the darkneſs: and there is no way to come out of the darkneſs, but by following that light which diſcovers it, and calls forth from it: And he that doth follow that, cannot remain in the darkneſs, but muſt needs come out. There is an evil principle in man, calling for evil; and there is a good principle, calling from the evil to the good: Now he that follows the good, cannot follow the evil, but departs from it. I am the light of the World (ſaith Chriſt,) he that followeth me, ſhall not walk in darkneſs, but ſhall have the light of life, Joh. 8. 12. But this is that which undoes man, he loves the darkneſs, he loves the world, the courſe of the world, the worſhips of the world; He loves his own underſtanding, and his own will, and ſo hates that light which croſſeth theſe, and which would teach him (by the denial of them) to crucify that nature from whence they ſpring, and to which they are ſutable. And from hence it comes to paſs, (the love to ſin within being ſtrong; and Satan, the ſtrong man, keeping the houſe,) that the motions of Gods ſpirit are eaſily overborn, either by reaſonings of the underſtanding, or by perverſeneſs of the will: But if man durſt truſt himſelf to them, he would quickly find of what nature they were, by the ſtrong oppoſition of the ſtrong man againſt them. It is indeed a ſtrait and narrow way, into which no fleſh can enter and walk. And yet it is the only way: for there is no life in God, no peace with God while the enemy lives in the heart. But when the light is received and turned to, then the power begins to work, which ſlays the enemy in the Heart, and that being done, there is no more War, but Peace. Then the true peace, which paſſeth underſtanding, fills and refreſhes the heart; whereas the peace which was in the ſoul before, was but the peace of the enemy, and will abide no longer than the enemy is ſuffered to keep poſſeſſion quietly.

10. That believing in the light of the Spirit, which ſhines in the Conſcience, unites the ſoul to God, and opens the ſprings of life to it. Belief in darkneſs (which is unbelief towards God) diſunited the ſoul, and cloſed up the ſprings of life from it; belief in the light, which is ſent to lead from the darkneſs, unites again, and opens the ſprings again. God is light, he dwels in the light, and there enjoys the fulneſs of life: and he gives a meaſure of his own light to draw from the darkneſs; and he who believes and follows this, is led by it unto God from whom it came: and being come out of the darkness unto him, he begins again to feel the springs of life (the fresh springs of life) which are in him. He that believeth, is come to the Well of Salvation, and draws living water out of it, and drinks of the living water continually, so that he can Thirst no more; yea, out of his Belly flow Rivers of living water. This is the fruit of the true faith, but this is not the fruit of the faith of the Apostacy, but there the soul remains still disunited to God, and united to the darkness, and drinks not of the living streams, but drinks dead water: the fountain of pure life is not open to it, but the fountain of iniquity: and that blood which cleanseth, and taketh away the sin, is not known. There is only a Dream of these things in the dark night of Apostacy, by which Dream the conscience is a little quieted for the present; but when the witness awakes, and the light of the day shines, the Soul (which is lean) will find it self in the hands of the enemy, in the bonds of sin, and feel that it never knew that power that could redeem it, but the subtil Serpent deceived it with a name in stead of the thing.

This is the true way, the narrow way (I can in the presence of the living God, set my seal to the truth of it) which it hath pleased God to discover, and make manifest again, after the long, dark night of Apostacy. And we come not to it, by hearing or receiving any new Notions or apprehensions of things, but by feeling that which puts an end to all Creaturely notions and apprehensions: and we grow in it, by the increase of that thing in us. The seed to which the promise was made, the seed which was before Abraham was, is felt, and his day is seen and rejoyced in, and by the light thereof the darkness is discovered, and the Kingdom of Darkness is assaulted. And as it daily falls, in many particulars, so it shall at length fall in the general, and the Kingdoms of this World shall become the Kingdoms of the Lord and of his Christ, and he shall reign upon the earth, where Sin and Antichrist have long Reigned, and kept him down. And though there be a great rage and out-cry among the people and Heathenish professors, yet the Decree is gone forth, and Sions King shall reign in the Holy Hill of Sion, and the Hills and Mountains shall melt before him, and the earth shall shake round about him.

Therefore gather your selves together, muster up your strong forces, O ye several sorts of carnal Professors. Let all your differences one against another fall, and joyn together against him who is against you all: improve the Serpents Wisdom, and form Arguments out of the Scripture thereby, with the utmost skill and understanding of flesh; get the Kings, Rulers, and Magistrates of the earth on your side too, handle all the Weapons of the flesh, skilfully; Dispute, Reproach, Revile, Whip, Stock, Imprison, Starve, nay put to Death. See if you can uphold your Kingdom: for there is a mighty one come forth against you, who will take the Vineyard, the Kingdom, the Inheritance from you, and give it to another; and on you shall come that Death and Darkness, that Misery and Destruction which ye have put far from you, and slighted as the portion of others. Therefore consider your condition in the fear of the Lord: and if ye feel not your selves able to fight it out, make your Peace betimes, and let your greatest Crowns (your choisest wisdom and strength in the flesh) be laid down at the feet of Christ, at the lowest appearance of his light in the Conscience. Let not the least check of his spirit be slighted there, but esteemed above the highest notions of Light that ye have gathered in, or can gather with your fleshly understandings. And indeed it is no less than its due: for this which runs fresh from the Spirit is more living in its self, and more proper to that mans present estate to whom it comes, then whatever he himself by his understanding can gather from the Letter.

There hath been a precious seed of God long stirring in this Nation, but it hath been oppressed, and kept in bondage by the spirit of Pharaoh and his wise Egyptians, who would subject it to their Laws and Worships, and not let Israel go out of Egypt at Gods call to Worship him in Spirit and Truth, but would keep him in forms and ways of mans invention. The Lord hath poured out his Plagues upon this spirit, and more and more wrought out the liberty of his people; but as the Plagues cease, this spirit hardens it self, and assays the reducing of Israel into bondage again. And as Pharaoh renews the bondage of Israel, so God renews the Plagues on Pharaoh and his Egyptian ans. Pharoah hath a ſtubborn will, and a great Wiſdom and Power, and is loth to let Iſrael go; but the Lord alſo is wiſe and ſtrong, and hath a will more righteous then Pharoahs, and by his Wiſdom and ſtrength will he effect his Will, and Pharoahs ſhall not ſtand.

Who is ſuch a ſtranger in Iſrael, that hath not obſerved, that as God began to raiſe up the Seed in this Nation, and call it into liberty, ſo the Spirit of the wiſe Egyptians roſe up againſt it, exclaiming of error, Hereſay, Blaſphemy, new waies, new Lights, &c. And doubtleſs many tares have ſprung up, but the aim of the enemy was not ſo much to pluck up theſe tares, as to deſtroy the one good ſeed of Wheat. Herod did not aim at killing all the Infants in Bethlehem, but he would rather kill them all, then have Chriſt live. What preaching on the one hand? What running to the Magiſtrate on the other hand? And all to deſtroy this young babe. When any different way of Worſhip did appear, as of Independancy, Anabaptiſm, or of ſeeking and waiting for the truth; how did they make an Head againſt them, and cry out againſt them, for fear the young child ſhould be born and appear there? And now they ſee their own image brought forth there, they are at peace with them: and having diſcovered that, where no part of the Image or mark can be received, but there is another nature in life and truth brought forth, and no form without life will down? Now they knew where to ſhoot all their darts, now they knevv againſt vvhom to invent, and ſpeak all manner of evil, and againſt vvhom to direct all their envy, rage and out-cryes, and to prepoſſeſs all ſorts of perſons every vvhere, vvith all manner of prejudices, that the truth may not ſpread any vvhere, but be oppoſed every vvhere. And all perſons minds there, are ſo filled before hand vvith the venome of the Serpent, that truth cannot come any vvhere, but it finds the enmity already ſtirred up, and prepared to vvithſtand it.

This is a new way, a new Light ſaies one: we knew a Religion before this came up, and we will keep to that, let who will run after theſe new ſects and ways. A natural light, the old light of nature, ſaith another, or the corrupted Light of Adam which hath run along through all his poſterity. Another out-cry is, that it makes the Scriptures void and uſeleſs. Others cry out that it teacheth things contrary to the Scriptures, that it ſets up Free-Will, that it leads to a Covenant of Works, that it breaks down Relations, Laws, Governments, takes away due reſpect from Magiſtracy and Superiours, and turns the World upſide down. Thus the Worldly Spirit is every where up in Arms, and a Zeal kindled every where, to keep it out of every Heart, and out of every Place and Country.

Now theſe are not real things, but ſuch kind of ſlanders and reproaches, as always have attended Truth. The Prophets of God, Chriſt, and his Apoſtles, though they have been ſpoken well of afterwards, yet they have ever been hated, ſpoken ill of, and perſecuted by the generation of profeſſors of their age. The Scribes and Phariſees could not with ſo great advantage have perſecuted Chriſt and his Apoſtles, without a ſeeming zeal for the Law and Prophets: and yet it was the ſame ſpirit that ſo vehemently cryed up the Law, the Prophets, the Ordinances of Moſes, that perſecuted the ſpirit and life in Chriſt and his Apoſtles, from whence the Law, the Prophets, and Ordinances came. And thus it is at this day, though that Spirit is as blind now as it was then, and cannot ſee through its own cover, though it be as weak and narrow as theirs was. The guilty chargeth the innocent, that it might hide its own guilt, and keep its covering: The guilty Jews, and the guilty Scribes and Phariſees, charged the Prophets, Chriſt and his Apoſtles, that they might not be found guilty by them, and their formal covering rent from them. And thus it is at this day, Truth is riſen to make manifeſt mens falſe coverings, and the Guilt and Hypocriſy that lies hid underneath: now to ſave themſelves, they are prepared before-hand to lay that charge againſt Truth, which Truth hath againſt them.

Search thine heart, reſiſt not the light, thou that haſt charged the truth with any of theſe things, and thou wilt find it thine own condition, the Truth is no new light or new way; and they that hold it forth, do not hold forth any new way, or new light: but it is thou that haſt left the good old light, the good old way which was before the Apoſtacy, and haſt fallen in with ſome new light, ſome new way invented and ſet up ſince the Apoſtacy: It is thou again that ſetteſt up the natural light, the fallen wiſdom, dom, the wisdom which is out of the life, and in enmity with the life; with this thou feedest that understanding which is to be brought to nought: and when thou hast done this thy self, then thou calleſt the spiritual light, wherewith God hath pursued it in all ages, a natural light. It is thou, that with this wisdom searching into the Scriptures, and gathering the oldness of the Letter into the old understanding, makest the Scriptures void and useless to thy Soul, and canst not meet with that life and power which they speak of, but still art alive in thy Sins, and dead unto God: and then thou cryest out against that which comes to discover this to thee, and to bring thee out of this dead knowledge into the life of the Scriptures, thou cryest out against this, as if this made the Scriptures useless. And when thou hast set up a whole body of Knowledge, Religion and Worship quite contrary to the Scriptures, which the Truth comes to make manifest, then Cains nature riseth up in thee, and thou takest up Cains Weapons, and fain wouldst thou kill thy Brother, because his Sacrifice in the Faith testifies against thine, which is out of the Faith, and contrary to the true Testimony of the Scriptures. Again, for Free-will and a Covenant of works, Thou hast set up a Religion in the old Will and Works, not according to the new Covenant of life, but according to the old Covenant of Death: and by this thou Preacheſt that Will to be free, which is in bonds, and setteſt up the Works of mans righteousness, and conformity to the Letter, for the Works of the New Covenant. And for Governments and Laws, That which is according to God, which is a terror to the evil, and a praise to them that do well, that which is liberty to the just, and a curb to the unjust; this thou art against, and cryest out daily for the turning of the Magistrates Sword against the innocent, because they are a Light to discover thy deeds of Darkness (which be out of the Light) and disturb thy peace and thy settlement in that which is fleshly, and of man, and not of God. So for relations, and honour to Magistrates, the Transgressing nature hath brought up a wrong thing, a fleshly thing, an honour, a duty which is of the flesh, and pleaseth the flesh, and is not according to God. And this is not Honour indeed, not an Honour that will stand, not an Honour that will be justified in the sight of God, but it is a shame to them that give it, and a shame to them that receive it, discovering that they are Servants to the flesh, giving to, and receiving from the fleshly part, that which the fleshly part (which Crucifies the Life) calls for, and is pleased with.

All that the Light doth to these things, is to discover and condemn them: and the end of its discovery, is, that they might be removed, and truth and Righteousness brought in the stead of them. But Mans evil Heart, which is the cause of them, cries out against the Light, as if the Light brought them; whereas if Men could be quiet and still, and suffer the work of the Light upon him, he would find that the same Light which discovereth them, would also purge them away, and leave neither Root nor Branch of Iniquity either in Mens Hearts, or in Relations, or Families, or Towns, or Cities, or Laws, or Governments; and there would be no want of Honour. Now though the Serpents wisdom is irreconcilable, and that understanding which stands there cannot be satisfied, but must be confounded and brought to nought, 1 Cor. 1. 19. Yet because underneath all this, there is a simplicity in some which is betrayed; for the relief of that, somewhat further may be spoken in answer to these things.

Object. 1. To the first Objection, that this is a new way, or new Light, I answer.

Answ. It is new indeed to them who have lain long in the Apostacy, and set up another Light, but it is not new in it self, but the same that was in the beginning, yea and before the beginning also. Christ was the same yesterday, to day, and for ever; and the Light that comes from him is like him, that also is the same yesterday, to day, and for ever. It was the same under the Law, the same before the Law the same since the Law. As the darkness all along hath been the same: so the Light all along hath been the same also. It was the same in the Jews, and the same in the Gentiles. It was this God expected obedience to from the Jews, and the Prophet (in the name of the Lord) disdains their sacrifices, and brings them to this, Micah 6. 8. He hath shewed thee, O Man, what is good, and what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?. Their Eye was upon sacrifices and Oyl; the Prophet points them to that which would bring them to the right sacrifice, and to the true Oyl. And the Gentiles, ſo far as they were obedient to this, were accepted, and excuſed in their own conſciences, the faithful witneſs whereof is of God, and will ſtand in the day of Chriſt, Rom. 2. 15. 16. That which was from the beginning, ſaith the Apoſtle John, declare we unto you, 1 Joh. 1. 1. And this is the meſſage which we have heard of him, and declare unto you, that God is Light, and in him is no Darkneſs at all, ver. 5. And the end of Preaching this Meſſage, is to draw out of the darkneſs into the light: to bring men to the feeling of the light of God in them, and ſo to union with it; which being turned to, draws out of the darkneſs. God who is light, is nigh to every man who is darkneſs, though mans ſenſe is very thick, and can hardly ſee or feel him: and a light from him ſhines in mans darkneſs, but mans darkneſs comprehends it not. So that this light is not new in it ſelf, but only new to the old Spirit, which hath long lain hid in the Region of darkneſs and death, and hath not known the Light of Life.

Anſw. It is in one ſenſe a natural Light, it is of the nature of him from whom it comes, of the nature of God and of his Chriſt, whom it appears for: but it is not of the nature of corrupt Adam, whom it always reproved, and againſt whom it ſtill ſtands a witneſs, and condemns all corruption. Man is darkneſs, and when Chriſt comes to redeem him, he finds him darkneſs: and Chriſt finds no light in him to help him to diſcover ſin to him, but all the diſcoveries of ſin that are made in the heart, are by the Light of Chriſt, and not by any light of mans nature. The Lord is the ſearcher of the heart, and he ſearcheth it with his own Candle, and not with any left in mans nature. Man fell into darkneſs, and knew not where he was, but the Lord commeth after him with his Candle, and diſcovereth his State to him. It is the light from which man fell, and againſt which he ſins, that is alone able to make his diſobedience manifeſt to him. We know (ſaith the Apoſtle) that the Law is Spiritual, but I am carnal, Rom. 7. 14. The Law is the loweſt part of the Light, and yet that is Spiritual, and of Chriſt's nature, and not of Adam's nature; we know it, ſaith the Apoſtle. Such as know the nature of that which manifeſts ſin, know it to be Spiritual. It is the fallen man from the light, the man in the darkneſs, that calls the light darkneſs: but that which diſcovers the darkneſs, and reproves the darkneſs, and wars againſt the darkneſs, is not darkneſs, but the light of Life. And thoſe who are Spiritual, and feel the nature and power of it in their Spirits, know it to be ſo. But man hath ſet up a Light of his own, hath raiſed up a light by his ſtudy and invention, in the ſtrength of the fallen Wiſdom: and now ſetting up this for light, he muſt needs call the true light darkneſs, as the Phariſees did Chriſt.

Object. 3. That it makes the Scriptures void and uſeleſs.

Anſw. It came from the Spirit that gave forth the Scriptures, it is of the ſame nature with the Light that ſhone in them that gave forth Scriptures, it ſpeaks the ſame thing with Scriptures, it leads to the ſame thing, and it opens and witneſſes to the Words which the Scriptures ſpeak; and ſo it brings the Scriptures, which have been long abuſed, into their true uſe. Indeed it puts an end to the corrupt uſe of Scriptures, to mans inventing and forming things out of them, but brings them into their true uſe and ſervice. It takes the Scriptures out of mans hand, who hath ſlain the Life by them, and puts them into the hands of the Spirit, who makes the Words again pure, and quick, and living, purging away mans defiled and dead conceivings and interpretations of them.

A man muſt know the Spirit, come to the Spirit, be joyned to, and be in union with the Spirit, before he can have the true underſtanding of the Scriptures. The Scriptures of Truth, are the Words of God, or various expreſſions of his mind, which he that ſearcheth into, afore he hath his Spirit, cannot know: and ſo man in this ſtate, can only gueſs and imagine at things, but cannot ſee the truth. And from hence it is, that ſo many ſects and heaps are ſprung up in the World, according to the variety of their imaginations. One ſort of men cry this is the Way, this is the Truth, this is the Church, this is the Worſhip: Another ſort cry, that is not it, that is ſuperſtition and error, but this is it: and ſo a third and fourth, &c. So about Scriptures, one ſaith this is the meaning; another ſaith it is not ſo, but this is the meaning. The Papiſts ſay, the Church muſt judg of the meaning of Scriptures; and the Proteſtants who take more scope, how do they doubt and differ, and oppose one another, about the interpretation of Scriptures? which plainly shews, that they do not plow with the right Heifer, for then there would be unity and certainty. They let their own reasonings and imaginations loose, and there is no foundation of certainty: but had they waited for the Spirit to begin with, and gone on no farther then he opened to them, all these doubts and dissentions would have been choaked in the Birth, or Womb, or not have come so far as either Birth or Womb. Yet do I not altogether deny the reading of Scriptures, even in this State, if men read with fear and trembling, not setting up his own understanding, or the understanding of any man else, but waiting for the Spirit, which can alone give him an understanding to receive the true knowledge, But this I dare boldly affirm, that mens reading of the Scriptures in their own Wisdom and self-confidence (or confidence of what interpretation others have given) doth them no good at all, but much harm, tending to the building up of that which God will again destroy. But he that begins with the Spirit of God, giving himself up to that Light which comes from him, comes to true union with God, and to the feeling of his life, and so to a true growth, and knowledge of the Spirit of God, whereby he comes to know and understand the Scriptures, which came from the same Spirit; and hereby also, he comes to be able to measure the deceit of his own Spirit, which formerly led him aside, and also to see and measure the Spirits of deceivers. But he that is in the deceit, in the imagination, out of the true knowledge, he cannot know the deceit of his own Spirit, or the Spirits of deceivers, but calls the truth deceit, and the deceit truth.

Object. 4. That this light teaches things contrary to the Scriptures.

Answ. That Light which comes from the same Spirit which the Scriptures came from, cannot teach things contrary to the Scriptures. But man, who hath took the tools of his understanding, and formed Images and Likenesses out of the Scriptures, (I mean invented meanings and senses, and judged these agreeable to the Scriptures: he must needs judge that which is contrary to these, as contrary to the Scriptures: whereas the truth is one in it self, and agreeth with whatsoever is true in this age, or in former ages; and differs only from that which is not true. And we know that there is that true unity with that Spirit from which the Scriptures came, and with the Scriptures, and with one another, in that light which the Wisdom of man cannot but despise, as hath not been in any age since the Apostacy till now.

Object. 5. That this sets up free-will. When persons are exhorted to embrace the light, to let in the light, and told that condemnation comes for not believing or receiving the light: then they cry out, can man believe? can man receive the light? hath man free-will?

Answ. The Will of man is bound; but there is Liberty, Power, and Freedom in the Light which visits man, and comes to unbind and save him. And man feels this Power, tasts of this Liberty, feels somewhat disengaging him from the evil, and drawing him from it: but, he being in love with the evil, draws back from the drawing, shutting his ears against the Wisdom of the Light, and opening his ears to the reasonings of the Serpent; and then the liberty and power, which was in the light, withdraws with the light, and the bonds are strengthened upon him; And this is the condemnation, not that there was a want of power from God, but that he chose the power of the enemy, not loving the light, wherein the Power of life lay. God knows the state of man in the fall, and knows the strength of the enemy; and the Saviour that he sends hath sufficient Power against him, and the light that the Saviour sends is stronger then the darkness, and can overcome the darkness, and cannot be overcome by the darkness; And if thou joyn with the darkness, and wilt not yield to the drawings of the Father, but yield up thy self to the drawings and reasonings of the darkness; yet the strength of the light remains in it self: and though for the present, thou hast struck it down and slain it, yet it will rise up a strong and living Witness against thee, and the darkness to which thou hast joyned. When a man goes from the light, he goes into the Will voluntarily; then take and choose in the flesh. When a man follows the light, the Will of the flesh dyeth in him, another Will riseth up, and chooseth for him, there is the true liberty.

But as for your speaking of free-will, ye do not know what ye speak of; for the Will, (with the freedom of it) either stands in the Image and Power of him that made it, or in a contrary Image and power. While it is in the Image and power of him that made it, it is free unto good, and not to evil; while it is in the Image and power of him who corrupted it, it is free unto evil, and not to good. The will is not of it self, but ſtands in another, and is ſervant to that in whom it ſtands, and there its freedom is bound and comprehended, For there is no middle ſtate between both, wherein the will ſtands of it ſelf, and is free to both equally; but it is a ſervant, and under the command of one of theſe powers. If it be under the command of ſin, of the power of darkneſs, it is free from righteouſneſs; and if it be under the Command and power of righteouſneſs, it is free from ſin; but ſuch a free will, as men commonly ſpeak of, is meer imagination, and hath no foundation in the true ſtate of things.

And this may anſwer another Objection, which lies as a great block in the way of many, who feel a conviction, but are withheld from obedience, under a pretence of wanting power: whereas the power lies in that Light which convinceth, and is received in the obedience, and in the Croſs. As the power of the enemy creeps in, in hearkning to him: So the power of truth is received in harkning to, and receiving the reproofs of truth. That which checks the evil, that which ſtands againſt the minde, ſmiting it in its courſe of vanity and pleaſure in the fallen ſtate; in that is the power. That comes from the power, goes forth in the power, and the power is in it, and cannot be ſevered from it. So he that lets that in, lets in the power; and he that ſhuts that out, ſhuts out the power. And in this ſtate, a man may complain all his dayes for want of power, and not meet with it: for how can he, when he refuſes it in the way wherein the power ſeeks him, and waits for it in a way wherein it is not to be found? The appearance of the power at firſt is ſmall, and contemptable to the Eye of the fleſhly wiſdom; and it is not received in any ſuch great overpowring way (though that alſo is known afterward) as man is apt to expect; but all lies in one little ſeed, where the day of ſmall things is known: The Light, the Life, the Power, the Purity, the Wiſdom, &c. Lies hid there: and in receiving that little thing, all is received: and in the growth of that, all grows up. But by being Tempted by the Enemy to neglect this, and wait for ſome great power and apperance of God, the Soul is held in the bonds of Iniquity, and kept from the life as ſtrongly, as by the groſſeſt form.

Object. 6. That this ſets up a Covenant of works: for a man is bid to do, bid to obey the Light: and when he does, when he obeys, he has peace; and when he obeys not, he has not peace.

Anſw. This ſets not up the Works of the Law, but it leads through the Works of the Law, to the righteouſneſs of Faith. When the Commandement came, ſin revived, and I dyed, Rom. 7. The Apoſtle was Alive in his Worſhip and Jewiſh ſtate, till the Law came: but when the Law came, it ſlew that life that he had there, and he became Dead, both to that Life by which he lived before, and to the Law that ſlew him, and then there aroſe up a Life in him which anſwerd the Law, and could fulfil it, and lead to a righteouſneſs beyond it: and then his Life and righteouſneſs were not any works of the Law, but of Faith, and in the Faith, Gal. 2. 19, 20. But yet there is no paſſing to this, but through the adminiſtration of the Law in the Heart, in the hand of the Mediatour. And when the life is riſen and received, yet even then there is no peace but in the obedience to the Life. The peace lives in that which brings the peace; and if there be a departing from that, there is a departing from the peace. Any fleſhly thought, any fleſhly motion, as it is out of the Life, ſo it is out of the peace; and the minde joyning to it, feels the death and trouble of it. Thus ſaid the Apoſtle, Gal. 6. 15, 16. Neither circumciſion nor uncircumciſion availeth, but a new creature: and as many as walk according to this rule, peace be on them. The peace comes to the new creature, and to man walking according to the rule of the new creature: and the condemnation is not to them, that walk not after the fleſh, but after the Spirit, Rom. 8. 1: But if there be an hearkning to the fleſh, and a fulfilling the unrighteouſneſs there of in any thing, God is righteous, and he cannot ſpeak peace to the wicked, or to him that joyns with the wicked. Therefore where there is true peace, there muſt be a coming from the Wicked nature, and a living out of the Wicked nature in him who is the Life, the righteouſneſs, the peace. I know there have been curious fabricks in Mens minds about the Covenant of Grace, but they have not known the nature of it and of the works that flow from it, and ſo are apt to call the works of the new Life, ſpringing from the Covenant of Life, the works of the old Covenant. But Wiſdom is juſtified of her Children, and they know her Birth; and in the true Light the true nature of things is ſeen, and the true name and deſcription given, which he that is out of the Light cannot receive, but ſtumbles at: and the wiſer he is, in his own deviſed way and knowledge of things, the more ſtumbling blocks he has, and the more he ſtumbles.

Object. 7. And laſt. That it breaks down relations, Laws, Governments, takes away due reſpect from Magiſtracy and ſuperiours, and turns the World upſide down.

Anſw. Iniquity hath reigned, unrighteouſneſs hath winded it ſelf into, and twiſted about every thing. And now the truth comes to diſcover and purge out the Iniquity, the ſtrong man, who hither to hath kept poſſeſſion of the houſe, cries out as if the deſtruction of the thing were aimed at. Nay, it is onely the evil that is aimed at, but the thing it ſelf is not to be deſtroyed but to be ſet free from the evil, and preſerved. Relations are good, Laws are good, Governments are good, of God; but the unrighteouſneſs of fleſh, the pleaſing of the fleſh by the pretence of theſe, the giving liberty to the unjuſt, this is not good. And is it not in Relations, in Government, in the execution of Lavvs? If a Man vvill be fleſhly, and vvalk in them according to the fleſh, the Lavv takes not hold of him, his Relations are not offended at him; but if he come once to feel the power of God, and withdraw from the evil, and ſtand a witneſs for God againſt it; then Relations, and Powers of the Earth, and Laws, all ſtrike at him: and the reaſon is, becauſe they are in union with the evil, and ſo cannot bear the rendring of the evil from the thing. And from hence it is, that wherever the Goſpel comes in power, it kindles a flame round about, ſetting Father againſt Son, and Son againſt Father, Husband againſt Wife, and Wife againſt Husband, &c. Yea, it goes cloſer then ſo, it ſets one part in Man againſt another: and the fight is very bitter and ſharp, till one of theſe be ſubdued, and then there is peace: fleſhly peace, if the wiſe fleſhly part prevail, Spiritual peace, if the weak fooliſh thing (to the World) in the heart, which is of God, prevail.

And for honour to Magiſtrates and Superiours, it is not denied: but fleſhly Honour, corrupt Honour, Honour from the fleſhly part, and to the fleſhly part, this cannot but be denied by them which are of God. That which is born of God is not of this World, nor can it give Honour to that which is of this World; but it honours all men in the Lord. What ever is of God in Magiſtracy, it honours what ever is in ſuperiority according to God (as a Father, an Husband, a Maſter is) it Honours with true honour. Chriſt, the onely begotten of God, could not receive honour of men, nor could he give honour to men: and he ſaith to the Jews, how can ye believe which receive honour one of another, and ſeek not the honour that cometh from God onely? The receiving of honour from Man, cannot ſtand with the true Faith (when ye know the Faith, ye will know it:) He that reſpecteth perſons, committeth ſin; and is a tranſgreſſor againſt the Law of Faith, which leads to the life, which ſtands in God, out of the Worlds honours, Worſhips, Cuſtoms; and whatever elſe which is not of Faith, but of the World. Mordecai did not bow to Haman, nay he ſate in the Kings gate, where Haman was to paſs, and yet did not ſtand up, move, or bow to him: what an affront was this to that high, proud, lofty Spirit? And yet it was of the Lord. This was a type (as the Jewiſh ſtate in general was typical) of what God would do in the World, and is now doing. The Lord hath raiſed up Mordecais nature, and he hath diſcovered Hamans nature, and hath given the command to Mordecai, that he ſhould not bow to Haman. And if ye could ſearch your hearts, ye would finde, that it is not that of God in you, which is offended for want of that which ye call Honour, but the Hamaniſh Spirit, the fleſhly pride and loftineſs, which the Lord will lay low, and he alone will be exalted in this day of his mighty power, and man ſhall only be honoured as he comes from him, and as he is found in him: but the honour which the fleſhly part hath fought, and gained in the tranſgreſſion, ſhall fall with the tranſgreſſor, whom the Lord hath furbiſhed his Sword to ſmite.

And for turning the World upſide down, it is acknowledged: the power of the Lord is come forth to do it. That which is high, that which is wiſe, that which is ſtrong, that which is rich, that which is full, that which is fat; the Lord will lay low, make fooliſh, Fooliſh; Weak, Poor, Empty, Lean; for it lies in Wickedneſs. He will feed the Fat and Strong Cattle with that judgment, which ſhall make them Lean and Weak: And the Humble, the Fooliſh, the Weak, the Poor, the Empty, the Lean he will raiſe up, and make Wiſe, and Strong, and Rich, and Full, and Fat with the true Honour, the the true Wiſdom, the true Strength, the true Riches, the ſure and living Mercies of David, who ſets his feet on top of the High places of the Earth, of whom Chriſt came according to the Fleſh.

Thus I have in plainneſs of heart, and with plainneſs of Speech, ſet the truth and the error before you, and lent my hand toward the removing of ſome Blocks which lay in your way, in love and pitty to your Souls. Now if any, in the reading of this, feel a ſecret touch upon their hearts, ſtartling them, and giving ſome teſtimony to the truth, though very ſmall, and through a thick dark covering: there is that to which I ſpeak, there is my witneſs within the vail, and there is the teſtimoy riſing up which leads to life, if given heed to, Keep to this, and this will prick and wound, judge and condemn the contrary nature, though never ſo ſtrong. And when it doth prick and wound, keep the wound freſh and open, as thou loveſt thy life, till thou meet with the true healer. For the falſe Prophet will riſe up in thee, and fill thee with reaſonings, and perhaps multitudes of promiſes and comforts from Scripture, skinning over the wound, and crying Peace, Peace, when there is no Peace. And when thou haſt thus got over the trouble, then the falſe Prophet which brought thee this Peace, will ſtir thee up againſt the witneſs, exalting the Wiſdom and reaſonings of the fleſh, and making merry with thee over the witneſs, which witneſſed againſt thee and him, and over the trouble which came thereby: and this will bring thee to that hardneſs of heart, which is for deſtruction. And then, when thou haſt ſlain the witneſs in thy ſelf, and exalted thy fleſhly reaſon and underſtanding over it, then the falſe Prophet which ſeduced thee will kindle a Zeal in thee, againſt the witneſs in others, and thou wilt prove a perſecutor of the life, under the name of Deceit, Error, Hereſie, and Blaſphemy, whereas thou thy ſelf art fallen into the Deceit, into the Error from the life, and into the Blaſphemy againſt it, and art in Cain's nature, and wouldſt fain be handling of Cain's Weapons, to deſtroy it.

Therefore take heed of the fleſhly Wiſdom, take heed of thine own Unedrſtanding, take heed of thy Reaſoning or Diſputing, for theſe are the Weapons wherewith the witneſs is ſlain. That Wiſdom muſt be deſtroyed, and that Underſtanding brought to nought, and thou become a Child, and learn as a Child, if ever thou know the things of God. Where is the Wiſe? Where is the Scribe? Where is the Diſputer of this World? Did they ever from the beginning of the World to this day, attain the knowledge of the things of God? Where are the Councels? Where are the great Convocations? Where are the Synods? Where are the Aſſemblies of Divines? What is become of them all? What have they done? Have they been ever able to lead out of the Apoſtacy from the truth, into the truth again? Nay, that Wiſdom is curſed; it is of the earth, and fixed in the earth, and is the grand enemy to the Wiſdom that is from above. And where that Wiſdom ſtands, there is no entrance for the other. This made it ſo hard, for this ſort of perſons, in all ages, to own truth, Thy Wiſdom and thy Knowledge, it hath perverted thee. This made the Whoriſh Spirit ſo able to uſe Sorceries, and Inchantments from the life in all ages. And it is eaſier for Publicans, Harlots, Drunkards, Swearers, all ſorts of ſinners to own truth, and enter into life, then for theſe. For it is eaſier to empty them of their profaneneſs, then it is to empty theſe of their ſetled conceited Religion and Devotion: and yet theſe with their Religion and Devotion cannot enter, no more then the other with their profaneneſs. Ye have a Knowledge, a Righteouſneſs, an Hope, a Faith, &c. Founded by your pretence to Scriptures, who can ſhake down theſe, ſay you? and yet theſe muſt fall, before ye can build upon, and grow up in the life that the Scriptures came from: For the Scriptures were not given for men to gather out of, and lay a foundation of Faith there, by their own Wills: but to diſcover and teſtifie of the Foundation. And he that comes thither, and is built there, knows the truth, not becauſe the Scriptures ſay ſo, but becauſe he feels the thing, is founded upon the thing, grows up in the thing, and the thing in him whereof the Scripture ſpeaks. And this knowledge ſhall abide, and this Faith, and this Righteouſneſs, and this Holineſs, and this Redemption; whereas the other is but a name, put upon that which is not the thing:

Theſe

These are precious and faithful Words (though through a Vessel weakened, and weak beyond measure) and happy is he that hath an ear to hear them: but woe from the Lord to that eye that is closed, to that ear that is shut, to that heart that is hardned in the inventions and imaginations of mans fleshly mind, against the truth of God. Let the witness of God in thee stir and speak, it shall answer me now: but if thou through the strength of the flesh, and the vain imaginations which thou huggest in thy heart, stifle the voice of it now, yet I know it shall answer me one day: but then it will be too late for thee to hear it.

The Lord is now gentle and tender pursuing thee with his love, and following thee up and down with his light; and though thou run from him into sin and transgression, and hearken to the Wisdom of the flesh, yet his voice comes after thee to reclaim thee; and if thou wilt hear, and but yield thy self to him, he will not put thee to do any thing. But subdue all thy enemies for thee; yea he will slay the Serpentine Wisdom in thee, with all its inventions, and dash all the children of Babylon against the Stones, without pitty to them, though with great pitty to thee. But if thou refuse, and choose the pleasure of the flesh, and the gross flesh-pots of Egypt, and turn thine ear from his voice, giving way to the reasonings of the flesh, and keeping down the Witness; the day of wrath and severity, which all the Scriptures have spoken of, will come, and thou wilt have thy portion which Hypocrites, who in all ages have covered themselves with a form of Religion, pleasing to the flesh and the World, but have with-held their hearts from the power of Life, therefore prize the love of God to thee in giving thee this warning, and be not uncircumcised in heart and ears, as this generation of Professors have always been: but let Christ reign in the heart, and let him Trample all mans invented forms of knowledge and worship under his Feet; and give up thy self to be led by him, into the true knowledge and Worship, in the Spirit and in the truth.

And now you who find your hearts touched and convinced of the truth, and find any desire kindled in you after the living God, and an hungring and thirsting after his righteousness: Take notice of these three things, which I have upon my heart to say to you, by way of advice,

1. Know and take up thy Cross, the Cross of Christ, the daily Gross of Christ. The Cross of Christ is that which crosseth the natural, and this is the power of God to deliver from the natural. How should the earthly understanding, the earthly will the earthly affections, with the elementary nature (which have had their swinge in the earth) be crucified and slain, but by the Cross of Christ? He therefore that will have a Religion to please himself in any thing, must not come hither; and he who after he is come hither, admitteth of any thing pleasing to the earthly, and starteth from the Cross, which would deny and turn from it; so far as he doth so, he goeth backward and not forward: It is no wonder that there is such an enmity in all sorts against the truth, for it striketh at their Life, yea at the very root of their Life: If there were any new way or form of Religion held forth, Mens understandings and affections might by degrees be wrought up to it, and find pleasure in it; but this is direct Death to that nature and Spirit that hath lived in any form of Religion, and to the whole course of that nature and Spirit; yet through this death the true Life springs up, in those who receive the strokes of it. Therefore be willing and learn to die dayly, and bring every thing which is contrary to Christ, to the Cross. Deny self in every thing, take up the Cross in every thing, follow Christ in every thing. This is the way which Christ himself prescribes to become his Disciples by. If any Man will come after me, let him deny himself, take up his Cross daily, and follow me, seek not ease in the flesh, no not in the least, but take up the Cross every day, in every thing, till the earthly be slain, till the Wisdom and strength of the flesh be wholly subdued, and then the Wisdom and Power of God will become natural.

2. Keep to the sense, keep to the feeling: beware of the understanding, beware of the imagining, conceiving mind: These cannot be for God, nor bring forth any thing for God, until they be new cast and new moulded. The one Seed of life lies in the invisible, in the hidden man of the heart, among multitudes of Seeds of death, all which have their growth up into, and strength in the corrupted natural. So that this seed cannot shoot up into any part of the natural, but the other seeds shoot up with it, and endeavour to choak it. Now the other ſeeds ſpring up two ways, either in a way of oppoſition againſt the true ſeed, or in a way of Similitude. There cannot a good thought, or deſire, or beam of light, enter into the underſtanding or will, but multitudes of evil thoughts, evil deſires, or fleſhly reaſonings againſt it, will ſpring up with it, and ſtrives to over-bear it. And if the enemy be at length overcome, by the Power of God fighting with him and vanquiſhing him, then he hath his garment of light, then he brings in thoughts, and deſires, and motions like Gods, which eaſily paſs for good, if the Soul keep not cloſe upon the watch. The forward underſtanding is apt preſently to own them, and the forward will to embrace, and the forward affections to let themſelves forth into them, until the Soul come to feel a loſs in life, and miſs the power and preſence of God, and find the enemy ſtrong again. Yea, the enemy hath yet a more ſubtil way, namely, to raiſe motions like the motions of God's Spirit, and ſuddainly, before the light hath given the diſcerning of them to raiſe oppoſitions and reaſonings againſt them; that ſo by the oppoſition, which is manifeſtly evil, the motion it ſelf, which is alſo evil, (though good in appearance) might be the leſs ſuſpected, and ſwallowed. Now the only way of ſafety is to keep out of the natural, whereof the enemy hath poſſeſſion, and where his ſtrength lies, and to keep in the ſence and feeling of the inviſible ſeed? and only to come forth with him into the natural, in that ſence and feeling. And when he comes, he will come with ſtrength, above the ſtrength that the enemy hath in the natural, and by degrees conquer him. But by no means reſt or abide in the natural, but retire with the Lord (who will not dwell there until it be cleanſed) into the reſting place, Theſe Words may be hard to you at preſent, but hereafter (as you come into the exerciſe) you will feel them. And this is the reaſon, why the formal and outward part of Religion doth ſo commonly eat out the life, becauſe things there are ſutable to, and exerciſe that part wherein the ſtrength of the enemy lies: and there can never be perfect Freedom and Safety, until that part be ſubdued, and all that Belongs to that part removed. The Lord is riſen to ſhake, that the Kingdom which cannot be ſhaken may appear: and happy are they, who are ſhaken by his hand in all that is outward, and eſtabliſhed in the inward Life, Power, and Reſt, which remaineth for ever and cannot be ſhaken.

3. Wait patiently the Lords leaſure. Be not haſty after life and ſalvation, in the Will of the fleſh, but leave the Lord to chuſe his own ſeaſon, for the ſhowring down of his Mercy and Bleſſing. The Lord will not preſently entertain that Spirit, which hath adulterated from him (proſtituting it ſelf to ſtrangers, and defiling it ſelf) into his Boſom: but there muſt be a time of ſorrow, a time of purifying and cleanſing. The Soul muſt know and feel, that it hath been an evil thing and bitter, that it hath forſaken the Lord, the living Fountain of living Mercies, and hath ſought life from vanities, and among dead Idols. And all the Idols muſt be thrown away, and the heart waſhed from that nature that ran after them, and become a pure Virgin, to bear and bring forth the living Seed; and by faithfulneſs to that ſeed, and waiting in that ſeed, in the Lord's ſeaſon, it ſhall receive the Mercy, and the Bleſſing, and the Inheritance which belongs to that ſeed. The Husbandman doth not preſently reap, but waits long, even till the ſeed be grown up to maturity, Jacob, the type of the ſeed, ſaid, O Lord, I have waited for thy Salvation. It is the election that obtains: it is to the ſeed, and for the ſeeds ſake that the Mercy is beſtowed: and there muſt be a waiting, till the ſeed be grown up to age, and able to defend his portion from his elder Brother, who otherwiſe would be ready to ſeize on it, and waſt it upon Harlots again. Therefore lie ſtill, and bear the indignation of the Lord againſt that which hath tranſgreſſed, till he judge it, and deliver from it, and lead into the Innocency and Righteouſneſs: and then he will find a time to ariſe, and plead the cauſe of the innocent, and give the Crown of immortal Life to that which he hath prepared for it, Therefore think not the Race long, nor the Battle hard, nor be weary of the afflictions and chaſtiſements in the way: but follow the Captain, the Guide, the Leader; whoſe Light, Strength, Courage, and Wiſdom, will overcome all, and bring the Soul which abides in it, into his own Throne.

Now as you thus wait, taking up the Croſs, and keeping in the feeling; ſo the corrupt natural, the mortal, wherein Satan's Throne and Power hath been, will Wither, Decay, and grow weak daily; and the tender Plant of God, the immortal Seed will ſhoot shoot up, and gather strength daily: and you will come to a Will in God, and an understanding in God, and that which is of God will manifest it self, and you will come to know, and desire, and take delight in the things of God: Then the Soul, which is immortal, will come to hear, and receive, and feed on the immortal word, which is the Bread of Life, and which alone is able to perserve and nourish up to eternal Life. Then ye will know what it is to tremble at this Word, and to have all the powers of nature melt and fail before it. Then ye will know the Faith which gives the Victory, and the knowledge which lets into Life, and the fear which keeps the heart clean, and the hope which Anchors the Soul Immortal in the Immortal God, and the patience which wins the Crown. And so ye will come to witness the several conditions of the Saints in Scripture as ye grow up into them, and will not need men to give you meanings of Scriptures, from their brain-studies and acquired arts and understandings, but will know the meaning from the thing it self in your own hearts, and hear the Words from the living voice of that Spirit that first Spake them, who alone is able to interpret his own mind, and open the Words which he himself Spake. And then ye will know and love Life, and need no more exhortations to depart from all Dead, Corrupted, and corrupting forms, which ever were, and ever will be enemies to, and betrayers of the Life. And so the peace of God, the rest of God, the true Sabbath of God, the everlasting Light and Life of God will come to be your own, and enjoyed by you, pass all gain-saying or dispute in you, while the natural understanding in others is reasoning, contending, and disputing about them, but can never know (while they are from the thing within:) for that mind is not the Heir, nor must not inherit the Kingdom of God.

A Postscript.

TO those who have had a seriousness and depth in their Religion, who could not sit down in empty forms and shadows of things, but have been pressing after the living substance, and missing of that, through errour of Judgment, the true Eye being not fixed in the Head, have come to a loss: and so are turned to, overgrown with, and hardned in the old nature, and have taken up pitiful rest and center in the Earth, having let fall the pursuit of their Spirit after the true center of rest in the Life: a word to such from the Love in the Life.

There was a Spirit, Soul, or Image of God brought forth, and standing in his life before the fall.

This Soul was brought into Death, under the burthen and bondage of corruption, out of its proper center and resting place, by the fall.

Now as there is in this state a true loss, so there is in this Spirit a sensibleness, groaning under the burthen, a feeling the bitterness of the captivity, and panting after redemption and restoration to its former state.

Now though the Whorish part, which seduced from the Life, make a great noise in the flesh about Saints words, and tempt to pleasures of the outward part, and pleasures in the mind, and draw into forms and Religious VVorship, and frame deep centres of satisfaction in the understanding (perhaps from true openings of the Life, quenching it) and so seek to quiet the Soul, and still the cry: yet the lost state remaining, the Soul being not truly redeemed, but a false rest taken up by the way, in the false part; this will fail, and the sense be again renewed in the day of Tryal and of trouble. For the Soul by any imagination, or notion, or feeling of a center in the corrupt mind, cannot be healed or restored; but only by having the true Life raised up again in it, and it brought into its proper place and mansion in the fountain of Life.

There have been in the shakings of this Nation great stirrings, the Seed springing up, and great opening to the Seed; the Spirit of prophesy hath been enlarged in it above what many of our fore-fathers felt; but the way into the Spring of Life hath not been known, where the preſervation is: ſo the Whoriſh part, the Corrupt part, the underſtanding which was not purified, and brought into ſubjection unto the truth, this Harlot caught the openings and propheſies of the true Spirit, conceived with them, and brought forth Children to the fleſh; bringing forth a more inward apprehenſion of things, a more Spiritual kind of knowledg, as of God to be all, all to be good, and in God, and all ſin and evil done away there, &c. And ſo ſuch as centre form the fleſhly mind (as it were) in him, as was not known before. And now the Redemption is forgotten, the pantings after Life ſlain, and the fleſh can lie down quiet in the unredeemed eſtate, and ſay it is his will, it is good, and it can reſt ſatisfied there in that will of his which is good: Thus the great abomination from the ſubtile fleſh ſprung up, which made many hearts deſolate of very precious ſpringing up, and budding forth of the true Life and power of God.

But after this great loſs and betraying of the Life in them, it hath pleaſed God to raiſe it up in others, and to diſcover the Hammer, the Sword, the Fire, which can Knock down, Cut down, Burn up this Whoriſh part, and thither the Whore is brought, when ſhe comes to betray again, and the ſpringings up of Life ſhrink back, and lie ſafe in the centre, while the Whore is Burning. And as the Whore is Burnt, the heir comes up, and the Spirit (which is the portion of his inheritance) deſcends and reſts upon him: and by this he is known: and that which is in union with him knows him. Therefore if you will live, come to that Hammer, that Sword, that Fire which fleſh dreads; and let the fleſh be delivered up to it: and do not deſpiſe the day of ſmall things, waiting for ſome great appearance, but know it in its loweſt knock; for its power of the redemption is as truly there, as in its greateſt appearance: He that hath an Ear, let him hear, and his Soul ſhall live.

Let thoſe therefore whom this concerns, conſider their wayes (as the grace that appeared to me, hath taught me to do) and try this foundation, upon what they ſtand; and that they do not kill what is opened, and live in the ſlain openings and ſo in the end become Dark, Airy, Dry, Withered, wheeling about and turning into the Earth, it becoming their reſt and foundation again, and ſo looſing the joyes which formerly the opener did open. This, with me, many of you may witneſs: for whom my deſire is, that they may alſo witneſs the return to that which then opened, and live in the opener, and be preſerved by him from abuſing his precious openings any more.

For though I had a true taſte of life and power from God, yet not knowing the foundation, there could be no true building with it: and ſo the Spirit was quenched, the Life waſted, the Portion ſpent upon Harlots, the true Bread loſt, and Chaff and Huſks fed upon, without the leaſt ſatisfaction to the Soul; the ſenſe whereof, when the Spirit of the Lord awakened me, did almoſt over-whelm me. Yea the bands of Death were ſo ſtrengthned upon me, and the Spirit of the World had taken ſuch hold of me, that I found my return very difficult; yea when living Words of hope were mentioned to me, to draw me back to that principle of Life from which I had gone out, I could receive nothing, but Cry out impoſſible, impoſſible, impoſſible. I felt my ſelf like a Tree twice Dead, plucked up by the Roots, without the capacity of Life, Sence, or motion in the eternal being any more. But at length it pleaſed Life to move in a low way, in the midſt of the powers of Darkneſs in my heart; and by ſinking low out of the Wiſdom, out of the Reaſon, out of all high Imaginations, and truſting my ſelf to it, though dreadful ſtroaks and oppoſitions were felt from the powers of Darkneſs, yet at length there was ſome appearance of the deliverer, in ſuch a poor, low, weak, deſpicable way, as could never have been welcomed, had not the Soul been firſt brought to diſtreſs, and the loftineſs of the imaginary part brought down. And then coming out of that into the feeling, in another part; there was a Seed ſprung up into a Child: and as that Child grows, and feeds on the Milk of the Immortal word, I live, and am ſtrengthened in him, and daily weakned in that part which lived before. Theſe are true words, from an honeſt Heart, for the relief of thoſe who may have been entangled in the ſame ſnare.

A Teſtimony of great concernment, to all that call themſelves Chriſtians, but have not known the true Church, of which alone the true Chriſtian can be born.

THere hath been a great War between the Woman and her Seed, and the Harlot and her Seed, from the beginning to this day; and they have each had their prevailings in the War. The Woman and her Seed have been made ſtrong in God, to conquer ſome of the teritories of death, and to ſet up their life in the World. Thus in the Jewiſh ſtate, God prepared an Heaven and Earth for the Woman and her Seed: and when that Heaven and Earth was ſhaken, he prepared a more glorious Heaven and Earth in the Chriſtian ſtate. Now no ſooner was the Church and her Seed ſeated in either of theſe, but the Dragon made War againſt her, and in the War had Power given him, to recover her ſeat from her: Thus the Devil got poſſeſſion of the Jewiſh ſtate, ſo that there was no room for the true Church there, but all was in Idolatry and Corruption; and the Lord was not ſerved by their Ceremonies, by their Sacrifices, by their Sabbaths, by their new Moons, by their Temple-worſhips, &c. but the Devil. And the Devil alſo got poſſeſſion of the Heaven and the Earth in the Chriſtian ſtate, ſo that in their Ordinances, and in their Worſhips, in their Duties, in that which they call their Churches, God hath not been worſhipped in the truth, but the Devil for this many ages. For mark, who was it that got into the Temple of God? Was it not Antichriſt? Was it not the Spirit of Satan? 2 Theſ. 2. 4. And who was it that was worſhipped in all the World, that had Power given him over all Kindreds, and Tongues, and Nations? And whom all that dwell upon the earth, worſhip? Was it not the Dragon? Rev. 13. 7. 8. Did not all the World wonder after the Beaſt, and worſhip the Dragon which gave Power unto the Beaſt, ver. 3, 4. of that Chap. The Woman was aſſaulted here, her ſtrong Holds taken from her, ſo that ſhe could not ſtay ſafe in that Heaven and Earth, which God had made for her: therefore there was another place prepared for her by God in the Wilderneſs, and ſhe had wings of an Eagle given her to fly thither, but the Dragon got into, and held poſſeſſion of the Heaven where ſhe was before, Rev. 12. So that none hath known the Church all this time but he that hath been born of her in the Wilderneſs, which was a place the World never dreamed of, but looked for her in the Heaven and in the Earth which the Devil had got poſſeſſion of. And here they cry up the Ordinances, the Ordinances, Duties, the Church, the Miniſtry, &c. (as the Jews did the Temple of the Lord, the Temple of the Lord) not knowing in whoſe hands theſe were, and whom they worſhipped hereby. Now conſider this O ye Chriſtians, I ſpeak what I aſſuredly know, that God could not be truly worſhipped in any of theſe, while they were in the Devils hands; but the whoriſh Spirit, and her Seed worſhip here; and the worſhip of the Church, and her Seed, was a Wilderneſs-worſhip, or a worſhip which ſhe learned of God in the Wilderneſs. Mark now, and conſider my Teſtimony, O ye Chriſtians. I deny all the Worſhip, all the Ordinances, which were taught the Chriſtians of old, now practiſed by the whoriſh Spirit: for the Devil had gained it, and corrupted it, and having corrupted it, God could not be any more worſhiped in it; but the Antichriſtian Spirit ſate there, giving forth thoſe things as his Laws; He ſate in the Temple of God, and there made uſe of the Veſſels and Ordinances, which he had carried Captive into his Babylon; and I deny it to be poſſible to have any true uſe of theſe, till the time of the recovery. And now the time of the recovery is come, and the reſtitution begun; people know it not; but cry up the old Heaven, and the old Earth, which Satan had corrupted, ſetting it up in oppoſition againſt the new, which God hath new formed, and is bringing forth in true Beauty and Glory.

Now in this War, though the Devil, though the Harlot and her Seed got the Womans Seed from her, and baniſhed her Seed as it were out of the Earth, yet they were not not able to touch the woman, nor to overcome the life of God in her ſeed, but only to kill their bodies; but the life was ſtill conqueror over them, and not ſubjected to them. They could raiſe up Churches and Ordinances, and Miniſters and Duties, and cauſe all that dwell on the earth to worſhip, in ſome part or other of this Babylon: but they could never make the ſeed bow to any of their Images, nor could they hurt the woman hereby who was in the Wilderneſs, out of the reach of all theſe: And there ſhe did eat the Bread of Life with Tears, mourning over her deſolate eſtate, and her loſs of Children: And here alone was the true bread of life, which was not to be known or taſted of, in any of the Ordinances of the Apoſtacy: Ye will all one day acknowledge this to be a true Teſtimony, held forth to you in true love; it were good for you that ye could ſee it now.

A brief Account of what we are, and what our Work is in the World.

WE are a People whom God hath converted to himſelf, a People in whom God hath raiſed up the Seed of his own life, and cauſed it to reign over the earthly part in our ſelves, a People whom God hath divorced from the Spirit of Whoredom, and joyned to his own Spirit. We, many of us, ſought truly and only after God from our Childhood (our Conſciences bear us Witneſs in the ſight of God) but the honeſty of our Hearts was ſtill betrayed, and we led aſide by the Whoriſh Spirit, and knew not how to turn to that of God in us, which inclined us towards God. By this means we came to great diſtreſs and miſery, beyond all men. Not but that all men were in as great a want of God (his Life, Power and Preſence) as we; but the ſenſe thereof was not ſo quickned in others, as in us. Now it pleaſed the Lord at length to pity us, and to inform our minds towards himſelf, to ſhew us where Life lay, and where Death lay, and how to turn from the one, and to the other, and he gave us his helping hand to turn us. And by being turned to him, we have taſted of the Truth, of the true Wiſdom, of the true Power, of the true Life, of the true Righteouſneſs, of the true Redemption: and by receiving of this from God, and taſting and handling of it, we come to know that which the World hath ſet up in the ſtead of it, is not the thing it ſelf. Now mark, we are not perſons that have ſhot up out of the old root into another appearance, as one Sect hath done out of another till many are come up one after another, the ground ſtill remaining the ſame out of which they all grew: but that ground hath been ſhaken and ſhaking, deſtroyed and deſtroying, removed and removing in us, and the old root of Jeſſe hath been made manifeſt in us, and we have been tranſplanted by the everlaſting power of life, and a real change brought forth in us out of that ſpirit, wherein the World lives and worſhips, into another ſpirit, into which nothing which is of the World can enter. And here we have met with the call of God, the converſion to God, the regeneration in God, the Juſtification, the Sanctification, the Wiſdom, the Redemption, the true Life and Power of God, which the World cannot ſo much as bear the name of. And what we are made of God in Chriſt, we know to be Truth and no Lie: and when we teſtifie of this to the World, in the meaſure of the life of God in us, we ſpeak Truth and no Lie; though the World, which knoweth not the Truth, cannot hear our voice.

Now our work in the World, is to hold forth the vertues of him that hath called us, to live like God; not to own any thing in the World which God doth not own: to forget our Country, our Kindred, our Fathers houſe, and to live like perſons of another Country, of another Kindred, of another Family: not to do any thing of our ſelves, and which is pleaſing to the old Nature, but all our words, all our converſation, yea every thought in us is to become new. Whatever comes from us, is to come from the new principle of life in us, and to anſwer that in others, but we muſt not pleaſe the old nature at all in our ſelves, nor in any elſe. And walking faithfully thus with God, we have a reward at preſent, and a Crown in the end, which doth and will countervail all the reproaches and hardſhips, we do or can meet with in the World.

We are also to be Witnesses for God, and to propagate his life in the World; to be Instruments in his hand, to bring others out of Death and Captivity unto true life and liberty: we are to fight against the powers of darkness every where, as the Lord calleth us forth. And this we are to do in his Wisdom, according to his Will, in his Power, and in his Love, Sweetness and Meekness. We are not to take ways according to our own wisdom (but there must be a strict watch, set in the life, least that get up again:) nor must we speak such words, as mans wisdom would call wise: nor may we go in our own will to seek any, but the Lord must go before; nor may we make use of our own strength, but feel his Arm in our weakness: nor may we go forth in that love, sweetness, or meekness, which is pleasing to the fleshly mind: but we must be true to God, handling the Sword skilfully and faithfully, judging and cutting down the Transgressor in the power and authority of God: and when the meek, the lowly, the humble thing is reached and raised, then the true love, the sweetness, the tenderness, the meekness must go forth to that. The Lord God is rough with the Transgressor, and all along the Scripture heweth and judgeth him: and if we come forth in the same Spirit, we shall find the same leadings, where we meet with the same thing: for the Lord God will never be tender there; nor can that which comes from him, lives in him, is lead by him, be tender there where he is not:

Now the very root of this severity is good, and of God, and hath love and sweetness at the bottom of it: yea in pity, love, and bowels, do we use the Sword. It is in pity to the Poor Captived Creature, that that might be cut down, which keeps it in bonds and captivity. And though we seem enemies to all sorts of Men, for the Lords sake: yet we are not Enemies, nor could do the least hurt to them any way, but are true friends to their Souls, and Bodies also: and our only controversie is with that which Captives and makes them miserable; for we Fight not at all with Flesh and Blood, but with the principality and power which led from God, and rules in it against God, to the poor creatures ruine and destruction. Yea if we had all the power of the Earth in our hands, we could not set up our own way, (if, after the manner of Men, I may so call it) or so much as disturb others in their way thereby, but should wait in patience, till God gave us an entrance by his power.

Now let not men run on in hears against us, but let them seriously consider, whether we be of God or no: and let them consider, not with the reason and understanding which is alienated from God, but with the witness which lies hid in the heart. There is one great palpable argument that we are of God, which is this, all the World is against us, the Worldly part every where fights with us, the Wordly part in every sort and Sect of Men oppoeth us, the rage of Men every where riseth up against us; But those that are so hot against us, if at any time they become but meek and calm, patiently considering our cause, and consulting thereupon with the testimony that they find in their own hearts concerning us, they soon become pacified, and see that we are no mans enemies, against no righteous Law, not against relations, not against Governments, not against any thing in the World that is good, but only against that which is evil and corrupt. And of a truth, the corruption of things God hath shewed unto us, and daily calls us forth after an Immediate manner, to witness against.

Therefore let men be sober, and take heed what they do, least they be found Fighters against God: for the Reproaches, the Scoffs, with other persecutions, which seem to be cast at us, light on him. It is not as we are men; but as we are obedient to him, as we stand Witnesses for him that we meet with these things. Now, as it is not we our selves that do these things, but the Life and Power of God in us, so it is not we that are struck at, but that Life and Power: If it were not for that we might be as acceptable as other men. It is because we are not of the World, but God hath called us out of the World, that we are so hated of the World. This is the true cause, though the World will no more now acknowledg it, than it would in former ages. Yet I do not speak this for my own sake, to avoid my share in the Cross: for the reproach of Christ is our Riches, yea far greater Treasure than is to be found in the Palace of Egypt. Yea the presence of God, the sweet power of life makes up all our losses, so that we have no cause to complain. It is very sweet, pleasant, and profitable for us to be found sufferers for God; but we know it will not be profitable for you to be found persecutors: and this is told you in true love and good will, by one who wishes no evil to you, for all that evil that ye have exercised toward the dear and precious people of God for these many years. O that God would open your eyes, that ye might see whom ye have opposed, and against whom ye have hardened and strengthened your selves, that ye might bow to him, and receive life from him, and not perish in your gain-saying and opposition.

An Addition concerning the Doctrine of Justification.

BEcause the Doctrine of Justification is of great concernment, and the enemy of mankind hath exceedingly endeavoured to corrupt it, and in the Apostacy hath greatly prevailed, and the darkness which springs up in the fleshly wisdom, is exceeding thick at this day concerning this thing; therefore in true love to Souls it is laid upon me, to search into that Scripture, which chiefly speaks thereof, and from thence to clear it up to such, who are not yet come to the life that gave forth the Scriptures.

The Apostle Paul doth largely and fully treat of it, in his Epistle to the Romans, and lays down several things concerning it, which if well heeded, may dash mens present apprehensions about it, and bring them to wait for the opening of those Scriptures to them, in another light than they have yet known.

1. He affirms that Justification is not by the deeds of the Law, Rom. 3. 20. If a man could say with the young man, all these things have I done from my Youth; or as Paul, that he was as touching the Law blameless, yet could he not be justified thereby.

And the Apostle gives a mighty reason; for by the Law is the knowledge of sin. Now Justification is not by the making of Sin known, but by that which saves and delivers from it. The knowledge of Sin may put a man upon seeking out for Justification, but it cannot justifie him, but rather condemn him; but that which delivers him from the sin, which the Law makes known, that justifies him.

2. He affirms that the Righteousness of God (which is the justification) is manifested without the Law, v. 21. The Law makes sin known, and shews the sinner the need of justification, but the justification it self is not thereby, but is manifested without it. The Law commands the Nature to act that pertains to similitudes, figures, and Types, and shaddows, to the Obedience of them, but the Seed takes away the nature that pertains to similitudes, and shaddows, and the works of the Law: so to the obedience of those things the Law commands there is justification by the Law in the obedience to the Works it commands: but the justification, Christ, removes the nature that pertains to those things the Law commands: so that Justification, the Law, ends in Christ.

3. That this Righteousness or Justification is witnessed by the Law and the Prophets, v. 21. The Law, though it is not the justification, nor can the Justification be by Obedience to it, or by the deeds of it, yet it gives testimony to the justification: for the substance of what the Law and all the Prophets witness, is, that nothing can justifie but the Righteousness of God.

4. That this Righteousness or Justification is by the Faith of Christ, v. 22. by believing or entring into that which justifies. As condemnation was by unbelief, by joyning unto, and entring into the Spirit of enmity: so justification, is by joyning unto, and entring into the Spirit of love, by true union with Christ in the Spirit, which union is by the Faith which comes from Christ.

5. That this Justification or Righteousness is upon all that believe, v. 22. He that receiveth the Faith, believeth; and he that believeth hath Righteousness: and he that believeth not, cannot have the Righteousness, but the Condemnation and Wrath abideth on him.

6. That this Justification is freely by the grace, v. 24. There is no way to come to this Righteousness but by the gift of grace, which gift is given freely. Therefore if ever man will be justified, he must know the grace, and the gift which comes from the grace, and receive it: and receiving it, he cannot miss of justification, and not receiving it, (but either being ignorant of it, or resisting of it) he cannot possibly be justified.

7. That

7. That this Justification is by the redemption of Christ, v. 24. Christ is Redeemer, the redemption (wherein is the justification, is in him and there is no way of meeting with the justification or redemption) but by receiving of him in whom it is; and he who hath him, hath the justification, and is made partaker of the redemption, and he who hath not him, hath it not.

Mark then, the justification or redemption, is not by believing of a thing done without man (though that also is to be believed) but by receiving him into the heart. For the virtue of all Christ did without, is within him: and I cannot be made partaker thereof by believing that he did such a thing without, or that he did it for me, but by receiving the Virtue of it into me, and feeling the Virtue of it in me. This is that which saves me, and makes that which was done without, to be mine.

8. That Christ is the propitiation, v. 25. Or that which pacifies and makes way for sinners to God, so that he that truly receiveth Christ, hath the Atonement; but he that hath not received him, only dreameth of peace with God, but still remaineth in the enmity, and is liable to the wrath, having the bond of iniquity over him, and is in the night.

9. That this Propitiation is by faith in the bloud, v. 25. There is nothing pacifies God, but the bloud of his Son; and there is nothing feels the Bloud, but the Faith, and that which is in the Faith. A man may read Scriptures, and gather notions about justification, and think he believes aright, and shall be justified; but he never comes to feel the bloud, nor the life which is in the bloud, till he receive the Faith, and then he knoweth the true Propitiation, and the true Peace, which before he did but talk of.

That this Faith is the Righteousness; Faith is the gift of God, and this gift justifies; this gift is the justification, this is that which God imputeth for Righteousness, c. 4. v. 3, 5. The Faith is in the bloud, and the bloud in the Son, and in the true receiving of the Son, both the Faith and the Bloud are known, and felt. These are true Words though hard to the fleshly ear; do not stumble in the Wisdom, but calmly wait for the revelation of the Spirit, and then thou wilt say, the price of this knowledge is not to be valued; and if once thou come to taste truth here, all thy knowledge in the letter will be but dross with thee. Ye are come to the bloud of sprinkling: O do not rest in an outward way of believing, an outward thing, but seek out the way of coming to the bloud of sprinkling.

11. That the justification is of the ungodly, v. 5. He whom God maketh Righteous, was ungodly before he made him Righteous. There was nothing but unrighteousness could be imputed to him in transgression before he gave him his Son, and made him Righteous in his Son; for nothing is Righteous with God but Christ, and man only as he is taken into his Righteousness; which is done, not by a believing from the bare letter, but by a receiving of Faith in the Life.

12. That the justification of the ungodly, is, by believing in him that justifieth, v. 5. The gift of Faith goes forth from him, is received into the heart: Now both by the gift it self, and by the exercise of it, is the justification: by receiving of the gift is the person justified, by the exercise of the gift are all his actions justified. Christ being let into the heart, justifies the heart into which he is received; and Christ being in the heart, justifies every motion and action that comes from his life; and any other motion or action is not Justified, for it is out of that which is justified, and is in and from that which is condemned.

Abraham believed God, and it was counted unto him for Righteousness, v. 3. God promised him a Seed, he believed God, God bid him sacrifice this Type, he believed. This was it was imputed to him for Righteousness. Now if he had not believed, if he had not received the gift, or not exercised the gift, could he have been righteous? so that Abraham was not justified by any work, he did or could do, but by receiving and exercising the Faith in the Seed: by going out of his Country, Kindred and Fathers House, not of himself but by Faith, and by living to God, and obeying his voice in that Land to which he was led, not in his own Will or Power, but in the Faith. And by hearing the call of God, and receiving the faith, and living out of self, out of a mans own Understanding, Will and Power, in the Faith and Living Power, and Wisdom of God, is the justification now: and they that do thus are Children of Abraham, born of the Free Woman, Woman, when as they take up practiſes from the Letter, without being ingraffed into the life, are but Children of the Bond Woman, but ſuch Children of Abraham as the Jews were, (if ſo much) and cannot inherit that promiſe which belongs to the ſpiritual ſeed, while they live in that ſtate.

13. That where the Faith which is imputed unto Righteouſneſs is found, there Sin is not imputed but covered, which is a bleſſed State, v. 6, 7, 8. Sin cuts off from God, who is Life and Bleſſedneſs; Sin lays open to the Wrath of the Creator, which is too great for the Creature to bear: Wo and Miſery will be his portion, to whom God imputes Sin. But happy is he who has his Sin covered; this is an Happy Condition, Life and Immortality will ſoon be opened to him. Now this Bleſſedneſs cometh not by the Works of the Law, for they cannot remove the Sin, but by the Righteouſneſs of Faith, which is able to cover the Sin even from the pure eye of God. O Chriſtians, Chriſtians, do not imagine your ſelves covered from ſin, but know it, feel it; never reſt till ye are ſo made partakers of the true Righteouſneſs, that by its vertue in you, ye may be paſt all doubt that it is it. Beleiving from the Letter without you, that ye are juſtified, may eaſily deceive you; but if once ye come truly to feel in your ſelves, the thing which juſtifies, and ſo find the power and life of it in you, above the power of all that which condemns, caſting out the condemned thing, and the condemner with all his works out of your hearts, this cannot deceive. The virtue of life was loſt in the Apoſtacy, and that which was living did not ſo much enjoy life, as mourn after it: and the power and ſafety of life did then appear moſt in mourning: but now the Apoſtacy draws towards an end, and the virtue begins to ſhoot up again; and he that will be a Chriſtian now, muſt be ſo, not by retaining his old notions, but by feeling this new virtue, and by growing up in this new ſprung life and power of the Lord, whoſe appearance is new to us, who have not been acquainted with it, but have been brought up in the darkneſs of the Apoſtacy, and lived in the waters, where great Leviathan ruled, and who was able to make War with him there? But he that ſeeketh is joyned with, and keepeth to that power which drieth up the waters, and putteth an hook into the Noſtrils of the Leviathan, ſhall find the World with the whole courſe of it, ending in himſelf, and the beginning and growth of an endleſs life: and in whom that life lives, they ſhall live alſo; but where Death keeps the power of life down, ſuch ſhall not live, or know the bleſſing, but abide under the curſe of miſery and death, and under the powers of darkneſs. Therefore look about you, and make a wiſe choiſe; for his Servants ye are whom ye obey, whether the Prince of darkneſs in his invented forms of godlineſs, or the Prince of Light in the living power: and your reward ſhall be according to your choiſe and work, either Death in the Death, if ye chuſe and joyn to that, or life in the life, if ye joyn to that. He that hath an ear to hear let him to hear.

When Ephraim ſpake Trembling, he exalted himſelf in Iſrael, but when he offended in Baal he died. And now they Sin more and more, &c. Therefore they ſhall be as the Morning Cloud, as the early Dew, &c. Hoſ. 13. 1. 2, 3.

Yea his Spring ſhall become dry, and his Fountain ſhall be dried up, v. 15.

We have all been as Sheep going aſtray; but bleſſed be the everlaſting Arm, which hath gathered any of us to the Shepherd and Biſhop of our Souls.

O come to the Fold, O ſcattered Sheep come to the Fold: Wander no longer from Mountain to Hill, but remember your reſting-place, the old reſting place of Iſrael, even the Mountain of the Lords Houſe, where Iſrael may lie down and feed in Peace, and no ravenous Beaſt can diſturb.

O Houſe of Jacob, let Whoredom, Wine and New Wine, no longer ſteal away your Hearts, but come let us walk in the Light of the Lord.

The PREFACE.

MY People have committed two great evils: they have forſaken me the Fountain of living waters, and hewed them out Ciſterns, broken Ciſterns that can hold no water. This was ever and anon the complaint of the Lord concerning Iſrael, from the beginning to the end. The Lord did delight to beget, nouriſh, and bring up that people for himſelf; but they were almoſt continually revolting from him, and rebelling againſt him. He did mighty things for them, but they ſtill forgot him. He redeemed them by his outſtretched Arm, he fed them, he defended them, but they knew him not) Iſa. 1. 3.) but decked themſelves with the Ornaments which they had from him, and then lift up the Heel againſt him, Ezek. 16. 7. and Deut. 32. 15. In plain terms, they got what knowledge they could from him into their own Veſſels, and then they would ſet up for themſelves, live of themſelves, without freſh bublings up of life from the Spring, from whence their knowledge came (the Prieſts ſaid not, Where is the Lord? but could handle the Law, and teach the knowledge of it without him: and the Prophets could Prophecy by another Spirit, Jer. 2. 8.) And thus the Lord God of Life lived not in them, but they lived upon ſuch things as once came from the life, but (being ſeparated from the Spring) were dead, and nouriſhed but the dead part in them, the eſtranged from God. And thus, though their profeſſions were great, and they multiplied Prayers, Sacrifices and Faſts, and drew nigh to God with their Lips, yet their Hearts were far from him. They had forſaken the Fountain, they drank not of the waters of the Spring (of the Rock that followed them) but they drank of the Waters of their own Ciſterns. They ſet up that knowledge of the Law for their Light, which they had hewed out with the tools of their own underſtanding, without the Spirit that wrote it. This was Iſraels error of old; they drank very zealouſly of the Waters of the Law, but they drank it not from the Spring, but out of the Ciſterns which themſelves had hewed.

Pro-

And as it was thus with Iſrael of old, ſo hath it been with Iſrael ſince. The Chriſtian Iſrael hath been always Backſliding, always forgetting the Lord; ſtill getting what they could from him to live of themſelves, but refuſing to live on him: getting what knowledge they could from the Scriptures without him, getting what they could from their exerciſes and experiences, but neglecting the Spring of their life. And ſo this Iſrael alſo dies, this Iſrael likewiſe withers and becomes a ſcorn to the Heathen: For though they ſpeak great words of their God, yet they themſelves are but as the Heathen, uncircumciſed like them, unacquainted with the virtue and power of life like them, always ſtriving againſt Sin in that which cannot conquer; and ſo they alſo are Slaves under their Luſts and Corruptions, like the Heathen, and know not the Truth which makes free indeed.

Exceeding great hath been the Apoſtacy of this Age. Mighty was the appearance of God inwardly in his Peoples Spirits, mighty was the appearance of God outwardly in the Nation, many ways and great hopes there was of a through Reformation. But how ſuddenly was the pure Spirit of the Lord forgotten, and departed from, and his work overturned both within and without; inwardly in his Peoples Spirits, and outwardly in the Nation, whoſe revolting was but a Type of the inward! And how hath the Spirit of the Lord mourned after his people, often reproving them for their backſlidings! But they have been (as Iſrael of old, like the Deaf Adder) juſtifying themſelves, and complaining againſt the Witneſſes of God (as Iſrael aid againſt his Prophets) who from the Lord teſtifie againſt them. And it cannot be otherwiſe: for the Dead waters in Iſraels hewn Ciſterns, will never agree with the waters of the living Fountain, but will withſtand their Teſtimony.

How ſhall the Charmer charm wiſely enough to make Apoſtate Iſrael hearken to his voice! I have not backſlidden ſaith one in one form; I have not backſlidden, ſaith another in another form: I have not baek ſlidden, ſaith one in one Notion; I am not backſlidden, ſaith another in another Notion: I am believing, hoping and waiting in what the Lord hath already revealed, and following on to know him. This hath been thy manner from thy Youth, that thou obeyedſt not my word, but ſtill haſt been juſtifying thy ſelf as if thou hadſt obeyed. And yet your backſlidings are written upon your foreheads, as with the point of a Diamond, for who among you retains his freſhneſs? an evident demonſtration that ye are departed from the Spring, and hold your knowledge, experiences and hopes in the dead part; and your choiceſt prop of comfort is the remembrance of what ye once had. Ah poor, barren, dead Souls, is this your beſt ſupport? Return, return; enter into the Houſe of Mourning, and let the living lay it to heart.

A LAMENTATION WITH A CALL to MOURNING AND Lamentation, &c.

O Iſrael, the royal Seed, the Plant of renown, the living off-ſpring of eternity; O Daughter of Sion, who didſt once ſhine with the beauty and glory of life, what is become of thee! how art thou held Captive and chained up in Babylon! how doſt thou lie ſullied among the Pots! how are the Wings of thy Dove clipped! how art thou covered, and polluted with the filth of the whole Earth!

O take up a Lamentation, Weep O Iſrael, Mourn O Daughter of Jeruſalem, bewail thy Widow-hood, thy Deſolation, thy loſs of Husband, thy ſad Captivity, thy baniſhment out of thine own Land, and thy thraldome in the Land of thine Enemy.

What is become of thy God, the mighty God of Jacob, whoſe out-ſtretched arm hath been able to ſave and redeem his Seed out of bondage? What enemy hath been able to ſtand before him? What wild Boar out of the Wood, or wild Beaſt out of the Forreſt, was able to break into his Vineyard, while he kept the fence? Where is that Arm that ſmote Rahab, and ſlew the Dragon? Where is that hook that he was wont to put into the noſtrils of the Leviathan? Pharoah is alive, the wiſe Egyptians have Power, Egypt holds the Seed in bondage, Gebal, Ammon, and Amaleck, the Philiſtins with the Inhabitants of Tyre, are all able to ſmite Iſrael, and to ſtop up the well-ſprings of life. Awake O Arm of the Lord, and awaken Iſrael, that thou again maiſt become his Saviour in the ſight of all the Nations; and let all the houſe of Iſrael, being awakened, mourn in the Spirit of the Lord after the Lord.

What is become of thy Meſſiah, the Lords annointed, the Captain of the Lords Hoſt, the Angel of the Covenant of life, who was wont to go in and out before thee in fighting the Lord's Battles, who was thy Prince and Saviour in the Land of Peace and Reſt, who walked in the midſt of the Candleſticks, who was thy King, thy Shepheard, thy Temple wherein thou worſhippedſt, and the Eternal Light of thy life in the Land of the living.

VVhat is become of that holy Spirit which quickened thee to God, and which lived in thee being quickened, which kept thee alive in him that liveth, and made thee taſt the ſweetneſs of life continually? VVhere is the annointing which ſuppled thee all over with the Oyl of Gladneſs and Salvation? VVhere is the comforter, that refreſhed thy Spirit continually, and led thee into all truth, teaching thee all the things of God, according to thy meaſure of growth in the life? VVhere is the Spirit of thy Father, which Spirited thee with thy Fathers nature, which begot and brought forth the Life, Power, Glory, Majeſty, eternity of thy Father in thee?

VVhat is become of Sion, the holy Mount, whereon thou waſt built? Sion, the Fortreſs of holineſs, where is it? VVhat is become of Jeruſalem the holy City, thy Mother, whereof thou waſt born? VVhat is become of that Covenant of life, in whoſe womb thou waſt begotten and brought forth, and by whoſe Milk and Breath thou waſt afterwards nouriſhed and brought up.

Where

Where are all the fruits of the holy Land? the pleasant Grapes, the sweet Figs, the precious Olives that yeilded Wine and Oyl to make the heart glad, and to refresh the countenance of the Lord of life? Where's the joy in the Lord, the obedience to the Lord, the Praying, the Praising, the Living, the walking in his Spirit, the entring into, and bringing forth fruit in his pure understanding, and in his holy unspotted will and and moving in the purified heart?

Alass, alass, Babylon has prevailed, her King hath reigned, Sion hath been held in bonds, and that which hath sprung up under her name, hath been the filthy off spring of Babylon, the Seed of the Mother of Harlots: and these have brought forth sower fruit, loathsome fruit, finely painted to the view of that eye which cannot search into it, but loathsome in its nature. This hath been the State of the Apostacy since the days of the Apostles, wherein that which hath not been of God hath reigned, and that which hath been of God hath suffered, and been reproached as if it had not been of God, and hath panted and mourned after the springing up of the spring of its life, and its gathering into it.

The deep sence of this hath afflicted my Soul from my tender years, the eternal witness awakening in me, and the eternal light manifesting the darkness all along unto me, though I knew not that it was the light, but went about to measure its appearances in me, by words which it self had formerly spoken to others, and so set up my own understanding and comprehension as the measure, although I did not then perceive or think that I did so. Thus continually (through ignorance) I slew the life, and sold my self for a thing of nothing, even for such an appearance of life, as my understanding part could judg most agreeable to Scriptures. This the Lord blew upon, though its comlineſs was unutterable (the life still feeding my Spirit underneath. from whence sprang an inward beauty and freshness:) then such a day (or rather night) of darkness and distress overtook me, as would make the hardest hear melt to hear the relation of, yet the Lord was in that darkness, and he preserved me, and was forming of me to himself; and the tast I had then of him, was far beyond what ever I had known in the purest strain of my Religion formerly. And the Lord powerfully shut up my understanding, and preserved my life from the betrayer. But yet that was not perfectly destroyed in me, upon which the Tempter might work: and the Lord suffered him to lay a snare, and my feet were entangled unawares, insomuch as the simplicity was betrayed, and the fleshly part grew wise by those exercises wherewith the Lord had tryed me. This poyson'd me, this hurt me, this struck at the Root of my life, and death insensibly grew upon me. The Devil (the envious Seeds-man) cozen'd me with the Image of that, which before I had had in the truth, opecing my understanding part (by the subtilty of temptation and deceit) which the Lord had been destroying; and letting that in, which the Lord had shut out: and then the Lord took away, and shut up from that part, that which before he had opened to the Seed, whereby the way of life became stopped, and the way of death opened in a Mistery. And then I could talk of universal love, of Spiritual liberty, &c. and wait for the glorious appearance of life, having lost that which formerly gave me the sense of its nature: yea, at length I could seek to the creatures for what they could yield, and strive to rub out the time of my misery without the immediate presence of the life of the Creator. And as for this despicable people (whom I now own in the Lord) I could measure them, I could fathom them: I could own their standing, and yet see their shortness, and could (with satisfaction to my Spirit) write death upon them, as the end of that dispensation of life, into which I saw them enter, and in part entred. Here was my standing, when the Lord drew his Sword upon me, and smote me in the very inmost of my Soul, by which stroke (lying still a while under it) my eyes came to be opened; and then I saw the blindness of that eye, which was able to see so far, and the narrowness of that heart and spirit, which was so large and vast in comprehending: and my Soul bowed down to the Lord to slay this, to starve this, to make a fool of this; yea my desire was (to present sence) as great after the death of this, as after the enjoyment of life in the Lord.

And now this hath opened a fresh Spring of sorrow in me, a mourning over the just one, which hath been slain by me. O how cruelly, how often have I murdered that, which came to give me life! how often have I sought to have my own understanding, my own comprehension, my own will and affections in Religion live, and the righteous, pure, immortal Principle die! though I did not then call it my own (as other men do not now) but took it to be of God, and to be the thing that was to live: for I also was deceived and thought the Baſtard (which was a falſe conception) was to inherit, not knowing him to be the Baſtard, but taking him for the right Heir. And my Soul is exceedingly enlarged in me towards thoſe, who at this day lie under the power of the ſame deceit, who have ſlain the Lord of life as well as I, and in whom the contrary nature lives under a covering; who cannot poſſibly ſee that this (which now lives in them) is not the Heir, until the ſame eye be opened in them.

The life that was ſtirring, at the beginning of the trouble of theſe Nations, was very precious: it did unite to God, it did unite to one another; it kindled an univerſal ſenſe of the Captivity, of the Bondage, of the great Oppreſſion of Iſrael, and a joynt cry went up to God for deliverance. And God heard the cry, and aroſe to deliver, and did begin to break the yoke, both outwardly in the Nation, and inwardly in peoples Spirits.

But the Tempter did alſo ſet himſelf on work, again to entangle Iſrael. For this end he brings forth likeneſſes of that which Iſrael deſired, and was ſeeking after. He brings forth ſeveral forms of Worſhip to allure ſome with, ſeveral ſorts of notions to allure others with, ſeveral freſh appearances of life, of love, of liberty, to tempt the people of God aſide from following that Spirit which roſe up to deliver. Thus comes he forth, and prevails: he divides in Jacob, and ſcatters in Iſrael; drawing one part to this form, another part toward that form, one to this notion, and another to that notion; one to this inward Image another to that ſpiritual Idol; and all from the Life, all from the Power, all from the Saviour, all from the Deliverer; and ſo the Work ſtops. It ſtops in the Nation, and it ſtops in peoples Spirits, and men generally wheel about and enter again, and apply themſelves to make Images like the Images they had deſtroyed: and ſo the Captivity returns, Iſrael is turned back into his bonds, and the Spirit which oppreſſed him before, cruſheth him again, and rules over him. And ſo great hath the breach been upon Iſrael, that the Spirit of the World is become hardened, and thinks there is an end of this Work of God; and now they may venture again to ſettle both Church and State, upon the old Principles of that Wiſdom which the Lord was ſhaking.

And now, where is the people whom the Lord was redeeming; where is the praying people, the panting people, the mourning people, the people that could have travailed from Sea to Sea, to have had the Will of God revealed? Are they not run into the earth? Is not the Spirit of the earth come ouer them? Are they not dividing the Spoils? The inward Jew, the renewed nature is ſunk, loſt made a prey of; the Gentile, the heatheniſh Spirit hath riſen up, and ſeated it ſelf in a form of Worſhip, or in ſome high Notions of knowledge, on which that Spirit (which knows not the Tree of life) loves to feed. Some are Stark dead, no ſence at all in them, but life quite ſwallowed up of death: Others perhaps are ſtill preſſing towards the Kingdom, but in the wrong nature, in that which ſhall never obtain: and they may there meet with ſome enjoyments, but not enjoyments from or of the true thing, but the likeneſs which the enemy hath painted to deceive them with: and they may alſo wait and hope that the Kingdom will come, and yet be out of thoſe which knows its coming, and can alone prepare the heart for its appearance. Yea, ſome are got ſo high, that they are even in the Throne: they have the love, the life, the liberty, the joy, the peace of the Kingdom (as they imagine.) They can reign as Kings without us, without that nature and principle wherein our life lies. But theſe mighty ones, theſe Princes the Lord will pull from their Seat, and raiſe up the humble, the Meek, the low in heart, the beggar from the dunghil, and give to him the Throne of his glory.

Now this my life in love ſaith to you all, as the proper and only way of your recovery and redemption, come to that which can judg you. Sion is to be redeemed with judgment, and her Converts with Righteouſneſs. If Sion be redeemed, if the Seed be again raiſed, that Spirit which hath got up above it (and keepeth it down) muſt be judged and brought under by judgment. How was Iſrael of old to be recovered from her Idolatries and Whoredoms, but by owning and coming to that light in the Prophets which manifeſted and judged it? Ye alſo have worſhipped Idols, ye alſo have run a whoring from the Lord, and have been enflamed with Idols under every green Tree.

Eve-

Every new Idol, every freſh appearance, every lively likeneſs hath tempted you aſide from the living God. When one way of Worſhip hath been dry and barren, ye have left that: when ſome notions of things have appeared empty and ſhallow, ye have been weary of them: but the next new Idol, under the next green Tree, hath drawn you aſide into the Bed of Whoredom, where ye have loſt true fellowſhip with the true God of life, and have been betrayed of the ſeed of life, which he began to quicken and raiſe from the dead. Now come to that which judgeth the Idol, the Idol-maker, the Whoriſh Spirit which tempteth aſide from the true Husband, and that Spirit which is liable to be Tempted; and let theſe be cut down by the judgment, and then the true Seed of Life will ſpring and flouriſh again. There is no other way, be not deceived: That muſt be awakened in you which can judge you, and muſt bring forth its judgment in you unto Victory, if life in you ever riſe and get the Dominion over Death. And that Spirit which now rules in you (and keeps the life down) knows this very well, and therefore endeavours all it can, to keep you from owning Judgement. He would fain keep the Light in others from judging you, Do not judge, ſaith he, All Judgement is committed to the Son. True, but ſhall not the light of the Son judge? ſhall not the light of that Candle, which the Lord hath lighted in one heart, diſcover and judge the darkneſs in another heart? Light doth make manifeſt, and its manifeſtation is its judgment, the uttering of the words are but the declaration of what the light in the heart hath done before, and cannot but do: for as long as it is light, whereever it comes, it will and cannot but diſcover and judge the darkneſs it meets with, though the darkneſs cannot own either its diſcovery or its judgment, but muſt needs except againſt it. Now if he cannot do this (which is utterly impoſſible for the dark ſpirit to do) then, in the next place, he fortifies and hardens the heart, as much as he can, from receiving the judgment, by perſwading him to look upon it as the judgement of another ſpirit like his own, and not as the judgment of the light. And ſo what Paul ſaid concerning mans Judgment (that it was a ſmall matter to him to be judged by mans Judgment) the ſame will he ſay concerning this Judgment. And yet, as the greateſt judgment of man, in the higheſt ſtrain of the comprehending part, ſhall fall: ſo the loweſt judgement of the light in the weakeſt Child, ſhall ſtand; and all the exalted ones of the earth ſhall in due time fall before it, though now (in the preſent elevation of their minds) they may riſe high above it, and trample it down: Therefore be not afraid to judge deceit, O ye weak ones, but be ſure that the light alone in you judge; and lie very low in the light, that that part, which the light in you judgeth in others, get not up in you, while the light is making uſe of you to judge it in others.

And now ye poor loſt Souls (who find the need of judgment, and any willingneſs within you to embrace it) wait firſt, for the riſing of the Judge of Iſrael in your hearts, and in the next place wait for the joyning of your hearts to him; both which are to be done by his eternal light, which manifeſts and gives his life. In the loweſt ſhining of this Light there is the Judgment, and there is the King himſelf (who is not ſevered from the leaſt degree or meaſure of his own light) bow down to him, kiſs his feet; know the nature of the thing, and ſubject to it: worſhip him here in his humiliation, receive him in his ſtrokes, in his ſmitings (and obſerve, and turn from that in your ſelves which ſmites him) and ye ſhall one day ſee him in his Majeſty, in the power of his love, in his everlaſting healings and embraces. And know aſſuredly, that that which will not worſhip him here, will not be fit to worſhip him there, nor ſhall not; but ſhall only tremble at the dread of his Majeſty, and be confounded at the ſweetneſs of his love, but not be able to bow down to it in the true life. For that ſpirit which is out of the life, is ſhut out in its higheſt deſires, hopes, attainments, enjoyments, ſeemingly ſpiritual reſt, univerſal love, liberty and peace, as well as in its darkeſt and groſſeſt paths of pollution. Therefore wait to know the nature of things, that ye may not be deceived with the higheſt, choiceſt, and moſt powerful appearances of death in the exacteſt image of life, nor ſtumble at the true life in its loweſt and weakeſt appearance. And this ye can only attain to by a birth of, and growth up in the true wiſdom, which ſays that Spirit which lives on the ſame things in the comprehenſion, and gathers a ſtock of knowledge and experiences in its own underſtanding part. Theſe are words of tender love, and they will also be words of true life, where the Fathers earth opens to drink them in, to whose good Pleasure and Blessing my Soul commends them.

Some Propositions concerning the only way of SALVATION.

1. That there is no way of being saved from Sin and Wrath Eternal, but by that Christ alone which died at Jernsalem. There is no name, vertue, life or power under Heaven given, by which lost man may be saved, but his alone.

2. That there is no way of being saved by him, but through receiving him into the heart by a living Faith, and having him formed in the Heart. Christ saves not as he stands without at the door knocking, but as he is let in; and being let in, he brings in with him that life, power and mercy, which breaks down the wall of partition, unites to God, and saves. The Jews could not be saved formerly by belief of a Messiah to come (with the Observation of all the Laws and Ordinances of Moses) nor can any now be saved by belief of a Christ already come (with observation of all that the Apostles commanded or practised) but alone by the receiving of him into the heart, who there works out the Salvation.

3: That there is no way of receiving Christ into the heart, and of having him formed there, but by receiving the light of his spirit, in which light he is, and dwells. Keep out the light of his spirit, keep out Christ; let in the light of the spirit, let in Christ: for the Father and the Son are light, and are alone known, and received in the Light but never out of it.

4. That the way of receiving the Light of the Spirit into the heart (and thereby uniting with the Father and the Father and the Son) is by hearkning to, and receiving its convictions of sin there. The first Operation of the Spirit towards man lying in the sin, is to convince him of the Sin: and he that receives not the convincing light of the Spirit, the work is stopped in him at the very first; and Christ can never come to be formed in him, because that light whereby he should be formed, is kept out. And then he may talk of Christ, and practise duties, (pray, read, and meditate much) and gather comforts from promises, and run into ordinances, and be exceeding zealous and affectionate in all these, and yet perish in the end. Yea the Devil will let him alone (if not help him) in all this, knowing that he hath him the surer thereby, he being (by the strict observation of these) kept out of the fear of the danger of his Condition, which otherwise perhaps he might be made sensible of.

Object. But I may be deceived in hearkning to a Light within, for while I think that I therein hearken to the Light of the Spirit, it may prove but the Light of a Natural Conscience.

Answ. 1. If it should be but the light of a natural Conscience, and it draw thee from Sin (which separates from God) and so prepare thee for the understanding, believing, and receiving what the Scripture saith of Christ, this is no very bad deceit: but if in the result it should prove to have been the light of the Spirit, and thou all thy life time hast took it for the light of a Natural Conscience, (and so hast despised, or at least neglected, if not reproached it) thou wilt then find that this was a very bad deceit.

2. I can shew thee by express Scripture, that it is the work of the Spirit to convince of Sin, John 16. 8. and again that the Law (which is spiritual) manifesteth that which is corrupt and carnal, Rom. 7:14. But where canst thou shew me from Scripture, that a natural Conscience can convince of Sin?

3. Let any man give heed to the light in his heart, he shall find it to discover his most inward, his most secret, his most spiritual evils, which a natural light cannot do: for that which is natural cannot discover that which is spiritual.

4. The Apostle saith, that it is the grace, which hath appeared to all men, which teacheth not only Godliness, but also Sobriety and Righteousness, Tit. 2:11. 12. The light of the fallen nature is darkness, can teach nothing of God; what any man learns now of the true knowledge of God, he learns by Grace, which shines in the darkness of mans nature, to leaven it with the true knowledge, though man (being darkneſs) can by no means comprehend it, and ſo cannot give it its true name.

Therefore take heed, leſt (through ignorance) ye blaſpheme the Holy Light of the pure Spirit, calling that natural (looking on it with the carnal eye) which with the ſpiritual eye is ſeen to be ſpiritual. For thou that doſt this, wilt be alſo erring on the other hand, calling thy carnal meanings and conceivings (about the mind of the Spirit of God in Scripture) Spiritual. And he that thus puts darkneſs for light, muſt needs put light for darkneſs; and then call evil good, and good evil: and ſo erre from the Spirit of God in the whole courſe of his Religion, even in the moſt inward exerciſes of it.

Man by nature is dead in Treſpaſſes and Sins, quite dead, and his Conſcience wholly dark. That which giveth him the ſenſe of his Death, and of his darkneſs, muſt be another thing then his nature, even the light of the Spirit of Chriſt, ſhining in his dark Heart and Conſcience. It is the ſeed of the Woman which not only deſtroys, but alſo diſcovers all the deeds of the Serpent. Now this ſeed, this light is one in all, though there have been ſeveral diſpenſations of it. One to the Heathen, in whom it ſprings up after an hidden manner, even as it were naturally, from whence it had the name of the light of nature (though it be the myſtery of Life and Salvation hid in them, Col. 1. 27. this Myſtery in the Gentiles, it is ill tranſlated among:) another to the Jews, in whom it was more rigorouſly ſtirred up by a Law given, who by Types and Shadows, and righteous exerciſes according to the Law, were to be awakned to the living Principle, Mich. 6. 8. Another to the Chriſtians, in whom it was livelily brought forth to light and life, by an eſpecial Diſpenſation of Grace: inſomuch as that which was the myſtery in the Gentiles, and Vailed from the Jews, being opened in them, was found to be Chriſt the hope, Col. 1. 27. But under all theſe Diſpenſations, the generality of men have fallen ſhort of the Glory of God, and miſſed of the Subſtance. Therefore the Lord God is now bringing forth the ſubſtance it ſelf, but under ſuch a Vail, as hides it from the eye of mans Wiſdom, under what diſpenſation ſoever he be, and how high ſoever in that diſpenſation. To ſome it ſeems natural, to others legal, to ſome it ſeems from the power of Satan (or at leaſt they pretend ſo) to others it ſeems the Miniſtry of John Baptiſt. Thus men gueſs at it in the Wiſdom of their comprehenſions, wanting the true line and plummet to meaſure it by.

Now to you who have not waited to learn in the Wiſdom of God the names of things (which there are given according to their nature) but in the forwardneſs of your Spirits, from your gathered knowledge, without the living power, have ventured to call that natural, which in the eternal Wiſdom is ſeen to be ſpiritual (and which hath been able to effect that, which all that knowledge which ye call ſpiritual, could never do) let me propoſe the conſideration of one Scripture to your Conſciences in the ſight of God.

The Scripture is that in Job, 28. 12. to the end.

Where ſhall Wiſdom be found? and where is the place of underſtanding? Man knoweth not the price thereof; neither is it found in the land of the living. The depth ſaith, it is not in me, and the Sea ſaith, not with me. It cannot be gotten for Gold, neither ſhall Silver be weighed for the price thereof, &c. Whence then cometh Wiſdom, and where is the place of underſtanding? ſeeing it is hid from the eyes of all living, and kept cloſe from the Fowls of Heaven. Deſtruction and Death ſay, we have heard the fame thereof with our ears. God underſtandeth the way thereof, and he knoweth the place thereof, &c. And he ſaid unto man, Behold, the fear of the Lord, that is Wiſdome, and to depart from evil is Underſtanding. Now conſider well.

Firſt, Is this natural Wiſdom, or ſpiritual Wiſdom that is thus precious? What is this that deſtruction and death have heard the Fame of? Is it the Wiſdom of nature? Or is it Chriſt the wiſdom of God.

Secondly, Where is the place of this? Where doth God point man to find this Wiſdom? He points him to the fear, Unto man he ſaid (he hath ſhewed thee, O man, what is good) Behold, the Fear of the Lord, that is Wiſdom, and to depart from evil is underſtanding. Go to the fear, there it is taught. that is the Wiſdom: learn by the fear to depart from evil, that is underſtanding. This is it which is ſo precious, which nothing can equalize or value, here is the place of it, thus it is to be learned: Sin overſpreads all the Land of darkness, there is no fear of God before mens eyes there, there is no learning of the fear there, all the Wisdom that man can come by, cannot teach it: he that learneth to fear God, to depart from evil, must learn of Christ the wisdom of God, and must deny all the varieties of the Wisdom of man, which undertakes it to reach it but cannot.

Land

Thirdly, What is that in man, which teacheth the fear? which teacheth to depart from evil? Every man hath in him an eye that sees the evil, what is that eye, which the God of this World doth so strive to blind, and doth generally blind? Every man hath in him an enemy to evil, one that never consented to it but still reproves it, and fights against it, even in secret: What is this? This is no less then a ray from Christ the Wisdom of God, out of the seat of the fear in every heart, to lead into the fear, where the Law of departing from Iniquity is learned: and so this ray, being hearkened unto, and followed in the fear, brings up into the Love, into the Life, into the Light, into the Wisdom, into the Power. Do not shut your eyes now, O ye Wise ones, but open your hearts, and let in that which knocks there, which can and will save you, being let in, and which alone can save you. For it is not a notion of Christ without (with multitudes of practises of self-denial and mortification thereupon) which can save, but Christ heard knocking, and let into the heart. This will open the Scriptures aright; yea, this is the true Key, which will truly open words, things, and spirits: but he that opens without this Key, is a Thief and a Robber, and shall restore (in the day of Gods judgment) all that he had stollen: and wo to him, who when he was stripped of what he hath stollen, is found naked.

The Scriptures were generally given forth to the people of God; part to the Jews, part to the Christians. He that is born of the life, hath right unto them, and can read and understand them in the Spirit, which dwels in the life. But he that is not born of the Spirit, is but an intruder, and doth but steal other mens light, and other mens conditions and experiences into his carnal understanding, for which they were never intended, but only to be read and seen in that light which wrote them. And all these carnal apprehensions of his (with all the Faith, Hope, Love, Knowledge, Exercises &c. which he hath gained into his Spirit hereby, with all his Prayers, Tears and Fasts, and other imitations) will become loss to him, (for he must be stripped of them all, and become so much the more naked) when God recovers his Scriptures from mans dark Spirit (which hath torn them, and exceedingly prophaned them with his conceivings, guessings, and imaginings) and restores them again to his people. The Prophets, and Apostles who wrote Scripture, first had the life in them: and he who understands their Words, must first have the life in him. He that understands Words of life, must first life in himself. And the life (from which the Words came) is the measurer of the words, and not the Words of the life. And when the Scripture is interpreted by the Life and Spirit which penned it, there is then no more jangling and contending about it: for all this is out of the life, from and in that Spirit, Nature, and mind where the lust, the enmity, the contention is, and not the unity, the love, the peace. But this is it which undoeth all, the dead Spirit of man reads Scripture, and from that Wisdom which is in the death (not knowing the mind of the Spirit) gives meanings: and from believing and practising the things there spoken of (which death may do, as well as speak of the same) gathers an hope that all shall be well at last for Christs sake, though it feel not the Purification, the Cleansing, the Circumcision which cuts off the body of sin and death here, (for it is not to be off hereafter) and so gives an entrance into the everlasting Kingdom, where the King of Righteousness is seen, known, and worshipped in Spirit.

The Fundamental Principle of the Gospel.

This then is the Message which we have heard of him, and declare unto you, that God is light, and in him is no darkness at all, 1 John. 1 5,

This was the Message which Christ gave his Apostles, to make way into mens hearts by, This is the first thing that is proper for the mind to receive, which lies in the darkness,

neſs; Namely, that there is no darkneſs in God, nothing but light. Darkneſs is excluded from him, and the mind that lies in darkneſs cannot have Union or Fellowſhip with him. Therefore he that will be one with God, and partake of his life, muſt come out of the darkneſs, which hath no place with God, into the light where God is, and in which he dwells.

The Work of the Son is to reveal the Father, and to draw to the Father. He reveals him as light (as the ſpring of light, as the fountain of light) and he draws to him as light. When he gives to his Apoſtles the ſtanding Meſſage whereby they were to make him known to the World, and whereby men were to come into Fellowſhip and Acquaintance with him, that is it, that God is light, and in him is no darkneſs at all.

Chriſt Jeſus the Son of God, he is the Image of his ſubſtance, the exact Image of this light, the light of the World, who is to light the World into this ſubſtance. So that as God the Father is to be known as light, ſo Chriſt the Son alſo is to be known as light. He is the only begotten of the Father of lights, the alone Image wherein the eternal ſubſtance is revealed and made known. And he that receives this Image, receives the ſubſtance; and he that receives not this Image, receives not this ſubſtance.

Now there is a Breath or Spirit from this Subſtance in this Image, which draws to the Image, (thus the Father draws to the Son;) and the Image again draws to the Subſtance, (thus the Son draws to the Father.) And ſo hearkening to this breath, the Mind and Soul is led out of the darkneſs, into the Image of light (which is the Son) and by the Image into the Subſtance: and here's the Fellowſhip which the Goſpel invites to. Joyning to this Breath, being transformed by this Breath, living in this Breath, walking in this holy Inſpiration there's an unity with the Father and the Son, who themſelves dwell in this Breath, from whom this Breath comes, in whom this Breath is, and in whom all are who are one with this Breath

This breath purgeth out the dark breath, the dark air, the dark power, the miſtery of death and darkneſs; and fills with the breath of Light, with the breath of Life, with the living Power, with the holy pure Miſtery.

Now as the Father is light, and the Son light, ſo this breath, this Spirit which proceeds from them both, is light alſo. And as the Father who is light, can alone be revealed by the Son who is light: ſo the Son who is light, can alone be revealed by the Spirit who is light.

He then who hears this Meſſage, that God is light, and feeleth himſelf darkneſs and in darkneſs, and is willing to be drawn out of the darkneſs, into fellowſhip with God, who is light. This is requiſite for him to know; Namely, how he may be drawn out, who is it that draws, and which are the drawings, that he may not reſiſt or neglect them (waiting for another thing) and ſo miſs of the true and only paſſage unto life Wherefore obſerve this heedfully.

None can draw to the Father, but the Son, none can draw to the Son, but the Father: and both theſe alone draw by the Spirit The Father by his Spirit draws to the Son, the Son by the ſame Spirit draws to the Father: and they both draw by the Spirit as he is light. as he is their light lighted to that end. For as the Father is light, and the Son light; ſo that Spirit which draws to them, muſt be light alſo. He is indeed the breath of light, eternally lighted, to draw to the eternal Image of light, and then to the eternal ſubſtance, which eternally dwels in that eternal Image.

Queſt. But how may I know the Spirit and its operations, that I may follow him, and be led by them, both to the Son and to the Father, and ſo come into the everlaſting Fellowſhip?

Anſw. The Spirit is to be know by thoſe motions and operations which are proper to him, which flow alone from him, and from nothing elſe.

Queſt. What are they?

Anſw. Convincing of ſin, and reproving for ſin, which nothing can truly diſcover and reprove, but the light of the Spirit. Darkneſs cannot make manifeſt darkneſs, but whatſoever maketh manifeſt is light. All the diſcoveries of darkneſs, in the hidden World of the heart, are from Chriſt the Sun of Righteouſneſs, by his Spirit, what name ſoever men may give it, who know not this Sun, nor its light, nor the true names of things in the light, but have named, even the things of God in the dark, and according to the dark apprehenſions and conceptions of their own imaginary mind. But this I ſay to ſuch, who are ſo ready to beat their Brains and diſpute, leave contending about names, come to the thing, come to that which reproves thee in ſecret, follow the light that thus checks and draws; be diligent, be faithful, be obedient; thou ſhalt find this lead thee to that, which all thy knowledge out of this (even all that which thou calleſt Spiritual light) will never be able to lead thee.

And when thou art joyned to this light, it will ſhew thee him whom thou haſt pierced (even ſo as never yet thou ſaweſt him) and open a freſh Vein of Bloud and grief in thee, to bleed and mourn over him; and work that Repentance in thee, which thou never waſt acquainted with before; and teach thee that Faith, to which yet thou art a ſtranger; and teach thee that ſelf-denyal, which will reach to the very root of that nature which yet lives, even under that, and by means of that which thou calleſt Spiritual light; and will lay ſuch a yoke on thy Neck, as the unrighteous one is not able to bear, yea ſuch an one as the Hypocrite (which is able to hide it under confeſſions of ſin, and forms of Zeal, Knowledge, Devotion, and Worſhip) ſhall be daily tormented and waſted with. And then thou ſhalt know what it is to wait upon God in the way of his Judgments, and find the Powers of life and death ſtriving for thy Soul, and daily flouds and ſtorms encompaſſing and attending thee, under which thou wilt aſſuredly fall and periſh, unleſs the everlaſting arm of God's power be ſtretched out for thee, and be continually redeeming thee. And then thou wilt feel and ſee how ſin is pardoned, and how it is bound; how death brake in upon Adam, and how it daily breaks in upon mankind; and what that ſtandard is, which the Spirit of the Lord lifteth up againſt the powers of darkneſs. And then thou wilt come clearly to perceive, how that which thou haſt called Religion formerly (which flowed not from this principle) hath been but the invention of thine own imaginary mind (though thou fatheredſt it upon the Scriptures, as moſt men do moſt of their inventions about Doctrine and Worſhip) wherein thou haſt been in a dream of being changed, and yet remaineſt ſtill the ſame in nature: and haſt had a name that thou haſt lived, but art ſtill dead; a name of being ſanctified, but ſtill unclean; a name of being juſtified, but ſtill condemned by the light in thine own Conſcience, which is one with him who is thy Judg, and who will judg according to it: And ſo, as that which is real taketh place in thee; ſo that which hath been but imaginary, will paſs away.

A Short CATECHISM For the ſake of the Simple Hearted.

Queſt. What is the eſtate and condition of all men by nature, as they are begotten of the Seed of the evil-doer, and come out of the Loyns of the firſt Adam.

Anſw. A ſtate of ſin and darkneſs, a ſtate of death and miſery, a ſtate of enmity againſt God, a ſtate accurſed from God, expoſed to his wrath and moſt righteous judgments, both here and hereafter.

Queſt. What brought Adam to this eſtate? and what keeps the Sons of Adam in it?

Anſw. Feeding on the tree of knowledge, from which man is not excluded to this day, though he is from the tree of life.

Queſt. How came Adam at firſt, and how come men ſtill to feed on the Tree of Knowledg?

Anſw. From a luſtful appetite and deſire after the forbidden Wiſdom, ſown in their hearts by the envious enemy of their Souls, who is continually twining about this tree, and tempting men and women to eat of it, perſwading them that the fruit thereof is good for food: and indeed it is very deſirable to their eye, and promiſeth fair to make them everlaſtingly wiſe, but ſtill faileth.

Queſt. What is the forbidden fruit?

Anſw.

Answ. It is knowledge without life, knowledge in the earthly part; knowledge acquired from below, not given from above. This promiseth to make men as God, and to give them the ability of discerning and distinguishing between good and evil, which is Gods peculiar property. Eating of this fruit undid Adam, undid the Gentiles, undid the Jews, undid the Christians, they all feeding on the Tree of Knowledge, and departing from the life in their several dispensations.

Quest. How doth this Fruit undo man?

Answ. The Wisdom and Knowledge (which they thus gather and feed upon) perverts them, makes them wise in the wrong part, exalts them against the life, dulls the true appetite, and increases the wrong appetite, in so much as there is not so much as a desire in them after God in truth, but only to get knowledge and wisdom from what they can comprehend. By this means whatsoever was afterwards ordained to life, became death to man. Thus the Gentiles liked not to retain God in their knowledg, but fell by their despensation, provoking God to cast them off, and give them up to the vanity of their imaginations. And thus the Jews (whom God then chose) fell likewise by their dispensation, God for this cause giving them up to their own hearts lust, and rejecting them from being a people. And the Gentiles (whom God ingrafted into the true Olive, in the Jews stead) they also after the same manner fell by their dispensation. Thus each of these fell by gathering Wisdom from the Letter, but missing of the life in every of these Dispensations.

Quest. What is the Food which man should feed on?

Answ. The tree of life, the word which liveth and abideth for ever, which is in the midst of the Garden of God, which word was made Flesh for mans weakness sake, on which flesh the living Soul feeds, and whose blood the living Spirit drinks, and so is nourished up to eternal life.

Quest. But had Adam this food to feed on? and was this to be the food of the Gentiles, Jews and Christians in their several dispensations?

Answ. God breathed into man the breath of Life, and man became a living Soul: and nothing less than life it self could satisfie his Soul at first, nor can to this day. Every word of God that cometh fresh out of his Mouth, is mans food and life. And God speaketh often to man, shewing him what is good: but he cannot relish or feed on this, but desireth somewhat else, through the error and alienation of his mind. And what God speaketh now to man (if that be mans life) Adam had much more of it before his fall. And for the Jews, Moses tells them the word was nigh them, in their heart, and in their mouth: and Paul also tells the Christians so. So that the word is not far from any man, but mens ears are generally stopped against it, by the subtilty of the Serpent which at first deceived them.

Quest. But did not the Jews seek for Eternal life, in reading and studying the Scriptures under their dispensation? and do not the Christians now seek for life, and to feed on life?

Answ. Yea they did, and do in their own way, but they refuse it in Gods way. Thus Adam after he had eat of the Tree of Knowledge would have fed on the Tree of Life also, but he was shut out then, and so are Christians now. And if ever they will feed on the Tree of Life, they must loose their Knowledge, they must be made blind, and be led to it by a way that they know not.

Quest. This is too mysterious for me, give me the plain litteral knowledge of the Scriptures.

Answ. Is not the substance a Mistery? Is not the life there? The letter of any dispensation killeth: it is the spirit alone that giveth life. A man may read the Letter of the Scriptures diligently, and gather a large knowledge therefrom, and feed greedily thereon, but it is only the dead Spirit which so feeds, but the Soul underneath is lean, barren, hungry and unsatisfied, which when it awakes, it will feel.

Quest. But may not the dead spirit as well imagine mysteries in every thing, and feed thereon?

Answ. Yea it may, and the error here is greater than the former: but in waiting in the humility and fear, to have the true eye opened, and the true mystery revealed to the humble and honest heart, and in receiving of that in the demonstration of the Spirit, out of the wisdom of the flesh, here is no error, but the true knowledge, which springs from life, and brings life.

Queſt. How may I come at this Myſtery?

Anſw. There is but one Key can open it, but one hand can turn that Key, and but one Veſſel, but one heart, but one ſpirit which can receive the knowledge.

Queſt. How may I come by that Heart?

Anſw. As thou being touched with the enemy, didſt let him in, and didſt not thruſt him by with the power of that life which was ſtronger than he, and nearer to thee. Even ſo now, when thou art touched and drawn by thy friend, (who is nigh) and thereby findeſt the beginning of vertue entring into thee, give up in and by that life and vertue, and wait for more; and ſtill as thou feeleſt that following, calling, and growing upon thee, follow on in it, and it will lead thee in a wonderful way out of the land of death and darkneſs, where thy Soul hath been a Captive, into the Land of Life and perfect Liberty.

Queſt. But can I do any thing toward my own Salvation?

Anſw. Of thy ſelf thou canſt not: but in the power of him that worketh both to will and to do, thou mayſt do a little at firſt: and as that power grows in thee, thou wilt be able to will more, and to do more, even until nothing become too hard for thee. And when thou haſt conquered all, ſuffered all, performed all, thou ſhalt ſee, and be able underſtandingly to ſay, thou haſt done nothing, but the eternal vertue, life and power hath wrought all in thee.

Queſt. I perceive by what is ſaid that there is a Saviour, one which hath Vertue, Life and Power in him to ſave, but how may I meet with him?

Anſw. Yea, he that made man pitieth him, and is not willing that he ſhould periſh in the Pit into which he fell, but hath appointed one to draw him out, and ſave him.

Queſt. Who is this Saviour?

Anſw. He is the Tree of Life, I have ſpoken of all this while, whoſe leaves have vertue in them to heal the Nations. He is the Plant of Righteouſneſs, the Plant of Gods right hand: (haſt thou ever known ſuch a plant in thee, planted there by the right hand of God?) He is the Reſurrection and the Life, which raiſeth the dead Soul and cauſeth it to live. He is the ſpiritual Manna, whereupon the quickned Soul feeds. Yea, his fleſh is meat indeed, and his Bloud is drink indeed, which he that is raiſed up in the life, feeds on, and findeth the living vertue in them, which ſatisfieth and nouriſheth up his Immortal Soul.

Queſt. But hath not this Saviour a Name? What is his name?

Anſw. It were better for thee to learn his name by feeling his vertue and power in thy heart, then by rote. Yet (if thou canſt receive it) this is his Name, The Light, The Light of the World, (a Light to enlighten the Gentiles, that he may convert and make them Gods Iſrael, and become their Glory.) And according to his Office, he hath enlightned every man that cometh into the World, though men neither know the light that cometh from him, nor him from whom the light comes; and ſo notwithſtanding the Light is ſo neer them, remain ſtrangers to it, and unſaved by it.

Queſt. Why doſt thou call him the Light? are there not other names every whit as proper, whereby he may as well be known?

Anſw. Do not thus ſet up the wiſe and ſtumbling part in thee, but mind the thing which firſt puts forth its vertue as light, and ſo is thus firſt to be known, owned and received. Yet more particularly, if thou haſt wherewith, conſider this reaſon. We call him Light, becauſe the Father of Lights hath peculiarly choſen this name for him, to make him known to his people in this age by, and hath thus made him manifeſt to us. And by thus receiving him, under this name, we come to know his other names. He is the Life, the Righteouſneſs, the Power, the Wiſdom, the Peace, &c. but he is all theſe in the Light, and in the Light we learn and receive them all: and they are none of them to be known in ſpirit, but in and by the Light.

Queſt. How are the other Names of Chriſt known in and by the Light?

Anſw. Letting in the Light (which convinceth of and warreth againſt ſin) the Life ſtirs and is felt, and the life leads to the word which was in the beginning, and giveth the feeling of that alſo. And in the word, the Righteouſneſs, the Peace, the Wiſdom, the Power, the Love is felt; and he is made all theſe to thoſe who are led into, and kept in the Light. And when the powers of darkneſs appear with mighty dread, and and there is no strength to withstand them, this lifts up a Standard against them; and calms all the Tempests, and cures all the Wounds and Diseases of the Soul, anointing it with the everlasting Oyl, so that now I can sensibly, and with clear understanding call it my Saviour, the Captain of my Salvation, my Christ or anointed, my Husband, my King, my Lord, my God.

Quest. Where doth this Light shine?

Answ. In the darkness at first: but when it hath vanquished, expelled and dispersed the darkness, it shines out of it.

Quest. What is that Darkness wherein the Light shines?

Answ. Man: mans heart, mans Conscience, mans Spirit. This is the World, which Christ the Son of Righteousness is the light of, in every part whereof he causeth the rays or beams of his Light to shine at his pleasure, though in no part the darkness can comprehend the least shining of his Light?

Quest. How then can it ever be converted thereby?

Answ. The darkness is not to be converted. Every man in this state is reprobated and the wrath abideth on him. So that the darkness is rejected, and man in the darkness: but man touched by the light, , made sensible of it, and following it in the life and power which it begets, is drawn out of the horrible Pit, and saved.

Quest. How may I do to find the Light in the midst of the darkness of my heart, which is so great, and this Seed so small?

Answ. By its discovering and warring against the darkness. There is somewhat which discovereth both the open and secret iniquity of the corrupt Heart, following it under all its coverings of Zeal, Holiness, and all manner of voluntary Humility, and self-Righteousness (with which the true light never had unity) and sometimes may cause secret misgivings that all is not well, but there may be a flaw found in this covering, and in the end it may prove too narrow for the Soul. This which thus warreth against the darkness, to bring people off from all false foundations, to the true and living foundation, this is the Light, and thus thou maist find it, at some time or other at work in thy heart, if thou mind it.

Quest. Having found the Light, how may I come to feel the saving vertue and power of it?

Answ. By believing in it. For the Virtue and Power springs up in the heart that believes in it.

Quest. How can I believe in it? Am not I dead?

Answ. There is a creating, a quickning Power in the light, which begets a little life, and that can answer the voice of the living Power.

Quest. Yea, If I could find any such thing begotten in me, then I might be drawn to assent that, that (though never so small) might believe, but surely my dead heart never can.

Answ. Hast thou never found a true honest breathing towards God? Hast thou never found sin, not an imaginary, but a real burthen? this was from life; there was somewhat begotten of God in thee, which felt this: It was not the flesh and bloud in thee, but somewhat from above. And if this had known the spring of its life, and not been deceived from it by the subtilty, it would have fed upon, and have grown up in the vertue and power of the spring, from whence its life came.

Quest. Why then by this all men have power to believe.

Answ. In the light which shines in all, and visits all, there is the Power: and this Power strives with the creature to work it self into the creature: and where there hath been the least breathing after life, there hath been a taste of the Power: for this came from it. But the great deceiver of Souls lifts up mens minds in the imagination, to look for some great appearance of Power, and so they slight and overlook the day of small things, and neglect receiving the beginning of that, which in the issue would be the thing they look for. Waiting in that which is low and little in the heart, the Power enters, the Seed grows, the Kingdom is felt, and daily more and revealed in the Power. And this is the true door and way to the thing, take heed of climbing over it.

Quest. What is it to believe in the light?

Answ. To receive its Testimony either concerning good or evil: and so either to turn towards or from, in the Will and Power which the Light begets in the heart.

Quest.

Queſt. How will this ſave me?

Anſw. By this means, that in thee which deſtroys thee, and ſeparates thee from the living God, is daily wrought out, and the heart daily changed into the Image of him who is light, and brought into unity and fellowſhip with the light poſſeſſing of it, and being poſſeſſed by it, and this is Salvation.

Queſt. We thought Salvation had been a thing to be beſtowed hereafter, after the death of the body: but if it be thus, then Salvation is wrought out here.

Anſw. So it is, even in all that are ſaved: for there is no working of it out hereafter, but here it is wrought out with fear and trembling, and the believer (who is truly in unity with the life) daily changed from glory to glory, as by the Spirit of the Lord.

Queſt. But ſhew more particularly, how Faith or believing in the light worketh out the Salvation.

Anſw. Firſt, it cauſeth a fear and trembling to ſeize upon the ſinner. The Lord God Almighty, by the riſing of his light in the heart, cauſeth the powers of darkneſs to ſhake, the earth to tremble, the Hills and Mountains to melt, and the goodly Fruit-Trees to caſt their Fruit. And then the Plant of the Lord ſprings up out of the dry and barren ground, which by the dews and ſhowrs from above, thrives, grows, and ſpreads, till it fills God's earth.

2. In this fear and trembling, the work of true Repentance and Converſion is begun and carried on. There is a turning of the Soul from the darkneſs to the light; from the dark power, to the light Power; from the Spirit of deceit, to the Spirit of truth; from all falſe appearances and imaginations about holineſs, to that which the eternal light manifeſteth to be truly ſo And now is a time of mourning, of deep mourning, while the ſeparation is working, while the enemies ſtrength is not broken and ſubdued, and while the heart is now and then feeling it ſelf ſtill hankering after its old lovers.

3. In the belief of the light, and in the fear placed in the heart, there ſprings up an hope, a living hope, in the living principle, which hath manifeſted it ſelf and begun to work. For the Soul truly turning to the light, the everlaſting Arm, the living Power is felt: and the Anchor being felt, it ſtays the Soul in all the troubles, ſtorms, and tempeſts it meets with afterwards, which are many, yea, very many.

4. Faith, through the hope, works Righteouſneſs, and teaches the true Wiſdom (and now the benefit of all the former trouble, anguiſh and miſery begins to be felt and the Work goes on ſweetly.) All the unrighteouſneſs is in the darkneſs, in the unbelief, in the falſe hope; Faith in the light works out the unrighteouſneſs, and works in the righteouſneſs of God in Chriſt. And it makes truly Wiſe, Wiſe in the living Power, even Wiſe againſt the Evil and to the Good, which no man can learn elſe where.

5. In the Righteouſneſs, and in the true Wiſdom which is received in the light, there ſprings up a love, and an unity, and fellowſhip with God the Father of lights, and with all who are Children of the light. Being begotten by Chriſt the light, into the nature of the light, and brought forth in the Image, there is an unity ſoon felt with God the Father, and with thoſe who are born of the ſame Womb, and partake of the ſame nature. And here is a Willingneſs and Power felt in this love, to lay down the life, even for the leaſt truth of Chriſts, or for the brethren.

6. Belief in the light works Patience, Meekneſs, Gentleneſs, Tenderneſs, and Long-ſuffering. It will bear any thing for God, any thing for mens Souls ſake. It will wait quietly and ſtilly for the carrying on of the Work of God in its own Soul, and for the manifeſtation of God's Love and Mercy to others. It will bear the contradiction and reproach of ſinners, ſeeking their good, even while they are plotting, contriving, and hatching miſchief, laying many ſubtle ſnares, and longing thereby to entrap the Innocent.

7. It brings Peace, Joy, and Glory. Faith in the light breaks down the Wall of darkneſs, the Wall of partition, that which ſeparates from the Peace, that which cauſeth the anguiſh and trouble upon the Soul, and ſo brings into peace. Chriſt is the skilful Phyſitian, he cures the diſeaſe, by removing the cauſe. The unskilful Phyſitians they heal deceitfully, crying Peace, Peace, when there is no Peace, while that which breaks the Peace is ſtanding: but Chriſt doth not ſo, but ſlays the enmity in the heart by the bloud of his Croſs, ſo making Peace. And this is true Peace, and certain Peace.

Now

Now finding the clods of earth removed, the enemy, the disturber, the Peace breaker trodden down, the sin taken away, the life and power present, the Soul brought into the peace, here's joy, unspeakable joy, joy which the World cannot see or touch, nor the powers of darkness come near to interrupt. Here's now no more crying out, O Wretched man; and who shall deliver &c. but a rejoycing in him who hath given Victory, and made the Soul a Conquerour, yea, more then a Conquerour. Wait to feel that, thou who art now groaning, and oppressed by the mercilesse Powers of darkness.

And this joy is full of glory, which glory increaseth daily more and more, by the daily sight and feeling of the living Virtue and Power in Christ the light, whereby the Soul is continually transformed (and changed more and more) out of the corruptible, into the incorruptible; out of the uncircumcision, the shame, the reproach, into the circumcision, the life, the glory.

Quest. Doth the light do all this?

Answ. Yea, in them that turn towards it, give up to it, and abide in it. In them it cleanseth out the thickness and darkness, and daily transformeth them into the Image Purity and perfection of the Light. And this nothing can do but the Light alone.

Quest. What makes men generally so averse from the Light?

Answ. Their unity with the darkness, which the light is an enemy to, discovering and disturbing it.

Quest. But Wise men, Knowing men (men who are looked upon as having most light) they also are enemies to this light, and speak hardly of it.

Answ. Was it not always so? Did any of the Rulers, or Wise Scribes and Teachers of the Law believe in him formerly? And is it any Wonder if such believe not in him now?

Quest. What may be the reason, why the Wise men formerly have not, and now cannot believe in the light?

Answ. There are two great reasons for it.

1. Because they cannot comprehend it. They can comprehend the knowledge which they can gather out of the Book of nature, or out of the Books of the Law and Prophets, or out of the Books of the Evangilists and Apostles, but they cannot comprehend the light which all these testifie of: (so that such a kind of knowledge they can receive, but the light they cannot) for it is not to be comprehended but gathereth into it self, and comprehendeth.

2. Because it is an utter enemy to them. It will not Wink at the closest of their evils, nor speak peace to them therein. Their own gathered knowledge may speak peace to them, but this will not. Thus the Jews could speak peace to themselves from Temple, Ordinances, and Sacrifices, though they walked in the stubbornness and uncircumcision of their hearts, resisting the checks and motions of the holy Spirit there: and thus the Christians can speak peace to themselves, from a belief and hope through Christs dying at Jerusalem (though they know not him in them, and are at a distance, and not one with that in their hearts which is of Christ, and in his power and authority checks and reproves for sin) but the light will not speak peace so, but only where the vertue of the living bloud is felt, cleansing away sin.

Quest. But there are many professors, strict professors (who, without doubt, have once tasted of the living Virtue) what makes them such enemies to to the Light? For there are none speak more against it than they.

Answ. Because they are fallen from what they once had, for if they were in that living principle, which once gave them a true taste of life through the Scriptures, they could not but know and own the light which was the thing which gave them the taste, and would have preserved their relish, had they known how to turn to it and abide in it.

2. The Light is a Witness against all their knowledge and Religious practises, and imitations from the Scripture, which they hold and practice out of the Light, in the unrighteousness, even in that part which is not to know or be the Worshipper. And can ye blame them, that when the Light is so great an enemy to them that they all turn head against it? How is it possible that having slain and murthered the just one in themselves, they should acknowledge and give him his due honour in the others?

Quest.

Queſt: But have the ſtrict profeſſors who pretend great things in honour of Chriſt, murthered him in themſelves?

Anſw. Yea verily, as really as the Scribes and Phariſees and people of the Jews put him to death at Jeruſalem: for what they do to the leaſt appearance of his light in their hearts they do it unto him; Yea, our Lord Chriſt at this very day, is as really Crucified in their Spiritual Egypt and Sodom, as he was without the Gates of Jeruſalem. And his righteous Bloud cries as loud againſt the Profeſſors of this age, as ever it did againſt the Jews: and they are hardened againſt him by a conceited knowledge, which by their imaginations they have gathered from the Scriptures, juſt as the Jews were but the eye in them can no more ſee it, then the eye in the Jews could:

Queſt. Surely if they knew the Light to be the only living Way, they would not be ſuch enemies to it.

Anſw. Yea, I believe concerning them (as was ſaid concerning the Jews) that if they knew it, they would not crucifie the Lord of glory: for I bear many of them record, that they have a great Zeal, though not according to knowledge. But at preſent very ſad is their ſtate: for the God of the World hath blinded the eye in them, which alone can ſee the truth; and with that eye, wherewith they now ſtrive to ſee, they ſhall never ſee with comfort. Yea, ſo exceeding groſs and thick are many of them become, and their hearts ſo fat, that inſtead of feeling the want of the Spirit of God in themſelves, and mourning after it, they can mock at the appearances of it in others, and ſpeak contemptibly of a light within, where Chriſt ſaith the light is; For, ſaith Chriſt, Take heed that the light which is in thee be not darkneſs: for if, &c. Luke 11. 35, 36.

Queſt. But will not they reply that they do not oppoſe (much leſs mock at) the Light of the Spirit, but only that which ye ignorantly call the Light of the Spirit?

Anſw. If we have found it to be the Light of the Spirit, and to work that in us and for us, which no other Light ever could, do not blame us for giving in our Teſtimony that it is that Light. And take heed how ye reproach us with ignorance, ſeeing many of us have paſſed through all that which ye call knowledge: but our light is a new and ſtrange thing to you, and ye are not yet able to judge it.

Queſt. But may not men obtain eternal life by reading the Scriptures, without knowing or owning this Principle of the Light.

Anſw. The true end of mens reading the Scriptures, is to turn them to the Light. The Scriptures contain meſſages concerning God, concerning Chriſt, concerning the Spirit, the end whereof, is to turn men to the power and life, which can do the thing for them which God, which Chriſt, which Spirit fills all things, and are within in the heart, as well as without. The word is nigh thee in thy heart, and in thy mouth, ſaith Moſes to the Jews, ſaith Paul to the Chriſtians. And to what end do they tell them it is there? But that there they ſhould wait upon it, to hear its voice, and to obey it. Now mark, though men could practiſe and perform all things mentioned in the Scriptures, yet not being turned to this, they are not in the way of Salvation: for the way of Salvation is not a peculiar path or courſe of Ordinances and Duties preſcribed in the Scriptures, but it is a new way, a living way, a way that the wiſeſt profeſſors, out of it never knew (I will lead them in paths they have not known) So that while men know not, nor are turned to the Light and power whereof the Scriptures teſtifie, all their reading of the Scriptures, praying and practiſing Ordinances and Duties there mentioned, are but in vain, and in the end will prove but a falſe covering, and not the covering of the ſpirit.

Queſt. But how did men do formerly? for this is but a late notion about the Light? Have none ever been ſaved that have not embraced this notion?

Anſw. I ſpeak not of embracing a notion, but of turning to the thing it ſelf, without which none ever was, or can be ſaved: for it is that alone can ſave, and it ſaves only them that are turned to it. Now if any man ſo read the Scriptures, as thereby to learn to turn to this, he may feel that which will work Salvation in him, though he know not its name. For as darkneſs, being turned to, works Death in a myſtery, though its name be not known, but it may appear and be taken for Light: So Light being turned to, works life in a myſtery, although he in whom it works, ſhould not be able to call it by its name.

Queſt.

Quest. Then by this, a man may be saved, though he should not know the literal name Jesus, or the literal Name Christ, &c.

Answ The names are but the signification of the thing spoken of, for it is the life, the power (the being transformed by that) that saves, not the knowledge of a name. And Christians mightily deceive themselves herein: for they think to be saved by believing a relation concerning Christ, as he appeared in a fleshly body, and suffered Death at Jerusalem. Whereas Christ is the same yesterday, to day, and for ever: and the saving knowledge reveals him, not only as he was then, but as he was the day before, and he will be for ever. And this knowledge is also revealed in the Scripture but they are so drowned in the Letter, wherewith the carnal part is so filled, that the spiritual eye cannot open in them to see: and so that which was ordained for life, becomes Death to them, and they perish, they perish just as the Jews did: for their eyes are with-held by a Wisdom which they have grown up in from the Letter, from the beholding the mystery of life in the Spirit, which alone can work out and save from the mystery of Death.

Quest. But did not God formerly, work life in men by their reading of the Scriptures, and by the Preaching of such Godly Ministers, as are now despised, and accounted Antichristian.

Answ. When men read the Scriptures formerly in the times of thick darkness, and when some of those (who were not made Ministers according to the Order of the Gospel) preached in the simplicity of their hearts, according to the best light of their feeling and experience, the Lord pitied the simplicity of their hearts, and secretly refreshed this principle in them by such reading, and by such preaching. But now this principle is made manifest, their reading and setting up a knowledge of the Scriptures without this (which was the thing even then from whence they had their life) yea in opposition to this, this increaseth their Death and Bondage, and shuts them out of life.

Quest. Well I will keep to the Scriptures, and wait for Light there, let who will follow this new Light.

Answ. Wilt thou keep to the Scriptures in opposition to that Light, which alone can give thee the knowledge of the Scriptures? what kind of knowledge wilt thou gather from the Scriptures? not a knowledge which will humble thee, and cleanse thy heart; but a knowledge which will puff thee up, and fit thee for the slaughter. While thou art from the Light, thou canst not know the Scriptures, nor the power of God, but set exalting thine own imaginations, concsivings and reasonings without the sense of Scriptures. And this thou wilt one day know with sorrow, when God calls thee to an account for thy boldness, in putting senses and meanings upon his Words without his Light.

Quest. I am almost startled.

Answ. Many have fallen, and more must fall: for the sharp Ax of the Lord is prepared to cut down every professor, with all his profession and religious practises and imitations from Scripture, which stand not in the pure life. Happy art thou, if thou now fall by that hand, which now strikes at many in great loving kindness and mercy, that he might raise them up again, and fix them firm on the true foundation: But miserable are those, whose eyes are with-held, till the day of their Visitation be overslipt, and so they continue keeping their corrupt standing, and confidence in their fleshly knowledge of Scriptures, for they also must fall, but their fall will be otherwise.

Mind therefore this my single-hearted advice.

Let thy Religion be to feel the pure principle of life in the pure vessel of Life, for the eye must be pure that sees the life, and the heart that receives it. And Faith is a pure mystery, and it is only held in a pure Conscience. Know that in thee that purifies thee, and then thou knowest Christ, and the Father and the Spirit: and as that lives and grows up in thee, so shalt thou know their dwelling place, and partake of their life and fulness.

BABYLON the Great DESCRIBED.

The City of Confusion.

In every part whereof Antichrist Reigns.

Which knoweth not the Order and Unity of the Spirit, but striveth to set up an Order and Uniformity according to the Wisdom of the flesh, in all her Territories and Dominions.

Her SINS, Her JUDGMENTS.

With some plain Queries further to discover her, And some considerations to help out of her Suburbs, that her inward building may lye the more open to the Breath and Spirit of the Lord, from which it is to receive its Consumption and Overthrow.

Also, An Exhortation to the Powers of the Earth.

By Isaac Pennington, the Younger.

That which is far off, and exceeding deep, who can find out? I and mine heart compassed to know, and to search, and to seek out wisdom, and the reason, and to know the wickedness of folly, even of foolishness and madness. And I find more bitter than Death, the woman whose Heart is Snares and Nets, her Hands, Bands. He that is good before God, shall escape from her, but the Sinner shall be taken by her, Eccles. 7:24, 25, 26.

He that is Born of the pure Immortal Seed, and lives in the anointing, escapes the Golden Cup of Fornication, and all the painted Beds of Fornication, and is not defiled with Women. Rev. 14. 4. but remains chaste to the Bridegroom.

LO this is the City which is built up of, and filled with Images, and likenesses of the ways and truths of God, without the life and power.

On her outside there's the likeness of a Church, the likeness of a Ministry, the likeness of the Ordinances, Duties and ways of Holiness.

On her inside there's the likeness of the good knowledge, the likeness of Repentance and Conversion, the likeness of Faith, the likeness of Zeal for God, the likeness of Love to God and his Saints, the likeness of the Lambs meekness and innocency; the likeness of justification, the likeness of sanctification, the likeness of mortification, the likeness of hope, peace, joy, rest, and satisfaction, &c. but the substance, the truth, the vertue of all these is wanting to her, and she her self is found persecuting that very thing (where it is found in truth) the Image whereof she cries up.

This, This, is the Woman that hath bewitched the whole earth for their many generations,, and is still changing her dresses and paints, that she might still bewitch people, and fit as a Queen Reigning over their Consciences. But blessed be the Light which is arisen to discover, and the power which is able to overthrow this stately, this lofty, this mighty City, and all that take part with it.

The Lord God Omnipotent Reigneth in Sion, and Antichrist with his City Babylon falleth. Sing Praises, Sing Praises O inhabitants of Sion, to him who subjecteth Babylon (with all her Glory) under thy feet.

For he bringeth down them that dwell on high, the lofty City he layeth it low; he layeth it low, even to the ground, he bringeth it even to the dust. The foot shall tread it down (the feet of the poor, the steps of the needy) Isa. 26. 5, 6.

The

The PREFACE.

THere hath been in me a zeal for God from my Childhood, and a moſt earneſt ſearch into the Scriptures (which my Soul deeply reliſhed, and my heart honoured and loved, and ſtill doth) for the revelation of the mind and will of God. Two things did I earneſtly ſearch and beg for: The one was, for the diſcovery of the outward way of Worſhip; The other, for the inward Life, Vertue, and Power, which I looked upon the outward, as the proper means to lead me to. At the beginning of the troubles in theſe Nations, there was a lively ſtirring in me, and an hope that God was bringing forth ſomewhat; I likewiſe felt the ſame ſtirring in many others, at which my heart was rejoyced, and with which my Soul was refreſhed; but I found it ſoon begin to flag and wither, which forced me to retire, and to ſeparate from that, where I found the life and power dying and decaying. In my ſeparation the Lord was with me, my Soul remembreth it right well, and he had regard to the Simplicity, Honeſty, and Integrity of my heart (which he himſelf had kindled in me:) And though I fell too ſoon into a way of Church-fellowſhip and Ordinances, yet he had regard to me, and pitied me, and refreſhed my life even there. But at length the form overgrew us, and the ſweet and precious life in us began to dye. Then the Lord found out another way to refreſh us (namely by a ſenſible relating of our conditions, and of his dealings with us, and workings in us) which was very ſweet and precious at firſt, but the enemy creep'd in there alſo. Out of this ſtate I never made any change, but here the hand of the Lord fell upon me, ſtriking at my very root, breaking all my life in ſunder, and trampling my Crown in the duſt. Then I became a man of ſorrows (being ſtripped of all my Life, Faith, Hope, Joy, Comfort in, one day) not knowing which way to look, nor what to deſire. Sometimes there were breathings ſtirring in me, but they were preſently judged: Sometimes a little glance of refreſhment from a Scripture preſented to me, but ſuddenly taken away, and my death and darkneſs increaſed thereby. Then ſhould I wiſh, O that I might appear before his Throne; for ſurely my Conſcience is clear in his ſight, and I have not wickedly departed from my God, but was broken in pieces by his hand, even while my Soul was earneſtly ſeeking after him. O how my Soul did mourn, to ſee how I was fit to be made a prey to every ravening Spirit! And many did ſeek to devour me, but the hand of the Lord was with me, preſerving me, though I knew it not. And though I was wholly broken, and deſolate of all that I had called, or could call knowledge, (inſomuch as that I could not call any thing either good or evil) yet the Lord by a ſecret inſtinct, preſerved me exceedingly out of that which was evil, and kept my heart ſecretly panting after the Fountain and Well-ſpring of good. Yea, when I was at length (through deep deſpair of ever meeting with God any more in this life) captivated by the World, and betrayed by the love of it (which at laſt roſe up in me, and gained upon me, by perſwading me that my preſent eſtate and condition did require the free uſe of it, and the enjoyment of all it could afford) yet the Lord followed me, and often was I viſited with ſecret loathings of the World, and turnings from it, and pantings after the ſpring of my life: but theſe were dreaded by me, and ſuddenly quenched by the evil part, for fear of that miſery and unutterable anguiſh which I had felt hereby, the remembrance whereof was freſh in me.

In this my courting of the World, and estrangement from the life, the reasoning part (which the Lord hath been long battering, and had laid very low) gathered strength in me; and I began to grow Wise again, and able to judge of the things of God, and to hope and wait for some great appearance, wherein at length I might be visited, and meet with that which I so vehemently desired, and stood in such need of. Thereby the enemy deeply deceived me, pleasing me herewith, and keeping me hereby from unity with that, which alone was able to give me the sight of him, when ever he should appear. And in this fleshly Wisdom, I judged and despised the true life in others, as weak, low, and not able to bring them to that which I stood in need of, and waited for. Yea, the more I considered and reasoned in my mind, and the more I conversed with them (hoping thereby to find some clear ground either of owning or turning from them) the further off still was I, till at length the Lord powerfully touched, and raised up the life in me (which by all these reasonings and consultations, all this while, I slew) and then by degrees (waiting upon that) I saw, I felt, I tasted, I handled, as the Lord pleased to open to me here, that which was shut out from me in my narrowest search and closest reasonings. Thus the Jew in me was cast off, and the Gentile called: But who can read this? I am sure the eye of mans Religious Wisdom cannot.

Hereby my eyes have been opened, and I have seen the Fetters, whereby I have been held Captive from my life all my days: Yea, many of the Streets and Chambers of Babylon hath mine eye beheld (in the pure life) wherein the Witch dwels which enchanteth from the Life: Yea, I have heard the tongue of the false Prophet, which speaketh so like the true Prophet, as no flesh can discern or distinguish between them: Yea, I have seen the Dragon in the Temple, worshipped there for God, by the strictest sort of Professors. And now in tender Bowels, in the true light of Life, from the pure movings of the eternal Spirit (as the Lord pleaseth to guide and direct) do I come forth to visit my poor fellow Creatures and Captives in Babylon? And what I have seen and known I testifie for the relief of others, that if it be possible (by the mercy and good hand of God) they may escape that misery, wherewith my poor Soul hath been overwhelmed, and may come out of that filthy abominable City which God is making desolate; where the pure Life, the conquering Faith, the suffering Love, the purifying Hope, the putting off of the body of sin, the puting on the living garment is not, nor cannot be witnessed, but men are only dreaming of these things in Babylon, where all the satisfaction they have, is from the pleasure of their dream; but when they awake they will find leanness, and penury, and nakedness upon their Souls.

A Deſcription of Babylon for the ſake of the Daughter of Sion, which at preſent dwelleth in the midſt thereof.

Now, though the World be deaf and blind (even all ſorts of Worldly profeſſors, from the higheſt to the loweſt) yet open your ears, and hear the joyful ſound; open your eyes, and ſee the City of deſolations, and of all the abominations of the earth (both of Fleſh and Spirit:) and feel in your ſelves what it is, which is to be led out, and what is to lead you, that your feet may be guided to, and ſet firm upon Mount Sion, where the life rules over all her enemies.

BABYLON is the ſpiritual Fabrick of Iniquity, the Myſtical great City of the great King of darkneſs, built in imitation of Sion, painted juſt like Sion, that it might be taken for Sion, and be worſhipped there, inſtead of the true eternal ever-living God, and King of Sion.

This is the ſeat of the man of ſin: Where there is a Building framed in any heart, or in any Society of men like Sion, there he lodges, there he lives, there he ſits as God, there he reigns, there he is Worſhipped, there he is exalted above all that can truly be called God in that heart, or in that Society.

1. It is a City, This is a proper Parable, to diſcover the Myſtery of iniquity by, in this ſtate, it is juſt like a City, in its kind it is a City. In a City there are ſeveral Streets, in the Streets, Houſes; in the Houſes, ſeveral Rooms, to which Families and Perſons appertain, and to all theſe there are Laws and Governments. Thus it is here, there are many Streets in this City Babylon, many Houſes in every Street, many Rooms in every Houſe: and the Houſes and Rooms have their ſeveral Families and Perſons appertaining to them, and they have their Laws and Governments, their knowledge of God and Chriſt, their Order, their Worſhip, their Diſcipline in which they walk, and by which they order themſelves in their ſeveral ſervices, places, offices, and employments under the King of Babylon.

2. It is a Spiritual or Myſtical City, It is not an outward building of earthly materials, but an inward building of inward materials. As the outward Sion, the outward Jeruſalem is paſſed away in its uſe and ſervice: ſo the outward Babylon is out of date to. (Ye need not look ſo far for it.) And as God hath built up an inward City, a ſpiritual Building: ſo hath the King of darkneſs likewiſe. (He could never have tempted from the City of the living God, from the City of the myſtery of life, but by the City of the myſtery of deceit.) And as God builds his City of hewen Stones, of ſquared Stones, of living Stones: ſo alſo hath the King of darkneſs his hewings, his ſquarings, his preparations, his qualifications for his buildings. If the light break forth, and make it appear too groſs to have the whole Nation a Church, or to admit an whole Pariſh to Ordinances, he will gather a Church out of the Nation, and ſelect ſome of his choicer Stones out of the Pariſh; yea, he may graſp in ſome of the Stones of the true Temple, if they come within his reach and circle, that is, if they look abroad, if they ſtep forth, and keep not cloſe to the annointing within, which is the great and only Ordinance of the Saints preſervation from Antichriſt's power: for if they ſtep forth, but ſo much as into a Prayer againſt Antichriſt, out of this; they are caught in his ſnare, and are ſerving him in that very prayer, which they may ſeem with great earneſtneſs and zeal to put up againſt him.

It is a great City, an overſpreading City, a City that overſpreads the earth. As Sion was a vaſt City, a City that did overſpread the Nations. How did the Faith of the Goſpel over-run the World in the Apoſtles days! ſo this City hath alſo over-run the World. Indeed it hath taken up the whole Territories and Dominions of the other

City

City (and hath enlarged it self further) and Sion hath been laid in the dust, and trodden under foot. And though many Witnesses, Prophets, and Martyrs, have mourned over her, yet none have been able to raise up the Tabernacle of David which hath fallen down, nor to recover Sion to this day, but Babylon hath had the power over her. Look with the true eye, and behold how all Nations, Kindreds, Tongues, and Languages, have been drunk with some or other of the mixtures of this false Womans Cup (some of them over, and over, and over again) and have been Inhabitants of this City, crying her up (though not all in her gross habit, but some in her more refined shapes and transformings) for the true Church, for Sion, whereas alas, she hath only Sions dress, Sions shape, Sions outward garment (which is the likeness wherein she lies in wait to deceive) but not Sions Spirit.

4. It is a City of Iniquity, of hidden Iniquity: That which is hid in this City, it is not the life, it is not the righteousness, the holiness of the Saints; but iniquity, sin, transgression of the life: Look into any of the Streets of Babylon, into any of the Houses, any of the Rooms, any of the Chambers of Darkness: there's sin there, there's unrighteousness there, there's not one cleansed heart to be found there, not one pure eye to behold the God of life is to be found there; but in every heart sin in a mystery, iniquity in a mystery, unrighteousness in a mystery. They seem to be for God and Christ, and to be cleansed by them, but uncleanness lodges in them, and sin rules in them against God, and against his Christ in a mystery, which their eye cannot see; and so must needs mistake their state: Yet this is the true state of Babylon in all the parcels of it, it is the unclean City, where purity of heart and life cannot be known, but though it be washed and transformed never so often outwardly, yet still it remains inwardly polluted, that which defileth keeping possession and dominion there in a mystery. The living water, the living blood, runs not in any of the Streets of this City, so that there can be no true cleansing there. Nay, such strangers are the choicest Inhabitants of Babylon to the Fountain of life in Sion, to the River that cleanseth and healeth, that they cannot so much as believe that there is a possibility of cleansing and perfect healing, and making sound and whole here, while on earth. There is great talk of these things (of the water, the Blood, the cleansing) in all the Regions of Babylon, (which hath heard of the fame, and forms to it self a likeness) but the thing it self is not to be found there, and so the vertue, which comes from the thing it self alone, cannot be felt there.

And here, in this there is a great difference between the vessels of Sion, and the vessels of Babylon: The Vessels of Sion, they are weak, earthen, foolish, contemptible to the eye of mans wisdom (which cannot look for any great matter of excellency there: but the Treasure, the liquor of life in them is precious. The vessels of Babylon make a great shew, appear very holy, very heavenly, very zealous for God and Christ, and for the setting up of his Church and Ordinances all over the World. Thus they appear without, but they are Sepulchers, there's rottenness within: under all this there lodgeth an unclean, an unsanctified heart, an heart unsubdued to the spirit and power of the Gospel, while it makes such a great shew of subjection and Obedience to the Letter.

5. It is the City of the King of Darkness, of the great King of Darkness, of the Prince of the power of the Air, who rules universally in the darkness, in the mystery of iniquity throughout, even in every Heart. Where-ever is Sin, there is Satans Throne; and there he hath his Laws, his Government, his power in every heart of his Dominion. And where there is the least subjection to him, he is yet a Prince, his building is not as yet there wholly thrown down, he is not there as yet dispossessed and cast out. As long as there is any thing left wherein he may dwell, he knows his own, and keeps his hold of it. It is his right, and he will not lose it. All sin, all darkness is properly his: it is his seat, and he hath the Government there. Man is the Land where these two Kings fight, and whatever is good and holy belongs to the one King, and whatever is evil and unclean belongs to the other, and there is no communion or peace between them, but each keep their own, and gather of their own unto themselves. And where the fight is once begun between these, there is no quietness in that Land till one of these be dispossessed: but then there is either the peace of Babylon, most commonly under a form of holiness, or the peace of Sion in the spirit, life and power.

6. This

6 This City was built (and is daily built) in imitation of Sion, painted juſt like Sion. The intent of its building was to eat out Sion, to ſuppreſs Sion, to withdraw from the truth by a falſe Image, and to keep her Inhabitants in peace and ſatisfaction, under a belief and hope that it is the true Sion; and therefore it muſt needs be made like Sion, elſe it could no way ſuit theſe Ends. Every Street muſt be like the Streets of Sion, every Houſe like the Houſes of Sion, every Tribe and Family like the Tribes and Families of Sion, every perſon like the perſons in Sion, all the Laws, Ordinances, &c. like the Laws and Ordinances of Sion, the Worſhip like the Worſhip in Sion, the Faith like the Faith of Sion, the painted Chriſt like the Chriſt of Sion, all that go for Truths like the Truths of Sion, they would not deceive elſe; City Babylon would be ſoon ſeen through elſe, and become quickly deſolate and forſaken, did ſhe not lay her paint very thick, and with great art and skill. Now here's the Wiſdom, here's the true eye tried, to ſee through all the paints of this City in all the ſhapes and forms of it, to turn from every Street, every Houſe, every Chamber, every Image and falſe appearance of Truth, every falſe appearance of Ordinances and ways of Worſhip, every likeneſs of things which the ſpirit forms from the Letter, every Duty that it thus calls for, every promiſe of Scripture which it endeavours to apply to that to which it belongs not, that it might lull the Soul aſleep, and cozen and deceive it of the thing promiſed: here I ſay is the true eye tryed to turn from all this, and to wait for the raiſing and redeeming of the true ſeed of Sion, and for the ſpringing up of the true life and power in it and from it: For as long as this Spirit can deceive you with any likeneſs, ye ſhall never know the truth, nor come to the Worſhip of the true living God, which alone is in the Spirit, and in the Truth.

7. The end of all this, of Satans building up this City, this great City (thus accurately in the power of deceit, and in the very likeneſs of Sion) was, and is, that it might be taken for Sion, and be worſhipped there as God, and that without jealouſie or ſuſpicion: And he hath attained his end, his City hath deceived and doth deceive, it paſſeth currant for Sion among all the Inhabitants of Babylon; almoſt every ſort of people cry it up for Sion, in one appearance or other, though all do not cry up the ſame appearance; but their own Image, Way and Worſhip every one extolls; their own Image of the Truth for the Truth, their own way of Worſhip for the way, their own Church and Family for the Church and Family of God. And worſhipping here, they worſhip him, and not the Lord: for the Lord cannot be worſhipped in any part of Babylon, but the King of Babylon is Worſhipped in Babylon, and the King of Sion alone in Sion. Ah how deeply do men deceive their Souls! they think they believe in God, they think they pray to God, and hope to be owned at length by God, and yet are ſo far from coming out of Myſtery Babylon, that it was never yet ſo much as diſcovered to them; but they have either walked in the way of Religion and Worſhip they were brought up in, in the Apoſtacy, or perhaps have removed out of one or two of the broad Streets of it, and ſo thereby think they have left Babylon, when as the ſame Spirit hath ſat down in another Street of the ſame City, building up another Houſe by the direction of the King thereof, and there Worſhipping the ſame Spirit as they did before; but their Souls never knew the Fire in Sion, and the Furnace in Jeruſalem, by which the very inwards of their Spirits muſt be cleanſed, before the pure eye of life be opened which can ſee Sion.

Now becauſe ye are more able to receive things from Scripture-expreſſions, then from the nature of the thing it ſelf, ſpoken as it is felt in the heart (concerning which, much more might be ſaid, were ye able to bear it) conſider a few Scriptures.

Babylon is called a great City, Rev. 16. 19. and a great and mighty City, Chap. 18. 10. O the power of Deceit in that City to bewitch from the life! O the Multitude of lying Wonders that are there ſhewn in the heart, to make a man believe that he is in the life to perſwade men that the King thereof is the King of Sion! and that the Laws and Ordinances of Worſhip there, are the Laws and Ordinances of Sion! that the prayer there, is the prayer of the true Child! that the believing there, is the true faith! the love there, the true love! the hope there, the true hope, &c. Some parts of Babylon, ſome likeneſſes of truth there, are ſo taking, that none but the Elect, by the opening of the eternal eye, can eſpy the deceit.

And it is a ſpiritual City, a Myſtical City, a City built by the Working of the Myſtery of Iniquity, 2 Theſ. 2. 7. whereupon ſhe is called Myſtery, Rev. 17. 5. It is not a City

City of plain Wickedneſs, but a City of ſin hid, of ſin keeping its life under a covering, under a form of Godlineſs, of ſin reigning in the heart under zeal, under Devotion, under Praying, Believing, Worſhipping, Hoping, Waiting, &c. Where Sin lies hid within under theſe, there's Babylon, there's the myſtery of Witchcraft, there's the painted Throne of Satan, there's ſpiritual Egypt and Sodom, where the Lord of Life is daily crucified. This is the City, the Myſtical City, the Spiritual City, Rev. 11. 8. And here is building up and throwing down continually. She builds, the Spirit of the Lord confounds, then down goes her building, then up with another, then down again. This is her courſe without end, when the Spirit of the Lord diſturbs her, for otherwiſe ſhe can ſettle in any form of Knowledge or Worſhip: though in her ordinary courſe ſhe hath alſo many changes and turnings, One while this or that being a Truth, another while not, One while this or that being the ſence or meaning of ſuch a Scripture, another while not. Babylon is hardly ever without this kind of building up, and throwing down.

And this City is a great City, a City ſpread over all the earth, She made all Nations drink of the Wine of the Cup of her Fornication, Rev. 14. 8. The Woman which is this City (Rev. 17. 18.) ſate upon peoples, and multitudes, and nations, and tongues, Rev. 17. 15. She ſate upon them as Queen, as Princeſs, guiding them in their knowledge and worſhip of the King of Babylon. And thoſe that once hated her, and made War with her, and burnt her fleſh with Fire, ſhe cozen'd them with a new Paint, got them into her new Bed of Fornication, and made them worſhip the King of Babylon again, Rev. 17. 12, 13. and v. 16, 17. and there they lay committing Whoredom with her, till the the time of her laſt burning and utter deſolation: but then they forſook her, for fear of her torment, when they ſaw the ſmoke of her burning, Rev. 18. 9, 10.

In the Temples of this City (for in all the Streets thereof, yea, in every houſe there are Temples) Antichriſt ſits as God, and is Worſhipped, 2 Theſ. 2. 4. He as God ſitteth in the Temple of God, ſhewing himſelf that he is God. He hath clothed himſelf like God, he appears like God (like the holy pure Spirit of life and power) he appears in the Temple of God, he ſits there, he rules there, he gives forth Laws and Ordinances of Worſhip and Devotion. Yea, if any one will queſtion his godhead, or his right to do thus, he will prove it, he will make it manifeſt in the very Temple of God, that he is God: He as God ſitteth in the Temple of God, ſhewing himſelf that he is God. He hath exalted himſelf into the Throne above all that is called God, he hath got into the Temple, he ſitteth there as God, and there he maketh it manifeſt to all his Worſhippers that he is God, inſomuch as among all the Inhabitants of Babylon he is acknowledged and worſhipped, and the true Spirit of life is hid from their eyes, and denied and crucified. He hath ſhewed himſelf that he is God, he gives demonſtrations of his godhead, which that eye which is out of the life cannot but acknowledge and take to be true. There is none can ſee and acknowledge the true God, the true Chriſt, but thoſe that have the true eye, the true anointing (no man can ſay, that Jeſus is the Lord but by the holy Spirit, 1 Cor. 12. 3.) and yet how many can ſpeak great words of God and of Chriſt, who know not what belongs to the anointing? Alas, alas, All Nations and ſorts of profeſſors out of the Life, are coſened with the Devils Demonſtrations, with Antichriſts Demonſtrations, with the Whores Demonſtrations, with the falſe Prophets demonſtrations, which are undeniable to that Wiſdom wherein they ſtand, and to that eye wherewith they look to ſee.

Now mark this, Antichriſts coming, when firſt deceived, was very mighty, exceeding ſtrong, 2 Theſ. 2. 9. 10. Whoſe coming is after the working of Satan, with all power, and ſigns, and lying wonders, and with all deceivableneſs of unrighteouſneſs, &c. Weigh the thing well, Satan uſed all his art, and all his ſtrength to conceive and bring forth this myſtery of iniquity, ſo like the myſtery of Godlineſs, that it might paſs for currant in the World, and he rule as God in it. With all power, &c. no power of deceit wanting, he did not ſpare for Signs and lying wonders, yea he gave power to the Beaſt to do Wonders and Miracles, even to make fire come down from Heaven on the earth, in the ſight of men, (which was the Sign and Wonder whereby the God of Iſrael was diſtinguiſhed from Baal, power to work this very Sign Satan gives to the Beaſt, to confirm the Godhead of the Dragon and Antichriſt with.) Rev. 13: v. 13, 14. Theſe are the things men look for, ſee but great Power, Signs, Miracles, they are ſatisfied: the whole World ſtands ready to be deceived with this. Yea, and if the eye be not opened in perſons, which can diſtinguiſh of power, they muſt needs be deceived. Signs, Wonders, and Miracles had their place in the firſt Covenant, and were to that part to which the firſt covenant was (not to them that believe, but to them that believe not.) Now after the full demonſtration of the truth by Signs and Miracles, the power of Satan riſeth up, and by lying Signs, Wonders, and Miracles overturneth the truth. Now the unbelieving part in man expects and calls for Signs and Miracles, and ſays that will determine the controverſie, and ſettle the ſtate of the Church again, but that part is not to preſcribe God his way: yea he will ſteal as a thief upon thee, whoſe eye is abroad, and looketh for demonſtrations without.

And as Antichriſt got up thus, ſo Antichriſt will go out thus: he will raiſe up this power, and what lying Signs, Wonders, and Miracles he can, to defend himſelf with, now the Spirit of the Lord is riſen up to diſpoſſeſs him, and caſt him out of the houſe which he hath long lodged in. And he that can be cozened with power with ſigns, with lying wonders (which are lying, becauſe they come from the Spirit of deceit, with an intent to deceive, though they may come to paſs, and appear true to mans eye, Deut. 13. 1, 2, 3.) or with any of the deceivableneſs of unrighteouſneſs, ſhall never come out of Babylon, but only be tranſlated into ſome of the more refined Chambers of it, and fed with ſome more freſh likeneſſes of truth, where he ſhall ſtill remain an Inhabitant and Worſhippers in ſome Image, perhaps of univerſal love, life, and liberty, and yet be out of the life, out of the love, out of the liberty of the truth, which ſtands in the power and preſence, of the Spirit of God, and not in the moſt refined Image or likeneſs.

All the World wonder'd after the Beaſt, and they worſhipped the Dragon which gave power unto the Beaſt, and they worſhipped the Beaſt, Rev. 13. 3, 4. The Dragon is the Devil the Beaſt is that Spirit of the earth which he raiſeth up, and feeds in men with a form, and appearance of truth; to which he gives his Power, his Seat, and his Authority: and every man hath a meaſure of this according to his ſtate and condition, place and ſervice in Babylon. And now what a man doth here in Religion (be he never ſo devout and zealous, and frequent in Ordinances and Duties) is the Worſhip of this Spirit, and of the Dragon who ſits and rules in this Spirit. I am run into hard expreſſions, very hard, becauſe the nature of theſe things is hid from mens eyes, and they are in the miſt of Antichriſts raiſing, in the ſmoak which comes from the pit, where there is no opening of the true eye, nor no true ſight of things: but truly, if ever you eſpy the Dragon, the Beaſt, Antichriſt, the Whore, the falſe Prophet, ye muſt look at home, and read within: and there having found the thing, and ſeen it in the true light, ye will be able to read it certainly abroad alſo Now, do not go about to diſtinguiſh theſe things, in the notion of the underſtanding, but come to feel the life, to unite with the life, and the eye will open which can ſee into the nature of things; and will behold all in its ſeaſon; for that eye which is ſo eager to ſee, ſhall never ſee theſe things but that eye alone which waits in ſtilneſs and quietneſs, on the pleaſure and good will of the opener.

Now all this time, while Babylon ſtands, while Antichriſt ſits in the Temple, while Satan reigns over all the Antichriſtian World, the true and living God hath not been known, feared, nor glorified (but mens knowledg hath been of a falſe God they have ſet up, and him they have feared, and given the glory to in their Worſhip) nay the Goſpel hath not been Preached, the true Goſpel, the everlaſting Goſpel, the Goſpel wherein is the light, and power of eternal life, to turn men from all Antichriſtian forms of knowledge and worſhip to the true life and power. But when Babylon falls, and Mount Sion begins to appear again, then the Goſpel is to be preached again, even by an Angel who receiveth it from God himſelf, Rev. 14. 6, 7. for man could never recover it again: it requires a new inſpiration. The Law is to go forth out of Sion, and the Word of the Lord from Jeruſalem. And this Goſpel is to be Preached to every Nation, Kindred, and Tongue, and People, v. 6. mark, There was not one Nation, not one Kindred, not one Tongue, not one People that kept the everlaſting Goſpel, but it was laid up in Sion, it was carried with the Church into the Wilderneſs, and there it hath been hid all the time of the Apoſtacy ſince the days of the Apoſtles. But now Sion is redeeming, the true Woman bringing back again out of the Wilderneſs, ſhe brings back the true everlaſting Goſpel with her, and there is an Angel choſen in the power of the Lord (even in the ſame power and Spirit that firſt preached it) to preach it again to every Nation, Kindred, Tongue and People. And the Lord hath ſo ordered it, that he will have the voice of this Angel as deſpicable to the Wiſe in Religion, to the zealous in Devotion of all ſorts of this backſliding age, as the former preaching was to the Wiſe and Devout both among the Jews and Greeks. So that whoſoever is Wiſe in Religion according to the fleſh, whoſoever is Wiſe in expectation and waitings for the Kingdom, whoſoever is Wiſe in reaſoning about it, and can tell the foregoing ſigns of it, &c. ſhall not know the voice: but he that can ſhut his eyes by the leadings of the pure life, and enter into the hidden Womb of Wiſdom, where the light of life is ſown, he ſhall be new formed and come forth a Child out of the Womb of Wiſdom with the new eye, the new ear, the new heart, the new underſtanding and ſences, and keeping in the childiſh ſimplicity, out of the Wiſdom, Zeal, and Devotion which deceived him before, he ſhall receive and enter into the everlaſting Kingdom.

Therefore all people wait humbly for the Candle of the Lord, that therewith ye may ſearch out Babylon, and may come to ſee what of her Treaſures ye have gathered, that ye may throw them away ſpeedily, and give up your Ships and Veſſels (wherewith ye have traffiqued for theſe kind of Wares) to the Fire of the Lords jealouſie, that ye may receive the durable riches, that ye may hear the joyful ſound of the everlaſting Goſpel and know the true Chriſt which it alone reveals, and come to fear, and worſhip, and glorifie the true God, and not go down into the Pit or Lake with the Dragon, the Beaſt, the Whore, and falſe Prophet, which will be the portion of the moſt zealous falſe Worſhippers. And when your eyes come once to be opened in the true light, ye will bleſs the Lord for giving you theſe warnings, and not be ſo angry at us (who have paid dear for them) for our willingneſs, if it be poſſible to ſave you ſome of the charges they have coſt us; however, at leaſt to preſerve your Souls from that ruine and dreadful deſtruction, which all the paths of Babylon lead to.

The Sins of Babylon.

Although in the foregoing Deſcription, ſome of the Sins of Babylon have been touched at, yet I find my Spirit further drawn forth (in a way of ſervice to the Lord and his people) to take a further view, both of them and ſome other of her Sins.

THe Sins of Babylon, by the Spirit of life (which hath righteouſly meaſured and knoweth them) are referred to theſe two heads, Fornication and Abomination. She allureth the Spirit of the Creature into a ſtrange Bed, and there it acts filthily and abominably with this ſtrange Spirit. Now of theſe there are two ſorts, Firſt, ſome more open and manifeſt; Secondly, ſome more hid and ſecret, hard (yea utterly impoſſible) to be diſcerned, without the ſhining forth of the pure light of life.

All ſorts of men are eſtranged from the life: under the whole Heaven is the Lord God forgotten, and his holy and pure Law and Way of life; and filthineſs and abomination is committed every where. Now all this filth (even the common filth of the earth) ſprings out of Babylon; hath its riſe from her Womb. Were it not for her, the ſound of life would be heard even among the Heathen, and they would not be ſuch ſtrangers to him that made them, nor would they act ſo contrary to thoſe leadings and teachings of the Spirit of God (who is the God of the whole earth) which the darkeſt parts are not without. It is ſhe, which withdraws their minds from the pure glimmerings that riſe up in them, ſetting up another God in their eyes, and heatheniſh ſottiſh ways of fear, worſhip and Devotion: and under this ſhe makes them filthy and polluted, unclean in their minds and in their bodies brutiſh in their knowledge, and in their practiſes: For ſhe the mother of Fornication and Abominations of the earth, Rev. 17. 5. Look what of Pride, of Vanity, of Cruelty, of Envy, of Wrath, of Luſt, of Covetouſneſs, of Idolatry, of Blaſphemy, &c. is to be found any where among men upon the earth, ſhe is the mother of it all. All the

the common filth and ſtench of the earth ſprings out of this Womb; this ſecret Womb, this hidden Womb: For though in this her open and viſible appearance, ſhe be manifeſt to the eyes of many; yet to thoſe Children of hers who are thus conceived; brought forth and bred up by her, ſhe is a myſtery of Iniquity, and they perceive her not ſo much as here, and ſo cannot eſcape this her openly polluted Bed.

Secondly, The Whore hath more ſecret Fornications and Abominations: Where ſhe can paſs thus, ſhe need not paint, either her ſelf or her ware: but where need requires ſhe hath her paint, ſhe hath her delicates for the curious eye (Rev. 18. 3.) ſhe hath her Cinnamon, Odours, Ointments, and Frankincenſe for the nice ſcent; ſhe hath her fine Flower and Wheat, &c. for the fine Pallate; and Gold, Precious Stones, Pearl, and Veſſels of Ivory, and all manner of Veſſels of moſt precious Wood for the more ſtately Worſhipper; as well as of Braſs and Iron for the more common, Rev. 18, 12, 13. ſhe can paint both her ſelf and her ware, ſo as to make them taking to the eye of all fleſh. She can ſo mingle her Cup, as ſhall pleaſe every Palate but that which is truly living; and caſt ſuch a colour upon her abominations, as no eye that's without can ſuſpect, but takes with every young man that's hunting abroad, and knows not the ſpring of life in himſelf. So that all the deceits in Religion, all the ſeveral forms and ways of knowledge and worſhip, all the Ordinances, Duties, and Devotions which the ſpirits of moſt men take pleaſure in, are of her. And herein is her Pride and Glory, in ſubjecting theſe, in ruling over theſe, in blinding the eyes of theſe, and oppoſing the true life and power by theſe. She doth not value whoſe Territories of the other, ſo much as the Congregation of theſe. For mark,

The great Maſter-piece of the Whore was to paint her ſelf like the Lambs Wife, and ſo to withdraw from the true Church, and ſet up a falſe Church, which by reaſon of its paint and likeneſs to that which once was the true, ſhould paſs up and down the World, and be taken for the true: And here lies her Beauty, her Glory, her Majeſty, her Life, her Heart, even in the deceivableneſs of this appearance. Therefore her great care and endeavour is, to keep her poſſeſſion and dominion here. She often reneweth and changeth her paint, neerer and neerer to the Image and former likeneſs of Truth, that ſhe might make it paſs inſtead of the Truth, and ſo keep that which is indeed the Truth down ſtill under reproach, contempt and perſecution, as ſhe hath done theſe many ages. Therefore ſhe hath her ſorts of paint by her, her varieties of Sorcery, of Witchery, of Inchantments, whereof her Cup is full, and wherewith her Wine is made ſtrong, to make the Inhabitants of the earth drunk thereby, that being thus beſotted, being not themſelves, but their ſpiritual ſenſes bound up (as this Wine doth very effectually, where-ever her Cup is drank off) ſhe might lead them up and down from one thing to another, from one Chamber to another, from one Bed to another, from one practice and way of Worſhip to another, and ſtill keep them from the true living thing which their Souls ſeek.

For were it poſſible for perſons, who did but ſo much as read in the Scriptures, concerning the power of life the Saints formerly enjoyed, the living Miniſtry and Ordinances, their ſweet walking and fellowſhip in the Light, the preſence of the ſpirit in their Worſhip, and in their whole courſe, their ſincere love in the ſpirit, and tender bearing with one anothers weakneſſes, doubts and differences; (which he that reads ſingly, cannot but pant after;) And the ſtate of the Goſpel was not to be a decaying and dying in theſe things, or a looſing of them, ſo that the power of the ſpirit, and the revelations thereof ſhould ceaſe (as the Whoriſh ſpirit, which hath gone out from the life, pleads;) but to grow and increaſe, and laſt times to abound moſt of all with the power and glory of truth: I ſay, were it poſſible for perſons who ſhould read, and entertain the leaſt taſte or ſavour of theſe things, to be ſatisfied with any of thoſe dead ways and forms, which the Whore hath ſet up inſtead of them, unleſs they were wholly bewitched, and altogether deprived of their ſenſes, being made dead Drunk with the Whores mingled Wine in this dark night of Apoſtacy? Yea profeſſors are drunk, they have deeply drunk of the Cup, and are ſorely overtaken, and their hearts overcharged with ſtrong liquor, which makes them even mad to draw others into their Beds of Fornication, and to ſtand up themſelves in great rage, and call alſo to the Magiſtrates for the defence of them. Yea, like the Clamorous Woman they make a great noiſe about Ordinances, Duties, Miniſtry, Church, &c. (I have decked and perfumed my Bed, ſaith the lewd Woman, the ſubtil hearted Woman, Prov. 7. 16, 17.) but do not ſoberly conſider which are painted ones, which the truth. We have run on headily after theſe things too long; it is now time to ſtand ſtill a while, and wait for the purging out of the Wine wherewith all our Brains have been overturned, that we may come into ſoberneſs, and into a fit temper to be led by the Spirit of life, out of the Bed of Fornications, and out of the Ways, Worſhips, Ordinances, and duties of Fornication, into the Bed of the undefiled Spirit. Now he that Worſhips God aright, muſt feel life within (and that life raiſed and ſtrengthened by him who begets it) and this will ſavour death, and (faithfully following its guide) will come out of the Land of death, even that Land wherein all the falſe Worſhippers inhabit, and wherein all the falſe ways and Worſhips, Duties, Ordinances, Miniſtries &c. are ſet up, and flouriſh

Now theſe ſecret ſins of Babylon, are the ſame with the more open and groſs, the great difference is their ſecrecy, their not appearing like Sins, their Paint, their Colour, whereby they are ſwallowed down for holy and good. As to inſtance:

There is Fornication (or Adultry from the life) in the fineſt, in the pureſt way of Worſhip man can invent or imitate: but the Fornication doth not ſo plainly appear here, but they who have drunk of the Cup, take theſe things for the ways and appointments of God. Thoſe that ſet up the whores Church, do not call it ſo (nor perhaps think it to be ſo;) thoſe that ſet up the whores Miniſtry or Ordinances, do not give them that name, but call them the Miniſtry and Ordinances of Chriſt: yet this is as truly, as really Fornication from the life, as the groſſeſt ways of heatheniſh Worſhip. O mark it, mark it.

If thou haſt read the Scriptures, and thruſt thy ſelf into any practiſes thou there findeſt mentioned, without the raiſing up of a living thing in thee, and without thy following by the guidance thereof, thou haſt done this by the Whores advice, and in this thou art committing Fornication, and erring from the life: for the true Worſhip lies in the Spirit and in the Truth, and it is the new Birth that God ſeeks to worſhip him: but the ſpirit of man thruſting it ſelf into theſe things, the Lord abhors and rejects. And this ſpirit never can be thus cleanſed and fitted to enter into Chriſt's Bed, but only gets a paint from Scripture, and enters into the painted Bed and Boſom of the Harlot, where it remains unrenewed, unchanged, unmortified in the midſt of all its great talk and profeſſion of theſe things. And thus the Scriptures, the Holy Scriptures of truth (which were given forth from the pure Spirit of life) the whoriſh Spirit maketh uſe of to eſtrange from the life: For what ſort of perſons, which have fornicated from the life, but make uſe of the Scriptutes to maintain their Whoredoms by, and to bewitch others into their whoredoms with? Every ſort crys up their own way and worſhip, to be the way and worſhip according to the Scriptures: and if any be gathered out of all theſe witcheries into the power of God, then the bewitched ſay that ſuch are bewitcht.

Then as for all the Abominations of the earth, all the filth that defiles the heart, it is to be found on the skirts of the Whore, even in her moſt refined dreſs: For her Religion, her Worſhip, her Profeſſion, her practiſes do not reach to the purifying of the Conſcience, but only to paint over the old Sepulcher, where rottenneſs ſtill lodgeth within. The ſore was never throughly ſearched, the heart was never throughly circumciſed or baptized, the old man was never put off, or the new man put on, the bloud of purifying (which truly waſheth away the ſin) was never felt in its vertue and power, but only an apprehenſion and talk that they are cleanſed in Chriſt, from a notion they have ſtolen out of the Scriptures, but not from the ſenſible feeling of the thing in life and power in their conſciences. And ſo the evil nature ſtill remains, the evil heart of unbelief is ſtill to be found in them, and they want the Life, they want the Power, they want the Spirit, they want the Love, they want the Humility, they want the Meekneſs, they want the Patience, they want the Innocency and Simplicity of the Lamb and Dove. And when the Lord comes to provoke them to jealouſie by the ſhining of his light, and by the appearance of his power in ſome whom they deſpiſe; then the pride, the paſſion, the envy, the heart-burnings, the hard ſpeeches, the falſe ſurmiſings, with the reſt of the enmity which ſtill abides with them, ſtirs and riſes againſt the life and power, and their Hypocriſie is made manifeſt. Yea, ſome of the ſtricteſt among them can ſcoff and jeer at the appearance of life, ſo ſtrong is the evil and unmormortified nature in them, and ſo conceited are they in their ways and practices, becauſe of their cover, under which, all this iniquity (for the moſt part) lies hid from their Eyes. But for all that, it is there, the Lord's Candle will ſearch it out, and thine own Eye ſhall ſee it, and find in thy ſelf bloudy Cain, ſcoffing Iſhmael, prophane Eſau, the uncircumciſed Jew, who is angry that his Brother's Sacrifice is accepted and his not, who diſdains and derides the true ſeed of Life, the living Heir, who hunts abroad for Food pleaſing to that nature which is to be Famiſhed, who Crucifies the Lord of glory becauſe of his meanneſs, and becauſe he appears not in that way of Devotion and Holineſs wherein they expect him. Neither will he appear ſo, but to overturn all that which ye have ſet up, and to ſet up that which ye diſdain. This is the Lord's Work, and it is marvelous in our Eyes.

Now there are ſeveral ſins which the Spirit of the Lord hath charged Babylon with, and which he will reckon with her for, and with all that partake with her therein, ſome whereof I may mention. As,

1. Her deep Fornications from the life, under a pretence of honouring and worſhipping of it. (Be not offended that I begin with it again, ſeeing it is alſo mentioned among other particular ſins of hers, Rev. 9. 21.) She ſpeaks fair Words, ſhe calls to have the Worſhip of God ſet up, and a Godly Miniſtry, and the Ordinances of God in a Nation; but the thing is not ſo in the ſight of God, but in all this ſhe ſeeks the advancement of her own Whoredoms. And this was, and is the very way of Antichriſts riſing; he gets into the form, he cries up the form; and by the form which he cries up, he eats out the power. If Antichriſt ſhould ſpeak directly againſt the power, (without firſt creeping into, and ſetting up a form, and crying up that) he would ſoon be detected: but under a form and profeſſion of truth, he hides himſelf, and covers his ſpirit of enmity and perſecution therewith; and here he can ſecretly and ſafely ſmite the Innocent, and Fight againſt that very Spirit, Life, and Power, which he himſelf in his form makes a profeſſion of being ſubject to. And this is the Wolf in the Sheeps cloathing; which by this fair appearance of the Sheeps Wool on his back, covers his ravenous nature from the Eyes of the beholders.

Now there are three ways of Fornication, one of which this Spirit is always guilty of, ſometimes of them all.

1. By inventing things which the Lord never commanded, or adding to that which the Lord did command. The mind of Man is very bulie, and full of Inventions: and where the heart is touched with devotion and zeal towards God, the inventing part exceedingly exerciſeth it ſelf this way, either in imagining and forming ſomewhat which it thinks may be acceptable to God, or in adding to thoſe things, which it finds commanded. In this way of Fornication the Popiſh Church abounds, being filled with Ceremonies of their own inventing, and of additions to ſuch things as are found mentioned in the Scriptures. The common Proteſtants alſo, have been too guilty here.

2. By imitating of thoſe things, which were commanded to others. When a man finds in Scripture the things which ſome others did, or which they were commanded to do; and ſo he is venturing upon them, before he feel the leading of that Spirit, whereby they were led thereunto. Now in this, he errs from the Life, he goes without his guide, he doth that which was a good thing in others (who were led by the Spirit thereto) but in him it is Fornication. This Man is a Thief and an Intruder, he ſteals into the outward knowledge and practice, without the inward life and power, he intrudes into that into which others were fairly led, coming in by the door, for which entrance he alſo ſhould have waited, and not have run on headily of himſelf. This way of Fornication, the ſtricteſt among the Proteſtants have generally been enſnared in, who have run on further and further to ſearch out the pureſt way of Worſhip, the neareſt pattern to the Primitive times, and ſo have applyed themſelves diligently thereto, not knowing what they were to wait for to be their guide, and give them the entrance. And here now, thinking themſelves to be in the right, they have contracted a lofty Spirit, (and held forth their conceptions of the way, as the only way) and ſo have loſt the meekneſs and ſimplicity, which was freſh and lively in ſome of them before, which ſets them a great way back, and makes the entrance into the Kingdom very hard to them: Whereas, if that ſimplicity and tenderneſs were freſh in them, the Lord would ſhew great regard to that, eaſily pardoning this their error and (in mercy to them) visiting that evil Spirit with his judgments, which stood nigh them, and was the cause of their error. But they are grown high, they are grown wise, they are become confident, they know the way already, and can maintain it by undeniable arguments (as they think) to be the way, so the Lord with his teachings is at a great distance from them, that lying very low in them, which the Lord alone will teach.

3. By continuing in practices, to which they were once led by the Spirit, without the immediate presence and life of the Spirit. For the whole Worship, the whole Religion of the Gospel consists in following the Spirit, in having the Spirit do all in us, and for us. Therefore whatsoever a man doth of himself, it is out of the life, it is in the Fornication. If a man pray at any time without the Spirit, that Prayer is Fornication, and is not either acceptable to God, or profitable to himself, but grieves the Spirit, hurts the Life and wounds the Soul. Now this way of Fornication have they especially fallen into, who have been acquainted with true leadings and openings of the Spirit, and have afterwards run to them for refreshment, and so by degrees forgot the Spirit that opened. And by this means was that life, which was precious and very savoury in the Ranters (before they were seduced, by the Spirit of deceit into that way of ranting) overturned. And thus they also (who deeply saw into the mystery of Whoredoms, and into the more inward ways of Fornication, above others) even they also were deceived with the Whores Cup, and drank afresh of that Wine of Fornication, which the Whore very cunningly had new mingled for them, and they also are become a reproach to the Inhabitants of Sion, who find a living habitation in that Spirit of Life, which they turned from.

Now if there be a true Eye opened in any in the Reading of this, how easily and manifestly will he see Whoredom, Fornication, Adultery generally in mens Religious Practices, in their Churches, in their Ministeries, in their Ordinances, in their Prayers, in their whole course! O how, think ye, doth the Eye of the Jealous God behold these things! but your Eyes, who are held Captive here, cannot see it. The God of this World, with his Mists hath darkned you, the great Whore with her Sorceries hath inchanted you, and ye are her Slaves, ye are drunk with her Cup, and how can ye judge soberly, either of your own estate towards God, or concerning your practices in Religion?

2. Her notorious Blasphemies: Having Fornicated from the Life, and from the Spirit, then she blaspheames the Life, and the Holy pure power and movings of the Spirit: The Woman which sate upon the Scarlet coloured Beast (with whom the Kings of the Earth committed Fornication, and the Inhabitants of the earth were made Drunk with the Wine of her Fornication) was full of names of Blasphemy, Rev. 17. 2. 3. Yea the Beast which carried her, which had many Heads, Horns and Crowns, he also had on his heads names of Blasphemy, Rev. 13. 1. And there was given to him a Mouth Speaking great things, and Blasphemies, ver. 5. And he, with the Whore together (for he did it by her Spirit and Instigation, by vertue of the Wine he had drunk out of her Cup) opened his mouth in Blasphemy against God, to Blaspheme his Name, and his Tabernacle, and them that dwell in Heaven, ver. 6. This hath been the work of the Tongue, in every head of the Beast, namely, to Blaspheme the Life, to Blaspheme the true living power, in all Ages and Generations, since the Apostacy from the Life and Spirit of the Apostles.

Now there is a twofold Blasphemy, which the Whore (and the powers of the earth that serve her) are guilty of.

1. There is a speaking well of the ways of their own invention, or the ways which they have imitated without the Life, to call these the ways of God, the true ways of Life is Blasphemy, I know the Blasphemy of them which say they are Jews and are not, but a Synagogue of Satan, Rev. 2. 9. There were even in the Apostles days, Persons who pretended to be Christians, and pretended still to be of the Church, though they had lost the Life, and this the Spirit of the Lord said was Blasphemy. And what is their gathering into a Church, who were never gathered into the Life, and setting up Ordinances and Pastors? What is this? What is it for him to call himself a Christian, or inward Jew, who never had the fore-skin of his flesh cut off by the Circumcising Knife of the Spirit? what will the Lord say this is, when he comes to judge?

2. There is a speaking evil of the Truths of God. The true knowledge, the true fear, the the true Worſhip, the true Saints, the true God, the true Tabernacle, the true Temple, the true Heaven (all which is in the Spirit, and is alone revealed and ſeen there) theſe are reproached, theſe are miſ-repreſented (and the true ſight and acknowledgement of them called Error, Hereſie, and Sectariſm) by all the Blaſphemers of Babylon.

Iſrael, who had the Law and the Prophets, the true Ordinances and the true Prieſts, yet they called evil good, and good evil, they put darkneſs for Light, and Light for darkneſs; they put bitter for ſweet, and ſweet for bitter, Iſa. 5.20. They were ſo wiſe in their own eyes, and ſo prudent in their own ſight, they were ſo mighty to drink Wine, and men of ſuch ſtrength to mingle ſtrong Drink (juſtifying the wicked for reward, and taking away the Righteouſneſs of the Righteous from him) that there was no convincing of them by the LIGHT of GOD ſhining from the Prophets, of their caſting away the Law of the Lord, and deſpiſing the Word of the Holy One of Iſrael, ver. 21. to 25. Nay they were obſervers of the Law, and hearkened to the Prophets and Prieſts of the Law, Jer. 5. 31. Therefore when the overflowing Scourge came, it ſhould not come near them: Yea, when the true Prophets of the Lord threatned them with his coming with dreadful vengeance, and his ſtrange work, they in the height and confidence of their Spirits could reply, Let him make ſpeed, and haſten his work, that we may ſee it, Iſa. 5.20. How blind were they from ſeeing their Blaſphemies, their calling of evil good, and good evil, &c. Yea in the very days of the Apoſtles, the Way of Truth was evil ſpoken of, and Synagogues of Satan ſetting up, and Blaſphemies growing up apace from thoſe which held the true form, but denyed the power, even while the powrings forth of the Spirit, and revelations from the Spirit did abound: How can it be expected it ſhould be otherwiſe now, when the Spirit is grown ſuch a ſtrange thing, that to mention ſuch a thing as being moved by the Spirit, or acted by the Spirit, is become ridiculous? and the very teachers of the Nation (who muſt ſpeak by the Spirit, if they ſpeak the Word of God) cry Revelation is ceaſed, and count it a reproach for a man ſo much as to pretend to ſpeak by the movings, and in the power of the Spirit.

Now this double Blaſphemy neceſſarily follows the Fornication: Whoever is fornicated from the Life, he blaſphemes the Life, in all his knowledge, in all his Worſhip, in all his Religion. He calls that prayer which is not prayer, that an Ordinance which is not an Ordinance, that a Church which is not a Church, that a Miniſter which is not a Miniſter, and that which is indeed the Prayer, the Ordinance, the Church, the Miniſter, he denyes and blaſphemes, and cannot do otherwiſe, until the righteous Judgements of the Lord purge the Whores Wine out of him, and he be led back to that Life and Spirit again, from which (in all theſe ways of Worſhip, Inventions, and Imitations) he is gone a Whoring.

The Whore, for theſe many ages, hath been laying Blaſphemy to the charge of ſuch, as in any Degree, have been led by the Spirit of the Lord from her Whoredoms; but now the Lord is taking it off from them (who have long been unjuſtly charged therewith) and charging it upon her, and ſhe cannot eſcape his Judgement: for though ſhe put on never ſo fine Dreſſes and Appearances, like the Spouſe and Church of Chriſt, yet the Lord can diſtinguiſh and find out his Spouſe, though naked, in the Wilderneſs, and without her attire; and can alſo eſpy the Whoriſh Spirit, though cloathed with the Churches attire, and can charge her Blaſphemies (againſt him, his Tabernacle, and them that dwell in Heaven) upon her.

3. Groſs or more refined Idolatries. Little children, ſaid John, keep your ſelves from Idols, 1 John 5.21. He ſaw Antichriſtianiſm breaking in apace, many Antichriſts being already come, and now (ſaith he) keep to the Anointing, and keep from Idols: Without a very ſtrict watch, without a mighty preſervation by the Anointing, he ſaw Idolatry would even creep in upon them, who had taſted of the true power and vertue of Life. But how ſhall they keep from Idols, who know not the Anointing, but think the Revelations thereof are ceaſed? He that buyeth not the tried Gold of Chriſt (Rev. 3.18.) how can he avoid buying untried Gold of Antichriſt, or Silver, or Braſs, or Wood, or Stone, which his Merchants traffique for, and make Idols of? Rev. 9.20. If thine eyes be anointed with the true eye-ſalve, thou mayeſt ſee, and read the Parable.

Idolatry is the Worſhipping of God without his Spirit (that is the plain, naked truth of the thing) to invent things from the carnal mind, or to imitate things which others who had had the Spirit) did in the Spirit, by the command of the Spirit, for thee to imitate and practiſe this without the Spirit, is Idolatry. An invented Church, an invented Miniſtry, an invented Worſhip, an imitated Church, an imitated Miniſtry, an imitated Worſhip without the life, without the Spirit, all theſe are the Work of mens hands, and are Idols, and all that is performed herein is Idolatry, Rev. 9. 20. This is a Religion without life, a Worſhip without life, a Fabrick for Idolatry; and the whole courſe of Worſhip and Service in it, is Idolatry. For the Living God, the Lord God of endleſs Life and Power, is alone worſhipped by his Spirit, and in the truth of that Life which he begets in the heart, and all other Worſhip (though never ſo ſeemingly ſpiritual) is Idolatrous. Ah Profeſſors, profeſſors, if ye knew how many Idol-prayers, and ſervices ye have loaded the Lord with, and how ye have been whoring from him, while ye have ſeemed to be drawing nigh to him, ye would hang down your heads and mourn! For whatever ye have done, in the Worſhip of God, without the leading and preſence of his Spirit, it hath been Idolatry. For the Worſhip of God under the Goſpel is in the Spirit and in the Truth, and required of them who are in the Spirit and in the Truth, and not of others, John 4. 23. For them alone the Lord ſeeketh to Worſhip, and the Lord will admit of none to his Worſhip, but ſuch as he ſeeks. And if any elſe will thruſt themſelves into his Worſhip, it is not accepted, nor do they worſhip the true God, but they worſhip they know not what: and their whole ſtate and courſe here, is a ſtate and courſe of Idolatry.

4. Sorceries, Witchcrafts, Divinations, and Inchantments (I do not mean outward Sorceries or Witchcrafts, they are but the ſhadow or figure of the inward myſtery of deceit of this black dark ſpirit, which appears as an Angel of Light, that he might bewitch and deceive) Neither repented they of their Sorceries, Rev. 9. 21. This falſe Church, this adulterous Woman, ſhe hath her golden Cup, and her Wine mingled, and with this Cup ſhe bewitches the eye, with this Wine ſhe enflames the heart, and intoxicates the Brain. She invents ways and Worſhips like to the true, or ſhe imitates the true ways and appearances of Life, and when the poor ſimple young man is ſingly ſeeking after God from ſome true touches of his Life, before he comes to know the Spirit of Life, before he can come to be married to the Lamb, ſhe comes with her golden Cup, and with her tempting Wine, and bewitches the poor heart therewith, and ſo leads it aſide into her painted Bed. Wouldſt thou enjoy God, ſaith ſhe? Wouldeſt thou worſhip him aright? Wouldſt thou have Fellowſhip with him? Lo here is the Way, here is the Church, here are the Ordinances, here is the Miniſtry, here are the Means. Thou muſt wait upon God in the uſe of the Means, and theſe are them. Did not the Saints formerly do thus? Did not they meet with God here? Did not they ſerve and Worſhip God thus? Come thou hither alſo, do what they did, enjoy what they enjoyed, Yea, but thou whoriſh Woman, did ever God appoint means without his Spirit? Thou leaveſt the main, yea indeed the only thing behind thee, which it ſelf alone is accepted, and without which nothing is accepted. And this is the courſe of the Whore in all her transformings, in all her baits, in all her temptings, ſhe ſtill leaves the Spirit behind her. She may perhaps ſpeak of the Spirit, to hide her ſelf the more (becauſe the letter of the Scripture is ſo expreſs therein) and teach people to look and wait for the Spirit, but ſo as is never to be obtained: For he that begins in Religion either to Pray, or Worſhip, or ſeek the knowledge of God without the Spirit, ſhall never meet with the Spirit ſo; but that way of Knowledge, Religion, and Worſhip of his muſt firſt be broken down, and he become a Fool, and receive the Spirit as a Fool (out of all his religious knowledge and wiſdom which he had gathered before) and afterwards, following the Spirit which is thus received, he ſhall be led into the true Wiſdom. Now mark that which follows, ye that have a deſire to underſtand.

This Spirit of deceit, this whoriſh Spirit, this Spirit of Divination and Witchcraft, (which by her Sorceries deceived all Nations, Rev: 18. 23.) came forth curiouſly decked at firſt with all manner of deceivablneſs of unrighteouſneſs. It had the exact form of Life, (the true form of Godlineſs) and a lively Spirit in it: It had the form of knowledge, and the form of worſhip, and with theſe it came to tempt, and draw away them from the life and from the power, who were in the life and in the power, and it did prevail upon ſuch as kept not cloſe to the Anointing. But after it had overcome, and gained the Church's territories, then it might ſafely corrupt the form, and ſo it did, and went into into multitudes of inventions and fopperies (as at this day may be ſeen amongſt the Papiſts.) Now theſe are eaſily diſcovered, and ſeen through by any ſimple, plain, honeſt eye, upon a little breaking forth of the light. Therefore the whoriſh Spirit, when ſhe perceives her ſelf found out here, ſhe changes her ſhape and attire, and comes back again by degrees (as need requires) to the forms of Knowledge and Worſhip, wherewith ſhe was arrayed, when ſhe deceived at firſt: yet ſtill ſhe is the ſame, and doth this to keep poor ſimple hearts ſtill in her bands, from the life and from the Spirit. And thus painted, thus decked, thus holding forth Scripture-knowledge and Scripture-ways of Worſhip, ſhe is the more ſubtil Witch, the more ſubtil Sorcereſs, and is able to deceive any eye, but that which is opened in the light. With her Lo here Chriſt, and lo there Chriſt, ſhe would deceive the very Elect, if it were poſſible; but it is not poſſible: for they are taught by the Spirit not to go forth, and the anointing within preſerves them. And he that knoweth not this preſervation, is bewitched by her, and his fear of God, is ſuch as may be taught by the precepts of men, and practiſed without the knowledge of the Law of the Spirit of life in Chriſt Jeſus, which is the Saints rule, guide, and preſervation, For as the Apoſtles were able Miniſters not of the letter, but of the ſpirit of the New Teſtament, 2 Cor. 3. 6. So they that received their Miniſtry (or that which they miniſtred) received not the letter only, but the Spirit; and were preſerved not by the letter but by the Spirit, and were made able to try Words, Things, and Spirits, not by the letter, but by the Spirit. But this the whoriſh Spirit is departed from, and bewitcheth others from firſt poſſeſſing them that the Spirit is not to be looked for, and then perſwading them to make as good ſhift as they can without it: and then (having thus prepared people) ſhe brings forth her Wares. Look ye, ſaith ſhe, this is the way, thus and thus the Saints practiſed, do thou thus alſo. But thou muſt receive the Saints Spirit, before thou either know or worſhip, or thou knoweſt and worſhippeſt out of it: and in that path of ſorcery and witchcraft from the life, thou ſhalt never meet with the life, but the further thou proceedeſt therein, wilt be more and more entangled from it, and become ſtill a greater and greater enemy to it, and more and more in love with the Whore, and her whoriſh paths and pleaſing ways of devotion, whereby the falſe Spirit in thee is raiſed up and nouriſhed with nothing but the bread of life from the hand of the Spirit, but not with words, or forms of knowledge, or ways of worſhip invented, or imitated; which do butt ickle the underſtanding, or affectionate part of man, but reach not the life, ſo that that which ſhould ſerve the Lord, is not there raiſed, but ſtill bound over with the bond of iniquity.

5. Luxury, Exceſs, and Pleaſure. She is rich with her Merchandize, and ſhe enjoys it to the full, ſhe takes the pleaſure of it. She builds coſtly houſes, wears rich Apparel, fares deliciouſly (read ſpiritually with the ſpiritual eye.) She is rich in knowledge, rich in ways of Worſhip, rich in Duties, rich in religious performances and practiſes. And as ſhe gained theſe in her own Will (without the leadings of the life) and by her own Search and Wiſdom: So ſhe can make uſe of theſe in her own Will, and according to the direction of her own Wiſdom. She can faſt when ſhe will, give thanks when ſhe will, preach when ſhe will, pray when ſhe will, ſing when ſhe will meditate when ſhe will, bring forth her knowledge to others when ſhe will. Look on the Papiſts, how rich are they in outward buildings, in gorgeous Ceremonies, in times of Worſhip in ways of mortification and pennance, in Faſts, in Feaſts, &c. Look on the ſeveral ſorts of Proteſtants, they have their riches in their kind too, their Churches, their Buildings, their Arts, their Sciences, their Languages, their Bodies of Divinity, their Caſes of Conſcience &c. They can open the whole body of Religion, reſolve all doubts, expound all Scriptures, &c. The great City was cloathed in fine Linnen, and Purple and Scarlet, and decked with Gold and precious Stones, and Pearls, Rev. 18. 16. And ſhe ſate thus on the Throne like a Queen, living deliciouſly, and taking her pleaſure, to which her torment and ſorrow afterwards is proportioned, ver. 7. Yea, ſhe had Treaſure and Coſtlineſs enough to make all her Merchants rich that would trade with her, ver. 19. What knowledge, what delicate food, could the wiſeſt or greateſt of the earth deſire, which ſhe had not ready for them, ſee ver. 3. and ver. 9. But Sion, all this while, hath lain in the duſt, and been deſpiſed: She hath had no building, no fence, but hath been trampled under foot by every unclean Beaſt: Her witneſſes have been cloathed with ſackcloth (a garment which all the lofty Inhabitants of Babylon diſ-dain:) her fare hath been hard in the Wilderneſs, only a little Manna (which with fleſhly Iſrael, who luſt after rich and large knowledge, is counted light Bread, and their Souls ſoon loath it:) Nor had ſhe this in plenty, but only a ſmall proportion dayly from the hand of the free-giver, ſufficient to keep life in her in the Wilderneſs, and to furniſh her with ſtrength to give in her teſtimony againſt Babylon, ſo far as the Lord ſaw good to call any of her ſeed thereunto. Now what profeſſor can be willing to fare thus with her at preſent; and to wait for her future riches, fulneſs, beauty, and glory! Nay, nay, they have ſo long lived richly, and fared deliciouſly in Babylon, that they know not how to eat the bread of affliction, and drink the water of affliction with ſad and deſolate Sion. And yet this is the only way and paſſage out of Babylon into Sion: That which hath been rich and fat, and ful-fed there, muſt become poor and lean, and feel hunger, and have none of the bread of life adminiſtred to it, no nor ſo much as husks neither, And in this ſad day and ſtate of miſery, the poor are viſited which receive the Goſpel, and the dead raiſed, which receives the life.

6. Worſhipping of the Devil. All the World wondered after the Beaſt, and they Worſhipped the Dragon, Rev: 13. 3, 4. Now the Dragon is the Devil, Rev. 20. 2.

There is no other Worſhip of God under the new Teſtament, but in Spirit and truth and he that worſhips otherwiſe, worſhips not God, but that Spirit which teacheth to worſhip out of Gods Spirit, and out of the truth. Every prayer is not a prayer to God but only that prayer which is from and in the Spirit. Every Ordinance or Duty, is not an Ordinance of God, or a duty performed to God, but only that which the Spirit leads into, and guides and preſerves in. This is the way that all the earth have departed from the Lord, namely. by erring from his Spirit. They cry up practiſes in Religion, Duties, Ordinances, the means, the means, a Church, a Church (as the Jews did the Temple of the Lord, the Temple of the Lord:) but they find the Church, before they have found the Spirit of the Lord; and ſo they find not the Church that is God, the Church that is of his building, but they, poor hearts, frame up a building as well as they can according to the pattern they find in the Scriptures; and ſo they are not an habitation for God in the Spirit, but are eſtranged from the Life and Spirit in all their Worſhip: and ſo are not found by the Spirit (which ſearcheth them and their Worſhip) worſhipping of God, but the works of their own hands, and Devils, Rev. 9. 20. For that charge hands good againſt all the Inhabitants of Babylon, even to the higheſt and ſtricteſt of them all, whether in forms, or out of forms. There are many men who are very zealous and devout in their ways of Worſhip, who were never taught by the Spirit the way of worſhipping God, nor do at all know how to worſhip in the Spirit; theſe my Soul exceedingly pities. They have received into their underſtandings from the letter of the Scripture, that God is to be worſhipped in Spirit, and that God will give his Spirit to them that ask it. They have asked, and they hope they have the Spirit, but poor deceived hearts, they know not what Spirit they are of, nor in what Spirit they act, nor what Spirit they ſerve; and ſo periſh for lack of knowledge, the key whereof hath been hid from them. Now let ſuch conſider:

There are but two Spirits, the Spirit of God and the Spirit of Satan, one of which guides all men in their Devotion and Religion, and one of which they ſerve therein. He that is led by the Spirit of God, he ſerves God, he worſhips God: He that is led by the ſpirit of Satan, he ſerves not God, but that Spirit which appears in the Temple of God, like God, and gives ſuch demonſtrations that he is God, as no fleſh can deny, 2 Theſ. 2. 4. Here now is the great deceivableneſs. In profaneneſs, in manifeſt wickedneſs, Satan is eaſily ſeen: and men that are found here, it is granted that they are ſerving the Devil: but that he ſhould ſit as King in gathered Churches, in Duties, in Ordinances, in ways of ſelf-denyal and mortification, and be worſhipped here, this is hard to be ſeen: yet any of theſe which the Spirit of the Lord leads not into, or which are performed at any time without his Spirit, he is worſhipped in. Conſider this, ye that are wiſe in Religion, and are diligently reading the Scriptures and gathering knowledge, and rules of worſhip, and applying promiſes, &c. Do ye this in the Life and Spirit of God? or in your own wiſdom, and according to your own underſtanding? Doth not the wiſdom of that ſpirit which is out of the Truth, guide you in your ſearchings after Truth? O do not ſerve that ſpirit which the Lord hates, but come back to that, from which in all this ye erre, and which in all this ye cannot ſerve and worſhip. And let not your Religion any longer conſiſt in meer practiſing what the Saints formerly practiſed (for that ye may do without the ſame Spirit) but in yielding up to that life, power, and pure Spirit that they were led by. And when ye are joyned to this, then do not preſcribe the Lamb the way that he ſhould go, but follow the Lamb whitherſoever he goeth. Do not tell the Shepheard (by your gathered wiſdom) the way that he muſt lead you in, but know the voice and follow it: For this I can truly teſtifie, that if once ye come in faithfulneſs and true light to follow the Lamb, he will lead in paths ye have not known, and out of the paths ye have known.

7. Compelling of others to Worſhip, Rev. 13. 15, 16. The falſe Woman and the Beaſt ſet up a Worſhip in the Will, and they do not know why any in the Will alſo may not ſubject and ſubmit to it. They can give them reaſons, they can give them arguments from Scripture, and if they will not yield to theſe, they are to be looked upon as ſtubborn and refractory, and to be compelled by outward force. This hath been the courſe generally throughout the Land of Babylon, But theſe ſhew hereby that they themſelves are erred from the Truth (and therefore very unfit and unlikely to teach it others:) For that which God works upon is the Conſcience, which he convinceth by the Light of his Spirit, and no other Light can truly convince it. That therefore which would have a man yield to any practiſe, or way of worſhip, till he be truly convinced, is of the Devil. My Son, give me thy heart, ſaith Chriſt, the Wiſdom of God: Come not to me with Oblations and Sacrifices, but give me thy heart. My Son, give me thy Knee, give me thy Obedience to the ways I have ſet up, give me thy conformity, ſaith Antichriſt, ſaith the adulterated Wiſdom: and if any refuſe, ſhe endeavors to compel them. Thus like Jeroboam the Son of Nebat, ſhe makes (that which ſhe calls) Iſrael to ſin: or like Nebuchadnezzar, ſhe ſets up an Idol, and cauſeth all her Children to bow to it. Thus the load of the iniquity of multitudes lies upon that Scarlet Whore, who forces her Cup of Abominations and filthineſs upon all ſhe can, Rev. 17. 4. cauſing all, both ſmall and great, in all her Territories to receive her Mark, and worſhip her Image. The work of the Miniſter of Chriſt, is to keep the Conſcience tender, that the voice of Chriſt may be heard, and the Law of his Spirit of Life (which makes obedient to the God of life) ſpring up there: but this is the Image, here is the way, bow, conform ſay the Miniſters of Antichriſt. But we are not convinced in the ſight of God, that this is the way, ſay poor Souls. It is your own fault, ye may be convinced if ye will, ſay the Miniſters of Antichriſt, we are ready to give you Arguments and Scriptures to convince you, how is it ye are not convinced? Ye muſt be convinced, otherwiſe the Magiſtrate muſt deal with you. Thus they endeavour to harden the Conſcience, that they may ſet upon it and ride it, and terrifie it from its ſubjection to its only true and lawful King. O the havock that hath been made of Souls by this means! the Lord is requiring it of this Generation.

But let me ask this queſtion to all the Learned and Wiſe, in all the Regions of Babylon, under what painted form or way of Worſhip ſoever. Can any Worſhip God aright, before they be truly convinced of his will and way? Can any be convinced without his Light and Spirit? Were it good and acceptable in the ſight of God, for any perſons to run into that way, whereof thou ſayeſt thou art convinced that it is the way, before they themſelves are convinced? If it be not good and acceptable, what is that that goes about to compel them? Away with thy carnal Weapons; and if thou wilt draw to God, draw by that which is ſpiritual: but if thou wilt ſtill be uſing outward force (running to the Laws of men, and Power of the Magiſtrate) the Lord hath opened an eye, which diſcovers thy nakedneſs herein, and is able to make it manifeſt in the ſight of all People, and thou ſhalt not long cover thy ſhame. The Lords people ſhall be a willing people to follow him in the day of his Power: but all the Lords people have been unwilling to follow thee in the day of thy power, which is neer an end; and the very Fountain of thy deceit (and Tyranny over the Conſcience) is opening and making manifeſt.

8. Perſecution of ſuch as ſhe cannot compel to her Worſhip. She ſets up her form of knowledge, ſhe ſets up her way of worſhip, and thoſe that will not be drawn to own the one, and practiſe the other, ſhe ſets her brand upon them for erroneous perſons, Schiſmaticks, Hereticks, they muſt not Buy or Sell, Rev. 13. 17. They muſt be Ba-niſhed or Impriſoned, or perhaps put to Death, for ſhe is hardly ſatisfied, till ſhe hath drunk the Blood of thoſe, who in any eminent degree are the Witneſſes of Chriſt againſt her, Rev. 17. 6. This was a thing wondered at by John with great admiration, to ſee this Woman, this great City, out of which all the venomous Darts are ſhot, againſt the Saints and Martyrs of Jeſus, under a pretence of zeal for the Church and Ordinances of Chriſt. For this is the Engine, whereby the Dragon makes War with the true Womans ſeed, (which keep the Commandements of God and have the Teſtimony of Jeſus Chriſt) even by this falſe woman which rides on the Beaſt, by whoſe power and ſtrength ſhe overcomes the Saints. She ſets up a way of Doctrine, a way of Worſhip in a Nation, and gets Laws made for the defence of it, and againſt them that will not ſubmit to it, and here ſhe is too hard for the Saints, by this means ſhe overcomes the Martyrs and Witneſſes, and keeps the Truth down, and keeps up her way of deceit, which without this prop would ſoon fall.

This whoriſh ſpirit ſcents the Spirit of the Lord, ſhe knows it will ſoon be her Death, if ſhe cannot make it appear odious, and ſuppreſs it: Therefore ſhe hunts this ſpirit, ſhe hunts the life and power of what ſhe her ſelf profeſſes (eſpecially if it appear vigorous and ſtrong in any) ſhe ſeeks advantages againſt the Servants of the living God, repreſenting them to the earthly powers as perſons of dangerous Principles and bad practiſes, inventing all manner of what can be called evil againſt them, and ſpreading it among the People, that the Truth may ſtart up no where in the earth, but every where be knocked down by the violence of the Multitude, or by the Sword of the offended Magiſtrate. Now what is the matter of all this great noiſe and fury? Why this, A Lamb is riſen up in the Innocency, the pure harmleſs ſpirit is appearing in the Earth, the true Life (which diſcovers the Hypocriſie, and dead forms and ways of the whoriſh ſpirit) is breaking forth: Therefore ſhe makes a great outcry, awake people, awake, the Church is in danger, ariſe Magiſtrates, Magiſtracy and Miniſtry will down, if this Lamb-like ſpirit be ſuffered. Nay, nay; Theſe ſhall ſtand, but Babylon ſhall fall, and her miſtery of iniquity be diſcovered, and her deceivableneſs of unrighteouſneſs made manifeſt; and the true Life and Spirit ſhall ariſe and take poſſeſſion of the hearts of people, and make them a clean and fit habitation for God: and people that are ſubject hereto, ſhall feel it, and enjoy it, though the Merchants of Babylon ſay, men ſhall never be made clean while they live, but muſt ſtill have a body of Sin and Death hanging about them. But how ſhall they put on Chriſt, who have not put off the body of Sin? Shall thoſe who are made Kings and Prieſts to God here on earth, Miniſter in their filthy Garments.

Theſe are ſome of the Sins of Babylon, that painted Harlot, which is ſubtle in heart, and lyes in wait to deceive, in the abſence of the true Church, whoſe cloathing and reſemblance ſhe takes up, and appears in.

And when ſhe hath done all this, when (like Ægypt) ſhe hath kept the Seed in Bondage in all her Territories and Dominions, in every Church ſhe hath ſet up, and by all her Miniſtries and Ordinances: when (like Sodom) ſhe hath filled the whole World with filthineſs, uncleanneſs, and all manner of ſpiritual Abominations: When (like old Jeruſalem the Bond-woman) ſhe and her Children have ſcoffed at the Spirit in every appearance, all the time of her Reign, and have trampled upon, and domineered over them, who have but ſpoken of the coming of the juſt one in his people, ſporting her ſelf in her own deceivings: Yet after all this, She wipes her mouth, and ſaith ſhe hath done no harm: She hath been for the Goſpel, and Church, and Miniſtry, and Ordinances, and the Faith once delivered to the Saints, and only againſt Deceivers, Seducers, Blaſphemers and Hereticks. But the Spirit of the Lord cannot be thus deceived, nor ſhall the Nations be always thus deceived, and ſuffer her to ſit as a Queen upon their Conſciences, but ſhe ſhall ſee ſorrow, and they ſhall taſte joy at the ſound of the everlaſting Goſpel, when once again it cometh to their ears, Rev. 14: 6. and Chap. 19. 6, 7.

The Judgement of Babylon.

BAbylon the great, this great City of abominations, which hath reigned over the whole earth, which hath bewitched all ſorts of Profeſſors with the Golden Cup of her her Fornications, which hath ſubtilly led from the life, and held all ſorts Captive in the witchery of her deceit, and hath triumphed over the Holy Seed, making Sion their Mother deſolate, who ſat in the Duſt, and was trampled upon by her. This great City, this glorious City, this rich City, this mighty powerful City, this Queen of the earth (which knows not what belongs to Sions miſery, ſorrow, Poverty, and deſolation) with Antichriſt her King and Husband (who hath cloathed himſelf with the Garments of light, and appeared in the likeneſs of the King of Sion, and hath long been ſo acknowledged and worſhipped) is to be judged by the Spirit of life, which ariſeth up out of the duſt of Sion.

And though Babylon the great Whore (who in all her transformings hath ſtill remained an enemy to the life) hath great power and great wiſdom, and can ſhift very ſubtilly to ſave her ſelf by both; yet ſtrong is the Lord God who judgeth her, and he alſo is wiſe, and ſhe ſhall not eſcape his hand, but he will purſue her with his voices, with his Thunderings, with his Hail-ſtones, with his Earthquakes, with his Woes, with his Plagues, with his Cups of Indignation, till he hath made her manifeſt, till he hath broken her in pieces, till he hath crumbled and laid her in the duſt, till he hath brought her down to the very Pit, where the feet of Sion ſhall trample upon her for ever. Sing, Sing O inhabitant of Sion, doſt thou not behold the Crown of Pride going down apace? the Decree is ſealed againſt her, ſhe cannot eſcape; yea ſhe is fallen, ſhe is fallen, ſhe is already taken in the Snare, the eye of my life ſeeth it, and rejoyceth over her in the living power.

The Plagues of God Almighty, from the fierceneſs of his Indignation, are viſiting her whole Territories, and paſſing over all her Land. Nothing can help her to avoid his ſtroak, no Paint will ſerve, no Cover will hide, no Profeſſion, no Practiſe, no Duties, no Ordinances, no Church, no Miniſtry can avail to conceal her, but that ſpirit is purſued by the Spirit of the Lord, and found out every where, and Plagues are prepared and pouring out upon her. Nay, though ſhe leave all her forms, and pretend to wait and ſeek for the Lord, yet ſhe is found out there alſo.

Now what is her Judgment? Deſtruction and utter deſolation from the hand of the Lord, to be an hiſſing and reproach throughout all Generations, (to be brought down by pourings forth of the wrath and vengeance of the Almighty) into the Pit, and there to drink the fulneſs of his wrath for ever. Sion ſhall be exalted, Sion ſhall drink the cup of life, the cup of bleſſing, the cup of Love, the cup of ſalvation for ever. But Babylon the Cup of Fury, the Cup of Indignation for ever and ever. Sion ſhall ſing, but Babylon ſhall howl: and all that ſaw any beauty, or took any pleaſure in her, ſhall mourn over her; Alas, alas, for her, ſhe who hath ſo many ages gone for the Church, is now proved to be the Whore; thoſe who have been taken, in their ſeveral transformings, for the true Miniſters, made manifeſt to be the falſe Prophets; their Ordinances and Duties, but Thefts and Imitations; things which they have ſtollen from what they read in the Scriptures, but never received from the hand of the Spirit.

The wrath of God, the dreadful Cup of his fury and jealous indignation for the cauſe of Sion, is to go over her whole Land, Over her Sea, and all the Ships that Trade therein, and all her Merchants with all her precious Traffique and Merchandiſe. All her Doctrines which ſhe hath ſtollen out of the Scripture, all her diſciplines, all her experiences, all her performances (even thoſe which are moſt like the performances of former Saints;) nay though ſhe may ſpeak the very words of Truth, yet as they come from her mouth, they ſhall be thrown by and judged, and be of no ſervice or eſteem in Sion. The preciouſeſt of her ware ſhall be droſs and dung in the Land of Life, where there ſhall be no Sea, nor no ſuch kind of Merchants, Traffique or Trading for ever.

Her Earth alſo ſhall be made deſolate, and burnt up, with all that is found therein: All her ſettlement ſhall be ſhaken, all her Fruit-trees ſhall be rooted up, all her fruit ſhall wither, rot, die, and periſh. All her converſions of people to God (as ſhe calls it) ſhall come to nothing: Yea, and if ſhe have yet any more dreſſes, or ſecret coverings, wherein ſhe would appear like the Church again, and bring forth again, yet ſhe and her Children ſhall immediately be diſcovered, her fleſh burnt with fire, and her Children daſh'd againſt the Stones. Every Street in her City, every Houſe and Idol in every Street, every room in every Houſe, with every inhabitant, ſhall drink of the Cup of Aſtoniſhment, and ſtumble, and fall, and riſe no more. Thou haſt long triumphed over me, O mine enemy, becauſe I have fallen, and have long ſat in darkneſs: but rejoyce no longer, ger, for I ſhall riſe again, and the Lord ſhall be a light unto me; but thou ſhalt riſe no more, and thy light ſhall be put out for ever; glory to the meek ſuffering-lamb, even to him that ſits upon the Throne of life for ever.

Her Air alſo ſhall be darkened. The Lord ſhall enlighten my darkneſs, but the light of Babylon ſhall be darkneſs for evermore. The light of a Candle ſhall be ſeen no more at all in thee. Many lights hath Babylon ſet up in the dark night, but the riſing of the Sun of Righteouſneſs ſhall extinguiſh them all for ever, and Babylon ſhall be ſhut up in utter darkneſs. Yea, all that have retained to Babylon, all that have walked by the light of any of her Candles, that have cried up any of her falſe ware for orthodox, that have given up their names to her under any of her dreſſes or appearances, or that have received any of her marks, they ſhall partake of her ſhame, of her miſery, and of her torment from the hand of the Lord God. Yea, her Throne alſo ſhall be viſited, and the ſeat of Antichriſt in every heart ſhall feel the Wrath.

Riſe up from the duſt, and ſhout forth with joy, O Captive daughter of Sion, who haſt long dwelt under oppreſſion, in the midſt of the Daughter of Babylon. Behold Babylons King ſhall be no longer Judge over Sion, but thy King ſhall be Judge, and he ſhall judge the King of Babylon: And let all the powers and Potſheards of the earth ſtrive to their utmoſt, yet ſaith the Lord, have I ſet my King upon my holy Hill of Sion, and he ſhall rule in my people, and rule over Babylon

Learn therefore, O Inhabitants of the earth, great and ſmall, Meekneſs, learn Righteouſneſs, learn the Fear of the Lord; Kiſs the Son, harden not your ſelves againſt him, calling him a Deceiver, a Blaſphemer, a Seducer, an Heretick (for what ye do to the leaſt that appear in his life, ye do to him:) but hearken to the Word of his everlaſting Goſpel, which ſaith, FEAR GOD, AND GIVE GLORY TO HIM, FOR THE HOUR OF HIS JUDGEMENT IS COME, and ye cannot eſcape his hand by that fear, which is taught by the precepts of men, or by traditional knowledge out of the Scriptures, nor while ye ſeek that honour which came out of the earth, and is of the earth, and to that which is earthly. Therefore let your hearts learn to know him, and your tongues to confeſs him, and your knees to bow to him: which, if ye do, ye muſt forget all that knowledge. and thoſe confeſſions and bowings, which ye have learned in Babylon: for though ye may have confeſſed ſome true things, yet (having learn'd this in Babylon) ye have confeſſed falſly even as the Jews, who ſaid, The Lord liveth, yet ſwore falſly, Jer. 5. 2.

Now conſider, ye Miniſters of ſeveral ſorts, and ye ſeveral ſorts of profeſſors: We may appear great enemies to you, becauſe we witneſs againſt your ways, and tell you what the end of them will be; but are we enemies to you indeed, whoſe deſire it is to ſave you from this great Wrath, which hath already entred into the earth, and ſeized on ſome? Should we ſooth you up, and not witneſs theſe things to you (which we infallibly know) how ſhould we anſwer it to the Lord our God, or to your Souls, when we ſhall appear before him? If we were in your condition, would we be content to be let go on, and to be overtaken with this great deſtruction? We cannot be ſilent. Ye muſt be ſilent, but we cannot. We know ye muſt be ſilent; for that which now ſpeaks in you, hath been ſilenced in us, and is not to miniſter the things of God. But the ſpirit of the Lord muſt not be quenched in us notwithſtanding all our weakneſs, but the treaſure muſt iſſue forth from the earthen Veſſel, for the relief of the poor in ſpirit who alone receive the Goſpel. Therefore though ye hate us, though ye perſecute us, though ye ſpeak all manner of evil againſt us, and uſe us never ſo hardlly; yet there is love rooted in our ſouls, toward your ſouls, yea and toward your perſons alſo: and having both felt the wrath, and taſted of the mercy, we cannot but warn you of the one, and invite you to the other (and O that ye might find a ſhelter under the ſhadow of his Wings in the ſtormy ſeaſon when Wrath ſhall be ſhowred down without mercy!)

And this we cannot but tell you, that the ſeveral ways of Religion in the Chriſtian World, are but ſo many ſeveral coverings: and that that which is covered with them is the whoriſh Spirit, which the Spirit of the Lord is hunting, who will ſtrip her, and make her naked, and ſhe ſhall appear to have been the whore under them all. Now that which lyeth beneath this ſpirit in you, which is deſpiſed and trampled upon as a thing of nought, which is burthened and daily ſlain by your multitudes of Ordinances, Profeſſions, and Religious practiſes, this is the heir of life; and by the raiſing up and living of this in you, may ye come to life, and no otherwise. And all Religion without this (even the most inward) is but the deceit of the Whore, who makes a great shew of Worship, and of Zeal toward Christ, his Ordinances and Ministry (as she calls them:) but by all these, and under all these holds the life in bondage, and strives by all means to slay the heir, that the Inheritance might come to her Son. But Cain the sacrificer, Ishmael the Son of the Bond-woman, Esau the hunter abroad after Venison, the Jew full of profession, zeal, ordinances, and worship, shall not inherit: but slain Abel shall be raised to life, Isaac (who was born of the dry and barren Womb) shall have the promise, plain Jacob the blessing, the out-cast Gentile be sought out. Thus it shall be, can ye read it? Yet it is the desire of our Souls that a remnant of you may be saved, and now is the gathering. Therefore seek humility, seek poverty of spirit, seek the suffering Seed, the Meek, Innocent, Harmless, Dove-like nature, even the love which doth no ill, nor thinks no ill, for this is the Spirit which is to be gathered: but the high and lofty, the wise and knowing, the fat and strong, the rough and confident in their Wisdom, and in their Duties, Churches, Ordinances, &c. (which they have gathered, and stollen from the Scriptures, out of the life) are with all these to be rejected, and to be shut up in blindness and hardness of heart. Seeing they are to see, and not perceive, and hearing to hear, and not understand, least they should be converted and healed. Yea, it is this Spirit, which is to fret under its pain and torment from the Woes and Plagues, but cannot repent, but passeth on with Babylon to ruin and destruction, Rev. 16. 9, 10, 11.

Babylon is become the habitation of Devils, and the hold of every foul Spirit, and a Cage of every unclean and hateful Bird. Come out of her, my people, that ye be not partakers of her sins, and that ye receive not of her plagues, Rev. 18. v. 2, 4.

This is the cry concerning Babylon just upon her fall. Her iniquity is full, her filth overflows, the pure seed is gathering out of her, and nothing but Devils and foul Spirits, and unclean hateful Birds remain in her: And the call still is to the people of God, from one remove to another, from one part of Babylon to another, to travel on, and pass away still, till they come quite out of it all. To come out of one part of Babylonish Worship, that is not enough, or to come out of some pieces of Babylonish knowledge and Wisdom, will not answer the call, but ye must come out of it all. Depart ye, depart ye, this is not your rest, for it is polluted. Stay not in any part of the unclean Land, O Child of the pure life: but be separate and touch not the unclean thing, if thou wilt have the holy one to receive thee. Not only the several dresses and forms of the Whore are polluted, but her Spirit also, and all her inward Fabrick of Religion, out of which thou must also come, if ever thou be joyned to the pure life. Thy Faith, thy Hope, thy Love, thy Patience, thy Joy, thy Peace, thy Justification, thy Sanctification, thy Mortification, thy ability to Pray, to give Thanks to Wait, &c. All must down, all must suffer loss, all must become dross and dung to thee, that thou maist know the building of true life from and in the Spirit. For the Lord will not own any of these, nor receive thee with any of these which the Whore hath touched, but if thou wilt have the pure life both within and without. thou must part with the corrupt life both within and without. (This is a faithful and true Testimony, but who can receive it? Will not both the houses of Israel be offended, and stumble at it?) But if any of the people of God will abide still in Babylon, and not hearken to every call of the Spirit of the Lord, to follow its guidance out of every part of her, they shall receive (from the impartial hand of the Lord) of her plagues, and have torment and sorrow proportionable to the glory and pleasure they have had with her. Therefore, if after one, two, three, or many removes out of some parts and practises of Babylon, the voice still follow, crying, Come out of her my people (the spirit of Antichrist is yet among you, the Wine of Fornication from the pure life, is not yet purged out of you) do not stop your ears, thinking this belongs not to you, because ye have forsaken some paths which are Antichristian; but hear and follow, for it is your life, and your way to rest and peace in the Land of the living, and your sure preservation from anguish, perplexity, and misery in the hour of Babylons judgment and sore distress.

Now there is one thing, which lies as a great block in the way, to hinder this Testimony from entring into the hearts of those, to whom it is directed, or at least to weaken the spirits demonstration of it to their consciences (for exceeding subtle is the whorish rish spirit, to keep every one of her subjects from the sight, or suspicion of her in themselves, and to darken every beam of light, whereby it pleaseth God to make any way for the discovery of her in them) which is this.

Object. But hath all our Religion for these many Ages, been Babylonish, and Whoredom from the life? all our Churches, all our Ordinances, all our Duties, all our Ministry, &c.) We can never be drawn to believe this. We are sure we have felt lively touches from God many a time, and enjoyed sweet Communion with him in them. God hath often met us there, and refreshed our Spirits, which he would not have done, had they not been of himself.

Answ. There hath been a simplicity and sincerity of heart, stirring in some people towards God in all Ages, even among the Heathen under all their Idols, and among the Jews in the midst of their great Apostacy: which simplicity is of God, and acceptable with him, notwithstanding all the load of filth that may hang round about it. Even in the midst of Egypt, or in the midst of Babylon, if Israel groans the Lord hears, and may return sweet answers to Israel, even there. When Israel was a Child, I loved him, and called my Son out of Egypt. The lowest breathings of true life towards God is the voice of his Son, and enters into his ears from the darkest part of Egypt or Babylon.

Now in this Nation, the simplicity hath more stirred, than in other Nations, the seed of God in this Land, hath been exceeding precious and dear to him. And at the beginning of these late Troubles, the stirring of the simplicity from the pure seed, was more vigorous and lively, than it had been in many Ages before: and accordingly the answers of God to it were more fresh and sweet, and there was a taste of him, and fellowship with him, and sweet hopes and refreshments to the Soul. Though the way of Praying, Preaching and Worship (either publick or private) was not right before him; yet he over-looked that which his Soul hated (winking at the time of Ignorance and Antichristian darkness) and met with that which he loved. And if the simplicity had grown and thriven, Communion with God (and life from him) would have increased, although the pure path of the Sanctuary had not yet been made manifest.

But this was it destroyed all, another thing got up under a cover, and the simplicity sunk, and so the life withdrew, and God hath grown strange to his people. He missed that which he loved and came to visit, he found that thrust upon him for his which his Soul cannot own or unite with, and so he became but as a wayfaring man, that turneth aside to tarry for a Night, Jer. 14. 8. Enter into your hearts, O ye back-sliding Children, is it not thus? You, who had sweet tasts of God, is he not become a stranger to you? You that had sweet, fresh, lively breathings after God, are you not fallen down in a form (or under some pleasing notions) and have got a covering, but lost the simplicity of your life, and the sweet tasts of God, and refreshments from him? Thus it hath been in all Reformations: there was commonly a pure, single, naked beginning, but an evil thing soon got dominion over it, slaying the pure living stirring, by the form which it raised up, under a pretence of preserving the life thereby, and of serving God more uniformly and acceptable therein. Ah the precious Seed that was sown at the beginning of these troubles! What is become of it? how is every one turned aside from the pure life, into some Idol or other of his own heart! some into one way of worship, and some into another; some into one notion, and some into another; and all joyning together to keep the seed in bondage, endeavouring either to bring it back again to Egypt (to make it serve there) or to destroy and bury it in the Wilderness. But the Lord hath visited this poor desolate seed, and hath been gathering it from all quarters, from amidst all empty forms, on the one hand, and all vain high notions on the other hand; and he will preserve it, overturning all his new enemies as well as his old.

This then is the sum of the Answer.

1. No way, or particular act of worship under the New Testament, is acceptable to God without his Spirit.

2. All invented or imitated ways or acts of Worship, to the performing whereof, the moving, presence, and power of his Spirit is not necessary (but men can perform them without it) are Babylonish, and Whoredom from that Spirit to which the true Christian is joyned, and in which all that he doth is performed.

3. Un-

3. Under this Antichristianism, under this Whoredom (even in the Land of Babylon, where the true Israel is Captive) a true simplicity and zeal towards God may sometimes be stirring.

4. When this at any time is stirring towards the Lord, the Lord pities it, the Lord loves it, the Lord accepts it, When this calls, the Lord hears, and waits that he may be gracious, and return answers of Grace to it.

5. Though the Lord accept of this in the midst of Babylon, and in the midst of the whorish ways of worship that have been Learned there, yet this doth not make Babylon, or her ways of Worship acceptable, nor are not to be made use of, (nor cannot) by any that fears God to justifie them.

6. Where they are so made use of, and the Babylonish ways and forms of Worship cryed up (because of Gods visitations and tender Mercy to his Seed under them) God is provoked, his presence withdrawn, life lost, and wrath prepared against those forms and ways of worship, which will reach to the very Bowels of those who are found there.

And let this word come home to your hearts, O ye that ever knew what belonged to sweet Communion with God! If God was so tender to you in Babylon, when he stirred up in you a pure simplicity and zeal there, what would he have been to you, if ye had come out of Babylon? Ah, ye have lost the substance for a shadow, and that not a right shadow neither, but a shadow of your own forming! and now ye are angry with them, who will not also leave the substance to cry up your shadow. Ah enter into your secret Chambers, and let shame cover your faces, yea who would propagate that Apostacy from the Lord, which your own hearts have too far entred into, and are so deeply involved in. O that the eye were opened in you which can see it! Do not your hearts a little feel it? O mourn after the Lord, and mourn after the loss of that which once (in some measure in you) was true to the Lord. O that the lost Sheep might be sought out, and that which hath been scattered (in the day of your loftiness, and seeking Dominion and great things) might be gathered again to the Lord! for great is the wrath and severity that is towards you, and he is become exceeding jealous for his Seeds sake; and Judgement must begin with you, who cry out against Antichrist in one gross fleshly appearance, and yet are serving him your selves, some of you in other forms, some in Spirit.

This is a standing Truth, Whatever is not of the Spirit of God in Religion and Worship: is of the Spirit of Antichrist. What ever the Spirit of man hath invented or imitated, is not the thing it self, is not the true Worship: for the true Worship is only and continually in the Spirit, and never out of the Spirit. The true Praying is in the Spirit, the true Singing in the Spirit, the true Preaching in the Spirit: Whatsoever is out of it, is of Antichrist in man. Now therefore give up all your Religion, your Knowledge, your Worship, your Practises which are out of the Spirit, and return unto the Lord, and wait for his raising of that seed in you, which once began to spring, but is now slain, and lyes in Death and Captivity under all these, and the earthly part (wherein all this Religion and these practises stand) covers its blood, so as ye cannot see how ye have slain, and daily do slay the just one.

O the blood, the blood, the innocent blood that daily cryes to the Lord against you! How can the Lord accept any of your services, while your hands are full of Blood! while the pure simplicity is slain, the love grown cold, the life lost, and the whorish way and path (wherein and whereby it was lost) cryed up for the way of God. Shall not the Lord visit for these things? Shall not his Soul be avenged on such a Nation as this? Yea his wrath is kindled, the fierceness of his wrath is kindled against the professors of this Age, and wo is from the Lord towards them. Wo to the Protestant Congregations, wo to the select Churches, wo to their Pastors, who have helped them to wander from the life to dead Idols, which cannot profit: Wo to them who are exalted in notions and high knowledge: ye have judged and condemned the Papists, and the Lord hath found the same Spirit of Idolatry in you! But turn from your Idols, return to your simplicity, put away your Adulteries from between your Breasts, and return to your first love, and the Lord will receive you, though ye have wandred after many lovers, and have been inflamed with the love of Idols under every green Tree: but in these your Church ways and worships the Soul of the Lord abhors you, and all your former zeal and simplicity is blotted out and forgotten, and in your present Adultery a Idolatry shall ye die, unless ye hear the voice of the Lord recalling you, and turn at reproof.

Now in tender Bowels to help you a little, consider that which follows.

The same Spirit that stealeth away the true simplicity, raiseth up and stealeth in a fa
Image thereof, which there is no perceiving at present, unless the Soul lye very lo and be kept open and clear in the pure light.

And as in the true simplicity, the true light, the true knowledge, the true faith, t true hope, the true love, the true meekness, the true zeal, the true poverty and hum lity, &c. springs up and is nourished: so in the false Image of simplicity (which t Devil secretly conveys in, when he steals away the true) there's a likeness of all the springing up and growing.

And here's the beginning of Babylon in the heart, here are the inward riches and tre sures thereof. What can Sion pretend to, which Babylon hath not in the resemblance Is there simplicity of heart in Sion? and is there not simplicity of heart among the inh bitants of Babylon? yea, a false Image. Is there light in Sion? and is there not al light in Babylon? yea there's the light of the Sun, and the light of the Moon, and t light of the Stars which fell from Heaven, and the light of many Candles shining Babylon. Is there true knowledge in Sion? There's knowledge falsly so called in Babylon:
false knowledge of the Cross of Christ, a false knowledge of his Death, a false know ledge of his Blood, without feeling the living vertue thereof, which truly washeth aw the Sin. So for Faith, Hope, Love, Meekness, Zeal, Humility, &c. There are false Im ges of all these in Babylon, and of whatever else is wrought in truth in the Inhabitan of Sion.

Now when the Truth is lost, and the false Image crept in (both which are done unawares, while the Husbandman is asleep; and so he perceives it not, but thinks in very heart that it is still the seed of truth that is growing up in him) then begins t mistery of Fornication, Idolatry, Witchcraft, and all manner of spiritual wickedness a deceit to work in the heart. Thy believing, thy hoping, thy love, thy zeal, thy praye thy waiting, &c. All here is abomination, it's from a false root, it's of a false kind:
is not of the true seed; the enemy hath stollen away that, while thou wast negligen and slumbering, and all this ariseth in thee from the seed which he did sow instead ther of, and is the fruit of the Land of Babylon.

And having thus committed inward Whoredom in thine own heart, then thou seek est and settest up outward ways of Whoredom also. Having first set up an inwa Image of the inward life of the Saints, though then seekest and settest up another Imag of their outward worship, an Image of a Church, an Image of a Ministry, an Image o Ordinances, an Image of Praying, an Image of Singing, an Image of Preaching, an I mage of Baptism, an Image of the Saints Communion. And thus thou art defiled with in and without, and art mad with envy and rage that thou canst not bewitch the Inha bitants of Sion (who are kept pure from all these defilements, and reserved as Witnes ses against thee) into thy Bed of whoredoms. And thus while thou thinkest thou ar the chief worshipper, thou art all over polluted, the whole head is sick, and the whol heart faint, there is no cleanness, no soundness within or without, but wounds, and bru ses, and putrifying sores, which have not been closed, neither bound up, nor mollified with Oyl: but the hurt of the Daughter of my people hath been healed deceitfully, by Phy sitians of no value, who had not the Oyl. (Isa. 1. 5, 6. and Ezek. 13. 10.)

This is generally the state of professors at this day, but they cannot see it: for they have put out the eye of the simplicity (wherewith alone God will suffer the things of life to be seen) and God hath blinded the eye of their wisdom, that they shall not see, nor be converted and healed that way. So that exceeding miserable is their estate:
They will not see Gods way, and God will not let them see their way. So that though there be line upon line, precept upon precept, here a little, and there a little; yet it is that they might stumble, and fall, and be snared, and broken, and taken: For as discoveries of truth grow more clear and manifest; so they grow more hardned against it. And as they, on the one hand, increase in walking contrary to God; so God on the other hand proceeds in walking contrary to them, delighting more and more to stumble the wise disputing part, which would so fain know, but must be made blind, that the eye of the Babe

Babe may be opened, which ſees that in the Childiſh ſimplicity, which the other eye can never reach in the moſt manly wiſdom.

Therefore put away all your images and likeneſſes of Truth: Put away your falſe faith (which can never overcome the worldly nature and ſpirit in you) and your falſe hope (which can never purifie your hearts) and your fained humility and ſelf-willed faſts (which can never bring down the lofty exalted nature in you) and your falſe love (wherewith ye can never love the Brethren in the Truth, but only the Brethren in your own, (or ſome ſuch other likeneſs of the Truth) and your falſe Zeal, Meekneſs, Holineſs, &c. All which ſpring and grow up from the wrong ſeed, in a ſeeming ſimplicity; and all your Praying, Reading, Preaching, &c: which ye have taken up and practice in your own wills, which ſhould be crucified, and wherewith no ſervice, worſhip, or performance can be pleaſing to God: and wait for the raiſing of the true ſeed of life in the true ſimplicity, whereby ye may ſerve God acceptably here, and be ſaved hereafter. And be not mockers, leſt your bands be made ſtrong, for the conſumption is determined againſt you by that ſpirit of life whoſe breath will waſt you: All fleſh is graſs, and the glory thereof as the flower of the field! Surely this people is Graſs, and their zeal, and profeſſion of God, like the fading flower.

Some plain Queryes, drawn out of the Book of the Revelations for all ſorts of Profeſſors of this Age, to anſwer between God and their own Souls, that they may ſee whether they have received that Light from him, which his Spirit judged neceſſary to give forth, to keep people chaſt to him, and to preſerve them from the ſeveral painted Beds of Antichriſts Fornications and Whoredoms from the Life.

Bleſſed is he that readeth, and they that hear the words of this Propheſie, and keep thoſe things which are written therein: for the time is at hand, Rev. 1. 3.

The time of deceit was then at hand for Antichriſt (with his falſe Church, and falſe Prophets) to get up, which were to laſt till the hour of Judgement, Rev. 14. 7, 8. Haſt thou read? haſt thou heard? haſt thou kept the things written in this Book? then happy art thou? But haſt thou not read in the Spirit? haſt thou not heard the true ſound of theſe things from the Spirit of life? haſt thou not kept the things written therein? Then thou haſt been deceived with the miſtery of iniquity, and muſt ſmart with the Whore in the hour of her judgement.

The Queries are theſe which follow.

I. What Woman was that which was cloathed with the Sun, and had the Moon under her feet, &c. Rev. 12. 1. Whether it was the true Church or no?

II. What that Wilderneſs was whereinto ſhe fled, where ſhe had a place prepared of God, that they ſhould feed her there 1260 days? verſ. 6.

III. How long thoſe 1260 days did laſt? and whether they be yet expired? and whether the true Church is any where elſe to be found all the time of the 1260 days, but in that place in the Wilderneſs?

IV. What are all the Churches, the Miniſtry, the Ordinances that appear out of the Wilderneſs all this while, while the true Church is there?

V. What was that Beaſt which came out of the Sea; to which the Dragon gave his power, his ſeat and great authority? which all the World Worſhipped, Rev. 13. ver. 1. to 5.

VI. What is that Sea and thoſe Ships, wherein and wherewith the Merchants of the earth Traded with Babylon, and were made rich by their Traffick? what were thoſe Merchants? what their Merchandize? and what kind of Riches was this? Rev. 18. ver. 15. to 20.

VII What was that name of God, and that Tabernacle, and thoſe inhabitants of Heaven, which was Blaſphemed, by the Beaſt that aroſe out of the Sea, all the time of the 42 months, Rev. 13. ver. 5, 6.

VIII. What is the Lambs Book of Life? and where is it? and how are the names of any ſo written in it, as to preſerve them from the Worſhip of the Beaſt? Rev. 13. 8.

IX. What is that Beaſt that came up out of the earth, with the horns of a Lamb (as if it came up in the Lambs power) which doth great Wonders, and juſtifieth his Sacrifice by making fire come down from Heaven in the ſight of men; who both cauſeth men to make an Image to the firſt Beaſt, and alſo putteth life into the Image which men make? Rev. 13. ver. 11. &c. So that here's not a meer dead Image, but there's life in the Beaſts Knowledg, Ordinances and Worſhip: yet with God all this is dead, for it is not the true life.

X. What is the Beaſts mark, his name, his number? (Rev. 13: 17.) For if I do not infallibly know this, I may have received his mark, I may help to make up his name, I may be of his number, and be (unknown to my ſelf) a worſhipper of him and his Image, and ſo be liable to partake of the Torment of the Fire and Brimſtone threatned to ſuch; Rev. 14. 9, 10.

XI. What is that Song, which none could learn but the 144000, which were not defiled with women, but remained Virgins? Rev. 14. 3.

XII. What was that other Woman, (which took and kept the place of the former Woman (after ſhe had fled into the Wilderneſs) and enlarged her Territories in Nations, Kindreds, Tongues and Peoples? Rev. 17. 4. and ver. 15.

XIII. What was the Purple and Scarlet colours, and the Gold and Precious Stones ſhe was decked with? ver. 4.

XIV. What was the Golden Cup ſhe had in her hand, which was full of Abominations, and filthineſs of her Fornications, in the midſt of all her glorious appearance of Zeal, Devotion, Humility and Holineſs? ver. 4.

XV. What kind of drunkenneſs was it, wherewith the Kings and Inhabiters of the earth have been made drunk with the Wine of his Cup? Rev. 17. 2.

XVI. How may thoſe who have hated the Whore, and made her deſolate and naked, and eat her fleſh, and burned her with fire, yet after all this, give their Kingdom again to the Beaſt? Rev. 17. v. 16, 17. How may this be done? and how often may it be done?

Theſe are plain ſimple Queries, not to intangle mens minds, or ſet their Brains on work (for that way ſhall they never be able to reſolve them) but to awaken the ſimplicity in them, which will readily let them ſee what the Lord hath revealed to them herein, and in which they are to wait for the knowledge hereof, that they may eſcape or come out of the Snare. And in the mean time not to boaſt, as Iſrael of old did (when the Prophets from the mouth of the Lord accuſed them) that they had not polluted themſelves, they had not gone after Baalim (Jer. 22, 23 and v. 35.) but wait O backſliding Chriſtian, and thou ſhalt ſee thy way in the valley. And though thou haſt often traverſed thy ground to change thy path, gadding from one form to another, from one notion to another; yet all this hath been out of the life, out of the pure power, and ſtill in the Whoredom. Open the weak ſick eye in the weak heart (For how weak is thy heart, while thou haſt done all this) and let the languiſhing ſimplicity be my witneſs: for (under all thy wiſdom, thy zeal, thy knowledge, thy worſhip) that faints, that fails, that is not what it was in the beginning. Though thou art grown much higher, wiſer, and greater otherwiſe, yet there thou haſt loſt: and happy wilt thou be, if all thy gains ever ſince, may become loſs to thee for the recovering of this.

Some Conſiderations, helping out of the Suburbs or Out-skirts of Babylon, that her inward Building may be the better come at, and lie more open to the Ax and Hammer, which is to batter it down, and to cut it up for the Fire.

FIrſt, Conſider what it was the Church fled out of, when ſhe fled into the Wilderneſs. Was it not out of that Church-ſtate or building, which the Spirit of God had raiſed up for her here in the World, to which her Ordinances and way of Church-Worſhip belonged? Was it not here that the Dragon aſſaulted her, and from whence ſhe fled into a deſolate place and ſtate?

Secondly, What Spirit entred into theſe, when ſhe fled out of them? Were not theſe the Conquerours ſpoils? Did not Antichriſt get poſſeſſion of the form? Did not the the Whore get the Spouſes attire? Did not the Wolves gather up the Sheeps clothing, and cloath themſelves therewith? Was not the outward Court (what is the outward Court under the Goſpel, but the viſible Church-ſtate, with the viſible Ordinances thereof?) given to the Gentiles, who trod under foot the holy City, all the while they were worſhipping in the outward Court? Rev. 11. 2.

Thirdly, What Spirit is it directs men to theſe, ſince the true Church hath been fled out of them? And to what intent? Is it not that Spirit which would keep men from the life, that they might not be born of the barren Womb in the Wilderneſs, but be born of ſome of the fruitful Wombs of the viſible Churches, while the true Church is inviſible, and hath no viſible place in the earth, but remains in that place in the Wilderneſs which God prepared for her, and where ſhe receiveth her food all the 42 Months? Rev. 12. ver. 6, 14.

I have ſmarted deeply for theſe things, and have been taught by the briars and thorns of the Wilderneſs, whereby my ears came to be opened, to hear the ſound of the everlaſting Goſpel, to which they were before through ignorance ſtopped. For I alſo did believe and expect great things in a Church-ſtate and way of Worſhip; and in ſimplicity of heart did I enter into it, and walk in it, and was not without knowledge, warmth, and experiences there. But all this the Lord broke down by a ſtrong hand, in one moment, and hath taught me ſince, to throw away all my gains here and elſewhere, and to count them but droſs and dung, for the excellency of the knowledge of Jeſus Chriſt my Lord. And having taſted, having ſeen, having felt, having handled, I cannot but commend the life, and diſſwade all men from all Knowledge, all Worſhip, all Religion, all Ways and Practiſes (though never ſo taking, pleaſant, and promiſing) out of the life. And this is to know Chriſt, namely, to know the life: and this is to obey Chriſt, to obey the life: and this is the Kingdom of Chriſt which is to come, to have the life reign in power and great glory. But the knowing or believing of an Hiſtory concerning Chriſt, this is not the knowledge or the faith: Antichriſt all along the apoſtacy, in all his various forms and dreſſes, hath known and believed thus: and this kind of knowledge muſt paſs away further then it can find a place and ſervice in the life. Be not angry at my teſtimony, it flows from pure love, and comes forth in great good will to your Souls.

Yea, if it be poſſible that I might be a little ſerviceable to you (for my Soul travels for the redemption of profeſſors from the witchery of the whoriſh Spirit, even of ſuch as are ready to revile that which alone can redeem them) in the meekneſs and coolneſs of your Spirits, out of the fiery falſe Zeal, conſider yet a little further theſe few things following.

1. The ſtate of the Goſpel is an inviſible ſtate, a ſtate conſiſting of inviſible things (as the Law was a viſible ſtate, or a ſtate conſiſting of viſible things) the light inviſible, the life inviſible, the power inviſible, that which converts inviſible, that which is converted inviſible, that which it is converted to inviſible, and the whole courſe of Spiritual life lies inviſible.

2. This inviſible ſtate hath a viſible way of appearance to the World, by Garments which it wears, by motions and exerciſes which the life chooſeth for it to appear in.

3. Theſe garments are ſubject to corrupt, and to be worn by that which is corruptible and corrupted. That which hath not the life, may put on the garment; and that which hath loſt the life, may ſtill keep the garment.

4. The preſervation of the life lies not in the garment, or in the obſervation of any thing wherein the life did once appear; but the preſervation of the garment lies in the life. And the life may change its garment at its pleaſure, and may refuſe to wear thoſe any more, which the Whore hath worn, but as the life again leadeth.

5. When the life is at any time loſt, the only way of recovery, is by retiring to the inviſible, and keeping there, and growing up there, and not coming forth in the viſible further then the life leads, nor ſtaying there any longer then the life ſtays.

Now this is the miſtake of perſons generally, they look for the finding the inviſible life in viſibles. They run to corrupted ordinances and ways of Devotion, and think to find God there: but do not wait to feel him in their hearts, and to be led by him into what what he pleaseth: and to stay no where any longer then while he stayeth there, but to follow the Lamb wheresoever he goeth.

Some others mistake in running to that, and waiting there where they once felt life, but do not know the way to wait on the life it self: and so they are running to an Image, waiting at an Image, worshipping of an Image, and the living God will not meet them there. But throw away your Images, let Ephraim the dear Child say to his Idols, get you hence, thrust away your adulteries which provoke the eye of God's jealousie, receive the Fore-runner (the severe purifier) into your Bosoms, and let the Fire of his jealousie cleanse your hearts, and the pure will soon come after, and lodge again between your Breasts: Can ye hear this sound? That which is born of the same Wisdom, cannot but hear it: but the other birth must have its ear stopped.

Now hearken to this advice. When the invisible life is felt and known, do not disdain to follow it into what ever visible thing it leads. Let not thy Wisdom be judge what the life will lead into, or what the life is to be followed in; but let the life it self be judge: and let the Child which is born of the life, follow it singly, without murmuring, without disputing. The life hath foolish ways (to the eye of thy Wisdom) of breaking the Wisdom in thee which is contrary to it, which thy Wisdom will be reasoning and disputing against, and if that Wisdom be hearkened to, the life is overturned in its course, and the head of the Serpent remains sound in thee, which the foolish and weak things (which the Wisdom of God chooseth to cross and disturb it by) would help to break and crush.

An Exhortation to the present Powers.

BABYLON the great, the mystery of iniquity, which hath deceived and held Captive the whole Christian World, for these many generations, under form and appearances of Godliness and Devotion, is at length come into remembrance before God, who is arisen to judge her, and overturn her Seat. The Army hath been preparing, and many Souldiers have been drawn forth, the Trumpet hath sounded, the Battle is begun, and bloud hath been shed on both sides, the bloud of the Creature on the one side, the bloud of the whorish Spirit on the other side.

The Whore (with the power of the Beast on which she rides, and by whose strength and assistance she makes War with the Lamb) is mighty and dreadful; and it hath long been said, Who is able to make War with the Beast? (whose strength is hers.) But the Lord God (who hath risen out of his holy habitation to judge, and hath begun to judge her) is more mighty, by whose arm and strength she shall fall, and the Beast shall not be able to carry her up and down any longer, nay nor to uphold her in her seat of Government over the consciences of men.

Be wise now therefore, and consider the present state of things: and if ye find not hearts to help the Lord against the mighty, yet take heed of helping the mighty against the Lord. The Vessels wherein the life arises and appears are poor and very contemptible, and ye may easily trample upon them: but the life which riseth up in them is very precious, and too strong for the powers of Earth or of Hell. The Lord did not appear formerly among you, or of late begin to raise you up again, that ye should become enemies to him, or aiders of his enemies against him, but that ye might let his Seed go forth to Worship him in the Wilderness: (for in this dark Land of Ægypt they cannot.) Therefore break the Yoaks and take off the Burdens, and let there be no new snares laid, but leave the conscience (where the Lord chuseth to appear, and which he delights to draw out of the World to himself) free to the Lord.

The Lord hath kindled, and is kindling the fire with which he is burning, and will burn the flesh of the Whore. Come not near to help her, lest ye feel the flames. Stand afar off and see her burning, and at most pity her, but help her not,

Wee fight not against the flesh and bloud of creatures, but against that evil Spirit which captivates and makes them miserable: nor do we fight with carnal Weapons, but with such Weapons as are able to reach that Spirit. Now if ye interpose with your carnal Weapons, and smite the Vessel which the Lord is pleased to make use of in this this Warfare, his hand will be upon you: yea if ye endeavour to bear off the ſtroke from the Whore, it will light upon your ſelves, and the Lords hand (and his ſtrokes in this day of his jealouſie and vengance) is very heavy.

Do what ye can, ye ſhall not be able to hinder the Lords Victory (who will overcome, even by this very people, whom the Wiſe of all ſorts deſpiſe:) all that ye can do in taking part with the enemy, is but to bring Wounds and Judgments upon your ſelves, and to ſhorten the days of your government. but the Work of the Lord will go on and proſper; and this painted harlot (which pretends to be the Spouſe of Chriſt, and has deckt her ſelf ſo pleaſingly with her ſtollen knowledge of Scriptures, and lays claim to his Miniſtry and Ordinances) ſhall be ſtripped naked, and her ſhame ſeen, and every Child in the life ſhall be able to point at her, and the Song of triumph over the Dragon, the Beaſt, the falſe Churches, and all the falſe Prophets (who are not made, nor propheſie not by the anointing) ſhall be ſung in righteouſneſs, even to the Lamb who daily getteth, and will get perfect victory: for to him it is given over all his enemies.

A Poſtſcript.

THe redemption of the Soul is by the Spirit of the Lord, which he that would enjoy from it, muſt know its appearance and operation in himſelf, and not quench or limit it, but univerſally be ſubject to its guidance and leadings. All mans inward miſery ariſes from mans inward rebellion, which is as the ſin of witchcraft (ſpringing from the Spirit of witchcraft) his recovery and happineſs is in the Faith and Obedience to the pure power, movings, and operations of the Spirit in him.

The Lord God, who made mankind, who is the Lord of all, he is redeeming a people to himſelf by his Spirit. And this Spirit will not be limited by the power of the earth, but will break Nations in pieces, and trample upon Princes as Mortar, and as the Potter treadeth clay, till it hath made its way through them.

O! Open the eye, the inward eye, which can diſcern the ſeaſons: It is not now the time for Antichriſt to prevail, or for proud fleſh to riſe up in its heady will to ſtop the out-goings of its maker. This ſeaſon is paſt; and the ſeaſon of the prevailing of the life and power of the Son of righteouſneſs is now come.

Therefore lift up your heads, O ye weak and faint of the Flock, for iniquity and oppreſſion muſt fall both within and without, and the tender God of everlaſting love, will turn back the Captivity of his people, and of his creatures. Be not therefore affrighted at the inward power of ſin in the heart, nor at the outward oppreſſing powers of the earth: for the redeemers ſtrength is above all, and he ſtretching forth his mighty arm to ſave: in the true, and living faith of the elect, it is felt.

And O ye potſheards of the earth, ſtrive not with your Maker, limit him not, for he will aſſuredly break through you. Think not to ſubject him to your Laws, but learn his Law, come under his Yoke, and be bound by him, that ye may taſte of his liberty. Waſh your lips and kiſs the Son, and be not angry at his various appearances ſo contrary to your Wiſdom, but fear his dreadful name, and his threſhing inſtrument which hath teeth, and ſeek an hiding place under the ſhadow of his Wings, againſt the ſharp ſeaſon of the breaking forth of his wrath, and jealous indignation for the cauſe of Sion which haſteneth apace.

He hath long let the Spirit of Babylon have its liberty, and his hath been ſilent; now is the time for his ſpirit to ſpeak, and for Babylons to be ſilent. Will ye ſtill force him to ſilence, and open Babylons mouth? Will ye not ſuffer him to ſpeak, but according to the Laws and Orders of Babylon? Muſt that counterfeit Queen ſtill ſit on the Throne among you, and the true Princeſs be made her Servant? O let it not be grievous to you, to ſee the Spirit of the Lord ariſe, and make Babylon appear Babylon! Her wiſdom, her knowledge, her unity, her uniformity, her order, her comelineſs, her beauty, is but folly, confuſion, diſorder and deformity before the Lord: happy is the eye that ſees it, and the foot that turns from her.

Therefore awake, ariſe, and ſtand up from the dead, come out of the thick dark Land, where the pure God of life is not to be found: Come out of Babylon, and touch not the unclean, that the pure life may receive you into unity with it ſelf: but the Spirit that is unpurunpurged from its Babyloniſh worſhips and practiſes, the Lord will not ſuffer to come neer him. Therefore ſearch what is Babylon, and of Babylon in all your ways and worſhips; and wait on the Spirit of the Lord to be redeemed out of it, and ſeparated from it, or ye muſt remain ſeparated from the Lord, and not partake of his life and vertue, from (which that City with all her inhabitants) is ſhut out for ever.

The Lord hath had a ſore controverſie with this Nation (with her Rulers, her Teachers and People) for his Seeds ſake, which he hath been begetting to himſelf, and calling forth to worſhip him (according to the pure Law of his ſpirit of life) out of the ways, worſhips, and Heatheniſh cuſtoms of the earthly ſpirit.

Iſrael is his firſt born, whom he will not have any longer kept in Bondage. They are his own, of his own begetting and forming, of his own nouriſhing and bringing up, the Plants of his own right hand, whom he watereth with the Dews of Heaven, and with the ſhowrs of his everlaſting mercy and loving kindneſs; whom he hath gathered by the arm of his power, and whom he leadeth and defendeth by his Cloud and Pillar of Fire, over whom he is tender as of the apple of his eye. They are his anointed ones, whom he will not have touched, but rebuketh Kings and Parliaments, Armies and Councils for their ſakes, ſaying, Touch not mine anointed; and do my Prophets no harm.

Have ye not ſeen, how no ſtrength nor Council hath been able to prevail againſt them? They have had no fence, but the arm which hath gathered them. What plottings and contrivings hath there been againſt them. How are they as Sheep appointed for the Slaughter, deſtinated to be devoured, cruſhed, and trodden under foot? what Divinations and Inchantments have been uſed againſt them, even to blot out their name and remembrance from the earth?

But why do ye ſtrive and contend thus with the God of Jacob? can ye proſper? He that made the earth, will not ye let him have room therein for his people? Muſt they be ſubject to your wills? Muſt they bow to your Image? ſhall not the God of the ſpirits of all fleſh, have the command of the Spirits of his own people? can ye ſtop the Spirit of God from breathing upon them? or will ye fall foul upon them, if they be obedient to the breathings and movings of his Spirit? May it not ſuffice that they are innocent, and harmleſs among you in their converſations and practiſes, but will ye ſit Lord it over their Conſciences? will ye put the Lord to it to the very laſt, to try it out with you, whether he can defend his people and make way for their liberty?

Well, If peace be taken from you, if your Rulers, Laws, and Governments be broken in pieces, if his hand be ſtretched forth againſt you, if he curſe your very Bleſſings whom can ye blame? Why do you provoke him againſt your own Souls? are ye ſtronger than he? If ye be ſtronger and wiſer, ye may prevail: but if he be ſtronger, and will put forth his arm, his people ſhall be ſaved and find a ſhelter in him, in the midſt of all that wrath which is powring down upon you. Your peace hath been lengthned out for their ſakes, If it had not been for their ſakes (for the remnant which the Lord hath had to gather) ye had e're this been as Sodom, and like unto Gomorrah. The Land is full of filthineſs, which the Lords Soul loaths; and inſtead of drawing forth the Sword againſt it, ye draw it forth againſt his Witneſſes. There is liberty enough for ſin and vanity, for exceſs and riotouſneſs, for Images and Idols: but to worſhip God in Spirit, to obey his pure movings; this kindles your rage, and theſe are the people who are a burthen to you. Ah how fain would ye eaſe you of this people! (Sion is indeed a burthenſome Stone, and will fall heavy on all that meddle her) But the Lord will eaſe himſelf of the adverſaries of his Life and Spirit, and he will bring forth his righteouſneſs which he hath prepared, and ſet it up in the earth, and none ſhall be able to ſtop him. Therefore gather your ſelves together in Battel; aſſociate your ſelves, that ye may be broken in pieces; take council together, it ſhall come to nought; ſpeak the word, it ſhall not ſtand: but the Lords council ſhall ſtand, and he will fulfil at his pleaſure, and will delight himſelf in his people, and raiſe them up by the fall of their enemies: and then ye ſhall ſee againſt whom ye have plotted and contended, and what ye have helped to bring about by all your ſecret Plots and Deſigns. If the Lord had not been on our ſide, now may Iſrael ſay: if the Lord had not been on our ſide, what had become of his poor people! Ah poor Worm Jacob, how often would the foot of Pride have trampled thee down (again and again) had not the everlaſting arm been ſtretched for thee! But fear not Worm Jacob, nor be not ſollicitous for thy preſervation, but truſt that Arm which delighteth to preſerve thee.

Ah fooliſh people and unwiſe! who ſtrive againſt your own mercy, who ſee not on what hinge all your mercies hang, but make it your work to break down the wall that defends you.

Jeruſalem is the City of the great King, which is coming down from Heaven, and Iſrael is his people, and both muſt have a place in the earth: the Lord hath determined it, and who can withſtand it? what prejudice can Jeruſalem, or the Inhabitants thereof bring unto you? They are enemies indeed to this earthly ſtate of things, and would have all brought in ſubjection to the life and power of their King, and all that ſtands in oppoſition to God brought down, and made pliable to his ſpirit; and this the unyoked earthly ſpirit cannot bear. But this is the intereſt of your Souls, and the way to unity with that life which is their happineſs, peace, and reſt for ever: for if ye could paſs through the fire, and bear the burning up of your droſs, ye alſo might become veſſels for the Finer, and might dwell with them in their everlaſting habitation.

The Saints formerly had an entrance miniſtred to them into the everlaſting Kingdom, and came into Mount Sion which cannot be removed, and to Jeruſalem the City of the living God, Heb. 12. 22. where the blood of ſprinkling, the peace that paſſeth underſtanding, the everlaſting righteouſneſs, and the joy unſpeakable and full of glory was witneſſed in the renewed ſpirit, which receiveth the Kingdom which cannot be ſhaken, and entreth into the everlaſting reſt.

And is again revealed, and the Witneſſes ſhall aſcend into Heaven in the ſight of their enemies, even into the new Heaven and the new earth where righteouſneſs dwells, and the old heaven and old earth (with all its inhabitants) ſhall be burnt up: and then it ſhall be ſeen that righteouſneſs becomes, and belongs to the Houſe of God for ever. And his City ſhall be a quiet habitation, free from all the noiſe and hurry of Babylon? where the pure River of life runs clear, free from all the mud and mixtures of Babylon; and the Lord God of infinite fulneſs will not diſdain communion with his Creatures, but will tabernacle among them, dwell with them, ſup with them, walk in them, and take them into his holy habitation, and they ſhall dwell with him, ſup with him, and walk in him.

But who ſhall abide in his Tabernacle? who ſhall dwell in his holy Hill? He that walketh uprightly, and worketh righteouſneſs, and ſpeaketh the truth in his heart, &c. he who contemns the vile perſon (how great and high ſoever) but honoureth them that fear the Lord, be they otherwiſe what they will: This man ſhall dwell on high, above the reach of all low, creeping, dark ſpirits, even in that holy habitation of life and power, which nothing can touch or annoy.

I ſhall now conclude with a few words concerning the preſent eſtate of this poor diſtracted Nation.

This Nation hath long lain wounded and ſick: She hath had many Phyſicians (on whom ſhe hath ſpent much,) who have promiſed her fair, but have not effected her Cure. Of late her Wound hath been much enlarged, yea, ſhe is become ſick at her very heart, and in great danger. Many are ſpending their judgment upon her, ſome thinking a King would help all, ſome a Parliament, and ſome hoping for good from the Army; but every eye ſees her caſe to be very deſperate. Ah England, England, Thou ſtriveſt with thy Maker, and he overturns thy ſtrength and councils. The life and wiſdom which thou deſpiſeſt, is that which alone can heal thee. Thou ſtriveſt to keep off the ſtrokes from the enemies of God, and ſmiteſt his dear ones, how can he ſpare thee? Hands ſtill joyn in hand to keep the Lords ſtroke from reaching Babylon, which he hath directed at her Heart, and will not miſs her, but will pierce through every thing that ſtands in his way. Though the cry hath long been, hurt not the tender Conſcience, it is that on which God works, and wherein he chuſeth to appear, and with which he is pleaſed, and pitties. Many promiſes have been, touching liberty of conſcience, yet ſtill the meek of the earth, the innocent lambs of Chriſt (thoſe that are faithful to the light of God in their conſciences) are perſecuted and ſuffer. What canſt thou plead, O England, why the Lord ſhould not break thee all in pieces, and ſave his people himſelf, by and in the midſt of thy ruins. The Lord will have the victory over thee in this particular, about which he hath ſo long ſtriven with thee. It would be better and eaſier for thee to yield unto, then be forceed by his hand. Therefore at length hear his voice, which hath ſo often and ſo loud cryed unto thee, Let my people go, that they may ſerve me.

FOR THE

Profeſſors of this Age.

Wherein, if they read with meekneſs, any in the true Light, ſuch of them as have not overſlipt the day of their viſitation, may ſee their own Spirits, to their own everlaſting advantage and comfort, by learning ſubjection to that, which hath power in it to deſtroy this evil ſpirit in them.

Some Exceptions and Arguments of the Jews, againſt Chriſts Appearance, in that body of fleſh in their days, which the preſent Profeſſors may vie w and compare with their Exceptions and Arguments againſt his Appearance in Spirit in this Age, that they may ſee and conſider which of them are the more, and the more weighty.

By Iſaac Penington, the Younger.

The PREFACE.

THE Lord God of Infinite goodneſs, who hath ever dearly loved Mankind, yet could never ſo appear to them ſince the Tranſgreſſion, as to be owned by them, till the vail was taken from before their hearts. Iſrael in Egypt hearkned not to Moſes, becauſe of their anguiſh and bondage. When they were led out, they were ever and anon murmuring, and picking quarrels againſt him. Samuel they rejected (as the Lord lays to their charge) though they might excuſe themſelves, and ſay they had juſt exceptions againſt his Sons. Elijah that mighty man of God, the great reſtorer of Iſrael, and pleader againſt Baal by fire, his life was ſought for. And though there be not a particular Record of their uſage of the Prophets about thoſe days, yet in general he complains that they were all ſlain but himſelf, 1 King 19. 10. Micaiah was ſmote on the Cheek, and jeered by the falſe Prophet which ſmote him, and ſaid, which way went the Spirit of the Lord from mee to ſpeak unto thee? And he was commanded to be put in Priſon, and fed with Bread of Affliction and Water of Affliction. Jeremiah was put into the Dungeon, even to the danger of his Life: and by thoſe few that were left, that ſeemed ſingly to enquire by him concerning the will of the Lord, (Jer. 42. 2. 3.)

disdainfully rejected, chap. 43. 2. What should I spend time in particular instances? What Prophet can I except? for though all their bad dealings with them, are not related in Scripture, yet Christ testifies that they did deal badly with them all, some of them they stoned, some of them they scourged in their Synagogues, some of them they killed and crucified, and others they persecuted from City to City. Yea, saith Stephen, which of the Prophets have not your Fathers persecuted? and they have slain them which shewed before of the coming of the Just One. Ye make it such a strange thing, that if Christ had been a Prophet, ye should not own him: why, which of the Prophets was owned? ye have still some exception or other against us, that we are not the Prophets of God; and against our Message, that it is not the mind of God. Ye take Arguments from one Prophets words to oppose another Prophet with; and from one Prophets manner of comming, to oppose another Prophets manner of coming. If John come neither eating nor drinking, ye reject him for his austereness: if Christ come both eating and drinking, ye reject him for his liberty and freedom in the life. Now what is the reason of this? Christ himself gives the reason, Mat. 11. 19. Wisdom is justified of her Children. Ye are not the Children of wisdom, ye are not begotten of the life, of the spirit of the Prophets, and so cannot justifie that spirit, Ye have got the Letter of the Prophets, ye are born of that; but ye are not born of the life, ye are not born of the wisdom. And so, whoever comes forth in the same Birth from the Letter with you, him ye can own: but if any Prophet come forth with that same Spirit, him ye cannot own. He that is born after the Flesh, cannot but persecute him that is born after the Spirit. Jerusalem was all along the persecutor of the Prophets from the beginning to the end.

And is this nothing to you, O ye professors of this Age? Search, and see who have been the persecuters among you, but they who have had the name of the Church and her Prophets? Who have slain the Witnesses? The Church of Rome hath slain the Witnesses against her, and the Protestants have slain the Witnesses against them. About the beginning of these troubles, if a man were never so truly zealous, yet if he could not conform to the Common-prayer-book and Ceremonies, how was he persecuted? A Non-Conformist, a Separatist, a Brownist, an Anabaptist (though owning the same Christ in his very heart and soul) yet because his practise was a Testimony against the false Church-worship of the common Protestant, must be hunted up and down to Courts, Imprisoned, Fined, Banished. And to this day, the Lord can bring forth no birth of his Spirit, but the zealous Professor hates, reviles, and seeks to destroy. If the Lord lay any Law upon the Conscience, if it be not suitable to their apprehensions from the Letter, how do they reproach, disdain, revile, and endeavour to render such odious to the Magistrates, and to the People!

But why should we wonder at these things? There is no new thing under the Sun. The state of the World is just as it always was. The power of Truth in every age, hath been still opposed by those who cryed up the Form. It were a wonder if it should be otherwise. I should much more wonder, if the Teachers and Professors of this Age should own Truth, then that they fight against it and persecute it. Well friends and brethren be strong in the Lord, and faithful to his truth in the power of his might; bear the reproach, the afflictions of this age, the persecutions of this your day: Verily your eyes shall see that there is a reward for the righteous, and your hearts shall be satisfied with it, when the Children of the Kingdom (of this age, as well as of Christ, and all former ages) shall be shut out in utter darkness, where shall be weeping and wailing, and gnashing of Teeth.

Some EXCEPTIONS and ARGUMENTS of the Jews, againſt CHRIST's appearance &c.

THE Jews were once the only outward viſible people of God, who were choſen by God for a peculiar people, who had the promiſe of, and expected the Meſſiah, whoſe Faith and hope of Salvation was in him, yea, and at that very time they were looking for him; yet when he came, he was a Stone of ſtumbling, and a Rock of offence to them, and they could by no means receive him. They were full of reaſonings, and doubts, and contendings about it, but could never with all their Wiſdom from the Letter, determine that was he. Though he lived as never man lived, though he ſpake as never man ſpake, though he did what never man did; yet ſtill ſome exception or other they had from the Letter of the Scriptures, to which his manner of appearance, his Converſation, and his Doctrine did not ſuit in their Judgment; and ſo after many Diſputes and Debates, they at length deliver him up to Death, as a Blaſphemer, a Deceiver, a Seducer of the People.

Many Exceptions and Arguments they had againſt him, againſt his Diſcent, his Doctrine, his Practiſes, his Miracles, his Followers, &c. Which I ſhall refer to Heads, to make them more obvious.

1. They excepted at his Deſcent and Kindred. Is not this the Carpenter's Son? Is not his Mother called Mary? And his Brethren, James, and Joſes, and Simon, and Judas? And his Siſters, are they not all with us? Mat. 13. 55, 56. (What, this the glorious Meſſiah, the great King of Glory, of whom all the Prophets propheſied and ſpoke great things! Surely it cannot be.) And they were offended in him, verſe 57. It was this made them they could not receive that heavenly Doctrine of his, which otherwiſe might have been life to them, when he taught them that he was the Bread of life that came down from Heaven: but they murmured becauſe of it, and ſaid, Is not this Jeſus the Son of Joſeph, whoſe Father and Mother we know? How is it then that he ſaith, I came down from Heaven, John 6. 41, 42. So again, John 7. 27. We know this man whence he is: but when Chriſt cometh, no man knoweth whence he is. This was a cloſe Argument, and was raiſed up to eat out a deep impreſſion of his being the Chriſt, as may appear from the foregoing verſe. He ſpeaketh indeed boldly, and deep things, &c. as if he were the Chriſt; but how can he be he, ſeeing it is known from whence he comes.

2. At his Country, or place of his Education and reſidence, which was Nazareth of Galilee. Can there any good thing come out of Nazareth? John 1. 46. Shall Chriſt come out of Galilee? John 7. 41. Search and look; for out of Galilee ariſeth no Prophet, verſe 52.

3. At the time and ſeaſon of his coming. He came (as to their ſenſe) before Elias. With this Argument they pinched the Diſciples, as is ſignified in that Query of theirs to Chriſt, Why then ſay the Scribes that Elias muſt firſt come? Mat 17. 10. This could not but be a ſore Argument in the mouth of the Scribes, who might reaſon with the Diſciples on this wiſe: What poor ignorant ſottiſh, deluded People are you, to own this man for your Maſter, and take him for the Meſſiah? Elias muſt firſt come, and reſtore all things. If this man preached never ſo heavenly Doctrine, and did never ſo many Miracles, yet if he pretend to be the Meſſiah, he can be but a Deceiver; for the true Meſſiah comes not from Elias; and every one knows that Elias is not yet come, nor his work of reſtoring all things, ſo much as begun.

4. His Doctrine adminiſtred abundance of offence to them, and they were continually ſtumbling at it. That heavenly Doctrine mentioned a little before, that he was the Bread of life, they murmured at it, John 6. 41. When he did but ſay, God was his Father, they preſently flew out upon him, and ſaid, he made himſelf equal with God, John 5. 18. When he ſaid, Deſtroy this Temple, and in three days I will raiſe it up, they miſunderſtood him, and brought it forth as an argument againſt him at the time of his ſuffering, Mat. 26. 61. And caſt it as a jeer in his teeth, Mat. 27, 40. When he did but say to the man sick of the palsie, Son thy sins are forgiven thee; the Scribes and Pharisees presently exclaimed against him, Who is this that speaketh blasphemies? Who can forgive Sins but God alone? Luke 5, 21, and chap. 7. 49. When he preached very powerfully against Covetousness, the Pharisees derided him, Luke 16. 14. Yea, when he did but preach a Parable or two about the Widow of Sarepta, and Naaman the Syrian (it coming a little close to their State) all they in the Synagogue were so filled with Wrath, that they rose up and thrust him out of the City, and led him unto the brow of the Hill to cast him down headlong, Luke 4. 28, 29. At his saying that Abraham rejoyced to see his day, and he saw it, and was glad; the Jews replyed, Thou art not yet fifty years old, and hast thou seen Abraham? John 8. 57. How absurd and impossible was this to them, that a man of not fifty years, should say that Abraham (who lived so many ages before,) saw his day; And instead of giving them an argument to demonstrate it to them, he only returns them a more confident affirmation, Verily, Verily, I say unto you, before Abraham was I am; verse 58. which so enraged them, that they took up Stones to cast at him, verse 59. Now mark, the life speaks what it sees and knows, and so it gives forth its Testimony: the wise Professor not being in the life, he cannot know or receive the Testimony, but calls for arguments and demonstrations to his wise eye, the life refuseth to answer him, but instead thereof, only affirmeth the thing more strongly and confidently; this (being so far from that which he looks for, and requires to satisfie him) kindles disdain and rage in him: and he looks upon the life, for this way of proceeding, as worthy to be stoned. What, when they should lay before Christ a fair argument, whereby they might plainly convince him by evident reason, that he could not see Abraham's day; and he instead of answering it, should only bring forth a more confident affirmation. Would not mens Wisdom in this age, even hiss at such a thing? Yet this was the way of the life then, in that day; and the life may at his pleasure take the same way again now, to offend the Wise and Knowing.

When he spake of his being the good Shepherd and of his laying down his life for his Sheep (and of the Hireling's flying in time of danger to save himself) John 10. v. 11, 12. Many of the Jews said, he hath a Devil, and is mad, why hear ye him? verse 20. Many of them that were then the people of God (the separated people: for the Jews were a people separated from the World, and studied the Law, and observed the Ordinances of Moses) looked upon Christ as a man not fit to be heard speak, but as a Mad-man, as one that had a Devil, as one that might have great power of deceit from the Devil, to bewitch men from truth; Why hear ye him? What good can ye expect from him? He hath a Devil, and is mad. O how desperately will bold flesh venture to judge of the Life and Power of God, when it hath got a little knowledge from the Scriptures, and a way of Worship, Duties, and Ordinances!

When he said, I and my Father are one, John 10. 30. they took up Stones again to stone him, verse 31. and made no question but they did well in doing of it, as appears by their answer to his demand; for which of his good Works they stoned him? They reply very confidently, For a good Work we stone thee not, but for Blasphemy; and because thou being a man, makest thy self God, verse 32, 33. And when he said, If a man keep my saying, he shall never see death, John 8. 51, Then said the Jews unto him, Now we know thou hast a Devil. Abraham is dead, and the Prophets are dead, Who makest thou thy self? verse 53. Were not Abraham and the Prophets holy men? Had not they the sayings of God? And did they not keep the sayings of God? Yet they are dead. Such a kind of speech as this must needs be from the Devil. Now thou makest manifest from what Spirit thou speakest. Now we know that thou hast a Devil. And indeed how could the professors of that age digest such things, being so contrary to what appeared to them, to be certain truth in the Scriptures.

And there were many other things as hard to them, though the exceptions which might or did arise in their minds, are not particularly mentioned: as when he saith, I am the door of the Sheep. All that ever came before me are Thieves and Robbers, but the Sheep did not hear them, John 10. 7, 8. How offensive must this Doctrine needs have been to them, going carnally to understand and reason about it? What were all the Prophets and holy men before thee, Thieves and Robbers? Did the truth never come, till thou broughtest it? What became of our Fore-fathers in former ages? Were they none of them God's Sheep? Did none of them find the door? For thou saist thou art the door, and thou hast been but of late: And whereas thou saist, the Sheep did not hear them, that is utterly false: for they did hear Moses. and they did hear the Prophets: and we have their Writings, and will keep to them for all thee, let who will be thy Sheep. When he said, that he came not to send peace but division, Mat, 10. 25. How readily might they reply, that his own mouth discovered to him, not to be the Messias, the Saviour, the Peace-maker, but the Worker of divisions, the Causes of breaches in Families; setting three against two, and two against three, Luke 21. 51. When he said, Whosoever committeth sin, is the Servant of sin, John 8. 34. Might not they well except against this as condemning the whole generation of the righteous, and making null the way of Sacrifices, which God had appointed for sins committed at any time by his people, which could not but presuppose their commission of sin? Did not Abraham, Isaack, David, Moses, and the rest of the Prophets all commit sin, and were they servants of sin, he taught also that the Children of the Kingdom should be cast into utter darkness, Mat. 8. 12. Oh how harsh would this sound in the ears of the zealous professing Jew, who was waiting, and hoping for the Kingdom! So in his Doctrine there seemed many contradictions to the fleshly understanding, for one while he said, I judge no man, for I came not to condemn the World: and yet was not he continually judging and condemning the Scribes, the Pharisees, the Priests, the Lawyers, and that whole generation of Professors? So again, he came to seek and save that which was lost, to preach the Gospel of peace: and yet another while he saith, he came not to send peace but a Sword, and to kindle a Fire, and to set men at variance, &c. Again, one while he said, I and my Father are one, another time, My Father is greater than me, one while he bid men do as the Scribes and Pharisees taught, another while he bid men beware of the Leaven or Doctrine of the Pharisees and Saduces, Mat. 16. 12.

But to what purpose should I heap up any more instances; O thou that readest this, wait to know in thy self the ear that cannot hear Christ's Doctrine, and while thou condemnest the Jews, do not run into the same error of unbelief and gain-saying, but wait to know the voice of Christ in this day, and to receive the ear that can hear it, for though thou shouldest be willing to hear, yet thou canst not, till thy ear be opened: Nicodemus, who could acknowledge Christ, a Teacher come from God, yet could not receive the Doctrine of the new Birth from him, John 3. 4. And there were many things the Disciples themselves were not able to bear, for when, at a certain time, he spake of giving his flesh to eat, not only the Jews, John 6. 52. but they also stumbled, v: 61. and who is there among professors, that can now bear it, or receive Christs own interpretation of it? who saith, that the flesh (which they understood) profiteth nothing, but the flesh which he meant was spirit and life, ver. 63.

At his practises, and conversation, How is it that he eateth with Publicans and Sinners, Mark 2. 16. Behold a gluttenous man, and a Wine bibber, a friend of Publicans and Sinners, Luke 7. 14. This man if he were a Prophet, would have known who, and what manner of Woman this is, that toucheth him; for she is a sinner, Luke 7. 39. At the Publicans and Sinners drawing nigh to hear him, the Pharisees and Scribes, were offended, and murmured, saying, This man receiveth sinners, and eateth with them, Luke 15. 1, 2. and when he went to Zachæus's house, they all murmured, saying, that he was gone to be Guest with a man that is a sinner, Luke 19 7.

Again, because he healed on the Sabbath, and justified his Disciples in plucking of ears of Corn on the Sabbath, they were filled with madness, and communed what they might do to him, Luke 6. ver. 3. and ver. and took counsel how they might destroy him, Mark 3: 5, 6. Another time, the Ruler of the Synagogue spake with indignation about it, Luke 13, 14. Yea, the Jews did persecute Jesus, and sought to slay him, because he had healed a man, and bid him take up his Bed and walk on the Sabbath-day, John 5. ver. 8. 16. And some of them made it a strong argument against him, this man is not of God, because he keepeth not the Sabbath-day, John 9. 16. What, come from God, and be a breaker of Ordinances? Can these two stand together? Read and consider, What more strict Ordinance of God under the Law, than the Sabbath? What one Ordinance more conducing to the Honour and Worship of God? Did not their whole Religion and Worship much depend upon it? How could this possibly but be a great offence to them in that Spirit, and Literal Wisdom from the Scriptures, wherein they stood? Yet Christ, in his fleshly appearance, was Lord of the Sabbath; and in his spiritual appearance he doth not lose his Dominion.

Again,

again, they excepted againſt him, that he did not teach his Diſciples to Faſt and Pray as John did, Luke 5. 33. But could ſuffer them to tranſgreſs the traditions of the Elders, Mat. 15. 2. He was not ſtrict after the Jewiſh way of Devotion, not ſtrict after John's way neither; but againſt the traditions of the godly Elders of the Jewiſh Church, againſt ſanctifying of the Lords Sabbath (juſtifying his Diſciples in plucking ears of Corn thereon. whereas their Fore-fathers the Jews, were not ſo much as to gather Manna on that day) againſt Faſting and Prayer, for he juſtified his Diſciples in that they did not Faſt and Pray as John did, ſaying, how could they mourn while the Bridegroom was with them? Mat. 9. 15. and conſider which way the Jews (in the ſtate they ſtood) could underſtand ſuch an anſwer as this, to reſt ſatisfied therewith?

6. They excepted againſt his Miracles, partly becauſe he did them on the Sabbath day, John 9. 16. Whereupon they concluded he could not be of God (for if it had been of God, he would have obſerved the day which God commanded) and if he wrought them not by the power of God, by whoſe power then muſt he work them? So they concluded, He caſteth out Devils by the Prince of Devils, Mat 9. 34. He hath Belzebub, and by the Prince of Devils caſteth he out Devils, Mark 3. 32. And having thus concluded in themſelves, there was no ear open in them, to hear any thing that might be ſaid to the contrary. And again, partly becauſe he did not anſwer their wills, in giving them ſuch a ſign as they required: for this was ſtill their tone, Maſter, we would ſee a Sign from thee, Mat. 12. 38. What Sign ſheweſt thou unto us, ſeeing that thou doſt theſe things? John 2. 18. And they more particularly expreſs what Sign; they would have a Sign from Heaven, Luke 11. 18. What Sign ſheweſt thou, that we may ſee and believe thee? John 6. 30. We are ready to be convinced, we are ready to believe, If thou wouldſt give us ſufficient ground of believing in thee. As for all thy healing people, and caſting out Devils, Belzebub (the Prince of Devils) may furniſh thee with power, wherewith to deceive and bewitch us from the Law and Ordinances of Moſes (which we are ſure are of God) but ſhew us a Sign from Heaven, or elſe blame us not for not leaving Moſes to run after thee.

7. They excepted at the Teſtimony, which the Spirit of God in him, gave concerning him. When he ſpake the inward Teſtimony, which the Spirit of God gave from within, ſaying, I am the light of the World, he that followeth me, ſhall not walk in darkneſs, but ſhall have the light of life, John 8. 13. they preſently cried out, Thou beareſt record of thyſelf, thy record is not true, verſe 14. Mark his anſwer; It is written in your Law, that the Teſtimony of two men is true, I am one that bear witneſs of my ſelf, and the Father that ſent me beareth witneſs of me, verſe 17, 18. How would ſuch an anſwer paſs now in theſe days, though the ſame life ſhould ſpeak it? Would not the wiſe profeſſors of this age even hoot at it? yet the thing is known at this day, even the life which the Father begets, and the Fathers teſtifying of it, and with it? and thou that readeſt this, mighteſt know it, couldeſt thou wait in the loſs of thine own life (wiſdom, and knowledge) for it.

8. They excepted againſt his Diſciples and Followers, which were Women, Publicans, and Sinners, the common people, yea, the meaneſt, the pooreſt and moſt ignorant (in their account) who were fitteſt to be deluded and led away. Are ye alſo deceived? Have any of the Rulers or of the Phariſees believed on him? But this people who knoweth not the Law, are curſed, John 7. 47, 48, 49, The common people, the ignorant people, the unſetled people, ſuch as know not the Law, ſuch as underſtand not the Scriptures, they run after him, and cry him up: but which of the ſettled ones, which of the truly zealous ones, which of the Wiſe men in the knowledge of the Law and Prophets, which of the Orthodox Scribes and Phariſees, who keep cloſe to Moſes, which of theſe believe in him? Whom of them can he deceive? As for the heady people, who (for want of knowledge from the Scriptures) are ready to run after every new fangle, they are not worth the minding they are accurſed, and therefore no marvel though God give them up to follow this deceiver, and to cry up his new light, and forſake the good old light of Moſes and the Prophets.

9. They excepted againſt him, that he did not rebuke his Diſciples, and the multitude (ſpreading their Garments, cutting down branches from the Trees, and ſtrowing them in the Way) with the Children that cried Hoſanna to him, as he rode on the Aſſes-colt to Jeruſalem: but he rather juſtified them, Luke 19. 31. and Mat. 21: 15, 16. What a ria ridiculous, and vain-glorious piece of pageantry would this seem to the fleshly wise eye?

10. That he did not shew sufficient Authority for what he did: By what Authority dost thou these things? and who gave thee this Authority, &c. Mark 11. 28. Thou takest upon thee great Authority over the people of God, over their Teachers, yea over Gods Temple, Sabbath, and Ordinances; but where's thy Authority so to do? Shew us that, &c.

11. They excepted when he spoke of his sufferings and death: We have heard in the Law, that Christ abideth for ever; and how saist thou, the Son of Man must be lift up? Who is the Son of man? John 12.34. Sure he that is to be lift up, cannot be the Christ which is to abide for ever, and not to die: So that here (in one breath) thou hast overthrown all that thou hast been setting up by thy Preaching and Miracles. Now which way could they understand this thing? Nay the very Disciples themselves could not swallow it, but were startled at it, and Christ was fain to hide it a long time from them. And yet if there be any thing held forth now in these days by the same Spirit, (as concerning light and perfection, or other truths which are seen in the Spirit) because men cannot apprehend them with their carnal understanding, and make them agree with their carnal knowledge of the Scriptures, what liberty do they take to themselves to speak both against the Truth it self, and also against them who have seen these things in the spirit, and speak them from the spirit? Now whosoever becomes a Disciple, must wait in the obedience to know the Doctrine, and not think to enter with that wisdom, and carnal reasoning from Scriptures, which the Scribes and Pharisees, and Professors of that age were shut out with.

There were many other things which they could not but except against, as at his answers to their questions, to which sometimes he was silent and gave no answer at all. At other times, he answered not directly, but in Parables (and how offensive is this to mans wisdom, who requires a positive and direct answer?) And sometimes his answer might seem quite from the thing, as John 12. 34, 35.

His not giving respect to persons (for it was a known thing of him, that he regarded not mens persons, Mat. 22. 16.) could not be very pleasing to them, who loved greetings, and sought honour one of another. He shewed not respect to Herod the King, (but spake contemptuously of him, as men would account it) Go saith he, and tell that Fox. He did not shew respect to the reverend and grave Doctors of the Law, nay nor to the High Priest himself. Nay he did not shew respect to his own Disciples, but said to Peter, (when he mildly and affectionately desired his Death might be avoided) Get thee behind me Satan. How harsh and rough a reply might this seem? If Peter had erred, through his affection and tenderness to his Master, a meek spirit would gently have informed him; but to call him Devil, and say, get thee behind me; what kind of spirit doth this savour of, would that professing Jew say, who knoweth not the true meekness, but seeks after a fleshly meekness, which is a Servant to the fleshly wisdom and prudence, but not true born? Nay he did not speak respectively to his own Mother, (as mans spirit, by its rule of respect would judge and condemn him) but said, Woman, what have I to do with thee? John 2. 4. And in a manner denied all his Relations, Mat. 12. 48:

Lastly, (to instance no more) at his harsh censures of all the Professors of that age, (which observed the Law of Moses, and Israels Statutes) with all their laborious and Godly Teachers, justifying none but himself, and what he taught, and a few of his followers. He told them that they had not the Love of God in them, John 5. 42. Did not this (think ye) seem to them a very harsh charge? And why not the love of God? because they did not follow him, and his new Doctrine? yea, would they be ready to say, they did love God, and kept his Commandements, Sabbaths, and Ordinances, which he transgressed.

He laid this also to their charge, that they did not believe Moses, John 5. 46. What an unjust charge might this seem, when they were so zealous for Moses, and their very dislike of him, and controversie against him, was for the sake of the Law and Ordinances of Moses?

Another charge he laid to them was, that they were not the Children of Abraham, or of God, but of the Devil, John 8. ver. 39, 42, 44. What a rash censorious man might they they account him, thus to speak of them, who were the Humane Seed of Abraham, who were such strict observers of Gods Laws and Ordinances, (which is the property of his Children) and such enemies to the Devil, that they would not be drawn from the Truths, and way of worship taught by Moses and the Prophets, no not by all the Miracles he could work?

He called them a faithless and perverse Generation, Mat. 1.17. 17.

He told them that they did not know God, though they said with confidence that he was their God, John 12. 54, 55. How could they bear this? They had been studying the Law and Prophets, and had a great stock of Knowledge from thence, and were strict and exact in worship (some of them, as well as Paul, might be according to the Law blameless) and now to be told they did not know God? Nay, he that aboundeth in Knowledge, Devotion and Worship, yet being not in the life and pure Power of the Spirit, hath not one dram of the true knowledge.

He told them that they should dye in their Sins, John 8 21. (O hard word, and severe judgement!) And yet he had told them a little before that he judged no man, ver. 15. yea they did think themselves exceedingly wronged by him, and thought that no man that had any thing of God in him could speak such things, but only one that was an enemy to the people of God, and led by the spirit of Satan To this effect they express themselves, verse 48. of that Chap. Say we not well, that thou art a Samaritan, and hath a Devil?

Yea, when Christ charged them with going about to kill him, they seemed to themselves so clear in their own Consciences, that they answered, thou hast a Devil, who goes about to kill thee? John 7.29. how easily might they close up the controversie, and by this very thing conclude him to be a false Prophet? He says we went about to kill him, when (God knows) there was not such a thing in our hearts. Can this man be a true Prophet? yet Christ knew the professing Jews to be the Murtherer, and in and for his Religion sake still seeking to slay him. And there is no such Murtherer of Christ (the life) upon the earth, as the zealous Professor and Worshipper out of the life. He that is in the life cannot persecute any man; he that is out of the life, cannot but persecute him that is in the life. Hereby the true and false Christian may be discerned, by the weakest simple and single eye.

And then for their Teachers and Expounders of the Law, how exceeding bitter did he seem against them? and how heavy things was he continually laying to their charge? He called them blind Guides, Hypocrites, painted Sepulchers, Graves which appear not, and pronounced woe upon woe against them. Read that one place, Mat. 23. 33. Ye Serpents, ye Generation of Vipers, how can ye escape the Damnation of Hell? What speak thus of our zealous Teachers, who study the Law, are strict in practising of the Ordinances, and take such pains to instruct us in the mind of God, from Moses and the Prophets? was such a man as this fit to live? Nay and he does not shew a Gospel Spirit, mark how sharp and bitter his words come from him (for indeed a sharper speech, with greater vehemency and indignation of spirit can hardly be spoken) and they might seem to aggravate this sharp condemnation of his, from his own confession: he himself had confessed that they sate in Moses Chair (now he might have shewn some honour to Moses Chair, and to their Office, which was of God, and doubtless good) and not have gone about to make them thus odious in the eyes of the people. Nay he himself had bid men do as they said, but in ver. 3. of that Chapter. Now was it likely that ever men should mind what they said, or observe their Doctrine, when he had thus represented them, as Oppressors of the Conscience, ver 4. as devourers of Widows Houses, and making long Prayers in Hypocrisy, ver. 15. as making their Proselytes more the Children of Hell than themselves, ver. 15. as neglecters of the weightier matters of the Law, Judgement, Mercy and Faith, ver. 23. as appearing righteous to men, but full of Hypocrisy and Iniquity, ver. 28. as of the same Generation that killed the Prophets, ver. 31. 32. as Deceivers, as such as led into the Ditch, (and bid men beware of their Leaven) were not these good kind of incouragements for people to hear them? Yea he charged them with shutting up the Kingdom of Heaven against men, and not going in themselves, nor suffering men to enter that were going in, ver 13. How could they observe what they taught without hearing them? and would Christ wish any to hear such men as these? Yet for all this, without doubt they were not without their justifications against Christ in these respects, and also had their charges (on the other hand) ready against him. Now how did they shut up the Kingdom of Heaven against men? Did not they teach the Law, and direct men to the Ordinances of God and open the Prophets words to them? was this shutting up the Kingdome of Heaven? and would not they suffer men to enter? Why, their work was to win people to their Profession, they would compass Sea and Land to make a Proselyte. How stifly might the Jews have pleaded against Christ, that he did slander their Godly Ministers, who were very painful and zealous in opening the Scriptures, and teaching the way of God? nay he himself could not deny but they taught well: for he himself saith, whatsoever they bid you observe, that observe and do, Mat. 23. 3. But mark now, that ye may understand the thing, it is thus. Any teaching, or expounding of Scriptures out of the life, shuts up the Kingdom: for the Life is the Kingdom: and words from the life yield the savour of the Kingdom: but words out of it (though never so good and true) reach not to the life in another, but only build up a knowledge in the contrary wisdom, and teach to hold the truth in the unrighteousness, where Satans Kingdom stands, and where he hath the Dominion over all that is brought thither. And so this kind of teaching and knowledge shuts up the door and way of life; and must be lost, before the Kingdom can be found.

They shut up the true Kingdom, but they opened another Kingdom, they opened the Kingdom another way, (which was in truth shutting of it,) and they had Disciples and Children of the Kingdom whom they tickled with the hope of life, and fed with promises and comforts: but these the Lord would shut out. Many shall come from the East and West, and shall sit down with Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, in the Kingdom of Heaven: but the Children of the Kingdom, shall be cast out into utter darkness, Mat. 8. 11. 12. This is true at this day, in this present dispensation, as it was then in that dispensation, though men make it a great accusation against us, charging us that we say none are the people of God but our selves, and as if all were damned but we. These are mens harsh and unsavory expressions; we use not to speak after this manner, but soberly open the state of the thing, as it stands in the Truth (and as it hath beeen revealed unto us, by him who is true, and cannot lie,) which is thus.

That through which men are saved, is the dispensation of Truth in their Age. The measure of light, which God gives forth in every Age; that is the means and proper way of Salvation in that Age: and whatever men get, or profess of the knowledge of Truth, declared in former Ages, yet making use of that to withstand the present dispensation of Truth in their Age, they cannot thereby be saved, but may thereby be hardened against that which should save them. And this we are assured of from the Lord, that as the Jews could not be saved by the Law of Moses (making use of it in opposition to the shining of the light of God in the Prophets in their present Ages) nor afterwards could be saved by magnifying and observing both the words of Moses and the Prophets, and their belief from thence of a Messiah to come, (making use of these things to oppose that appearance of Christ in the flesh, which was the dispensation of their day then.) No more can any Professors be saved now, by belief of a Christ come, or any thing which they can learn or practise from the Scriptures, making use thereof to oppose the dispensation of this day; which dispensation is the immediate and powerful breaking forth of the light of the Spirit, in the hearts of Gods people (who have earnestly sought, and in much sorrow and perplexity of Spirit, longed and waited for him) after this long dark night of the Antichristian Apostacy.

There remain yet some other exceptions against him, about the time of his suffering Death, with his hard usage, which would not wholly be passed over.

As first, his disrespective or irreverend answering of the high Priest, (as it seemed to them) when he asked him of his Doctrine, John 18. vers. 19. His answer was, that he spake openly in the World, not in secret, why askest thou me? ask them that heard me; whereupon one of the Officers struck him, saying; Answerest thou the high Priest so? vers. 22. The plainness and simplicity of the life (which bows to God, and cannot regard man in the Transgression) seems rude and unmannerly to the lofty Spirit of the World.

2. His silence at the Testimonies brought against him, and to the high Priest when he he queſtioned him, Mark 14. 60. 61. Indeed either the ſpeaking or ſilence in the life, is offenſive to the carnal profeſſor, who knoweth not the Law of the life in this particular, but can either ſpeak or be ſilent, according to his own Will. This is the difference between the true and the falſe Chriſtian; The falſe Chriſtian, his Knowledge and Religion ſtands in his own Will, in his own Underſtanding, (he ſpeaks in his own time) both which are crucified in him that is born of the Spirit.

3. When he did ſpeak the truth himſelf, the high Prieſt rent his Cloths, and charged him with Blaſphemy, Mat. 26. 64 And thoſe that were by, fell in with the high Prieſt, and ſaid, he was guilty of death, verſe 66. Then they ſpit on his Face, and buffetted him, and ſmote him, and mocked him, and blindfolded him, and ſtruck him on the Face, bidding him Propheſie who ſmote him, Mat. 26. 67, 68. and Luke 22. 63, 64.

When they brought him to Pilate, they would have Pilate take it for granted that he was an evil-doer, and worthy of death, for when Pilate asked for their accuſation againſt him, they anſwer, If he were not a Malefactor, we would not have delivered him up unto thee, John 18. 29, 30. Pilate refuſing ſo to proceed in judgment (ver. 31.) they begin to bring in their charges, We found this fellow perverting the Nation, and forbidding to give Tribute to Cæſar, ſaying, that he himſelf is Chriſt a King, Luke 23. 2: Pilate examines him herein, but profeſſes he can find no fault in him at all, John 18. 38. Then the chief Prieſts accuſed him of many other things, (Mark 15. 3.) and were more fierce ſaying, He ſtirreth up the people, teaching throughout all Jury beginning from Galilee to this place. (This indeed was his great offence, he taught with the authority of the Spirit, and not as the Scribes.) Then Pilate ſent him to Herod (where the chief Prieſts and Scribes ſtood vehemently accuſing him) who queſtioned him much, but he anſwered him nothing. And Herod, with his men of War, ſet him at nought, and mocked him and arayed him in a gorgeous Robe, and ſent him back to Pilate, Luke 23. 9, 10, 11. Pilate profeſſed that he could not find him guilty of this ſecond charge, neither of perverting the people, verſe 14. therefore chaſtiſing him, he would releaſe him, verſe 16. But the people (by the perſwaſion of the chief Prieſts and Elders) cried all at once, Away with this man, and releaſe unto us Barrabas, verſe 18. But let him be be crucified, Crucifie him, Crucifie him, verſe 21, &c. Now when Pilate had ſcourged him, and the Souldiers had ſtripped him, and put on him a Scarlet Robe, and had put a Crown of platted Thorns on his head, and a Reed in his right hand, and had bowed the Knee to him in Mockery, and ſpit on him, and ſmote him with a Reed, he brings him forth to them again, hoping this might appeaſe their Malice, and they might be content to ſpare his being crucified. They tell him they have a Law, and by their Law he ought to dy, becauſe he made himſelf the Son of God, John 19. verſe 4. to 8. (See how they turn and wind every way, to make the innocent an offender, and to make ſome Law, of one kind or other, take hold of him!) But when all their accuſations would not prevail with Pilate, but ſtill (from the ſenſe of his innocency) he had a mind to releaſe him, they uſe another ſubtile artifice, telling him, If he let this man go, he was not Cæſar's Friend, John 19. 12. This carries it with Pilate, now he diſputes no further, but delivers him to their Will, Luke 23. 5.

Now, thou who readeſt this, take heed of judging the Jews for all this wickedneſs, while the ſame nature is alive in thee, which did all this in them: for aſſuredly thou (in whom that nature which did it in them, is not ſubdued) wouldſt have done the ſame thing, hadſt thou lived in theſe days. Thou that diſdaineſt and perſecuteſt the appearance of Chriſt in this age, wouldſt have diſdained, and have perſecuted his appearance in that age, do not deceive thy Soul.

The Jews did as little think, that ever they ſhould have put a Prophet, or any good man to death (much leſs the Meſſiah) as thou canſt: yea, they could blame their Fathers for killing the Prophets, and ſay; if they had lived in thoſe days, they would not have done it: and yet doſt thou not read what they did? The perſecuting Spirit was ever blind, and could in no age read its evil and bitter nature, and its enmity againſt the life and power. Be not thou blind in thy day (as they were in theirs) and an enemy under pretence of being a friend.

4. Another exception or argument againſt him about the time of his ſuffering death, was, that he did not put forth his power to ſave himſelf from the Croſs, He ſaved others, let him ſave himſelf, if he be Chriſt the choſen of God, Luke 23. 35. Is it likely that this is the Son of God, and that he did ſo many miracles by the power of God, and cannot now ſave himſelf from the Croſs? This his ſuffering death on the Croſs did a little ſtumble ſome of the Diſciples (as may appear, Luke 24. 20, 21.) and was enough to have overturned the faith (of any) which ſtood not in the Spirit, and in the power. The Souldiers alſo could mock and manage this argument againſt him, ſaying, If thou be the King of the Jews, ſave thy ſelf, Luke 23. 37. And they that paſſed by, reviled him, wagging their heads and ſaying, Thou that deſtroyeſt the Temple, and buildeſt it in three days ſave thy ſelf; If thou be the Son of God, come down from the Croſs, Mat. 27. 39, 40. Likewiſe the chief Prieſts with the Scribes and Elders, mocked among themſelves, ſaying, he ſaved others, himſelf he cannot ſave. Let Chriſt the King of Iſrael deſcend now from the Croſs, that we may ſee and believe, Mark 15. 31, 32. One of the Thieves alſo railed on him ſaying, If thou be the Chriſt, ſave thy ſelf and us, Luke 23. 39. And when he cryed out to his God, Eli, Eli, &c. they derided him, This man calleth for Elias, let us ſee whether Elias will come and ſave him, Mat. 27. 47, 49. And after he was dead, the chief Prieſts and Phariſees ſpake of him, as of a known deceiver, verſe 63. And ſeem in a pious zeal for the Church, to take care that there be no further occaſion after his death, for the reviving and ſpreading of his deceit and errors, verſe 64. Thus the holy one, the pure one, the juſt and true one, (in whoſe heart and mouth was no guile found) was numbred among tranſgreſſors, accounted a deceiver, and put to death, as a Blaſphemer by the zealous Prieſts and Profeſſors of that age, who were ſo confident of the righteouſneſs of their cauſe (on the behalf of the Law of Moſes and their Sabbaths, Temple, &c.) againſt him, that when Pilate waſhed his hands, as clear of his bloud, all the people anſwered and ſaid, His Bloud be on us, and on our Children Mat. 27. 25.

Now let men conſider what the great exceptions are, which they have againſt the living appearance of Chriſt in his Spirit (now towards the cloſe of the Apoſtacy) and againſt us his Witneſſes, whom the Lord hath called forth to teſtifie his name. Many exceptions men have againſt our Perſons, our Doctrine, our Practiſes, for want of Miracles, &c. Is this generation more Wiſe or Juſt in their exceptions then the former was? Conſider the main ones a little.

Their great exceptions againſt our Doctrine are,

1. That we Preach up a Light within, and that he that receiveth that light receiveth a perfect gift; and growing up in it, groweth up to perfection, which in this life (through Faith and Obedience to this light or perfect gift) may be attained, and the body of ſin put off, and the new man Chriſt put on.

Anſw. Indeed we cannot but Preach up the light within, and declare unto men how great things it hath done for us, even that which we could never by any means meet with from any light without. And this is perfect, and tends to make perfect, carrying on its Work daily. Now he that feels its virtue, cannot doubt of its power. He that ſeeth the body of ſin daily going off, cannot doubt but he may be ſtripped. Indeed if a man ſtrive againſt ſin in his own Will, (and by his own gathered knowledge) he cannot get much ground, and ſo it is hard for him to believe perfection. But he that feels unity with that which is perfect, cannot but acknowledge that it is able to perfect him, and in Faith and Patience is encouraged to hope and wait for it.

2. That we deny that Chriſt which dyed at Jeruſalem, and his imputed Righteouſneſs, and ſet up an inherent Righteouſneſs.

Anſw. We know no other Chriſt then that which dyed at Jeruſalem, only we confeſs our chief knowledge of him is in Spirit. And as Chriſt ſaid in the days of his fleſh, that the way to know his Father, was to know him; and he that knew him knew the Father alſo. So we now witneſs, that the way to know Chriſt is to know the Spirit; and that he that knoweth the Spirit, knoweth Chriſt alſo, with whom Chriſt is one, and from whom he cannot be ſeperated. And as for imputed Righteouſneſs, it is too precious a thing to us, for to be denyed by us. That which we deny, is mens putting of it out of its place, applying it to them who are not in the true Faith, and walk not in the true Light: for in the true light (where the fellowſhip is with the Father and the Son) there alone the bloud cleanſeth, 1 John 1. 7. And there alone the righteouſneſs is imputed to him, who is cleanſed by the Bloud in the light, and not to him, him who knows it not. And as for inherent righteousness, we meddle not with that Word, but this we say, That our life exceedingly lies in feeling the righteousness of Christ wrought, and revealed in us; and we wish men could come out of the reasoning about it, into the feeling of the same thing with us: for then we are sure they would not so sharply, nor so long contend.

3. That we deny the Ordinances, and Means of Salvation.

Answ. We deny nothing that the Apostles and Christians formerly practised, nor do we deny any thing that any now practise in the light, and in the Faith; but the setting up of such things in the Will, that we deny; or the imitating these without the command of the Spirit, that we deny also. And this we testifie, that Antichrist creept in here, and that they are his great cover to keep men from the life, and therefore warn men to mind the life, and to take heed they be not kept from the substance by the shaddows, where Antichrist lies lurking, to bewitch from the substance. And we are sure, that these in Antichrists hands, are not the means of Salvation; but keep from the sight of the holy City, where the Life and Salvation is. And we read that the outward Court was given to the Gentiles; who trod under foot the holy City, Rev. 11. 2. And we have found by experience, that while we our selves were crying up the outward Court, we did trample under foot the City, though we then knew it not.

Their Exceptions against our Persons are, that we are Ignorant, Illiterate, and also Unsettled Persons (who have still been seeking up and down, &c.)

Answ. What Persons are fittest for God to make use of, towards the recovery of his people out of the Apostacy? Doth not God chuse that which is weak, and mean, and contemptible, that his glory might the more appear? Is not this a more likely way for him to steal upon the World, then if he appeared in the Wise and Learned ones? And among whom is his appearance to be expected? Among those who are settled upon their Lees in the Apostacy; or among those who have mourned, panted, and sought to come out of it, and could not be settled without his appearing to them, and fixing of their feet upon the Rock. But have we been unsettled, since God hath fastned us on the living Foundation? Nay, here is no more going out, but he that abides faithful, remains a Pillar in the house of God.

Men except likewise against our practises, as that we shew not respect of persons, and that we are not strict (after their manner) in duties, &c.

Answ. We have heard that Voice, Fear God, and give Glory to him, Rev. 14. 7. (not only as it is written there, but in Spirit:) and where the Lord is exalted, the glory of the creature falls: read Isa. 2. How all falls in that day, that God alone might be exalted. And we cannot, in this mighty day of the Lord, any longer give to man that honour which he hath gathered in the fall, and which pleaseth the fallen Nature, and not that which is born of God. And for Duties, we have bewailed (in the sight of the Lord) our former running into duties without his Spirit: and we must confess we can only pray in the Spirit, sing in the Spirit, wait in the Spirit, speak in the Spirit (as that gives utterance) and not of our selves, or when he will, but as we see life (strength, and power from on high) leading and assisting us. And our Religion consists neither in willing nor running, but in waiting on the Spirit and power of the Lord, to work all in us and for us. All these things we look upon to be our duty, and practice them.

It is likewise excepted against us, that we do not work Miracles.

Answ. We point to that which wrought all the outward Miracles formerly, and which now worketh great inward Miracles in Spirit: and we are sure the same Power (which we have received the Gospel in) is of the same healing Virtue. But that power worketh according to the purpose of its own will, and not according to the Will of man (yea though Paul had the gift of healing, yet he left Trophimus at Miletum sick, 2 Tim. 4. 20.) neither was the Will or Wisdom of man satisfied in all those Miracles which Christ and the Apostles wrought. It is enough for us to feel and live in the moving of the power, in which we rejoyce and are more satisfied (that by it our names are written in the Book of Life) then we could by any such outward and visible appearance and manifestation of it. But if we did work outward Miracles, yet if thou hadst not an inward eye to see them with, thou wouldst not be able to distinguish by what power they were wrought.

To

To what purpose should I mention any more particulars? Is it not enough? O fear before the Lord, and do not lose the present dispensation of life through mistake (or because ye cannot have things suited to your corrupt Wills) but know the Gospel, which is an inward dispensation, and doth not consist in outward shadows, but in inward virtue, life and power: For the Kingdom of God is Righteousness, and Peace, and Joy in the holy Spirit. Come to wait for that, to feel that, to unite there; and then we shall not differ about that which is outward. But it is Antichrists way (by the Magistrates power) to force an agreement about the outward, which destroys that tenderness of Conscience which preserves the inward.

And now let me put one Question to you; Where is the deceit of the Ages after Christ to be expected? Did the Jews deny Moses and the Prophets Writings or Ordinances? Nay were they not very zealous for these? and were not these their cover, under which they persecuted Christ, and vented all their malice against him? So can it be expected now, that the Deceivers of this age should deny the Apostles writings, or the practises therein mentioned? Or is it not rather to be expected, that under their crying up of these, they should hide their enmity against the life? Search and see, hath not every after-age of Professors took up the words and practises of them who were persecuted in the foregoing age, and under the profession of those words and practises, have hid their spirit of persecution? There is a remnant only among Professors to be saved, the generality of them have still been persecutors, creeping into the form, getting that for a cover upon their backs, and then fighting against the life and power. O wait on the Lord in his fear, that ye may be found worthy to know the persecuted truth on the one hand and the persecuting spirit on the other hand in this day of large profession, and also of bitter persecution!

Now what might be the cause, or how could it come to pass, that the zealous Worshippers of that Age should thus err in their zeal, and be thus heady and rash against him, whom they looked for to be their Saviour? How came they thus to err in Vision and stumble in Judgement in so weighty a matter? Shew unto us the cause, that we may see whether the same cause be not in us? for undoubtedly if it be, it will produce the same effect, and so we may ignorantly draw upon our heads the same heavy wrath in our day, that they did in their day.

Answ. The causes were very many, I may mention some few of the principal ones, which if they be seen into and removed, (by that power which is able to do it) such as are of a more inferiour influence, will not be able to stand.

1. One cause of their blind zeal, and bitterness against Christ, was, Their ignorance of the Scriptures, and of the power of God. If they had known the Scriptures in the true light, they could not but have known Christ, from whom the Scriptures were given forth; And if they had known the power of God, they could not but have known him who came in the power, yea who was the power. They had knowledge enough of both these one way, that is in the Letter; They knew the words of Scripture (they could make large expositions of them) they knew what was said in Scripture concerning the power of God, but they knew not the thing it self; and so turned against it, and made use of the words (which came from it, and testified of it) against it.

2. A second cause of this their sad miscarriage in their zeal, was, Their putting the Law and Ordinance, and Writings of the Prophets out of their proper place. They exceedingly magnified, and cryed them up, in that carnal way wherein they apprehended and practised them, but understood not the right end and use of them. And by these means, practising the shadows in the carnal mind, they lost the substance, which the proper use of the shadows was to have pointed them unto.

3. Their high conceits of the goodness of their state in relation to God, and of the certainty of their knowledge of the Truths of God from Moses and the Prophets. They were confident they knew God aright, and that he was their Father, and that they were his Children and People. And so Christ appearing in a seeming contrariety to these (notwithstanding all his powerful Preaching and Miracles) they made no question but they might boldly conclude him not to be of God.

4. Christs coming in a way that they looked not for him. They had concluded from the Scriptures, how Christ must appear, and he coming in a far different manner, they could could not own him, but looked upon him as a Deceiver, one that pretended to be Christ, but was not like to what the Scripture said of Christ. So what the Scripture saith of Christs second coming, is hid as much from the carnal eye of Professors in this age, as what was said concerning his first coming, was hid from them in their Age; and he will steal upon them as a Thief, at a time, and in a way, and after a manner that they expect not:

5. (Which is the main one, and the cause of all the former) Because they were from the light within, from the true Light in their own Hearts and Consciences. The Light within is the great Ordinance of God, and the proper means to give the knowledge of him, (2 Cor. 4. 6.) without which it was never received under any dispensation: for the Light that shines abroad (or from without) can alone be known and received by the Light that shines within. Christ himself opens this in a Parable; The light of the Body (saith he) is the eye; if therefore thine eye be single, (clear without beams or moats) thy whole body shall be full of light, Mat. 6. 22. But if that be evil, if that be dark, if that be closed by the God of the World, all Moses's words, all the Prophet words, yea all Christ and his Apostles words, cannot give thee light. Can I see the Light of the Sun, Moon or Stars, (or of any Fire or Candle) if I have not a natural eye, and if that natural eye be not open? So neither can I see the light of any dispensation of life, if I have not an eye within me open, wherewith to see it. So that that which gives me the sight of the things of God, is the eye which God hath given me. By that may be read the eternal power and God-head in the Creatures, in the Books of Moses and the Prophets, in the writings of the Evangelists and Apostles, as the Spirit leads and opens. Yea the same spirit that opened to these without Books, may again open to any of us without Books at his pleasure, (and will not be limited to Books) and we then may read also as they did, even within in the Spirit, and in the immediate life; but without this, can none of the things of God be read aright. Now the God of this World had blinded this eye in the Jews, yea they themselves had stopped their ears and closed their eyes, &c. they would not see this way, they would not be converted and healed this way. They would keep up the knowledge, which they had gathered from Moses and the Prophets without this eye; and with that they would see, or not at all.

Thus being from the light within, they could not see the place of life within, where life is to be received: they could not see the Womb of Wisdom, which is within, and so could not enter into it, and be born again. And being not born of the Wisdom, how could they justifie the wisdom? being not born of the light, how could they know or own Christ, whose coming and appearance was in the light? For that appearance of Christ the life, in that body of flesh, could not be discerned by all mens wisdom in the Letter, (the Disciples themselves came not so to know it) but my Father which is in Heaven hath revealed it to you. And mark it, the Disciples who were illiterate and not so knowing of the Scriptures that were written of Christ, yet they knew Christ: and the Scribes and Pharisees, which were very skilful in the Letter, could not know him. What was the reason? The reason lay in the difference of the eye, or Light wherewith they looked: the one looked with an outward eye, the other with an inward eye. And a little inward light will do that, which a great deal of outward light will not do. And this I can certainly affirm, that all the light that men can gather from the Scriptures, cannot give them the knowledge of Christ as he hath appeared in this Age, nay, nor as he hath appeared in any age, since the days of the Apostles: but a little true inward light will give the knowledge of this thing, and open those Scriptures infallibly (in its season) which all the Generations of wise and learned men have been controverting and disputing about, in that wisdom and searching spirit which is never to understand them. This then is the main and full reason of this deep errour of the Jews, and their desperate splitting upon the Rock, which would have saved them, They were begotten of the Letter which was given forth in former Ages, but not of the life which was raised up in their Age: and so they knew not how to turn to the Light within, which alone was able to give them the true and certain knowledge of the things of God.

Now

Now consider these things well, O ye Professors of this Age, and take heed that ye do not fall after the same example of unbelief. Be not high minded but fear. Be not so confident of what you have gathered by your wisdom for truth from the Scriptures, (after the manner that they were, of what they had gathered by their wisdom) but fear lest ye should be mistaken, as they were: and wait for the opening of that eye in you, which was shut in them, even the true eye, in the true Light, by the holy anointing, where there never was, nor can be any mistake. The Jews fell by unbelief; unbelief of what? They believed the Scriptures, they believed according to that knowledge they had gathered from the Scriptures: but they did not believe in the living Word They had a knowledge abiding in them, which they had gathered from the Scriptures, but they had not the living Word abiding in them; and so their Faith was but unbelief: (for the living Faith, stands in belief of the living Word in the Heart, which the Scriptures direct to; without the knowledge of which all knowledge of words is vain; and without Faith in which, all Faith is vain also) Now saith the Apostle to the Gentile-Christian, Thou standest by Faith, Rom. 11. 20. by what Faith? By Faith in that Word in the Heart, which they neglected and turned from, Rom. 10. 8. for Moses had taught them, after the Laws and Ordinances, about Worship and Sacrifices, that the Word that they were to obey and do (the Word that could give them Life, and make them obedient to all the commandements without) was in their heart and mouth, Deut 30. 14. and so the Prophet Micah, when they proposed Sacrifices, and Oyl, to please God with, he brings them to this which was given to them in common with mankind, Mich. 6. 8. for all Ordinances and Laws, and Observations, and practises without, are but to bring to the life within, which is to be found again there, where it was lost, and still lies slain and hid (even in the field, or house where it was lost.) And he that seeks abroad, never finds it; but when the Candle is lighted in his own House, and he searches narrowly in the field in his own heart, and the eternal eye begins to open in him, then he cries out, God was in this place, and I was not aware of it. Ah how the Enemie bewitched me, to run from Mountain to Mountain, and from Hill to Hill, and hath hereby covered my eye from beholding the Mountain of the Lords House, and from feeling the Spring of my life, which I further and further ran from, all the while I was seeking abroad Therefore, O ye Professors, be not so conceited like the Jews, and running after them into their Desolation and Misery, but learn Wisdom by their fall! Do not you set up your Ordinances and Scriptures, after the manner that they set up theirs: for this is your Danger: for this I clearly, in the Light of the Lord, testifie to you: that if ye gather a Knowledge and Wisdom from the Letter of the Scriptures, after the manner that they did, without knowledge of the Word within, and without a Light within from that Word, ye lose the living Faith, ye are but dead Branches, and all your knowledge of Scriptures, and Practices, and Faith, and Duties, &c. that ye here hold and observe, are but for the fire; and the flames of eternal Wrath shall kindle more fiercely upon you because of them, than upon the Jews: for ye stumble at the same stumbling stone, at which they stumbled and fell, and it will fall upon you also. And as you have more Scriptures than they had, and the experience of their fall to warn you: so your destruction will be exceeding dreadful if you neglect so great Salvation, whereof at this day there are so many living and powerful Witnesses, as they are known and owned to be in the Light of the Lord, though despised in your exalted and conceited Wisdom:

Now to help any honest and single hearts among you, over this great stumbling block of a Light within, consider these few things.

1. That all the knowledge (all the true knowledge) that ever ye had of God was from a Light within. I do not deny that ye might receive your knowledge through the Scriptures (and some warmth formerly in those things which ye call Ordinances, and Duties) but that whereby ye received the knowledge, was the Light within, the eye that God secretly opened in your spirits. This was was the way ye then came by it, though ye perhaps might feel the thing, but not know how ye came by it: even as a Babe may see truly, but doth not understand its own eye, or know how it sees.

2. While this eye was kept open in you, your knowledge was true in its measure, and serviceable to you, and did draw you neerer to God, making ye truly tender, meek, sweet, humble, patient, loving, gentle, and of pretious breathings towards God, and after righteousness. O how lovely were you to God in this state! when Israel was a Child, I loved him. God remembreth at this day the kindness of your Youth, and is seeking after you, O why do ye so harden your hearts against him!

3. That where-ever this eye is shut, the vertue of the true knowledge is lost, and the sweet fruits thereof wither. The outward part of the knowledge may be retained; yea, perhaps much increased, but the life is gone, and the pure sweet Savourines (to God) vanished. And if this eye were but a little opened again in you, your death and unsavourines might be soon seen and felt in you in all your Knowledge, Duties, Ordinances, yea in your very Graces and Experiences. You have a Faith still, yea, but it wants the savour of your former Faith: ye have some kind of love, gentleness, and meekness; yea, but it is but a thing formed by the fleshly Wisdom and reasoning, but not natural from the living spring, not such as ye once felt, &c. for the true and living eye being shut, that which is then best (or afterwards attained) is held but in the dead part, and serves but to feed Death.

4. The great work and design of the enemy of your Souls, is not to steal away the bulk of your knowledge, or to draw you from Ordinances, or Duties, but to steal the life out of your Spirits. This I have experimented from my Childhood, I might still have knowledge enough of any kind, but that which I wanted was life, and I was still sick under all the sorts of knowledge that ever I met with, and under all Ordinances and Duties, for want of life. The Lord had given my Soul a taste of true life, whereby I became unsatisfied without it, and no manner of knowleedge or enjoyment could take me up by the way: yea, when through extremity, I seemed willing to be content with any thing, yet still my heart was sick after that one thing, which alone could truly ease and satisfy it. Now if the enemy can prevail herein, to blind the inward eye, and steal away the life within, he hath enough. Then abound, as much as thou will, in Knowledge, in Zeal, in Duties, in Ordinances, in reading Scriptures, Praying, Meditating, &c. thou art the surer his hereby, and so much the better Servant to him: for how much the richer thou art in Knowledge, Experiences, Hopes and Assurance (without the life and power) so much the more acceptable, and honourable and useful art thou in his Kingdom.

Therefore see where ye are; Is the inward eye open in you? do ye know the Light within? (surely he that sees by a Light within, can hardly speak evil of it!) or hath the enemy, by some of his Artifices, drawn a Vail over that eye, wherewith once ye saw in some measure? O be not slight in a matter of so great weight! O please not your selves with the eye of the perishing Wisdom, with Deaths eye, and with Deaths knowledge of Scriptures, and of the Son of God, which speaks great words of the fame of true Wisdom, but is a stranger and enemy to the thing! O, life is precious, eternal life is precious. To have the Word of God abiding in the heart, and to feel the true Light give the true Life, who can set a value on this! Ah, do not lose your Souls for a trifle, for a little such knowledge of Scriptures as the earthly part can gather! (This I cannot but exceedingly despise, although the Scriptures I truly Honour, for their Testimony of that whereby I live) if ye see not the way of life by the inward Light (which alone can shew it) ye loose your Souls. If the God of the World hath blinded that eye in you, what are all your Treasures of Wisdom and Knowledge? What are all your hopes? and what will become of you? All these sparks of your own kindling from Scriptures, will not secure you from the Bed of Sorrow. O several sorts of Professors why will ye dye with the uncircumcised? why will ye go down into the Pit, among them that know not the Lord?

But what ſhall I ſay to this Generation? The ſpiritually-wiſe foreſeeth the Storm, and hideth himſelf; but the ſpiritually fooliſh run on headily, and are puniſhed. The Clouds have long been gathering, but the Sick eye cannot diſcern the Signs and Seaſons of the times, and ſo becauſe Judgement comes not as men expected, they grow hard, and wear off the ſenſe, wherewith they were ſomewhat affected at the firſt Threatning of it. But aſſuredly both Judgement and Mercy haſten, and they will come, and will not tarry.

For the ſame Lord God Almighty, which confounded the Heathens Babel (when their ſins and vain confidence was ripe) which they built to prevent any future Flood: For though they once had the true knowledge of God from an inward light, Rom. 1. 21. yet they ſoon left that, not liking to retain God in their knowledge, verſe 28. but running out into imaginations, and ſo building a Babel, whereby their fooliſh hearts became darkned to the Light, which God had made to ſhine in them, which ſhewed what might be known of God unto them, verſe 19.

Yea, the Lord God which overthrew the Jews Babel, which they had built from their knowledge of the Laws and Ordinances of Moſes, and the Scriptures written to them (they running out into Imaginations alſo) whereby they likewiſe thought to prevent the overflowing ſcourge from coming near them, Iſa. 28:15.

The ſame God will overthrow the Chriſtians Babel, which they have built from the Prophets and Apoſtles words, (by their own imaginations, and conceivings, in the high mindedneſs, out of the fear) whereby they think to eſcape the deluge of eternal Wrath: (for their City alſo ſhall be thrown down with violence, and ſhall be found no more at all, Revel. 18. 21.) And the great work of this day is to diſcover the rotteneſs of their Wall, and the untemperedneſs of the Mortar wherewith they have dawbed it. He that readeth let him underſtand: but the uncircumciſed in heart and ears, cannot.

Iſaac Penington the Younger.

The PREFACE.

THere was a glorious day, and bright appearance of truth in the times of the Apoſtles. They had the true Comforter, who led them into all truth, and kept them alive in truth, and truth alive in them. By this Spirit, they, as living Stones, were built up a ſpiritual Houſe founded upon Sion the holy Mount, into Jeruſalem the holy City, which is the Church of the living God, the pillar and ground of truth. And here they had their converſation in Heaven, with God the Judge of all, with Chriſt the Mediatour, and with the Spirits of juſt men and the holy Angels, which always behold the face of God. They lived in the Spirit. they walked in the Spirit, they prayed in the Spirit, they ſung in the Spirit, they Worſhiped in the Spirit and in that Underſtanding which the truth had made free, and had God dwelling in them, and Christ walking in the midst of them; and by the presence and power of his life in them; were truly dead unto sin, and alive unto God, they being not strivers against sin with mans legal Spirit, but by the power of Grace, which made them more then Conquerours through him that loved them. This was part of the glory of that State, in that day of the Sun-shine of the Gospel.

But behold, a thick night of darkness overspread the beauty of this! Some false brethren went out from the true Church into the World, getting the Sheeps cloathing, making a great outward appearance, and drew the World after them, yea, and some from the very Churches themselves: (how hard was the Apostle Paul to plead with the Corinthians about his own Apostleship and Doctrine that he might preserve that Church from the false Apostles! And when they had gathered a sufficient party in the World, they made head against the true Sheep and Lambs of Christ, fought with them, and overcame them. And when they had overcome them that had the living Testimony of Jesus, and the true power and presence of the Spirit among them, then they set up their own dead form, making a cry all over the Nations of the earth, Revelation is ceased, there is no looking now for such an infallible Spirit, and such immediate teachings as the Christians had in the Apostles days, who had the anointing to teach them all thing, but they point men to Traditions, to the Church, as they call it (which title the Whore hath engrossed since the days of the Apostles) or to searchings of the Scriptures, and reading expositions upon it, and bodies of divinity, formed by the understanding part in man to instruct the understanding part. Thus the whole course of religion and of the knowledge of God, came to be out of that spirit and life wherein it first came forth (and wherein it first stood) and consisted in Doctrines of men, and a form of worship and knowledge which the Wisdom of man had framed, in an imitation of that which formerly stood in the life.

And now men being gone from the life, from the spirit and his immediate teachings, into an outward form of Knowledge and Worship of God in the wrong nature; now Antichrist is got up, and the Dragon sits in the Temple, appearing there as if he were God, giving out Laws and Ordinances of Worship in publick, and puting men upon Duties and Exercises of Devotion in private, and he is obeyed and bowed down to in the observation of these; but the true living God is not known, nor his secret still Voice (which calls out of these) heard, because of the great noise which the Dragon makes in his Temple (for so it is now, he having gain'd it, though it was once God's) about his Laws and Ordinances of Worship, which he would have all compelled to, and none suffered to testifie against them that they are his, and not the Lord's

Yet it pleased the Lord, all the night of this darkness, to raise up some Witnesses against the Dragon, and all his invented forms of Worship, though they were still hunted, persecuted, knocked down, and their Testimony cryed out against, as error, heresie, schism, and blasphemie, and the ways, worships, and ordinances of the Whore, the Beast, and the Dragon, still cryed up as the truth. Thus the Papists they cried out against the Protestants, as Hereticks and Schismaticks, who were Witnesses against them; and the Protestants they cried out against the Non-conformists, Separatists, and Brownists, who were Witnesses against them; and every Sect cries out most against them, who are led further from the Apostacy, and raised up by the Lord as Witnesses against them, against their seting down in their form, and not pursuing the guidance of that Spirit, which would lead them quite out of the darkness, and not have them sit down by the way.

Now the Lord God in these latter days, hath not only raised up Witnesses against gainſt the Whore, the Dragon, the Beaſt, the falſe Prophets, with all their inventions which they have ſet up inſtead of the truth: but hath aſſayed, and begun to deliver his people out of this Egyptian darkneſs; and to bring them back to the light of the Land of Cannaan. And now great enemies have appeared, the Sons of the night exceedingly ſtrengthening themſelves to keep out the Day-light, every one crying up his own form, and all joyning hand in hand againſt the power: yea, and that Spirit, which firſt tempted from God, is exceeding buſie to cauſe thoſe whom the Spirit of the Lord hath been drawing out of the Land of darkneſs, to make a Captain to return to Ægypt, or at leaſt to ſit down in ſome form, or ſome pleaſant notion of things by the way, and not to follow the Lord, through all his intricate leadings in the vaſt howling Wilderneſs, till he bring them into the poſſeſſion of the true reſt. What a work there was to quench that Spirit which ſtirred in the Proteſtants againſt Popery, and to fix them in Epiſcopacy, and in uſe of the Common-prayer-book? When that was detected and turned from, then Presbitry endeavoured to take its place, and to bring in its Directory: but the purſuit of the Lord was ſo hot againſt that, that it ſtunk preſently, and his mighty hand would not ſuffer that ſo much as to ariſe. Much about the ſame time, Independency and Anabaptiſm appeared and contended, and there was a more ſimple and honeſt thing ſtirring there, then in the other: and accordingly the bleſſing of the Lord (which was not to the form, but to the life that was ſtirring within) did appear more among them. But they, fixing there, loſt the life and ſimplicity to which the bleſſing was, and met with the death and the curſe, which is the proper reward of the form: for any form out of the life, kills the life; and its reward is death to it ſelf. The form kills the life, which ſtirred underneath, and made it appear with ſome freſhneſs; and when the life, from which it had its ſeeming beauty and luſture, dies, then it ſoon withers and dies alſo: ſo that the living principle being once ſlain, there remains nothing but the dead ſpirit feeding on the dead form. There was one more pure appearance, and nearer to the Kingdom then all theſe, which was of ſeeking and waiting: but death overcame this alſo, making a form of it. and ſtealing in ſome obſervations from the letter of the Scriptures concerning the Kingdom, whereby their eyes were with-held from beholding the inward principle and ſeed of life within, to look for ſome great appearance of power without (ſuch as was among the Apoſtles) to ſet things to rights; and ſo they were held Captive by the ſame Spirit, in their ſeeking and waiting, whereby the others are held in their forms. Thus have perſons generally miſſed the following of that good Spirit, which began to lead them out of Ægypt, the dark Land, and loſing their guide, have fixed ſomewhere or other by the way, reſting in ſome form, or in ſome notion or expectation of things (according as in their Wiſdom they have imagined from the skill in the letter) ſhort of the life it ſelf. Thus have their Carcaſſes fallen in the Wilderneſs.

Now this I have to ſay to you all. All you who reſt in any form whatſoever, or reſt in any notion or apprehenſion of things ſhort of the life it ſelf, ye had even as good have ſtayed in Ægygt, as to fix by the way, and to take up a reſt in the Wilderneſs, ſhort of Canaan. In plain terms, ye had as good have abided in Popery or in Epiſcopacy, ye had been as acceptable to God there, as here. Not that I ſay your forms of Independency, Anabaptiſm, or ſeeking, are as bad as Popery, or Presbytery; nay they are all ſomewhat nearer and the laſt of them very much nearer: but your fixing there, and the dead Spirit feeding there, on the dead thing, is as remote from life, as if it had gone quite back again. And this dead Spirit is as hateful to God here, as it is among the Papiſts, yea and in one ſence more, becauſe it makes a pretence beyond them.

And

And the truth is, ye have gone back again, though not in the direct form, yet into that very Spirit, wherein Popery's strength and kingdom lies, and so are become one of the Beast's names, and your strength and defence lies in the Beast's horns, either in the outward powers of the earth, or in that inward knowledge of things and Wisdom from the letter, which is out of the life, and so are not yet come out of the City of Babylon For mark, The Spirit that fixeth in a form short of the life, is the same that whored from the life: and the same Spirit is the Whore still, in what form soever she be. The Spirit that rose up in the life, against the death and corruption whereof Popery wholly consisted, was a good Spirit, and this Spirit would pass through all forms, till it meet with the life: it is the other Spirit that says to thee, thou hast gone far enough, and so tempts to stay by the way. And he who hearkens to this Spirit, and stays any where by the way, he is caught with the old Whore in a new dress, and is drinking the Cup of Fornication afresh. And then like the Papists, he runs to the powers of the earth, to defend his form, against the Witnesses of God (and that is his cover under which he persecutes, and there he lies hid) or at least to his own Wisdom and Reason, to strengthen himself with arguments for fixing here, and against going any further. And then he grows Wise in the flesh, and cries against them, who are still led by the same Spirit to press on further, as weak, silly, giddy, unsettled, seduced People, that can never know when they are well. Thus the Wise Episcopalians reviled the Simple-hearted Non-conformists, who pursued further then they: and the Non-conformists, when they lost their simplicity and begun to stick, reviled those that pursued beyond them: and thus at this day, those who are pressing on in the Spirit, are disdained by those who have took up their station in the flesh, and with their two great horns, of earthly Power and earthly Wisdom, are they pushing at them.

Look about ye, look about ye, all sorts of devout Professors, see where ye are: are you not dead in your forms? Is not the good old Puritan principle (wherein once was true life in its measure) dead and buried there? Consider with your selves, hath that grown in your forms? Or hath it been slain there? Speak the truth in your own hearts, Can ye truly say, from a sensible feeling in the life, that that principle is still alive in you? If it were so, ye could never be drawn to persecute, no nor suffer persecution, ye that have power to hinder it: but if that Seed be choked, then ye may well connive at, if not further the enemy, and plead for him, and joyn interests with him. While Abel lived in you, Cain could not rise up in his Dominion, but now the right Seed is slain, the murthering nature appears. O hasten out of this Spirit, hasten out of Babylon, cast of the spirit of Popery, return to the old Puritan-principle: Do not cry it up in deceit, to oppose the present appearance of truth, which is grown up further in it; but subject that dead formal earthly Spirit to it, which is fallen beneath it: and when ye are come to a true touch of life there, ye may be able to own the same truth in its growth to a further measure. But while thou art in the dead understanding, and from the power and life of truth in thine own particular, dost thou think to be able to measure truth aright in others? Nay, thou measurest by a false appearance of things in the fallen understanding, and in the Wisdom which thou hast gathered there, since thou thy self fellest from the living principle: and this must needs commend that most, which is neareſt to it, and not that which is neareſt to truth. And this is the great error of this age, men with a gathered knowledge from Scripture-words, without the true faith and life, go about to measure that life and knowledge which comes from the Faith: and because it suits not with the apprehensions which they have taken into their minds, they condemn it. And thus being in the stumbling Wisdom and way of observation to which truth was never revealed, but was ever an offence, they stumble at it: and thus men generally dash, and split themselves against the same Rock now, as the Pharisees did of old. Now this understanding must perish, and this Wisdom in men be brought to nought; before that can be raised up, which can judge aright.

Hearken therefore to my exhortation, as ye love your Souls, Come out of Popery in deed and in truth, come out of the spirit of Popery; burn the Whore, in her new forms as well as in her old: Cast off all these new names of the Beast, under which the old Spirit has made a prey of the life in your own particulars, and lies lurking to make a prey of the life in others, and to force it into its own deceitful forms of death, and slay it. Leave defending your Faith and Church by the Beast's Horns, and come to that Faith and Church which is received, gathered, and defended by Christ, the one Horn of Salvation. Leave your reasonings and disputings in that Wisdom which has slain the life, and come to that Wisdom which comes from the life, and springs up in the life; and ye will find more certainty and satisfaction in one touch of true life, then in all the reasonings and disputes of Wise men to the Worlds end. The ground wherein mens Religion grows (even the most zealous) is bad, even the same ground wherein the Pharisees Religion stood and grew; and it hath brought forth such a kind of fruit; namely, such a kind of conformity to the Letter, as theirs was, which stands in the understanding and will of man, rearing up a pleasant building there, but keeps from the life, and from building in it. But the true Religion stands in receiving a principle of life, which by its growth forms a Vessel for it self and all the former part, wherein sin on the one hand, or self-righteousness on the other hand stood and grew, passeth away.

These things following strike at the King of Babylon himself, yea, even at the very Root of the Antichristian Spirit in every man, which he that can mildly receive the stroke of, may feel the true Spirit of life, (which lies underneath) spring up in him, and give life to his Soul: which, when it is delivered, will be able truly to know, and rejoyce in the Lord his Saviour. And when the Root of that spirit is cut down (which never brought forth sweet pleasant fruit unto life, but only sower fruit, finely painted and dressed for the eye and palate of death) its Body, Branches, Leaves, and Fruit will wither and die daily, and truth come to grow safely.

A Distinction between the Faith which is of Man, and the Faith which is of GOD: One whereof is the Faith of Sion, the other the Faith of Babylon; the one laying hold on Christ, as he is revealed the King of life in Sion, the other lays hold on an Historical relation of Christ, the Fame whereof hath sounded in Babylon.

THERE is a Faith which is of a mans self, and a faith which is the gift of God; or a power of believing which is found in the nature of fallen man, and a power of believing, which is given from above. As there are two births, the first and the second, so they have each their Faith, and each believe with their Faith, and seem to lay hold on the same thing for life; and the contention about the Inheritance will not be ended, till God determine it. Cain will sacrifice with his Faith, and he believes he shall be accepted: if he had not believed ſo, he would not have been ſo angry, when he found it otherwiſe: And the Cainiſh Spirit in man, the Vagabond from the life of God, which hath not an habitation in God, nor the eternal life of God abiding in him, he is buſie with the ſame Faith at this day, and hath the ſame expectation from it as Cain had.

This is the Root of the falſe Religion, of the falſe hope, of the falſe peace, of the falſe joy, of the falſe reſt, of the falſe comfort, of the falſe aſſurance, as the other is of the true. In this Faith which is of man, and in the improvement of it, ſtands all the Knowledge, Zeal, Devotion, and Worſhip of the World in general, and of the world-ly part in every man in particular: but the true Knowledge, the true Zeal, the true Devotion, the true Worſhip ſtands in the Faith which is given of God, to them which are born of the immortal Seed, which lives in God, and in which God liveth for ever:

Now it deeply concerns every man to conſider, from which of theſe his Knowledge, Religion, and Worſhip proceed, and in which of them they ſtand: for if they proceed from, and ſtand in the Faith which is of man, they cannot pleaſe God, nor conduce to the Salvation of the Soul; but though they may taſte very pleaſantly to mans pallate now, and adminiſter much hope and ſatisfaction to him at preſent, yet they will fail in the time of need: For as Chriſt ſaid concerning the righteouſneſs of the Scribes and Phariſees, ſo may I concerning this Faith; Except your Faith, with the Works of it, exceed that Faith and all the Works of it (even to the utmoſt improvement thereof) which is to be found in Mans nature, it will never lead you to the Kingdom of God, nor be able to give you any right to the Inheritance of life; For he that will inherit, muſt be the right Heir, muſt have the Faith of Abraham, the Faith of Iſaac; which ſprings up from the Root of life in the Seed; and this leads the Seed into that ſpring of life (out of which it ſhoots forth as a Branch) which is the Inheritance promiſed to the Seed. And here is Chriſt, Alpha, and Omega, in every particular Soul, where Life is begun and perfected, running its courſe through time, back to that which was before the beginning.

Therefore obſerve and conſider well, what this Faith which is of a man's ſelf can do, and how far it may go in the changing of man, and in producing a conformity of him to the letter of the Scriptures. And then conſider where it is ſhut out, what it cannot do, what change it cannot make, what it cannot conform to, that ſo the true diſtinction may be let into the mind, and not a Foundation layd of ſo great a miſtake in a matter of ſo great concernment.

1. A man may believe the Hiſtory of the Scriptures, yea, and all the Doctrines of them (ſo far as he can reach them with his underſtanding) with this Faith which is of man. As by this Faith a man can believe an Hiſtory probably related to him; ſo by this Faith he believes the Hiſtories of the Scriptures, which are more then probably related. As by this Faith a man can receive Doctrines of inſtruction out of Philoſophers Books, ſo by the ſame Faith he may receive Doctrines of inſtruction out of the Scriptures. Reading a relation of the fall of man, of the recovery by Chriſt, that there is no other way to life, &c. This Faith can believe the relation of theſe things, as well as it can believe the relation of other things.

2. This being believed from the Relation of the Hiſtory of theſe things, this naturally ſets all the powers of man on work (kindling the Underſtanding, Will and Affections) towards the avoiding of miſery, and the attaining of happineſs. What would not a man do, to avoid perpetual extremity of Miſery on Soul and Body for ever, and to obtain a Crown of everlaſting Bleſſedneſs? This boils the affections to an height, and ſets the underſtanding on work to the utmoſt, to gather all the rules of Scripture, and to practiſe all the Duties and Ordinances therein mentioned? What can the Scripture propoſe to be believed, that he will not believe? What can it propoſe to be done, that he will not do? Muſt he Pray? he will Pray. Muſt he Hear? he will Hear: Muſt he Read? he will Read. Muſt he Meditate? he will Meditate. Muſt he deny himſelf and all his own Righteouſneſs, and Duties, and hope only for Salvation in the Merits of Chriſt? he will ſeem to do that too, and ſay, when he has done all he can, he is but an unprofitable Servant. Does the Scripture ſay he can do nothing without the Spirit? he will acknowledge that too, and he hopes he has the Spirit; God hath promiſed the Spirit to them that ask it: and he has asked long, and asks ſtill, and therefore hopes he has it. Thus man man by a natural faith grows up, and ſpreads into a great Tree, and is very confident, and much pleaſed, not perceiving the defect in his Root, and what all his growth here will come to.

3. This being done with much ſerioufneſs and induſtry, there muſt needs follow a great change in man: his Underſtanding will be more and more enlightned, his Will more and more conformed to that, to which he thus gives himſelf up, and to which he thus bends himſelf with all his ſtrength, his affections more and more warmed, he will find a kind of life, and growth in this according to its kind. Let a mans heart be in any kind of ſtudy or knowledge, applying himſelf ſtrictly to it, he gathers underſtanding in his mind, and warmth in his affection: ſo it is alſo here. Yea, this being more excellent in it ſelf, muſt needs produce a more excellent underſtanding, and a more excellent warmth, and have a greater power and influence upon the Will.

4. Now how eaſie is it for a man to miſtake here, and call this the Truth? Firſt, he miſtakes this for the true Faith, and then he miſtakes in applying to this all that which belongs to the true Faith: and thus entring into the ſpirit of error at firſt, he errs in the whole courſe of his Religion, from the beginning to the end. He ſees a change made by this in him, and this he accounts the true converſion and regeneration. This leads him to ask, and ſeek, and pray, and this he counts the true praying, the true ſeeking, the true asking. This cleanſeth (after its kind) his underſtanding will and affections, and this he takes for the true ſanctification. The juſtification which is to the true believer, he alſo applyes to this Faith: and ſo he has a peace, a ſatisfaction, a reſt here, and an hope of happineſs hereafter. Thus he receives what is already reveal'd, and he waits for what may be further revealed, which he can embrace and conform to, turning ſtill upon this Center, and growing up from this root. And he that does not come hither in Religion, falls ſhort of the improvement of mans nature, and of the Faith that grows there (which naturally leads all the powers of nature hither, and fixes them here) which is but dead. And now this man is ſafe, he is a Believer, he is a Worſhipper of God, he is a Chriſtian, he is an obſerver of the Commands of Chriſt: when the overflowing ſcourge comes, it ſhall not touch him: all the Judgments, plagues, Threatnings, in the Scriptures belong not to him, but to the unbelievers, to them that know not God, to them that worſhip not God, to them that obſerve not the Commands of Chriſt: thus by his untempered Mortar, from his falſe Faith, he has built up a Wall againſt the Deluge of Wrath, which Wall will tumble down upon him when the Wrath comes. The growth of this Faith, and great ſpreading of it into al this Knowledge, Zeal and Devotion, hath not changed the nature of it all this while, but it is the ſame that it was at the beginning, even a power of nature in the firſt Birth, and all theſe fruits are but the fruits of the firſt nature, which is ſtill alive under all this. All this can never kill the principle out of which it grows, but feeds it more, and fattens it for the ſlaughter.

Thus far this Faith can go; But then there is ſomewhat it is ſhut out of at the very firſt. There is ſomewhat this Faith cannot receive, believe, or enter into. What is that? It is the life, the power, the inward part of this. Though it may ſeem to have unity with all the Scriptures in the Letter, yet it cannot have unity with one Scripture in the life: for its nature is ſhut out of the nature of the things there witneſſed. As for inſtance, it may have a literal knowledge of Chriſt, according as the Scripture relates: of his Birth, Preaching, Miracles, Death, Reſurrection, Aſcention, Interceſſion, &c. Yea, but the thing ſpoken of, it knoweth not. The nature of Chriſt (which is the Chriſt) is hid from that eye. So it may have a literal knowledge of the blood of Chriſt, and of juſtification, but the life of the blood which livingly juſtifieth, that Birth cannot feel; but can only talk of it, according to the relation it reads in the Scripture. So it may have a literal knowledge of Sanctification, but the thing that ſanctifieth, it cannot receive into it ſelf. So for Redemption, Peace, Joy, Hope, Love, &c. it may get into the outward part of all theſe, but the inward part, the Life, the Spirit of them, it is ſhut out of, and cannot touch or come neer, nor can it witneſs that change, which is felt and known here. And here is the great contention in the World, between theſe two Births; the one contending for their knowledge in the Letter, and the other contending for their knowledge in the Life; the one ſetting up their Faith from the natural part, calling it ſpiritual, and the other who have felt the ſtroke of God upon this (and thereby come to know the difference) ſetting up the Faith of the true Heir, which Faith hath a different beginning, and a different growth from the other, and will be welcomed into the Land and Kingdom of Life, when the other will be manifested to be but the Birth of the Bond-Woman, and be thrust forth with its Mother to seek their Bread abroad: for the Seed of the Bond-Woman is not to inherit with Isaac, the Seed of Promise.

Quest. What then is that Faith which is the Gift of God, and which is distinct from this?

Answ. It is that power of believing which springs out of the seed of eternal life, and leavens the heart, not with notions of knowledge, but with the powers of life. The other faith is drawn out of mans nature, by considerations which affect the natural part, and is kept alive by natural exercises of Reading, Hearing, Praying, Studying, Meditating in that part; but this springs out of a Seed of Life given, and grows up in the life of that Seed, and feeds on nothing but the flesh and blood of Christ, in which is the living vertue, and immortal nourishment of that which is immortal. This Faith at its first entrance, strikes that part dead in which the other Faith did grow: and by its growth perfects that death, and raiseth up a life which is of another nature, than ever entred into the heart of man to conceive. And by the Death of this part in us, we come to know and enjoy life: and by the life we have received, know, and enjoy, we come to see that which other men call life (and which we our selves were apt to call life formerly) to be but Death. And from this true knowledge, we give a true Testimony to the World of what we have seen and felt, but no man receiveth our Testimony. It grieves us to the heart, to see men set up a perishing thing as the way to life, and our Bowels are exceedingly kindled, when we behold an honest zeal and simplicity betrayed, and in tender love do we warn men of the Pit, into which they are generally running so fast, though men reward us with hatred for our good will, and become our bitter enemies because we tell them the Truth, and the most necessary Truth for them to know; which they can bear neither in plain Words, nor yet in Parables. Yet be not rough and angry, but meekly wait to read this following Parable aright, and it will open into life. The Parable is briefly this.

That which sold the Birth-right, seeks the Birth-right, with Tears and great pains, but shall never recover it: but there is one which lies dead (which hath the promise) which stirs not, which seeks not, till he is raised by the power of the Fathers life, and then he wrestles with the Father, prevails, and gets the Blessing from him. Therefore know that part which is up first, and is so busie in the willing and in the running, and makes such a noise about Duties, and Ordinances, and Graces, to keep down the Life which it hath slain: and know that Seed of Life which is the Heir, which lyes underneath all this, and must remain slain, while this lives; but if ever ye hear the voice of the Son of God, this will live, and the other dye. And happy for ever will he be, who knows this! but misery will be his portion, who cannot witness a through change by the Almighty power of the Living God, but hath only painted the old Nature and Sepulcher, but never knew the old bottle broken, and a new one formed, which alone is able to receive and retain the New Wine of the Kingdom, whereas the other (Pharisee like) can only receive a relation of the Letter concerning the Kingdom.

Some Assertions concerning Faith, its nature, rise, &c. with its receiving of Christ, and what follows thereupon, namely, a growing in his living vertue, with a knowledge of the true, living, unerring Rule, and an Obedience to it in the life.

Assertion I.

THAT the true Faith, the Faith of the Gospel, the Faith of the Elect, the Faith which saves the Sinner from Sin, and makes him more than a Conquerour over Sin and the powers of darkness, is a belief in the nature of God; which belief giveth entrance into, fixeth in, and causeth an abiding in that nature. Unbelief entreth into Death, and fixeth in the Death: Faith giveth entrance into, and fixeth in the life. Faith is an ingrafting into the Vine, a partaking of the nature of the Vine, a sucking of the juyce of life from the Vine, which nothing is able to do but the Faith, but the belief in the nature ture. (And nothing can believe in the nature, but what is one with the nature.) So then, Faith is not a believing the History of the Scripture, or a believing and applying the promises, or a believing that Christ dyed for Sinners in general, or for me in particular; for all this may be done by the unbelieving nature (like the Jew) but an uniting to the nature of God in Christ, which the unbeliever starts from, in the midst of his believing of these. Yet I do not deny that all these things are to be believed, and are believed with the true Faith: But this I affirm, that they also may be believed without the true Faith, and that such a belief of these doth not determine a man to be a believer in the sight of God, but onely the union with the nature of that life from whence all these sprang, and in which alone they have their true value.

II.

That the true Faith springs from the true knowledge, or comes with the true knowledge of the true nature of God in Christ, which it believes in. He can never believe in the nature of God, who hath not first the nature of God revealed to him. If a man search the Scriptures all his days, hear all that can be said by men concerning God, Christ, Faith, Justification, &c. be able to dispute about them, and think he can make his Tenets good against all the World; yet if he hath not received the true knowledge of the nature of these things, all his professed Faith in them cannot be true.

III.

That the true knowledge, is only to be had by the immediate Revelation of Christ on the Soul. No man knows the Father, but the Son, and he to whom the Son reveals him. The dead shall hear the voyce of the Son of God, and they that hear, shall live. There is no raising of a dead Soul to Life, but by the immediate voyce of Christ. Outward Preaching, reading the Scriptures, &c. may direct, and incourage men to hearken after and wait for the voice, but it is the immediate voice of Christ in the Soul, which alone can quicken the Soul to God: and till the light of life shine immediately from Christ in the heart, the true knowledge is never given, 2 Cor. 4. 6. Therefore they that never yet heard the immediate voice of Christ, are still dead in their sins, and have not yet received the true living knowledge, but a dead literal knowledge, which gives a false shining of things in the dead part, but kills the life. Indeed the proper use of all means, is to bring to the immediate voice, life, and power; and till this be done, till the Soul come to that, to hear that, to feel that, to be rooted there, there is nothing done that will stand, but men stick by the way, crying up the means, and never knowing, tasting or enjoying the thing which the means points to. But he that knows God, comes into the immediate presence; and he that daily lives in God, lives in the immediate life; and the true faith leads to this, giving the Soul such a touch and taste of it at first, as makes unsatisfiable without it. By this Christ cuts off the Jews with all their zeal and knowledge, John 5. 37, 38. Ye have not heard his voice at any time, nor seen his shape; and ye have not his word abiding in you. There's the hearing of the voyce, the sight of the shape, and the having the word of God abiding in the heart, which gives both the hearing of the voice, and the sight of the shape, and keeps the Soul quick and living in the life: The voice gives life, the sight of the shape daily conforms into the Image, which is beheld by the eye of life, and the word abiding in the heart nourishes, and feeds the living Soul with the pure bread of Life. But the Jews knew not this, but were crying up their Sabbaths, the Law of Moses, the Ordinances of Moses, the Temple of God, the instituted Worship of God, and so were shut out of the thing it self, (which those things ended in) and out of a capacity of receiving it. And thus many zealous ones at this day, not having come to this, no more than the Jews did, but sticking in the Letter of the Gospel, as the Jews did in the Letter of the Law, stumble at the present dispensation of life, and cannot do otherwise.

IV.

That Christs immediate Revelation of the nature of his Father is to his Babes. Not to the wise, not to the Zealous, not to the Studious, not to the Devout, not to the Rich in the knowledge of the Scriptures without: but to the Weak, the Fooliſh, the Poor, the Lowly in heart. And man receives not theſe revelations by ſtudy, by reading, by willing, by running, but by being formed in the Will of life, by being begotten of the Will of the Father, and by coming forth in the Will, and lying ſtill in the Will, and growing up in the Will, here the child receives the Wiſdom which is from above, and daily learns that Croſs which crucifies the other Wiſdom, which joyns with, and pleaſes the other Will, which loves to be feeding on the ſhadowy and husky part of knowledge without life. Therefore if ever thou deſire to receive this knowledge from Chriſt, know that eye in thy ſelf that is to be blinded, which Chriſt will never reveal the Father to: read at home, know the Wiſe and Prudent there, whom Chriſt excludes from the living knowledge. And if thou canſt bear it, that eye that can read the Scriptures with the light of its own underſtanding, that can conſider, and debate, and take up ſenſes and meanings of it, without the immediate life and power: that's the eye, that may gather what it can from the letter, but ſhall never ſee into the life, nor taſt of the true knowledge: for Chriſt who alone opens and gives the knowledge, hides the Pearl from that eye.

The true knowledge is only powred into the new Veſſel. It is the living Soul alone, that receives the living knowledge of the living God, from Chriſt the life. The old nature, the old underſtanding is for death and deſtruction. The Wiſdom of fleſh (though painted never ſo like the ſpiritual Wiſdom) is not to be ſpared any where, but that Wiſdom with all its zeal, and growth, and progreſs in Religion muſt periſh. All mens knowledge of the Scriptures which they have gathered into that part, will profit them nothing, but hinder them. Every building which the leproſie of ſin hath overſpread, is to be pulled down: therefore he that hath only the old houſe ſwept and garniſhed never received the true knowledge (from whence the true faith ſprings) but his life lies in the oldneſs of the letter (in the conformity of the dead part to that) and he knows not the vertue of the knowledge of God in the newneſs of the ſpirit (the Vail being over his heart) which is only given to the new underſtanding.

V.

That this Faith, which ſprings from the true knowledge, is Gods gift, and is not that power of believing which is to be found in mans nature, but of another nature, even of the nature of the giver. And when man is called to believe, he is not called to put forth that Faith wherewith he believeth other things, but to receive and exerciſe the gift of Faith which is from above. That which is to be believed in, is ſpiritual: and that muſt be ſpiritual which believes in it. Man, with all the powers of his nature, is ſhut out: it is another thing, diſtinct from man, which is let into life, and which lets man in. For man receiving the Faith, entring into the Faith, and becoming New-formed in the Faith, then he alſo may enter: but till then he is ſhut out, and knoweth not the life, let him believe, and read, and pray, and hear, and exerciſe himſelf in that which he calls Duties and Ordinances never ſo much; for all theſe, ſet up in the wrong part in man, they only feed the wrong part; and that with all its food and nouriſhment, falls ſhort of the life. Therefore the true entrance into Religion, is to feel that power which ſlays mans natural ability and propenſity to believe, that ſo the gift of the true Faith may be received: for there is no riſing up and living of the ſecond, without the death of the firſt, with all his natural faculties and powers.

VI.

That by this Faith alone which is the gift which is from above, (and not that Faith which grows either in the Wilderneſs, or Garden of the old nature, and is fed by the oldneſs of the letter, and not by the newneſs of the Spirit) is Chriſt received. For Chriſt can be received, by the Faith alone that comes from him: and that Faith which comes from him, cannot but receive him. Mans Faith refuſeth him: it receiveth a literal knowledge of him from what it heareth from men, or from what it readeth related in the Scripture concerning him, but refuſeth the nature of the thing: and it cannot be otherwiſe; for mans Faith not being of the nature of it, cannot but refuſe it: But this Faith, which is given of God, which is from above, being of the ſame life and nature with with Christ, cannot refuse the spring of its own life, but receiveth him immediately. There is no distance of time, but so soon as Faith is received, Christ is received, and the Soul united to him in the Faith. As unbelief immediately shuts him out, so Faith lets him in immediately, and centers the Soul in him: and the immortal Soul feels the immortal vertue, and rejoyces in the proper spring of its own immortal nature. But the Faith of man never reaches this, never receives Christ, but only a relation of things concerning him: and with that Faith which stands in the letter, opposes that Faith which stands in the life. And here's the Spirit of Antichrist, here's the Mystery of Iniquity working out of one form into another: for Antichrist does not directly deny Christ, or deny the Letter, but cries up Christ, cries up the Letter, cries up Ordinances; but so as they may feed the Faith of his own nature, and maintain an hope there. And thus the Spirit of Man is at Unity with what will feed his own, with what Interpretations his own understanding can gather out of the Scriptures. And thus can he cry up Christ, and say he hopes to be saved by him, while the Spirit of enmity against the nature of Christ lodgeth in his heart. This is Antichrist, whereever he is found, and this is his Faith, and great is his Knowledge, and many are his covetings; but the Lord is searching him out, who will strip him, and make his nakedness appear.

VII.

That Christ is received as a grain of Mustard-seed. Christ is such a thing, as every eye, but the eye of this Faith, despiseth. He is the Stone, which the wisdom of the Builders all ages have rejected. They look for a glorious Messiah, but they know him not in his humiliation in the little Seed, out of which he is to grow up into his glory: and so they missing of the thing, build up only with high imaginations in the airy mind concerning the thing. As when God sent Christ in the flesh, there was no form nor beauty in him; the Jews, whose hope and expectation lay there, yet saw no manner of comlineſs, no desireableness in him: Even so it is now: When God comes to offer him to those, that think they place all their hopes in him, they see no loveliness in him, but refuse him daily. What this little thing, small like a grain of Mustard-seed, can this be the glorious Christ, which the Scriptures have spoke so much of? why we know the descent of this (its Father, Mother, and Kindred are with us) we find this in our own nature with us, like the Jews of old, they make a great noise about Christ, but refuse the thing itself. And this for want of the true eye of Faith, for if they had that eye, they could see the vertue in the little seed, and receive him in his humiliation in their hearts, where he knocks daily for entrance, and be content till this grain of Mustard-seed grow into a great and glorious Tree. But for want of this eye, they keep him out, and live in the painted Murtherer, who dwells in them, and covers himself, with a knowledge, a Zeal, a Faith, and hope, &c. in the old Nature, in the old Vessel, in the old understanding: and thus they give God and Christ good Words, while the evil Spirit rules their heart, and dwells there, bringing forth his own old evil Fruit, under an appearance of Devotion and Holiness. Hear now ye wise in the letter, but strangers to the life; There is a twofold appearance of Christ in the heart. There is an appearance of him as a Servant to obey the Law, to fulfil the Will of the Father in that body, which the Father prepares there for him: and there is an appearance of him in glory, to reign in the life and power of the Father. And he that knows not the first of these in the heart, shall never know the second there. And he that knows not these inwardly, shall never know any outward visible coming to their comfort. For if Christ should come outwardly to reign (as many expect) yet to be sure he would not reign in thee, whose heart he hath not first entred into and subdued to himself, which is only to be done by his appearance there, first as a Servant, and then as a King. But what else are Christians (so called) now in, who know not him in them who is able to save the Lord, but are striving and fighting in that nature where sin hath the power, and never which is the Conquerour? Therefore let all consider in the depth of their hearts this is infallibly true: They that never received the seed of life in their hearts, never received Christ; and such shall never be free from sin while they live, for having not received the Son, who makes free, how can they be free indeed? nor be free from wrath? when they are dead: For that Faith concerning Christ will not save them hereafter, which did not bring them to receive Christ here.

VIII.

That this Seed being received, groweth up into its own form, or is formed in that Creature, into which it is received. It there groweth up into the body, in which it is to serve the Lord, and which body is to be glorified, when it hath finished its service. As a seed cast into fitted earth, or the Seed of Man or Beast sowed in a fitting Womb, receiveth form and groweth into a plant, or living creature: so it is with this Seed in its earth. Open the true eye, O ye Christians, and begin to read the mystery of godliness!

IX.

That this Creature, or the Spirit of life in this Creature (which it is in union with, and which is never seperated from it) is the Christians rule, Gal. 6. 15, 16. 1 John 2. 27. Heb. 8. 10, 11. The Son is never without the Spirit of the Father, no not in the Seed: and the Spirit of the Father is the Sons rule. Outward rules were given to a state without, to men who were not brought to the life, but were exercised under shaddows and representations of the life: but the Son who is within, who is the substance of all, who is the life, who is one with the Father, whose proper right the Spirit is, he is not to any outward rule, but is to live and walk in the immediate light of the Spirit of his own life: And he that hath the Son, hath this rule: and he that hath not this rule hath not the Son. And he that hath not the Son, hath not the true Faith (which immediately receives him) and so is no Christian, but hath stollen the name from the letter having never received the nature from the Spirit, to which alone the name belongs.

X.

He that hath Christ (or the Seed of eternal life, which is Christ) formed in him, which seed the Spirit always dwells in, and never is absent from, which is the same Spirit which gave forth the Scriptures, he is in a capacity of understanding those Scriptures which that Spirit gave forth, as that Spirit leads him into the understanding of them. But he that hath not received that which is like the grain of Mustard-seed, and so hath not Christ nor his Spirit (what ever he may pretend to) he by all his Studies, Arts, Languages, Reading of expositors, Conferences, nay Experiences, can never come to the true knowledge of the Scriptures: for he wants the true Key, which alone can open. He may have got a great many wrong Keys, none of which can open, but wants the true Key, of the true Knowledge, and so is shut out of that, and only let into such a kind of knowledge as the wrong Key can open into. And with this kind of knowledge the Merchants of Babylon have long traded, but their day is expiring apace and their night of lamentation and howling hasteneth.

XI.

Though he can understand the Scriptures, as the Spirit leads him into the knowledge of them, and can set his Seal to the truth of them, yet he cannot call them his rule: for having received the life for his rule, and knowing it to be so, he cannot call another thing it. He that hath received the new Covenant into his heart, with the Laws of the life thereof written there by the Spirit of life, who doth write them there even in the heart of all that believe, as well as in the greatest, he knoweth that this living writing is his rule. The Scriptures give relation where the Covenant and Law of life is writ, and that I will read it, thither must I go whither the Scriptures point me. I must go to Christ the Book of life, and read there with that eye which Christ gives, if I read the things of life. And the Scriptures are willing to surrender up their glory to Christ, who was before them, and is above them, and shall be after them: but there is a false Spirit which hath seated it self in a litteral knowledge of the Scriptures, and hath formed Im-ges, and likeneſſes of truth from it (every one after the imaginations of his own heart) and all theſe fall, if Chriſt the life appear: and ſo this Spirit cries up the Scriptures now in a way of deceit, juſt as the Jews cryed up Moſes. It was a good remove, to withdraw the ear from the falſe Church, and to liſten to the true Teſtimony which the Scriptures give of Chriſt: but it is the ſeducing Spirit which tempts to ſtick by the way, and to rear up buildings and forms of knowledge from the letter of the Scriptures, and not come to feel after, unite with, and live in Chriſt the life. And unleſs ye come to this, your reading of the Scripture is vain, and all your gathering rules of practice, and comforts from promiſes, will end in vanity: for until ye know, and have received the thing it ſelf, ye are at a diſtance from that to which all belongs. A lively and glorious Teſtimony of truth hath God held forth in this age, at which all that ſtick in the letter cannot but ſtumble; and there is no poſſibility of knowing or receiving it, but by feeling the true touch of the inward life of it. Wiſdom is juſtified of her Children: but they that are not born of her, cannot juſtifie her Womb or Birth.

To the Jews who were an outward people, there was an outward rule given, a Law of Commandments, Statutes, Judgements, and Ordinances proper to that ſtate wherein they were, and to that thing to which the Miniſtry was: But all this was to be done away, and to end in that which all this repreſented. So that to Chriſtians, Chriſt the ſubſtance being come, which is the end of all theſe ſhaddows, the true Jew being raiſed in the immediate life, now there is a neceſſity of the immediate life for the rule. To them under the Goſpel, to them who are come to the ſubſtance, to them who are begotten and born in the life, there can be no rule proportionable to their ſtate, but Chriſt the ſubſtance, Chriſt the life, here he alone is the light, the way, the truth, the rule, the Spirit is here the rule, the new Creature is the rule, the new Covenant the rule, all which are in unity together, and he that hath one of them, hath them all, and he that hath not them all, hath none of them. So that directions taken out of the Scripture, cannot be the rule to him who is the true Chriſtian, but the meaſure of grace, the meaſure of the light, the meaſure of the Spirit, the meaſure of the gift received into the living Soul from the ſpring of life, this is the alone rule of life. But Chriſtians in the degeneration have loſt this, and ſo have taken up Words for a rule (which were not given to that end) and ſo with deductions by the earthly part, they feed the earthly part. What is fed by mens Scripture-knowledge but the earthly underſtanding? The earthly will heated, the earthly affections warmed, and of the fruits of this earth they bring ſacrifices to God: and they are angry that God hath raiſed up Abel, their younger brother, who offers up the Lamb of God to God, and ſerves the living God in his own living Spirit, and with the Faith that comes from him. Abel's Religion ſtands not in that part wherein all other mens Religion ſtands, but in the death of that part; and in the raiſing up of another part, wherein life ſprings. Can ye mildly receive theſe gentle leadings? Do not provoke the tender heart of the Lamb againſt you, who alſo hath the Voice of a Lyon, and can roar terribly out of his holy Mountain againſt the enemies of his life and Spirit.

A Neceſſary warning, and of very great importance to all that call themſelves Chriſtians, and hope for a ſhare in the Book of Life, and the eſcaping the Damnation of Hell, which is their Portion whoſe names are written in the Book of Death, and blotted by God out of the Book of Life, though they hope to find them written there. Hear and conſider.

IT is recorded, Rev. 22. 18, 19. If any man ſhall add unto theſe things, God ſhall add unto him the Plagues that are written in this Book. And if any man ſhall take away from the Words of the book of this Propheſie, God ſhall take away his part out of the Book of life, and out of the holy City, and from the things which are written in this book.

Great are the Plagues that are written in this Book, even the powring out of eternal wrath without mixture; torment day and night, in the preſence of the Lamb, &c. As the growth growth and fulneſs of the myſtery of Iniquity is ſpoken of in this Book: ſo the meaſuring out of the fulneſs of Wrath to it, is ſpoken of alſo. And great is the life and bleſſedneſs that is here promiſed, to thoſe that fight with, and overcome the myſtery of Iniquity, and receive not any of the Marks or Names of the Beaſt, nor are ſubject to any of his Horns, though he puſh never ſo hard with them. Now to meet with all the plagues here threatened, and to miſs of all the bleſſedneſs here promiſed, is it not a ſad ſtate? Why, he that addeth to theſe things here ſpoken, or diminiſheth from the Words of this Propheſie, the Lord hath ſaid this ſhall befal him. Therefore in the fear of that God who hath ſpoken this, and will make it good, let every one ſearch who is the Adder, who is the Diminiſher?

Now mark, ſee if this be not a clear thing. He that giveth any other meaning of any Scripture, than what is the true proper meaning thereof, he both addeth and diminiſheth; he taketh away the true ſenſe, he addeth a ſenſe that is not true. The Spirit of the Lord is the true expoſitor of Scriptures, he never addeth nor diminiſheth: but man (being without that Spirit) doth but gueſs, doth but imagine, doth but ſtudy or invent a meaning, and ſo he is ever adding or diminiſhing. This is the ſenſe ſaith one, this is the ſenſe ſaith another, this is the ſenſe ſaith a third; this, ſaith a fourth: another that is witty, and large in his comprehenſion, he ſays they will all ſtand: another, perhaps more witty than he, ſays none of them will ſtand, and he invents a meaning different from them all. And then, when they are thus expounding them they will ſay, take the ſenſe thus, it will yield this Obſervation, or take it thus, and it will afford this Obſervation. Doth not this plainly ſhew, that he who thus ſaith, hath not the Spirit of the Lord to open the Scripture to him, and manifeſt which is the true ſenſe, but is working in the miſtery of darkneſs? And yet this very perſon, who is thus working with his own dark ſpirit in the dark, will in words confeſs, that there is no true underſtanding or opening of Scripture but by the Spirit of God If it be ſo, how dareſt thou to thy imagination, thy fancy, thy reaſon, thy underſtanding on work, and ſo be gueſſing at that which the Spirit doth not open to thee, and ſo art found adding and diminiſhing?

Now he that is the adder, he that is the diminiſher, he crieth out againſt the Spirit of the Lord, and chargeth him with adding and diminiſhing: for man being judge, he will judge his own way to be true, and Gods to be falſe. That which is the adding and diminiſhing he calls the true expounding of the place: but if the Spirit of the Lord immediately open any thing to any Son or Daughter, he cries this is an adding to the word: The Scripture is written, there are no more revelations to be expected now, the Curſe ſaith he, is to them that add. Thus he removes the Curſe from his own Spirit, and way of ſtudy and invention to which it appertains and caſts it upon the Spirit of the Lord. And man cannot poſſibly avoid this in the way that he is in: for having firſt judged his own darkneſs to be Light, then in the next place he muſt needs judge the true light to be darkneſs He that hath aforehand ſet up his own invented meaning of any Scripture to be the true meaning, he muſt needs oppoſe the true meaning, and call it falſe, and ſo apply himſelf to form all the Arguments he can out of other Scriptures, to make it appear falſe. Thus man, having begun wrong in his knowledge of the Scriptures, ſtands engaged to make uſe of them againſt the Lord, and againſt his own Soul; and yet really in himſelf thinks that he makes a right uſe of them, and that he ſerves the Lord, and that he is not oppoſing the truth, but oppoſing Error and Hereſie; while he himſelf is in the Error, and in the Hereſie, and againſt the Truth, being a ſtranger to that Spirit, in whoſe immediate life and preſence the Truth grows.

Did the Lord in theſe words, of forbidding to add or diminiſh upon ſo great a penalty, lay a reſtraint and limit upon his own Spirit, that it ſhould no more hereafter ſpeak in his Sons and Daughters, or did he intend to lay bounds upon the unruly ſpirit of man? Did God leave mans ſpirit at liberty to invent and form meanings of his words and bind up his own ſpirit from ſpeaking further words afterwards? When Moſes ſaid thou ſhalt not add or diminiſh, was this to be any ſtop to the Prophets, in whom God ſhould ſpeak afterwards? Is not this one of the ſubtle Serpents inventions, to keep up the eſteem of mans invented meanings as the true ſenſe, and to make a fortification againſt the entrance of that ſpirit, which can diſcover all his falſe interpretations of the true words of God, and to make him ſee that he is the adder and the diminiſher, and that his Name will not be found in the Book of life, when the true Light is held forth to read by.

But this is general, extending to all Scriptures, my drift is more particular concerning adding to the things, or diminiſhing from the Words of the Book of this Prophecy.

There are two things chiefly ſpoken of in this Book, Myſtery-Sion, Myſtery-Babylon: the true Church, the falſe Church: the Lambs Wife, the Whore: the hiding of Myſtery-Sion, the appearing of Myſtery Babylon in her place: the flying of the Church out of her Heaven into the Wilderneſs, leaving all behind her which ſhe could not carry along with her, even all the Ordinances and Inſtitutions of Chriſt, wherein once ſhe appeared Worſhipping and ſerving God; and the ſtarting of the falſe Church into her place; taking up all that ſhe had left, even all the Ordinances and Inſtitutions of Chriſt in the Letter, thus covering her ſelf with the form of Godlineſs, with the Sheeps cloathing, that ſhe might paſs the better for the true Church: And the Dragon, who managed the War againſt the Woman and her Seed, raiſeth up firſt one Beaſt, and then another, and ſets this Whore on the top of them, who with the Cup of Fornication makes all the earth drunk, all Nations, Peoples, Kindreds, Tongues, Languages. And the Beaſt he has his Horns every where, his Marks every where, his Names every where, and alſo his Image in every part of Babylon. And who will not worſhip him, he fights with; yea ſuch as are led by God to rent from the Whore, he calls Schiſmaticks, Hereticks, Blaſphemers, and perſecutes them as perſons not worthy to live. Thus the ſtate of things is quite changed, the power of Truth loſt, the form ſet up without it; thoſe that ſeek after the power hated, perſecuted and blaſphemed, thoſe that lye ſtill under any of the Beaſts forms, they go for good Chriſtians; for members of the viſible Church, ſo called by them.

Now mark: He that calls any thing the Church, but what this Book calls the Church, he adds: he that doth not know the Wilderneſs, and own the Church in the Wilderneſs, he diminiſhes: The Church of Rome is not the Church in the Wilderneſs, the Church of Scotland is not the Church in the Wilderneſs, and many Churches in England are not the Church in the Wilderneſs, the ſeveral gathered Churches are none of them the Church in the Wilderneſs: all theſe have ſprung up ſince the Churches flight, and have appeared in her abſence, uſurping her name, appropriating it to themſelves, but God (who gave it to the Church) hath not given it them; and ſo they muſt loſe it again, when God brings back the Church out of the Wilderneſs. So he that calls thoſe, which formerly were the Inſtitutions and Ordinances of Chriſt, which the Woman left behind her, and which the Harlot hath got and attired her ſelf with, which ſhe now appears in, and wherewith the Dragon is now Worſhipped, he adds to this Book, which ſays the outward Court was given to the Gentiles, and the true Church had nothing left her but the inward Temple, wherein alone the true Worſhippers Worſhipped, and they that Worſhip elſewhere, are the falſe Worſhippers Worſhipping in falſe Temples, in Temples of the Whoriſh Spirits building, take it either outwardly or inwardly, for it holds true in both: He that makes the Beaſts Names fewer than they are, or his Marks fewer than they are, or his Horns fewer than they are, or his Image leſs than it is, he diminiſhes. And the danger hereof is not ſmall, For if any man Worſhip the Beaſt and his Image, and receive his Mark in his Forehead, or in his Hand, the ſame ſhall Drink of the Wine of the Wrath of God, which is poured out without mixture into the Cup of his Indignation, and he ſhall be Tormented with Fire and Brimſtone in the preſence of the Holy Angels, and in the preſence of the Lamb: and the ſmoak of their Torment aſcendeth up for ever and ever. And they have no reſt Day nor Night, who Worſhip the Beaſt and his Image, and whoſoever receiveth the Mark of his Name, Rev. 14. 9, &c.

Now this I affirm, whoſoever has not the Name of Sion, the mark of Sion which he received of her in the Wilderneſs, where the living God is with her, and where he is taught by God the Laws of the Wilderneſs-Worſhip, and in ſome meaſure to teſtifie againſt all the corrupted Ordinances and Inſtitutions which have the Beaſts Mark, and go now abroad in the World under the Beaſts name: I ſay, whoever has not the true mark of Sion, it is impoſſible for him to avoid the Mark of Babylon: and he who avoids not the Mark, cannot eſcape the Plagues. But he that hath the Mark of Sion, he by a ſecret inward inſtinct of true life, is led from the Marks of Babylon: and if he faithfully follow the guidance, from out of all the Names, and from under all the Horns.

It is not enough to rent from Popery, and ſit down under the Power and Government of the ſame Spirit in another form, or to rent from Epiſcopacy, and the ſame ſpirit ſit down in Presbitery; or to rent from Presbitery, and the ſame Spirit ſit down in a form of Independency, or Anabaptiſm; or to rent from theſe and the ſame Spirit ſit down in a way of ſeeking and waiting, and reading of words of Scripture, and gathering things from thence without the life: but the true Religion conſiſts in knowing, and following a true guide to the Church in the Wilderneſs, and there to receive the mark, the living mark, which will preſerve out of all invention, and further progreſs of the dead Spirit.

Now therefore look about you, know the Spirit of Whoredom, and ſee how ye have been begotten in the Adultery, and born of the Whore, and have ſerved the Dragon and worſhipped his dead Idols, and not the Living God. And be not ſatisfied with changing of forms and dreſſes (which are but the ſeveral deceitful appearances of the Whore) but put off that ſpirit, leſt when ye have hated the Whore, and burnt her fleſh as ſhe appeared in one form, ye give your ſelves up to her again, when ſhe appears in another form: for the Plagues are not ſo much to the form wherein the Whore appears, as to the Whoriſh Spirit: and whoſoever is found under her Dominion, in any of her Territories, under any of her Forms, with that mark of hers upon them which belongs to that particular form, though never ſo curiouſly painted, he ſhall drink of the unmixt Cup of Wrath.

Therefore tremble all ſorts of people, pluck off your falſe coverings, ſee the ſhame of your nakedneſs, while it may be for your advantage ſo to do. The Angel is gone forth, the Corn is reaping and gathering into the Garner, many Lambs are brought into the Fold of everlaſting Reſt, Sion is redeeming, the true life is riſing, the Whoriſh ſpirit is judging, the Door of Life is yet open: do not lie ſecure in the Whores wiſdom! Do not lye ſlumbering, and reaſoning, and diſputing from the Letter of the Scripture, till the gathering be finiſhed, till the Door be ſhut, till the eternal flames ſeize upon you, and ye find your ſelves in the Boſom of Hell unawares, and ſee the Children of the Kingdom in Abraham's boſom, but your ſelves ſhut out, and left to weep and wail and gnaſh your Teeth.

Queſt: But how may I avoid adding to the things, and diminiſhing from the Words of this Prophecy, and of other Scriptures, that I may not meet with the Weight of this Curſe, or miſs of the Bleſſing?

Anſw. Doſt thou ask this Queſtion from thy heart, in the ſimplicity, out of the fleſhly wiſdom? then hearken with that ear, and thou ſhalt ſet thy Seal to mine Anſwer.

1. Wait for the Keye of Knowledge which is Gods free Gift. Do not go with a falſe Key to the Scriptures of Truth, for it will not open them. Man is too haſty to know the meaning of the Scriptures, and to enter into the things of God, and ſo he climbs up over the Door with his own underſtanding, but he has not Patience to wait to know the Door, and to receive the Key which opens and ſhuts the Door: and by this means he gathers Death, out of Words which came from Life. And this I dare poſitively affirm, that all that have gone this way to work, have but a dead knowledge, and it is Death in them that feeds upon this knowledge, and the life is not raiſed. Conſider now the weight of this Counſel in the true Ballance! There is no opening of the Scriptures, but by the true Key: nor is there any coming at the Key, till the Lord pleaſe to give it. What then is to be done, but only to wait (in the ſilence of that part which would be forward, and running before-hand) till the Key be given, and to know how to receive it, as it is offered in the Light, and not to wait in the Will, or expect to receive it according to Obſervations in the fleſhly Wiſdom from the Letter.

2. Let not thy underſtanding have the managing of this Key, when it is given; but know the true opener, the skilful uſer of the Key, the Hand which can only turn the Key aright: and let him have the managing both of his own Key, and of thine underſtanding. Do not run in thine own underſtanding, or in thine own Will to ſearch out the meaning of Scripture; for then thou feedeſt with the Scripture, that which it is the intent of all words of life to deſtroy: but as thou waiteſt for the Key at firſt, ſo continually wait for the appearances and movings of the uſer of the Key, and he will ſhut out thy underſtanding and will continually, which would ſtill be running after the literal part of Scrip-

Scriptures, and let thee into the life both of the Prophecies and Doctrines thereof. Man when he hath received a true Gift from God, he would be managing of it himſelf, and to be ſure he will manage it for himſelf (for the gratifying and pleaſing of himſelf, and not for God) and then God, being provoked, takes away the ſubſtance, and leaves him the ſhell. Therefore he that hath received a Gift, muſt be very watchful againſt that which ſhould betray, or he may eaſily looſe it: for though the Gifts and calling of God are without repentance, yet if that lay hold of the Gift which was not called, and to which it was not given, the Lord will thruſt that by, and take away his Gift from it.

3. Do not graft any of the fruit of the Tree of Life upon the Tree of Knowledge, for it will not grow there: an appearance, a likeneſs of the true Fruit may grow there, but the true Fruit it ſelf will not. My meaning is, do not make a Treaſury of Knowledge in the underſtanding part which is to periſh, but know the true Treaſury of all the things of Life, which is in the Life it ſelf, and in that underſtanding which is formed, kept, and lives in the Life. Lay no Manna by to feed upon in the old Store-houſe (leſt the fleſhly part ſhould be running thither, when its fleſhly apperite is kindled after food) but daily receive the continual Bread from the hand of life. The Wiſdom of the Life ſtrikes at thy wiſdom and underſtanding, and if ever thou wilt grow wiſe any more, thou loſeſt this, and canſt not poſſibly retain it: for that part is then getting up in thee, in which it cannot be held, but only a ſhadow, an Image, a reſemblance and likeneſs of it, which feeds and pleaſes that part, which fain would have life, but cannot know it, and therefore is neceſſitated to make Images and likeneſſes, of things in Heaven or things in earth, that it might have ſomewhat.

4. Take not up a reſt in openings of things, though by the true Key. Take heed of ove-valuing that kind of Knowledge: for that part which over-values that knowledge, will preſently be puft up with it: but there is a more excellent and ſafer kind of knowledge to be preſſed after, which is a knowledge of things by receiving of them. There is a knowledge of things, by the Spirits opening the words which ſpeak of them (or by inward immediate Prophecies from the word of life in the heart:) this is an excellent knowledge, and not to be found in the earthly part of man; yet the earthly part (when this knowledge is given) is very apt to be ſwelled and exalted with it; but then there is alſo a knowledge, which ariſeth from the Gift of the thing it ſelf. This knowledge is very precious, and much more full and certain than the other, having the nature and immediate power of life in it ſelf, and ſo is perfectly able to preſerve. As for inſtance, to make it more plain; There may be a knowledge of Juſtification, by the Spirits opening the words written in Scripture concerning Juſtification, and the Blood of ſprinkling, and this is a good knowledge, where there is a true opening of it from the Spirit;) but then there is a knowledge by feeling of the blood of ſprinkling in the Heart, and by ſeeing with the new eye the way of its juſtification; and in this knowledge is the power and the cleanſing of the life received, which in the other was but ſpoken of. Therefore reſt not in Opening or Prophecies, or true meanings of theſe things (though this kind of kowledge is very excellent, and hath been very rare) but wait to feel the thing it ſelf, which the words ſpeak of, and to be united by the living Spirit to that, and then thou haſt a knowledge from the nature of the thing it ſelf; and this is more deep and inward, then all the knowledge that can be had from words concerning the thing.

5. When thou feeleſt things, then ſeek their preſervation in the proper ſpring of their own life. Let the Root bear thee, and all thy knowledge, with all that's freely given thee of God. When thou feeleſt thy ſelf leavened with the Life, and become a branch ſhot out of the Life, then learn how to abide in the Life, and to keep all that's given thee there, and have nothing which thou maiſt call thine own any more, but to be loſt in thy ſelf, and found in him. Know the land of the Living, wherein all the things of Life live, and can live no where elſe.

Now in all this, in this whole courſe, from the very firſt ſtep of it, there's certainty, there's ſtability, there's infallibility. From the very firſt opening of the true Key, I begin to learn ſomewhat of God, and to learn certainly, and feel an aſſurance and eſtabliſhment in it: and growing up here, I grow up in the true learning, and in the true ſettlement, and ſo I am not unlearned and unſtable, wreſting the Scriptures to my own deſtruction: for I take none of the knowledge of the Scriptures from my ſelf, from my own underſtanding, from my own ſtudy and invention, or from the ſtudies of other expoſitors, positors, but from a certain hand. And how can he reft Scripture, who is kept ſingle, and has no deſire to have any thing to be the meaning of it, but what is the meaning, nor no will to know the meaning, further than the good will of him whoſe Spirit Penned it, thinks good to give forth the meaning to him; and who waits to receive this, not to feed the luſtful knowing part in himſelf, but to feed the life with it? and when the life hath no uſe for it, he is content to have it ſhut up, and to be without it: I ſay, how is it poſſible for this man to wreſt Scriptures? But now, a man that hath taken in a body of knowledge already, he goes to the Scripture, and bends it to make it ſpeak anſwerable to that: and where it ſpeaks contrary, he invents a way to make it comply, and ſo wreſts Scriptures forward and backward, to make them ſpeak agreeable to what he has already received and believed. Thus every ſort of Perſons, Papiſts and Proteſtants, bend the Scriptures to make them ſpeak conformable to their Opinions and Practiſes, not having the true Learning, which gives to read them in the true Original, where the knowledge of what they ſpeak and mean is certain: and ſo they are alſo unſtable, and ſubject to be ſhaken by a wind of reaſon which is ſtronger than their own. And this wreſting of Scripture is to their own Deſtruction; for that part, which is ſo much as deſirous to bend a Scripture, is to be deſtroyed; and that part cannot receive the true knowledge, but ſtumbles in its own wiſdom and way of ſeeking, at the wiſdom of God, and at the true way of finding.

But the foregoing Council, faithfully hearkened unto, will preſerve out of this, and alſo bring to the true means, and to the true uſe of the means, which all Nations, who have drunk of the Whores Cup, have erred concerning, and taken the falſe for the true. The ſtrength of this Wine hath made all Nations, People, Tongues and Languages to miſtake, who in the heat of their Drink have cryed up the Means, the Means, the Ordinances, the Ordinances, &c. not perceiving how this heat came from the Spirits of the Whores Wine, and not from the ſober, meek, calm, gentle, leadings of the Spirit of Chriſt, and ſo in a fleſhly zeal have ſet up the Whores means inſtead of the Lambs means, and contend for them with the Whores Spirit and Weapons. Now it is impoſſible for any man ſo much as to know the true means, till the Whores Wine be purged out of him: for that will make him err in Judgment, and take the falſe for the true. And which way ſhall he ever come to the Kingdom, which has lighted upon the wrong means? or how ſhall he ever come to the true means, who never yet ſaw the Witchery of the Whoriſh Spirit from the life, and how he himſelf has been bewitcht, and coſened with the falſe inſtead of the true? as for inſtance.

Prayer, that is generally taken for a means, Ask, and it ſhall be given you; ſeek, and ye ſhall find: knock, and it ſhall be opened to you. If Parents, which are evil, know how to give good Gifts to their Children: how much more ſhall the Heavenly Father give the holy Spirit to them that ask him. This therefore is an undoubted thing, that Prayer is a means.

Anſw. True, there is a prayer which is a means, and there is a prayer which is not a means: There is a Prayer which is an Ordinance, and there is a Prayer which is an Invention. There is a Prayer which is the breath of the true Child, and there is a Prayer which is the breath of the fleſhly part, a breath of the whoriſh Spirit. There is a prayer of the firſt Birth, and there is a prayer of the ſecond Birth, both which cry and weep to God for the ſame thing. Now the one of theſe is the true means, the other not: one of them is Chriſt's Ordinance, the other is Antichriſt's Ordinance. Now the queſtion is, which of theſe thy Prayer is? Whether it be thine own breath, or God's breath? Whether it come from the renewings of the Spirit of life, or from thine own natural part painted? for accordingly, it is either the true means, or the falſe means. If it be the true means, it ſhall have the thing, the Spirit, the life the Kingdom it prays for; if it be the falſe means, it can never obtain it. Papiſts, they pray; Proteſtants they pray; ſome in forms, ſome without forms; ſome mediating before hand ſome not mediating are all theſe the true means, or are any of them the true means? The birth of the true Child is the only true prayer; and he prays only in the moving, and in the leading of that Spirit that begat him: and this is a prayer according to the Will in the Life, and from the power. But all mens prayers, according to times they ſet to themſelves, or according to formings of deſires in their own minds, which they offer up to God with ith the nature and heart that ſinneth againſt him, theſe are falſe means, nd may ſatisfie the drunken Spirit erred from the Life, but are no means to the ruth:

Canſt thou pray? How cameſt thou to learn to pray? Was thou taught from above? r didſt thou gain the skill and ability, by the exerciſe and improvement of thine own atural part? Didſt thou begin with ſighs and groans, ſtaying there, till the ſame pirit that taught thee to groan, taught thee alſo to ſpeak? Waſt thou ever able to iſtinguiſh the ſighs and groans of the Spirits begetting, from the ſighs and groans of y own natural and affectionate part? and hath that part, with all its ſighings, groan- gs, deſires, endeavours, &c. been thruſt aſide, and the Seed immortal raiſed by the pirit of eternal life; which teacheth to cry and mourn, and at length to ſpeak to the ther for the preſervation and nouriſhment of its life? If it hath been thus with ee, then thou haſt known that prayer which is the true means. But if otherwiſe, ough thou pray neve ſo long. and with never ſo great affections, and ſtrong deſires, is is all but the falſe means, with its falſe warmth, from the falſe fire, this is but the eans which the whoriſh Spirit (which is not in union with the life and power, but eeps the Seed in bondage) has ſet up in the true means. And this can never lead to truth; t keeps alive Gods enemy under this pleaſant covering: neither is this the Worſhip of e living God, but as it is from another Spirit, ſo it is to another Spirit.

O learn to be ſober! come out of this drunken fury, and conſider things mildly and riouſly. Do not make a great out-cry of Ordinances, Ordinances; the Means, the eans. This is the Voice of the clamorous Woman, who with her loud noiſe would fain ep you from liſtning after the ſtill voice of true Wiſdom, which cannot be heard in e midſt of this great noiſe and hurry in your Spirits; but conſider which are the true dinances, which are the true Means; which are the likeneſſes man has framed, and hich is the true thing it ſelf. And if ye could once be mild, gentle, and calm, and turn om your own Wiſdom and fleſhly knowledge of things, it might pleaſe God to remove our ſtumbling Blocks, and to open that eye in you which can ſee the Antichriſtian na- ure, and diſcern between the coverings, which it hath formed to hide its deceitful Spirit nder, and the true garment and clothing of life. But the Seed of the Kingdom is little, nd ye are great, how can ye enter into it? the Pearl lies hid in the field, and ye are ga- ing up to Heaven, how can ye ſee it? Chriſt is deſcended into the lower parts of the arth, and ye are uſing means to aſcend upwards in the wrong nature, how can ye eet with him? the Goſpel hath been hid, the Sun hath not ſhined, it hath been night nd ye have got many falſe Candles; which way can ye acknowledge the little glim- ering of the day Star, who have ſuch ſatisfaction in the warmth of your falſe Fires? e are far from the true light, who have not yet received ſo much of it, as to diſcover e darkneſs of the night! Ye are too high, too Wiſe, too knowing for Chriſt, or for e ſight and acknowledgment of the true means which lead to life. And if ye could, nce come to ſee this, there might be ſome hope but in that Wiſdom wherein your life nd knowledge ſtands, ye are ſhut out: and ye are reaſoning and ſtumbling at the tone, while others (who are broken in Spirit, and in meekneſs and humility led to ry) find it a ſure Foundation, even a Foundation of eternal life, for the true Seed of ife, and are biult into the living City, which is made without hands, and without any f the Tools of mans Wiſdom.

A Brief Hiſtory of the State of the Church ſince the days of the Apoſtles, with the living Seal to it, which he that hath eternal Life abiding in him, can read and witneſs; but that Wiſdom, Zeal, and Devotion which is in the death cannot,

AFTER the univerſal degeneration and corruption of the Jewiſh ſtate, and the putting an end to the ſhaddows thereof, by the appearance ſucceſſion of the ſubſtance, it pleaſed God to diſſolve that People, State and Policy, and by the power of life (without either the Wiſdom or Strength of man) to ſet upon the heatheniſh Wo which he ſubdued and brought under the power of his life. By his Apoſtles and Me gers. who preached the everlaſting Goſpel, the Word of eternal life, he gathered ſemblies up and down the Nations, whom the Nations by all their perſecutions c not ſubject; but they reigned over them in the Power, Authority, and Dominio God: For they were Kings and Prieſts to God in the ſight of all the Nations, and did reign upon the earth; inſomuch as the heatheniſh Spirit of man, obſerving their in the Spirit, and the Wiſdom and power of the Spirit among them, who by his light was able to ſearch the hearts of thoſe that came to obſerve them, could not but knowledge, that God was in them of a truth.

Now the next thing to be expected, is Satan's oppoſition againſt this power and his Stratagems to undermine it. He withſtood the growth and ſettlement Church, all that he could by open force, making uſe both of the heatheniſh devout ſhippers, who fought for their Jupiter, their Diana, and other Gods and Goddeſſes of the Jewiſh devout Worſhippers, who fought for their Temple-worſhip, with Laws and Ordinances of Moſes, which were now expired. But neither of theſe would but the Church in the power of life gained ground upon him, and did rather and increaſe, then diminiſh by this oppoſition. Therefore now he falls to his S gems, he gets ſome falſe brethren out of the Church (they went out from us) theſe he as Angels of light, puts on the Sheeps clothing on their Wolviſh nature, makes the pear as like the Apoſtles as may be, endues them with an excellent taking knowle life and ſpirituality in appearance, forms in them an Image of the truth, and inſpire Image with the Spirit of his own life, and with theſe he goes forth into the World, a thers the World about him. Now the World was preſently taken with this (the went after him) for this is that the World would have, an appearance of Religion, mage of truth, but their own Spirit in it. The worldly Spirit, that flies of from from the power, can readily cloſe with this, becauſe it is its own. Bring forth ne high notions of Religion and ſpiritual Wiſdom, the World will hug them, the Wor feed on them, the World will cloth it ſelf with them. The World can ſwallow and any thing but life. Any pleaſant picture of things in Heaven will down with the but the nature, the life, the truth, the ſpirit, Chriſt in the true and living Croſs, th not down with the World.

Now the Devil having thus ſet up his falſe Image in the World, and gathered a after him. then he ſets upon the Church: and the Battle goeth very hard, life to defend, and death to overcome How hard did the Apoſtles ſtrive in their da keep their converts to the ſimplicity of truth, and to the way thereof (which even began to be evil ſpoken of) writing Epiſtles to the Churches, warning them of th Apoſtles, and wiſhing them to ſtand their ground! Yea, Chriſt himſelf writes ſe Epiſtles from Heaven to ſome of them, checking their backſlidings, and encour them to renew their zeal and ſtrength, putting them in mind of the Crown whi tended the Victory. But at length the Devil with his Stratagems prevails, ge Poſſeſſion of the Churches territories, and the Church is fain to fly for her preſerv and ſuch of her Seed as are left behind her, the enemie makes War againſt, ſlays, d their bloud.

Now here's an end of all the glory of that ſtate: now the Devil hath gained World again: The ſame Spirit, hath loſt it under the heatheniſh power (for there was conquered) recovers it under an Antichriſtian appearance, ſetting up the ſame wi edneſs, and the ſame courſe and current of death under forms of Antichriſtian relig as he had done before under forms of heatheniſh Devotion.

Thus the Devil being Conquerour, having gained the Field he divides the ſpoil mong his Army: he takes whatever was the Churches, and makes his own, and ran them in his way of Antichriſtian Religion and Devotion: ſo that now henceforw thoſe things which were once Chriſts and the Churches, they are now all his, and ſtributed by him among his followers. He gives the name Church to the Whore wh he ſets up, he gives the name Chriſtian to his Diſciples, he preſcribes Baptiſm, and t Supper, (which he calls Sacraments) and Praying, and Preaching, and Sing ing, which he calls publick Ordinances, and he preſcribes private duties and exerci devotion; and he gets the letter of the Scriptures, and forms multitudes of meanings and expositions, and has lying signs and wonders for such as need them, that he might keep all the several Brigades of his Army quite under his pay, and might have some pleasant Wares of Traffique for every sort of his Merchants in his Babylon. For this is the City of that King, which he built after his conquest over the life, and which he hath enriched with the Spoils from the life. And here all his Subjects shall have content, they shall have what they will, if they will but be faithful to him in the main: Call for what fineness, what invention, what appearance of truth they will they shall have it, so they will but be content without life. No notion about the Spirit will he deny them, so they will be content with the notion, without the presence of the living Spirit. They shall have light in their understandings, warmth in their affections, joy, peace, hope, comfort out of the Scriptures. They shall apply as many promises to themselves as they will, believe what they will, do what they will, so they keep out of the feeling of the living principle; but if once that stir, and there be any harkening after that, then he begins to draw his Tyrany on the one hand to force them back, and his Stratagems on the other hand to tempt them aside from it.

The Divel having thus gained the form, and enriched himself with the Churches spoils, and slain them which had the living Testimony, then he falls to corrupting the form: for that filthy Spirit, though he can cloath himself with the form to deceive from the life, and abide there, to keep down the life; yet he does not much love it, he loves his own form better: and when he is out of fear and assaults from the life, then he returns to his own form again, or patches up a Garment more suitable to his own nature, taking in somewhat of the other with it, to make his own pass the better (for if he should have returned to the direct heathenish forms of Idolatry and false Worship, he could not so have lain hid: therefore he makes a mixture of somewhat which was prescribed the Jews, with some things found practiced among the Christians.) Thus he brought in Inventions of Crosses, and Images, and Beads, and Pictures, and Reliques, and Ceremonies beyond number: insomuch as not only the life and power was lost, but the true likeness also, even so lost, that it is impossible for all the Wisdom of man to recover the knowledge of the likeness again, Men have striven much, but they never could form a true likeness of the Primitive Church, and the way thereof.

Now, though it is the desire of the Devil, to keep men in the grosness of darkness, yet rather then lose them, he will let them have some part of the form again: nay he, will tempt them with a gaudy appearance of the form, to keep them from meeting with the power and life, when he preceives true secret inward stirrings in them, which will not be quieted without somewhat. Thus, when there was a stirring against Popery he tempted aside into Episcopacy: when that would hold no longer, then to Presbytery: when that will not serve, into Independancy: when that will not keep quiet, but still there are searchings further, into Anabaptism: if that will not do, into a way of seeking and waiting: if this will not satisfie, they shall have high notions, yea most pleasant notions concerning the Spirit, and concerning the life, if they will be but satisfied without the life: yea they shall have all the liberty in the creatures they can desire (the best painted liberty) if they will but be satisfied without that liberty which stands not in the creatures out of the life, but over the creatures in the life. And he that turns aside to any of these, he is still under the dominion of that Spirit, and there he holds knowledge, and there he performs his worship, and there he has his unity, his liberty, his life, his rest, his peace, his joy, his hope. Now no man can worship God, till he comes out of every part of this Babylon, and his feet touch Sion, though there may be a secret panting, and an unknown safety, and an acceptation of the poor mourning Soul in the passage Yea, all sorts of people; here ye were accepted; in your stirrings after life, in hearkening to the leadings of life from out of the Babylonish Spirit: but your turning aside to the Babylonish Wisdom in a new dress, and sitting down in a new form of her inventing, hath brought you to a loss of life, and hath made you hatefull to the living God, who hath drawn his Sword against you, and hath prepared his Vials, his Thunders, his Plagues, his Woes: and ye must drink of his Cup with sorrow, as he have drunk of the Whores cup with pleasure. Ye that have found a Bed of pleasure in any of your forms, or in any of your notions, and so have found ease in the Whores painting: ye must be cast into the Bed of Sorrow, and know the Fire in God's Sion, and the Furnace in his Jerusalem salem; if every e become an habitation for God, or expect to feed on his holy Mountain.

The condition of the Church all this while (all this time of Satan's reign in form Knowledge and Worship) hath been very lamentable, and is expressed in Scripture parables and resemblances of a sad State. She hath been as a City pulled down, like ruined City, which needs rebuilded, before she can come to be a City again (when Lord shall build up Sion.) She hath been as a Wilderness, barren, undressed, unrega ed. She hath been like a mournful Widow, whose Husband hath been rent from h and her Children slain. She hath lost all her ornaments, all her garments, all her O nances, all her appearances, and ways of life, insomuch as the ways of Sion mourn. Babylon, the Mother of Harlots, she has got all the Beauty, all the Glory, all the Chu ches Attire, all the Churches Ordinances, and all the Trade and Traffique runs thith and she is cryed up for the true Church; and if any dare speak a word against her, a for the true Church indeed, they are exclaimed against for Schismaticks and Hereticks, a War prepared against them, and some or other of the Beast's horns pushing at the thus it has gone all the time of the Apostacy, the Whore has flourished with the name the Church, making great Merchandize of Souls, selling their formal stuff for mon and abundance of Children hath the Whore brought forth, and nourished with h Milk of deceit; but the true Woman, the Lambs Wife with her Seed and the living so from her living Breasts, have had no place on the earth.

But this state of things is ended in part, and ending a pace: The Lord God of life arisen out of his holy habitation to assault the Dragon, to discover and strip the Whor to recover a possession for his life in the Earth, to make room in the World for his Chur which he is bringing out of the Wilderness. The Battle is begun, the territories of An christ are assaulted, the Lamb hath appeared on his white Horse, and hath gathered m ny of his called, faithful and chosen about him, the Ensign is lifted up: the light (whi searcheth the inwards of the enemies Dominions) hath appeared, and his inm power and wisdom is not feared, but the Lord God is feared, and the Drago Arm withers, and the head of his policy (whereby he ensnared and entangl from the life) is crushing. Glory to the endless Power of life, for ever and ever.

Be wise now therefore, and lose not your share in the Immortal Crown. Take hee how ye be found Fighters against the Lamb, in the wisdom and power of Babylon whic is to fall, Painting will not pass now: That Bloud of the Lamb is felt, which washes the Whores paint, even all her painted notions of the Bloud of Christ, and of Sanctification and Redemption, &c. the Whorish nature being discovered underneath all thes Ye have got the name of Church, the name Christians, the name of Ordinances, &c. by the Whores help, but the nature of life ye want: and the Living Power is come to re cover the name from you, and we, his living Witnesses, testifie to your faces, that ye shall not enjoy it, but the name and the thing shall go together; and he that hath not the thing, shall also lose the name. Yea, your eyes shall see that ye have been the Sacrilegious ones, who have stollen Holy Names and Titles, which ye never received from the Hand of God; but the Whorish Spirit (which is out of the life, and an enemy to the life) hath handed them to you. And this is told you in dear and tender love, that ye might not perish, but have eternal life abiding in your hearts, and the new name written by the Spirit of life on your foreheads, which all that know the writing of the life, may be able to read and acknowledge.

There are several touches of these things, in diverse of the Epistles of the Apostles: but the full relation is given forth in that Book of the Revelation, which was penned by the Spirit of God, to be read in the Light of the Spirit, and so to be a preservative against the overspreading Contagion of Antichristianism. And it is said, at the entrance into it, Blessed is he that readeth, and they that hear the Words of this Propehsie, and keep those things which are written therein. But men having lost the Spirit, have not been able to read it, and having lost the right ear, they have not been able to hear the Words it speaks: and how then could they keep the things written therein? He that doth not understand what he is warned against, how is it likely he should be preserved by the warning; The Spirit of God judged this warning necessary, but the Spirit of Deceit cries, it is a deep thing, not to be meddled with. Now this is a plain demonstration, that men gene-generally are overtaken with the Whoredom, and drink of the Whores Cup, and ſubmit themſelves to the Beaſt, and exalt his Horns and receive his Mark, and ſome or other of his Names; becauſe they have not the knowledge of that which diſcovers theſe things, and was given by the Spirit of God to forewarn, and ſo to preſerve out of them. He that knoweth not the miſtery of Iniquity working under a form of Godlineſs, may not he eaſily be deceived with the myſtery of Iniquity? He that knoweth not what is become of the true Church and Miniſtry, and where to look for them, may not he eaſily own a falſe Church and Miniſtry? He that knoweth not the Spirit of the Scriptures, which the Church carried with her, when ſhe left the Letter behind her, may not he eaſily ſet up the Letter for his Rule? He that knoweth not the living Mark and Name of a Chriſtian, with which the Spirit of Life Seals all the Lambs of Chriſt in the Life, may not he eaſily give this name to himſelf, and to others who have not this Mark, but the Beaſts Mark? He that knoweth not the true Faith, the true Love, the true Hope, the true Joy, the true Peace, the true Reſt, the true Conſolation in Chriſt the Life (the true meekneſs and Patience of the Saints, &c.) may not he eaſily ſet up ſhadows or likeneſſes of theſe (which he gathers from the Letter of the Scriptures and the promiſes thereof, receiving the knowledge of them into the wrong part, and applying them to the wrong thing) inſtead of theſe? Ah poor hearts! the Book of the Revelation is eaſie to that Spirit that wrote it: and it was not given forth to be laid by as uſeleſs; but to be ſerviceable in the hand of the Spirit, for the Ages after the days of the Apoſtles; and in the true Light it is eaſily read: and they that can read it, can ſee that in it, which they that cannot read it, cannot believe. And this is plainly ſeen, That there is but the Spirit of Truth, and the Spirit of Deceit: but the Lambs Wife, and the Whore (which hath Whored from the Spirit, which hath made uſe of the Letter, to run a Whoring from that Spirit that wrote it:) that there is but the true Church and the falſe Church: but life, and death: but form and power: but Chriſt the miſtery of Godlineſs, and Antichriſt the myſtery of Iniquity, but God, and the Dragon; God in the Church or Temple in the Wilderneſs, and the Dragon in the Worlds Churches and Temples, appearing there as if he were God, giving forth Laws and Ordinances like God; and all the World falls down before him, and worſhips him as if he were God; and hopes by this Worſhip which they perform to him, and by their Faith and Hope which they receive from him, to be ſaved at laſt. I ſay there are but theſe two: and he that is joyned to the one of theſe, is not joyned to the other. Let him that readeth underſtand: which he may eaſily do by the wiſdom of the Spirit, but never can by the wiſdom of the Letter. For though we know how to joyn theſe two in the life, yet there is a neceſſity of ſeparating them at preſent, till the Letter be gained out of the hands of the Whoriſh Spirit, which hath built up ſeveral forms of Knowledge, Religion, and Worſhip in Myſtery Babylon, by the Letter without the life, all which muſt fall with Babylon.

An Exhortation, relating to the workings of the Myſtery of Iniquity; and the Myſtery of Godlineſs in this preſent Age.

ALL People upon earth, who love your Souls, and have any true ſecret pantings after God, look to the nature of your Spirits, and look to the nature of thoſe things ye let into your minds; leſt ye take Death for Life, Error for Truth, and ſo ſow to your ſelves Corruption, and rear up a Fabrick in Myſtery-Babylon, which will be turned into Deſolation and utter ruins, by the power of life from Sion.

Strong is the Spirit of Deceit that is entred into the World, and glorious and very taking are his Images and likeneſſes of Truth, which will deceive all but the very Elect, who were choſen from the Foundation of the World, and whoſe eyes are opened to ſee the Foundation of life, which was before the Foundation of the World.

It hath been an heavy dull time for many Ages: There have only been Witneſſes hitherto raiſed againſt Antichriſt, and he hath found it an eaſie matter to knock them down, and keep up his ways of Prophaneneſs, and of formal Superſtitious kinds of Devotion, up and down all the Nations. But now it is a quick time, the Spirit of the Lord God hath ariſen, the ſearching eye is opened, the purſuit after the very ſpirit of Antichriſt is begun, yea very quick and freſh is the ſcent of that Spirit which hunteth the Whore; and now ſhe goes forward and backward, traverſes her ground, changes her paint and colours often, ſhifts her Garment continually, and uſes all the Art ſhe can to ſave her life. Now the King of Babylon opens his Treaſury, brings forth all his likeneſſes, all his Images, all Appearances; with ſome or other of them (if it be poſſible) to tempt the ſimple Soul, and keep it ſatisfied therewith, in ſome of his Chambers of darkneſs and imagery, out of the Life and Power.

Therefore now be warned and look about you, and be not coſened with any of the Wares of Babylon, where the Merchandize and Traffique is for Souls, and where all the wares of Deceit are, which are proper to coſen Souls: but ſeek for the nature of that thing, which the inward pantings of your heart at any time have been after; and wait for the opening of that eye, which can ſee, through all manner of paint, to that nature: and keep low in the life, ſimple and honeſt-hearted, and then gawdy appearances will not take with you; for they are only Temptations to the aſpiring part, which is lifted up above the pure, low, humble principle: and if that part were brought down, ye would be ſafe: but while that ſtands, ye will not be out of the danger of Temptations. Now this know:

There is nothing whereof Sion is built, but the likeneſs of it is in Babylon: and the likeneſs is very taking, even more taking to that eye which is open in men, than the truth it ſelf. The truth is a plain ſimple thing, it is not gawdy in appearance, its excellency lies in its nature: but the appearances of truth which Satan paints, are very gawdy, very glorious, ſeemingly very ſpiritual, very pure, very precious, very ſweet; they many times, even raviſh that underſtanding and thoſe affections, that are out of the life. Oh what ſhall I ſay! ſhall I ſpeak a little of the wares of Babylon? where is there an ear which can hear me? yet he that opens my mouth, can open thine ear. Therefore let me ſpeak a little plainly.

1. There are many glorious falſe Births in Babylon. There is no inheriting the Kingdom, but by being born again. This Doctrine the King of Babylon Preacheth; he is forced to do ſo, elſe the Letter of the Scripture would overthrow his Kingdom. Now therefore to keep from the true New-Birth, he hath his Images of the New Birth, his ſeveral falſe Births. A great while outward Baptiſm, and a formal knowledge was enough to make a man a Chriſtian; but now, ſince that is diſcovered and will not do, he brings forth better Births; he hath inward changes of the mind (multitudes of them) fit for every one who is ſeeking after the life, to be tempted from the life with; and he tempts every one with a proper bait, with that which is taking to him in his preſent eſtate. What changes any kind of knowledge by vertue of the notion (with the Devils quickning power added to it) can produce in any man, the Devil can transform man into. Yea many are theſe Changes; and he that doth not know the nature of the true Birth may eaſily be deceived with that which is juſt like the thing he looks for. A man looks for a new Birth, for an inward Change: he looks for a knowledge to change him; he ſhall have juſt the very likeneſs of that which his heart deſires, the lively likeneſs, the Devil is ready at hand to furniſh him with it: which way can the man, who never ſaw the true thing, eſpy the cheat?

2. There are many glorious deſires in Babylon, many pantings, many breathings after that which this Birth of Babylon takes to be Life. The Devil hath theſe wares, theſe images in his ſhop too; as he hath a falſe Birth in imitation of the true, ſo he hath falſe breathings for his falſe Birth. If his Child could not ſeemingly breath towards God (as if he were a natural Child of God) he would ſoon be detected; therefore he inflames him with deſires of growth, with deſires of enjoyment of that which he calls Life, with ſeeming deſires of ſerving and glorifying God; and here come in the Prayers of the fleſhly Birth, which are many times carryed on with exceeding great earneſtneſs of the fleſhly part, to which alſo the Father of this Birth gives anſwers. And now which way can Deceit be ſo much as ſuſpected here? And yet here alſo the Deceiver lodgeth, and herein he worketh, raiſing ſtrong deſires in that part wherein he dwells, that he may allay thoſe pure deſires, which otherwiſe would be ariſing from the life underneath, and which (notwithſtanding all this) ſometimes do ariſe, eſpecially when the Soul is in anguiſh.

3. There's falſe food in Babylon, falſe knowledge to feed this wrong nature with. There's Knowledge falſely ſo called. There's ſeveral appearances of all the Truths in S on. There's outward knowledge of the letter, and there's inward mystical knowledge; and each of these have their warmth, and their freshness, and do nourish up this Child, and cause it to grow. Yea, what knowledge and experience (which at first sprang from the true life) this Spirit makes a prey of, and daily brings into his Babylon, therewith to feed and fatten that which is born of him, and to cover the old deceitful nature under, which is not slain thereby, but daily lives and moves and puts forth it self; this is certainly felt by that which is made sensible in the life, but hard to be spoken, because the deceived heart is so gross, and the ear so heavy. Now here the painted Whore, which hath dealt treacherously with the life, sits as a Queen, and says she shall see no sorrow: This knowledge is certain to her, these experiences she hath had the feeling of, and knows they can never be shaken. But O thou Princess of Babylon, the Lord will strip thee, the Lord will unbare thy inwards, and thine own eyes shall see thy nakedness, which shall be for a perpetual reproach among all the Inhabitants of Sion: and then thy dark deceitful Spirit, shall have no more to say against those, who now see through thy covering, to thy nature, in the light; and judge thee (not of themselves nor in their own wills and understandings) but from the true power, and in the true guidance of the life, whose work it is to pursue, overtake, and judge death, even to death. For all this knowledge all these experiences in thee (though thou seest it not, nor canst see it with that eye wherewith thou lookest to see) are held Captive by that which transgressed and hath erred from the life, and are made use of to keep thy Soul in bands: and as they are thus held, death and the curse must overtake them, ere that life in thee, from which they first sprang, can possibly arise. Grasp not after the knowledge of this in the understanding part, but wait for the sense of it from that life, which lies slain underneath these, and by that part which exalts these.

4. There are false Keys to open the several Chambers of imagery in Babylon. This Food man cannot gather of himself, it must be given to him: this knowledge man cannot get into by himself, but as this Spirit leads him, and opens to him: for he hath the keys of death, and opens into the Treasures of death. Now, this hugely confirms a man in in the deceit, without the least suspicion of it. Why, saith he, I had not this knowledge from my self, I came not to it by mine own skill or understanding, but it was given me, it was opened to me: and it came in fresh, and warmed in my heart, begetting sweet and pure desires in me, and hath made me eye the glory of God, and not my self. Yea, it might come thus in the likeness, and work the likeness of this in thee; and yet it self not be truth, nor be able to work the truth of this in thee, and this is proper to deceive thy very heart, and make thee a pleasant Inhabitant of Babylon, and a joyful Worshipper of the King thereof, whom through this deep deceit, and most subtle false appearances in thy heart, thou mistakest for the King of Sion.

5. This false Spirit hath his false Crosses, his false Combats and Fightings. The very Papists have not only their wooden and stone Crosses, but they have also their ways of self-denyal, their ways of crossing the natural part, of resignation to the divine Will (as they call it) of fighting against corruption, &c. It is manifest, that a man must deny himself, or else he cannot be a Christian (his own will must not, cannot live, if he truly give himself up to Christ:) therefore that Spirit, which lyeth lurking to deceive, hath several ways of self-denyal to teach (all which must have some hardness in them to the natural part, or else they could not pass:) and these may produce great and constant conflicting in the flesh, and yet the fleshly nature be still kept alive under all these conflicts and exercises of self-denyal. He hath a Circumcising-knife, which cuts off a great deal, but always spares the nature; and as long as the nature is spared, the Devil still hath that wherein he can dwell.

6. He hath his false love to God and man, and his false zeal for God: Love and Zeal are two distinguishing things. All men conclude that love determines a man to be a Christian, and so they take up some appearance or other of love, somewhat that satisfies themselves that their love is right, both to God and man. The very Papists, who are full of bloud and cruelty, yet pretend to love: they have an Image of love which contents them. But there are far higher Images, even Images of universal love and sweetness, which no eye can perceive, but that which knows the truth. And take one Word from me, ye to whom it belongs: All ye that cry up universal love from the sweet sense of its Image, ye shall one day know, that one act of particular love from the true nature, exceeds this in its utmost extent.

7. He hath his false life. The Devil hath not only a dead formal Religion, but he hath a resemblance, an imitation of the quickenings of the Spirit. The Devil puts his his life into his Image, where need requires. He hath not only a dead litteral knowledge, but he hath paintings of the life, he draws a thing to the life, he makes his dead Image of truth, as like the living substance of truth, as possibly he can; insomuch as his Images of life, at a distance, without being beheld in the true life, cannot but be taken for living. Now here is the depth of deceit, when the Devils Images of life in the heart, are taken for the living thing, for the life it self.

8. He hath false liberty. There is a glorious liberty in the Gospel: there is a perfect freedom in the service of the life; there is a liberty in the power of the life over all the creatures. God made all things for man, and he denies him nothing, he being in subjection to him in the life, and using all in the Dominion of the life. Now the Devil paints a liberty like this, yea, a liberty that seems greater than this, even a liberty wherein the fleshly part (whose very nature is eternally shut out of the nature of true liberty) hath scope; which liberty is not surrounded, nor cannot be surrounded by the power of life, as this is; and in this painted liberty, that Spirit which painted it lives, which paint the true liberty takes off, slaying that which calls it liberty, and gathering in the name of liberty from this false appearance to that which is liberty indeed. And by the way, he that can read this, let him. The perfection of the true liberty lies in the perfection of bonds, in the perfect binding down of that which is out of the life; for the true liberty is the liberty of the life, and of nothing else; and when all that is contrary to the life, is perfectly bound down, then the life hath its full scope, without the least controul of the fleshly part, and when the life lives, then that which is joyned to the life lives also.

Now here's the mystery of iniquity, here's the inward Kingdom of darkness, here's the glory of Babylon! Here's he that contends for the Kingdom, for the Inheritance: Here the Son of the Bond-woman (thus dressed, thus furnished, thus filled within and without) will have it go for granted that he is the right heir: and yet all this while wants the nature of that which is to inherit, and cannot possibly receive that nature into himself, but only such Images afore-mentioned. And if in tender love to his Soul from a clear sight of this thing, we warn him, and bid him look about, he cries do not judge. He really thinks he is right in the main, and he seems willing to refer it to the day of tryal. Ah poor hearts! the eye is ope ned which can see, that which hath judged the deceit in us, can also judge the deceit in thee. Cannot the spiritual eye see things in its kind? To what end hath God given it? Canst thou see and judge natural things in the natural part? So can they see and judge spiritual things who are in the light, and who live in the life; yea, we shall continue judging thee in the fear, and in the humility, till God open that in thee which can seal to our judgment.

Object. How difficult do you make the way to life, if not utterly impossible? If all this be true, Who can be saved?

Answ. The way to life is very difficult, ye and impossible to that part in man, which is so busie in willing and running towards life; but it is as easie on the other hand, to that which the Father begetteth, raiseth up, and leadeth. The wayfaring-man (though a Fool) shall not err. The wisest and richest Merchants in Babylon, cannot set one step in it: the least Child in Sion cannot err there. Therefore know that in thy self, to which it is so hard; and know that which God hath given to thee, which will make it easie.

Thou hast a living Talent given thee by God, let not thine eye be drawn from that; but joyn to that, keep there, and thou art safe; and that will open thine eye to see all deceits, just in the very season and hour of temptation. For thou must expect to meet with all these temptations, as thy growth makes thee capable of receiving them. And as they come, the true eye being kept open, they will be seen: and being seen they will easily be avoided in the power of life; for in vain the Net is spread in sight of the Bird. Therefore that thou mayst be safe.

1. Know the light, the eternal light of life, the little glimmerings and shinings of it in thy Soul. This comes from the Rock, to lead thee to the Rock: and if thou wilt follow it, it will fix thee upon the Rock where thou canst not be shaken.

2. Keep in the light, keep within the hedg, step not out of thine own, keep out of the the circumference of the Spirit of Deceit, the power of whose Witchery and Sorcery extend all over the Regions of Darkness.

3. Love simplicity, love the nakedness of life, stand single in the honesty of the heart, out of the intricate subtle reasonings, and wise consultings about things: for by these means the Serpent comes to twine about and deceive thy Soul: but in the simplicity of the movings of life, in the light, lies the power, the strength, the safety.

4. Lye very low continually, even at the foot of the lowest breathing and appearances of the Light: Take heed of being above that wherein the life lyes: for the wisdom, the power, the strength, yea the great Glory lyes in the humility: and thou must never be exalted, thou must never come out of the Humility, but find and enjoy the honour and glory of the life in the humility.

5. Mind the reproofs of the Light, for that will still be setting thee to rights. That will still be bringing down that which would get up above, and there lies the preservation: Oh the chastnings of the Light, the sweet chastenings of the Love by the Light! These are healing stripes. This brings down the exalter, and that in thee which loves to be exalted, and to be seeking the honour of the Spiritual riches, before the Humility is perfected.

Thus in Love to Souls, have I poured out my Soul before the Lord, and held forth gentle leadings, even to the most stubborn and stiff-necked.

To the Parliament, the Army, and all the Well-affected in the Nation, who have been faithful to the Good Old Cause.

THAT there hath been a back-sliding and turning aside from the GOOD OLD CAUSE, even by the Army (who formerly were glorious Instruments in the hand of God) hath been lately confessed, and that they have cause, and desire to take shame to themselves.

Now that they may see the cause of shame that lies upon them, and may abase themselves in the sight of God, and before all the World, it behoves them to search narrowly into their back-sliding, and consider the fruits thereof, that they may be truly humbled, and turned from that Spirit which led them aside, lest any of them take advantage to make a feigned Confession for their own ends, and fall afresh to seek themselves, and their own Interests, and not the Good Old Cause singly, and nakedly, as in the sight of the Lord.

Many bad fruits have grown from this Corrupt Spirit, and the corrupt course it hath run in these late years, which would be narrowly searched into, and considered of: some few general ones I may mention.

1. The Name of God hath been Blasphemed in the sight of the whole Earth, and that Holy Spirit and Power (which many Hearts can witness was the Beginner and Carrier on of this Work) made a Scoff and Derision to the Enemies of Truth in these Nations, and in the Nations round about, who watched to see the issue and result of these things. The Controversie was very great and eminent, and drew many eyes upon it, the Lord was appealed on both sides to decide it; and many know that by his Presence and Power in the Army, the Scale was turned, (even when they were very low, and cryed out for prayers; and made large Promises in the day of their Distress.) Yea, the Lord did not desert the Army, but heard their Prayers, and the Prayers of his People for them, carrying on the Deliverance, untill he had given a perfect Victory into their hands. But then the Army deserted the Lord; and just like men that were ruled by the Spirit of the World, forgot the Lord, and his Cause and Interest, and their fellow Companions in the hard Travel and Service, and set up themselves, and their own Interest, making their General the greatest, and their Officers great. Thus the Cause was betrayed, the pleasure of it lost, a Private, Particular, Selfish, Earthly, Corrupt Interest set up, and men countenanced and advanced, not according to their Fidelity to the Good Old Cause, but according to their complyance with this new selfish Interest.

2. The

2. The great work of God, both in these Nations, and in the World, hath hereby been turned backward. In these Nations, that Spirit which began this Work (when at any time it hath appeared in simplicity and singleness for the prosecution of it) hath been snibbed; what was built up formerly, thrown down; and that which was thrown down, now again built up; so that the Face of the Nation was changed, and unrighteous ones came into place and power, and the innocent and upright (those that feared God, and could not seek themselves, or the pleasing of men,) have been oppressed and crushed. And if the work was thus stopt in these Nations, its advantage of spreading further must needs be interrupted. God had raised up a Power against Oppression, in which he eminently appeared, even to the dread of the Nations round about: and how far this Power should have gone on his work, by the Leadings of his Spirit, had they waited in his Council, kept to their Leader, and not turned aside to another Spirit, and to other Ends and Interests, who can tell?

3. Great and vast Treasures have been expended, for the maintaining of your greatness in your Back-slidings, and the Poor have groaned to bear the Burthen: and while ye have grown thus high, extravagant, and excessive, many (who remained faithful) have wanted even that which was their due, and have undergone great hardships thereby.

4. The Account of all the Blood which hath been shed lies somewhere: Was it a thing of Nought? Was it of no Value? Nay, It was precious in the sight of the Lord many (yea very many) in the singleness and simplicity of their hearts losing their lives for the Cause. And yet how soon had you forgot all this, casting it, and the Cause behind your backs, and setting up your selves! Thus have ye grieved that good Spirit which never gave you Victory over your Enemies for this end, that his Name and Cause and Interest should be forgotten, and yours grow great: but the Name of the Lord should have been exalted by you, and ye should have remained low and little, both in your own eyes, and in the eyes of others. But the Lord hath been vailed by your Greatness, and that Vail lies upon him at this day: Read this in the true humility, and in the fear and dread of his great Name, who will be exalted over all, and whom no Power or Greatness on earth shall be able to hinder from arising. Remember these things, O ye back-sliding Children, and be abased; that the Lord may forgive you, and may vouchsafe yet once more to make use of you in his Service.

But I am jealous over you with a Godly Jealousie, lest ye should confess, and turn back, not with an upright heart, but feignedly: and if so, then you will not lie flat in your spirit, either before the Lord, or before men, but will be keeping up the greatness ye have got in your Back-slidings, and seeking your own Interests, and self-ends afresh. There hath been often a naked, honest, simple, pure thing stirring in the Army, which the great ones (seeing some present use of) fell in with, and improved for their own ends, but destroyed the thing it self; so that it attained not to the bringing forth of the righteous liberty, and common good which it seemed to aim at (and did indeed aim at in those in whom the stirring did arise) but was made use of as an advantage to advance them in their particular Interests against their Enemies, and so set them up. Have ye not seen this use made formerly of such lively stirrings in some, and such fair pretences in others after Righteousness, Liberty, and the Common good? Take heed of it now, Lest not the pure stirrings after good, be betrayed into the selfish Lusts and interests of your own corrupt hearts. Do not fall so hastily to the work of Reformation, nor be not so forward to propose things for settlement; but wait to be purged from that back-sliding spirit which sticks closer to you, and makes you unfitter for this Service than you are aware that you may come into a capacity of desiring the Common good, and of being faithful in the prosecution of it; and put off your greatness and swelling Honour that ye have contracted in the time of your back-slidings, and come at least into an equal Ballance with them that remained Faithful. Are ye humbled before the Lord for your backslidings, and yet keep your corrupt standings? Is this true humiliation? this taking of shame to your selves? Ah, do not force the Lord to deal with you! do not force the Lord to strip you, and manifest your shame! If it be truly in your heart that the work of the Lord should go on, let such be picked out who have not backslidden, and let them carry it on; and stand ye by a while, till it be made manifest that your hearts are changed, and there be a Testimony given to the Nation, that you are truly humbled, and become men of other ſpirits: For while this Spirit remains in you, ye will be ſecretly for your ſelves, and cannot poſſibly be cordial, either to the Lord, or to the Nation, in the work of Reformation; but while you ſeem to be ſetting your hands to it, your hearts will be erring from it, and your endeavours will be to obſtruct thoſe whoſe hearts are entire and faithful to it.

Now to the Parliament, let me ſay this, Ye have one day more by the good hand of God, by the great Mercy of God, ye have one day more; (not for your righteouſneſs, not for your fitneſs for the work; but for the unrighteouſneſs of that power, which would not go on with the Lords work, but bring back again to Egypt, hath the hand of the Lord been ſtretched forth againſt them.) Be not ſloathful, be not ſelfiſh, be not wiſe in the fleſh: but know that Wiſdom which is to be your Guide and Leader, and let it be your Wiſdom to follow. A Providence hath brought you together; let the ſame Providence lead you. Be ſingle and honeſt to the Nation, and upright hearted toward God; and if any ſuch ſtraights come, be not too haſty, but wait for the manifeſtation of his Council, for the unvailing of his Arm to protect you. Let not the Army be your confidence: Do not any one thing to pleaſe the Army; much leſs a corrupt intereſt of a part of the Army; but apply your ſelves to do that which is truly Juſt and Righteous in the ſight of God, of the Army, and of all men. The Lord hath as it were new Created you, and given you a new being; look to him to preſerve you, and apply your ſelves faithfull to his work, without ſelf-ends and intereſts in your ſelves, and againſt all ſelf-ends and intereſts in others, leaving it to his power to ſtand by you, and preſerve you therein; and do not joyn (through fear or favour) with that which is great and powerful, but that which is ſingle and honeſt. Mind the ſtirring of that Spirit in the Army, and in the Nation, which revived the Good Old Cauſe; and cheriſh it, and cleave to it: Mind likewiſe the Apoſtatizing Spirit, which colour over the Apoſtacy, and make it ſeem as little as they could, and frown upon it, though in perſons never ſo great. Ye are in the place of God; reſpect not perſons, but righteouſneſs, and ye ſhall have honour, even that honour which will ſtand, when the vain Honour and Titles which corrupt man aſpires after, whereby his heart is lifted up above his Brethren (which the King of Iſraels was not to be) ſhall fall to the Ground, do men what they can. Open your eyes (that eye in you which alone can ſee the power that hath wrought this change) there is the Arm of Fleſh, and the Arm of the Lord before you, chuſe which you will cleave to. The Lord hath a Work to do, a great Work, and he will not want Inſtruments. Ye have a time of Tryal, whether ye will become fit Inſtruments in the hand of the Lord; improve it in his Fear and in his Wiſdom; and do not think your ſelves ſecure, as ye can gain the preſent Powers on your ſide; but be ſingle to the Lord, and he will bring over the hearts of the Army and Nation to you. And take heed of your Debates: let every man fear his own Wiſdom and his own Will, in every word he ſpeaks in the Houſe; for that which comes from ſelf, will be but for ſelf (though under a pretence it may ſeem to be for God) but purſue what is manifeſtly good and righteous, and not what the Wiſdom of the Serpent can caſt a colour over, and make appear ſo.

To thoſe who have remained faithful in the Nation, and waited for this day, I have one word alſo. Keep your eye on the Lord; fix not your hopes on the Army, or on the Parliament; but look through them, to him who hath the power over them. Man is a vain, empty, fooliſh thing, there is no good to be expected from him. If the Lord appear in them, and they abide in his fear, and be guided by his Council, they may be Inſtruments of good in his hand, otherwiſe they will prove but broken reeds; but he that waiteth on the Lord ſhall not be diſappointed, but ſhall meet with and receive the good in the Lords ſeaſon. The Lords mighty Power is at work, he ſnappeth Inſtruments aſunder at his pleaſure. When they are wiſe, when they are ſtrong, when they are puft up in the imaginations of their hearts, he overturneth them with his Finger, and calleth up that which was not, that which the foot of Pride trampled upon. The Lord is known by the Judgment which he executeth; the Wicked is ſnared in the work of his own hands. Wait on the Lord: If theſe alſo prove Treacherous, his hand can overturn them alſo; and he will at length bring forth an Inſtrument, which his Soul can take pleaſure in, and which he will make faithful to him in his work. O Nation of England, wait on the Lord! wait on the Lord, O my Soul!

This from one who is a Friend to the Common-Wealth, a lover of true Freedom, and deſires the good of all men.

From Chaffont in Bucks, the 18. of the 3. mon. 1659.

Iſaac Penington the Younger.

A Brief Account of ſome Reaſons (amongſt many that might be given) why thoſe People called QUAKERS, cannot do ſome things on the one hand, and forbear doing of ſome things on the other hand, for which they have ſuffered, and do ſtill ſuffer ſo much violence from the People, and ſuch ſore Perſecution from the Teachers and Magiſtrates of theſe Nations, whereby it may appear to all who are willing to take any fair conſideration of their cauſe, that their Sufferings are for Righteouſneſs ſake, becauſe of the integrity of their Hearts towards God, and void of any juſt ground of Offence towards Man.

This Account was drawn up thus Brief, for their ſakes who want either Time, or Patience to conſider of it more at large, and Anſwers to the Heads of their Sufferings; in a particular Declaration to the PARLIAMENT.

1. WHY we go into Meeting-places, or Markets, or otherwhere to teſtifie to the Truth, and againſt Deceit.

Reaſon, Becauſe we are moved of the Lord ſo to do; We are his, and where he bids us witneſs for him, and againſt Deceivers and their Deceit, we muſt do it; wo unto us (from the Lord) if we do it not. If any man do any ſuch thing in his own Will, we witneſs againſt him, and the Lord will require it of him. Now this is no more than the Apoſtles and Servants of the Lord have done, as it is recorded in Scripture.

2. Why we cannot pay Tythes.

Reaſ. Becauſe Tythes was not a maintenance appointed by Chriſt for his Miniſters, but was ſet up by the Pope (as the maintenance of his Miniſters) ſince the days of the Apoſtles; and this maintenance by Tythes, Wickliff and others bore a Teſtimony againſt, and divers of the Martyrs in Queen Mary's days ſuffered for, as by the Articles charged againſt them, and the Teſtimony that they held forth, may appear.

3. Why we meet together on the firſt days, and at other times.

Reaſ. Becauſe we find the Lord drawing of us, and his preſence among us in our Meetings, and receive refreſhings to our Souls thereby.

4. Why we cannot ſwear.

Reaſ. Becauſe Chriſt our Lord (who is greater than Moſes who gave the Law about Swearing) hath ſaid, Swear not at all; and his Apoſtle (who abode in his Doctrine) ſaith, Above all things, my Brethren, ſwear not, neither by Heaven, neither by the Earth, neither by any other Oath. Now mark the drift of Chriſt, which is not only to forbid Profane and Unlawful Oaths, (for if that were all, Chriſt had ſpoken nothing further nor fuller than Moſes had done, which is contrary to all the inſtances of the like kind, whereby he ſtraitens all that had been ſaid by Moſes of old time) but all ſwearing without exception, as may further appear by the inſtance immediately foregoing, in the caſe of Divorce, where he expreſſeth an exception in theſe Words, Saving for the cauſe of Fornication: But here is no exception added by Chriſt; and the putting in of an exception by mans wiſdom, deſtroyeth Chriſts words, making his Command no ſtraiter than the Law of Moſes, which forbad all profane and unlawful Swearing, Levit. 19. 12.

5. Why we cannot put off our Hats to men.

Reaſ. Becauſe it lifts up that in man which God will deſtroy; it is ſutable to that nature which is of the earth, and feeds it; it is pleaſing to the fleſh, and that which is an enemy to the fleſh, cannot give it that which feeds and pleaſeth it; if we ſhould pleaſe men, we could not be the Servants of Chriſt. This is the true ground whereupon we cannot do it, and not in contempt to Authority, or any mans perſon. Neither can we reſpect mens perſons, for in ſo doing we ſhould commit Sin, as ſaith the Apoſtle; and let men conſider what it is in them that cannot bear with it, it being done in ſimplicity of heart upon this account,

6. Why

6. Why we cannot justly be looked upon as Vagrants or Sturdy beggars.

Reas. Because we beg not, nor pass up and down in any idle way, but either about our civil Imployments and Occasions, or about the Work of our God, not are any way Burthensom to the Nation: If to be from our dwellings about the work of our God, be accounted the breach of a Law, would not the same Law have taken hold on Christ and his Apostles, if it had been in their days?

7. Why we visit Friends in Prison.

Reas. Because they being Imprisoned for their obedience to Christ, what we do to them, we do to him; and we are affraid least he should say to us at the great day, I was Sick and in Prison, and ye visited me not. Now they that are so far from doing this themselves, that they punish others for doing it, when God shall call them to account, what will they answer?

8. Why we cannot contribute towards the repairing of Steeple-Houses, or pay Clerks Wages.

Reas. Because they are places which are erected for Popish and Idolatrous Worship, and where a Worship not differing in its nature and ground, (but only in form) is continued at this day, and the Root from whence all this Idolatry grew, is not so much as discovered, much less purged out of these Dominions by them who formerly declared against it in Words. Now as we will answer it to God, we are to give no countenance or furtherance to Idolatry. And for Clarks, they were Officers invented by the false Church, (since the Apostacy) never appointed by Christ in his Church, and such we dare not help to maintain. Was it not solemnly covenanted with the Lord against Superstition, for the plucking up of Episcopacy Root and Branch? And must not those that are faithful to the Lord, perform their Covenant, though to their hurt?

Now, any man that shall in the fear of the Lord read this, may see that these things bear a weight upon our hearts, and what we do herein, we do for conscience-sake in obedience to the Lord, and not out of stubbornes or Rebellion, (as by some we are charged,) nor out of any delight that we have to disturb or disquiet others, but singly to the Lord, that we may stand clear in his sight: we know whom we obey therein, and are sure we do that which is pleasing to him. Therefore let men take heed how they persecute us, least they be found fighters against him who will be too strong for them; for these many ages since the days of the Apostles, deceit hath got up, Antichrist hath sate in the Temple, the true Worshipers have been imprisoned and martyred; The Lord will avenge the sufferings and bloud of his Saints, and in due time will plead their cause against the Oppressors, on whom his hand will then fall heavy, and the Rocks and the Mountains shall not be able to hide them from the presence of the Lamb: and that day who will be able to abide? though now men put it far from them.

Some Considerations proposed to the City of LONDON, and the Nation of ENGLAND, to calm their Spirits, and prepare them to wait for what the Lord is bringing about, that they may not run headily into their ruine and destruction, and by this extraordinary heat of their Spirits kindle that Fire, which will soon devour them.

With a short Exhortation to them, relating to their true settlement, and the removal of that which hinders it.

1. THE Lord God Almighty, who made Heaven and Earth, who upholds them by the word of his Power, whose they are, with all their Inhabitants, he ruleth in the Kingdoms of Men. Establishing or Overturning Laws, Governments, and Governours at his pleasure, (Psal. 75. 5. &c. Dan. 4. 25, 3. 5.)

2. That the Lord hath had an especial hand in the shakings and changes of this Nation, and hath some great thing to bring about, which he ordereth all unto. And though many of the transactions and passages (as relating to men) have been very blamable, yet the Lord hath been just and good in them all, and can in his own good time, recover the ground which he hath seemed to lose, and advantage both the good of his People and of the Nation, by all their Sufferings, Losses, Discouragements, and Disadvantages.

3. In this late Revolution, there may be more of God then man is aware off. God in his infinite Wisdom might see that this Parliament was not fit for Work, and so might suffer such a thing to fall out between them and the Army (heightning their Spirits on both sides,) as might occasion the Removal of them out of the way. Yea, and this present change may be but a passage to another, unless the Lord find these very faithful and diligent in his Service, and not minding themselves and their own Interests.

4. If this late Revolution was of God, and he saw it good to bring it about, for the further carrying on of his Work, he will be able to maintain it; and those that oppose him therein, shall not be able to stand before him. They may bring ruine upon the Nation and themselves, but they cannot set up what God throws down, nor raise up any thing else in the stead of it according to their Wills; but that which he, by his Providence and disposing hand, appointeth to succeed, must have the time of Tryal which he alloteth it.

Therefore let men fear the Lord God, whose eye is upon us, and whose power is over us; and let us take heed of being found Fighters against him. The Cause hath long lain a bleeding, yet there is at length a true reviving of it; and those whose hearts the Lord hath stirred up to seek it faithfully, the Lord will be with them, and he is ready to pardon their former miscarriages. But oh that they could lay themselves low, and forget their own Interests, that the Cause might rise up clear and manifest above them. Remember this saying, O ye great ones, The Lord did not throw down the former greatness of the Nobility, for you to rise up in their places; but ye should have lain low and remained little, and have let the Lord been great: and it is your true interest to descend and become little again. And if it were once manifest that ye did not seek yourselves but the cause of God, the good of his People, and of the Nation, that every part and sort of men might feel their oppressions broken, and their just Rights and Liberties recovered and preserved for them, this would draw the hearts of all the honest hearted People to you, as one man: and those which have been scattered would be again united; and our very enemies (seeing our Integrity, and Righteousness, and true Reformation by the wisdom and guidance of God,) would magnifie that Work of God which as yet cannot but be a reproach.

Therefore O England, fear before the Lord, and wait upon him, and let thine eye be taken off from man, for he is very vanity. Neither thy good nor thy harm ariseth this way, but out of thine own Bowels. What have all these afflictions done towards the refining thee? Art thou not yet what thou wast? O England wilt thou not be made clean! When shall it once be? Murmur not against the Rods, wherewith the Lord seeth good to chastise thee; but mourn over thy Wickedness, thy Pride, thy Deceit, thy Excess, thy Cruelty, thy Oppression, thy false Worship and Idolatries, &c. and over thy enmity against that which is of God, where-ever it appears.

At the beginning of these troubles, thou couldst bear with no form of Worship, but thine own. Now thou art come thus far, that thou canst almost bear with any Form. Nay but that will not serve; The Lord will have room for the power of Godliness, and he will not always suffer thee to smite his Servants for their obedience to his Spirit. This is his controversie with thee, and the cause of all thy misery (when misery, distress and ruine have opened thine eyes, thou wilt see it.) Oh that thy day of calamity might pass over thee! If thou couldst indeed humble thy self before the Lord, and not walk any longer thus contrary to him, in the Work which he is resolved to bring about the Lord might pity and spare thee, for he delighteth in mercy: but if thou continuest to walk contrary to him, and wilt be settled afore his time, and in a way, and by such means as he approves not, the steps of his power against thee will overturn thee. Therefore fear, and be humble and meek before him, for therein lies the Wisdom which can prepreſerve thee; but ſtrive not to withſtand his Foot-ſteps, leſt he trample down thy Crown, thy Strength, thy hopes, thy peace, and all that is deſireable in thine eyes.

This is in tender Love, as a gentle Warning to you, that you may take heed of giving way to that fierce Spirit, which is the Fore-runner of miſery and deſolation.

From him who is a dear lover of this City, and of his native Country,

ISAAC PENINGTON the Younger.

Some Conſiderations propoſed to this diſtracted Nation of ENGLAND, concerning the preſent Deſign and Work of God therein, upon their ſubmitting whereto doth their Settlement alone depend, and not upon any Form of Government, or change of Governours, as that Spirit which ſeeketh their ruine, tempteth them to believe.

1. THAT God in great mercy, brake the bonds of the Romiſh yoak, which lay hard upon the neck of this Nation, and was very weighty upon thoſe conſciences, wherein the true reforming light did ariſe in any meaſure; and who were in any meaſure true to that light, which the Lord cauſed to break in upon them.

2. That the reformation out of Popery, was not preſently perfected (nay was never yet perfected) but was very weak and low, many things therein ſavouring very much of Popery, (the Nation being hardly able to bear at that time what was done,) ſo that there were many things, ſtill continuing which could not but be burthenſome to the upright-hearted, and to the tender conſciences, as the light which began their reformation did grow and increaſe in them.

3. That the Lord God (who in ſuch great mercy had delivered this Nation from the yoak of Popery) could not but expect that the reformation ſhould grow and increaſe, until it were perfected; even until nothing were left which aroſe from that Spirit from whence Popery ſprang, and which might (in its proper tendency) be ſerviceable to that Spirit, but that all his people in this Nation, might have free liberty at leaſt (if not encouragement) to return to the pure Worſhip of him in Spirit and Truth, even as in the days of the Apoſtles, before the Apoſtacy from the Spirit, and from the Truth.

4. That the reformation out of Popery was not purſued as the Lord expected it ſhould, but a dark way of Worſhip eſtabliſhed in the Land, and a dark Church-government (both very like that of Rome) whereby thoſe that were truly conſcientious, and in whom the reformed light did further and further ariſe, were reproached, nick-named, hated, perſecuted, &c. inſomuch as that there was a Bar ſet up againſt the proceeding of the reformation any further, and a formal way of Church-government and Worſhip erected, which was pleaſing to the looſe and carnal Spirit, but ſharp, cruel, and burthenſome to the ſtricter ſort, and to ſuch as were tender hearted toward God.

5. That under this Church-government, and way of Worſhip, there was a going backwards towards Popery again, inſtead of going further from it. Things grew every day worſe and worſe, Ceremonies daily abounding, and were more and more ſtrictly injoyned, wearing of Surplices, bowing at the name of Jeſus, railing of the Communion-tables, and making ſteps up to it, calling them high Alters, (bowing thrice at their approach to them) having Corporaſſes over their Bread, ſaying ſecond Service, &c. And the chief end of their viſitations, was to eſtabliſh ſuch things as theſe, and to ſuppreſs Lecturers and conſcientious Preachers, (among whom ſome freſh life did ſpring up, for the relief of the needy and deſolate) and to curtal Preaching (and Praying before and after Sermons) yea and catechizing too, which by authority was appointed in the place of the Afternoon-Sermons, when they found it exceed the limits they intended. And this proceeded so far, that there was very little difference between us and the Papists, save only the name; the Worship in both becoming dead, and formal, and pleasing to the fleshly part, but empty of that which should feed and refresh the Spirit. Only the Lord hath reserved to himself a remnant, who could not bow to these things, but groaned under them, and witnessed against them, mourning bitterly to the Lord under the load and wait of them:

6. That when the wrath of the Lord arose against this form of Church-government, and Worship (as indeed it was high time for the Lord to appear, for the Power and life of Religion was even expiring) and he brake down all that stood up in the defence of it, and gave much liberty to the oppressed Spirits and Consciences of his people, yet this was not pleasing to the Nation, but feign would they have had either the same form up again, or at least some other such like in the stead of it; whereby the loose Spirit of the Nation might be settled in some way of formal Worship, and the growing reforming light snibbed in the Spirits of the tender-hearted toward God.

Look back with a single and honest eye, Hath it not been thus? Hath there not been a sharp contention between God and this Nation, concerning this thing? The Lord hath risen to remove the yoak from off the oppressed, that he might cause the Powers of this Nation, to let the oppressed conscience go free, but the Nation would have them bound. It is still crying to the Powers and Authorities in being, to lay the yoak on again; When one power is broken down (because it is not faithful in the Lords hand, but starts aside from the Lords Work, for which it was chosen, to another of its own choosing) it seeks to have another harder Power set up, (I mean harder to the tender conscience) yet God overturns that also, and what can stand before him, who is risen to shake terribly the earth, and to make the Oaks, and Cedars thereof to fall, totter, and fall? O England! Will nothing serve thy turn, but the enslaving of God's Heritage? That tenderness of Conscience, which God hath begotten in his people to his own, is that which he will inherit. It is that which he brought out of the Egyptian darkness of Popery, and which he is now redeeming, and delivering out of the Reliques thereof: and if these three Nations should for the generality, joyn together as one man, yea, and though other Nations should joyn with them, yet will they fall short of Power and Wisdom to prevent the Lord of bringing to pass his intended Work.

Was it the generality of the Nations God redeemed out of Popery? or was it a poor persecuted remnant for whose sakes he did it, and whom he chiefly had respect unto? And is not the Lord able to carry on this work further and further? Did he suffer them always to be stopped in their progress, and held in bondage by the powers set up? Nay, did he not at length break it down at their cries, for their sakes? And do ye think he will now suffer the line of Presbytery to be stretched over them, to keep them down from rising up any further in obedience to the pure Law of life in their Spirits? O England, in the zeal of the Lord of Hosts, I could bid defiance to all thy Counsels and Strength, though I should see thee encompass round his poor suffering Seed (who are very Weak and Foolish as to that kind of strength and wisdom,) because mine eye seeth the Almighty one (before whom in thy greatest strength, and height of confidence, thou art as nothing) engaged against thee: but I rather chuse to mourn over thee, and to wait for the opening of thine eyes, by the anointing of the true Eye-salve, which alone can unbewitch the Nations? Yea, in bowels of tender love and pity to thee, I do beseech thee, O England consider thy self, do not undo thy happiness and prosperity, fight not against the holy one, the mighty one of despised distressed Israel: be not tempted to follow Israel into the Wilderness, (where they now are, and whither the hand of the Lord hath led them) to bring them back again into bondage, because thou seest them entangled in the straits, and nothing appears able to deliver out of thy hand. Remember what befel Pharoah and all his Hoast. This Israel whom thou hunteſt, is dearer to the Lord then ever that Israel was: for that was but a shaddow of the true Seed, but the true life it self is begotten and brought forth in many of these, and the power and presence of the Lord is mightily with them and amongst them, though thou in the unbelief canst not see it. There is now an hour of temptation upon thee, there appears a fair opportunity to thee to be revenged on them, and bring them under: take heed what thou

doſt, leſt he who hath the power over all, bring thee under, and ſet them on the top; ſeek righteouſneſs, ſeek the good of all, ſeek true reformation, and the Lord will bleſs thee; but if thou think to obtain the ſetting up of old forms, and ways of Worſhip and Government, or any new ones like to the old, under which the righteous cannot but groan (though the wicked, and looſe Spirit way rejoyce) thou wilt be deceived, and thy miſtake may prove very dangerous and bitter to thee. Our earneſt deſires to the Lord for thee are, that thou maiſt be ſpared as much as is poſſible (and that the ſufferings of Gods people from the very firſt rent from Popery till this day, may not be laid to thy charge) but iniquity is ſo twiſted into thy Bowels, that with much tearing, which will cauſe great pain to thee, it can hardly be ſeperated from thee. Thou art too wiſe and wilful, this is the cauſe of thy ſorrow. If thou couldſt fear before the Lord, and patiently wait for the revealing of his Will. and of his guiding thee by his Wiſdom, and not be ſo enraged againſt inſtruments, but ſee through them to his hand (who hath afflicted thee,) and humble thy ſelf before that, how ſweetly and eaſily might his Work go on in thee! But alaſs, haſt thou not ſet thy ſelf againſt it from the very firſt? And now thou art much pleaſed with a ſeeming probability of turning it backward. Ah poor Land, what will this ſtiff Spirit (which hath all along theſe times of trouble, repined at, and oppoſed the work of the Lord) bring thee to?

The time of reformation is come, the work of reformation is begun by that power, which is able to carry it on, and that which now ſtandeth in the way thereof (how high and mighty ſoever) will be overturned. And although (as to what men have done) the cauſe and work of reformation may juſtly become a reproach, yet the Foundation of reformation which God hath laid, is glorious: and in theſe troubleſome times is he rearing up the building of his new Jeruſalem, which when he hath finiſhed and brought forth, will dazle the eyes of the whole Earth. O England be not high-minded, run not out into parties, and breaches in the heady Will, but fear before him whoſe power is over thee, (who comprehends all thy counſels, ſtrength, deſigns, and hopes, as with a ſpan; and when they are at the height, can moulder them to nothing, with the touch of his Finger) for his Will muſt ſtand, not thine.

Written the 19th. of the 11th. Month. 1659.

This is from him, whom in the day of thy diſtreſs, and bitter calamity (which thy preſent courſes lead apace unto) thou wilt confeſs to have been thy true Friend.

To the ARMY.

Friends,

DO ye not ſee how often ye have been betrayed? The Lord hath done great things for you, and by you, and put great opportunities into your hands; but ſtill they have been loſt, his Work fallen to the ground, and his name become a reproach over all the earth, through your means. O be abaſed before the Lord, and lie very low, and conſider how juſtly he may lay you aſide from being his inſtruments, in that great and glorious work he hath to bring to paſs. If ye deſire to ſtand, look up to the Lord, to keep your Spirits very low, and poor, and meek, and ready to hear. O wait to know what hath betrayed you hitherto! for aſſuredly that lies in wait to betray you again: and if the Lord mightily preſerve you not from it, will make you forget him, and cauſe you to mind and ſeek your ſelves afreſh, ſo ſoon as ever your fears are over. Therefore in the day of your proſperity the Lord watch over you, and keep you cloſe to the ſtirrings and honeſt movings for publick good, that have ſprung up in your hearts in the days of your adverſity: and take heed, leſt the ſubtilty in the wiſe fleſhly-reaſoning part deceive you. But fear the Lord in your reaſonings, and beg earneſtly of him to keep the ſimplicity alive in you, that the fleſhly Wiſdom get not maſtery over it.

For

For the evil Counſellour is near you, even in your own Boſoms, and he lies lurking in plauſible and fair-ſeeming reaſonings. Therefore keep cloſe to the ſimplicity, and let your reaſonings be Servants to it, and not Maſters over it. Ah remember how often ye have ſtarted aſide like a warping Bow: become now at length upright to the Lord, carrying faithfully to the Mark thoſe his Arrows, which he is ſhooting at the Regions of Babylon.

This is from one who waits for what the Lord will effect, and hopes at length to ſee an Inſtrument in his hand, wherein his Soul will delight.

A QUESTION

Propounded to the Rulers, Teachers, and People of the Nation of ENGLAND, for them ſingly to anſwer in their hearts and conſciences, in the fear and dread of the Mighty God of Heaven and Earth, whoſe mighty Arm of power is ſtretched out in this Nation, firſt to overturn what ſtands in his way, and then to eſtabliſh (in the place thereof) what he hath purpoſed in his heart. And this is the thing which the Lord hath determined to do, both particularly in perſons, and generally throughout the Earth; namely, to put down the Mighty from their Seats, and to exalt the Humble and Meek (who are made ſuch by the preſence and power of his life in them) that he alone may be exalted in the Spirits of his People, and throughout the Earth. And this Work hath the Lord begun already; for his great and notable day hath appeared, and breaketh forth apace, though the eye which is cloſed cannot ſee it, nor the benummed ſenſe feel it. But he that hath an ear, let him hear the ſound of the Lords Trumpet, which ſaith in the mighty breath of his Spirit of life, Awake ye dead, and ſtand up to judgment; for the day of Recompence is come, the day of the eternal vengeance of our God, and the day of his everlaſting mercy and plentiful Redemption. The Queſtion is as followeth.

QUESTION.

WHEN this Nation was rent from Popery (in part I mean, for wholly it was never rent, but did ſtill retain the ſame Spirit, though by the Magiſtrates Sword it was forced from that Form and way of worſhip, which the Pope had eſtabliſhed) did it wait on the Lord for the guidance of his Spirit and Power, thereby to build up a true Church and Habitation for God in the Spirit? Or did it take ſuch materials as were ready at hand, and frame up a Building as well as it could, wherewith the conſciences of many (that were tender-hearted towards God) were even then diſſatisfied, and felt in the eternal life of God, the reformation not to be right in its beginning?

This is a weighty Queſtion: for an error at firſt, an error in the Foundation is great and the cauſe of many following errors. If the Spirit of God was not then conſulted with, and waited upon, if he did not raiſe the Fabrick, ſurely the Building was not right. It was the Spirit of God which rent men from Popery (ſo far as they were acted upon pure and honeſt Principles) ſhewing the blackneſs and darkneſs thereof, and kindling deſires in men after a more inward and ſpiritual way of Worſhip; Thus far was of him. But if men did then conſult with their own wiſdom, for the ordering and carrying ing one of the Reformation, and ſo upon politick grounds and reaſons, did raiſe up a building, and not wait on the Lord for his light and power to build with; then ſurely that building was not of God, nor could he be honoured thereby, nor his truth preſerved, nor the integrity and conſcientiouſneſs of his peoples hearts towards him cheriſhed: but all this would ſuffer and be in danger by this building, and a contrary ſpirit be pleaſed with it, and thrive under it. And hath it not been ſo? were not the Nonconformiſts to it (though known to be precious Perſons in the favour and life of God,) looked upon and dealt with as enemies, while ſuch Conformiſts as were known to be looſe and ſcandalous, yet could flouriſh well enough, and make a fair ſhew in this National Church, and be zealous contenders for the way of Worſhip and Government in it? Yea, thoſe that have been ſtrict in their lives and converſations, and truly zealous towards God, in their Souls and Spirits, preſſing after righteouſneſs and purity; ſuch as theſe thought they might conform, yet were they not hated, nick-named, in ſcorn called Puritans and Snares laid for them to intrap them? And how could it be otherwiſe? For if the building was not right, if the Conſtitution and Government of this Church was not of God, then it could not favour and cheriſh that which was of God, then it could not nouriſh or be pleaſed with obedience to his pure Life and Spirit, but rather with obedience to its carnal form. For ſo it is in truth and reality before God, This Church with its whole Conſtitution, Government, Order, and way of Worſhip was either of Gods Spirit, and ſo ſpiritual, or of Mans Wiſdom, and ſo carnal. If of Gods Spirit, then it will be a friend to that which is ſpiritual, and an enemy to that which is carnal, if of mans wiſdom, then it will be a friend to that which is carnal, and an enemy to that which is ſpiritual. And this is a true mark of the true Church, and of the true Church Power and Government, it begets and preſerves that which is ſpiritual, it beats down the carnal; whereas the Church Power and Government which is carnal, preſerves that which is carnal (a carnal unity, a carnal uniformity in worſhip, &c.) but checks, ſnubs, ſmites, and perſecutes that which is ſpiritual: and ſuch a kind of Power and Government to be ſet up, the carnal part in every man contends and cries out for. And ſo long as there is any change made in this Church by the ſame wiſdom, it will never be otherwiſe, it will be from carnal to carnal, and ſo ſtill againſt that which is ſpiritual. Therefore look back ſingly, and conſider what the building was, and how it was reared up; and ſee whether it was of God or no? Or whether it was built up in the forwardneſs of Mans Spirit, by carnal reaſonings and conſultings, accommodating things to the preſent ſtate of the Nation, and not to the plain and clear meaſure of Gods Truth.

Firſt, See what the materials were whereof this Church was built. Were they materials fit to make up a true Church of? Was it built up of a People truly converted to God? Of perſons changed in heart? Of perſons ſenſible of the foregoing Idolatry, and turned in their Souls, Minds and Spirits from dead Idols towards the living God? Or was not rather the heart of the Nation ſtill inclined towards Popery, even while it was turning into a Proteſtant Church? And was it not chiefly made a Proteſtant Church by the force of the civil power, which wound in by degrees a Proteſtant Intereſt, the heart of the people ſtill remaining unchanged, and hankering after Popery, but at length, in tract of time, ſeeing they knew not how to help it, won over to Proteſtantiſm with the ſame heart and Spirit, that they came out of Popery with? Conſider ſeriouſly in the ſight of God (who looketh both forward and backward upon things with a true eye,) whether it hath been thus or no?

Secondly, See what kind of Miniſtry was then ſet up. Was it a new Miniſtry (as John Huſs that famous Bohemian Martyr Propheſied ſhould ariſe, and as Luther ſaw the neceſſity of, utterly diſclaiming the deriving of Orders from Popiſh Biſhops,) or was it the ſame Miniſtry which was derived from Rome? It is a ſore ſtreſs the Miniſters of England have been put to, namely, to plead for the truth of the Miniſtry of the Church of Rome, that thereby they might defend their own. Now mark this thing following, There aroſe falſe Apoſtles, falſe Prophets, falſe Teachers in the Apoſtles days, whom Satan clothed like true Apoſtles, like true Prophets, like Miniſters of Righteouſneſs. Thus they appeared, thus they ſeemed to be, but they were not of God, but Satan; not ſent of God, not inſpired by God, but inſpired and ſent by Satan. Theſe falſe Apoſtles, theſe falſe Prophets fought againſt the true Church, and true Miniſtry of Chriſt. And though they were oftentimes diſcovered, by the Spirit of Chriſt in his Church, and the Church preſerved from them, yet we find related in Scriptures, that at length they did prevail, inſomuch as the third part of the true Miniſters were ſhaken, and ſwept down from their place and ſtanding by them, Rev. 12. 4. yea, and at length the Church her ſelf (as to the truth of her outward ſtate) overcome, and fled into the Wilderneſs, verſ. 6 and 14. and a falſe Church got up in her ſtead, which hath a Cup of Fornication to make people ſpiritually drunk, and to bewitch them from the true Worſhip of God, into imitations and likeneſſes, Rev. 17. 4. and thoſe who will not acknowledge her likeneſſes and imitations to be the Truth, but in the word of the Lambs Teſtimony witneſs againſt them, ſhe drinks their Bloud, ver. 6. Now can any man of any manner of ſeriouſneſs and ſobriety of Spirit, (who is not drunk and overcome with this Whores Wine) believe, that after falſe Prophets had got the day, and ſet up the falſe Church, that they would ſet up the true Miniſtry in it? O how blind have men been, that they ſhould go about, and take ſuch pains to derive a ſucceſſion of the true Miniſtry, from the Miniſters or Prophets of the falſe Church!

Thirdly, What kind of maintenance was ſet up for this Miniſtry? Was it a Goſpel maintenance? Was it that they ſhould live of the Goſpel, which cannot but open Mens Spirits to the true Miniſters thereof? Or was it a maintenance forced from the people, by that outward power which ſet up the Church? And was this maintenance like unto, or the ſame with the maintenance which the Popiſh Miniſtry had before in this Nation, for their Idolatrous ſervice.

Fourthly, What kind of Worſhip was it, which was ſet up? Was it the Worſhip of the Goſpel, which is in Spirit and Truth? Or was it a form of Worſhip invented by man, and ſo accommodated to the preſent temper of the Nation, that they might with the more eaſe and willingneſs ſtep out of Popery into it, becauſe of its nearneſs and likeneſs thereto?

Fifthly, What kind of Church Government was ſet up? Was it a pure Spiritual Government? Was it put into the hands of the Spirit? (For nothing is to govern, or can rightly govern over the Spirits of Chriſts People in ſpiritual things, but the ſpirit of Chriſt.) Or did men frame up a Church Government by their wiſdom, and put it into the hands of ſuch, as might exerciſe it without, yea and againſt the Spirit?

Sixthly, What kind of Order was ſet up in this Church? Was it the true Goſpel order? Was it the order of Chriſts Spirit, whereby the carnal wiſdom of man might be quenched, and his ſpirit have ſcope? Or was it a carnal Order, whereby the carnal wiſdom, learning, knowledge, and arts of man might have ſcope, and the ſpirit in its motions be quenched?

Seventhly, By what wiſdom was the Common Prayer Book compiled and ſet up, and Surplices, Croſſes, and other Ceremonies injoyned? Was it by the Wiſdom of Gods Spirit, for the building up of the Spirits of his People in the Faith? Or was it for the pleaſing ſatisfying of the carnal part in people? And what ſort of perſons were they who did moſt contend for, and were moſt pleaſed with theſe? Were they, for the generality, the ſtricter, or the looſer ſort?

Eightly, How came it about, that the Supreme Magiſtrate of this Nation, was made Chief head and Governour of this Church under Chriſt? Was this from Chriſts Inſtitution, or of mans Wiſdom and Invention? If of mans inventing wiſdom, then againſt Chriſt, then of Antichriſts Spirit, who exalteth that which is not of Chriſt, to ſit and Govern in his Temple.

O weigh theſe things, look about thee, O England: O Rulers, Teachers, and People look about you? And if it plainly (upon a naked ſearch) appear, that there was at the very firſt a foundation laid of ſuppreſſing the true worſhip, and the witneſſes to it, do not ſhut your eyes. Have not the people of God ſtill been miſ-repreſented, had reproachful names caſt upon them, and in ſome degree or other been perſecuted from the beginning of the Reformation? And though names change, and Rulers change, and the Teachers change, and the People alſo change in their Religion and VVorſhips, yet is not the Perſecuting Spirit ſtill the ſame, and the perſecuted Spirit ſtill the ſame alſo. The perſecuting Spirit changeth its cover often, but ſtill retains its nature, hunting after the life and pure power of the Spirit, in the Children which are begotten of God. Are not the People of God in every change a deſpiſed People, and their integrity towards God ſtill ſtruck at? VVhen the Lord began a little to wipe off the reproach from them, at the beginning of theſe troubles, and the perſecuting Spirit could not ſo conveniently hunt them any longer under the name of Puritans, then other names were invented for them, whereby the ſame Spirit ſought to make them appear odious again, under a new reproachful Title, that ſo ſo it might be perſecuing the ſame thing afreſh? O how mightily hath the Lord ſtriven to keep the powers and people of this Nation from falling upon his people! and yet ſtill ſo ſoon as they come to any peace, and feeling of power, they are at it again. O England, thy perſiſting in this, cannot but bring wrath upon thee. What wouldſt thou have of us? Shall we not fear the Lord? Shall we not obey the Lord? Shall we not worſhip the Lord our God, who hath redeemed, and is redeeming our Souls from death? Shall we not be Proteſtants in Truth and uprightneſs of heart before the Lord? Shall we not teſtify againſt the Popiſh Spirit, and Popiſh Practices, and all new inventions of the ſame Spirit (though they get never ſo fine a covering) in the Church of England, as well as againſt them in the Church of Rome? The Lord is our Witneſs, we would not offend thee, O England, no not the meaneſt perſons of the whole Nation: but from out of Popery we are called (and from what ever elſe the ſame Nature and Spirit may take up in the ſtead of it,) to follow the Lord our God towards the Land of the living; and follow him we muſt, however thou deal with us. O England, If it had been ſo, that thy Rulers had built up a true Church, yet the evil Spirit, the unclean Spirit would have endeavoured to pollute it, to provoke the Lord to remove his Candleſtick (which is an inward act of his Spirit, the outward building might ſtand notwithſtanding,) and then thy houſe muſt have been left deſolate, and the ſame Spirit would then have called his people out of it: but if thy building hath not been Spiritual, and in the Spirit, how can the Spirit of the Lord ſuffer the Children begotten by him to lodge in it! O when wilt thou have an ear to hear, that the Lord's Wrath may aſſwage towards thee, which kindleth more and more, and is entring apace within thy Bowels! This, this is the Lord's charge againſt thee. Thou art for the Proteſtant name (it is now become thy intereſt, and a goodly covering in thy eyes,) but againſt the Proteſtant Spirit, which the Lord calleth to follow him further and further from all the things of Popery, and from all the things like Popery. And the Lord will put a difference between the Proteſtant Name and the Proteſtant Spirit: between them that ſerve him in the fear which he begets in the heart, and them that ſet up that kind of fear which is taught by the precepts of men. O England, we are now ſeemingly in thy hands (who haſt long handled us very roughly) and we have no ſtrength againſt thee, nor no hope of deliverance from thee, but in the Lord our God, and there we are at reſt, waiting upon him, in the Innocency and integrity which he hath begotten in our hearts, until he plead our cauſe. And in that day, thou wilt ſee that we have not been thine enemies, and then thou wilt mourn over that miſt of darkneſs, which hath with-held thine eye from diſcerning what true friends we have been to thee, and how we have endeavoured, and ſought with our hearts to prevent thy drinking of that bitter Cup, which is to go round the Nations. And if thine ear could have been opened, thou mighteſt have been ſpared.

POSTCRIPT.

THe Goſpel is free, the Grace and Mercy thereof free, the Spirit a free Spirit (freely given of God, and freely miniſtring for God) the Church a Spiritual building, built in the Freedom and Liberty of the Life of the Spirit, the order and government of the Church is from and in the ſame free Spirit, guiding a people whom God makes willing in the day of his power, the maintenance of the Miniſtry a free maintenance, the whole obedience and worſhip free, in the free Spirit, and in the truth which is begotten in the heart by the free Spirit. The head of this Church is Chriſt, the living Spirit, who hath appointed none to be Head under him here on Earth, nor hath given power to any to make any Laws concerning his Kingdom, or the Government thereof, concerning his Miniſtry, or the maintenence thereof. (Is it not thus? Doth not the leaſt Child of light ſee it to be thus?) But the Church of England was a Church built up by force, ſettled by force, her Miniſters maintained by force, her Order, Unity, Uniformity and Government forcible, and the free pure Spirit of life can have no ſcope in her, but according to the Wills of her Rulers, Teachers, and People: If it move otherwiſe, if it appear otherwiſe, it is ſure to be Nick-named and perſecuted. O England, England, can God always ſuffer theſe things? Will not his hand at length be ſtretched forth againſt thee?

The day of the Lord so cometh, as a Thief in the night. For when they shall say, Peace and Safety, then sudden destruction cometh upon them, as travail upon a Woman with child, and they shall not escape, 1 Thes. 5. 2, 3. And when the Lord cometh, Wo to him who is found beating his fellow Servant, and endeavouring to force the Conscience, (which God hath made tender and pliable to the voice of his Spirit) from its obedience and subjection thereto.

Propositions to the PAPISTS,

Concerning Fallibility and Infallibility, which cut down the uncertain, and manifest the certain way of receiving and growing up into the Truth.

Also, some Considerations concerning the True and False Church and Ministry, with the state of each since the days of the Apostles.

Held forth in true love and pity to the Souls of the Papists, that they may hear and consider, and not mistake and stumble at the Rock of Ages, whereupon the Prophets, Apostles, and whole Flock of God throughout all Generations have been built.

There is likewise somewhat added concerning the Ground of Error, and the way to Truth and Unity, for the sake of such as are more spiritual, and have been more inwardly exercised in searching after Truth.

In vain do they Worship me, teaching for Doctrines the Commandments of men, Mat. 15. 9.

The PREFACE.

THE Mistery of Iniquity (which overspread the Earth under a shape and appearance of Holy Church, and Holy Worship) did begin to work in the Apostles days, 2 Thes. 2. 7. And this was the way whereby the God of this World did deceive, he endeavoured to blind mens minds, to put out their right eye, (2 Cor. 4. 4.) to draw from the Spirit, from the Anointing, (1 Joh.

2. 26.) to rob of the Eye-Salve wherewith the Eye must be annointed to see the things of God, Rev. 3. 18. And now when he hath done this, how easily may his false War pass for true, his Synagogue (built in the likeness of the true Church, Rev. 3. 9.) for the true Church; Antichrist his Son (sitting in the Temple like Christ, 2 Thes. 2. 4.) for the true Christ; his Doctrines for the true Teaching, (Mat. 15. 9.) his feigned, formals dead, earthly Traditions, for the true Everlasting Gospel; (Rev. 14. 6.) his Gentiles, or Heathens, (who are so in nature, and Christians only in Name) for the true Christians, Rev. 11. 2.

The Light of the Body is the eye (saith Christ by way of Parable, Mat. 6. 22, 23.) Now if the Eye be dark, if the Light which is in thee, be darkness, how great is that darkness? How shalt thou see the Gospel, the Church, the Spirit, the things of God? But if that Eye be clear, who shall be able to blind thee? The Devil may come with his Deceits, his false Church, his false Gospel, his false Power, &c. Tea though his Spirit creep into the very true form of Godliness, thou wilt be able to discern him there. But if thou see with anothers Eye, thou mayst easily see amiss, mistake Christ, mistake the Church, and so believe as the false Church believes, and fare as the false Church fares.

Oh who shall redeem the deceived Nations back to the Spirit! Who shall preach to all Nations, Kindreds, Tongues and People, the everlasting Gospel? Who shall open the eye in them which hath been so long blinded! Who shall take the Golden Cup of Fornication from their Lips, and loosen their hearts from the Sorceries, Flatteries, and Enchantments of the false Woman!

The everlasting Bowels of the Lord rowl toward his poor Captivated Seed, and towards the poor deceived Nations, and he is now preparing to build the Ruins of many Generations, he is bringing forth that power of Truth, that Demonstration of his Spirit in the spirits of his People, as no paint shall be able to stand before. He will rend the Vail of the Covering from off all Nations, and the desire of all Nations shall be seen by the eye which he opens and annoints; and that which hath deceived, and destroyed, and led from the Truth, building up a Mystery of Unrighteousness in the stead of it, even the Beast and false Prophet (which wrought Miracles, with which he deceived them that had the mark of the Beast, and them that worshipped his Image) shall be taken and cast alive into the Lake, Rev. 19. 20. Then Captivity shall be led Captive, and those which have been led Captive, shall creep out of their Dens, and out of their holes, into the Light of the Living, and worship the true and everlasting King, when this King Abaddon is destroyed, Rev. 15. 2. 3, 4.

O who shall be accounted worthy to be taught by the Lord where to wait for this! To whom will the Lord discover the place of wisdom (the place where Wisdom is learned, her voice heard, and her instructions to life received) which is hid from the eyes of all living! Job 28. 21. Whom shall he teach knowledge? And whom shall he make to understand Doctrine? They are them that are weaned from the Milk, and drawn from the Breasts of the false Woman, Isa. 28. 9. and Chap. 52. 15. They that are turned from man, from the fleshly wisdom in themselves, towards the spring of Life, they may hear the Voice of this Wisdom which begins in the living Fear and Power, which effectually turns the heart from Death and Darkness, towards the living God, to worship him in spirit and truth, according to the pure living Teachings thereof, and not after the Inventions, Imaginations and Traditions of men: And he that is once come hither, as he is true and faithful to the Light of Life, doing the will as it is made manifest to him, shall know more and more of the Doctrine, (Joh. 7. 17.) and have his feet infallibly guided into, and preserved in the way of Peace.

THE ROOT of POPERY struck at;

And the true Ancient Apostolick Foundation discovered, in some PROPOSITIONS to the PAPISTS concerning Falibility and Infalibility, &c.

Proposition 1. THat Counsels may err (if I should add, And have erred, it might not be impossible to prove.)

First, In that they are men not perfected in the Knowledge, Faith, and Obedience of the truth, it necessarily imploys a capacity of error, both in relation to the Knowledge, to the Faith, and to the Obedience.

2*dly*. Their doubtful disputation of things, and long canvasing, imploys an uncertainty and possibility of erring:

3*dly*. Their way of determining things at last, which is by a Vote of the Major part, is an uncertain way of determination; for it is not impossible but the Major part may be overswayed by by-ends, and relation to their own advantage and interest, against the Righteousness and Equity of the reason of the lesser part; so that the way of determining things by a Council, is not a certain way in it self, but because men know not well how to find out a better and more probable way of deciding Controversies they judge it necessary to acquiesce therein. But the Votes and Determinations of men concerning a thing, do not conclude a thing to be true or false in its self; they only signifie their Opinion, Judgment, and Testimony concerning the thing, the validity whereof depends upon their knowledge of the thing, which if it be not clear, full and certain, their Testimony, Opinion, or Judgment, is of little value; Truth remains the same in it self, though all the Wise men in the World should testifie against it, calling it Error or Heresie; and Falshood can never become Truth, though never so many Wise men should testifie for it, putting the fairest habit and appearance of Truth upon it that they can:

Prop. 2. That the Pope himself may err.

The Pope hath not greater Freedom from falibility in Judgment or Doctrine, than Peter himself had. Now Peter had not only a capacity of error in him but he did err in that Doctrine which he taught the Gentiles, of living after the manner of the Jews; for he did not only do the thing himself, Gal, 2. 12. but he compelled the Gentiles to do the same thing, holding it forth as a practice which ought to be observed by the Gentiles, ver. 14. for which carriage of his, Paul withstood him to the Face, and said, he was to be blamed, v. 11. And the Council of Constance deposing Pope John and advancing the Authority of Councils above the Pope did plainly imply that the Pope might err; which might further be confirmed by what the Council of Basil determined concerning Pope Eugenius.

Prop. 3. That every man may err in his interpretation of Scriptures, further then he hath a certain and infallible opening of them to his Spirit, by that Spirit which gave them forth. The Spirit knoweth his own mind in every Word which he hath spoken, but no man knoweth his mind, nor the meaning of his Words, but as he reveals them, 1 Cor. 2. 11. So that God is true in all his sayings in the Scriptures; but man is a lyar in all the meanings he gives of his sayings, according to his own guessings, reasonings, and imaginings, without the Spirits infallible opening of his own Words to him. So that the Spirit it self is the ground and foundation of all true light and knowledge of the things of God.

Prop. 4. That if there be any Light to be found any where shining from God, that Light cannot err; For God is pure, and that which comes immediately from him, cannot but be pure. All the knowledge which man gathers, or can gather, into his Vessel, he may may pollute: but what iſſueth from the Spring is pure, and of a perfect nature, James 1. 17.

Prop. 5. That there muſt neceſſarily be ſuch a Light communicated to all men ſince the fall that they may believe thereby, come to the knowledge of the truth, and be ſaved: Which I prove thus.

1. From the Will of God. The Apoſtle ſaith expreſly, that God would have all men to be ſaved, and to come unto the knowledge of the truth, 1. Tim. 2. 4. Why then there muſt neceſſarily be ſomewhat diſpenced from God to all men, ſufficient to bring them to the knowledge of the truth, that they may be ſaved.

2. From what is found in man. There is found in man a light ſhining in his darkneſs (John 1. 5.) a light diſcovering the darkneſs, and drawing from it, ſomewhat which checks and reproves the ſinner, but never conſented to the evil of his heart and ways; This is of God, this is from God, this is pure, this is ſpiritual, not of the fleſhly not of the natural; for then it might be drawn ſome time or other to conſent to ſome of the corrupt deſires of the Natural: but though the conſcience be never ſo much defiled, yet the light in it ſelf can never be defiled. Indeed a man may ſet up that for Light in his conſcience, which may be darkneſs; but Gods Light, Gods Witneſs there, can never be bribed, but will ſpeak truly (when God at any time awakeneth, or raiſeth it up) witneſſing for him both againſt the evil of the man, and againſt the ſearedneſs, hardneſs, and unfaithfulneſs of his conſcience towards God.

Prop. 6. That this Light being let in, believed in, and obeyed, ſhineth more and more unto the perfect day, even until it hath wholly brought out of the Error, into the Truth. Every way of it is infallible, and every ſtep of the creature after it is infallible. Indeed the Creatures reaſonings and conſultations about it may be fallible; but the Light is infallible in it ſelf: And ſo far as there is a pure, ſimple, naked thing begotten by it, (for it is of a begetting nature, James 1. 17, 18.) ſo far there is an acknowledgment of its certainty in the creature. There are ſome things that all the men of the earth certainly know to be evil by means of its ſhining, and ſome things alſo that they certainly know to be good; and at ſome times there is a Will begotten in them towards the good, and againſt the evil: Now if they did honeſtly wait in the ſingleneſs of this Will, breathing to the God of Power to have it brought to Victory in them, the Light would ſhine more and more from his preſence, and in the Light, the Power, and ſaving Arm would ariſe, which would effectually lead out of the Death and Captivity, into the Fellowſhip and Freedom of the Life.

Prop. 7. That nothing leſs can lead unto eternal life, than an eternal Light in Man's Spirit, Where the darkneſs is, which is to be diſcovered there, ſubdued there, and to be led from. This was the Apoſtle's Meſſage, (who received and came with the Meſſage of the Goſpel) That God is Light, and in him is no darkneſs at all, 1. John 1. 5. And this they Preached to bring men into fellowſhip with this Light, verſe 3. that they might walk with God in it, and there be cleanſed by the bloud of Jeſus through it, verſe 7. which that they might obtain, they muſt firſt be turned from darkneſs to it, Acts 26. 18. and from the Power and Kingdom of Satan, to the Seed of the Kingdom of God, Mat. 83. 31. which Chriſt told the Phariſees was within them, Luke 17. 21. And the Apoſtle Paul told the Hebrews, that the Laws of the Covenant, whereof Chriſt was the Miniſter and Mediator, were by the tenor of the New-covenant, to be written in the Heart and Mind by the Spirit, and not to be written outwardly, as that Covenant was which God made with the Jews by Moſes, (Heb. 8. 6. &c) which was not the eternal Covenant it ſelf, but a ſhadow of it, which made nothing perfect, but only made way for the hope of a better Covenant, by which believers draw nigh to God, Heb. 7. 19. Yea Moſes himſelf tells the Jews, that the Commandment of life, the word Eternal (according to Faith wherein, and obedience whereto, they were to Live or Die eternally) was within them, Deut. 30. 14, 15. And Paul tells the Church at Rome that this was the Word of Faith which they Preached, that it was alſo the Covenant of Life and Death under the Goſpel, Rom. 10. 8. Chriſt is the Light of the World, John 8. 12. or the eternal Word, John 1. 1. which Light or Word ſpeaks within every man's Conſcience; he that believes in it, brings his deeds to it, and obeys it, is juſtified by it; but he that hates its reproof, is condemned by it, John 3. 20, 21. and not only ſhut out of life, but out of the very ways to it; for the reproofs of the inſtruction of this Wisdom, are the sole Way or Path of Life to the Sinner, Prov. 6. 23.

Now behold the true certainty of the everlasting Foundation, and behold your own uncertainty. See the Rock of Ages, whereupon the Prophets, Apostles, and all the Saints have been built. See that which indeed is infallible, and cease from man, who is vain, and subject to vanity and error. The Church of the Jews did err, the Churches of the Gentiles also did err, even in the Apostles days, insomuch as their Candlestick was threatened to be removed, and was soon removed; yea the Apostle particularly foretold the Saints at Rome concerning the Gentiles, that their standing was by Faith, and that if they continued not in Gods goodness, they also should be cut off, as the Jews were, Rom. 11. 20, 22. Now there was not a standing in the Faith, but a general backsliding and falling away from the Faith; and then the Man of sin was revealed, and Christ and his Truth withdrawn, strong delusion, deceit, and false appearances of truth starting up in stead thereof, 2 Thes. 2. 3, 11. For the Lord God upon the great defection and apostacy of the Gentiles, seperates the outward Court from his Temple, Altar, and spiritual Worshippers, which Temple was his true Church, which he reserved for himself, giving the outward Court to the Gentiles, Rev. 11. 1, 2. And then the true Church fled into the Wilderness, where she had a place prepared of God for her; and so the Gentile-Christians could build up their false Churches in the Cities or Palaces where the true Church had been built by God, and appeared before. And these false Churches may easily become much larger then the true Church ever was; for while the Lord built the Church by his Spirit, he built only of spiritual Stones, 1 Pet. 2. 5. adding to it such as he first converted, Acts 2. 47. For such alone are fit to worship him in Spirit and Truth, and such alone he seeks out to make up his Church of, instead of the Jews whom he had cast off from being a Church and People to him, John 4. 23. But when man comes to build, he takes in more largely then God allows, he may gather in or force a whole City or Nation to become a Church, by perswading or compelling them to receive the Doctrine and Traditions which he prescribes, and by setting up the outward Knowledge, Policy, and Government according to man, and in the Wisdom of man, which the humane part will answer to, and be satisfied with. To make this a little more manifest to such as in simplicity of heart desire to know the mind of God (in this respect) and the true state of the Church since the days of the Apostles, consider these things following.

First, God in those days sent his true Apostles and Ministers with the everlasting Gospel, which was the Word of Faith which they Preached, to gather men of Jerusalem, Judea, and all Nations into the obedience of the Faith, (Rom. 1. 5.) that he might have a spiritual House, a spiritual People, to Worship him, instead of these outward Worshippers whom he then cast off, John 4. 23.

2. That this gathered people in Judea, at Jerusalem, at Corinth, at Ephesus, at Colos. at Philippi, at Rome, &c. were his several Churches or Congregations and not the City of Jerusalem, not the City of Corinth, Ephesus, Rome, &c. None of these were Churches, but only a select Remnant gathered out of these.

3. That the Devil after he had stirred up the Jews every where, and the Heathen as much as he could, to cry out against the Truth, and such as God had converted to the Faith, for Heresie and a Sect, and to persecute them and it, yet could not prevail that way; then he tryed another way, sending his Messengers abroad, cloathing them as Angels of Light, teaching them also to preach Christ, and the Doctrine of the Gospel, and so transforming themselves under this colour, secretly to sow the Seeds of Division, Error, and Heresie in the Church.

4. When this would not do, but these were discovered and judged (by the power and presence of the Light of the Spirit in the Church) for false Jews, false Apostles, deceitful Workers, Ministers of Satan, &c. Rev. 3. 9. and chap. 2, 3. Then they seperate themselves from the Church, Jude 19. make up a body of their own, go out into the World, Preach there, gather a Company there, get the greater number, and then set upon the Church, fight with her, overcome her and her Ministry, and then get up their own false Church and Ministry. Thus the Synagogue of Satan and his Ministry, get footing in the World, even in the very same Cities and Places where the Church had newly had Dominion before: And now, whereas before there was a Church at Jerusalem, a Church at Rome, a Church at Ephesus, &c. when the Synagogue of Satan is set up up and hath got the Dominion there, the whole City Jeruſalem, or the whole City Rome, &c. can then become a Church. To make this yet more manifeſt, obſerve and weigh theſe things following, in the Ballance of the true Sanctuary.

Firſt, the falſe Prophets, the falſe Apoſtles, which had crept into the Church, Jude 4. which ſtrived to ſeduce the Church, 1 John 2. 26: theſe went out from the Church, v. 19. and went into the World, 1 John 4. 1.

2*dly*. When they went out into the World, their intent was to leaven the World with their Doctrine, and to gather people after them. They preached to gather people to them and their Doctrine and Form of godlineſs, as the Apoſtles preached to gather people to God, and his living Truth.

3*dly*. The World heard them, they hearkened to their Doctrine, were willing to be gathered by them, owning their falſe Miniſtry, and their falſe Church or Synagogue, even as thoſe that were of God hearkened to the Apoſtles, and owned the Truth, 1 John 4. 6. So that here was now two diſtinct Bodies in Cities and places where the Goſpel had come: A Body of the true Saints and true Apoſtles; a Body of the falſe Apoſtles, and Miniſters, of the deceitful Workers, who ſhewed Miracles and Wonders, and had all manner of deceivableneſs, of unrighteouſneſs on their ſide, 2 Theſ. 2. 9, 10: Thus there was a great diviſion and breach in the places where the Goſpel had been preached, and had reigned in power; for he that was of God, heard the true Apoſtles, and kept to the true Church; but thoſe that were not of God, but of the Worldly Spirit, heard the falſe Apoſtles and falſe Miniſters, and ſo joyned to the Synagogue of Satan, (1 John 4. 6.) where Satan had his ſeat and dwelling, Rev. 2. 13 even as Chriſt dwelleth and ſitteth in his Temple the Church.

4*thly*. Theſe falſe Apoſtles and Miniſters, with the help of the World, which they had gathered in unto them, joyned together againſt the true Church and her Seed, (as where-ever the two contrary Spirits and Principles appear, they cannot but contend and fight againſt each other, the one for the Faith and Truth of the Goſpel, the other againſt that which is true, and for a counterfeit of it) ſo Rev. 12. There is Michael and his Angels, fighting on the ſide of the true Church; there's the Dragon and his Angels fighting for the falſe Church. Now mark who prevails. The true Church, Michael and his Angels prevail one way; the falſe Church, the Synagogue of Satan, the Dragon and his Angels prevail another way.

Queſt. How doth the true Church prevail.

Anſw. Thus: She keeps all the ſpiritual, inviſible, the holy things of God from the paw of the Dragon, and of all thoſe falſe Worſhippers. The inviſible Jew, the inviſible Life and Power, that whereof God had built up his Church, is preſerved by him; and againſt his Life and Spirit, and his Church (which he builds by his Spirit, and preſerves in it) all the powers of darkneſs cannot prevail; but do they all what they can, the Man-child is caught up to God, and the Church by God's help flies from the face of the Dragon into the Wilderneſs, where ſhe is fed 42 months, or 1260 days, which is the time of the Dragon's prevailing outwardly, by his falſe Church and Miniſtry, Revel. 12.

Queſt. How doth the Dragon and falſe Church prevail?

Anſw. By putting the Man-child and true Church to flight, by gaining the Churches round, ſetting up his Synagogue (or falſe repreſentation of the true Church) where the true Church had ſtood before For the true Church being fled into the Wilderneſs, the Field was left to him, and there he ſets up his falſe Synagogue, in the ſight of the World, calling her the true Church, and her Seed the true Catholicks, but caſting a cloud of reproach after the Woman, reviling her, (who indeed was the true Church) as a Strumpet, and all her ſeed for Seducers, Schiſmaticks, Hereticks, &c. Even ſuch as are not fit to be ſuffered in the earth, but to be made War with, both by the ſpiritual and civil Sword, Rev. 12. 15, 17.

Thus then was the victory on each hand: The true Church and Temple (with the hard power of life) was preſerved by God, who cauſed it by the Wings of his Spirit to flie out of the ſight of all falſe Worſhippers and Imitators, as far as that is from the ſight of men in a City, which flieth out of the City into a Wilderneſs: And to the Whore is left the outward Court to Worſhip in, the Profeſſion, the Attire, the Garments, the viſible Obſervations and Practices wherein the Church before had appeared, and in which ſhe did once truly and ſpiritually Worſhip: For the Church did acceptably wor-ſhip in the outward Court, before it was meaſured and divided from the inward Tem-ple, and given to the Gentiles, Rev. 11. 2.

Queſt. Now how long was this falſe Church to ſtand?

Anſw. Till the Church its coming out of the Wilderneſs in the ſame Spirit and Power wherewith ſhe fled into the Wilderneſs. When Chriſt comes with the fiery breath of his mouth, and with the brightneſs of his eternal Light, then this falſe Image of the Church melts and diſſolves away, 2 Theſ. 2. 8. But till then ſhe keeps her ſeat on the Beaſt, on whom ſhe rides, and by vertue of whom ſhe ſits upon the Waters, even upon Peoples, Multitudes, Nations and Tongues, Rev. 17. 15.

Obj. But did not Chriſt ſay the Gates of Hell ſhould not prevail againſt his Church.

Anſw. No more they did not: For ſhe had Wings of an Eagle given her to fly into the Wilderneſs, into the place prepared of God for her; into which ſhe did flie, and was there fed and preſerved, do all the Powers of darkneſs what they could: So that the Dragon and his Angels prevailed not againſt the Woman, but ſhe was hid from the face of the Serpent, and from all his Spite and Power, who could not come within the bounds of her Heaven in the Wilderneſs, but was caſt out into the earth, and his Angels with him, Rev. 12. 8. 9. But Chriſt did not ſay that the Gates of Hell ſhould not prevail againſt her outward Eſtate, but the contrary in this very Propheſie of John is here declared, to wit, that ſhe was ſo far prevailed againſt: The true Woman who was cloathed with the Sun, and had the Moon under her Feet, and was Crowned with a Crown of twelve Stars, was to flie away and give place, and a falſe Woman to ſtart up in her ſtead, who with her Golden Cup of her Fornications, was to deceive and bewitch all Nations, Kindreds, Tongues and Languages 42 months, or 1260 days, which was the full time the Church was to remain in the Wilderneſs: But after that time, the falſe Church with Antichriſt her Husband (who all this while ſate in the Temple) were to be revealed, judged and deſtroyed, and the true Church return again out of the Wilderneſs into her own place.

Queſt. Why would God ſuffer his Church thus to be prevailed againſt, thus to be baniſhed and driven out of the Building which his Spirit had reared for her, into a Wilderneſs, and a Myſtery of Deceit and Falſhood to be ſet up in her name and ſtead?

Anſw. Firſt, As a juſt Judgment upon the World (who ſlighted the day of their Viſitation, and would not come into the Vinyard to work) God brings the Night upon them, wherein they could not enter into the Vinyard, nor work if they would never ſo fain, John 9. 4.

Secondly, As a juſt Judgment upon ſuch, who though they could not but own and acknowledge the Truth, yet did not love it in their hearts, but loved their unrighteouſneſs, their darkneſs ſtill, therefore God removes the power of his Truth from their eyes, into the Wilderneſs, and lets out a power of darkneſs and deceit upon them, wherewith they were deluded inſtead of the Truth it ſelf, 2 Theſ. 2. 10. 11.

Thirdly, That ſuch as were approved, might be made made manifeſt in the Spirit to be pure Gold indeed. They that held the living Truth, and could not be drawn aſide with all the pleaſures of this World on the one hand, nor with all the dangers from it on the other hand, no nor yet with all the deceivableneſs of unrighteouſneſs, theſe did ſhine indeed in the light and power of the Spirit, and were a great Honor and Crown upon the Head of their Maſter.

Fourthly, That darkneſs might have its day, or hour, or ſeaſon of manifeſtation to the full. There hath been no day of any diſpenſation hitherto, but it hath had a Night coming after it. There was an Antichriſt to be revealed in the power of darkneſs, as well as Chriſt (the eternal Light of Life) in the living Power. Now as long as the true Church ſtood, and as long as the Man-child was found dwelling here with her, in the habitation which God had built up for them, the Man of Sin could not be revealed, but the pure Power of Life would ſoon diſcover him. Therefore at length, when the full time and ſeaſon of his diſcovery came, God removed that into the Wilderneſs which ſtood in the way, and then he and his Spouſe, the falſe Church, make a fair ſhew in the World, 2 Theſ. 2. 7.

Fifthly, That the Lord might make the Name of his Son, with the glory of his Truth and Power to ſhine, by overcoming the Dragon and this falſe Church after ſo long a time time of thick darkneſs, and after ſuch an univerſal prevalency of the powers and deceits thereof. Was it not a great glory and honour to the Lord, to overcome the Heatheniſh World, and Jewiſh Church and Worſhip, by the Power of his Truth ſhining through a poor deſpicable company of Fiſhermen and Mechanicks? And will it not be as great (if not a greater) glory to him to overcome the Antichriſtian world (after it hath taken ſo long and ſo deep root, and is become ſo ſtrongly founded) by as poor contemptible Inſtruments as they were?

Queſt. But how was it poſſible that ſo great a deceit ſhould get up in the World ſo near the Apoſtles days, or rather in the very days of the Apoſtles, as this ſeemeth to be?

Anſw. The falſe Apoſtles and Miniſters came with all deceivableneſs of unrighteouſneſs, and with all power, and ſigns, and lying wonders, 2 Theſ. 2. 9, 10. And the power of Miracles in the true Apoſtles might well ceaſe: For the end of Miracles was but to teſtifie to the World, to be a ſign to the unbelievers, 1 Cor. 14.22. But now their work towards the World, was well nigh finiſhed, and Judgment was to come upon them for neglecting and deſpiſing the day of their Viſitation. So that the power of deceit was let up in the falſe Apoſtles, and the power of Truth did draw inwards in the true Apoſtles, which made it very eaſie for deceit to prevail. Beſides, the falſe Apoſtles appeared in an higher appearance then the true Apoſtles did, with more glorious diſcoveries, ſo that they could hold forth all that the Apoſtles did (as to the Form and Outward Doctrine) and more too, and could ſhew wonders to confirm what they held forth further: And now how could they chuſe but prevail over all that kept not cloſe to the Anointing, which diſtinguiſheth and diſcerneth not by any outward manifeſtation or appearance, but by the ſavour of the Oyntment? Yea ſo great was the power of Deceit in them, that they drew the third part of the Stars of Heaven from their place, into this earthly Building, ſo that they fell from the true Miniſtry, and the true Church, unto this falſe Church and Miniſtry, Rev. 12. 4. How many then of the inferior and common ſort were then drawn aſide?

Queſt. Hath there been no viſible true Church-ſtate in the World ſince that time?

Anſw. It is impoſſible for any to build a true Church for God, but his own Spirit: And if God removed the Church which he built, into the Wilderneſs, it is impoſſible for all the men of the Earth to build up another true one, all that ſeaſon that God appoints his Church to abide in the Wilderneſs. Several ſorts of men may attempt it, and each may build up their different Images of the thing, but none can recover the thing it ſelf, till the Lord by his Spirit (who firſt built) and then pulled down) pity the Duſt of Sion, and raiſe up the Tabernacle of David again, Pſal. 102. 13. Iſa. 2. 2. Rev. 21. 2, 3.

Queſt. What is the Wilderneſs, tell us, that the ſimple hearted, who long after the Truth may know where to look for, and how to find the true Church?

Anſw. It is not an outward place, into which the Bodies of perſons might flee, but a Parable to expreſs ſomewhat inward by: And it is under the feet of all the falſe Worſhippers, who are worſhipping in their ſeveral Buildings in the outward Court. That which they trample upon, keep down, and deſpiſe, is the Holy City, Rev. 11. 2. And the place where the true Church all this while hath been, (and yet in a great part is) is there.

Queſt. But if Gods Church hath not been in a built ſtate, but lain deſolate in the Wilderneſs ever ſince Antichriſt and the falſe Church got up, what hath the eſtate of his People been ever ſince?

Anſw. A ſtate of Witneſſes, Rev. 11. 3. In every Age God hath had two Witneſſes (which was a ſufficient number to confirm his truth by) to witneſs to the power of his truth, againſt the emptineſs and corruptions of the forms which Antichriſt had brought in, inſtead of the living power: which Witneſſes were clothed with Sack-cloth, giving forth their Teſtimony with Tears, while they of the Antichriſtian party were rejoicing in the Glory, Riches and Beauty of their falſe Church, as they could ſlay, ſuppreſs and keep down the Witneſſes: Rev. 11. 10. and chap. 18. 7, 9.

Queſt. What did the Dragon do after this Victory, after he had got his Building up in the outward Court, (for after he had prevailed to corrupt it, the Lord gave it to his worſhippers the Gentiles, Rev. 11. 2. thoſe that made a profeſſion of his Truth, but were not true Jews, Rev. 3. 9. not of the inward Circumciſion, Phil. 3. 3.) and had got the Holy City under the feet of his Worſhippers?

Anſw. He purſued his Victory againſt the Woman, and the remnant of her Seed. As for the Woman, he caſt a flood of Infamy, of Reproach after her, that ſhe might never be able to lift up her head again in the power of truth, but what ſhe cauſeth to ſpring up, might ſtill be reviled for falſhood and hereſie, and that nothing might henceforth go for Truth, but what this falſe Woman ſhould determine to be ſo: And as touching the remnant of her ſeed which ſtill remained true to God, keeping his Commandments, and having the Teſtimony of Jeſus, he applies himſelf now to wage the War againſt them. Revel. 12. 15. 17.

Queſt. How doth he wage the War againſt them?

Anſw. He raiſeth up a Beaſt out of this Sea of Confuſion and Wickedneſs, (which enſued upon this great Battel and Victory on his ſide) to whom he gave his Power, his Seat, and great Authority, Rev. 13. 2. He had hitherto kept his Seat in his Synagogue, where he had been ſlaying the Faithful Martyrs of Jeſus, Rev. 2. 13. and had put to death ſuch as loved not their lives unto death, Rev. 12. 11. Now he finds it more for his advantage to raiſe up this Beaſt, and to give his Power, Seat and Authority to him. This was the Roman Power, which till it was thus depraved and enſlaved by Satan, was not a Beaſt, but more noble and juſt in Government than the corrupted Jews were, but now it becomes a Beaſt: And this Beaſt he ſtirs up againſt the very name and form of Godlineſs, that he might root out the very appearance of Iſrael from off the earth: For he got but into the Form, to eat out the Power; and now, ſeeing the Power is removed, it is for his advantage alſo to corrupt and deſtroy the memorial of the true Form.

Queſt. Doth he effect this, and prevail likewiſe againſt the Witneſſes?

Anſw. Yea, as he effected the other. He overcomes the Witneſſes after the manner that he had overcome the Church, (to wit, by captivating the outward man, and killing with the Sword; but they overcome him by Patience and Faith, in their Teſtimony and Sufferings, Rev. 13: 10.) and this in all Kindreds, Tongues and Nations; and ſo all the publick Worſhip of the Earth is given to him, ver. 7. 8.

Queſt. Why would God ſuffer him to do thus, ſeeing he hath all Power in his hands, and could have reſtrained him if he had pleaſed?

Anſw. This was greatly needful to the preſent eſtate of his people: For by this God raiſed up that which was good and pure in any, and kept life in it, which otherwiſe might have periſhed in the eſtate of that corrupt Form, which then had prevailed, and had gotten Dominion outwardly over the true Power.

Queſt. But did not this tend to deſtroy Satan's Kingdom alſo? For this ſtroke going againſt the very Name of Chriſtianity, and Profeſſion of Godlineſs, might light upon his carnal Goſpellers likewiſe.

Anſw. They could eaſily ſave themſelves, turning about to avoid ſufferings, and crying; Who is like unto the Beaſt? Who is able to make War with him? Rev 13. 4. Being already one with him in Spirit and Principle, they would not eaſily differ from him, and ſuffer about a Form, eſpecially ſeeing their Maſters intereſt and ſervice ran now another way.

Queſt. What became of this Beaſt?

Anſw. The Lord did rend and tear him outwardly by his Plagues, Famines, Peſtilences, Wars, &c. inſomuch as one of his Heads was wounded as it were to Death, and inwardly by the innocency and power of his Truth appearing in his Witneſſes, which ſcorched and tormented the Adverſary, ſo that this Engine of the Dragon grew faint, and weary, and unfit for this ſervice, as he ſtood in this capacity.

Queſt. What doth the Dragon do then, to carry on his War againſt the Witneſſes?

Anſw. After this tempeſtuous Sea was over, he raiſeth up another Beaſt out of the Earth, with another kind of Power, even with Horns like a Lamb, Rev. 13. 11. but he ſpake as a Dragon, exerciſing all the power of the firſt Beaſt, ver. 12. ſo that he is the main in power hence-forward; yet he ſetteth up the firſt Beaſt alſo, cauſing the Earth and them that dwell therein, to Worſhip the firſt Beaſt, whoſe deadly Wound was healed. And thus theſe two joyn together, to ſet up an Image to be Worſhipped: And all that will not worſhip this Image (but the living God alone in his pure Life and Spirit) this latter Beaſt hath power to cauſe to be killed, ver. 15. and ſuch muſt not ſo much as buy or ſell, who will

will not receive the Mark of the Beaſt, or his Name, or at leaſt the Number of his Name; to which number the higheſt growth and perfection in Religion and Worſhip, after the Wiſdom of the Fleſh, (or man's Wiſdom,) is to be reckoned, ver. 17, 18.

Obſerve now diligently the place of the true Church, and her eſtate, and the eſtate of her Children all the 42 Months. Her place of habitation is a Wilderneſs, her eſtate an eſtate of Widowhood, (a City un-built, trodden under the feet of the Gentiles) her ſeed Witneſſes, reproached perſecuted and ſlain, by the falſe Woman and her Seed. Obſerve likewiſe the place and eſtate of the falſe Church and her Children; She rears up a glorious Building as to the outward, ſhe is a City built and richly adorned, ſhe hath a Golden Cup of Doctrine and Diſcipline, of Ordinances and Worſhip to hold forth to the Kings and Inhabiters of the Earth, in all Nations, Peoples, Kindreds and Tongues; ſhe is arrayed in Purple and Scarlet-colour, and decked with Gold and precious Stone, and Pearls, Rev. 17. 4. and all her Daughters, who though they may deny her, yet partake of her Spirit, and learn to rear up buildings of Churches like her) they alſo flouriſh in their degree and meaſure. None is poor but Sion, none is deſolate but God's Jeruſalem, but his Church which fled into the Wilderneſs, to abide there all the time of his appointment: and her Witneſſes are clothed with Sackcloth, teſtifying to God's deſpiſed and reproached Truth, with mourning and grief of Spirit, and not with that fleſhly joy, wiſdom, and confidence, wherewith Babylon and her Merchants vent their Wares, but only in the evidence, demonſtration, and aſſurance of the Spirit in their hearts, which all the wiſe and confident Builders and Inhabitants of Babylon trample upon and deſpiſe.

Now it behoveth all to conſider what this Babylon, what this Woman is, ſpoken of, Rev. 17. which came in the place of the other Woman ſpoken of, Rev. 12. what this built City is, which the Wrath of the Lord will make deſolate, what this Beaſt or falſe Prophet is which appears like a Lamb (and ſheweth ſuch Miracles to deceive the Earth) and yet is fierce and cruel to ſuch as witneſs for God, Rev. 13. 13, 14, 15. For dreadful are the Plagues, Woes, Vials of Wrath, Thunders, &c. which God hath prepared for her, even the Cup of the Lord's Indignation without mixture, torment with Fire and Brimſtone in the preſence of the holy Angels, and in the preſence of the Lamb, Rev. 14. 10, 11. and chap. 18. 8. And who would not fear thee, O thou King of Saints, when thou comeſt with thy Cup of Fury and Indignation, to empty into the Bowels of this Woman, which hath been ſo long drunk with the Bloud of thy Saints and Martyrs, Rev. 17. 6. Conſider theſe things, O ye Papiſts, wait on the Lord in his fear and dread, that he may vouchſafe to make known to you what, and where this City Babylon is, and that ſuch of you as belong to him may hear his voice calling you out of her, that ye may eſcape this bitter Cup, Rev. 18. 4.

The great Judgment is already begun (this we know, who have taſted of it.) It hath begun at God's Houſe, and is ſpreading further, yea even over the Nations which have diſowned you, and yet have learned of you to build up a Church and Worſhip after the manner of your whoredoms. Theſe the Lord will judge firſt, he will plead with the Daughters who have diſowned their Mother, and yet have gon on in her Spirit of whoredoms, worſhipping the Works of their own hands, and adminiſtring and magnifying the beauty of the Churches which themſelves have formed. Now is your time to conſider, now is the time for the ſimple-hearted among you to flee from Babylon, before the Wrath of the Lord beſiege her. There are three things in general (beſides many particulars) which the Proteſtant Nations and Churches have learned of you, which will coſt them dear, ere they be made willing to part with them.

Firſt, Their taking upon them Authority over mens Conſciences, commanding them what they ſhould believe, which the Apoſtles never did, but ſaid expreſly, they had not dominion over the Faith of others, but were helpers of their joy, 2 Cor. 1. 24. They could not command any to believe their Doctrine, but ſpake in the demonſtration of the Spirit, waiting till God opened the heart, 2 Cor. 4. 2. and would not have men profeſs, believe, or practice from their Words, but by a feeling of the Power, 1 Cor. 2: 5. And when men did believe ſome things, and came into the Unity and Fellowſhip of the Faith, they did not require them to believe all that the Church taught or held forth as true, but waited till God pleaſed to reveal further, Phil. 3. 15. Indeed they could command obedience to the Faith; What Truths the Spirit of the Lord revealed and taught any man, they could charge him in the Name of the Lord to be faithful to, Rom. 1. 5. but they knew it was God alone who could ingraft the Truth into the heart and conſcience, and alſo give the increaſe of it: And ſo from him alone they expected it, waiting in patience on the ſtubborn and perverſe till God ſhould pleaſe to work upon them, 2 Tim. 2. 24, 25. and likewiſe on theſe that were convinced, and had ſubjected themſelves to the Faith, for his increaſe of it, 1 Cor. 3. 6, 7.

2dly. Their abridging mens liberty in things wherein God hath left them free, and preſſing an Uniformity in things which they themſelves confeſs to be indifferent. Now the Apoſtle (who had the care of all the Churches, 2 Cor. 11. 28.) though he knew certainly how to determine about meats and days, as himſelf confeſſeth, Rom. 14. 14. yet he telleth the Church at Rome expreſly, that Chriſt was the Lord and Maſter of every Diſciple, to whom he muſt ſtand or fall herein, verſe 4. and that every man ought to do as he is fully perſwaded in his own mind, verſe 5. Nay he is ſo far from preſſing a neceſſity of Uniformity in ſuch Caſes, that he preſſeth a neceſſity of bearing on each hand, v. 3. So that in the Apoſtles judgment, the Church hath not power to lay commands on the Conſcience, but muſt receive the weakeſt in the Faith, verſe 1. leaving him to the liberty of his Conſcience, and to his ſubjection to his own Lord and Maſter, to whom every believer muſt giue an account of what he receives, and of what he obeys and performs, verſe 10. and 12.

3dly. Their ſetting up a Church-building, Government, and Diſcipline by the Magiſtrates Power. This the Apoſtles no where taught nor practiced. They converted men by the Power of the Spirit, they cut down Errors, Hereſies, Seducers, and Hereticks, by the ſame Word, and they found the Weapons of their Warfare ſufficient, 2 Cor. 10. 4. they had no need of running to the Magiſtrate. But that Church, thoſe Doctrines, that Government and Diſcipline which is ſet up by the Magiſtrates Sword without and againſt the Spirit, that hath need of a carnal Sword to defend it againſt the Spirit, and to cut down God's Witneſſes (whom he raiſeth up to teſtifie againſt it) for Schiſmaticks and Hereticks, or its nakedneſs will ſoon be made manifeſt, and its ruine approach.

Now when the Lord hath judged all the Daughters of Babylon for theſe things, then will he at length begin to plead with their Mother, Babylon the Great, who hath gone a whoring from the Spirit, and built up a gaudy Church without the Spirit, which ſhe hath defended by violence and bloud, drinking the Bloud of the Saints, who have been inſpired by the Spirit to teſtifie againſt her, Rev. 11. 7, 8. and hath taught all her Daughters to do the ſame, to wit, to drink the bloud of the Witneſſes againſt them, even as ſhe hath drunk the bloud of the Witneſſes that have teſtified againſt her. And though becauſe ſhe hath had an half day more given her, after her time ſeemed to be even expiring, and after Judgment and Deſolation was beginning to enter upon her; though becauſe of this, ſhe thinks the bitterneſs of death is paſt, and ſhe ſhall now ſit as a Queen, a Lady, a glorious Church for ever, Rev. 18. 7. yet for all this is ſhe come again into God's remembrance, Rev. 16. 19. and ſhe ſhall ſee Widowhood, and be caſt into a Bed of Torment, and all her Children into great Tribulation with her, and ſhe ſhall be deſolate, and naked, and drink of the Cup, and not repent that ſhe might eſcape it, Rev. 16. 11. and 9. 20, 21. This is her portion, from the hand of the Lord: Oh happy is he whoſe eyes the Lord ſhall open, to flee out of her for life! For the Lamb is ariſen to make War, and his Spouſe is making her ſelf ready for his pure Bed of Life, and his anger is kindled againſt all the Kings and Powers of the Earth that ſtand in his way: and though they fight never ſo reſolutely againſt him and his meek ones, they ſhall not prevail, but the Lamb will overcome all, for he is King of Kings, and Lord of Lords, and they that are with him in this Battle of his Spirit, are Called, and Choſen, and Faithful, Rev. 17. 4. And though this Woman (the falſe Church, in her various dreſſes) is ſo ſtrong every where getting the Earthly Powers and Authorities on her ſide) that now it may be ſaid concerning this Beaſt, in the ſeveral appearances of it, as was concerning the former, Who is able to make War with her? Yet there is an inviſible Power ſtronger than ſhe, who will call her to judgment, Rev. 18. 8. and make her give an account of all the Saints bloud which ſhe hath drunk her ſelf, and which ſhe hath taught her Daughters to drink. And Salvation, Glory, Honour, and Power, ſhall be aſcribed o the Lord, for his righteous and powerful judging of her, Rev. 19. 1, 2. And he that ath any glimmering of this in the eternal Light of the Lords pure ever living Spirit, let im even now say, Halleluia to him who is arisen out of his holy habitation, and hath alrea- y begun this Work, who will not fail to perfect it. Amen.

Somewhat concerning the GROUND of ERROR, and the Way to Truth and Unity, for the sake of such as are more Spiritual.

THERE is no way to become an Heir of the Kingdom of God, but by being begotten and born of his Spirit, which blows upon the Spirit of a man, breaths life into im, and forms him in the eternal Image, John 3. 8. Gal. 4. 19.

There is no way of having this Work of God preserved, but by turning to the Spirit, hich begets, standing and keeping upright in that which is begotten, and taking heed f the fleshly Wisdom, which stands near to corrupt and destroy the Work of God temp- ing and leading aside from the Truth it self, into some Image and Resemblance of it: nd if this prevail, there is suddenly a departing from the living God, and a running a horing after the inventions of the fleshly Wisdom, which appears in the likenoss of the ue Wisdom, that it might the better deceive.

Now when man is first breathed upon, and begotten towards God, there's but a lit- e life, a little simplicity, a little light, a little power, a little of the wisdom of the ue Babe; but a great Body of Death, Deceit, Darkness, Power and Wisdom of the lesh standing: And all these apply themselves to overturn and destroy the true work of od, by raising up a false Image of it, which is easily done; but abiding and preserva- ion in the Truth is difficult, and alone maintained by that Power, which at first begat.

Now the Power preserves through keeping out of the sensual and reasoning part where the corrupt one hath his lodging) in that poor, low, little, childish sensibility of he life, which the Father hath begotten. Here is the entrance unto the Truth, here the growth, here is the preservation and safety: Which makes it so hard for those hat are wise and strong in the reasoning and comprehending part, either to enter in, or o abide and grow in the nakedness, simplicity, and seeming folly of the truth of the Gos- el. Oh what a deal is be brought down, before they can be truly reached and convin- ed by the foolish and weak things which God chuseth to effect his great Works by, Cor. 1. 27, 28. What a Work hath God with them to batter their Wisdom, and bring own their Understanding, which the larger it is, the more it stands in the way of his ight, 2 Cor. 1. 19. And if they be convinced at any time, what an easie and natural turn unto them doth their own wisdom find, by some subtil device or other, to draw hem back from the plainness and singleness of the Truth, into an holding it in the wis- om and subtilty of the understanding part, where the simplicity is soon lost, 2 Cor. 11. 3: In the Spirit which begets and in the Truth which is begotten by it, is the true Unity. eeling that in one another, is that which unites us to one another. Every one keeping hat in his own particular, is kept to that which unites; and that is kept alive in him hich is to be united: But departing from that, there is a departing from the true Unity nto the error and ground of division. And then that which hath erred and departed from he true unity, strives to set up a false Image of unity, and blames that which abides in he Truth, because it cannot thus unite: For that which abides in the Spirit, and in hat which the Spirit hath begotten and formed, cannot unite according to the flesh; as hat which is run a whoring from the Spirit, into an Image of the fleshly Wisdoms for- ing, cannot unite according to the Spirit. Consider this, O ye Professors of this Age, e blame us for departing from you, for withdrawing from unity with you; we blame ou for departing from the living Principle, wherein our unity with you formerly stood, nd wherein alone we can again unite with you, and not in such things as uphold a leshly and false Image of the true unity.

O that ye could hear the Lords voice, who crieth aloud to the Profeſſors of this A to ceaſe from man! Ceaſe from man in thy ſelf, O thou who haſt ever had any taſt the pure Grace and Power of God. Ceaſe from thine own underſtanding, thine o affections, thine own zeal, thine own gathered knowledge and wiſdom from the Scr tures, with all the ſparks of thine own kindling, that God may be all in thee, and eternal habitation be raiſed up in thee, and perfected, and thou ſwallowed up and co prehended in it for ever. O what a Work hath God to drive mans Reaſon and Wiſd out of his Temple, out of his Scriptures, out of all his holy things! He that hath ea let him hear, for the ſake of his ſouls eternal Peace. Alas, Alas how many ſtumble and blaſpheme that, which alone can ſave the Soul. There have been many diſpenſa ons of, but there is but one living Truth, but one Subſtance, but one Arm of Salvatio And he that ſtumbles at the thing it ſelf, how can he be ſaved by it? It is eaſie miſun ſtanding a former diſpenſation, reading it in the Letter, and ſo to miſs of the Salva hoped for by it. The Jews opened the Meſſiah (according to the Scriptures, as th thought) but rejected him in the way he came to ſave them in. Now if Chriſtians ha gathered ſuch a kind of knowledge from the Letter of the Scriptures, as they did, h can they avoid the ſame error, namely, of owning Chriſt according to the Scripture as they think, but rejecting him as he comes to ſave them, rebelling againſt his ſpi miniſtry, and the pure power and demonſtration of his Spirit, becauſe it appears w and low, becauſe it doth not appear the ſame thing to them which they expect to be ved by, according to their apprehenſions of the Scriptures? Thus reading the Scrip in another Spirit and Wiſdom then that which wrote them, they muſt needs conclud gather another thing from them, then what is written in them, and ſo make th means to them of erring from the life, which was written to teſtifie of, and po the living Principle from whence Life and Salvation ſprings, and where alo is to be had.

To the Rulers, Teachers, and People of New-England.

MAny a weary ſtep hath my poor Soul fetched, and many difficulties and hardſhips hath it met with in its purſuit after truth. The immortal ſeed hath deeply ſuffered in me through the miſts of darkneſs, and various ratagems and powers of the enemy, which have often encompaſſed me, and di-reſſed my Spirit exceedingly. I have known many battels, received deep Wounds, a and have been in deaths and graves often, where the living ſeed hath langui-ed for want of the living ſpring. Let this thing to the praiſe and glory of the preſer-er of Iſrael may I ſpeak, the ſence of God and the ſavour of his Spirit was neve-r wholly taken away from me, though many times I knew it not, but was too apt t-o diſtruſt distrust it, being ignorant of the way of its appearing in me. The Scriptures I ways exceedingly priz'd, and a deep knowledge of them (from an experimen sense of the things they spake of) was bestowed on me: but I knew not what it which gave me the knowledge, nor how it sprang, but went about still to fix it the letter, and so gave away the glory from the Spirit, which shines above and b yond the letter, and ought so to be acknowledged. Before this despised people peared, I was even quite worn out, and said, my hope is cut off from the Lord, th is no such appearance of him to be looked for, as my poor distressed Soul wants. Li without the presence of his Spirit I could not, where to meet with his Spirit could hear no news; and that precious knowledge which I had through the operation God upon my heart from the living spring, the same hand which gave me, brake in pieces, and pulled down that inward building which was reared up in Spirit. What a man of sorrows I became hereupon, how I mourned all the day lo and roared out after my God all the night season, is not to be uttered. And might be the Lords pleasure, O that my misery might end with me, and that might be the issue of all my sufferings, to fit me to be a faithful instrument in hand of the Lord for the preserving of others therefrom! Now this was it which did me, namely the getting up of the fleshly wisdom and understanding, which God had broken in me mightily several times, yet it still had some secret devic other to creep in again unto me, and to twine about my Spirit, undiscerned by but this effect still attended it, by degrees (like a canker) it eat out the sweet and freshness of my life and spirit, and exalted that part in me which God bi the mysteries of his Kingdom from. At first acquaintance with this rejected pa that which was eternal of God in me opened, and I did immediately in my sp own them as Children of my Father, truly begotten of his life by his own Spirit: the Wise reasoning part presently rose up, contending against their uncouth ap appearance, and in that I did disown them, and continued a stranger to th and a reasoner against them for above twelve months, and by weighing and co sidering things in that part, was still further and further off from discerning th leadings by the Life and Spirit of God into those things. But at length it pleas the Lord to draw out his Sword against that part in me, turning the Wisdom an Strength thereof backward, and to open that eye in me again, wherewith he ha given me to see the things of his Kingdom in some measure from a Child; and then I saw and felt them grown in that life and spirit, which I through the treache ry of the Fleshly-wise part had been estranged to, and had adulterated from. And now what bitter days of mourning and lamentation (even for some years since) I have had over this, the Lord alone fully knows. Oh I have known it to be a bit ter thing to follow this Wisdom in understanding of Scriptures, in remembring o Scriptures, in remembring of experiences, and in many more inward ways of wor kings, that many can bear to hear. The Lord hath judged me for that, and I have born the burden and condemnation of that, which many at this day wear as their Crown. And now what am I at length? A poor Worm, whom can I warn effectu ally? Whom can I help? Whom can I stop from running into the Pit? But though I am nothing, I must speak, for the Lord draweth and moveth me: and how unserviceable soever my pity be, yet my Bowels cannot but roul, both towards those that are in misery, and those that are running into misery. Read in the fear and in simplicity, what was so written; and the Lord open that eye in you which can see the way of life, and discover the paths of the mystery of Iniquity in its most hidden workings in the heart, that ye sleep not the sleep of eternal death, and so at last be awakened in the Bowels of that wrath and fiery indignation, which that Spirit which erreth from, and transgresseth the life and light within, can neither bear nor escape.

AN EXAMINATION

Of the Grounds or Cauſes which are ſaid to induce the Court of BOSTON in NEW-ENGLAND, to make that Order or Law of Baniſhment upon pain of Death againſt the QUAKERS; As alſo of the Grounds and Conſiderations by them produced to manifeſt the warrantableneſs and juſtneſs, &c.

THat in New-England there hath been a Law made of Baniſhing the Quakers (ſo called) and of death in caſe of return, is well known in theſe parts; but what induced them hereunto, and what juſt grounds and reaſons they had for it, many are not acquainted with, but are very much diſſatisfied concerning their proceedings therein, fearing that they have diſhonoured God, brought a reproach upon the Name of Chriſt and his Goſpel, exceeded the limits of their power, given an ill example of Perſecution, laid a Foundation of hardening their hearts againſt God, and of drawing his heavy Wrath upon them, all which they cannot but be guilty of, in caſe it ſhould be proved that they have been miſtaken, and that theſe People (upon a further ſearch) ſhould appear to them to be of God, as they have already to very many, who have been exceedingly prejudiced againſt them, till they came more meekly to hear and conſider their caſe. For there are many here in Old-England, and in other parts, who once reviled, reproached, and thought they could hardly do bad enough againſt them, who now (in the ſingleneſs of their hearts) can bleſs God for raiſing up ſuch a People, and that they themſelves were not cut off in their blind zeal againſt them, but in the rich mercy of God had a way made for the removing of their prejudices and hard thoughts, and for the opening of their eyes, whereby they came to ſee that theſe are indeed a precious people of God, begotten, brought forth, and guided by his power, and that it is his living truth, which they (in obedience to his living power) are drawn to bear witneſs to, and to hold forth unto the World. And one ſuch teſtimony for them, is of more weight and value in a true Ballance, than thouſands of teſtimonies againſt them from ſuch who are prejudiced, and have not patience to conſider things in equity and uprightneſs of heart, and alſo whoſe intereſt lies another way.

Now meeting of late with a Paper beginning thus, At a general Court held at Boſton the 8th. of October, 1659. (Wherein by way of preface, there is firſt an account given of what induced them to make this Law of baniſhment and death, and then grounds and conſiderations laid down to clear it to be warrantable and juſt) it was upon my heart to conſider and examine theſe, to ſee whether they did ariſe from the Seed of God, and from the true knowledge of the Scriptures by his Spirit, and ſo were weighty to the conſcience which ſingly waits upon God for ſatisfaction about truth or whether they did ariſe from the fleſhly part, and from fleſhly reaſonings upon Scriptures, and ſo were but chaffy, and not able to ſatisfie the weighty conſidering Spirit, as in the ſight of God.

And this I was the more induced to do, becauſe I found Bowels rowling towards them, and a ſenſe of what might eaſily be their ſnare, which hath overtaken and intangled many, for many who have blamed others ſeverely, and really thought how well they themſelves would have amended things, if ever they came into place and and power, yet have failed, and run into the very same errour, when they have come to the Tryal. So these persons when they were formerly persecuted in England, no doubt but thought and intended (if ever they came to be free from it) to lay a foundation against it: yet when they come to the point, and feel their condition changed, insomuch as it was now in their hand to determine what was the way of Worship, Church Government, and Order, there lay a great Temptation before them to set up what they judged to be right, and to force all others to a conformity to it. Yea now was their great danger, and time to beware, lest the same persecuting spirit did get up in them, which their being persecuted was a proper means to keep down: And if so (if the same spirit which persecuted them, got up in them) then they who were once persecuted, could not possibly forbear persecuting: for that spirit will persecute wherever it gets up. And having laid its foundation of Persecution under a plausible cover, then by degrees it more and more vails the eye, hardens the heart, and takes away the tenderness which was in the persons before, while they themselves were persecuted. Now I cannot but pity those that fall into the snare of the enemy, especially those who are taken into so great a Snare, and come to so great a loss of their tenderness towards God, his Truths and People, and run so great an hazard and danger of the loss of their own Souls.

The Grounds or Causes expressed of their making that Law of Banishment, are in substance these three.

1. THE coming of the Quakers from foreign parts, and from other Colonies, at sundry times and in several companies and numbers, into the jurisdiction of the Massachusets.

Answ. This, of it self is far from any warrant: for the Earth is the Lords and the fulness thereof: and though they claim a propriety in it, yet it is still more the Lords than theirs; and he may send any one of his Servants into it at his pleasure, upon what Message or service it seemeth good unto him. So that the great question to be determined here is this, Whether these persons came from the Lord, in his will, and at his appointment, or whether they came of themselves, and in their own wills? For if they came by commission and appointment from the Lord of Heaven and Earth, their warrant was without doubt sufficient: but if they came in their own will, and upon their own designs, that they went out of the Lords Counsel and Protection, and must bear their own Burthen. Now consider, whether ye were tender in the due weighing of this, before your imprisoning, and dealing hardly with them: for if at their first coming ye imprisoned them, and engaged your selves against them, ye thereby made your selves unfit for an equal consideration of the cause, and God might justly then leave your eyes to be closed, and your hearts hardned against his Truths and People; for beginning with them so hardly and unrighteously, and not in his fear.

2. Those lesser punishments of the House of Correction, and Imprisonment for a time having been inflicted on some of them, but not sufficing to deter and keep them away. (Why do ye omit cutting off of ears? are ye ashamed to mention that amongst the rest? indeed the remembrance of it strikes upon the Spirits of people here, and perhaps in New England also.)

Answ. They that are sent by the Lord, and go in the guidance of his Spirit, cannot be deterred from obedience to him in his Service and Work, either by lesser or greater punishments. Punishments deter the evil doer; but he that doth well, is not afraid of being punished, but is taught, and made willing, and inabled to suffer for righteousness sake, Phil. 1. 29. And ye will find your greater punishments as ineffectual to obtain your end, as your lesser. For they whose lives (in the power of God) are sacrificed up to the Will of God, are no more afraid of Death, than they are of Whips, Prisons, cruel usage in Prisons, and cutting off of ears. Surely it had been a sweeter, a more Christian and safer course, to have weighed the thing in Gods fear and dread, before ye had begun any of your punishments. But your own late relation confesseth, that ye began with them upon reports from Barbadoes, and England (from good hands ye say, and they of Damascus might have said, if they had received the Letters from the High Priest Priest, or relations from zealous and devout Jews) and I have heard related from many hands (which having drunk in prejudices from reports, and begun with imprisoning of them, might easily follow) that they were never afforded a fair hearing, but at your Courts Questions put to entrap them, and they not suffered to plead the Righteousness and Innocency of their cause, but endeavours used to draw them to that (and a watching to catch that from them) which would bring them within the compass of some of your Laws. Your Consciences know how true these things are, and will one day give in a clear and true Testimony, although ye should be able to bribe them at present.

3. That their coming thither was upon no other grounds or occasion (for ought that could appear) then to scatter their corrupt opinions, and to draw others to their way, and so to make disturbance.

Answ. Christ saith to his Disciples, ye are the Salt of the earth, and the light of the World: and they are not to lie still, and keep their light under a Bushel, but to lighten and season the World, as the Lord calleth and guideth them. And if the Lord doth see that New England, notwithstanding all its Profession and talk of the things of God, hath need of his Salt to savour it with, and of his Light to enlighten them with, and so sendeth his Messengers and Servants among them, they have no reason to be offended with the Lord for this, or with his People, or with the Truths they bring. They have long had a form up, and it may have eaten out the power, that they may not be so savoury now in their ease and authority in New England, as they were under their Troubles and Persecutions in Old England: and God may in kindness to them send among them a foolish people to stir them up and provoke them to jealousie. Now the coming thus is not to scatter corrupt Opinions; but by the power of truth to scatter that, which scatters from the Lord; nor is it to draw to their way, but to the Lord, to Christ his living way, which they are exhorted to try, and feel, and certainly to know, before they receive: nor doth it make any disturbance but only to that which is at ease in the flesh, and fleshly forms of Worship. And Israel of old was often thus disturbed by the Prophets of God, (though they still could not bear it, but were enemies to the Prophets for it) notwithstanding they had received their way of Worship certainly from Gods hand: how much more may the Lord take liberty by his Servants and Messengers to disturb these, who never so received it, but have formed up a way out of the Scriptures, whereof many that are truly conscientious doubt whether it be the way or no, even as they themselves doubt and are ready to contend against the ways that others have formed?

Now those that pick a quarrel with Truth, and seek matter against it to persecute it, do not call it Truth but Error, corrupt Opinions, the way of a Sect, the making of disturbance, or such like. And Persecutors for the most part do not only say this, but bring forth their strong Arguments, insomuch as the Persecutor is commonly just in his own eyes, and the Persecuted is blamed as the evil doer, and cause of his own sufferings. Were the Bishops without their Plea? nay did not he that was called Dr. Burgess (in his Book) seem to carry the Cause clear against the Non-conformists? And why the Bishops might not establish their way by Authority, or the Presbyters their way, as well as those accounted Independants their way (not regarding the Dissenters, or tender Consciences) I confess I see not; but that they have justified the Bishops by their practising the same thing, and so unjustly condemned them in words.

But how can ye say, for ought that could appear? when ye were so unfit (through receiving of prejudices and reports, and beginning so roughly with them) to consider what might be made appear, and also so far from giving way to them to make what they could appear, as is before expressed? And doth not this also imply that there may be a just, righteous, and warrantable cause of their coming, in relation to God and his Service, though it doth not yet appear to you; and in a meeker and cooler temper, when another eye is opened in you, ye may see and acknowledge that cause, who are the Lords Servants, whether they come in his Name or no; whether they are his Truths or no, which they bring with them, these are things God opens to the humble, to the meek, to such as feed before him and wait for his Counsel therein: but those that can determine things by intelligence before hand from other parts, and Imprison persons as soon as they come, and so proceed on with a stiff resolution against them, how are these in any capacity to seek or receive counsel from God in a case of so great concernment? so that at last even when they have drunk their Blood, they must be forced to say, for ought that could appear; this was their only end, work and intent; but whether it was ſo or no, they do not certainly know.

Thus far is in anſwer to the account they give, by way of Preface, to what led them to the making of this Law of Baniſhment and Death. Now the grounds and conſiderations themſelves, which they held forth to clear this to be warantable and juſt, follow to be ſcanned, which are in number ſix.

1. The Doctrine of this Sect of People (ſay they) it is deſtructive to fundamental Truths of Religion.

Anſw. For the making of this Argument forcible, two things are neceſſary; if either of which fails, it falls to the ground.

1. It is neceſſary to make manifeſt, that perſons for holding or propagating Doctrine contrary to fundamental Truths of Religion, are by Chriſts inſtitution puniſhable with Diſmembring, Baniſhment, or Death. For Chriſt is the Head, King, and Law giver to His Church: it is he that is the Foundation of Religion, and the giver forth of Fundamental Truths of Religion: and he is the proper Judge of what puniſhment is fit for ſuch as either will not receive his fundamental Truths of Religion, or afterwards ſtart back from them, and broach Doctrines contrary thereto. Now it is required, in his Name and Authority, of ſuch Powers as will take upon them to inflict theſe kinds of puniſhments, upon ſuch kind of offenders, Chriſts inſtitution for this thing. Chriſt was as faithful in his Houſe as Moſes, and if ſuch a courſe had been neceſſary for the preſervation of his Church, ſurely he would not have with held it. But Chriſt overcomes the Devils Kingdom by his Spirit: by that he wins Souls, and gathers into, and builds up his Church, and by that he is able to defend them. By his Spirit he Preacheth the truth and ſoweth the Seed of the Kingdom, and by his ſpirit he upholds and maintains it. This is his way of overcoming all the miſts of darkneſs, and falſe Doctrines and not a Magiſtrates Sword. The Weapons of our Warfare (ſaith the Apoſtle) are not carnal, but mighty through God, to the pulling down of Strong Holds, 2 Cor. 10. 4. Are there Strong holds of darkneſs? Are there falſe Doctrines broached againſt the truths of Chriſt? Who are the Warriers againſt theſe? Are they the civil State, the Magiſtrate, the earthly Powers; or are they the Miniſters and Servants of Chriſt? And what are the Weapons that are mighty to overthrow theſe? Are they Stocks, Whips, Priſons, cutting off of Ears, Baniſhment, Death? or are they of a ſpiritual Nature? The ſpiritual Weapons are ſanctified by God to this end, and are mighty through him, able to effect it throughly; whereas the carnal Weapons are weak and unſanctified, and can reach only the carnal part, but the ſtrong Hold remains untouch'd by theſe. And it is only the carnal part, which deſires to have the uſe of ſuch carnal Weapons in the Church: the Spiritual man would conquer by his own Weapon, or not at all. Chriſt came not to deſtroy mens lives, nor never gave order to have men killed about his truths. If his people be diſobedient, and broach Doctrine never ſo contrary and deſtructive to his Kingdom, he hath a ſpiritual way of fighting with them now, and hath appointed his ſervants to have his mighty ſpiritual Weapons in a readineſs, for the revenging every diſobedience, 2 Cor. 10. 6. And he hath likewiſe a time of dealing with them hereafter; but he hath no where appointed that his ſubjects (if they could get the command of the Sword in a Nation or Country) ſhould kill ſuch. Abundance of bloud hath been ſhed upon this pretence, which the Lord will make inquiſition for: it would at length be ſeriouſly inquired into, what truth there is in this bloudy Doctrine? For under this cover all the perſecutions and ſheddings of the Saints bloud ſhelter themſelves. O conſider at length, how cruel and bloudy men have made the Goſpel of Peace by this Principle: and what an advantage it gives to the carnal part in thoſe that are perſecuted, if once they can get the command of the outward Sword, to forget their own ſufferings, and ſuddenly turn perſecutors of ſuch as differ from them; though upon as weighty grounds (if not more weighty) than they differed from others upon. But this they that are uppermoſt will not yield to, that the grounds of ſuch as differ from them are ſufficient; even as thoſe that they differed from would not yield that their grounds were ſufficient. Thus ſtill they whoſe arguments go forth under the ſhelter, or by the command of the preſent authority, they are looked upon as moſt weighty, and the others cauſe is trampled upon, though never ſo juſt, innocent, upright, and weighty in it ſelf; and the meek of the earth, the humble-hearted, the tender-conscienced towards God, they are still made the offenders and sufferers: and their enemies are still made their Judges. I do think these of New-England would have once thought it hard measure, that Conformists whom they differed from, should have been the Judges whether their grounds were sufficient or no, and yet they (ever since they have had the power in their hands) have taken upon them to be the Judges of the sufficiency of the grounds of such as differ from them, and have as freely condemned all that differed from them, and been as sore a curb upon the tender-conscience, as ever the Bishops were. So that it is plain, that which they sought was their own liberty (they did not like to be oppressed and inthralled contrary to their judgments) but not the liberty of the tender-conscience toward God, but rather the yoaking and inthralling of it to their judgments, and arguments, and interpretations of Scripture, which he that differs from, must be an offender with them, even as they were once accounted offenders for differing from the Conformists, and so are all become transgressors of the Law of God in doing that to others, which they would not that others should do to them.

2. It is requisite also to make manifest, that the Doctrine of this sort of people is destructive to the fundamental truths of Religion. For if it be not so, then they are injured and mis-represented; and both their Banishment, and Death; and all other punishments inflicted upon them on this account, will prove to have been unjust.

There are four instances given, or four particular fundamentals mentioned, to which their Doctrines are said to be destructive. First, the Sacred Trinity, Secondly, the person of Christ, Thirdly, the holy Scriptures as a perfect rule of Faith and Life, Fourthly, the Doctrine of perfection.

Now for the making the thing clear and manifest to every sober mind, it is requisite first to consider what the Quakers hold in these several particulars, and then whether that which they hold in these respects, be contrary to the truth of these things, as they are plainly related in the Scriptures: for if that which they hold be according to the naked voice and proper intent of the Scriptures, then they are not to be blamed, but the blame will light on their accusers, who might easily be found guilty of injuring both them and the Scriptures, both in these and many other things, were they no Judges?

1. Concerning the sacred Trinity. They generally both in their speakings, and in their writings, set their Seal to the truth of that Scripture, 1 John 5. 7. That there are three that bear record in Heaven, the Father, the Word, and the Holy Spirit. That these three are distinct, as three several beings or persons, this they read not, but in the same place they read, that they are one. And thus they believe, their being to be one, their life one, their light one, their wisdom one, their power one: and he that knoweth and seeth any one of them, knoweth and seeth them all, according to that saying of Christ's to Philip, He that hath seen me hath seen the Father, John 14. 9 Three there are, and yet one, thus they have read in the Scripture, and this they testifie they have had truly opened to them, by that very Spirit which gave forth the Scriptures, insomuch as they certainly know it to be true, and own the thing from their very hearts But as for this title of Sacred Trinity, they find it not in Scripture: and they look upon Scripture-words as fittest to express Scripture-things by. And surely if a man mean the same thing as the Scripture means, the same words will suffice to express it: but the Papists and School-men having missed of the thing which the Scripture drives at, and apprehended somewhat else in the wise imagining part, have brought forth many Phrases of their own invention to express their apprehensions by, which we confess we have no unity with, but are content with feeling the thing which the Scripture speaks of, and with the words whereby the Scriptures express it Now whereas they call this a fundamental, we do not find it so called in Scripture, nor do we find the Disciples themselves understanding therein, but knew not the Father, John 14. 8, 9. And Christ going about to inform them, does not tell them of another distinct being or person: but Hast thou not seen me? and believest thou not that I am in the Father, and the Father in me? ver. 10. And so the believers at Ephesus had not so much as heard there was an Holy Ghost, Acts 19. 2. So that if ye will make this a fundamental truth, yet it is such a fundamental, as true Faith did stand without, both in believers afore Christ's death, and in believers after. This is the great fundamental, that God is light, and in him is no darkness at all, 1 John 1. 5. and the great work of the Ministry is to shew men where this light is, and to turn men from the darkneſs, wherein is the power of Satan, unto this light: where is the power of God, Acts 26. 18. And he that comes into this light, and into this power, owned in the light and in the power, wherein is the life of all the Saints, and the true fellowſhip both with the Father and the Son, and one with another, John 1. 3, 7. And the trial of Spirits, is not by aſſent to Doctrines (which the hypocrite may aſſent to on one hand, and the true believer may ſtartle at on the other hand) but by feeling of the in the inward vertue of the light, in the Spirit, and in the power. This was the Apoſtles of trial, 1 Cor. 4. 19, 20. I will know, not the ſpeech of them which are puffed up, but the power; for the Kingdom of God is not in Word, but in Power. A man may ſpeak high Words concerning the Kingdom, and get all the Doctrines about it, and yet be a ſtranger to it, quite ignorant of the power: and another may want divers Doctrines concerning it (haps ſome of thoſe which men call fundamentals) and yet be a Citizen of it, and in power. But now under the Antichriſtian Apoſtacy. men wanting the feeling of the and power, wherein the true judgment is, they own or diſown one another upon aſſent or diſſent to ſuch and ſuch Doctrines, and ſo fall into this great error, of owning many whom Chriſt owns: and if they find perſons not aſſent to, or diſſenting from of thoſe things, which they call fundamentals, then they think they may lawfully communnicate and perſecute them. So by this miſtake, they cut of that which is gre they perſecute that wherein is the living ſap, and cheriſh the dry and withered. which is moſt tender towards God, and moſt growing in the inward ſenſibleneſs (w cauſeth it to ſtartle at that, which others can eaſily ſwallow) lies moſt open to ſuffe by this kind of trial.

2. Concerning the Perſon of Chriſt. They belive that Chriſt is the eternal Light, Wiſdom, and Power of God, which was manifeſted in that body of fleſh, which he of the Virgin: that he is the King, Prieſt, and Prophet of his people, and ſaveth from their ſins by laying down his life for them, and imputing his righteouſneſs to yet not without revealing and bringing forth the ſame righteouſneſs in them, whi wrought for them. And by experience they know, that there is no being ſaved belief of his death for them, and of his Reſurection, Aſcention, Interceſſion, &c. out being brought unto a true fellowſhip with him in his death, and without feelin immortal ſeed of life raiſed and living in them. And ſo they diſown that Faith in C death, which is only received and entertained from the relation of the letter o Scriptures, and ſtands not in the divine power, and ſenſible experience of the begott God in the heart.

Now they diſtinguiſh, according to the Scriptures, between that which is called Chriſt, and the bodily Garment which he took. The one was Fleſh, the other S The Fleſh profiteth nothing (ſaith he) the Spirit quickeneth, and he that eateth me, live by me, even as I live by the Father, John 6. 57, 63. This is the Manna it ſelf, true Treaſure, the other but the viſible or earthen Veſſel which held it. The bod fleſh was but the vail, Heb. 10. 20. The eternal life was the ſubſtance vailed. The he did partake of, as the reſt of the Children did, the other was he which did pas thereof, Heb. 2. 14. The one was the body which was prepared for the life, for it t pear in, and be made manifeſt, Heb. 10. 5. The other was the life or light it ſel whom the body was prepared, who took it up, appeared in it to do the Will, Pſa. 7, 8. and was made manifeſt to thoſe eyes which were able to ſee through the wherewith it was covered, John 1. 14.

Now is not this ſound, according to the Scriptures? And is it not a good way know this, by unity with it; by feeling a meaſure of the ſame life made manifeſt in mortal fleſh? 2 Cor. 4. 11. This we confeſs is our way of underſtanding things likewiſe of underſtanding the Scriptures which ſpeak of theſe things. And we have fou it a far ſurer kind of knowledge, namely, to underſtand the Scriptures, by experien of that whereof the Scripture ſpeaks, then to gueſs at the things the Scripture ſpeaks by conſidering and ſcanning in the earthly part; what the Scriptures ſpeak of them. Su a kind of knowledge as this, a Wiſe man may attain to a great meaſure of, but the ther is peculiar to him who is begotten of God, whoſe knowledge is true and cert though it ſeem never ſo different from his who hath attained what he hath by the ſea of his Wiſdom.

3. Concerning the holy Scriptures being a perfect rule of Faith and Life. The new Co nant is the Covenant of the Gospel, which is a living Covenant, a spiritual Covenant, an inward Covenant, and the Law or Rule of it cannot be written outwardly. Read the tenour of the new Coveant, Heb 8. 10. I will put my Laws into their Minds, and write them in their hearts. If God himself should take the same Laws, and write them outwardly; yet, so written, they are not the new Covenant: at most they would be but an outward draught of Laws written in the new Covenant. And mark, this is one difference given between the new Covenant and the old, the Laws of the one were written outwardly, in Tables of Stone, the Laws of the other were to be written in the Heart. That is the Book wherein the Laws of the new Covenant were promised to be written, and there they are to be read. So that he that will read and obey the Laws of the Covenant of life, must look for them in that Book, wherein God hath promised to write them: for though in other books he may read some outward descriptions of the thing, yet here alone can he read the thing it self. Christ is the Way, the Truth, and the Life. What is a Christians rule? Is not the way of God his rule? Is not Gods truth his rule? and Is not the truth in Jesus where it is taught and to be heard, and to be received even as it is in Jesus? Ephes. 4. 21. Is not he the King, the Priest, the Prophet, the Sacrifice, the Way to God, the truth of God, the life it self, the living path out of Death, yea all in all to the believer, whose eye is opened to behold him? The Scriptures testifie of Christ, but they are not Christ; they also testifie of truth, and are a true Testimony, but the truth it self is in Jesus, who by his living Spirit writes it in the heart which he hath made living. And so a Christian's life is in the Spirit: If we live in the Spirit, let us also walk in the Spirit, Gal. 5. 25. The whole life and course of a Christian is in the volumn of that Book, as the Lord opens the leaves of it in him. The gift of God, the measure of Faith, given him by God, that's his rule; that's his rule of knowledge, of propheſying, of obedience, Heb. 12. Rom. 1. 4. and 12. 6. The keep there, if he walk according to the proportion of it, he errs not: but out of the Faith, in the error, in all he knows, in all he believes, in all he does. The new creature, that which God hath new created in the heart, in which life breaths, and nothing but life breaths, which is taught by God, and true to God from its very infancy, that's his rule whereby he is to walk, the Apostle expresly calls it so, Gal. 6. 15, 16. That which is begotten by God is a Son; and the Son, as he is begotten by the breath of the Spirit, so he is preserved and led by the same breath; and such as are so led are Sons, and none else; for it is not reading of Scriptures, and gathering rules out thence that makes a Son, but the receiving of the Spirit, and the being led by the Spirit, Rom. 8. 14, 15 And being the whole Worship of the Gospel is in the Spirit, there is a necessity of receiving that in the first place; and then in it the Soul learns to know and wait for its breathings and movings, and follows on towards the Lord in them. The Spirit cannot be with-held from breathing on that which he hath begotten, and that breath is a guide; a rule, a way, to that which it breatheth upon. Now this is most manifest even from the Scriptures themselves, they expresly calling Christ the Way, the Truth, &c. the new Creature, the Rule, the Faith, Grace, or gift given to be the rule, testifying the heart to be that which God hath chosen to write his Laws in; but where do they call themselves a perfect rule of Faith and Obedience? They are they (saith Christ) which testifie of me, and ye will not come to me, that ye might have life. John 5, 39 40. Life cannot be received from the Scriptures, but only from Christ the Fountain thereof: no more can the Scriptures give the rule, but point to the Fountain of the same life, where alone the rule of life, as the life it self, can be received. The Scriptures cannot ingraft into Christ, nor give a living rule to him that is ingrafted: but he that hath heard the testimony of the Scriptures concerning Christ, and hath come to him, must abide in him, and wait on him for the writing of the Law of the Spirit of life in his heart, and his will be his rule from the Law of Sin and Death, even unto the Land of life. Now men have mistaken in the night of darkness, and put the Scriptures out of their place (even in the place of the Spirit) and so have become Ministers, not of the Spirit, but of the letter, whereas the Apostles were made able Ministers of the New Testament, not of the Letter, but of the Spirit, 2 Cor 3. 6. Let them not be offended at the Spirit of God the teaching us otherwise, nor at us for learning as the Spirit of God hath taught us, the Scriptures also testifying that this is the rule, but no where setting up themselves for the rule. And it is the same Spirit, which would now fix men in the Scriptures, to keep men from Chriſt the living rule and only way to life eternal, as formerly kept men by Traditions from the Scriptures, though it is hard for them who are intangled in this deceit, to ſee it.

Now for the proof of theſe things thus barely here charged, the Reader is referred to Mr. Norton's (as they ſtile him) Tractate againſt the Quakers. Concerning the validity whereof, I refer the Reader to Francis Howgils Anſwer thereto, wiſhing him to read both in the fear and dread of the Almighty, waiting for his counſel to guide him in the true diſcerning, which of them ſavours of mans wiſdom, and which of them writes from acquaintance with the Truth it ſelf. In which Anſwer of his he recites ſuch errors of that Norton, as would make a great ſound againſt the Quakers, if any ſuch could juſtly be charged upon them. I ſhall mention only two or three of them, viz. That God is a diſtinct Subſiſtence from the Son and Spirit; and that the Son is a diſtinct Subſiſtence from the Father and the Spirit: and becauſe it is ſaid, the Father ſhall give you another Comforter, this another he ſaith is intelligible of the Eſſence. (Are there then three diſtinct infinite Eſſences or Beings.) That the Spirit of God without the Letter is no Spirit. (He was before the Letter, he was never limited to the Letter, he will be after the Letter, and he is what he is without the Letter.) That Chriſts words John. 17. 21. give an uncertain ſound, (where have any of the Quakers caſt ſuch a blemiſh upon any portion of Scripture?) Surely this man had more need to ſeek to have his own Veſſel cleanſed than to accuſe others of Errors or Blaſphemy. And if he have no other way to overthrow them, than by maintaining ſuch kind of things as theſe againſt them, he will never get Victory over them any other ways than by the outward Sword: but by the Bloud of the Lamb, and by the word of his Teſtimony, and not loving their lives unto the Death, they will eaſily overcome all ſuch kind of Champions.

4. The fourth and laſt inſtance which they give of the deſtructiveneſs of their Doctrine to the fundamental Truths of Religion, is, That Opinion of theirs of being perfect pure and without Sin, which (ſay they) tends to overthrow the whole Goſpel, and the vitals of Chriſtianity: for they that have no Sin have no need of Chriſt, or of his ſatisfaction or bloud to cleanſe them, nor of Faith, Repentance, &c.

Anſw. That the Lord God is able perfectly to redeem from Sin in this life; that he can caſt out the ſtrong man, cleanſe the Houſe, and make it fit for himſelf to dwell in; that he can finiſh tranſgreſſion and ſin in the heart, and bring in everlaſting righteouſneſs; that he can tread down Satan under the feet of his Saints, and make them more than Conquerors over him; this they confeſs they ſteadily believe. But that every one that is turned to the light of the Spirit of Chriſt in his heart, is preſently advanced to that ſtate, they never held forth: but that the way is long, the travel hard, the enemies and difficulties many, and that there is need of much Faith, Hope, Patience, Repentance, Watchfulneſs againſt Temptations, &c. before the life in them arrive at ſuch a Pitch. Yet for all this, ſaith Chriſt to his Diſciples, Be ye perfect, directing them to aim at ſuch a thing, and the Apoſtle ſaith, Let us go on unto perfection, and Chriſt gave a Miniſtry for the perfecting of the Saints: and they do not doubt but that he that begins the work can perfect it even in this life, and ſo deliver them out of the hands of Sin, Satan, and all their ſpiritual enemies, as that they may ſerve God without fear of them any more in holineſs and righteouſneſs before him all the days of their lives.

Now how is this Doctrine, or how is this People becauſe of their believing and holding forth this Doctrine, guilty of all this great and heavy charge that is laid upon them here, as that they have no need of Chriſt, his Satisfaction, his Blood, nor of Faith, Repentance, growing in Grace, Gods Word and Ordinances, nor of Watchfulneſs and Prayer, &c. Let us conſider the thing a little further.

Firſt, The Doctrine of Perfection, if it ſhould be granted to deny all this, yet cannot be ſuppoſed to deny the need thereof, until the ſtate of Perfection be attained. Nay, they that truly believe that ſuch a ſtate is attainable, cannot deny the uſe of thoſe things which are proper to lead to that ſtate, but will conſcientiouſly apply themſelves thereto, and preſs all others thereto, who deſire to attain that ſtate. And they that have either heard them ſpeak, or read their Writings with any equality of mind, may abundantly teſtifie for them againſt the unrighteouſneſs and injury of this charge. Their life lies in Chriſt, their peace in his ſatisfaction for them, and in a ſenſible feeling of his bloud ſprinkled in their Conſciences to cleanſe them from Sin; and by that Faith which s Gods gift, they feel, and wait further to feel the righteousness of Christ imputed to hem for Justification. And as for being perfectly just in themselves, it is a very unrighte- us charge upon them: for their Justice and righteousness is in Christ for ever, and not f themselves; but in the denyal and crucifying of self are they made partakers of it, hich is bestowed by the free grace, mercy and power of him who hath mercy on them, nd not by any willing or running of theirs. And as for Repentance, they feel the need of , and find a godly sorrow wrought in them, and a bitter mourning over him whom hey once pierced, and still pierce, so far as they hearken to the Tempter, and follow he motions and lusts of the Transgressing nature. And they do both Watch and Pray gainst Sin, and feel what a bitter thing it is to have the Watch so slackned, whereby he Temptation prevails, which would lead to sin. And as for purifying themselves daily, nd putting off the old man, and putting on the new; it is that which their hearts delight o be continually exercised about: and all this with an hope that it may be effected, that he Vessel may be made holy to the Lord, a fit spiritual Temple for him to dwell in, hat he may display his Life, Glory, Power, and pure presence in them But if the belief hat this may be attained, in the way wherein God leadeth them towards it, and an ope to attain it, with an acknowledgment of it so far as it is attained; I say, if this nake them guilty of so great a charge, then they are indeed guilty: for they cannot but elieve it, wait for it, hope for it, and acknowledge it, so far as they feel it wrought in hem. But how can this possibly make them guilty of denying these things, seeing the xercise of these things not only standeth with, but is increased by such a belief nd hope?

Secondly, The state of Perfection it self doth not exclude these things, in such a way as his charge seems to intimate. For in the state of perfection, the bloud is not laid aside as eless, but remains to keep pure for ever. It is the Blood of the everlasting Covenant, (Heb: 3 20) both the Covenant and the Blood last for ever, and are useful even to them that re perfect. And there is need and use of the Faith in the Bloud, to believe the preserva- ion As the Covenant it self lasts; so that which lets into, and keeps in the Covenant asts also. That which unites, and ties the Soul to Christ the life, abides in the Soul for ver, even as the union it self abides. And there is a growing in the life, even where he heart is purified from Sin, even as Christ did grow and wax strong in Spirit: for a tate of perfection doth not exclude degrees. And so there is also a need of watching gainst Temptations in a perfect state; for Adam was perfect, and yet he needed a atch: and Christ was perfectly pure and without sin, and yet he did both Watch and ray. So that if any were brought to the perfect state of a man, even unto the measure f the stature of the fulness of Christ, which the Ministry was given to bring all the Saints nto, Ephes. 4. 11, 12, 13. if any were taught and enabled so to walk in the light, as o be cleansed by the Blood from all Sin, and to have such fellowship with the Father, nd the Son, as might make their Joy full, 1 John 1. 3, 4, 7. If any were brought to that tate of Glory, as to be chast Virgins, 2 Cor. 11. 2. without spot or wrinkle of the flesh, ut holy and without blemish, Ephes 5 27. If any should be made perfect in every ood work to do his will, which was a thing the Apostle prayed for, Heb. 13. 21. If any hould have so put of the old man, and have put on the Wedding Garment, as to be made ready and fit to be marryed to the Lamb, Rev. 19. 7. Yet this would not exclude aith in the blood, or Prayer, or Watchfulness to keep the Garment pure, &c. nor rowth in the life. And this we are not ashamed to profess, that we are pressing after, and some have already attained very far, even to be made perfect as pertaining to the Conscience, being so ingrafted into Christ the power of God, so planted into the likeness of his Death and Resurrection, so encompassed with the Walls and Bulwarks of Salvation, as that they feel no condemnation for sin, but a continual justification of the life, being taught, led, and inabled to walk, not after the flesh but after the Spirit, Rom. 8. 1.

From what they have said concerning this opinion of perfection (as they call it) they draw an Argument against their other Doctrines in these words. Such fundamentals of Christianity are overthrown by this one Opinion of theirs, and how more by all their other Doctrines?

Answ. To which I shall say this, if their Grounds and Proofs against any other Doctrines of the Quakers, be no more weighty and demonstrative, then those they have here brought forth against the Doctrine of perfection, they may spare entertaining p judices against them and condemning them, and in the first place weigh them in a m equal Ballance than they have done this. And I dare appeal to any naked and unby sed Spirit, who shall fairly consider what is above-written, whether the Doctrine perfection be such an hideous error as they have represented it? Nay whether it be a precious truth of the Gospel of Christ, and a great incouragement to him who s follow the command of Christ, who saith, be ye perfect, to believe that (in the way Faith and Obedience) he may be wrought up to such an estate by the Free-grace, M cy, Love, and Power of God? Yea, let me add this Word more, he that feeleth everlasting Arm working one sin out of his heart, cannot but believe that the same A can work out all, and pluck up every Plant which the heavenly Father hath not plan which hope and belief causeth him with joy to follow this Arm through the Regener on. But if I did believe there were no perfecting the work of Redemption in this but I must still in part be a Slave to Satan, still crying out of the Body of sin and de and never have my part purified for the holy One to inhabit in, but remain in part converted, unchanged, unregenerated, unsanctified, Oh how heavily should I on, I am sure it would be as a weight upon my Spirit in resisting of Sin and Sa This is not the glad Tidings of the everlasting Gospel, but sad news from the bord of death, which would keep the creature not only in the bonds of death but w out hope of deliverance in this life, and refer the hope to that day wherein th is no more working out of Redemption, but the eternal judgment of the Tre it falls.

Now, having after this manner proved that the Doctrines of the Quakers ar structive to the fundamental truths of Religion, they lay down their argument wi upon they conclude that it is lawful for them, nay their duty to put them to deat these Words. Now the commandment of God is plain, that he that presumes to spea in the name of the Lord, and turns people out of the way which the Lord hath comman walk in, such an one must not live but be put to death, Zech. 13. 3. Deut. 1 and 18, 20, Answ. 1. By what hath been said against them, it is not manifest that they hav ken lies in the name of the Lord. Nay, if they themselves who thus charge th could but soberly and mildly, with a Christian Spirit, weigh the thing, would i rather appear, that they in thus falsly charging them, and managing such untrue unrighteous arguments against them, have spoken lies, both concerning them, an gainst the Lord and his Truth? And as for turning men out of the way, that cannot justly charged on them, who turn men to Christ the living Way, and deliver the s message the Apostles did, that God is light, and in him is no darkness at all, and who p them to that place, where God hath said, this light is to be found, which is the h where God writes the new Covenant, and the Laws thereof, Heb. 8. where the W of Faith is nigh, Rom. 10. Surely they that direct hither, do not turn men out of t way. But they that point men to guess at the meanings of Scriptures, and to gain knowledge, and form rules to themselves out of it by their own natural Wit and U derstanding, which can never reach the mysteries of the Kingdom of God, and which God hides the true knowledge of the Scriptures from, these are those that turn men out of the way. For they that rightly understand the Scriptures, must first receive a measure of the Spirit to understand it with; even as they that wrote any part thereof, did first receive a measure of the Spirit to write it by.

2. It is not manifest by these places quoted, that the Governours of New-England have received authority from the Lord to put the Quakers to death, if their Doctrines were such as they accuse them to be. That of Deut. 13. 6. is a manifest case concerning one that should tempt to the following of other Gods, of the Gods of the people round about, nigh or far off, in such a case the offender was to be stoned to death, v. 10: but is this appliable to cases of Doctrine? That of Deut. 18. 20. gives a clear note how the Prophet may be known that speaks a lie in the name of the Lord, and what kind of lie it is, for which he is to be put to death, ver. 22. but it doth not say that every man in the Commonwealth of Israel, that holdeth any Doctrine contrary to what some of them might call the fundamental Doctrines of the Law, should be put to death. That of Zech. 13. 3. is a Prophesie, not a Command, and is not to be understood in mans Wisdom, dom, nor to be fulfilled in mans Will. It were better to wait for the true openings of Prophesies in the Spirit, than to let the carnal part loose to gather somewhat out of them for the satisfying of the flesh, and making its thirst after the bloud of God's Lambs appear more plausible. I would but put this question to your consciences in the sight of God, whether in a conscientious submission to the Will of God in this Scripture, ye put them to death, or whether from this Scripture ye seek Shelter and Cover for the thing, having already done it, or fully purposed to do it?

So that the case is not here the same with any of the cases mentioned in those Scriptures: for if some of their Doctrines were lies (which ye have been very far from proving) yet it was not for such kind of lies that death was appointed in the Commonwealth of Israel. And yet there is a large difference between what was lawful to be done in the Kingdom or Commonwealth of Israel, and what is now lawful to be done. The Kingdom or Commonwealth of Israel was a state outwardly representative, of what was inwardly to be done in the state of the Gospel by Christ the King thereof. He is the King and Law-giver to his people, and he is their Judge concerning their receiving or rejecting them, concerning their obeying or disobeying them, concerning their holding the Faith, or their letting go the Faith; and maintaining things contrary thereto. And he doth judge his people here in this life, so far as he thinks fit, Heb. 10. 30, 31. reserving also what he thinks fit for another time of judgment, Acts 17. 31. And who is he that shall take his office out of his hand, and judge one of his servants in the things of his Kingdom? Rom. 14. 4. Is not this an intruding into Christ's Kingly office? He gave authority to, and command for the doing of such things outwardly before his coming, as might represent what he would do inwardly after his coming: but where hath he given authority since his coming to do such things any more? Doth not the typical King, with his typical Government cease, after that King with his Government which it figured out, is come?

O Governours of New-England, to take away the life of a man is a weighty thing, and the Lord will not hold him guiltless, who either doth it in a violent manner, or who maketh an unjust Law to do it by. But how precious in the sight of the Lord, is the death of his Saints! O how will ye be able to bear the weight of their bloud, when the Lord maketh inquisition for it. Ye had need have a very clear warrant in this case. O how will ye answer this thing at the judgment Seat of Christ! Alass, such arguments as these will stand you in little stead: But ye have done it, and now must maintain it: and it is exceeding hard for you (being thus deeply ingaged in the sight of the Nations) to come to a sober and serious consideration of the state of the case, as it stands before the Lord.

2. The second Ground or Consideration which they hold forth to their clear Law of banishment and death against the Quakers, to be warrantable and just, is this. Because they are far from giving that honour and reverence to Magistrates which the Lord requireth, and good men have given to them: but on the contrary, shew contempt against them in their very outward gesture and behaviours, and some of them at least spare not to belch railing and cursing Speeches, &c.

Answ. That we do not give that honour and reverence to Magistrates which the Lord requireth, deserves a weighty proof. For what we do, or forbear in this kind, we do as in the sight of the Lord, as persons who are not only liable to suffer from men, but also to give an account to him at the last day. Now towards Magistrates our carriage is thus, as in the presence of the Lord.

1. We observe their commands in all things that are according to God. We submit our selves to the Government that is Supreme, and to the Governours under the Supreme, for the Lord's sake, who in their several places ought to be for the punishment of evil doers, and for the praise of them that do well, according to 1 Pet. 2. 13, 14: This is God's Ordinance, and here Magistracy is in its right place, namely, in punishing the evil-doer for his evil-deeds, but not make a man an offender for a word, or for a gesture, which is neither good nor evil in it self, but as it is done. He that pulleth off his Hat or boweth in flattery, or to please man, in him it is evil: He that forbeareth to do it in obedience to God, and in the fear of his name, in him it is good.

2. When any Magistrates punish us for well-doing, for our obedience to the Lord's Spirit, though we know God never gave power to any Magistracy, to punish therefore, yet we patiently suffer under them, referring our cause to him that judgeth righteously, and waiting on him for strength to carry us through our sufferings for his Names sake.

3. When we appear before them, we appear as in the Lord's presence, desiring his guidance, that we may give due honour and respect to all that is of him in them, and may be kept from honouring or pleasing that which is not of him, and which he would not have us honour. This is the temper of our Spirits, and accordingly is our carriage as in the sight of the Lord, what ever men deem of us.

But the great matter is, because we do not pull off our Hats, and bow to them, or that we use plain Language to them, (as thou and thee to a particular person) which some of them will needs interpret to be contempt, though others of them who are more sober and considerate, can clearly discern that it is not at all in contempt either to their Authority, or their Persons, but in a meer single-hearted obedience to God. Now to drive this a little towards a fair trial, consider in meekness, and in God's fear.

1. What kind of honour this is, which is thus much stood upon? Is it the honour which is from above, or the honour which is from below? What part springs it from in man? From the New-birth, or from the earthly nature? And what doth it please in man? Doth it please that which is begotten of God? Doth it please the Meekness, the Humility, the Lowliness the new Nature? Or doth it please and help to keep up the old nature, the lofty Spirit, even that part which is prone in every man to be exalted out of the fear of God? For this I may freely say, that whatsoever is of the earth hath an aptness in it to feed the earthly part: and particularly, this of outward bowing to the Creature, is apt to hurt him that receiveth it. In mans giving and receiving honour God hath been forgotten. They have forgotten God, who have been giving honour to one another; and they have forgotten God, who have been receiving honour from one another. And what if the Lord, who hath made us sensible of the evil herein, hath laid a restraint upon us? Can any forbid the Lord from laying such a thing upon us? Or is it lawful for any to go about to hinder us from obeying the Lord therein? Thou who art thus eager in contending for honour, Art thou sure it is not the evil part in thee which doth desire it? If it be the good part in thee, thou wilt desire it in meekness and gentleness, yea and wilt be able to bear the want of it with joy, when it is denyed thee upon such an account, that it may run more purely towards the Lord,

Now if it be earthly honour, it is of a perishing nature, it is not always to last, but is one of the fashions of this World which is to pass away (how long a time soever it hath had) and God may call his people from it at his pleasure: and if he call from it, they must leave it off though the earthly nature and power be never so angry therein. The Lord hath let men have a long day, wherein man hath been lifted up, and appeared great by receiving that honour which is of the earth, not of the Faith: but at length the Lord will bring forth his day, wherein he will be great, and have every Knee bow to him, and every Tongue confess to him: and then man shall be little, and his honour fall, and the Lord alone be exalted, Isa. 2. 17.

2. Doth not the Image of God grow up into the likeness of God? Doth God respect mens persons? Did Christ regard any mans person? Did not James say, If ye have respect to persons, ye commit sin, and are convinced of the Law, as transgressors, James 2. 9. Of what Law? Of the Law of Faith, which exalteth the New-birth, and layeth flat the creature in its transgressing nature, estate, and honour. For saith Christ, who received not honour from men, nor gave honour to men, How can ye believe, which receive honour one of another? John 5. 44. That which receiveth earthly honour, is of the earth, and cannot believe: and that which giveth earthly honour, is of the Earth, and so not of the Faith. The Faith is a denying of the earth, a taking up of the Cross to the earthly honour, which is as a block in the way of Faith. How can ye believe, when ye cherish that part in you which is against the Faith? The immortal Seed of life, in the day of the Gospel, grows up out of the earth, leaving it with its customs fashions, honours, and its nature and worship too behind it?

So

So that look into the ground of the thing, with the eye which seeth over the transgressing state, and over all things which have sprung up from the transgressing part, and which please that part which is out of the Faith, out of the life and power drawn from God into the earth, and it will be manifest that earthly honour hath its root, foundation and service there; but falleth off like a shackle from mans Spirit, as the life riseth in him and as he is redeemed out of the earth.

Now as for Abraham's and Jacob's Bowings, &c. Those things had their season under the Law (which made nothing perfect) as other things had, but now God calleth every man to bow to the Son, and will not permit so much as bowing to an Angel, who is far more honourable than any Magistrate. And the Son calleth to honour the Father, and to seek the honour which cometh from God only: and he that will be his Disciple, must take up his Cross to the earthly part, and follow him, who neither gave earthly honour, nor received earthly honour, but condemned it, John 5. 44. Therefore let men consider the ground of the thing, and the different state between Jews under the Law, and Christians under the Gospel, and not think the bringing of instances from them of old time, can dispence with us in following Christ according to the Law of Faith, who gave us this pattern of not receiving or giving honour to mens persons, and let not the weight of our plea (it having so great impression on our hearts) be despised by any that pretend relation to our Lord and Master, which I shall briefly thus recite.

1. It is the single and sincere desire of our Hearts, to give all the Honour and Obedience to Magistates, which is due unto them according to the Scriptures.

2. It is manifest that we are careful of observing all just Laws; and patient in suffering through unjust Laws, or where the Magistrate doth persecute us without or against Law.

3. This kind of honour of pulling off the hat, and bowing to the person, we do not find commanded in Scripture, but we find Christ's command against it, who saith follow me; who both denyed to receive it, and did not give it; but condemned it. And we find its rise to be from the earthly part, and to the earthly part it is given, which it pleaseth, being given to it, or is offended at being denyed it: And this part we are taught by the Lord to crucifie in our selves, and not to cherish in others.

4. The bowing of persons under the Law (which was an earthly state, wherein many things were permitted, which are not permitted under the Gospel) doth not bind Christians under the Gospel, nor doth not limit the Spirit of God from taking of any one or more, or all of his people, from giving that which the earthly part calleth honour, to that which is of the earth.

5. We do appeal to the Lord our God (who is our judge and Law-giver) that he hath laid this upon our Spirits, and hath smitten several of us, when there hath arisen so much as a desire in us to please men in this particular: and in the fear of his name, and in obedience to him we do forbear it, and not either in contempt of authority, or of the persons in authority.

6. We find by much experience, that the forbearing of this is a service to our Lord and Master, and an hurt to his enemy. It offendeth the passionate, it offendeth the rough, it offendeth the proud and lofty, that Spirit is soon touched and stirred by it; but that which is low, that which is meek, that which is humble, that which is gentle, that is easily drawn from valuing and minding of it, and findeth an advantage therein. And of a truth the earthly Spirit knows, and feels that God is taking the honour from it, and giving it to the meek and humble, which makes it muster up its forces and arguments to hold it as long as it can.

Now what moderate man (much more any Christian) could not forgo the puting off of an hat, or bowing of the knee upon so solemn and weighty an account as this. If this were thine own case, Wouldst thou be forced, imprisoned, fined, or have this made an argument against thee to banish thee or put thee to death? Thou dost not know how the Lord may visit thee by his Spirit, and what he may require of thee. He may call thee also to give forth thy Testimony (and to fight under the Banner of his Spirit) against all the fashions, customs, honours, yea and worships of this World. That which is born of God, is not of this World: and as it groweth up in any earthen veſſel, ſo it draweth the veſſel alſo more and more out of this World. Ye are not of the World (but called out of the World) therefore the World hates you. That which can pleaſe the World, that which can bow to it and honour it, that the World loves; but the immortal Seed which cannot bow, but teſtifies againſt the Worlds honours, that they are not of the Father, but of the World, this ſeed the World hates, and the Veſſels in whom it bubbles up, and through whom it giveth forth its Teſtimony againſt the World.

Object: But in the New Teſtament Luke ſtiles Theophilus moſt excellent, and Paul ſpeaking to Feſtus ſaid, moſt noble Feſtus, which are terms or expreſſions of Honour and Reverence.

Anſw. Chriſt did promiſe his Diſciples and Miniſters that he would be with them, and give them what to ſay. Now if nobility and true excellency did appear in any perſons, and he led them by his Spirit to acknowledge it, this is no ſufficient warrant for men to do the like in their own wills, or to give ſuch Titles to perſons being in Authority, whether they be ſuch perſons or no. Luke knew Theophilus to be excellent, and he was led by the Spirit of God to ſtile him excellent: for by the Spirit of God he wrote that Scripture, Luke 1. 3. wherein he ſo ſtiles him. And for Feſtus, he that ſhall ſtrictly obſerve his carriage, will find it to be very noble, in that he would not be won by the importunity and informations of the High Prieſt and chief of the Jews, and of the multitude alſo againſt Paul, but applyed himſelf to an upright conſideration of the cauſe Acts 25. 2, 24. to the end. The ſame Spirit which ſhewed the unworthy carriage and ignobleneſs of the High Prieſt, and zealous profeſſing Jews, might move Paul to ſet the mark of honour upon Feſtus. The Lord loveth truth in the heart, and truth in words and the following of the guidance of his Spirit into truth: but to give a man high Titles meerly becauſe he is great and high in the out ward, without diſcerning that he is ſuch and without the leading of Gods Spirit ſo to do, this is of the fleſh, according to the will of the fleſh, out of the faith, and not according to truth and righteouſneſs: and the fear of the Lord there is a watch ſet over our ſpirits in theſe things, leſt we ſhould eſteem and honour men according to the will of the fleſh, and not in the Lord. Titles of Office, or of Relations, as Maſter, Father, &c. we find freedom to give, but Titles which tend towards flattery, or exalting man out of his place, and the lifting up of the heart above his Brethren, we have not freedom in the Lord to uſe; and Elihu alſo found a reſtraint upon him in this reſpect, Job 32. 21, 22.

Object. It is noted as a brand and reproach of falſe Teachers, that they deſpiſe Dominion and ſpeak evil of Dignities, 2 Pet. 2. 10. and Jude 8. Now it is well known that the profeſſors of the Quakers, is but too like thoſe falſe Teachers, &c.

Anſw. It were worth a narrow ſearch and enquiry what the Dominion and Dignities (or Glories) are, which the falſe Teachers ſpeak evil of, or Blaſpheme, &c. Search the Scriptures, where do ye find the falſe Teachers ſpeaking evil of the earthly Authorities? nay they ſtill cling cloſe to them, exalt them, get them of their ſide and cry them up, and will be ſure enough never to fail in pleaſing the Magiſtrate with cringing and bowing, or any thing of that nature. But there is the Dominion of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt in the heart, there is the rule of his ſpirit over the fleſhly part, there is the truth in the inner man, there are ſpiritual Dignities (or Glories) theſe the falſe Teachers in all ages did deſpiſe, and were not afraid to ſpeak evil of, though they ſhould have feared to ſpeak evil of the movings, and guidings, and loweſt appearings of the ſpirit of God (which excel in nature and worth the greateſt earthly Dignities) yet they have not, but have blaſphemed the holy life and appearances of God in his people, nay, they have not ſpared his more eminent breakings forth in his very Prophets, Holy Apoſtles, or Chriſt himſelf. Mark what they ſpake evil of, they ſpake evil of the things they knew not, verſ. 10. What were the things they knew not? The inward movings and vertue of his ſpirit, the inward power, life, glory, and dominion of truth in the heart they knew not: it was againſt Chriſt in his people their evil deeds and hard ſpeeches were, verſe 15. But as for the high and great ones, the dominions and dignities of the earth, they knew them well enough, and did not ſpeak evil of them, but had their perſons in admiration, becauſe of the aduantage they had by them, verſ. 16. They have always had a double advantage from theſe, both of gain to themſelves, and of overbearing the Lambs of Chriſt by their great ſwelling words. The Lord hath ſtill ſo ordered it in his wiſdom both before the coming of Christ, at his coming, and since, that the false Prophets and Teachers should still have the advantage of the outward Authorities, and his people be a poor, afflicted, despised, persecuted Remnant, whose glory is inward, and cannot be discerned by the outward eye, no not of Gods Israel. See the dignities particularly expressed, Revel. 13. 6. The name of God, his holy power in his people, the Tabernacle which is sanctified and made honourable for him by his Spirit, them that dwell in Heaven, who are redeemed out of the earth, and have their conversation above, these are dignities which the earthly authorities, nay the false Teachers themselves never knew the worth of, and so they are not afraid to blaspheme them. The first Beast, on which the false Church rode, with the second Beast, which are of the very race of these false Teachers, making an Image to the first Beast because of advantage, all join together in blaspheming these dignities, Rev. 13. and chap 17.

To open this a little further, John said in his days, that it was then the last time: For there were many Antichrists then come, 1 John 2. 18. From whence came they? They went out from us, saith he, but they were not of us, ver. 19. They were sensual, they had not the spirit, and so could not abide the presence, life, judgement, and power of the spirit, but seperated themselves, Jude 19. But whether went they, when they went out from the true Church? why, they went out into the World, 1 John 4. 2. They got the form of Godliness, which would stand well enough with the lusts and ease of the flesh, and went and preached up that in the World. And now speaking the things of God in the worldly spirit, the World could hear them, ver. 5. Thus having got a great party into the form of truth, now they blaspheme the power, now they mock at the movings of the spirit, the leadings of the spirit, the living name, the true Tabernacle, the true Inhabitants of Heaven, who have their conversation above in the Heavenly nature, in the Heavenly principle, in the pure Spirit of life (for as they are begotten by the Spirit, so they live in the Spirit and walk in the Spirit:) This the false Teachers (who have got the form of Doctrine and the form of Discipline, holding it in the fleshly wisdom, where they may hold their lusts too) mock at and blaspheme, Jude 18. And this hath been the great way of deceit since the Apostacy, God gathered a seperated people from the World, the false Teachers get the form of Godliness from them and set it up in the World, and then turn against the power, and deny it, speaking evil of, or Blaspheming the Spirit which is the Dominion, and his ministrations (in the spirits of his people) which are the Dignities or Glories of the New Testament, which excel all earthly Dignities, and also the ministration of the first Covenant, 2 Cor. 3. 7, 8.

So likewise for raylling Speeches. The false Prophets can speak smooth words; speaking in the fleshly wisdom, they can please the fleshly part in their very reproofs: but he that speaks from God, must speak his words, how harsh soever they seem to the fleshly part: And he that speaks in his Name, Spirit, Majesty and Authority is exalted high above the consideration of the person to whom he speaks. What is a Prince, a Magistrate, a Ruler before the Lord, but clay or dust and ashes? If the Lord bid any of his servants call that which was once the faithful City, Harlot, and say concerning her Princes that they are rebellious, and companions of Thieves, Isa. 1. 21. and 23. What is the poor earthen Vessel, that it should go to change or mollifie this Speech? And so for the false Prophets and Teachers: If the Spirit of the Lord (in the meanest of his Servants) call them idol-Shepherds, Hirelings, Thieves, Robbers, Dogs, dumb Dogs, greedy dumb Dogs that cannot bark, (though they can speak smooth, pleasing words enough to fleshly Israel and the earthly great ones) generation of Vipers, Hypocrites, whited Sepulchers, Graves that appear not, &c. who may reprove him for it, or find fault with the Instrument he chuses? Now man judging by the fleshly wisdom, may venture to call this rayling; and the Prophets of the Lord have been accounted rude, and mad, and troublers of Israel; and so it is at this day: but the Lord being angry with the Transgressor, may send a rough rebuke to him, by what messenger he pleaseth; and what is the poor Creature that he should gainsay his maker, and desire the Message might be smoother? But now these false Teachers who can speak smoothly to the fleshly part, flatter the great ones, and the Professors that fall in with their form of Doctrine and Discipline, they deny the power, blaspheme the movings and goings forth of the spirit of God in his people, and if any be drawn by the Spirit to separate from their formal way, and to seek after the life and presence of the power, him they cryed out of as a Sectary, a blaſphemer, an heretick, and ſo bring railing accuſations againſt that Life and Spirit by which he is drawn, and of him for following the drawings of it: and thus they become guilty of ſpeaking evil of what they know not, Jude 10. They that are drawn out of the Worlds worſhips, know from what they were drawn: but they that remain ſtill in them, do not know the power which drew out of them, nor into what it drew, but looking on it with a carnal eye, it appears mean to them, and ſo they readily diſdain it, and think they may ſafely ſpeak evil of it, though in truth they know it not.

And as for curſings; Theſe are children of the curſe, as well as of the bleſſing: and the Spirit of the Lord may pronounce his curſe againſt any children of the curſe by whom he pleaſes, Curſe ye Meroz, curſe ye bitterly, the inhabitants thereof, Judges 5. 23. And yet Meroz did not perſecute, but only not come to the help of the Lord againſt the mighty. So the profeſſing Jews with their Rulers and Teachers were curſed by the Spirit of the Lord, Pſalm 69 22. &c. So Judas was curſed, Pſalm 109. 6. &c. For Peter applieth it to him, Acts 1. 20. Now if the curſe be cauſeleſs, it ſhall not come, Prov. 26 2. And well will it be with him whom men cauſleſly curſe, (Mat. 5. 11.) although they were the higheſt, devouteſt and moſt zealous profeſſing Jews, with their Prieſts and Rulers in thoſe days; and although they ſhould be the higheſt, moſt zealous, and devout formal Chriſtians, with their Rulers and Teachers in theſe days, who may have got this form, as well as they got that form, and yet hold the truth in the unrighteouſneſs, and deny the power, as falſe teachers formerly did, who held the form, 2 Tim. 3. 5. But the caſe of Shimei is not at all proper to the thing in hand, becauſe he did not pretend to curſe in the Lord's name and authority, but manifeſtly out of the fear of God, curſed the Lord's anointed in his low ſtate. Neither were theſe two Quakers put to death for curſing. So that if Humphry Norton were never ſo blamable, yet that reacheth not to them, but is to be reckoned to him that did it, who is to ſtand or fall to his own maſter therein. Yet this I may ſay, becauſe it is ſo extraordinary a caſe (we having not known the like) that if he had not the Lords clear warrant for what he did, ſurely the Lord will ſeverely judge him, for ſpeaking ſo peremptorily and preſumtuouſly in his name, if not required by him.

And ſo as touching contemptuous carriages. When there is not Contempt in the heart it is not eaſie to ſhew contemptuous carriages: but the fleſhly part miſſing of the honour which is pleaſing to it, and being offended thereby, is ready to apprehend that to be ſpoken and done in contempt, which is ſpoken and done in the humility and fear of the Lord.

3. A third Ground or Conſideration to juſtifie their Law of baniſhment and death of the Quakers, is drawn from Solomon's confining of Shimei, and of putting him to death for breach of his confinement, whereupon they argue, that If execution of death be lawful upon breach of confinement, may not the ſame be ſaid for breach of baniſhment, baniſhment being ſo ſtrait, but giving more liberty than confinement?

Anſw. The queſtion is not whether the Magiſtrate upon no occaſion may baniſh upon pain of death, but whether the baniſhment of the Quakers upon pain of death was juſt or no? If it were never ſo manifeſt that a Magiſtrate might baniſh, and put to death in caſe of not obſerving his Law of baniſhment, yet that doth not prove that every Law of baniſhment is juſt, and that the death of ſuch as do not obey their Law, is juſt alſo: he may make a Law in his own ſelf-will, pride, paſſion, reſolvedneſs and ſtiffneſs of Spirit, and ſo draw the ſufferings of perſons under that Law (either of baniſhment or death) upon his own head. Now the Quakers coming in the name of the Lord, by his Commiſſion, and upon his Work (whom all the Magiſtrates of the earth are to reverence and bow before) if Magiſtrates will preſume to make a Law to baniſh them upon pain of death, yet if the Lord require them either to ſtay or return, they know whom to fear and obey, which delivers them from the fear of them who can only torture and kill the body: and they had rather die in obedience to the Lord, than feel the weight of his hand upon their Souls for their diſobedience. It is not in this caſe as it is in ordinary baniſhment upon civil accounts, where it is in mens will and power to abſtain from the place from which they are baniſhed; but they muſt fulfil the will of their Lord, not at all regarding what befalls them therein.

4. The fourth Ground or Conſideration to juſtifie their Law of baniſhment and death againſt againſt the Quakers, is drawn from the right and propriety which every man hath in his own House and Land, and from the unreaſonableneſs and injuriouſneſs of anothers intruding and entring into it, having no authority thereto, yea and when the owner doth expreſly prohibit and forbid the ſame. And that if any preſume to enter thus without legal authority, he might juſtly be impleaded as a Thief or Uſurper; and if in caſe of violent aſſault he ſhould be killed, his bloud would be upon his own head. Whereupon it is argued thus, that If private perſons may in ſuch a caſe ſhed the bloud of ſuch intruderr, may not the like be granted to them that are the publick Keepers and Gaurdians of the Commonwealth? Have not they as much power to take away the lives of ſuch, as contrary to prohibition ſhall invade or intrude into their publick Poſſeſſions or Territories? And that the Quakers do thus invade and intrude without authority, they urge thus. For who can believe that Quakers are Conſtables to intrude themſelves, invade, and enter, whether the Colony will or no, yea contrary to their expreſs prohibition? If in ſuch violent and bold attempts, they loſe their lives, they may thank themſelves, as the blamable cauſe and authors of their own death.

Anſw. It is no invaſion nor intruſion, for any Meſſengers and Servants of the Lord to enter into any part of his earth at his command, upon his errand, and about his Work. And if any ſhould be ſo ſent to the houſe of a particular perſon, to deliver a meſſage from the Lord, and the owner of the houſe inſtead of hearing and conſidering his Meſſage in meekneſs and fear, whether it were of God or no, ſhould be rough and violent with him, and command him off before he had delivered his meſſage, and either upon his not immediate going off, or his return with another meſſage, (for the Lord if he pleaſe may ſend him again) ſhould fall upon him and kill him; upon whoſe head would this mans bloud light?

2. If men will needs have it go for an invaſion, it is an invaſion of a ſpiritual nature, and the defence from it cannot be by carnal Weapons. Killing of mens perſons, is not the way to ſuppreſs either truth or error. How have the Papiſts been able to defend their Kingdom, or ſuppreſs the truth by their bloudy Weapons? They may prevail in their Territories againſt mens perſons for a ſeaſon, but the truth will have a time of dominion, and will in the mean time be getting ground in mens minds and conſciences by the ſufferings of the witneſſes to it. Nay, my friends, if ye will defend your ſelves from this invaſion, ye muſt get better Weapons.

3. Is this your rule concerning any that ſhall come in the name of the Lord, that if they be not Conſtables, or other earthly Officers, ye will baniſh them and put them to death? Is the Lord of Heaven and Earth limited to ſend none but Conſtables among you? Well, ye may judge by your Law while your day laſts; but the Lord in his day will clear his Servants and Meſſengers, though they have not been Conſtables, and lay it upon the head of them who have unrighteouſly ſhed it.

5. The fifth Ground or Conſideration whereby they juſtifie their Law of Baniſhment and Death againſt the Quakers, is this. Corruption of mind and judgment is a great infection and defilement, and it is the Lords command that ſuch corrupt perſons be not received into the houſe, which plainly enough implies that the houſholder hath power enough to keep them out, and that it was not in their power to come, if they pleaſed, whether the houſholder would or no. And if the Father of the Family muſt keep them out of his Houſe, the Father of the Commonwealth muſt keep them out of his Juriſdiction (they being nurſing Fathers, and nurſing Mothers by the account of God.) So that what an houſholder may do againſt perſons that are infected with the Plague or Peſtilence, (who may kill them if otherwiſe he cannot keep them out of his houſe) a Magiſtrate may do the like for his Subjects. And if Sheep and Lambs cannot be preſerved from the danger of Wolves, but the Wolves will break in amongſt them, it is eaſie to ſee what the Shepheard or Keeper of the Sheep may lawfully do in ſuch a caſe.

Anſw. It is granted, that Corruption of mind and judgment is defiling and infectious, and therefore every heart that knows the preciouſneſs of truth is to wait on the Lord in his fear, in the uſe of theſe means which he hath appointed for preſervation from it; but that killing the perſons is one of the means God hath appointed, this is ſtill the thing in controverſie, and is ſtill denyed to be either proper in it ſelf, or ſanctified by God to this end. The Apoſtles ſays, there muſt be Hereticks, that they which are approved may be made manifeſt, 1 Cor. 11. 19. but he doth not ſay, hereafter when there are Christians Magistrates, they must banish or cut off the Hereticks, as fast as they spring up: but God hath use of these things, for the exercising of the Spirits of his people, and the truth gains by overcoming them in the Faith and Power of the Spirit. And so, as touching Wolves, the Apostle Paul called the Elders of the Church of Ephesus, and told them, that after his departure, grievous Wolves should enter in among them, not sparing the Flock, Acts 20. 28, 29, 31. The Lord hath put into the hands of his Shepherd a Sword, which will pierce to the heart of the Wolf, he standing faithful in the power of God, in the life of righteousness, need not fear any Wolf, but by the power of the Spirit and presence of the Truth, shall be able to preserve the consciences of his Flock pure to God. What kind of Shepherd is he, that cannot defend his Flock without the Magistrates Sword? But take away that, the Wolf breaks in, and preys upon his Sheep. Surely the true Shepherd, who knows the vertue of the sword God hath put into his hand, will never call to the Magistrate for his sword of another nature, which cannot touch the Wolf, the Heretick, the Seducer, but only flesh and bloud, with which the Ministers of Christ never wrestled nor fought. And this is not the way to preserve the hearts and consciences of the Flock (it may perhaps strike terror into the fleshly nature) but their consciences are so much the more apt to be wrought upon by the Doctrines, Patience, and Sufferings of those who are thus dealt with. The Magistrates sword being thus used, doth not at all preserve that which is tender, but hurts it, disingages it, stirs up a Witness in it against those that thus go about to defend that which they call truth, that built up their Jerusalem with bloud, and govern their flock with force, affrighting them from that which they call errors, and affrighting them into that which they call truth with an outward sword; whereas the true Temple is built in peace, governed in peace, maintained in peace, defended by peace, and Errorr and Hereticks dispelled by the power of the Spirit, manifesting the deceit to the conscience, and not by the sword of the Magistrate, dealing with them as with worldly Malefactors. Now this I say as before the Lord, The true Shepherd, who hath received the sword of the Spirit, and hath tried the vertue of it, cannot distrust it, cannot desire the Magistrates help to outward force against Errors or heresies: he that looketh upon it as insufficient, and calleth to the Magistrate for his sword, plainly discovers that he hath not received or knoweth not the vertue of the true one, and dishonoureth both his Masters Word and Weapon.

For that place of 2 John 10. It is one thing for a man not to receive a man into his house, and another thing for him to kill that person who offers to come against his Will. Do ye believe in your hearts, that the Apostles intent was to direct the Christians whom he wrote, to keep them out by violence, and to kill them if they could not otherwise keep them out? Though the parallel is not proper, for God hath often sent his Servants into Countries, Cities, and places of resort, against the Will of the Rulers, Priests, and false Prophets, but never to break violently into any man's House.

The Magistrate keeping in his place, cannot but be a nursing Father to the Church; he let him draw out his sword against that wickedness which is proper for him to cut down, it will exceedingly help to nurse up the Church: but where hath the Magistrate Commission to meddle with any of the spiritual Shepherds Work? Nay, his sword was never appointed to cut down Errors, or Heresies, or Hereticks, but the sword of the Spirit, in the hand of the spiritual Shepherd. God hath set up an hedg between these two powers, which he that breaketh down layeth both wast as to their true use, vertue and order: and this Antichrist hath long done in many appearances. The bringing of these two to rights, setting each in its proper place, will give such a Wound to his Kingdom, as he will not be able to recover. And mark this by the way, Antichrist hath all along made use of the Magistrates sword to slay the Lambs, under the name of Hereticks, Sectaries, Wolves, Blasphemers: but Christ comes with the Spirit of his mouth to slay Antichrist, 2 Thes. 2. 8. That's the sword all the Hereticks, Seducers, and false Prophets were slain with in the Apostles days before the Apostacy, and that's the sword that Antichrist (who hath made use of the other sword against Christ all along the Apostacy) shall be slain with after the Apostacy. When Christ comes to fight against Antichrist (who hath cruelly torn, rent, and butchered his people under the name of Wolves) he will take his own sword which is the Words of his mouth: That did the work at first, that must do the work again. But in the midst, between these two seasons; there hath been bad work made with the Magistrates Swords, the Witnesses upon every appearance and breaking forth of Gods truth in them, having been liable to feel the smart of it.

6. Their sixt and last ground and consideration, whereby they justifie their Law of Banishment and Death against the Quakers, is this. It was the Commandment of the Lord Jesus unto his Disciples, that when they were persecuted in one City, They should flee unto another, and according it was his own practise and the practise of the Saints, who when they have been persecuted, have fled away for their own safety:

This (they say) reason requires, that when men have liberty unto it they should not refuse so to do, because otherwise they will be guilty of tempting God, and of incurring their own hurt, as having a fair way open for the avoiding thereof, but they needlesly expose themselves thereto. Whereupon they argue thus.

If therefore that which is done against the Quakers, were indeed Persecution, what Spirit may they be thought to be acted and led by, who are in their actings so contrary to the Commandment and example of Christ and of his Saints in the case of Persecution, which these men suppose to be their case? Plain enough it is, that if their case were the same, their actings are not the same, but quite contrary. So that Christ and his Saints were led by one Spirit, and these people by another: for rather than they would not shew their contempt of Authority, and make disturbance amongst his people, they chuse to go contrary to the express direction of Jesus Christ, and the approved Example of his Saints, to the hazard and peril of their own lives.

Answ. Afflictions, Tribulations, Tryals, Persecutions are not to be fled from, but to be born and passed through to the Kingdom, into which the entrance is through many of these, Acts 14.22. and Christ saith, he that will be his Disciple, must take up his Cross daily and follow him, Luke 9.23. Now Persecution for Christ is part of the Cross, which the Disciple must not run away from, but take up and follow Christ with. Yea the Apostle is very express, 2 Tim. 3.12. Yea, and all that will live Godly in Christ Jesus, shall suffer Persecution. It is the portion of all, and all must bear it. The World hateth and persecuteth (in some degree or other) all that are not of the World; and all must be content with their daily portion thereof, waiting on God for strength to bear the Cross, not flying it: and the Apostle commends the Hebrews for enduring the great fight of afflictions, Heb. 10.32,33,34. The Jews were zealous for the Law and Ordinance of Moses, and grievous Persecutors of the Christians (especially of such as had been of them before) now the Christians are commended for standing the shock, for bearing the brunt, for not fearing the loss of name, goods, life or any thing, but eying the heavenly Treasure. So Christ warning of Persecution, bids the Church to fear none of those things which she should suffer, but be faithful unto the Death: and he that thus overcometh, should not be hurt of the second death, Revel. 2.10, 11. and the Apostle Peter says, if ye suffer for righteousness sake happy are ye, and be not afraid of their terror, neither be troubled, 1 Pet. 3.14. and the Apostle Paul bids the Philippians, stand fast in one Spirit, with one mind striving together for the faith of the Gospel, and in nothing terrified by your Adversaries, which is to them an evident token of perdition, but to you of Salvation, and that of God. And the same Apostle who commended the Hebrews, as having done well in bearing the great fight of afflictions, encourages them to go on still, and not be weary or faint in their minds, but resist even to blood, eying Christ, who endured the contradiction of sinners to the very last, Aeb. 12.3,4. And he practised as he taught, for he was not terrified with bonds or afflictions, nor accounted his life dear unto him, but that which was dear unto him was the serving of his Lord and Master, in Preaching and Witnessing to his Truths, as his Spirit led him, Acts 20.23,24. trusting on the Lord to uphold him in enduring of them, or to deliver him out of them, as he pleased, 2 Tim. 3.11. but that which he, and the rest of the Apostles and Saints of Christ applyed themselves to in case of Persecution, was to suffer, 1 Cor. 4.12. And whoever they are that will be Christs faithful Disciples now, must look to meet with the same Cross as they did, not only from the Prophane World, but from the Worldly Professors also: for there were not only zealous Wordly Professors in that Age, but the same Spirit hath remained in every Age since, which still gets into the best form it can (when need requires) to oppose the power thereby. And they that are in the Spirit and in the Power, must expect to be Persecuted by such: and they are to bear it, and not to flie from it, unless by a particular call and dispensation from the Lord for a particular Service, which is not the rule (as it is here made) but rather an exception from the Rule. So Christ sending his Disciples in hast to Preach the Gospel, bids them not salute in the way, Luke 10. 4. nor be stopped by Persecution, but hasten to publish the sound of Christs coming in the Cities of Israel, For the Harvest was great, but the Labourers few, Mat. 9. 37. and yet notwithstanding all the hast they could make, they should not have gone over the Cities of Israel, before the Son of man come Mat.. 10. 23. There is a time to suffer Persecution, and a time to flee from Persecution; and both these are to be known in the Lord, and to be obeyed in the leadings of his Spirit: but to lay it down as a general rule for Christians to observe, that when they are persecuted, they should flee, this is expresly contrary to the Scriptures afore mentioned, which shew that Christians are not generally to flee, but to stand in the Service and Work to which they are called, bearing Witness not only by believing and publishing, but also by suffering for the Testimony of the Truth. They are Christs Souldiers, and their duty is to stand in the Battel, and bear all the Shot and Persecutions of the Enemy: if God call them off to any other Service, that is a sufficient Warrant for them, but flying upon other terms may prove a great dishonour to their Master, and to his cause, and truth, and may be the occasion of a great loss to their Spirits, who are so tempted to flee. Neither is this bearing the brunt of Persecutions, and standing in Gods Work and Service (notwithstanding them all, even unto Death) any tempting of God, but an obedient taking up of the Cross according to his Will and Command. And whereas you plead that reason requires it; what kind of reason is it which bids avoid the Cross of Christ, and flee for safety? And what kind of Spirit is that, which Preacheth this Doctrine, laying it down as a general Rule, for Christians to flee when they are Persecuted? Is it not that Spirit which would fain be at ease in the flesh, inasmuch as it self will rather persecute, than be disturbed of its fleshly liberty, though is very unwilling to bear the reproach of being accounted a Persecutor? Ah how did the Jews cry out against their Fathers for killing the Prophets, and verily thought if they had lived in their days, they should by no means have done it: and yet the same spirit was in them, though they saw it not, but thought themselves far from it. That which blinded them was a wrong knowledge of the Scriptures, and a great Zeal and Devotion about their Temple, Worship and Ordinances, without a sensible feeling of the guidance of Gods Spirit. The same Spirit that deceived them, layeth the same Snare in these days, and men swallow it as greedily, and with as great confidence as they did, the zealous Professors of Religion for the generality, still becoming Persecutors of the present appearance of Truth, not knowing what they do.

Thus in the fear of the Lord God, and in love to your Souls with a meek and gentle spirit (not being offended at what ye have done, but looking over it to the Lord, who bringeth Glory to his name, and advantage to his Truth by the Sufferings and Death of his Saints) have I answered your grounds and considerations, and in the same fear, love and meekness, have I some things further to propose to your considerations, which are of great concernment to you, and deserve to be weighed by an equal hand in the equal ballance, without prejudice or partiality.

1. Consider meekly and humbly, whether the Scriptures be the Rule of the Children of the new Covenant? for if the Scripture was not intended by God for the Rule, and ye take it to be the Rule, then ye may easily mistake the way to eternal life, and also err in your understanding and use of the Scriptures; making such an use of them as they were never intended for, and so missing of the true use and intent of them.

Now that the Scripture was not intended, nor given forth by God to be the rule of the Children of the New Covenant, besides our faithful Testimony from the sight of the thing in the true eternal light, weigh our Arguments from the Scripture, many are mentioned in our Writings, consider at present of these three.

1. The Scripture is an outward Rule or Law, but the Scripture saith, the Law of the New Covenant shall be an inward Law. It is written in the Prophets, that all the Children of the New Covenant, or new Jerusalem, shall be taught of the Lord (Isa. 54. 13. who teacheth them inwardly by his Spirit, and writeth his Law in their hearts, Jer. 31. 33, 34. and after this manner did the Lord take his People into Covenant with himself and nd teach them in the Apoſtles days, 1 John 2. 27. The Covenant is inward, the Teach-r inward, the Writing inward, the Law inward: and there it is to be read, learned and nown, where the Spirit Teacheth and Writeth it.

2. Scripture (or the writings of Moſes and the Prophets) was not the Law of the hildren of the New Covenant (as ſuch) not in the time of the old Govenant. The Law f Moſes was the rule of their outward ſtate, it was the rule of the outward Iſrael, but he rule of the inward Iſrael, no not then in thoſe days.

In Deut. 29 1. Moſes makes a Covenant with Iſrael by expreſs command from God, eſides the former Covenant which he made with them in Horeb. And he ſaith the Com-andement of this Covenant is not to be looked for where the other was written, but in nother place, in a place nearer to them, even in their mouth and in their heart, there hey were to read, hear, and receive the commandment of this Covenant. For this ommandment which I command thee this day, it is not hidden from thee, neither is it far ff, Deut. 30. 11. it is not in Heaven, ver. 12. neither is it beyond the Sea, ver. 13. but the ord is very nigh unto thee, in thy mouth, and in thy heart, that thou mayſt do it, ver. 14. and his was the way of life then, ver. 15. ſee (ſaith Moſes) I have ſet before thee this day life nd good, and Death and Evil. Here thy eternal happineſs depends: obey this word and ive, diſobey it and die. And if they had kept to this word, they would alſo have walk-d in obedience to the Law: but neglecting this, they could never keep the Law; but till came under the curſe of it and miſſed of the Bleſſings. They thought to pleaſe God ith Sacrifices, and Oyl, and Incenſe, and obſerving New Moons and Sabbaths, where-n the Lord ſtill rejected them, for want of their obedience to this word: and the Pro-hets ſtill guide them to this word, bidding them Circumciſe their Hearts, which alone an be done by this water. Yea after much conteſt between the Lord and them, when hey ſeemed very deſirous to pleaſe the Lord with what he ſhould require, whether urnt Offerings, Calves, Rams, or Oyl in great plenty, the Prophet laies by all that, and oints them to the obedience of this word, as the way to pleaſe God, and as the only hing that he required of them: He hath ſhewed thee, O man, what is good, and what doth he Lord require of thee, but to do juſtly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy od? Micah 6. 8. All this is written in thy heart man, read there, obey that word, that s the thing that God requires. So Davids Law was the word written in his heart; he aw through Sacrifices and burnt Offerings to the inward writing, and this made him wi-er than all his Teachers, who were buſied about the outward. The outward Law was ut a ſhadow of good things to come, it made nothing perfect: but David knew a per-ect Law, The Law of the Lord is perfect, converting the Soul, Pſal. 19. 7.

3. The Scriptures of the New Teſtament never call themſelves the rule, but they call nother thing the rule: they call the writings of Gods Spirit in the hearts of his people he Laws of the new Covenant, Heb. 8. 10. They call Chriſt the Way, the Truth, the Life, John 14. 6 (The Way is the rule, the Truth is the rule, the Life is the rule) they all the new Creature the rule, walking according to which, the peace and mercy is eceived and injoyed, Gal. 6. 16. They refer to the Gomforter as the guide unto all ruth, John 16. 13. Yea, as the compaſs of all truth, wherein the believer is to have is whole life and courſe, Gal. 5. 25. Live in the Spirit, walk in the Spirit, follow the Spirit, keep within that compaſs and ye cannot err. A man may err in underſtanding nd interpreting of Scriptures: but he that hath received the Spirit, knoweth the Spi-it, followeth the Spirit, keepeth to the Spirit, ſo far as he doth ſo, cannot poſſibly err, So ſaith John, writing concerning Seducers, warning againſt them, 1 John 2. 26. Ye have received an anointing, which teacheth you of all things, keep to the teachings of that in every thing, and ye are ſafe. But may we not be deceived? Nay, the anoin-ting keeps from all the deceit in the heart. and from all the deceits of Seducers? It is truth, and no lie, ver. 27. and it leads into all truth, and out of every lie: And this will teach you to abide in him. In whom? In the Word which was from the beginning, which is ingrafted into the heart of every believer, and into which the heart of every believer is ingrafted; and ſo he truly is in the Vine, and the ſap of the Vine runs up into him, which makes him fruitful to God, he abiding in the Word which he hath heard from the beginning, and the Word which was from the beginning abiding in him. ver. 24. And the Apoſtle Paul ſaith expreſly, that the righteouſneſs of Faith cometh by the hear-ing of this Word, making the ſame Word the rule to the children of the new Covenant

Now, as Moſes ſaid was the commandment of God to them, quoting this place of Mo for it, Rom. 10. 6, &c. So that Paul indeed taught nothing but Moſes and the Prophe pointing to the very ſame Word and Commandment of eternal Life, as Moſes h done. That is the Word of Faith which we Preach, that Word which Moſes taug which he ſaid was nigh in the Heart and in the Mouth (no man need aſcend up to He ven, or go down to the deep, or ſeek any where elſe for it) that's the very thing w pōint you to, that's the Word of Faith, that's the Commandment of Life. And w what zeal would Paul (were he now alive in the body) declare againſt ſuch, w ſhould over-look or deny this Word, and ſet up his writing, with the writings of the of the Apoſtles, for a rule inſtead thereof? Yea I could ſhew yet further, how the Spi of Propheſie, or Teſtimony of Jeſus, or living appearance of God in the heart, h been a rule to the Witneſſes againſt Antichriſts deceit, all along the night of Apoſta (Rev. 11. 3. and 19. 10.) though they themſelves, being in the night, diſtinctly kn not what was their rule, but by a ſecret breath of life were quickened, guided, pre ved, and in it accepted: but theſe things will open of themſelves, as the miſt expelled, and the Vail rent which hath over ſpread all Nations, and covered po ſeſſors generally in this night of Antichriſtian darkneſs, and univerſal Apoſtacy from t living power.

2. Conſider whether the Scripture be your rule or no? That is whether in ſingle of heart ye wait on the Lord, to open the Scriptures by his Spirit, and to keep out yo carnal reaſon from thence (which cannot underſtand them, but will be wreſting the and making them ſpeak as it would have them) or whether ye take ſcope to ſearch to them with that part, which ever was ſhut out from the right knowledge of the The natural man underſtandeth not the things of the Spirit of God. The Spirit of the L alone underſtandeth the meaning of his own Words, and he alone gives the underſt of them, which he gives not to the wiſe Searcher and Diſputer (nor to the prud profeſſor, Mat. 11. 25.) but to the Babe which he begets, to which he gives the K dom, and opens the words which the Scripture ſpeaks concerning the Kingdom. Wiſdom of the Fleſh is enmity againſt God, and if that ſearch into the Scriptures, it gather only a knowledge ſuitable to its enmity. Thus the Jews were great enem and ſtrong enemies, by the knowledge which they had gathered out of the Scrip written to them: and the ſame Spirit hath alſo wound it ſelf into the Scriptures wri ſince: and as then that Spirit fought againſt Chriſt and his Apoſtles, with thoſe Scriptures which the Spirit of Chriſt had formerly written: ſo the ſame Spirit fights againſt the Lambs and Chriſt, with the Scriptures, which were written ſince. Yea great ſtrong Hold of Antichriſt at this day, is Scripture interpreted by the fleſhly W dom: For Antichriſt comes not in a direct denial of Chriſt or Scriptures (he is too cu ning to be found there) but bends them aſide by the fleſhly Wiſdom to ſerve the fleſhly and thus undermines the Spirit and exalts the fleſh by a fleſhly underſtanding and inte pretation of thoſe very Scriptures, which were written by the Spirit againſt the Fleſh. through this miſtake it is, that ſome innocently cry up things practiſed at the firſt ſpringi up of truth, not ſeeing of what nature they were, and upon what account they were don and what of them were caſt of by the ſame Spirit, which before had led to the uſe of them though Scripture expreſly teſtifieth thereof. For Rev. 11. 1, 2. there was the meaſuring o the building which Gods own Spirit had built, part whereof was reſerved for God, part given to the Gentiles, or uncircumciſed in heart, who are now the Gentiles, ſince the breaking down of the former diſtinction betwixt Jew and Gentile. That which God re ſerved for himſelf was, The Alter, the Temple, the Worſhippers therein, all theſe are inward The outward court was given to the Gentiles, to thoſe who would be Worſhippers under the Goſpel, and yet had not the circumciſion of the Goſpel, to them the Court which is with out the Temple is given; and this they get and cry up, and then tread under foot the holy City, trampling upon the inward, and nndervaluing it: Chriſt within, the Spirit within, the Law within, the power within becomes a reproach: and this they have power to do, even to keep down the inward and cry up the outward all the time of the forty two months, and to perſecute and ſlay the Witneſſes whom God raiſed up to teſtifie for the inward, and againſt the outward (as it is now in the Gentiles hands, and made uſe of by them to keep down the inward) and ſo the building being thus taken down, the Church flies out of it in to the Wilderneſs where ſhe had a place prepared of God for her, Rev. 12. 6. Mark, ſhe she is is not where she was before, that building was measured, taken down and disposed of by God: but she hath been, and is all the time of the 42 months or 1260 days in another place, prepared by the spirit of God for her, whether she fled, and where she was nourished from the face of the Serpent, who was seeking after her, and making War with the Remnant of her Seed, ver. 14 &c. And they that seek for her now in her former building, will miss of her, and may meet with another woman, (which in several appearances, and disguises, and practising of Ordinances appertaining to the outward Court) blasphemes the Holy City, the true Temple, Altar, and Worshippers. Happy is he that can read this, for it is the mystery of this Book, Sealed from all the Gentiles and Worshippers in the outward Court.

Many sorts cry up the Scriptures for their rule, but which of them is taught by the spirit to keep the carnal part out of the Scriptures? Which of them keeps out their own will and understanding, receiving their knowledge of Scriptures from that Spirit which wrote them? Do not men rather gather a knowledge in the flesh, and then grow strong, and wise, and able to dispute, and confident in their own way, and become fierce despisers of those who cannot own their interpretation of these Scriptures? and thus the mind of God, the true meaning of the Scriptures is not their rule, but an image which they have formed out of it, a meaning which their Wit hath strongly imagined and fenced with Arguments, and the real mind and intent of the spirit is hid from them. So by this means many both deceive their own Souls, and help to deceive the Souls of others, thrusting of the plainness and simplicity of the Spirit, and gathering senses in the wit and subtilty of the fleshly part, where the Serpentine wisdom lodgeth and twines about the tree of knowledge. Now what do these men do? whom do they serve? and whether do they run themselves, and lead many other poor Souls, whom they pretend to be helpful to save?

3. Consider whether ye did not flee from the Cross, in your transplanting into New England, and so let up that part in you there, which should have been kept down by the Cross here, and gave advantage to that spirit to get ground in you, which ye outwardly fled from? The safety is in standing in Gods Counsel, in bearing the Cross, in suffering for the testimony of his Truth: but if at any time there be a fleeing of the Cross: (whether the inward or the outward) without Gods direction, the evil Spirit is thereby in, his part strengthned, and the life weakned. That Spirit which would save it self from the Cross, is the same with that which would persecute that which will not save it self. Mark how sharply Christ speaks to Peter upon this account, when he would have tempted him to avoid the Cross, get thee behind me Satan, thou art an offence unto me, for thou savourest not the things of God, &c. Mat 16. 23. The seed offers up all to God in his service, will suffer any thing for his names sake, even the loss of liberty, goods yea life it self for the Testimony to the least truth: now that which says to the seed, when sufferings come for the Testimony of Truth, avoid it, save thy self, let not this be unto thee, or the like, that's Satan: and if Satan be not cast behind, but that counsel hearkned unto which leadeth from the Cross, Satan is followed. And if ye fled your proper cross, in your removal from hence unto New England, though ye meet with many others there, yet hereby ye lost your proper advantage of serving and honouring God in your Generation: yea ye lost that, which would have kept your Spirits tender, and open to the voyce of Gods Spirit, and then no marvel if afterwards ye grew hard and fit to persecute, who first had shewed your selves unfit and unworthy to suffer. Ye might meet with many crosses afterwards, which might neither be able to humble you, nor keep you tender, having once lost that Cross which was appointed of God to do it: for all crosses do not break, humble or keep the heart low, and meek, but such as are sent, and sanctified by God thereunto.

4. Consider, when ye came to New England, whether tenderness grew up in you, and was abundantly exercised towards such as might differ from you, or whether ye were as eager for the way that ye thought to be the right, as the Conformists you fled from, were for the way they thought to be right? When Israel came out of Egypt into their own Land, they were to be tender even towards an Egyptian, much more toward their own brethren. Now, when ye were out of danger of being persecuted your selves, did ye lay a Foundation of tender usage towards all that should differ from you, or did you lay a Foundation of persecuting such as differ, and would suffer none dif-differing from you, but persecute them, just as the Bishops persecuted you? Did ye flee the having of your selves persecuted, or did ye flee the persecuting Spirit? For if ye did flee only your own persecutions, and not the persecuting Spirit in your selves, no marvel though it fell a persecuting, so soon as the fear of your own persecution was over. In this fleshly part there is a persecuting Spirit, which, if it be not kept down by the power of God, though it loves not to be persecuted, yet will soon be persecuting.

5. Did you feel your selves to grow in the inward life, upon coming into New-England, or did that begin to flag and wither, and your growth chiefly consist in formal outward Order, in which ye might easily be mistaken too? For many who have given a true Testimony, and have been faithful in helping to pull down, yet have erred when they came to build up. That Spirit which is kept low by persecution, and gives forth its Testimony against things in fear and trembling, is many times exalted when it is out of persecution, and can weigh, debate, consider, and resolve things in that part which cannot build for God. Ephraim under the rod spake trembling, but the rod being off he could exalt his own Wisdom, and offend in Baal. That Worship and way of Government and Order, which a man takes up in the fleshly reason, and which falls in with the Worldly interest, he serves not the true God in, but Baal. This is that destroys and eats out the life of Religion in many, namely, the mixing of it with their Worldly interest, for then the offence of the cross ceases to them, and they begin to be offended at others on whom the Cross is still laid by God, thinking that they may comply with them in joyning their Religion and worldly interest together, and so avoid the Cross as well as they. Nay, he that will follow Christ, must take up the daily Cross, even the Cross which God daily lays upon him, who will still be requiring somewhat which is contrary to his own fleshly part, and contrary to the fleshly part of those with whom he converses. And as this Cross is taken up, the worldly part is offended, and the life grows cutting down worldly interests and ways of Religion daily; but as worldly interests are followed and kept up, the fleshly part thrives, and the life decays and suffers, even at length it come under death, and then death hath the dominion.

6. Consider whether your chief strength of setting up your Church-Government and Order at first, and of bringing persons into it, and of preserving them in it, lie in the Spirit and spiritual Weapons, or in the Flesh and carnal Weapons? If in the Spirit and Spiritual weapons, then ye will be able in God to perswade mens consciences to it, and to preserve them by the same virtue and strength which perswaded them, and this ye will still have the main recourse to: but if in carnal, then ye will have recourse to the carnal, and there will be your main confidence of keeping up your Church. For if it was built by that power, it must be upheld by that power: so that take that away it falls. This is Antichrist's strength, ? he sets up a form in the Wisdom, and maintains it by the outward Sword. Take him of from this, and put him to gaining ground by the demonstration of the Spirit to mens consciences as in the sight of God, or to preserving his ground so, here he is at a loss, and his Kingdom daily falls, even in the most refined parts of it. Let every Church and people that nameth the name of Christ depart from the ways of Antichrist, and make the Spirit of Christ their strength: for that is indeed the only strength of the true Religion, both of the inward and outward part thereof, In that it begins, by that it is preserved, and there also it grows, and is perfected.

7. Consider (for it lies upon me to press it yet further, and lay it more home to you for your good) whether the persecuting Spirit did not take its advantage of assaulting you, upon your getting from under the Cross here into New-England, and whether it did not soon find a place in you there, and grow up in you, and bring you from step to step to that degree of hardness, that ye could at length even drink the bloud of the Saints?

That it was then the proper time of the Persecuting Spirit to seek to get an entrance into you; that is very manifest; but whether it did get entrance or no, that belongs to you narrowly to search and examine. When ye were under the Hatches, while ye your selves were persecuted, then there was little room for that Spirit in you, then was not a proper time for your entertaining of it: but when ye were at liberty to chuse a Way and Form of worship, then was a proper time for this temptation to pre-prevail with you, of setting up your own way, as the chief or only way, and under a pretence of zeal for God, to persecute the breakings forth of his light in others: For it could not be expected that that Spirit should directly tempt you (who had suffered so much by persecution) suddenly to become persecutors of others, but to hide its bait under a cover, and under a pretence of zeal for God, his truths and way of Worship, to blind your eyes, and draw you aside into that, which is indeed persecution of it. Sin is very deceitful, and seeks covers, and of all sins persecution has most need of covers, it is of so contrary a nature to the tender Spirit of the Gospel: Now when sin hath got its cover, then by degrees it hardens the heart, both from and against the Truth. Take heed &c. saith the Apostle lest any of you be hardened through the deceitfulness of Sin, Heb. 3. 12, 13 And persecution most hardens of any sin. How cruel, how bloudy doth it make! It even unmans men. Prisons, Whips, Cutting off of ears, Banishment, Death, all is little enough, if not too little. And what reviling doth it fill mens Pens and Tongues with, making them so hot and passionate, that they cannot equally consider the cause, but misunderstand it, misrepresent it, and strive to make it appear another thing, both to themselves and others, than indeed in plain truth it is. Look over your writings, consider the cause again in a more meek and upright Spirit, and ye your selves will easily see, how in your heat ye have mistaken, and dealt more injuriously with others, than ye your selves were ever dealt with.

There is a time of righteous judgment, wherein the most inward covers shall be ripped off, and the sinner appear what he is; and then the persecutor shall bear that shame, that burthen, that misery, which is the portion of that Spirit. It is but a small advantage to it, to cover its iniquity for a little moment. If ye could make all the World believe that ye are not persecutors; what would this profit you, if in the day of the Lord ye should be found such? But having proceeded thus far, it is hard for you to consider and retreat. That Spirit hath great advantage over you, to make you accept of any cover, it can now offer you to hide your selves under, Oh that ye could see how ye have wrested Scriptures, and what strange kind of arguments he have formed, to make that which ye have done pass with your own hearts, and to make it appear somewhat plausible to others. Yet all this will not do, the eye of the Lord sees through you; and that light which ye reproach, makes you manifest to be at present in subjection under the bloudy dark power, who will hold you as long as he can, and furnish you with such Weapons as he has, against the Lamb and his followers. But ye come forth to the Battel in a bad day, for the light is arisen to conquer, and is not now to be overcome with the darkness. And though ye meet the Woman and her Seed, with a Floud of reproaches and persecutions, yet that will not stop her from coming forth out of the Wilderness, to shew her beauty and innocency again in the earth. Consider these things, and come out of this hard Spirit into tenderness (if it be possible) that the still, meek, gentle Spirit of life, may be your leader from under all false covers into the truth it self; where there is a gentle lying down with all that is of God, and not so much as an offence because of any difference (much less heart-burnings and persecutions) but a sweet waiting on the Lord, for every ones growth, in their several Ranks and Stations.

Since my waiting on the Lord for the presence and guidance of his Spirit, in the examining the foregoing Grounds and Considerations, there came forth an Appendix to John Norton's Book, wherein are laid down some further Grounds by way of justifying of their proceedings, which for their sakes, and likewise on the behalf of the truth and people of God, I may also say somewhat to.

1. FIRST, they insinuate an argument concerning the not suffering of evil, which (they say) is common to all that fear God, with themselves.

Answ. Evil is to be resisted, but in Gods way, according to Gods Will, and not according to the Will of the Flesh. Spiritual evils are to be resisted (by, and in the Faith) with spiritual Weapons. which God hath appointed and sanctified thereto. Earthly evils, outward evils, transgressions of the just Law of the Magistrate, are to be resisted by the sword of the Magistrate. Here are the bounds which God hath set, which he that transgresseth, sinneth against the Lord and his own Soul. But the believer is not to step out of Gods way to resist the Magistrates evil, nor the Magistrate to step out of Gods way, to resist Spiritual evil, but both are to wait on the Lord, for his blessing on the means he hath appointed, and it is better for each of them not to resist evil, but let it grow upon them, till the Lord please to appear against it, than to overcome it by an unrighteous Weapon. Wo to them that go down to Ægypt for help, and stay on Horses, and trust in Chariots, Isa. 31. 1.

2. A second argument is taken from the sole cause of their transplanting, which they say was to enjoy liberty, to walk peaceably in the Faith of the Gospel, according to the order of the Gospel.

Answ. That there was an honest intent in many of them, in transplanting into New-England, I do not doubt; though whether they had a sufficient warrant from God to transplant, was doubted and objected against them, by many of their conscientious fellow-sufferers here in old England, who testified to them that they did believe it to be their duty not to fly, but stay and bear their Testimony for God and his truth by suffering: and this had been a better way of resisting that which was manifestly evil, than of resisting by the sword that for evil, which in due time they themselves may see and acknowledge not to have been so. But if they did truly desire liberty, did not the enemy tempt them to be selfish, to seek it so far as might comprise themselves, excluding such as might differ from them, upon as just grounds as they themselves differed from others? Did not they set bounds to the truth, and bounds to the Spirit of God, that thus far it should appear, and no further? Whereas God hath degrees of discovering and leading out of the Antichristian darkness: and he that opposeth the next discovery of truth, the next step out of Babylon is as real an enemy and persecutor, as he that opposed the foregoing. In that they testified against the Bishops, they did well: but if they will now set up a stand, either to themselves or others, and not follow the leadings of the Lamb, their life may be withered, and they may perish in the Wilderness, while others are following the guide which they left (when they set up their stand) towards Canaan.

And as for walking peaceably: That they might be free from the fear of outward Powers, having liberty to try whatever pretends to be of God; and if it appear error, be out of danger of having their consciences forced, this is a great mercy. But if they would live so peaceably, as that no discovery of God further, should ever start up among them, nor the Lord himself be suffered to send any of his Servants with any further discovery of light unto them, this is not a peace which God allows to any man, nor which his people desire, but only the carnal part which loves to be at ease, and not to be at the pains of tryal in the fear of the Lord, of what comes forth in his name. And who walk thus, walk not in the Faith, nor in the order of the Gospel, which doth not suddenly reject any thing, but first throughly tries both Doctrines and Spirits, whether they be of God or no. He that rejects that which is of God, cannot thrive, or prosper in his Spirit; and he that tries in the hastiness of the Flesh, and not in the Patience and Meekness of the Spirit, is in great danger of rejecting whatever of God appears.

But can they not enjoy their own liberty, and walk in the Gospel, and mannage the sword of the Spirit against errors and spiritual enemies (according to the order of the Gospel) which is mighty through God to cut down the Flesh, unless they get the Magistrates sword to cut down every appearance of truth (and every person holding forth any truth) but what they themselves shall own? Cannot the Spirit of God lead into further truth, then they were led into when they went into New-England? And may not the Lord take his own time to discover it to them, and to lead them into it? So that when first it appears, it may be hid from them: and will nothing serve them but the Magistrates sword to cut it down so soon as ever it appears? Did not the Bishops of England think theirs to be the Gospel-order, and cryed against the Non-conformists that they they could not live peaceably for them, but they disturbed the order of the Church, and drew mens minds from matters of Faith and Edification? Surely the desire of such a kind of peace (as may stop the breaking forth of light to the people of God, for their further leading out of Babylon) is not good. This is rather a fleshly ease, than true peace, which the Lord hath not allotted to his people, but they are to wait for the powring down of his spirit, and the opening of the deep mysteries of his life in the latter days, and to try what comes forth in his name, whether it be of him or no, that they may not lose the good as it breaks forth, nor be deceived with the evil, as it gets into and appears in the shape and likeness of the good.

Now the drift of the Argument lies in this, that this liberty they cannot enjoy, without a non-tolleration of others. Tolleration of any but themselves and their own way disturbs their peace, their Faith, their order.

Answ. The true liberty, the true faith, the true order of the Gospel was enjoyed formerly, without this power of suppressing others by carnal weapons, and violent Laws. Yea this power of suppressing others, and of compelling to a way of Religion and Worship, came up with Antichrist, and that power which came up with Antichrist, is not of Christ. The Dragon gave his power to the Beast, Rev. 13. 4. and another Beast riseth up with Horns like a Lamb, ver. 11. and this Beast compelleth, ver. 12. Mark the Beast which appeared with Horns like a Lamb, as if it had Christs power, and maketh fire to come down from Heaven on the earth in the sight of men (and who can deny these to be of God, that can do such things) this very Beast compelleth or causeth to worship, as ver. 12. So this Beast which appears like a Lamb, joyns with the first Beast whom it had set up under another appearance, and both compel to the worshipping of an Image of the Truth (of such an Image of the truth as they think good to advance) and so from the Truth it self. And he that will not be deceived with their image, with their likeness, with that which they call the truth and way of God, or order of the Gospel, and so shall refuse to bow thereto, he shall not be permitted either to buy or sell, ver. 16, 17. There is no living as men within their bounds, unless they will bow to their image. But the true Lamb doth not compel, but calls to wait on the Fathers drawings, till the Father by his Spirit make willing. And though by the Lamb Kings Reign, and Princes Decree Justice, (Prov. 8. 15.) yet they never had any commission from him to force men to that way of Religion and Worship, to which the Spirit of the Lord alone can make them willing, nor to fall upon them because they were unwilling. This is from the Dragon, wherever it is found.

This then is the great matter of controversie, you account it your liberty not to tollerate, and here stands your peace and Religion (which was a liberty the true Christians never had) and you cannot with patience hear any to testifie against you: and so ye now fall upon any that come to witness against you, even as ye your selves once suffered when ye were Witnesses. But how can ye manifest that God shall reveal no truth, but what he reveals to you? or if he do, that ye have liberty not to tollerate it, or the persons that hold it forth? Wherefore consider seriously, whether this be a right liberty ye have aimed at: for if your aim hath been at a liberty which is not granted of God, at such a liberty as will not stand with the liberty of his spirit in his people, no marvail though ye have run into indirect means to attain it: and so from step to step have been led to the utmost degree of violence and persecution: and being engaged in it, are now forced to seek for Arguments to maintain it. This Argument is further enforced, by proposing the inconsiderableness of the Quakers suffering of a non-tolleration, compared with a manifest and greatest hazard of tolleration unto the Country: Their absence from hence is no detriment to them, their presence here threatens no less than the ruine of all, to us, &c.

Answ. As for outward detriment, the Quakers do not consider that in cases of this nature: but that in them which is born of God, hearing and receiving his command, presently obeys, waiting for his presence and power to carry through, and doth not at all mind the hardships to be met with. But the inward detriment, arising from disobedience to God is very great, even the loss of his sweet presence, life and power at present, besides the utter hazard of the Soul: for that which draweth back from obedience to the Spirit of the Lord, the Lord hath no pleasure in: and they have known the terrors of the Lord to the disobedient, therefore they may not please men in forbearing to go where he sends them, nor (standing in his counsel and power) do they fear them which can kill the body, but they exceedingly dread the death and loss of their Souls, and him who hath the power thereof.

And as for their presence threatning the ruin of all to you, that's but a misapprehension. It may indeed be ruine to that part in you, which is wise and strong without the presence of the life of God, but the elect, which is built upon the rock cannot be ruined by any appearance of God, nay nor by any appearance of the powers of darkness against God, for the Gates of Hell cannot prevail against the true Church. And there is great advantage of Errors and Heresies to the true Church, for the life grows and gets ground by a fair Tryal and overcoming of them, and the approved are thereby made manifest, 1 Cor. 11. 19. Now what kind of Church is yours, which is in such danger of being ruined by that whereby the true Church was advantaged? So that to plead that either you must suffer your Religion, your Souls, your Liberties to be made a prey of, or take this course to defend them, is very inconsequent, and a strong argument against you that yours is not the truth, which needs such a defence as the truth hath not been used to have, but hath grown up, been preserved and thriven not only without it, but against the strength and force of it. So likewise those considerations of the Shepherds defending the Flock from Wolves, and of the Keeper of the Vinyards maintaining the Hedg against Wild Beasts, &c. are not proper to the thing in hand: for the Spiritual Sheep, the Soul, the liberty of the Church, the true Religion, the true Vinyard are not outward, nor to be defended after an outward manner; but the defence is according to the nature of the thing which is to be defended. To trust, or look after an outward power for defending these, is to betray the Faith which is the Shield. Therefore let them consider, whether in looking out too much at these, they have not lost the true Weapon, and the sight of the true thing which is to be defended, which the Arm of the Lord alone gathers, and the Arm of the Lord alone preserves.

This Argument is yet further pressed from the present state of your own people, in many of them being perillously disposed (as ye say) to receive their Doctrine, being already so much disaffected, if not enemies to order, &c.

Answ. Alas, alas, have you had your order, your Church Government so long up, and are the multitude among you yet so ready to be shaken? Behold what a weak unstable settlement ye have attained to all this time, by your outward force! But search honestly, and see who they are that are so ready to be shaken. Are they the discontented and unconscionable multitude (as ye speak) or are they the most simple hearted, most conscientious, and zealous towards God amongst you? (for it is experienced here in Old England: that the ground they gain, is not upon the unconscionable but the conscientious.) If it be these that are somewhat touched with the sence of their Doctrine, it may make you fear that there is more of God therein, than you are aware of. Therefore do not proceed to argue thus violently against a thing, before ye have tryed it: but come to a deep, serious, inward consideration of the thing between God and your own Souls, not in the pride, loftiness and self willedness, but in the honesty, humility and meekness of your Spirits: and then perhaps ye may see beauty, and the life of your Souls in that, which ye now so revile and persecute. And though ye matter not how ye imagine, and speak all manner of evil falsely against us, yet do not also wrong the best among your selves, by terming them discontented and unconscionable, because their Spirits are not hardened by your form, but yet retain some tenderness towards God, his Truths and People.

But why do ye charge following the light within so deeply as to be a giving up of mens selves to their own inclinations, and that it immediately canonizeth them for Saints, dischargeth them from subjection both Civil and Sacred, and from the Scriptures as the rule of life, and by vertue of this their Saintship, intitles to the Estates and Dignities of all who are not of their minds, &c.

Answ. Surely if ye were guided by the Light within, ye would be preserved from such kind of injuriousness both to Persons and Principles. Are your Tongues and Pens your own, at liberty to speak and write any thing that will make for your advantage, how manifestly false soever? If it were but a natural light, yet being of God, it would not deserve this deep blame. Have ye ever tryed it, as we have done? if not, why do ye yet speak so against it, before ye have tryed it? We can upon much experience testifie, that it is against our inclinations, that it discovers them, calls from them, and is a daily cross to them; upon following whereof we feel the bitter dying of the earthly part, and the inclinations thereof pining away. And from true subjection, to that which truly is of God. it never discharges; but leads to obedience to what is lawfully commanded by Authority, and to patient suffering under what is unlawfully inflicted. And as for the Scriptures, it opens them in the life which gave them forth, it fulfils them in us, it makes them our own, it makes us able to set our seal to the truth of them in the sight of God; and to receive that for the rule, which the Scriptures say is the rule, the living word, Christ the living way, the word in the mouth and in the heart, Rom. 10. the Law in the mind, the Law of the spirit of life in Christ Jesus, which is the word ingrafted into their hearts, who are created a new in Christ. And this is the honour which we give to the Scriptures, namely to receive that which they testifie of, to live and walk in that spirit, which they call to us to live and walk in; to take heed of painting the old nature, and letting the old spirit live upon its imaginations, which it gathers out of the Scriptures, reading them in the oldness of the Letter, and not in the newness of the Spirit. And we profess nakedly, that we believe the truth of God, not meerly because the Scripture hath said it (for that which is out of the truth may thus believe) but also because in coming to the thing, and receiving the truth as it is in Jesus, we have found it to be just as the Scriptures speak of it. But what do ye speak, as if following the Light did intitle men to the Estates and Dignities of all who are not of their mind? Nay, the light teacheth, not to Covet, not to desire earthly Dignities or Estates. Let it be looked at over Old England: which of us so much as mind these things? Nay the Lord knows, that the love of these things is daily rooted out of our hearts more and more, and we are a people whom the World cannot charge with Covetousness or love of the World, wherewith all sorts of Professors hitherto have been too justly chargeable. O Rulers of New England, why do ye thus overturn the cause of the Innocent? if we were a bad people, yet to lay things so notoriously false to our charge, and to charge that principle in us with it, which powerfully leads us from, this is not right nor justifiable in the sight of God. Ah take heed of reviling, persecuting, and speaking all manner of evil against us falsely, for his name sake whom we are called to serve, and whom we do here in following and obeying the light of his Spirit in us, which hath led us to the true knowledge of God, and to life and peace with him.

About the close of this Argument, for the further strengthening of it, it is said Duty is not opposite to duty, passiveness for the truth and activeness against the enemies of the Truth, are both duties in their season.

Answ. Every kind of activeness against the enemies of the Truth, is not duty; for some kind is sinful. There is a lawful fighting, and an unlawful fighting. Such a kind of fighting against an enemy as may hurt a friend. and cannot hurt the enemy, is unlawful. Now the Magistrates Sword may hurt a friend, may affright the tender Conscience from its duty towards Christ. but it cannot reach the falshood which lodgeth in the heart, or draw the party from that, but rather hardeneth him in it: So that it is not a duty to have the Magistrates Sword drawn out against that, for which it is not proper, where it may do hurt and not good. The Housholder would not permit his own Servants to gather up the Tares, lest they should root up the Wheat with them, Mat. 13. 29. Did Christ deny his Disciples that liberty, and doth he grant it to the Magistrates? Is the Magistrate out of danger of hurting the Wheat, while he is smiting at the Tares: nay is he not in danger of smiting and rooting up the Wheat instead of the Tares? Surely this is the Magistrates Duty, to keep in his place, and not to extend his Sword beyond his Commission, and beyond what it is proper for. And let me put this to all the Magistrates of the earth, who have been drawing out their Sword against Tares (as they might think) are ye sure that ye never touched any green thing? Revel. 9. 4.) did ye never pluck up any wheat? ye must give an account of this to Christ one day. Here in Old England, in the Bishops days, they were liable to be excommunicated and weeded out of the Church, and also to be struck at by the Magistrate: how it hath been in New-England, I leave it to your Consciences to consider of, do not slubber it over, but make up a just Accompt. What Moses did Levit. 24. in case of Blasphemy, he did by immediate direction from God. vers. 13. and he was a Type of Christ, who inwardly and spiritually fulfils all his outward shadows. And Christ doth not say that every Blasphemer under the Gospel shall be put to Death, but all blasphemy or speaking against the Son of Man shall be for-forgiven, but there is a kind of blasphemy which he will not forgive. And the Church by his Spirit, are to try and deal with blasphemers, even to the cutting of them off, by the sword of the Spirit, that they may repent and learn not to blaspheme, 1. Tim. 1. 20. but the Magistrate is not now appointed to cut them off in their blasphemy, and so to take away that time of repentance from them, which Christ hath allowed them. Christ's Ordinances and Institutions do not clash one with another, he doth not bid the Church cut off a Person from the Unity with the Sword of the Spirit, that he might feel the loss of life, and be made sensible of what a condition his blasphemies have brought him to, and so come to mourn and repent. I say Christ doth not do this on the one hand, and on the other hand bid the Magistrate banish him or cut him off with the Sword, and so take away his time of repentance from him. Nay this device sprang from the false Church to make her excommunication outwardly terrible and dreadful, which hath no inward vertue, or cause of terror and dread at all in it.

So as touching Nehemiah, he was both extraordinarily stirred up by God, and his time was under the Law, so that the argument from his example is not valid to them who have not such a Warrant as he had (for he saith himself, that God had put in his heart what he had to do at Jerusalem, Nehem. 2. 12.) and where the state and ministration is changed. The Priests did that under the Law, which is not now to be done, but typified what Christ the unchangable Priest was to do: So likewise Kings, Judges and Governours of that People, did that under the Law towards them, which is not now to be done outwardly towards any by any King, Ruler, or Magistrate, but typified what Christ was inwardly to do in the Spirits of his People, and how he would gather, preserve, and defend his Church, and Wound and Subdue his enemies, even by his Rod and Scepter, which is the Sword of his Spirit, the Word of his Mouth.

And as for Ephesus, and Thyatira's not suffering false Apostles and the Woman Jezabel. We do not say that any errors, or erronious persons, are to be suffered by the Church, but to be dealt in Christs power and authority. But the delivering up of these to the secular power, we know to have been an invention of Antichrist's, and a great dishonour to Christ (as if his Rod and Scepter were not sufficient to defend his Subjects and Kingdom, and to beat down his enemies) and also a ground of much affliction, persecution, and bloud-shed of the Saints, yea and of suppressiug the truth of God for a season. For the persecutor having once gotten this cover, then he can do that openly and boldly, which otherwise he would blush and be ashamed of. To persecute Christ, to put his people to death, and that for professing and publishing his Truths, God forbid saith the Antichristian Spirit (in every form and way of Religion) that we should do this: but in every age calls the Witnesses to the Truth (of that age) Blasphemers, Wicked persons, persons that by their Tenets overthrow the fundamental truths of the Gospel, and their Doctrines destructive, &c. And now what zealous People or Minister, or what Christian Magistrate can suffer such as these? By this artifice the sufferings of the Saints come to abound in every age, and their bloud is made havock of: and what is thus done, easily passeth as an Act of Justice against offenders, and not as indeed it is, persecution of the truths and people of God. The after-age can see what is, and cry out against it: but still it is the subtilty of the persecuting Spirit, to hide the persecutions of the present age, under an appearance of zeal for God, and of justice against offenders.

3. In the next place it is said, on the Quakers behalf, that they are the Lambs of Christ, Indeed this is a considerable thing, for if they be Christ's Lambs then they are innocent, and cannot be the causers of their own sufferings, but that will rest upon their persecutors, though they use never so much art to make the Lambs appear guilty, and themselves guiltless. Their Spirit, Nature, manner of fighting (which is with Lamb-like Weapons, which hurt not Flesh and Bloud) their whole course and conversation, and manner of suffering, &c. manifests them to be Lambs; this is of much more force, than a bare saying they are Lambs. None of this is mentioned on their behalf, but only that they say they are Lambs. But let us see how fairly that is overthrown.

Against this, that place, John 5.31. is alledged, If I bear witness of my self, my witness is not true.

not true: whereupon it is said thus, Had not Christ been God, the reason of the Jews had no good against him.

Ans. Doth not the Spirit of God dwell in the Sons of God? And doth not the Spirit of God bear witness in them that they are his Children? And is not this witness true? John saith, We know that we are of God, 1 John 5. 19. Was not this witness true in John, because John was not God? Was not the Prophets Testimony true (that they were his Prophets, and that God had sent them, and that it was his Message which they brought) because they were not God? Shall the Spirit of God work Wonders in the heart? and shall he not testifie concerning his own Work at his pleasure? Ah friends, how do ye understand Scriptures, and raise inferrences from it, thus to condemn the generation of the righteous? Search the Scriptures, Do not the Prophets still testifie that the Lord sent them, and that it was his Word which they spake, though they themselves were not God, but persons moved by the Spirit of God, who stirred in his Servants under the Law, but dwelleth, resteth, and abideth in his people under the Gospel, and what he testifieth is true, though Fleshly-wise Israel (who seem to themselves very skilful in the Law and Letter of the Scriptures) could not receive his Testimony either then or now. Ah Friends, ye had need take heed and consider, lest the bastardly birth in you hath taken up an habitation in the Letter, without knowing the mind of the Spirit, whose presence killeth the carnal part, and shutteth out the Wisdom of the flesh from meddling with the Scriptures.

And whereas you seem to refer all to the tryal of the Scripture, both Station, Doctrine, and Practice: Surely if ye had done so in truth, ye would have more patiently heard their Testimony according to the Scriptures. Every man pretendeth Scripture, but none truly honour it, but they who are guided by that Spirit which it testifieth of: And they who are not guided by that Spirit, walk not according to the Scriptures, but according to reasonings of the fleshly part, which windeth it self into the letter of the Scriptures, that by some kind of conformity thereto, it may avoid the dint of the Spirit. And this is the way of Antichrists prevailing, by getting the form, crying up that, winding his own fleshly spirit into that, and sheltering it self under that. Thus the Jews cryed up the Temple of the Lord, the Sabbath, the Law of Moses and writings of the Prophets; and under this cover, with great zeal persecuted Christ, he was looked upon as a blasphemer, as one against Gods Temple, his Sabbath, his Ordinances &c. And since the days of Christ, the Antichristian Spirit speaks great Words of Christ, his Death, Resurrection, Ascention, Intercession, &c. and of Church-order, and Discipline, that under this cover it may fight against the Comforter. the Spirit of truth; who alone can lead into truth, and which is the proper way of Gods Ministration since Christs ascention. And this hath been the Way of opposing truth ever since, and still is: And here is the Antichrist, he that holds these in the wrong part, and by these Fights against the true Spirit.

But if there be any truth in this, that ye are willing to be tryed by the Scriptures, let us yet come to a fair tryal this way, and let them have free liberty to manifest among you, what they have to say from the Scriptures, why your Church, your Ministry, your Order and Government, your whole way of teaching and worship is not of God, nor according to the Scriptures, but an invention and imitation, set up in the way of resemblance of what once was truly so. If this cannot be made good against you, ye will have much advantage of shaming them, and of settling your people much firmer than by prisons, whips, cuttiug off of ears, banishment, and death, which no mans heart (seriously considering it in true soberness) can possibly believe to be the proper engines of settling or preserving the Gospel of peace.

But that the Scripture is the rule of tryal under the Gospel, I read not in Scripture, but that the things of the Spirit are to be known in and by the Spirit, 1 Cor. 2. 12. The Apostle John speaking of Antichrists, Seducers, and Erring Spirits, which were to be risen, doth not bid them try them by the Words which he wrote, or by the other Apostles Words, or by the Prophets Words, but by the anointing, which keeping close to, they need fear no Seducers, 1 John 2. 26, 27. The Word which was in the beginning and being received, abode in, and kept close to, tries all Words and Spirits. That which begets to God is the Spirit; the great gift (which is given to him which is begotten) is the Spirit; and this (being given) is to become the Fountain of life to the Believer,

John

John 7. 38: And in this ſpring of life he is to live, and receive milk and knowledge, and here he is to walk, and here he is to try all other Waters, even by this Water. And this is more to a believer, and more enableth him to try, than all the Words of truth that ever were written: though he that hath this cannot deſpiſe or undervalue any thing that the Spirit ever wrought: but yet the Spirit it ſelf is more to him, and more certain than any Words concerning the Spirit. Men may make falſe gloſſes, and muddy and make void the Scriptures, by their reaſonings, and interpretation, and traditional apprehenſions: But this Water ever runs freſh and clear, and no foul Spirit can defile it. Moſes gave the Law, which directed to, and ended in Chriſt: Chriſt in the fleſh finiſhed the Work which the Father gave him to do, and directed to the Comforter to be the leader into all truth, yea the ſpring of life to the believer, and here the believer is ſafe: but the Antichriſtian ſpirit ravening from this, cries up the letter in the ſtead of this, and doth not ſee how the letter points to, and centers in this. God hath made us able Miniſters of the New Teſtament, (ſaith the Apoſtle) not of the Letter but of the Spirit, 2 Cor. 3. 6. He overlooked the letter, that was not the thing he was chiefly to Miniſter, but the Spirit, the Power, to turn men from darkneſs to light, that they might feel him that is true, and have the life eternal abiding in the heart: But now in the Antichriſtian darkneſs, the Spirit being loſt which is the Goſpel-adminiſtration, now they ſeemingly advance and cry up the letter, putting it into the place of the Spirit: Yet in truth it is not the Scripture neither, in its naked ſimplicity, which is thus cryed up, but mans wiſe reaſonings about it. The fleſhly Will, the fleſhly Underſtanding, the fleſhly Strength getting a Seat there, having formed a building out of it, and reared Strong Holds in that part which can be wiſe and live without the Spirit; now its life, its intereſt, lies in the Scriptures thus believed, thus underſtood, thus practiſed: thus therefore it cries up, not as it came at firſt out of the hands of the Spirit, nor as the truth of it is now ſeen in the ſimplicity and nakedneſs of the Spirit, but as the Wiſdom from below hath formed meanings and apprehenſions concerning it. And here every ſort of men are Wiſe in their own eyes, and ſtrong and prudent in their own conceivings and reaſonings, but know not the bringing to naught of that underſtanding, which precedeth the opening of the eye of the Babe, which hath that ſight of the things of God given, which is out of the reach of all the Wiſe and Strong ones.

It is true, under the Law, they were to try by the Law and Teſtimony, Iſa. 8. 20. But yet not in an uncertain way, according to their own gueſſings, imaginations, and reaſonings, but according to a certain interpretation and knowledge thereof: and in caſes of difficulty the Judge was to have recourſe to the Prieſt, Deut. 17. 8, &c. And the Prieſts in caſes of doubt had an ordinary way of enquiring by Urim (Numb. 27. Beſides the way of enquiring by Prophets, which was very common with them alſo, 1 Sam. 9. 9. and chap. 28. 6. But now the Jews having forfeited theſe, and filling their minds with a gathered knowledge from the Law and Prophets, trying Chriſt and his truths by this, judged amiſs both of him and them. Now the Law was a ſhaddow of good things to come, not a ſhaddow of another outward Law or rule, but a ſhaddow of the inward rule, of the Law of the New Covenant written in the heart, of the Spirit put within, Heb. 8. And by this Law is the true believer fully as able to try, as they were by the former: but without this, a Chriſtians tryal of things, is not ſo certain as theirs was under the Law.

The force of the fourth argument is to this effect, That the dictate of conſcience is not a ſufficient Plea in caſe of meer and ſingle ignorance, much leſs in wilful and affected ignorance.

Anſw. The dictate of conſcience is not made a plea by us, but the anſwering and obeying the light of Chriſt in our conſciences, is that which keepeth them void of offence, both towards God and towards Men. Now it is one thing for a man to act evil, and plead it is his conſcience, and it is another thing for a man to be guided by the infallible light of the Spirit, or if he be not come ſo far, yet to be made tender in his heart towards Chriſt concerning his practices in Religion. In this laſt caſe we ſay, that in things whoſe good or evil chiefly depends upon the knowledge and perſwaſion of the mind, which Chriſt alone can do, here Chriſt is the ſole Lord and Judge of the conſcience, Rom. 14. 4. And not either Miniſter, Church, or Magiſtrate. Chriſt giveth knowledge, Chriſt increaſeth knowledge, and Chriſt requireth obedience according to the know-knowledge given or increased: That is many times required to be left, upon a farther degree of knowledge given, which was not required to be left before: and so also upon the same terms may things be required to be performed, which were not required to be done before. And this indeed is the very sum of the true Religion (since the Death of Christ, and his finishing of his work here) either to worship in the Spirit, or to wait for the Spirit. He who hath not received the Spirit, he is to wait for the Spirit. He who hath received the Spirit, he is to wait in the Spirit for the movings and outgoings thereof, and to be obedient thereto. And Christians are to take heed, not only of a wrong Spirit, but also of quenching the movings of the true Spirit in themselves or others. If the erring mind hath mistaken about Worship, and through its mistake set up a wrong way, the Spirit in the tender Plants will be moving against it, which the wise reasoning fleshly part will be knocking down, and so the Birth which is after the flesh will be getting advantage of Persecuting and keeping under the Immortal Seed. Now suppress evil to the utmost, but take heed of quenching the good in any; take heed how ye stop that in its course of discovering evil (in your Worships, or otherwise) which easily passeth for good, until the Spirit begin to make it manifest. Ah friends, if the carnal wisdom had been Crucified in you, and the Spirit of God had had more scope in manifesting evil among you, what might ye have grown to ere this day? but if the Magistrate upon every doubt, or difference, or startling of the tender Conscience, step in with his Sword, how is the way of the breaking forth of truth stopped up? and that which is truly of God, and most tender towards him, is most liable to suffer this way. And this is that which makes the Quakers such a suffering people, because they have found the benefit of keeping the Conscience tender towards God, and so prize it above all things: and this mercy have they received from the Lord, sensibly to distinguish (in this tenderness towards God, and in the fear of his name) between the dictates of Conscience, and the voice of his Spirit there. Now it is not at all pleaded by us, that under a pretence of Conscience, ye should suffer all manner or any manner of evil: but first, Punish not good for evil: do not punish the good in others, to defend the evil in your selves: Secondly, That which is manifestly evil, punish it by such hands and means as God hath appointed, the Spiritual by Spiritual, the Temporal by Temporal, and do not make punishing of evil a pretence of persecuting good in others, and of upholding the evil in your selves.

But as touching your distinction of meer and single ignorance, or wilful and affected, we can bless the Lord who hath delivered us from them both, by the day-spring which he hath caused to arise in our hearts; and we can with a farther measure of the same Spirit bear this from you, with a measure whereof some of the Non-conformists bore this from the Conformists, who would casts this upon them, that their ignorance was affected, they were refractory, but might have been better informed, if they would. And we wish with all our hearts, that there were not too just cause of retorting both parts of this distinction back upon you: for if ye had not been very grosly ignorant, ye could never have thus put darkness for light, and light for darkness, casting such odious reproaches upon the truth, to make it appear what it was not: had ye not been ignorant of the Scriptures, ye would have known the movings of the life and spirit of it in others; but through ignorance of the eternal power, and from your dark reasonings and conceivings about the Letter, ye are ready to call Christ Beelzebub, not knowing the anointing in the members, no more than the Scribes and Pharisees did in the head. And had not your ignorance also been too much affected, ye would have took more pains about the Tryal, and not have run into such mistakes all along, both about them and their Doctrines, as ye have done.

That Christ referred himself either to Pilates, or the Jews tryal of him by Scriptures, is a gross mistake at best. The Jews did try him by Scriptures, and according to their understanding thereof, found him a Sabbath breaker, against Moses Law, and that he could not be the Messiah (John 7. 27. and 52. and chap. 12. 34.) but by their Law ought to die, John 19 7. There is no trying of the things of God by considering of Scriptures in the carnal mind, in the wise reasoning part: but in the Spirit which wrote the Scriptures, in the understanding which God gives, (1 John 5. 20.) in the wisdome which is bestowed on the Babe (who lives in the simplicity and pure innocency that is in Christ) there the truth it self, and also the Scriptures (which testifie of it) are clear. Now Christ did not refer himself to them be tryed by the Scriptures) for he knew what was in man, and he knew after what manner they would try him thereby:) but he bid them search the Scriptures, which testified of him; that so they might come to know and receive him, John 5. 39, 40. and none knew him, but those to whom the Father revealed him.

So the case of Paul's appealing to Cæsar, doth not prove that Cæsar was a proper Judge in cases of conscience: but he was at that time a proper defence against the malice of the Jews, who most unconscionably persecuted Paul, under a pretence of zeal for God, and defence of their Church and Ordinances. And were ye not in power, but an equal Heathen Magistrate over us both, the Quakers durst refer their cause to tryal, that they have done you injury, no more than Paul did the Jews. Indeed Paul preached that, which was the end of the Law, and the overturning of the Jewish state: And if their Priests and Rulers had had him to judge, they would have made him as great an Offender, as ye now make the Quakers. Now if your Religion stand upon such a bottom as theirs did, and not upon the Rock, in the Faith, and by the Spirit, ye may well fear us, it is not without a cause, for this we certainly know, that all professions of God and of Christ, imitations and practices from the letter, which stand in mans Will and Wisdom, will not be able to abide the breath of this suffering Seed, who love the Testimony of Jesus and service to his name above their lives.

And as for an erring conscience, there lies the dispute, whose conscience errs, yours or theirs? Ye say they have erred from the Letter, the Order, and Ordinances of the Gospel: they say ye have erred from the Spirit, and therefore must needs have erred from the Letter also, (and this they are ready to prove according to the Scriptures, if ye dare stand to a fair tryal.) And also that ye are in a Knowledge, Faith, Worship, Wisdom, &c. which stands in the Will and Carnal part, and keeps the Carnal part alive. This deserves a meek and serious consideration in the fear of him who can destroy the Soul, and not such a bloudy and fiery tryal, as your proceedings and writings too much savour of.

5. That a regular defence of the truth by the Godly Orthodox Magistrate and others respectively, is not persecution.

Answ. To bring the sword of the Magistrate into the Work of Christs Spirit and Power, this is ir-regular; and it doth execution ir-regularly, cutting down the person, and not the sin; whereas the Sword of the Spirit cuts down the sin, that the person may be saved. Christ came not to destroy mens lives, but to save: and if any man receive him not, or speak against him, he calls not for Fire from Heaven, or for a Magistrates Sword, but waits to be gracious, and by the power of his Spirit (having once convinced and gathered) doth he defend his truths and people. Let but the Magistrates stand still with his Sword, the Spirit of Christ will soon get the Victory over error, and a sweeter and better Victory than the Magistrates Sword can effect. Truth sprang up without the Magistrates Sword, yea, against it? so it grew, so it conquered. The Magistrates Sword here (though never so favourable to truth) doth more hurt than good, putting the true Sword out of its place, and keeping down that tenderness of Spirit, wherein the the truth alone can spring,

That coertion was instituted for restraining of evil, we grant, (this is the same with the first Argument) but he that appointed two kinds of coertion, set each their limits, which they are not to transgress. See Answer to the first argument.

But whereas ye say that Tares and ill Weeds need no more than being let alone to over-run and spoil the Corn. That is directly contrary to Christ, who said expressly, Let both grow together until the Harvest, Mat. 13. 30. Sure he would not have his Wheat in danger of being destroyed all the time till Harvest: but he judged, that plucking up the Tares would more endanger the Wheat, than letting them alone, vers. 29. Man may easily mistake, and pluck up an Ear of Wheat, instead of a Tare: and better it were to let many Tares alone, than pluck up one Ear of Wheat. Ye have long been busied in New-England, about plucking up of Tares, Are ye sure ye never plucked up any Wheat? Nay, have ye not weeded out the Wheat, and left the Tares standing? Undertaking a Work so directly contrary to Christ's direction (and so without the guidance of his Spirit) ye might easily thus err. Now what the Tares are, is afterwards expounded, they are such such persons which grow among the Wheat, but are not Wheat, but are to be gathered from the Wheat with Christ's Sickle, and bound up in bundles for the burning in the day of his Harvest.

Your comparisons of a Gangreen and the like, I wish ye knew how to apply. The power of Gods truth in the Spirits of his people is no Gangreen: but the form without the power is a Gangreen, and like Pharaoh's lean Cattle soon eats up the fat. And he who hath lost his own tenderness and freshness, soon turns persecutor of such as remain tender, and seek to preserve their freshness.

In the days of the Apostles there was a King in Israel, then the Church was well Governed, in the meekness and sweet authority and power of Christs Spirit, which hurts not creatures, but strikes at Christs enemy in creatures. Since that time the Papists have had a long day of doing what was right in their eyes, the Episcopalians a day after them of doing what was right in their eyes, and so the Presbyterians and Independants, &c. But it were better for them all to lament after the right King, than to set up an usurp'd Authority in his absence. Carnal reason, the Wisdom of the Flesh hath got his Seat, giving forth its meaning of Scripture, and so (under a colour of them) ruling over his Flock with Force and cruelty, and not with the meek, gentle, righteous Scepter of his Spirit, which alone is appointed of Christ to govern them.

So then the Magistrates punishing of the Quakers is not regular by any institution of Christ, but only by a Law of their own making, as it is further explained, p. 95 of this Appendix, the grounds whereof hath been already examined, and found insufficient to warrant them therein, which I leave to themselves and to every mans Conscience to consider of, in the dread of God, the Judge of all.

Upon the result of all, it may not be amiss to state the case between the Governours of New England and the Quakers, which is briefly thus.

If the Governours of New-England had just cause to make such a Law against the Quakers, and had a true rightly derived power so to do from God (who is the spring of all just power:) And if the Quakers had liberty from the Lord to chuse or refuse obedience to it, then their suffering death is justly to be imputed to themselves.

But if the Governonr of New-England had not a just case of making this Law, nor Authority and Power from God so to do: and that the Quakers, had not liberty to chuse or refuse coming thither, but had an indispensible command from Christ their Lord; then their sufferings and bloud will rest on the heads of the Governours of New-England, and will stick closer to them, than to be wiped off by such kind of arguments and reasonings.

All depends upon your first step of proceeding. If that was without due ground, not in the fear of the Lord, without Christ's allowance and direction, without having duly weighed the thing in the true unerring Ballance, but rather in the hastiness and stiff resolvedness of the flesh? Then all your proceedings since have been but aggravations of your sin, and God might justly let you go on thus far, to shame you even in the sight of the very heathen, among whom the sense and abhorence of this cruel and bloudy Spirit, cannot but make your profession of the Gospel of peace become a reproach.

The Quakers came to you in the name of the Lord, to discover from him to you the evil of your ways, to convince you by his light, of your departing from that which was persecuted in you in the times of your sufferings in Old England: but ye would not meekly hear and consider of what they had to say to you from the Lord, but presently imprisoned and sent them away, and so proceeded further and further against them, till at length ye came to drink their bloud. So that in truth their Testimony is the cause of their death, and judge in your own hearts, whether this be not a persecution of a deep dye. It were better for you to charge it upon your own hearts, than to have the Lord charge it upon you, when ye come to stand before him to be eternally judged.

There remains yet another Paper (printed here in England) called, A True Relation of the Proceedings againſt certain Quakers, at the general Court of the Maſſathuſets, holden at Boston in Nevv-England, October 18. 1659.

THE Arguments therein, whereupon they would have their proceedings paſs for juſt, and not be accounted perſecution, are theſe, The authority of this Court, the Laws of the Country, the Law of God, and their gardnal proceedings.

Anſw. Perſecutors are very ſeldom (if at any time) without theſe Pleas for themſelves. Had not the Biſhops as fair a right to this Plea, to cover their perſecutions of the Non-conformiſts with? Could not they in their day have alledged the Authority of their Court,s the Laws of their Country (perhaps ſome not made directly to intrap neither, as yours were) and had not they as confident a pretence to the Law of God as theſe? And did they not alſo proceed gradually? He that doubteth, let him read Hooker's Eccleſiaſtical Policy, and other Writings of the Conformiſts, and ſee whether their Spirit was not more mild and and Chriſtian-like, and their arguments more weighty by far, than thoſe which theſe have uſed againſt the Quakers. Nay have the very Papiſts themſelves been without theſe arguments? Did they not proceed gradually in Queen Marie's days againſt the Martyrs? Yea, what pains did they take to convince them of their Hereſies, and to bring them into the unity of the true Church, as they accounted it? But theſe arguments did not juſtifie the Papiſts or Conformiſts in the ſight of God (though they might juſtifie their proceedings in the eyes of their own party) nor will they juſtifie them who have gone one ſtep beyond the Conformiſts. But as the Spirit of Perſecution, entring into the Biſhops and Conformiſts was the ſame Spirit, as well when it was in them, as in the Papiſts; So the ſame Spirit entring into the Non-Conformiſts, is the ſame Spirit ſtill in them, as it was in the Biſhops and Conformiſts. And the Plea of the Authority of their Court, the Laws of the Country, with ſuch a kind of pretence to the Law of God, and their gradual proceeding is no more in truth and reality a ſhelter for them, then it was for the other; though they in their day look upon it as a good and ſufficient cover, even as the Biſhops did in their day, and the Papiſts in their day. Had they wanted this cover, the nakedneſs of their zeal and profeſſion would have appeared to every eye: yea their own Conſciences could not but have flown in their Faces, had they put them to death ſo ſoon as ever they had come over, without any fore-going proceedings: but this is the nature of the perſecuting Spirit, firſt it ſeeks a cover to ſtop the mouth of its own Conſcience, and to hide its Bloud-thirſty actions from the eye of the World, and then its feet are ſwift to ſhed the bloud of the innocent. But the ſame Lord God of truth and righteouſneſs who hath unmask'd the Papiſts, and unmask'd the Biſhops, will unmask theſe alſo, and their nakedneſs ſhall more appear than the others, who would hide themſelves and their own cruelty with that covering, which they themſelves have judged in others, It is not therefore any of theſe, but the grounds of their proceedings muſt manifeſt them to be juſt, or elſe notwithſtanding the pretence to juſtice, their whole courſe of proceedings will prove in truth (and according to righteous judgment) but Perſecution.

Now the Grounds of their Proceedings they mention to be theſe.

1. Their having received intelligence from good hands from Barbadoes and England of the pernicious opinions and practiſes of the Quakers.

2. Their profeſſed Tenets (how well ye have acquitted your ſelves herein, let all that fear God judge.)

3. Their turbulent and contemptuous behaviour to Authority.

4. Their deſigns to undermine and ruine the Order and Peace here eſtabliſhed.

Anſw.

Answ. He that is willing to receive, shall never want intelligence against the Truths and People of God, even from such hands as he will be ready to call good (it is a remnant only that receive truth, the generality of professors in all ages are still ready both to hold and receive intelligence against all the living appearances of it and of Gods witnesses in it.) Nor can he who hath already entertained prejudices, ever want matter against their tenets, behaviour, or to charge them with designs. Have not these reproaches always been cast upon every appearance of God? Are not the Vessels he chuses to hold forth his truths by, still represented as persons of pernicious opinions and practices, and their tenets charged to be Wicked, and they looked upon as turbulent and contemptuous, &c. Were not the Non-conformists themselves looked upon as persons that would undermine and ruine the Order and Peace of the Church, who for such trivial things would make such great rents and breaches, marring the beauty, and disturbing the Unity, Order, and Peace of the Church of England? (Sure they cannot yet forget this, besides that common charge against them of contumacy against authority. These are but the old Weapons of the old Serpent (only a little new furbish'd by you for your own use) even the Weapons which the Bishops wrested out of the hands of the Papists, and which ye have wrested out of the hands of the Bishops, and they are no better in your hands, than they were in theirs. They were good in their hands, so long as they had authority to make them forcible; and they have no more vertue in your hands, than what outward authority and power adds to them. England was once overflown with this Floud of reproaches, but now at length (this afflicted People waiting in patience on the Lords Will) they have much vanished (the earth helping the Woman.) and persons generally (who are any whit sober, and come to consider things in fear and meekness) find no such matter against them, no such opinions, or practises, or tenets, but the truths of God received and held forth in his fear, their carriage and behaviour meek and humble, void of turbulency and contempt towards any, and they freer from designs against authority and orderly government, than any sort else whatsoever. This is well known in England, and it cannot be denyed by authoritiess and powers thereof, how we have still been like Lambs suffering from all, not contriving or so much as desiring the hurt of any. The Lord knows the desire of our Souls to be after truth and righteousness, and our expectations for the establishing thereof to be fixed on him alone, and not on any persons whatsoever, but as he pleaseth to appear in them, and work by them: and whatsoever happens in the mean time, is received as from his hand, who sitteth on high over all: So that our Spirits do not so much as rise against any authority or instruments that persecute us, but we wait on the Lord our God to advantage his truth, and bring about good to us thereby; and we pity and pray for all who know not what they do, blessing the Lord our God, who accounteth us worthy to suffer for his names sake, in bearing Testimony at his command to any, though it should be but the least of his truths. Therefore take heed of going on in the hardness of your hearts, but know what a people (in the just judgment of God upon you) your lot hath been to persecute, whose bloud will stick the closer to you, and lie so much the heavier upon you, by how much the dearer they are to God.

And though ye plead the safety of the People as being the sovereign Law, yet the Lord God knows whether ye have aimed at the safety of the People among you in uprightness of heart, or whether ye bring this in also as a further cover. There is a double safety the People may justly challenge from you. First, The safety of their Consciences in a tender searching after truth, and further removing out of Babylon. Secondly, the safety of their Estates, Persons, and Liberties in this search. They did not fly from England to be persecuted by the prevailing part among themselves, but to enjoy Freedom of Conscience in enquiring after the Lord, his truth and way of Worship, and not to be tyed and bound up in a form, exalted and established according to the opinions and result of the reasonings of the Major part. Now whether ye have preserved these liberties for them, and really sought their safety, or whether ye have persecuted or made a prey of them for their Conscience sake (beyond whatever was done to you here in England, or beyond whatever they had been like to suffer, had they staid here in England) the Lord in his day will righteously judg. Ye have judged between Cattle and Cattle, the Lord also will judge between Cattle and Cattle: and in that day ye will see, that as his choice have been your out-casts, so your choice is rejected by him; and that as his Spirit is the abomination of your eyes, ſo your formal way of Worſhip is the loathing of his Soul, that ye had eyes to ſee it, that your hearts might not be utterly hardned againſt the Lord, his Truths and People, even to your utter and eternal Deſtruction. Little do ſee, poor deceived hearts, what a narrow ſtep there is between you and the Pit.

The Authority and Government which Chri excluded out of his Church, &c.

Mat. 20. Verſ. 25. to 29.

But Jeſus called them unto him and ſaid, ye know that the Princes of the Gentiles exerc Dominion over them, and they that are great, exerciſe Authority upon them. But it ſh not be ſo among you; but whoſoever will be great among you; let him be your Minis And whoſoever will be chief among you, let him be your Servant. Even as the Son of m came not to be Miniſtred unto, but to Miniſter, and to give his life a ranſom for many.

HERE Chriſt cuts off that Power and Authority, which grows up in the corrupt ture of man, which was ever and anon ſpringing up even in the Diſciples, here wholly excludes it out of his Church, and ſays expreſſly he would have no ſuch among them, no ſuch kind of greatneſs, no ſuch kind of authority Among the G there are great ones, there are Princes: and theſe great ones, theſe Princes, they l over the inferiour ones, exerciſing Authority and Dominion over them, but it ſhall n ſo among you.

The Gentile-ſtate was a ſhadow, even as the Jews ſtate was a ſhadow. The on Death, the other of Life; the one of darkneſs, the other of light. The one was the k of Satan the Prince of Wickedneſs, the other of Chriſt the Prince of Righteouſneſs Peace. They were both Vails, under which the two Kingdoms were hid.

Now in this Gentile-ſtate there were Nations, Princes, Laws, Governments, Do ons, Authorities, &c. but all in the fall, all in the darkneſs, all in the Tranſgreſſion the life. The whole ſtate was corrupt, and there muſt be no imitation from hence, no neſs of any ſuch thing in the Kingdom of Chriſt, no ſuch kind of Law, no ſuch kin Government, no ſuch kind of Authority, no ſuch kind of Anger with perſons that t greſs, no ſuch kind of dealing with any, no ſuch kind of detriment or hurt to any. T is nothing to hurt in the Mountain of Gods Holineſs; but there is a righteous Scepte ſweet Scepter, a ſpiritual Scepter, which reacheth the Spirit in the power of life, toucheth not the outward man.

Two things are here excluded by Chriſt, from whence all the miſchief ariſeth in Church (all the Tyranny and Oppreſſion of mens Conſciences, and of their per eſtates, and liberties for Conſcience ſake) firſt, Greatneſs; ſecondly, the exerciſing minion and Authority by thoſe that would be great therein.

Such a kind of greatneſs as is in the World, its the Deſtruction of the life of Chriſt; ſuch a kind of Dominion and Authority as is among the Nations, is the direct overtu ing of the Kingdom of Chriſt. It ſets up another power than Chriſts, another greatn than Chriſts, another kind of authority than Chriſts; and ſo it eats out the vertue a life of his Kingdom, and makes it juſt like one of the Kingdoms of this World.

It ſhall not be ſo among you. This Spirit muſt be kept out from among you; This a ſpiri Spirit, this lofty ruling Spirit, which loves to be great, which loves to have Dominio which would exalt it ſelf, becauſe of the Gifts it hath received, and would bring oth into ſubjection, this Spirit muſt be ſubdued, amongſt Chriſts Diſciples, or it will ruin The Lord gives grace and knowledge for another end, than for men to take upon th to be great, and rule over others becauſe of it. And he that becauſe of this, thinks h ſelf fit to rule over other mens Conſciences, and to make them bow to what knows or takes to be truth, he loſeth his own life hereby; and ſo far as he prevails u others he doth but deſtroy their life too: For it is not ſo much ſpeaking true things doth good, as ſpeaking them from the pure, and conveying them to the pure: for life runs along from the Veſſel of life in one, into the Veſſel of life in another; and (though never so true) cannot convey life to another, but as the living Vessel in the one, and is opened in the other.

Quest. But how shall this Spirit be kept out, or kept down, that it may not hurt the Dis- in whom it ariseth: or if it do, that the hurt may remain to himself, and may not preju- the Church?

Answ. When this spirit begins to arise up in any, so soon as ever he perceives it, in that discovers it he is to fight against it: laying himself so much the lower, by how much finds this evil spirit raising him up. He is to hearken to that which presents the Cross it, and so to come down and subject himself in serving and ministring to those who are le in his eyes. Instead of reigning over them, let him lye beneath them: Let him tch and know the life even in the meanest, and serve it; for that is his place. That ich would rule is to serve; that which would be great is to be little; and the little is to become a Nation. That which is low, is to rise; and thou art not fit to rise with further than thou canst serve it, both in thy self and others. Therefore if ever thou t aspiring, if ever thou have a mind to rule, if ever thou think thy self fit to teach, use of what thou hast received: sink down, lye low, take up the Cross to that proud irit, make it bend and serve, let the life in every one rise over it, and trample upon it: d afterwards that in thee may arise which is fit to teach, yea and to rule in the Lord: d so long as that hath the Dominion, thou maist be serviceable to the Lord and to his th and people: but if ever the other get up again, thou must presently come down ain, or the wrong Spirit will get dominion over thee, which with force and cruelty ll rule over the life both in thy self and others. Thus if a man be faithful to Christ, this aspiring spirit at its first appearance may be dealt with, and kept down: but if it herished, given way to, and once let up, it will be hard bringing of it down after- ds. Therefore the Disciples, or the Church of Christ, they are to watch over every spirit, to beat it down, to testifie against it, to turn from it, to lay it flat, to put it in proper place, that is beneath all, to minister to all, and so not suffer it to rise, see ver. Let him be your Minister. This is his place, this is his work, by the Authority of Christ. that would be great, he that would rule, let him minister. Own him there; if he lye low there, if he will be faithful there, ye may have unity with him. But in that aspiring temper, in his ruling, in his teaching by what he hath gained, or what hath given to him formerly (if out of the present life) he is to be denyed and turn- from.

If this rule of Christs had been kept to, Antichrists power could never have got up: nor poor innocent Lambs so often have been worried by the Wolves. Ah poor hearts, simply do they come thither, where they once tasted refreshment to find whole- ome food, not suspecting what is got up there since, but give the dominion to a wrong , and so take directions from a wrong Spirit, and betray their own simplicity.

Christ urgeth this upon his Disciples from his own pattern, even as the Son of came not to be ministred unto, but &c. ver. 28. If any had right to be great, rely Christ; if any had right to exercise Authority, surely Christ. If any was be advanced because of any Gift received, or because of any presence of the spi- with him, surely Christ. Yet Christ took not upon him this kind of greatness, nor exercise this kind of Authority. But he was a Servant, he made use of the gift of Spirit, of the power of life wherewith the Father filled him, to minister and serve . He did never Lord it over the Consciences of any of his Disciples, but did bear h them, and pity them in their infirmities (what can ye not watch with me one hour? e Spirit (said he) is willing, but the flesh is weak) He did not hold forth to them what- er he knew to be truth, requiring them to believe it: but was content with them in ir state, and waited till their capacities were enlarged, being still satisfied with the esty and integrity of their hearts in their present state of weakness. Nor did he strive reign over the World, or call for fire from Heaven, when they would not receive him, express indignation when they desired him to depart out of their Coasts, or pray for elve Legions of Angels when they came to betray him, and most unrighteously sought life: but the life he had received of his Father, he gave up as a ransome for his Dis- es, yea and for his enemies. Mark, he did not make use of what was given to him, to e himself up above others, to make his word to stand for a Law and be received, but waited till that was opened in his Disciples and in people which was able to receive Anſw. There is to be no ſuch kind of greatneſs, no ſuch kind of Authority: Yet the is both a greatneſs and authority ſuitable to the ſtate of Diſciples, ſuitable to that kind Kingdom whereof they are. There are Laws, there are Governments, there are Gov nours, there is ruling, and there is ſubjection, but all in the ſpirit, all ſuitable to th which is to be governed: but no government of or according to the fleſh. As Chri Kingdom is not of this World, ſo the government of his Church and People is not acco ding to this World, but as that which gathers is his ſpirit, and that which is gathered i ſpiritual: ſo that which is governed is the ſpirits of his people, and they are to be g verned by his ſpirit and ſpiritually, and not after a fleſhly manner.

Thus Chriſt himſelf, though he miniſtred to his Diſciples, yet he alſo was their Lo and Maſter, and in the ſpirit and life of the Father ruled over them; and thus the Ap ſtles and other Miniſters of Chriſt had likewiſe in the Spirit, the care of the Church and Authority in the Lord, by his ſpirit to govern the ſpirits of his people: not to gover after a fleſhly manner, by their own wills, not to preſcribe them in a Lordly way either what they ſhould believe or practiſe, but in the light and in the power of the ſpirit t make their way into every ones Conſcience in the ſight of God, miniſtring to every on in the ſpirit according to their capacity and growth, and waiting patiently for God to convey the food and nouriſhment, and to build their ſpirits up in the Faith thereby.

The Spirit of the Prophets is Subject to the Prophets. Here is the Government, here i the Law of rule and ſubjection in the life. Every one feeling a meaſure of the Spirit in himſelf, is thereby taught to own and ſubject to a greater meaſure of the ſame Spirit in another. He that hath no meaſure of the Spirit of God, he is not of God, he is none of Chriſts: and he that hath received a meaſure of the Spirit, in the ſame Spirit feeleth nothers meaſure, and owneth it in its place and ſervice, and knoweth its moving, and cannot quench it, but giveth way to it with joy and delight. When the Spirit moves in any one to ſpeak, the ſame ſpirit moves in the other to be ſubject and give way: and ſo every one keeping to his own meaſure in the ſpirit, here can be no diſorder, but true ſubjection of every ſpirit; and where this is wanting, it cannot be ſupplyed by any outward rule, or order ſet up in the Church by common conſent: for that is fleſhly, and lies in the fleſh, and deſtroys the true order, rule, and ſubjection.

The Apoſtles and Miniſters of Chriſt, come from Chriſt with a meſſage of Life and Salvation, with a Teſtimony concerning the good will of God and his love to mankind, pointing out the way from Death to Life, from Bondage to Liberty, from Wrath and Deſtruction to Peace and Salvation. What they have ſeen, what they have felt, what they

they have tasted, what they have handled, what they have found redeem and deliver them, that they declare abroad to others, as they are moved, as they are sent, as they are guided and assisted.

Now that which they preach to, is mens Consciences in the sight of God. They open the truth which they know, they give their Testimony in the moving, leading, and power of the spirit, and they leave it to the same Spirit, to demonstrate it to mens Consciences, as it pleaseth. They are nothing, they can do nothing, they cannot convert any man to God; but the power that speaketh by them, the same power worketh in other mens Consciences at its pleasure. And here is the beginning of the Government of Christ in the heart, when his Truth carries conviction with it to the Conscience, and the Conscience is drawn to yield it self up to him, then he lays his Yoak upon it, and takes upon him the guiding of it: he cherisheth it, he cleanseth it, he comforteth it, he ordereth it at his pleasure: and he alone preserveth it pure, chast, gentle, meek, and plyable to the impressions of his Spirit. And as the Conscience is kept single and tender to Christ, so his Government increases therein: but as it becomes hard, or subject to mens Wills, so another spirit gets dominion over it.

Therefore the great work of the Minister of Christ, is to keep the Conscience open to Christ, and to preserve men from receiving any truths of Christ as from them, further than the spirit opens, or to imitate any of their practises, further than the spirit leads, guides, and perswades them. For persons are exceeding prone to receive things as truths, from those whom they have an high opinion of, and to imitate their practises; and so hurt their own growth, and indanger their Souls. For if I receive a Truth, before the Lord by his spirit make it manifest to me, I lose my guide, and follow but the counsel of the flesh, which is exceeding greedy of receiving Truths, and running into Religious practises without the spirit. Therefore the main thing in Religion, is to keep the Conscience pure to the Lord, to know the guide, to follow the guide, to receive from him that light whereby I am to walk; and not to take things for truths, because others see them to be truths, but to wait till the spirit make them manifest to me: nor to run into worships, duties, performances, or practises, because others are led thither, but to wait till the spirit lead me thither. He that makes hast to be rich (even in Religion, running into knowledge, and into worships and performances, before he feel a true and clear guidance) shall not be innocent: nor the Lord will not hold him guiltless, when he comes to visit for spiritual adultery and idolatry. The Apostles were exceeding tender in this point, for though they certainly and infallibly knew what was to be believed, yet they were not Lords over mens faith, but waited till he who is Lord of the Faith, would open the way into mens Consciences. They did not take upon them to be able to turn the Key, to let in truth and conviction into mens spirits (as men in these days have been too apt to undertake) but directed them to him who had the Key, there to wait for the conviction and illumination of their minds, and so to receive in, as they found him give forth to them.

Let every man, saith the Apostle, be fully perswaded in his own mind; take heed of receiving things too soon, take heed of running into practises too soon, take heed of doing what ye see others do, but wait for your own particular guidance, and for a full perswasion from God what is his will concerning you. Though I know this to be a truth, yet do not ye receive it, till God make it manifest to you; receive truth from his hand, stay till he give it you. Indeed the main matter in Religion is to keep out the wrong part, the forward part, the bastardly birth from running into duties, catching of openings, and laying hold of promises, and to feel the heir born of the immortal Seed, to whom all belongs, and that the other birth never afterwards get up above him, but be subdued and brought into subjection.

Again, saith the Apostle, take heed of doing any thing doubtingly, be not forward, be not hasty, wait for the leading, wait for the manifestation of the Spirit. Be sure thou receive what thou receives in the Faith, and practise what thou practises in the faith: for whatsoever is not of Faith is Sin, being an error from the Principle of Life, which is to guide: and thereby thou loosest ground, and dishonourest Christ, and comest under Condemnation.

And so the Apostle warns Believers, to take heed of drawing one another on too fast, or of judging one another in such things as some of them might have Light in, others not. He that eateth, not to judge him that did not eat: and he that did not eat, not to judge him that did eat. Yea, in matters of Worship, he that observed a day, and kept a Sabbath, not to judge him that observed not a day, or kept not a Sabbath, for the Jews which were truly converted, yet were hard to be drawn off from the observation of their Sabbath, and could hardly bear with the believing Gentiles, who were never taught to keep their Sabbath with them, but were taught to esteem every day and sanctifie it to the Lord, Rom. 14. 5. And these who esteemed every day, and dedicated it to the Lord (ceasing from sin, and resting to him: for under the Gospel we are not to set up a new type, but to enter by Faith into the true rest, which is the substance of what the other signified) could hardly bear with them who observed a day. Even in the Apostles days, Christians were too apt to strive after a wrong unity, and uniformity in outward practices and observations, and to judge one another unrighteously in these things. And mark, it is not the different practice from one another, that breaks the Peace and the Unity, but the judging of one another because of different practises. He that keeps not a day, may unite in the same Spirit, in the same Life, in the same Love with him that keeps a day, and he who keeps a day, may unite in Heart and Soul, with the same Spirit and Life in him who keeps not a day; but he that judgeth the other because of either of these, errs from the Spirit, from the Love, from the Life, and so breaks the bond of Unity. And he that draws another to any practice, before the life in his own particular lead him, doth, as much as in him lies, destroy the Soul of that person, verse 15. This was the Apostles rule, for every one to perform singly to the Lord what he did, and not for one to meddle with the Light or Conscience of another, (undervaluing his brother, or judging him because his light and practises differed from his, vers. 10. of that 14. chap.) but every one to keep close to their own measure of light, even to that proportion of Faith and Knowledge, which God of his mercy hath bestowed on them. And here is the true unity in the Spirit, in the inward life, and not in an outward uniformity. That was not necessary in the Apostles days, nor is it necessary now: and that eye which so dotes upon it, overlooks the one thing which is necessary. Men keeping close to God, the Lord will lead them on fast enough, and give them light fast enough, for he taketh care of such and knoweth what light, and what practices are most proper for them:) but for men to walk on faster than the Lord holds forth his light to them, this overturns them, raising up a wrong thing in them, and the true birth hereby comes to suffer, to shrink, and be driven back. And O how sweet and pleasant is it to the truly spiritual Eye, to see several sorts of believers, several forms of Christians in the School of Christ, every one learning their own Lesson, performing their own peculiar service, and knowing, owning, and loving one another in their several places, and different performances to their Master, to whom they are to give an account, and not to quarrel with one another about their different practices! Rom 14. 4. For this is the true ground of love and unity not that such a man walks and does just as I do, but because I feel the same Spirit and life in him, and in that he walks in his rank, in his own order, in his proper way and place of subjection to that. And this is far more pleasing to me, than if he walked just in that track wherein I walk: nay, (so far as I am spiritual I cannot so much as desire that he should do so, until he be particularly led thereto, by the same Spirit which led me. And he that knows what it is to receive any truths from the Spirit, and to be led into practices by the Spirit, and how prone the fleshly part is to make haste, and how dangerous that haste is, will not be forward to press his knowledge or practices upon others, but rather wait patiently till the Lord fit them for the receiving thereof, for fear lest they should receive and practice too soon, even in that part which cannot serve the Lord. And this I can truly say concerning my self, I never found my Spirit forward to draw any, either to any thing I believed to be true, or to any practice or way of Worship I observed or walked in, but desired that the power and leadings of life might go before them, and was afraid lest men should receive things from my hand, and not from the Lords. Yea, and this I very well remember, that when I walked in the way of Independency (as it hath been commonly called) I had more unity with, and more love towards such as were single hearted in other ways and practices of Worship (whose Spirits I had some feeling of in the true simplicity, and in the life) than with divers of such, who were very knowing and zealous in that way of Independency, in whom whom a wrong thing in the mean time had got up, which had caused them to swerve from the life and from the simplicity.

So that the true Church-Government being in the Spirit, and over the Conscience as in the sight of God, the great care must be to keep it within its bounds, that nothing else govern but the Spirit, and that the Government be extended only unto that which is to be governed,

First, care must be had that nothing govern in the Church of Christ, but the Spirit of Christ: that nothing else teach, nothing else exhort, nothing else admonish and reprove, nothing else cut off and cast out. Every Minister in the Church is to watch over his own Spirit, that it intrude not into the Work of God, that it take not upon it to be the Teacher, the Exhorter, the Reprover, &c. And every member is to wait in that measure of the Spirit which he hath received, to feel the goings forth of the Spirit in him who teacheth and governeth; and so to subject not to man, but to the Lord; to receive from the Lord, to obey the Lord. Not to know any Minister according to the Flesh, but to receive, and submit to what comes from the Spirit, in the Spirit. Not to know Paul, or Apollo, or Cephas, but the Spirit ministring in them. Paul may err, Apollo may err, Peter may err (and did err, when he compelled the Gentiles to live as the Jews, Gal. 2. 14. for which Paul withstood him to the Face, v. 11.) and Barnabas also did err, verse 13. But the Spirit cannot err: and he that keeps to the measure of the Spirit in himself, cannot let in any of their errors, if they should err, but is preserved. For the least measure of the Spirit is true, and gives true judgment: but he that receiveth never so great a measure of the Spirit, yet if he keep not low therein, but lifteth up himself because thereof above his brethren, may easily err himself, and draw aside others into his error.

Secondly, care must be had that the Conscience be kept tender, that nothing be received but according to the light in the Conscience. The Conscience is the Seat of Faith; and if it be not kept close to the light which God lighteth there, Faith is soon made Shipwrack of. Christianity is begun in the Spirit, which keepeth out the fleshly part, with all its fleshly Wisdom and Reasonings about Spiritual things: and as the beginning is in the anointing, so must the progress be. As the Spirit begins in the Conscience by convincing that, by perswading that, be setting up his light there, and leading the Soul by that light: so that light must still be eyed, and according to its growth and manifestation in the Conscience, so must the Soul stand still, or go on.

The great error of the ages of the Apostacy hath been, to set up an outward Order and Uniformity, and to make mens Consciences bend thereto, either by arguments of Wisdom, or by force; but the property of the true Church-government is, to leave the Conscience to its full liberty in the Lord, to preserve it single and entire for the Lord to exercise, and to seek unity in the Light and in the Spirit, walking sweetly and harmoniously together in the midst of different practices. Yea, and he that hath Faith, and can see beyond another, yet can haue it to himself, and not disturb his brother with it, but can descend and walk with him according to his measure: and if his brother have any heavy burthen upon him, he can lend him his shoulder, and bear part of his burthen with him. O how sweet and lovely is it to see brethren dwell together in unity, to see the true Image of God raised in Persons, and they knowing and loving one another in that Image, and bearing with one another through Love, and helping one another under their temptations and distresses of Spirit, which every one must expect to meet with.

If thou art a Christian in Deed and in Truth, preserve thy Conscience pure and tender towards God, do not defile it with such religious Practices, Duties, Ordinances, &c. as thou dost not feel the Spirit leading thee into: for all such are Idols, and exceedingly pollute thee. And be tender also of thy brothers Conscience, and be not an instrument to draw him unto any thing which the Lord leads him not into, but rejoyce if thou find him in simplicity of heart startling at any thing: for if he abid here faithful, his guide will in due season appear to him, and clear up his way, before him, but if he be too hasty, he may follow a wrong guide. and that guide will never lead him aright towards the Kingdom, but intangle him further and further from it.

O how many have run a whoring from the Lord! How many have first lost the guidance of his Spirit, and then drowned their life in Religious performances! How many have drunk of the Cup of Fornication from the life, at the hands of the fleshly Wisdom! How many have filled their Spirit with New-Testament-Idols and Images! How many have even hardened their Hearts and Consciences, by following the Doctrines of men, their imaginary meanings of Scriptures, and the Imaginations and Dreams of their own hearts! Is it not time for men at length to turn back towards the Lord, to wait for the visitation and light of his Spirit, from whom they have gone a Whoring, and whom in all these things they have grieved? And if ever any feel and enjoy the guidance of Gods Spirit their Conscience must be kept tender to it, and ready to hear and follow his voice, who speaks in Spirit to that which is born of him, which infallibly knows his voice, and (being kept clear) cannot doubt concerning it. My Sheep hear my voice, saith Christ, they know it, and the voice of the strange Spirit they know not so as to follow it, but turn from it, both in themselves and others. But that which is not the Sheep, but hath only got the Sheeps cloathing, cries out, how shall we know the voice of the Spirit? We may be deceived. Nay that which is born of God, that which is the elect of God, cannot be deceived. Wait therefore for the birth of the Spirit, to which the Spirit is given for a guide, who infallibly guides it out of deceit. All deceivers are out of this Birth, out of this Spirit, perhaps in some birth or other framed from the Letter, and living in the imitation of some Practices and Ordinances from the Letter (under which cover they lie in wait to deceive) but strangers to the life and power, and to that Wisdom which begets and bears to God. Thus the Jews erred, and deceived their Proselytes before the coming of Christ: Thus the Christians (in name) have generally erred all along the Apostacy, and indeed (for the generality) have not been true Christians, but only a persecuted remnant amongst them; whose life hath been nourished and preserved, not by Doctrines and Observations which they have been taught by the precepts of men, nor by the knowledge which they themselves have gathered, but by a little Bread dayly handed to them from the Father of Mercies out of the Wilderness? that was the thing which nourished, their Souls up to God, though many of them knew not distinctly what it was that nourished them, nor how they came by it:

Obj. But is not Uniformity lovely, and doth not the Apostle exhort Christians to be of one mind, and were it not a sweet thing if we were all of one heart and one way?

Answ. Yea, Uniformity is very lovely: and to be desired and waited for, as the Spirit of the Lord which is one, leads and draws into one. But for the fleshly part (the wise reasoning part of man) by fleshly ways and means to strive ato bring about fleshly Uniformity, which ensnares and overbears the tender Conscience, this is not lovely, nor spiritual, nor Christian. And the Apostle who exhorts Christians to one mind, yet doth not bid them force one another into one mind, but walk together sweetly so far as they had attained, and wherein they were otherwise minded, God in his due time would reveal more to them, Philip. 3. 15, 16. He that hath, to him shall be given. And the intent and work of the Ministry (with the several ministrations of it) is to bring into the unity (Ephes. 4. 13, as persons are able to follow, and not to force all men into one practice or way; That's the way to destroy the Faith, and the true unity, and at best can introduce but a fleshly appearance of unity in such a form of Worship and Godliness, as eats out the power. And for being of one heart and one way, blessed be the Lord, this is in measure known and witnessed. The way is one, Christ the truth of God, and he that is in the Faith, and in the Obedience to that light which shines from his Spirit into the heart of every believer, hath a taste of the one heart, and of the one way; and knoweth that no variety of practices (which is of God) can make a breach in the true unity. This is the one way, for every one to be subject to that light of Christs Spirit, which he hath received from Christ, and every one keeping here, there is also one heart, kept in the midst of all the variety, and diversity of Practices. And the unity being thus kept, all will come into one outwardly also at length, as the light grows in every one, and as every one grows into the light: but this must be patiently waited for from the hand of God (who hath the right way of effecting it, and who alone can do it) and not harshly and cruelly attempted by the rough hand of man.

1. THat the Spouſe of Chriſt, the true Church which God built in the Apoſtles days by his Spirit, the Church againſt which the Gates of Hell could not prevail, the Church which was the Temple of the Living God, the pillar and ground of truth, the Woman which was cloathed with the Sun, who had the Moon under her feet, and was Crowned with a Crown of twelve Stars, &c. This Church at the cloſe of the Fight between Michael with his Angels, and the Dragon with his Angels) fled into the Wilderneſs, into the place prepared of God for her, Rev. 12. 6. Having two Wings of a great Eagle given her that ſhe might fly thither to her place, where ſhe was to abide, and be hid from the face of the Serpent, and tsbe fed with the living nouriſhment from the hand of the Father all the time of Antichriſt, reign. which is ſaid to be a time, times, and half a time, verſe 14. Or one Thouſand, two Hundred, and Sixty days, as verſe 6. Or Forty two Months, as Chap. 11. 2. And ſhe was accordingly gone out of ſight, inſomuch as the Serpent could find her no more but went to make War with the remnant of her Seed, which kept the Commandments of God, and have the Teſtimony of Jeſus Chriſt, Revel. 11. 17.

2. That the true Church cannot come out of the Wilderneſs, till the time of her abode there (the ſet time appointed by God) be ended, nor then neither, but by the out-ſtretched Arm of the Lord, Pſalm 102. 13. She may mourn over her deſolate Wilderneſs-ſtate, but ſhe cannot fly out of it, without the help of the Wings of the ſame Eagle, which were given her to fly into it. The Lord muſt pity the duſt of Sion, and (by his everlaſting Strength and Compaſſion) raiſe up the Tabernacle of David, which is fallen down, or it can be reſtored no more, verſe 16. Revel. 21. 3.

3. That the State of the People of God, all this time of the true Churches abſence, hath been a State of Captivity. The Seed hath been in Bondage in Ægypt the dark Land, in Babylon the Land of Confuſion (for ſuch all the Church Buildings, Order, and Government have been in compare with the true Order and Government of the Church by the Spirit, which was known and enjoyed by the People of God, before this her flight) where they have been mourning under the Chains of darkneſs, and lamenting over their Mother: For Zion hath been laid waſte, and Jeruſalem (the holy City) hath been troden under foot by the Gentiles, to whom the outward Court Was given, when God took down his building, and ſecur'd his temple, alter, and the worſhippers therein, Rev. 11. 2. And in this ſtate God finds his People, when he comes to overthrow her (to bring Death, and Mourning, and Famine, and Fire upon her, Rev. 18. 8.) and to redeem them: for then the Voice goes forth from the Spirit of the Lord, to the Spirits of his People, Come out of her my People, that ye be not partakers of her Sins, &c. verſe 4. Why, were the people of God in her till now? Yea, till the very hour of her judgment, and are many of them in great danger of ſtaying there, even till they feel her Plagues. They that ſit down in any Church-building, taking it for Sion, before Gods ſeaſon of Building his Sion, ſit down but in Babylon, it is no other, though they who have drunk of the falſe Womans Cup, (new mixed for them, and ſo are inchanted afreſh into ſome new Fine-painted Bed of her Fornication) cannot believe it to be ſo.

4. That

4. That when God redeems his people out of Babylon, he brings them not immediately unto Sion (not immediately into a built City) but into the Wilderness where the Church lies unbuilt, where they are prepared and fitted for the holy Land, and circumcised in Spirit before their entrance. There is a long travel from Babylon to Sion, wherein the hasty Spirit, the rough Spirit, the exalted Spirit, the murmuring Spirit, the Self-will, Self-worship, self-Wisdom, Knowledge, and Righteousness, (all which are of great price in Babylon) is cut down, and the Spirit broken, emptyed, made poor, deeply humbled, and so prepared for Gods holy Hill. When a Babylonish Building or way of Worship is discovered, man would feign have another ready, to put in the place of it so soon as it is pulled down. Thus mans Wisdom would order it, but the Lord will not have it so, but there must be a season of desolation, of stripping, of nakedness, of being uncloathed of all the Purple and Scarlet dye of Babylon, Rev. 17. 4 A pulling off the Ornaments of all the Knowledge, Worship, Ordinances, Duties, Experiences, &c. which are held and practiced out of the pure Life. And in this state of Misery and sore Distress, the Lord lays the Foundation of the new Heavens, and of the new Earth, in the Spirits of his People, which, when it is finished, then at length he saith to Sion, Thou art my people, Isa. 51, 16.

Observe therefore the error of the Reformations since the Apostacy. They have been still building too fast, and not waiting on God to be hewn and squared, and fitted for his building. The reformed Churches have still been built of Stones, before they were made ready for the building. They have not waited their time of preparation in the Wilderness, nor have they waited for Gods building them up into a Temple, nor in the time and season wherein it is Gods pleasure to build. So that though they did well in seperating from that which was corrupt and manifestly evil, yet they did not well in making haste into another way of their own forming, but should have waited for Gods manifestation of the good, and for his leading of them by his spirit into it. And by this means it hath come to pass, that though there hath been a pure thing often stirring upwards Reformation, yet by an over forward hastning to build, the good hath been quenched, and the evil hath again (under a new cover or form of Worship) overgrown it, and then hath been ready to revile and persecute the good in others: but this the eye which is overtaken with the appearing beauty of its Building (having concluded it to be according to the Will of God revealed in the Scriptures) cannot discern.

5. That when Zion is rebuilt, when the Church its Heaven is again stretched forth (wherein she was seated before she fled into the Wilderness, Rev. 12. 1. those that are Gods faithful Witnesses (into whom his spirit of life hath entred, and whom he hath caused to stand upon their feet) shall ascend up to Heaven in a Cloud, which their very enemies shall behold, Rev. 11. 12. And this was done in the time of a great Earthquake, wherein the tenth part of the City fell, ver. 13. The shaking at this time is very great in this Nation, let men mark what will be the issue, and observe whether (notwithstanding all the seeming contrarieties) the Lord God do not so order it, as to bring a considerable part of Babylon down, and of the powers that uphold her.

The people of God, all this time of Antichrists Reign, have been a suffering people. The tender-hearted every where (whose Souls could only bow to the Lord, who could not receive Doctrines from men, or fall into Worships and Practices at the Will of man) have lain open to Church-censures (as they call them) and to the Magistrates indignation under the names of Hereticks, Blasphemers, Seducers, and disturbers of the Peace both of Church and State: and indeed so far as any have tasted of the true light and power of Christ, and have been called forth by him to be his Witnesses, they could not but be disturbers of the carnal peace and security of the Antichristian Congregations, against whom they witnessed. When the true Church fled into the Wilderness, the Serpent cast a Flood after her: she was reproached and blasphemed for an Harlot, a Strumpet, one that was not the Lambs Wife, as she pretended, Rev. 12. 15. For the Dragon which persecuted her (having now gained her ground) had set up another Woman for the true Church, and had decked her richly, Rev. 17. 4. insomuch as she was admired for her Beauty by all the Kings and inhabiters of the earth, ver. 2. but she which was indeed the true Woman was trampled upon and despised even by all the outward Worshippers in the outward Court all over the World, Rev. 11. 2. And if those of the Synagogue of Satan, could contend to be the true Jews and the true Church, even while the true Church was standing, Rev. 3. 9. no marvel though they carry it clear in their several forms and disguises in the time of her flight and absence, especially they appearing both in the place where she once was, and in her very dress: and here is the eye of Gods Spirit, and of the Wisdom he gives to his Babes tryed, even to discern and flie from her there. Let her paint never so often, change her dresses in every hour of Reformation, come nearer and nearer into the likeness of the true Church: yet that which is born of the truth espyeth her, and the young man whose ear is kept open to the Voice of Wisdom, which uttereth it self in the Immortal Seed) escapeth her Bed, and is not defiled with the great Whore, nor with any of her Women or Daughters, who are born of her after her spirit, though they deny her, and seem much to differ from her according to the flesh, Rev. 14. 4. Enter into the mystery of life (from out of the reach of the spirit of Witchcraft) and read me here, that in the true eternal Light of all the living, thou maist perceive the mistery of deceit, and escape as a Bird from the Snare, and live. Now the true Church being thus fled, what becomes of her Seed? they must needs be scattered, they can no more be found in a body as before, there is now but a remnant left which keep the Commandments of God, and have the Testimony of Jesus Christ, and these the Dragon applies himself still to manage the War against, Rev. 12. 17. And the Beast (to whom the Dragon gave his power, Rev. 13. 2. and upon whom the false Church was found sitting even to the very last, Rev. 17. 3.) did not only make War with the Saints, but also overcome them: and this power was given him over all Kindreds, and Tongues and Nations, ver 7. of chap 13. So that the Holy City was to be kept down and trampled under foot by the false Worshippers, under one form or appearance of Church Worship or other, all the time of the Beasts Reign, Rev. 11. 2. And as the Beast did kill them: so the Woman that sat upon the Beast drunk their Blood, Rev. 17. 6. For mark, the Dragon, the first Beast the second Beast with the false Church are all in unity together, and drive on their War and Design under disguises and appearances of truths and Church-Worship and Discipline against the Lamb and his Followers, against every appearance of Christ in his Truth and People. And every where, where he can get into any form without the power, there he manageth his War by the form against the Power. Thus in Popery by crying up Holy Church, he knocks down all the springings up of truth there, so in Episcopacy, by crying up that form, how did he knock down the buildings up of the true life and power there also. And if he be driven out there, then he stands ready to enter into the next form, either of Presbitery or Independency, that he may not want the advantage of a cover to keep his War on foot still against the Saints and the truths of Christ: and here lies his strength; and the liker his form is to that which once was true, the better it serves to cover him, and he has better advantage of fighting under it against Christ, his Truths and People, than under another which is not so like. But Antichrists Reign, (who hath taken the Name upon him without the Nature, and so persecuted the true Nature, being covered with the Name) is to have an end, yea (blessed be the Lord) it is in part ended, and the Lambs day is already begun, the outstretched Arm of the Lords everlasting power is revealed, and revealing more and more: yea Babylon is already discovered, her waters are dryed up, her nakedness under all her covering is seen, her very life and spirit is struck at, her Kingdom totters daily; the stakes also of Zions Tabernacle are strengthning daily, and the Lord is stretching out her Curtains, and inlarging her Territories; and the Wrath issues out more and more from the Throne, and dreadful Woes and Plagues are prepared for them, who are either upholding any old likenesses of what once was true, or setting up any new ones in this day of Gods power, wherein he is redeeming and bringing forth the life it self.

Is it not plain, that the Beast (or Antichrist who sate in the Temple of God, ruling there as a Beast by outward Force, without the inward Life and Power, 2 Thes. 2. 4.) had power given him to continue his War against the Saints, till the very expiration of the forty two Months? Rev. 13. 5. And was not this power given him over all Kindreds, and Tongues, and Nations? ver. 7. Did not the false Church or false Woman, till the very end of this time (in one appearance or other, under some form of Worship or other; sometimes in a grosser and more loathsome, sometimes in a finer and more taking dress) still go for the true Church, being upheld by the Kings and Inhabitants of the Earth, who all drank of her Cup of Fornication? Rev. 17. 2, 4. Was not the holy City (or true Church) trod under foot all this while in every Kindred, Nation, &c. by the heathenish Spirit of the Antichristian-Christians therein, who made a great shew of Zeal and Worship in the outward Court? Rev. 11. 2. For while the holy City is to remain unbuilt, he that will worship in it, must sink into its ruins, and lie desolate with it, but he that will be buiding before Gods time, rejects the Corner-Stone, which lies hid in the ruins of this City, and so builds up a Babylon, to which though he gives the name of Sion, yet it is not so in truth; but Sion lies underneath, in the dust, trampled upon and set at nought by him and his building. Now, shall the forty two Months never have an end? And shall the Holy City never rise again from under the feet of the Antichristian Professors and Worshippers of the outward Court? Shall the Walls of Sion neuer be built more? Or is it to be expected, when the Lord begins to build her up and bring her forth, that ever any of the false Churches should own her? O fear therefore before the Lord, every one entring into that in his own heart, which (being hearkened unto) teacheth the Fear, and breaketh the Pride, Loftiness, and Conceitedness of the high-imagining mind, which first builds up with apprehensions about Church, Religion, and Worship without the Spirit, and then is offended with that which cannot bow to those Images. But be it known unto you, O Nations and Powers of the Earth, that the Lord hath raised up a people, whose Knees can alone bow at the name of Jesus, and whose Tongues can alone confess to him. And if Nebuchadnezzar's Spirit should heat a Furnace of affliction, seven times hotter than it hath yet been heated, all this day of the cruel sufferings of Gods dear people, and threaten all with it, that will not bow to the Image or Form of Worship which he sets up, yet this we know assuredly, that the Lord hath begotten a Seed which he can deliver, and which we do not doubt but he will deliver, let Antichrist's Sea and Waves roar never so loud against them. But however, bow to any Image they cannot: for they have tasted of the living truth it self, which hath made them free from such Images and Idols wherein they were before intangled; and the Spirit of the Lord calleth aloud to them to stand fast in the liberty wherewith Christ hath set them free, and not receive any more the yoak of Bondage upon their necks, but to draw under the sweet, gentle Yoak of his Spirit.

O England, England, how sad is thy state! How great and mighty things hath the Lord done in thee, but thou still overlookest his hand, and art offended with the Work of his Spirit, because it suits not with thy fleshly desires and interests! O England, England, what will become of thee! The Lord hath kindled his Fire, and thou addest Fewel daily. The Lord is arisen to make inquisition for the sufferings and bloud of his people, and thou instead of repenting of what thou hast done, art greedy of more. Thou hast deeply drunk of the Whores Cup of Fornication, and that makes thee thus thirst after the Saints bloud. Thou cryest out against those that put the Martyrs to death, as the professing Jews did against those that put the Prophets to death; and yet persecutest their Spirit where ever it appears in further prosecution of the Work of reformation at this day, even as the Jews did persecute the Spirit of the Prophets in Christs and his Apostles. O mourn to the Lord to open thine eyes, that thou maist not thus stand any longer in his way. Let him bring forth his Church, let him set up his Truth, let him advance his People, and do not thou go about to limit the Spirit of the holy one in them. There's none of these will harm thee, but bring blessings upon thee. Let thy Governours keep within their bounds, and be a defence upon all people in their just rights and liberties, and see if from that day he do not bless thee. But if there be one thing in the Lords heart concerning his people, and another thing in thine; if he resolve to bring them forth to his praise, and to give them their liberty in their obedience to his Spirit, and thou resolve they shall come under thy Yoaks and Bonds, how can ye agree? Your Wrath by this means must needs be kindled against each other, and he that hath most strength will carry it. For as the day of your Wrath is come, to see the people of God so encrease, and grow bold in his Truth and Power: so the day of his Wrath is come, to see his people so reproached, hated, hunted, and persecuted, for his names sake, Revel. 11. 18: And take heed, lest upon that Spirit, which in this Generation still continues persecuting the sufferings, persecutions, and bloud of all the Saints and Martyrs (shed all the time of Antichrist's Reign) be not required. The bloud of all the Prophets from Abel to Zacharias, was required of that great profes-ſing Generation of the Jews, who ſpake ſuch great Words of Moſes and the Prophets; but perſecuted Chriſt and his Apoſtles, Mat. 23. 35. And the bloud of all the Souls that lie under the Alter, crying, How long O Lord, Holy and True, doſt thou not judge and avenge our bloud on them that dwell upon the earth? They were bid to reſt a little ſeaſon, and then the bloud of all that ever was ſlain ſince the Apoſtles days, is to be required on that Generation of Profeſſors, which are found even to the very laſt in the perſecuting Spirit, Revel. 6. 10, 11.

I do not write this to reproach any ſort of Profeſſors, but in true Love and Bowels of compaſſion, that ſuch among them as ever had any taſt of God, and of his ſweet meek Spirit, but are now grown hard, and found ſmiting their fellow Servants, may (if it be poſſible) hear the Lords Voice, which yet tenderly calls after them, that they may not be cut in pieces, and receive their Portion of Wrath with Babylon, Mat 24 49, 50, 51. Revel. 18. 4. As for me, I am poor and weak (a Worm, and no man.) one who hath been a mourner and wanderer in a ſtrange Land all my days, yea, I have been that fool, who though I have often been very near, yet ſtill knew not the way to the City of my God, Eccleſ. 10. 15. And at preſent, I am very unworthy and unfit to be an Inſtrument in the Lords hand, for the reclaiming of any man from his wanderings. Yet this I can in Truth and Uprightneſs ſay concerning the Lords gracious dealings with me, that in the Bowels of his mercy he hath viſited me, and turned my face toward his Sion: and his Life and Spirit (as he pleaſeth to keep me freſh and open) I know both my way and my leader, and alſo that which is mine enemy, which continually endeavoureth to betray and devour me. And, I ſpeak the truth in Chriſt, I lie not, I know alſo what I have felt wrath and miſery upon, and that what the Lord hath ſo long and ſoſeverely ſmitten in me, he will not ſpare in others. O that men could hear, and avoid my Bed of Torment, where I ſuffered a moſt dreadful and terrible Hell, for many years (bear with me, for I canot call it leſs) though without either guilt upon my Spirit, or fear of Wrath, being juſtified before God in my own Conſcience (till afterwards under long continuance of miſery and thick darkneſs, ſome guilt was contracted) and having a ſecret Root of hope concerning good from God, if once I might appear in his preſence to plead my cauſe there. Who can poſſibly believe the miſery I endured (if it were related) and yet it had not the leaſt mixture of either of theſe in it for a long time. But after this, through the ignorance and thick darkneſs, wherewith I had been long overwhelmed, not knowing what had been and ſtill was preſent with me, the tempter by his ſubtilty got in, and led out my mind from what had viſited and ſought after me all my days, to wait and hope for ſome great appearance to ſet me to rights: and here my loſs was very great, my Soul being hereby removed far away from the preſent feeling of the ſpring of my life, and drawn to neglect the little dawnings of that light, which ſhineth more and more to the perfect day, having concluded in my ſelf that no leſs would ſuffice to heal me, than its breaking forth in its full ſtrength, even as at noon upon me. Thus I deſpiſed the day of ſmall things, and was ſeduced into a gaping after, and waiting for that, which is never ſo to be received: but the little ſeed of Light being received, and finding good and honeſt earth, groweth up therein even to perfection, and then knoweth and receiveth the light of the day in its full ſtrength. And although there was ſuch a ſavour of God left in me, that upon the firſt converſe with this People called Quakers, I could own the Voice of God in them, and ſet to my Seal, (as in the preſence of God) that it was the true life and power of the moſt High whereof they were born, yet I could not but deſpiſe it as a weak and low appearance thereof, yea, and ſtarted back from it, as being ſuch a kind of diſpenſation of life and power as was to paſs away, and the paſſing away whereof from me, had made me ſo miſerable. And now I am as one born out of due time, and come lagging behind, feeling my ſelf altogether unworthy to be numbred amongſt them, or to bear a Teſtimony to that truth and power of life wherein they flouriſh, and by which they are redeemed and bought out of the earth, with the price of the living immortal bloud of Jeſus, by which (together with the word of his Teſtimony) they cannot but overcome all the Powers of darkneſs (with all the Powers of the Earth, which ſtand in the darkneſs, and fight under the darkneſs) being taught thereby not to love their lives unto the death. But the ſcoffing conceited Profeſſor will be ready to ſay, What, are thoſe the only People? Others beſides them, are as dear to God as they. There are many in forms equal to them, and many out of forms, far beyond them. Whereto I answer thus, Yea, there are so in the scale of mans judgment, but not so in the measure of the Sanctuary. These are the only redeemed People that my Soul knows of. There is a Seed besides them, not yet gathered, but in Babylon, whom the Lord (in his due season) will gather into the same light, life, and power: but there is no other Saviour, but that light eternal which hath given them life, and dwells in them; who is risen in them, come to them, and hath taken them into himself, in whom they are, even in him that is true, who is the Son of God, the true God, and the Life eternal, (1 John 5. 20.) who hath poured forth his Spirit upon them, in which they Minister, and gather up to God those who have an ear to hear the voice of his Spirit. Beware therefore, O ye Nations and Powers of the earth, what ye do against this People: For ye cannot prevail by any Inchantment, against these whom the Lord hath blessed: but the more ye strive to vilifie and suppress them, the more will the Lord will magnifie and exalt them. And the life which God hath raised up in them must reign, do what ye can against it: O abase your selves, and kiss the Son, O Professors and Powers of the earth, that ye be not cut off; for the Lords hand is lifted up, and in his jealousie he will smite home for the sake of Zion, for his Ear hath heard the cry of the poor and needy, whom no man regardeth, Isa. 33. 10, 11.

FROM THE BOWELS of LIFE,

TO THE

Several Generations of Professors of this AGE; that they may Awaken and Turn towards the life, to be truly Cleansed and Saved by its Powerful Living Vertue, before the Storm of Wrath break forth, and the overflowing Scourge overtake them, which will sweed away the Strongest and most Well-built Refuge of Lies, and sink those Souls (even into the Pit of Misery) which are there found, when the Storm comes.

Held forth in four Propositions, Assertions, or Considerations, concerning Man in his Lost state, and his Recovery out of it.

Propos. 1. That Man is fallen from God.

THERE is an everlasting, Infinite, Pure Fountain and Well-spring of Life from whence all Creatures came, from whence their Life, Being, Motion, Vertue, and Rest flows, in which they all have a place and standing according to their Nature, Estate, Temperature, and course of Operation in his eternal Counsel, who made all, disposeth of all, ruleth in and over all eternally: Whose everlasting Kingdom and Dominion (which was before all, and will be after all)

all) cannot be excluded by any power or dominion which ariſeth after it? but only ſo far as it ſelf hath pleaſed it hath given way to that power of darkneſs, which is contrary to it: which how it ſprang up, what it hath to do, and how it is to vaniſh, is not for mans comprehenſion to fathom.

In this Spring of life, man had an eſpecial place and ſtanding. The Lord had created and placed him Supreme, under himſelf, over the works of his hands, gave him his Kingdom here on earth under him, gave him his Image to rule in, even a ſufficient meaſure of that eternal Wiſdom in which he formed him, to which he was to be ſubject himſelf, and by which he was to reign over and order all with delight, joy and comfort in himſelf, to the praiſe and glory of him who formed all, and had given him the Dominion over all. Here was the ſweet eſtate, the ſweet peace, the ſweet liberty, the ſweet unity of all, all being kept and preſerved in that Life, Vertue, Wiſdom, Goodneſs, Power and Love wherein they were made, the Creatures naturally becoming ſubject to, ſerving and obeying man (man uſing them and ruling over them not in the Tyranny, not in the Luſt, not in the Vanity, not in the exceſs; but in the Righteouſneſs, in the Love, in the Meekneſs, in the Moderation, in the Divine Wiſdom, in the pure power and virtue of the Life) man likewiſe naturally vailing to his Maker, walking in his Light, living in his Life, ſhining in his Beauty, conquering and triumphing (over all that might aſſault) in his ſtrength, and continuing perfect and ſtreight before him in purity and cleanneſs of heart, in that ſweet, pretious, preſerving fear, which naturally ſprings up in the heart of the Creature (not degenerated) towards his Creator and Preſerver. Now, what could man want, having the Spring of Life ſo near him? What could he deſire in the Purity, in the Life, which the Father of Life could have with-held from him? Had he asked the Spirit, could the Father have denyed him? and had he ſtood ſtill a while in the Life, out of the Luſt, could he have forborn asking in the ſpirit? Had he not ſo ſuddenly been tempted to the Tree of Knowledge, ſurely he had eaten of the Tree of Life, and had lived for ever.

But man being in Honour, lodged not one Night, (HE FELL THE FIRST NIGHT, read me who can) but became like the Beaſts that periſh. He loſt the Divine Image, and then had at beſt but the natural: but that, depending upon the Divine, the Beauty thereof was loſt too. He loſt the Eternal Wiſdom, he loſt the Spring, he loſt the Godhead, he loſt that which was to Reign over the Creatures, and then he became but as the Creatures, nay worſe than the Creatures. What he henceforth knows of God (as he ſtands in the Degeneration) he knows naturally, like bruit Beaſts (even by the natural exerciſe of his mind, with the faculties thereof, even as the Beaſts learn and know by their nature, after their kind) and in what he thus knows, he corrupts himſelf worſe than the Beaſts. Let the Lord try him never ſo much, never ſo often, drop down of the Dew of Heaven upon him, ſend him Line upon Line, and Precept upon Precept, now a little and then a little, yet he ſtill remains bruitiſh, both in his underſtanding, receiving, and in his making uſe of it all. Still he forgets the Truth, and loſes himſelf in the Image, gets a notion, an imagination, a comprehenſion of ſomewhat into his natural part (which changes him not inwardly, but ſtill he is the ſame in his root, ground and nature) but the Life, the Eternal vertue he is ſtill eſtranged from, and ſo is bruitiſh in all his knowledge and apprehenſions of God and his Truths, bruitiſh in his Worſhipping of him, bruitiſh in his belief and hopes, and his Immortal Soul periſhes under all: Outward Iſrael was a true and full reſemblance of him, who had many Teachings, a pure Law of Worſhip, and Sacrificing, many Prophets to reduce and reſtore them to the right Path of Holineſs and Obedience, but ſtill they were erring in their hearts from the Lord and his pure Law of Life, not knowing their Owner or their Maſters Crib, ſo well as the Ox or Aſs did theirs, Iſa. 1. 3.

Propoſ. 2. That Man, by all the imaginations that can enter into his Heart, and by all the means he can uſe or courſes he can run, cannot return back to God again, or ſo much as deſire it.

The Fall of Man from God is ſuch, that it hath benummed all his ſenſes, yea ſo bereft him of them, that he cannot feel his own eſtate. He is dead, ſpiritually dead, and can no more feel his death, his ſpiritual death, then a man naturally dead can his natural death. He is bewitched into a Fools Paradice, where he hath a new Life, a new Virtue, a new Wiſdom, a new Kingdom, a new Dominion (which is indeed but Death) with which he is ſo Tranſported, that he forgetteth the old; and in this new ſpirit and eſtate, cannot ſo much as deſire after it. Men ſpeak of the Reliques of the Image, which the firſt man had: Ah poor deceived hearts! What Reliques of life are there in a dead man? What Reliques of purity in a man wholly degenerated and corrupted? Nay, nay; The Spiritual Image, the Divine Image, the Eternal life, the pure Power and Vertue is wholly loſt, and there is nothing left, but what is captivated and deſtroyed through the degenerating power. There is nothing at all of the Eternal Kingdom, of the Spiritual Image, of the Divine Life to be found in fallen Man, but a little Seed; and that Seed not ſo much as ſown in his earth, as he ſtands in the degeneration; for the ſowing of it is the beginning of the work anew. And now, who can read this Riddle? The Kingdom is within every man, and yet not ſo much as ſown in any man, till the ſpringing up of the eternal vertue according to the Eternal pleaſure; nay the earth is not ſo much as prepared to receive the Seed, until the Lord ſend his Plough into the Heart. So that it is impoſſible for fallen Man to attain to ſo much as one true breathing, or deſire after God again; this muſt ariſe from the Grace, from the Mercy, from a new begetting (by the free Gift) towards life, towards the Divine Image again, which was ſlain in Man (and the impreſſion of it on him wholly loſt) ever ſince the Foundation of the World in his heart, which God hath ſet there, ever ſince he choſe it. And indeed fallen Man, degenerated Man (would the Spirit of the Lord let him alone, and not diſquiet him) likes his own eſtate well enough. The World being written in his heart, his thoughts and deſires are entred there, and of themſelves reach no further. Might he but have the enjoyment of the Creatures without, and the enjoyment of ſuch a kind of earthly knowledge and wiſdom within, as he now aſpires after, he would ſit down in Egypt and Babylon, reſting fully ſatisfied with Egyptian knowledge and wiſdom, and with the Babyloniſh Treaſures (might he have enough of them) and never think of Sion, and the pure Holy Land of Life any more.

But when the Eternal ſtirs in him, when the pure Light opens at any time, then he has ſome little Glimmerings of his Eſtate, then he has ſome ſence of his fallen condition, and ſome deſire to remedy it; What doth he then? Then he beſtirs himſelf to get ſomewhat to cover him, then he gathers Stones and makes Mortar to build up a Wall and raiſe a Tower, that he may not lye open to the Deluge of Wrath; for, by this ſtirring of the life, he hath ſome little taſte and ſight, that he is not one with the life, but departed from it: The Soul being awakened by the opening of its own ſpring in it, begins to feel the want of its ſpring: It wants the true Vertue, the true Peace, the true Joy, the true Comfort and Refreſhment, the true Reſt, the true Liberty, the true Life, the true Light; and for want of this, its eſtate is miſerable: And in the ſtirring of the Spring, it feels this miſery; and in this feeling it groans, it mourns, it pants, it cryes out, and the creatural earthly ſpirit can have no reſt becauſe of it. What therefore doth the Creature do to ſtill this cry? Why, it joyneth, as it were, with the Soul, it uſeth all the means it can to attain that, which the Soul ſees the want of: It inquireth after God, hearkneth out after thoſe that know him, ſtudieth the Law, obſerveth the Statutes and Ordinances, performeth the Duties, Believeth, Prayeth, Hopeth, Waiteth: nay, what is it, which the Creature will not ſet upon in this diſtreſs (eſpecially if the Convictions of the Eternal Light purſue and follow him cloſe) to ſtill the cry of the Soul, and to attain the price of the Eternal Inheritance, which is ſet before the Soul, which the Soul can never be at reſt or ſatisfied without ſome aſſurance of, and progreſs towards? But all this will not do. Man in all his own obedience, as well as in his diſobedience is ſhut out. There is a flaming Sword which turns every way, to keep the way of the Tree of Life; inſomuch as man can by no means come at the way to the true life, nor enter into the ſtrait and narrow path that leads thereto, but as he is cut to the heart, his life let out, and as he dyes, and comes into unity with that which ſlays him, and keeps the way from him. So that man, in his running to God is thruſt by, as well as in his running from him: in his willing and deſiring after him he is rejected, as well as in his willing againſt him. It is not of him that willeth, nor of him that runneth, but of God that ſheweth Mercy. Mark, There is a Birth of Bloods, a Birth of the will of the fleſh, a Birth of the will of Man, Joh. 1.13. all theſe will, all theſe run (ſome of them very hard) but they are all thruſt by, and diſ-regarded by the Lord, both in their willing and in their running. There are many found running the Race, but one obtains the Prize, which one is he that is born of God, to whom when God gives the the prize, he will say to all the other Births (notwithstanding all their Willing and Running, their Believing, Hoping, Praying, &c.) Depart from me, I know you not, ye are the fruit of a strange Womb, not of my Spouse, and so must not inherit my Kingdom. And as all these will be cut short of the Inheritance at last; so all that they do at present, is loathsome to the Lords Soul. The Sacrifice of the wicked is Abomination; how much more when he bringeth it with a wicked mind, Prov. 21. 27. His Sacrifice, his Worshipping of God, his Praying, his reading of Scriptures, his Meditating thereon, and of God, and his Works, his Believing, Hoping, Waiting, fearing of Threatnings and applying of Promises, &c. all is Abomination. The wicked man, he whose Heart is not Circumcised by the Lords Eternal Spirit, whatsoever he can, or doth Sacrifice to God, the Lord loaths, and it cannot profit his Soul.

Object. Yea, when he does them in Hypocrisy, so they are.

Answ. Nay, more then so. When he doth them with an evil heart, they are much more abominable, how much more when he bringeth it with a Wicked mind? but let him bring it with a good mind with that which he calls the good heart (for the circumcised heart, the heart of the true new Birth is only the good heart (not that heart which every false Birth is apt to call good(let him bring it with that heart, which he takes to be the upright heart, with an honest intention, so far as he knows, take his Sacrifices at the very best, at the very purest he can attain to, yet then they are Abomination.

And the reason hereof is plain and manifest. The Fountain is unclean, the Root in him is corrupt; And who can bring a clean thing out of an unclean? Make the Tree good, and its Fruit will be good: But while the Tree is bad, the Fruit cannot be good. Now can the holy God be pleased with that Sacrifice which comes from the unclean Spring? Can God own or approve that knowledge of himself, that Faith, that Love, that Obedience, that Integrity, or Uprightness, that Industry or Diligence, those Prayers or Breathings, which man pumps up out of the old Cistern? Nay all these must into the Pit, with the common Filthiness and Pollutions of the earth: And when the Lord takes this aside from the several sorts of Professors, what will be left in them? Oh how many have build-ed up a Wall, dawbing it with untempered Mortar, which will not stand in the day of Trial, nor shelter them from the Eternal Flames? Oh what yelling and roaring will there shortly be in such, as by no means will be warned, but would be justifying of themselves in their false knowledge and practises, and reserving their Fabricks of Religion to the trial of the day! and the day will try them indeed, even to the bitter perplexity and anguish of their hearts, when they come to see that there is now no way of escape, but they must lye down in the Bed of Eternal Sorrow, Misery, and Torment, and in utter Separation from that, wherein they thought they had a large and unquestionable share.

Propos. 3. That all Professions of God and of Christ upon the Earth, all knowledge and beliefs whatsoever, with all practises of Duties and Ordinances of Worship, save only such as proceed from, and are held in the pure life, are but as so many Fig-leaves, or deceitful Plaisters, which may skin over the Wound, but cannot truly heal it.

The Wound of man is deep by the Fall: He hath really lost God, is shut out of his Commonwealth, yea, (in that Estate) is altogether without hope (for the Hope springs from God's Visitation of him with his Light, and from the Living Promise.)

That which recovers man, is the Eternal Vertue, the Endless Power, the Life Immortal, the Christ of God.

Now, what ever knowledge man gathers (whether from the Book of the Creatures, or from the Scriptures, or any other ways) or what ever man professes, or what ever man practices out of this, it is but a cover of his own, but a formed thing, but his own Image of Truth, of Knowledge, of Faith, of Love, of Obedience, of Worship; it is not the Living Truth, the Living Knowledge, the Living Faith, the Living Love, the Living Obedience, the Living Worship: And so it is but Mortal, but Fleshly; and when it comes before the Eternal Flames, it will not abide them, but vanish. All Flesh is Grass: All the Knowledge, the Faith, the Love, the Worship, the Obedience, the Righteousness, &c. which man (who is ignorant of the leadings and power of the life) can come at, is but Grass: yea the Flower of it, the seeming Beauty and Godliness of it, the very choicest of it in any sort of Professors, is but as the Flower of the Field: it may make a fair ſhew there, but when the Lord cutteth it down with his Sickle, and when his Sun riſeth upon it with its burning heat, it will ſoon wither, and his Fire will ſoon devour it, ſo that its very place ſhall be found no more. What will become of all the Fruit that Fleſh hath born, when God maketh bare, and cutteth down the Root? What will become of all Mortal Knowledge of the Scriptures, Mortal Worſhip, the Faith and Obedience which hath its root, growth, and ſpreading in the Mortal part, when the Lord heweth at it with his immortal Ax? Do not deceive your ſelves. There is nothing will ſtand but what is Immortal, and that which is gathered into it, and ſo one with it: No Knowledge, no Faith, no Love, no Obedience, no Worſhip, no Hopes, but what ſpring from the Seed, are gathered into the Seed, and live in the Seed. This will abide, when all that ſprings from man, and hath its place and reſidence in the mortal part (and not in the true Treaſury) will come to an end, and diſappoint all who have their hopes of the inheritance there, Propoſ. 4. That the living Seed of Eternal Life, which God hath hid in Man underneath his earth, hath in it the Living Vertue, which alone can heal Man, and reſtore him to God.

That which heals of the Death, is the Tree of Life, whoſe Rind or Bark, whoſe Leaves, whoſe Bloſſoms, whoſe Fruit, whoſe Boughs and Branches, whoſe Bulk or Body, with the whole Sap thereof, is all healing, and there is nothing elſe can heal. Let man catch all the Knowledge that ever ſprang from the Life; If he could believe (I mean in the mans part) all that ever the Life ſpake, if it were ſo that he could perform all that ever the life called for, yet this would not heal him at all: Whereas the leaſt Vertue from the Life, ſpringing up into, and livingly retained in the lifes Veſſel truly refreſhes and heals. The Seed in all its ſpringings up, and ſhootings forth in the heart, lets out of its healing Vertue: Let but in a Reproof, a Conviction, a Judgment, a Condemnation, which wounds that part which hath erred from the life, yet even in that there is a ſecret hidden healing of ſomewhat elſe. The ſmitings of the righteous Principle are as Balm, and its reproofs as an excellent Oyl. Thy Rod and thy Staff comfort me. Light is ſown for the Righteous, and Joy for the Upright in heart; in all the tearing, ſmitings, and rendings of the earthly part (with which the Seed alſo ſuffers) and the Faith, in which theſe are received, is the preſent ſubſtance of the healing, from the eternal Vertue hoped for.

Now, who will be Wiſe? Let him become a Fool in the fleſh. Who will be ſtrong? Let him become weak in the mans part. Who will be ſaved by the Eternal Power? Let him ceaſe from the man in himſelf. Who ever would be able, in the Life, to do all things, let him ſink into that in himſelf which is not, that it may bring to nought all things in him that are, that ſo it alone may be; and he, by it being brought to nothing, will eaſily become all in it. This the true way of Reſtoration and Redemption; firſt to be loſt, to be overcome, to be drowned, to be made nothing of that which is not, that that may come to BE in him, and he be quickened, raiſed up and perfected in that, and ſo become Profeſſor of the fulneſs: The Race is not to the Swift, nor the Battel to the Strong; but he that daily loſeth his ſtrength, and his ability to know, or ſo much as to will or deſire (even till at length he become nothing at all in him is the Corrupt at laſt deſtroyed, and the Mortal ſwallowed up of the Life. He that feels the pure Seed ſpringing up; and by the growth of that, is daily begotten, Quickned, Raiſed, Juſtified, Sanctified, Circumciſed, Baptiſed, Fed in one part and Starved in another. When the Work of Begetting, Quickning, Raiſing, Regenerating, Juſtifying, Sanctifying, Circumciſing, Baptiſing is finiſhed in him, and he is throughly begotten into the Life, quickned by the Life, raiſed in the Life, Regenerated, Juſtified, Sanctified, Circumciſed, and Baptiſed through the Life; he ſhall have the Kingdom, wear the Crown, enter into the Joy of his Lord, weilding the Scepter of Righteouſneſs with his Lord. in his Kingdom for ever. Now this work is to be done in the heart, on this ſide the Grave; for after Death comes Judgment for the things done in the Body; and the Tree is to be diſpoſed of, according as it is found at its fall, either to the Fire, or to grow and flouriſh in the Land of Life. Therefore be not ſlothful, but watch unto the movings of the living Seed, that its Work may be perfected: that it may arrive at its ſtature, and come to its full growth, and may finiſh its Service and Teſtimony, that ſo it may enter into its Habitation, and receive with it into its Everlaſting Manſion, where every Servant and conſtant Sufferer with the Seed, ſhall be welcomed of its Father, and remain Partaker of their Joy and Fulneſs for ever.

ISAAC PENINGTON the Younger.

Where is the Wiſe? Where is the Scribe? Where is the Diſputer of this World? Hath not God made Fooliſh the Wiſdom of this World? 1 Cor. 1. 20.

THESE have always been the Enemies and Oppoſers of Truth, and Setters up of falſe Images thereof in all ages, The Wiſe, the Learned, the great Diſputants. To theſe Truth hath ſtill been mean and contemptible, their Eye hath ſtill overlooked it, and their Imaginations have ſtill out run it, finding out ſomewhat elſe in the ſtead thereof, for which they have been ſtill able and vigorous to contend, and againſt the Truth it ſelf. And indeed, how can the wiſe eye ſee that, how can the learned Eye acknowledge that, which comes quite out of the way of its Knowledge and Learning, even in a path that it is not all acquainted with? Wiſdom is juſtified of her Children. Thoſe that are Wiſe to Salvation, thoſe that are learned in the Spirit, thoſe that can diſpute in the power of the Life, and demonſtration of the Spirit, theſe know her habitation, and her out-goings, and can own her in every Age, and in every diſpenſation and coming forth: but the Wiſe and Learned of this World are ſhut out of this Wiſdom, aud in all their ſearches after Truth, cannot find her; and if at any time they do find and taſte ſomewhat of her, yet they cannot keep her, but the Wiſdom and Learning, and Strength of the earthly part in them, ſoon betrays and makes a prey of the ſimplicity that is in Chriſt, and of his pure Goſpel, which caunot be comprehended nor will take up a dwelling place with this Wiſdom, but brings it to nothing, tramples upon it, and keeps it down for ever, where it abides.

Three ſorts of Enemies of the Wiſe, the Learned, the great Diſptants, Truth hath hath always had. Firſt, Of ſuch as have denyed the true form of Knowledge and Worſhip. Secondly, Of ſuch as have owned the form, but withſtood the power. Thirdly, Of ſuch as have had a taſte of the power, but afterwards erred from it, and ſo held that, which once they had a rrue taſte of, in the unrighteous part, and likewiſe added to it by their own imaginations.

When Iſrael was in Ægypt (that poor illiterate Company of Brick-makers) in Bondage under that Wiſe people; the Ægyptians with all their Wiſdom, could not own their God, or their Worſhip, but their God was an unknown being to all that wiſdom (Ex. 5. 2. aud his Worſhip and Sacrifice the abomination of their eyes. Exod 8. 26. And Jannes and Jambres, with other wiſe Magicians, withſtood the appearance of God, and Pharoah and his People with their wiſdom thought to have kept God's Iſrael from multiplying, Exod. 1. 10. And to have held Iſrael ſtill under their ſervitude, after the Lord was riſen to ſtretch out his Arm for their deliverence, Exod. 5. 8, 9. And how did all the wiſe Nations ſtill watch to make a prey of God's Jeruſalem! How did they count the Towers! How often did they think to divide the ſpoyl! Judg. 5. 28. Iſa. 33. 18. How did Senacherib and Rabſheka make her their own! And when the Lord did at any time give Jacob for a Spoil, and Iſrael to the Robers, how did they think to keep her under for ever! The wiſe Aſſyrian, the Moabite, the Ammonite, the Edomite, the Philiſtim, the Amalekite, the wiſe Babylonian or Chaldean thought to keep her under, as Pharoah had done, even till their Wiſdom and Knowledge perverted them alſo, Iſa. 47. and the Prince of Tyre, who was a Wiſer then Daniel, Ezek. 28. 3. He alſo could inſult over Jeruſalem, and rejoyce at her Downfal and Captivity, chap. 26. 2.

But to come cloſer; Come to Iſrael it ſelf. That people, by all the Wiſdom it could gathe-gather from the Law, by all the experiences it had had of God's power, by all the Faith that was wrought in them upon deliverances, yet had not eyes to ſee, nor ears to hear, nor hearts to perceive, but were a people that did always err in their hearts, and did not underſtand the way of Truth and Peace. The Prophets among them were ſtill Fools, yea, the Spiritual man mad, Hoſ. 9.7. The Prieſts were generally ignorant of the Lord (for though they had the Ark of his Preſence, his Tabernacle, his Temple, Altar, Sacrifices, Worſhip, &c. yet they did not know where he was, nor did inquire after him, but contented themſelves with a form of knowledge and worſhip.) And they that handled the Law knew not him who gave the Law, and was the ſole true interpreter of the Law, but the Paſtors tranſgreſſed againſt him, and the Prophets prophecied by another Spirit, Jer. 2. 8. They were wiſe, and did abound in their own meanings, gueſſings, and gathered knowledge, but they knew not the Truth, no not of the Letter according to the Law, and according to that Light, which God ſometimes cauſed to ſhine among them from his Prophets. Hence it was that people, with their Rulers, their Teachers, their Prieſts, their Prophets, were generally enemies to the Prophets whom God raiſed up, hating, perſecuting, impriſoning, ſtoning them, &c. The Prophets of God (that ſpake his Truth in his Wiſdom, in his Life, in Power, in the Demonſtration of his Spirit) they could not away with: theſe were Fools with them, theſe were mad-men with them, (2 Kings 9. 11. Jer. 29.26.) theſe were poor illiterate Herdſmen and Plowmen: they had learned men, that were brought up at the Schools of the Prophets, that could Prophecy Divine things, ſweet things, that could open the Law learnedly; theſe Prophets, and theſe Prieſts the Rulers cheriſhed, and the people loved, Jer. 5.31. and 23.26,27. Ezek. 13. 3, &c.

Yea among that people, ſuch as had a taſt of the Truth, as Corah, Dathan and Abiram might have (for ſurely it was not a ſmall matter that could ſo lift them up, to oppoſe Moſes and Aaron in that manner, and to ſtand out the conteſt with them even in the Lords preſence, Numb. 16.18. but an apprehenſion of Gods being on their ſide, from ſome appearance of his to them) and as Balaam had, whoſe eyes were opened to ſee the beauty of the Tents of Jacob; yet theſe, through the prevalency of the fleſhly Luſts and Wiſdom become enemies, and try all ways to prevail over Iſrael, even over the Truth and over the Power. The Apoſtle Jude compares ſuch to the Angels that kept not their firſt Eſtate. The Angels that fell, had a place and ſtanding once in truth, but they kept it not (their abode not in the truth) but fell from it, and ſo became Devils, Enemies to the Truth from which they fell: So thoſe that fall from the truth, from the power, from the living vertue whereof they once taſted, from the true wiſdom, which once appeared to them and began to ſeaſon and ſavour them, in their fallen wiſdome they become the greateſt enemies, the greateſt accuſers, the greateſt oppoſers, and the ſtiffeſt maintainers of a falſe Image of that Truth which they once had ſome knowledge of, and ſome unity with. Thus it was in the Jewiſh ſtate; Now come to the Apoſtles days.

Firſt, They had all the Wiſe men of that Age againſt them, all the Wiſe Greeks, the Wiſe Jews; the Learned men, the able Diſputants of all ſorts. The Greeks could not find Wiſdom in that knowledge of Chriſt which they held forth, nor the Jews could not find power in it, 1 Cor. 1.22. and ſo the one accounted it fooliſhneſs, the other ſtumbled at it, ver. 23. There were many ſorts and Sects of Wiſemen among the Jews, but not one ſort could own the Truth, though they were looking for it, ſearching the Scriptures about it, and diſputing concerning it. The very thing then in agitation and inquiry among them was, when the Kingdom of God ſhould come. The King himſelf directs them where it was, that they might know where to expect and wait for it, Luke 17.21. and in many Parables opens it to them, but it was ſtill hid from the eye of that wiſdom, which they did ſtrive to ſee, underſtand and comprehend it. So that all the ſeveral ſorts of Wiſe-men of that age, even thoſe who were Admirers of the Law and the Prophets, yet were Strangers and Enemies to the Truth, becauſe they joyned to that Wiſdom and to that Learning and comprehenſion of the Scriptures, out of the ſight where it came.

Secondly, For ſuch as did own Chriſt after the fleſh, ſuch as were convinced by his Miracles, (as Nicodemus and many of the honeſter ſort of the Jews were) yet Chriſt did not commit himſelf to them, John 2. 24. He knew this Faith and this owning of him which was founded upon the Wiſdom and Ingenuity of the Creature would fail; and he would not own it in Nicodemus, but bids him look after the New birth (Joh. 3. 2, 3.) nor in such as followed him up and down, upon this or any other fleshly account, but sometimes withdrew and hid himself from them Luke 5. 16. John 6. 14, 15) and sometimes Preached Doctrines which stumbled them, and made them withdraw from him, John 6. 66. And so in the Apostles days, there were many could get the Form, and gain advantage thereby to the fleshly Wisdom, to withstand the power, 2 Tim. 3. 5. 2 Cor. 11. 13.

Thirdly, There were such as had tasted of the heavenly Gift, and of the Powers of the World to come, and yet fell away, Heb. 6. 4, 5, 6. There were such as denyed the Lord that bought them, 2 Pet. 2. 1. Such as fell from the love of the Truth, to the love of their Vomit, and of the mire of the World again, v. 22. 2 Tim. 4. 10. Such as had a standing in the Churches Heaven (like the Angels which fell) but kept not their habitation, but were swept down from thence to the earth by the Dragons Tail, Rev. 12. 4. These are the notablest Champions (in the earthly Wisdom, and for a corrupted Estate and false Image) of all the rest.

Now as the Prophets of God among the Jews had these Enemies, and as the Apostles also had these Enemies: so all along the Apostacy these Enemies have been rife. The witnesses have had a wise sort of direct opposers among the Papists, a wise sort of secret underminers among the Protestants, and also another wise sort of such among themselves, as had some taste of the Truth, but departed from the Power of it into the earthly Wisdom, into the earthly Understanding: and this last sort fight more furiously and more vehemently against the Truth, and are more subtle to assault it and grapple with it, then the other two. Oh there is no such bitter deady Enemy to Christ and his Truth, as he who once had some taste of the vertue of it, and is now turned from it into the Earth, into the Wisdom and Love of the World, and yet still holds some of the notion of that Truth (whereof he once left the Power) in the earthly part.

To come yet closer. There is in every man (not throughly sanctified) that Wisdom which is not of God, that Wisdom from which God hides his precious Truths, which Wisdom lies ready to catch every discovery and revelation of Truth to him, that it might improve it, grow rich and wise by it. Now this wisdom cannot attain to the knowledge of any of the things of God, neither can this wisdom keep the true knowledge, but whatever this wisdom catcheth, it presently corrupts. The true wisdom, the true light, the true knowledge of Christ is like the Manna in the wilderness, it daily comes down from Heaven, and must daily be gathered fresh. The true light springs from the life, and it must be held in the life, in the Vessel which the life forms, in the new Bottle, in the new Understanding; not in the Fleshly part, nay not in the Natural part: for as the natural man cannot receive the things of the Spirit, 1 Cor. 2. 14. So neither can he retain them. The old Store-house, into which earthly things were gathered, must be burnt up, and not made a Treasure for the things of God, but the new understanding, which is given by him that is true (1 John 5. 20.) which new-forms and preserves, and is all in the natural. Sink out of the earthly part, and read me, that thou maist be able to say within thy self, and concerning thy self, where is the wise? where is the Scribe? where is the Disputer?

The Wise part, the knowing part, the reaching part in every man will be putting forth its hand to gather of the Tree of Life: but what hath it ever been able to gather? I know men may gather notions of any kind, of any Sect, of any sort of Profession, of any appearance or dispensation: but who is able to come near the life, to touch the Power, the Truth, the everlasting Spring, or any stream or drop of water that issues from it? And he who hath a true touch or taste thereof given him, can his Wisdom add to it? nay can he so much as retain it? (David had a true sence and experience of this, who cryed out, O continue thy loving kindness to them that know thee, and thy righteousness to the upright in heart.) Indeed if he like not to retain the thing it self in his knowledge, he may improve the notion, and bend that to the temperature and disposition of the earthly part in himself and others; but this is not truth, but a dead image or a dead remembrance of what once was truly living. Oh how doth the Soul that is begotten of the Divine breath, that is born of the living Power and Vertue, depend upon God for his continual breathings! There is nothing hath so much from God, and yet nothing is so little able to live without him. If he withdraw from it, it presently hangs down its head: nay if he do but so much as hide his face, it is troubled; and all the fulness, which it immediately before had from God, is not able to keep up its Life one moment, but it pants, and fails, and flags, and withers, until a new supply of refreshment be administred to it. And he that knows this in any measure, will not wonder at, the distress and misery of such for want of Gods presence, and at their cryings out after the Spring of their Life (even as the Hart brayeth after the Water Brooks) though they should have fulness of all outward things, yea and also fulness of knowledge in things of Religion, even concerning all Conditions and Estates. The thing that I wanted in my great misery, it was not outward knowledge, it was not experience of Gods mercy and goodness: but this I wanted, the issuings forth of his fresh life, and livingly to know where to wait for it, and livingly to know it when it appeared: for it was still near me all the time of my darkness, and did preserve me and appear unto me, but I livingly knew it not, but thought I would be wiser than others: For I saw many deceived, and so I would not own it in such a way as it then appeared in me, least I also should be deceived like others, but waited for such an appearance as could not be questioned by the fleshly Wisdom. And he that waits for that, and so despises the day of small things, cannot but refuse the little seed; and so, it being not received into his earth, it can never grow up in him into a great Tree, whereby the Glory of the Kingdom will be hid from him, and he shut out of it, when others enter into and sit down in it. Therefore, he that will be Wise, let him become a Fool that he may be Wise; Let him receive that for his Light, his King, his Guide, which mans wisdom never did nor never will own. He that ever looks to injoy the Comforter, let him receive the Reprover, the Convincer of Sin, and wait for his Law of judging him throughout the whole course of his sinful State and Nature, passing along with him through the whole condemnation, until he arrive with him at the justification of the Life, which the fleshly wisdom, nor any of his knowledge of the things of God, (as they are held in the fleshly part) must ever arrive with him at.

Hath not God made foolish the Wisdom of this World?

The Wisdom of this World is precious in the Eye of the World, and the Wisdom of God in his poor, weak, despised earthen Vessels is still foolishness with them: but the Lord so orders it, as he still justifies his despised Wisdom in his despised Vessels, and makes the Wisdom of the World appear foolish to all the single and upright hearted, who thirst after and wait for the revelation of his Truth. Now two ways especially the Lord makes the folly of this Worlds Wisdom appear.

First, In that by all their Wisdom they cannot find out the true knowledge of God, v. 21. The World by Wisdom knew not God, though there be an exceeding desire kindled in them to know God, though they take all the ways that heart can imagine to attain their desires, though they study and meditate never so hard, though they get never so many Arts and Languages, nay though they read the very Scriptures never so diligently, though they Labour in the very Fire, yet what they get, what they gather, what they understand, what they comprehend by this Wisdom, it is all but very Vanity, Hab. 2. 13. it reaches not the immortal, it nourishes not the Immortal, it satisfies not the Soul, it refreshes not the Seed, but only feeds and pleases the earthly part, the earthly understanding, the earthly mind, the earthly desires and affections, even the mans Part, the mans Spirit, the mans Nature, which though elevated and raised never so high, is still but earth.

Secondly, In that all their Wisdom cannot teach them to come down to, to submit to, to come into Gods way of having their Wisdom Crucified, and that raised up in them which might receive the Truth. This they can never learn in the fleshly Wisdom. They may indeed come thus far, even to see that there is no way of entrance but by death, and so seek death (that they may enter into the life) but they cannot find it. The Seed of Jacob in his seeking misses not, but this seeker never finds, to this asker it is never given, and to this knocker it is never opened: and that is it which makes this Wisdom in every appearance, in every sort of Profession and Sect of Professors, so rage at the Seed of Jacob, even because it finds it self still shut out of the Life, into which an entrance is administred to the Seed. And how can that which would feign have the Kingdom, but rage against that which takes the inheritance from it? How can every sort of Professors but strive to slay the Heir, that the Inheritance may be theirs? Were it not for the living Seed, Seed, and the living Power and Vertue, which breaks forth in them and among them the Religion and Worſhip of the firſt Birth might paſs for currant but this is it which darkens the Glory of all Profeſſions and Profeſſors upon the Earth, even that living thing which God hath begotten in his people, and his living preſence with it, and bleſſing upon it: at this, all the Zealous Sacrificers, Teachers, and Profeſſors out of the Life, rage and are mad, and would break the Cords and Bands wherewith this ſtrives to bind them unto God's Altar.

Now look over all Ages, Could the Wiſe Heathens ſtoop to God's diſpenſation to the Jews? Was it not fooliſhneſs and abomination to them? Or could the Wiſe Jews ſtoop to the Law within, to the Word in the Heart (although directed thereto by Moſes, Deut. 30. 14.) to learn there to do juſtly, to love mercy, and to walk humbly with their God? Mic. 6. 8. Could they wait there to have their hearts Circumciſed by that Word of Power, and ſo to be waſhed and made clean? Nay were they not drowned in their outward Sacrifices, Temple, Incence, New-Moons, and Sabbaths, and ſuch kind of obſervations, and could not hear the Truth of the Lord as it was delivered by Moſes, nor as it was opened by the Prophets (Iſa. 1. 11.) So that this people, ſeeking to know the Lord from the Letter by his Wiſdom, could never come to the knowledge of him, but the place of his Light and Wiſdom was hid from them.

Again, when Chriſt came, and the Kingdom was Preached, and the everlaſting way of Redemption and Salvation made manifeſt, Could the wiſe Eye in the Greeks, or the wiſe Eye in the Jews ſee it? Did not the Greeks ſhut themſelves out by a Wiſdom above the Letter (as they thought) and the Jews by a Knowledge and Wiſdom which they had gathered out of the Letter? How Wiſe were they from the Letter, to reaſon againſt the King of Life? This man cannot be of God, for he is a breaker of his Sabbath. He is a Nazarite, and can any good thing come out of Nazareth? He ſaith the Son of Man muſt be lifted up, but we read that Chriſt abideth for ever, he is againſt Gods Temple, againſt Gods Day of Worſhip, gives his Diſciples ſuch ſcope and liberty, as neither the Phariſees nor John gave their Diſciples, but reviles our ſtrict and godly Teachers and Expounders of the Law, calling them Hypocrites, Blind-guides, &c. And mark with what a rough ſevere Spirit he reproves them, whereas they call him Maſter, and ſpeak mildly and gently to him. O what Jew in that Nature, in that Wiſdom, in that Spirit could but find matter and occaſion of ſtumbling at Chriſt, even from the Law and the Prophets.

And as they ſtumbled at the true Chriſt, ſo have all the Generations of Wiſe men ſince the Apoſtacy, all the Learned men generally (their Councils, Synods, Convocations, and Aſſemblies) ſtumbled at the true Church, looking for ſome ſuch like building as had been in the Apoſtles days, and not underſtanding and obſerving how the Lord took down that building (as it had been ſet up in the World) and how he prepared a place in the Wilderneſs for his true Church, unto which he gave her wings to fly, Rev. 12. And how afterwards the falſe Woman, or falſe Church got up in her ſtead, who with a Golden Cup of Fornication bewitched the Kings and Inhabiters of the Earth, Revel. 17. 2. (even Peoples, Multitudes, Nations, and Tongues, ver. 15.) So that they miſtook her for the true Church, and went into her Bed of Whoredoms? Which of all the Learned men, which of all the Councils of the Papiſts have ſeen this? Nay, which of the Proteſtant Councils, or Convocations, or Aſſemblies have beheld the ſtate of the True Church? Nay, have not every Sort and Sect of the Proteſtants endeavoured to build up ſome Image or Likeneſs of the True Church, not ſo much as ſuſpecting that ſhe was fled into, and was to abide in the Wilderneſs, for a time, times, and half a time? O what darkneſs hath covered the earth! O how hath God befooled the Wiſe men of every ſort, the Wiſe men of every Age! The Wiſe Proteſtants, as well as the Wiſe Papiſts; the Wiſe Independants and Baptiſts, as well as the Wiſe Epiſcopalians and Presbyterians! And how blind and ſottiſh are Nations, and Peoples, that ſtill they think to find out the Truth by having a Synod, Aſſembly, or Convocation of the Wiſe men gathered together! Indeed they are fitteſt to rear upon an Image to pleaſe the earthly part of man, and the earthly Powers and Intereſts with, but truth never came in by that way, but the Wiſe and Learned have ſtill been ſhut out from it, and have proved Enemies to it. And whoſoever comes out of the Apoſtacy, from the Spirit and from the Truth, to the Spirit and Truth again, ſhall find nothing ſo great an Enemy, as the Wiſdom in himſelf and directions from the Wiſdom in others: for that which God leads, is a ſimple, a weak Babe, a Child to the Wiſdom of this World; and he leads it in a Path, which is wholly out of the line of this Worlds Wiſdom and Knowledge of the Scriptures, as the Path God choſe in Chriſts and the Apoſtles days, was out of the line of the Jews knowledge of the Scriptures. Such is the recovery out of the Apoſtacy: it is hid from all the Fleſhly-wiſe-men of this Age, even as the entrance into the Truths of the Kingdom was hid from all the Fleſhly-wiſe-men of that age. Happy is he who ceaſeth from ſtriving after the knowledge and comprehending of the things of God in this Worlds Spirit and Wiſdom, and waiteth in the humility and fear of the Lord, firſt to be made a Fool, that afterwards he may be made Wiſe unto everlaſting Life.

An Epiſtle to all ſuch as obſerve the Seventh Day of the Week for the Sabbath of the Lord.

FRIENDS,

IN true love to your Souls, and in the fear of the Lord, I have a few things to lay before you, that the ſimplicity in you may not be deceived, and ye err from the way of Life, while ye may be eagerly ſeeking and preſſing towards it: For notwithſtanding that, if with the wrong eye ye be ſearching into Scripture, ye muſt needs miſ-read, miſ-underſtand, and miſ-practice; and ſo thereby will ſtill be running further and further from God, even while ye think ye are drawing nigher towards him. Be perſwaded therefore ſeriouſly to conſider (out of the Wiſdom from which God hides, in the Babiſh ſimplicity of his begetting, where the true life ſprings) theſe few things following.

1. That the whole Law of Moſes (the ten Words, as well as the Inſtitutions about Sacrifices and Worſhip, was added becauſe of Tranſgreſſion, Gal. 3. 19.

2. That the whole Law (the ten Words, as well as the Sacrifices) were repreſentations, figures, or ſhaddows of ſomewhat relating to Chriſt the Seed, ſubſervient to the Promiſe not making perfect, but pointing to, and making way for the bringing in of the better hope, Gal. 3. 21. Heb. 7. 19. The Law of the Commandments, or the ten Words did no more make perfect, than the other ſhaddows or Sacrifices did, but with them made way for the better hope, towards which they were to lead their Schollar, or Diſciple as a School-maſter.

3. That the whole diſpenſation of the Law was given to the Jews, and not to the Gentiles, Rom. 9. 4. And ſo not any thing there written bindeth the Gentiles (as there written) but only the Jews. God had another way of making his mind known to the Gentiles, Rom. 1: 19. and 2. 15. According to which he would judge them, v. 12. And not by the Law written, which was given to the Jews, which ſpake not to the Gentiles, but to the Jews who were under it, Rom. 3: 19.

4. That the duration of this diſpenſation of Moſes's Law in the Letter, was till Chriſt, the Seed ſhould come and fulfil it, Gal. 3. 19. and ver. 24, 25. Moſes his Family with all the Laws thereof, were to prepare for Chriſt the Seed, and to give way to him when he came: For when that diſpenſation which was figured out, is come; then that diſpenſation which did figure it out, is at an end, Heb. 3. 5, 6. Chriſt came to do the will, to keep and fulfil the whole Law, and ſo to put an end to that diſpenſation of it, Pſal. 40. Rom. 10. 4. And ſo he taketh away the firſt Adminiſtration of the Law, which was in the Letter, that he might eſtabliſh the ſecond, which is in the Spirit, Heb. 10. 9. 2 Cor. 3. 7, 11.

This then is the Truth, as it is in Jeſus concerning this thing, That Chriſt coming in the Fleſh, and fulfilling all the righteouſneſs (as well of the ten Commandments, as of the Sacrifices) puts an end to that diſpenſation wholly: So that henceforth both Jews and Gentiles are to come to him, to hear his Voice, This is my Beloved Son, hear him. And Moſes foretold, that when that Prophet came, he was to be heard in all things; whoſe whole Miniſtration was but to figure out what the Son was afterwards to fulfil in Spirit, Heb 3. 5. Who would be faithful to give forth the entire Law and Subſtance of of life to his Houſe or Family of Believers, as Moſes was faithful to give the entire ſhadow to his Houſe or Family, of that Nation of the Jews, ver. 6. So that here, in the Goſpel Chriſt being come, the New Covenant and Law in the Spirit takes place, and not the Old Covenant or Law in the Letter. And this Law is more inward, more full, more cloſe, more ſpiritual and more laſting, than the Miniſtration of Moſes Law to them of old time was, Gal. 3. 25. &c, And it is the Miniſtration of this Law of the Spirit which is not to paſs away from the Diſciples of Chriſt, until all be fulfilled; but is to remain a Sword againſt every Luſt and deſire of the fleſh in them, until they all with the very root of them be thereby cut down, Mat. 3. 12. Heb. 4 12. Mat. 5. 17, 18.

Queſt. But what were the ten Commandments a figure or ſhaddow of?

Anſw. The Tables of Stone were a repreſentation or figure of the fleſhly Tables of the heart, wherein the new Law of the Covenant of life is written.

The writing of the Law of Commandments in the Tables of Stone, was a figure of the writing of this new Law by the Finger of God's Spirit in the heart. The outward writing in the outward Tables, was a figure of the inward writing in the inward Tables.

The Law it ſelf of Commandments, which was written in thoſe Tables, was a figure of the Law of life which is to be written in theſe Tables.

And this Law thus received, thus written, is eaſily fulfilled, whereas the Law in the letter, becauſe of the weakneſs of the Fleſh was very hard to be fulfilled, and generally proved an hand-writing of Ordinances againſt the Jews: For he that was guilty of one, was guilty of all, and ſo upon every tranſgreſſion had the force and ſtrength of the whole Law againſt him. And whoſoever now runs back to the Law in the letter, to take up any command as held forth in it, and ſo making himſelf a Debtor thereto, will be found a breaker thereof in Spirit, even one that hath more Gods than the Lord, a maker of Images, or likneſſes of things in Heaven, or things in Earth, if not of both, a taker of the Name in Vain, a Prophaner of the Sabbath, &c. For he that hath not received the Law of the Spirit of life in Chriſt Jeſus, knoweth not the Lord of life to be the only true God, but maketh Images in his mind, and taketh his Name in vain, not feeling the living power thereof, nor can keep his Sabbath (ceaſing from Sin, forbearing his own Works, his own Willing and Running, and entring into the reſt of the Goſpel) for there is but one day of reſt holy to the Lord; all the Sabbaths of the Laws were but ſigns of it, having but a ſignificative or repreſentative holineſs; but the day of redemption which the Lord hath made, Pſal. 118. 24. (in which his redeemed rejoyce, and reſt to him) that hath the true holineſs. This was it which came by Chriſt, the other came by Moſes, John 1. 17. Moſes his Family or Children were to keep that day, (that was the day for the Servants, who were to be exerciſed under the ſhaddows) but the believers are to keep this day in the Spirit, to enter into this Reſt by the Faith, Heb. 4 and to worſhip the Father in it, in the Spirit and in the Truth, on the Mountain of his holineſs, John 4.23. whereof the other Mountain, Temple, Worſhip and day was but a ſhadow.

Now the ſum or ſubſtance of this Law of the Spirit, may outwardly be ſignified in divers ſhort Words, as Love that comprehends the whole of it, ſo doth Fear; there is the whole wiſdom and courſe of the life comprehended alſo, or thus, Thou ſhalt not luſt, (thus it was adminiſtred to Paul, Rom. 7.) or thou ſhalt keep the Sabbath, or believe in the Light, follow the Light. The obſerving of any one of theſe in the Spirit, is the keeping of the Law; for every breach of the Law is out of the love, out of the Fear, a luſt of the fleſhly Spirit, a tranſgreſſion of the Sabbath, or ſpiritual reſt to God, out of the Light, and out of the Faith. But if ye will read this in the Spirit, and come to the true Righteouſneſs of the Faith, which is received in the obedience of Faith, to the Law of the Spirit, ye muſt come to the Word of Faith, to which Paul directs, Rom. 10 6. By the hearing whereof is the juſtification, and not by a bare believing that Chriſt's bloud was ſhed: for it is the vertue of the bloud which ſaves, which vertue is in the living Word, and is felt and received in hearing, believing, and obeying that Word, thereby bringing into unity and conformity with him, both in his death, and in his reſurrection and life. This is the only way to life, be not deceived: there is not, nor ever was any other. O wait on the Lord in his fear. that it may be opened to you, and that ſlain in you which cannot bear the ſtreightneſs thereof, and with which there is no erring.

New Covenant of the Gospel

Distinguished from the Old Covenant of the Law,

AND

The Rest or Sabbath of Believers, from the Rest or Sabbath of the Jews; which differ as much from each other, as the Sign and Shadow doth from the thing signified and shadowed out.

In Answer to some Queries of W. Salters, tending to enforce upon Christians the Observation of the Jewish Sabbath, which was given under the Law to the Jews for a sign.

As also to some other Queries sent in Writing upon an occasion of an Epistle directed to all such as observe the seventh day of the Week for a Sabbath now under the Gospel. As likewise some Letters to the same purpose.

With a brief Explication of the Mystery of the six days Labour, and seventh days Sabbath.

Whereto are added some Considerations propounded to the Jews, tending towards their Conversion to that which is the Life and Spirit of the Law.

By ISAAC PENINGTON the Younger.

We which have believed, do enter into rest, Heb: 4. 3.

Let no man therefore judge you in meat or in drink, or in respect of an holy day, or of the New Moon, or Sabbaths, which are a shadow of things to come, but the Body is Christ, Col. 2: 16, 17.

The PREFACE.

THE Apostle Paul saith, That God had made them able Ministers of the New Testament, not of the Letter, but of the Spirit, 2 Cor. 3. 6.

After the dispensation of the Law, which was a shadow of good things to come; and after the dispensation of the Prophets who foretold of better days and of a better state to come, than the days and state under the Law was; it pleased first God to send the fore runner John the Baptist, in the spirit and power of Elias, to prepare the way for the King and his Kingdom; and then to send the King himself in the fulness of his Spirit, to gather Disciples to him, and to furnish them em with a competent measure of the same Spirit, to raise up a Spiritual Seed to him, in whom he would set up his Kingdom, Dwelling, Walking and Reigning ere, causing his Light to shine from thence round about the earth, as from his ly City founded upon his holy Hill of Sion.

Now those Disciples or Ministers whom he chose to raise up this Holy Seed unto im, he made fit and able to Minister his New Covenant, by which it was to be aised: yea he furnished them with such a power of his Spirit, that they were able hrough him to minister, not in the Letter as the old Covenant was ministred, hich left the people still dead; nay, because of the transgressing nature, made he offence abound, and so encreased Death upon them) but in the quickning Spirit, which raiseth from Death, and bringeth into the light of the Living, to walk ith the Living God towards the Land of Eternal rest and peace. So that that hich they ministred was Spirit, and that which they ministred to was Spiritual. By the power of the Spirit, in Preaching the living word of Faith, they reached hrough the Vail to that which lay in Death, they stirred up a living Principle, nd ministred life to it through the Spirit, Gal. 3. 5. and such as were born of this iving Principle, they taught to live in the Spirit, to walk in the Spirit, to be ade perfect by the Spirit, and not to run back to the Ministration of the Letter as was proper for the Jews in their day) after the manner of the former dispensation, but to keep in the living Principle, to grow up in the Seed, into the eternal fe and immortality of the Gospel.

Mark well, (O ye Christians, who desire eternal life) the different way f Ministration between the Law and Gospel, The Law was a Ministration f the Letter, in which they were to wait for assistance from the Spirit, by hich they might be kept in the Faith of, and be made obedient to the Law, Nehem. 9. 20. The Gospel is a Ministration of the Spirit, wherein they are to egin with the Spirit, and to go on with the Spirit; not to gather outward Rules ut of the Letter, from what is written or spoken, but to keep to the living Principle, and feel refreshment to that, in reading or hearing what is written or spoken y the Spirit. And thus the Scriptures being read, or any one speaking from God eing heard, it is mingled with Faith, and becomes profitable, feeding and refreshing the young tender Plant, the living Principle, and causing it to grow up into God: whereas whatever is understood, or received, or held out of this, feeds but the earthly, and doth but thicken the Vail over the living Seed, to which the Kingdom belongs, and to which the Gospel is sent to be Preached to raise it, that it might live, and thrive, and grow up into its stature, that so it might inherit.

The Kingdom of Heaven is at hand, said John the Baptist; Mat. 3. 2. It is come unto you, said Christ, Mat. 12, 18. that Power of Life which was made manifest in him, was it: and this Kingdom is also within you, saith Christ to the Pharisees, Luke 17. 21. The Pharisees demanded of him when the Kingdom of God should come? It cometh not, saith he, with outward shew or observation, it cometh not that way you look for it, to wit, by the manifestation of an outward glorious King, to Reign outwardly in the Common-wealth of the outward Israel: but the Kingdom is within you. How was it within them? Christ explains to them in another place, it was in them like a Grain of Mustard Seed; it was the least of all the Seeds in their hearts. There were many great seeds of darkness there, but yet there was also one little Seed of Light. It was there as well as the rest (though less than them all) and did sometimes cast some glimmerings of Light, and of its shining in the darkness, though the darkness could not comprehend it. This Seed was also likened to Leaven, which being received by Faith into the lump, would Leaven the whole lump, and bring it into the savour and Dominion of the Kingdom. Now the Mi-

Oh how long have Christians (so called) wanted the Spirit! How have th wearyed themselves, in running to and fro about the Letter, to find out the min of God, and are still unsatisfied concerning it, and even drowned in fleshly im ginations and contentions about it! They seek to have that satisfied which is not t be satisfied: They seek to have that know which is not to know: they offer to G the Service, Faith and Obedience of that, which he will not accept; and keep th from him which he calls for. They seek for the Spirit in the Letter, according t the manner of the Law; but wait not to feel it in the Seed, quickning the Seed raising up the Seed, and dwelling in the Seed, whither Christ and his Apostl directed to wait for it. They look for that Knowledge, that Faith, that Life, th Spirit from words written, which the Apostle preached was to be waited for from th word in the heart. And by this means they raise up several buildings, and g various kinds of knowledge, each according to his understanding and apprehen ons of the Letter, every sort being very confident concerning their own apprehen sions that they are the right: And thus they wander from the City of the Livin God, and from the Living knowledge, building up Images, some outwardly, so in their minds, some more gross, some more refined; but all more or less who ar not acquainted with the living knowledge and Truths of God, but have gathered apprehensions with the wrong Tool from the Letter, have set up somewhat else in stead of the true Life and Power, (The knowledge of the true God, which is Lif Eternal) the knowledge of the true Christ (whom no man can indeed call Lord but by the Spirit) the knowledge of the everlasting Gospel (which alone is read i the Spirit) the knowledge of the spirit (which alone is read in the Seed) these ar strange things to the several Generations of the Christians of this Age, who com monly know no more of them, than according to the apprehensions they have take in concerning them, even from that wisdom and understanding which hath not a capacity in it to receive them, but must be destroyed before these things can be un derstood aright, 1 Cor. 1. 19. O that ye could read in the eternal light of life! O Christians, Christians, O that ye could see how your understandings, and know ledge from the Letter stand as much in your way, as ever the Jews did in theirs, and must be broken down as flat as ever theirs was, before the Foundation of the Kingdom can be laid, and the building of Eternal life reared up in your Hearts. Be not offended at my Zeal for the Lord my God, and for your Souls. It hath cost me very dear, what I testifie to you in the simplicity and integrity of my heart; and this I know to be most certainly true, that that spirit of man which without the lead ings of the eternal light, hath nestled it self in the Letter, got a seat of wisdom and knowledge there, raised up a building from thence, either of inward or out ward Worship, will be dissettled and driven thence, even by that very spirit which gave forth the Letter. And when this is done, and Gods spirit again openeth the Letter, O how sweet, how profitable, how clear, how refreshing will it be, being read in the Light of the Spirit, and in the Faith which is in Christ Jesus, which is be gotten in the heart by the word of Faith, which is nigh there. From that Light, from that Spring (as the Lord pleased to open, enlarge and fill the Vessel) all the words of the holy men of God came; and in that alone they have their sweetnes

freſhneſs, vertue and fulneſs: but how to read the words outwardly written keeping to that, and underſtanding them in that (and how to keep out the natural man with his natural underſtanding, which knoweth not the things of the Spirit, nor can know or receive them, 1 Cor. 2. 14) is a myſtery to them who have not been turned inwards to this word, nor have known or heard his Voice. The Lord is recovering the myſtery of Life: and as that appears, the Myſtery of Death under all its paint (under all its painted Faith, painted Love, painted Knowledge, painted Obedience, painted Duties, Ordinances and Worſhip) will be made manifeſt. Happy is he, whoſe inward Building will ſtand, whoſe Gold will abide the fire and Everlaſting Burnings of the Jealous God, whoſe Eye ſalve was bought of the true Spirit, whoſe Raiment is right ſpun: but exceeding hard will it go with that man, whom the Lord (when he cometh to ſearch him) ſhall not find a right inward Jew, as he took himſelf to be, nor truly Circumciſed by the Lords eternal Spirit with the light thereof; but only by ſuch a Circumciſing Knife as he himſelf had formed out of the Letter of the Scriptures. This is the great miſery of Chriſtians, the Vail lies over their hearts, even the ſame Vail which covered the Letter of Moſes from the Jews; and they are groping after the mind of God in the Letter, but the life is hid from them, even as it was from the Jews: and becauſe they alſo ſay they ſee. and that they have the life and the ſpirit, therefore the Vail remains, and the Caul of Iniquity ſurrounds them, ſo that they cannot ſee into that which makes free from it, but remain yet in Captivity and Bondage to the Enemy.

Some Queries of W. Salters, tending to inforce upon Chriſtians the Obſervation of the Jewiſh Sabbath, Anſwered.

Query I.

W*Hether the Fourth Commandement expreſt,* Exod. 20. be not moral and perpetual, as well as the other nine be, yea or no?

Anſwer. That Covenant, which God made with the Jews at Mount Horeb, when they came out of the Land of Egypt, was not to be perpetual, but to make way for that Covenant, Prieſthood, Law-giver and Law which was to be perpetual. That Law, ſo given forth, made nothing perfect, but was a continual hand-writing of Ordinances againſt the Jews, and the very Salvation of the Jews was by another Covenant and by the Laws thereof, Deut. 30. 11: By which Covenant and by which Law they might be made perfect, and come to the better hope. Which other Covenant is the Covenant of Grace, or the Law of the Spirit of Life in Chriſt Jeſus, or the Word which is nigh in the mouth and in the heart, and ſpeaks Life to them that can hear and believe the joyful ſound of it.

Now that this former Covenant was not to abide, but to give place to the other, ſee Heb. 8. Which treateth of the New Covenant. For God's ſpeaking of a New Covenant, importeth that he himſelf hath made the firſt Old, ver. 13. It had had a long continuance among that people of the Jews; but now againſt the coming of Chriſt, who was to be Mediator of a better Covenant, v. 6. even of a New Covenant, v. 8. as it had been long decaying and waxing Old, So now it was ready to vaniſh away, as v. 13.

And indeed it was neceſſary it ſhould paſs away, for it was not faultleſs. How, not faultleſs? was there any ſin in the Holy Law and Miniſtration of God by Moſes? can there any juſt blame be found in any thing that proceeded from the Lord? Nay, ſurely the miniſtration of Moſes was holy and without blame: but it was weak through the fleſh, (Rom. 8. 3.) and therefore God would lay that aside, so far as it was weak, and suited to the weakness of a fleshly people, and bring instead thereof a ministration of the Law in the Spirit, which should be lively, and powerful, and effectual in the Spirits of his People.

That which God aimed at in a Covenant, was to keep him and his people together: Now this Covenant was weak on the peoples part, they continued not in it, and so, according to that Covenant, God dis-regarded them, v. 9. Now God finding this Covenant not able to effect his purpose of Love towards his people, he finds fault with it, bringing forth another or second, which this gives place to, v. 7. And this other Covenant, or New Covenant is not according to that. How not according to that? Why thus: It was not written outwardly, as that was · Not according to that which I made with their Fathers, when I took them by the hand to lead them out of the Land of Egypt, ver. 9. For I will put my Laws in their mind, and write them in their Hearts, ver. 10. And here they shall learn the knowledge of God every one from the least to the greatest, v. 11. So that all the Children of this Covenant shall be taught of the Lord, and learn the Law from his mouth; not as it was given at Mount Sinai (which Ministration was to the Children of the Old Covenant) but as it goes forth out of Sion, and from the Jerusalem which is above, which is the Mother of all the Children of this Covenant, and nourisheth them not with the Law of Moses, but with the Milk of her own Breasts.

Now if any think to restrain this to the Types and Shadows of the Law, they therein err: for the main Covenant was the Law of Commandements, which they still broke, worshipping other Gods, making Images and likenesses, taking his Name in vain, prophaning his Sabbaths, and so of the rest. It is true, The first Covenant had a Worldly Sanctuary, a Tabernacle wherein was the Candlestick, &c. But the chief matter of the Covenant was the ten Words, therefore the Tables wherein it was written were called the Tables of the Covenant, or the Tables wherein the Covenant was contained, Heb. 9. 4. Yea the ten words are expresly called the Covenant it self, Deut. 4: 13: Observe therefore diligently these few things following in the fear of the Lord.

First, The Ten Commandments, given by Moses from Mount Horeb, was the Covenant which God made with the Jews, when he took them by the hand to lead them out of the Land of Egypt.

Secondly, That Covenant God found fault with, because it was not able (through the weakness of the flesh in their parts) to keep them to God.

Thirdly, Against Christ's coming God provideth a New Covenant, a better Covenant for him to be Mediator of, which Covenant was not outward like the former, but inward, put in the mind, writ in the heart. As the people was inward, the Sanctuary inward, the Ark inward, the Tables of the Covenant inward, so the Covenant it self and the writing of it was inward also. And this Covenant, as it is only written in the Spirit, and in that which is Spiritual; So it cannot be read in the Letter.

Fourthly, That wherever this New Covenant cometh, the other waxeth old, whether to a Person or People. Wheresoever the Law of the Spirit of Life is made manifest, the Law of the Letter is swallowed up in it, and is known no more, but as it is comprehended, and is brought forth in it. And he that is in the Spirit, and hath received the Law of Life from the Spirit, knoweth not Christ after the flesh, how much less Moses? but taking the whole Ministration of Moses in the Spirit, not only the Ten Commandements, but all the Sacrifices and other Types also, here they are owned and received, even in Christ the substance: but the Ten Commandements, so far as they were a shadow, pass away before the Son of Righteousness, as well as the other Types and Shadows of the Law.

Objection. But was there any thing of the Ten Words a Shadow? Do they not all command abiding things?

Answ. Moses his whole Ministration (as it stood in the Letter without) was but a shadow of the fulness and perfection of that Ministry of the Spirit which was to come, and to be set up by the Son in his House, Heb. 3. 5, 6. Moses his people, but a shadow of the spiritual people, Moses his Priests and Sacrifices, but a shadow of the spiritual Priests and Sacrifices. Moses his Law in the letter ministred from Mount Sinai, but a shadow of Christs Law in the spirit to be ministred from Mount Sion, (2 Cor. 3. 10, 11.) The Law it self which was given by him, but a shadow of the Grace and Truth which came by Jesus Christ, John 1. 17. Of whose fulness every Believer receives a portion of the same Grace, even Grace for Grace, v. 16. which Grace is to be his Teacher, both of what he should deny, and turn from, and how he should live and carry himself, both towards God and Man, Titus 2. 11, 12. Look particularly on the Commandments, and see if there will not appear something of a shaddow in them.

Jesus

The first Commandment to that people, That they should have none other Gods (like the Heathen) but him only whose powerful Arm had brought them out of Ægypt. This is a shadow of the Subjection of the spiritual Israel singly in Spirit, to the Lord of Spirits, who by his mighty Arm redeemeth them out of spiritual Ægypt. Now must they bow to other Lords no more, (Isa. 26. 13.) as they did bow in the Land of Ægypt, (Oh who can read this!) but bow alone at the Name of Jesus, and be subject to the Arm of his power in their Spirits alone for ever.

The second Commandment, That they should not make any Images or Likenesses of things in Heaven or Earth, or bow down to them, is a shadow of what God requires of what spiritual Israel in the inward, where all Likenesses, Inventions, Imitations, Resemblances of what they have seen in the spirit above, or beneath in the earthly nature, they must not make themselves, nor bow to such as any others make.

And they must not Take the Name (of the Lord their Redeemer) in vain, pretending to the living power, when it manifests not it self in them, pretending to meet in the living Name, and to Worship in the Spirit, when they are gone a whoring from it, and become strangers to it. What should I mention any more? It is easie to observe, how the other Commandments were shadows of the inward Innocency and Purity, which the Believer receives inwardly into his heart, from the powerful operation of the Law of the Spirit of life in him.

Objection. But may any of these Laws be broken? If they may not be broken, then they are perpetual.

Answ. The reason why they may not be broken, is not because that the dispensation of them is still in force, but because the dispensation of the Law of the Spirit, comprehends all the Righteousness of Moses's Law: and the end of Christ's dissolving that Covenant, was not that any man might have liberty to do any thing which is there manifested to be unrighteous; but that the righteousness of it might be fulfilled in them who receive his Law in the Spirit, which never could be fulfilled by receiving of Moses his Law in the letter, Rom. 8. 4. And mark this diligently, ye that have been exercised in Spirit towards God, the Law of sin is nearer to us, than any Law of the letter can come; the Covenant of Death and Hell (with the Laws thereof) are written within by the finger of Satan; and that which blots them out must be as near, even an inward Covenant, an inward writing from the Eternal Word in the heart, by the Law of his Eternal Spirit of Life.

This then is my Answer. Moses his Law in substance remains, as it is taken in by Christ, and administred by him in Spirit; but not as it was given in the letter to the Jews; for so it was a shadow, making nothing perfect, but making way for the better hope, for the Covenant established upon better promises, for the inward Law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus; which effects that in the Spirits of his people, which Moses his Law could by no means do.

Quest. But what is the substance of the Law which abides?

Answ. The substance of the Law is Love: To love God above all (above all without, above all within) and to love ones Neighbour as ones self. To receive this love from God, and to bring it forth in his Spirit; this is the substance of the Law, this is the thing which the Law drove at in a shadow. The Law is fulfilled in this one Word Love: but that love must be received from God which fulfils the Law. A man may strive to love abundantly, and strive to obey in love, and yet fall short of the Covenant; but the Lord must circumcise the heart before that love can spring up, which fulfils the Law, Deut. 30. 6.

Objection. But doth not the Apostle Paul say, That by the Law is the knowledge of sin, and that he had not known Lust, except the Law had said, Thou shalt not Covet; Plainly referring to the tenth Commandment, which saith, Thou shalt not Covet.

Answ. By the Law outwardly was the Knowledge of sin outwardly to the people of the Jews; by the Law inwardly is the knowledge of sin inwardly to the Spirits of Disciples. Now a little consider and wait on the Lord, to know what administration of the Law it was that Paul knew sin by: Whether it was by Moses his administration of the Law in the letter, or by Christs Ministration of his Law to him in the Spirit? It is rendred in our last Translation, Thou shalt not Covet: but it might more properly be rendred, Thou shalt not Lust: For if ἐπιθυμία be properly rendred Lust, then οὐκ ἐπιθυμήσεις may as properly be rendred, Thou shalt not Lust. And he that hath received the administration of the Law in the Spirit, knoweth it thus to issue forth from the Word of life, into his Spirit. It discovers the Lusts and Affections of the Flesh, which draw from the yoak and subjection to the Spirit; and then by a command from the living Spirit, it hedgeth up the way after the other lovers, saying, Thou shalt not Lust. And as the Law of the flesh ariseth, kindling desires after Vanity, and after fleshly Ease and Delight: so the Law of the Spirit arises in the inner man, forbidding, pricking, stopping, and limiting that which would be at liberty out of the life and purity of the holy Law: And here begin the bitter Fights, and terrible Battels and Conflicts, between the two Seeds, wherein all the powers of Heaven, Earth, and Hell are engaged.

Now because this interpretation of Paul's Words may seem strange and uncouth, to persons who have drunk in another apprehension, and have taken it for granted, that Paul there refers to the tenth Commandment; consider the place yet further, and perhaps the Lord may please to open it to you from the very letter, even as he hath opened it to others immediately by his Spirit, by causing them to feel the thing which Paul felt, and to receive the Law as he received it.

Paul (in that seventh of the Romans) speaks of three States which he had known.

First, a state of life before the Law; I was alive without the Law once, v. 9.

Secondly, a state of death after the Commandment came; Then sin revived, and I dyed. When the Word of Life came with its living Commandment, to set upon sin indeed, then sin would dally no longer, it would no longer lie as dead, and let Paul live in his Zeal and Worship as he had done before; but it slew him, it shewed its power in him, sometimes deceiving him, and sometimes forcing him from that which was holy, Spiritual, Just, and Good, and to that which was unholy, insomuch as he did do what he hated, and could not do what he loved; and found himself a wretched man, and in miserable captivity, because of the Body of death, and the Law of sin in his Members, v. 23, 24.

3*dly.* A state of life, after the Commandment had done its Work, in throughly slaying of him. When that was removed, which the Law came against then, then he was marryed to another Husband, then he could bring forth Fruit unto God, Rom. 7. 4, then he could walk freely with God, not after the Flesh, but after the Spirit, c. 8. 4 and rejoyce in the life, and the peace, instead of roaring out because of the death, which came from the carnal mind, v. 5.

Now, When was the time when Paul was alive without the Law? Was it not when he was righteous, when he was whole? then he had no need of the Physician, then he had not received the Wound, even the terrible Wound which Christ then gives the Soul when he calleth to it by his Spirit, and giveth forth the Commandment, Thou shalt not Lust. When he had Confidence in the Flesh, being circumcised the eighth day, of the stock of Israel, of the Tribe of Benjamin, an Hebrew of the Hebrews, as touching the Law a Pharisee, concerning Zeal persecuting the Church; touching the righteousness which is in the Law blameless, Phil. 3. 4, 5, 6. Here was a living man: and his exact receiving the ministration of the Law in the letter, was part of his life: yea but he had not received the commandment yet that slew him. Paul was alive yet, and could flourish in the freshness his life, zeal, and abundant knowledge under this administration of the Law. But when God, who caused the light to shine out of darkness, shined in his heart, when God began the Work of the new Creation in him by his living light when the Commandment came fresh from the Spirit (the Commandment which was ordained to life, Rom. 7. 10. which the ministration of the Law in the letter was not, no not to the Jews, but another, Deut. 30. 14, 15.) then Paul began to feel the Sting of death, death, and the Power of sin, which now arose up in its strength to retain one of its subjects, and to keep the stronger man than he, from dispossessing him, if he could. And now, how was poor Paul rent and torn, and harrased by the Enemy, and made to see and feel his miserable Captivity, until he had passed through the death, and was redeemed from under sin, and consequently from under this bitter Ministration of the Spirit, by his holy, pure, and severe Law against sin! For the man being dead, the Law hath no force against the Seed, nor against that which is one with, and lives in the Seed: And this is it he speaks to the Romans concerning, who also were acquainted with this Ministration of the Law, as verse 1. of this seventh chap. Now is it not very manifest, that Paul knew not sin spiritually by the Ministration of the Law in the Letter, but was alive without it, until he felt the Ministry of it from Christ in the Spirit? And that soon struck at his life, and by degrees slew it, killing the Body of sin in him, with its Members, and so preparing him for the Marriage to another Husband.

Object. But by this then, a man is not only freed from the Law of the Letter, but also from the Law of the Spirit: for if this Law be ministred to him till death pass upon him, and till he be married to Christ; then after death is passed upon him, and he is Baptised into Death and risen with Christ and married to him, then this Law passeth away likewise.

Answ. There is a double ministration of the Law of the Spirit: a sharp ministration against sin, and a sweet ministration in the renewed Spirit. The ministration against sin passeth away, as the sin is wrought out: but then the sweet Spiritual current and law of its holy and pure life in the renewed Spirit, is more vigorous and full. So that the law of the Spirit remaineth for ever, but its convictions, its reproofs, its chastisements towards the Worldly part, diminish and pass away, as the worldly part is wasted: and its sweet comforting presence, pure peace, fresh joy and life increase, as the new man grows and flourishes.

Quer. 2. Whether the scope and drift of that fourth Precept, be not to perswade us to lay by the works of our calling one day in seven, that we may on that day wholly give up our selves to wait on the Lord, in the performance of duties of Piety and Mercy, for our attaining of, and growing in Sanctification and Holiness.

Answ. The scope and drift of the fourth Commandement was to injoyn the Jews to keep the Sabbath strictly as a sign, by forbearing all works, and sanctifying it as a day of rest to the Lord according to the law, Ezek. 20. 12. But the substance being come (Christ, who is the body, Col. 2. 17.) the day and rest of the Spirit being known, the sign is at an end, and the thing signifyed taketh place. So that the rest is now in Christ, through the Faith, by his Spirit, where the Worship is. And this in the Gospel comprehends the time of Worship, the place of Worship, and the Worship it self (which are spiritual) where in substance all is known, enjoyed and solemnized, which was figured out in shadows under the law. The sanctification being come, the rest being come, the Lord of the Sabbath being come, shall not the sign of the sanctification, the sign of the rest, which rest the Lord of the Sabbath was to give, and lead the Spirits of his people into) pass away? Exod. 31. 13.

Quer. 3. Whether the fourth Precept, do not as strictly bind us to keep Holy the seventh day, of or from the Creation, as it bindeth us to the observation of a seventh Day?

Answ. The fourth Commandment did not require the observation of a seventh day in general, but of the seventh day in particular, of those of whom it required it: for what the Law required, it required of those who were under the Law, and not of others, Rom. 3. 19.

Quer. 4. If the seventh days Sabbath, be not moral and perpetual, then how comes it to pass that it was instituted or appointed from the first Creation, when man by guilt stood in no need of a Saviour, nor yet of such a Ceremony, Gen. 2. 3.

Answ. That it was instituted or appointed from the first Creation, or that God intended to require of man the Observation of it had he abided in innocency, is not manifest in the Scriptures: but that God did then bless and sanctifie it (in relation to the service he had for it) that is expressed in Scripture; Gen. 2. 3. And that this was one end for which he did sanctifie it, namely that it might be for a sign unto that people of the Jews (which was the people he chose to set up his signs and figures of the invisible things among) the Scripture also testifies, Exod. 20. 11. But what further meaning there is in it, and what relation it hath to all the redeemed of the Lord, in whom, God brings about the New Creation, with the rest thereof, (as he did the old) it is better to wait to know and feel in the Spirit, than to be prying into with the curious, searching, fleshly understanding.

Quer. 5. If the seventh days Sabbath be not moral, and belonging both to Jews and Gentiles: then how comes it to pass that it was given to all men in Adam, when there was no difference between Jew and Gentile? and was observed by command from the beginning, as appears by comparing together Gen. 2. 3. and Exod. 16. 18, to 31.

Answ. That it was given to Adam in innocency, or to all men in Adam, I do not find, nor do these places quoted make it manifest. But its being practised before the giving of the Law, doth not prove its perpetuity, or that it was not given for a sign: for Circumcision was instituted and observed long before the giving of the Law, (Gen. 17.) and Sacrificing long before that, (Gen. 4.) both which were signs of the inward, and not perpetual, as to the outward observation of them.

Quer. 6. If when our Lord Jesus saith, Mat. 5. 18. that till Heaven and Earth pass, one jot or tittle should in no wise pass from the Law. If he there meant not the Law of the Ten Commandements, expressed in Exod. 20. then what Law did he mean?

Answ. By the Law is meant the whole Ministration of Moses, as by the Prophets, ver. 17. the whole ministration of the Prophets: and that it is not to be restrained to the ten Commandments, is manifest by the instances which Christ gives, more of which relate to other parts of the Law, then to the Commandements; for there are but two instances out of the ten Commandments, but there are four instances out of other parts of the Law, as may be seen, ver. 31, 33, 38. and 43. of that Chapter. So that Christ doth not only take in the Ten Commandments, but he takes in the rest of Moses his Ministry in the Spirit, not one jot or tittle whereof is to pass, till it be all fulfilled; but was to stand in the letter to the Jews its full season, and then in the Spirit till all be finished there also.

The Law and the Prophets were untill John, from that time the Kingdom of God began to be Preached, Luke 16. 16. and both the Law, Prophets, and John himself were to decrease and Christ and his Kingdom to increase. Christ in this 5 of Matth. had been Preaching the Kingdom, declaring to whom it appertained, and the blessedness of such: Now this his manner of Preaching might seem to derogate from the Law of Moses, and from the Prophets, whose Doctrine and dispensation hereby he might seem to destroy. But Christ taketh away the occasion of such a miss-apprehension, bidding them not think he came to destroy the Law or the Prophets, for he was not come for that end, but to fulfil. Wherein he doth these two things.

First, he establisheth that ministration of the Law and Prophets for its season, till it should be fulfilled by him the substance, who was to fulfil all the righteousness of it. It should last out its whole day, and should not fail in the least Tittle of it (as he himself explaineth it, Luke 16. 17.) till the Heaven and earth of the Jews passed away, Heb. 12. 27, 28.

Secondly, He taketh in the substance of it into his own ministration, and layeth it more inwardly, and closely, and largely upon the Spirits of his Disciples, than Moses had done in the Letter upon his Disciples. But he doth not give it out in full, but only giveth a taste to his Disciples how straitly he would minister it to them by his Spirit, as they came under his Yoke, Matth. 11 29. which Yoke is his Spirit or the Law thereof, as Moses's Yoke was the Law of the Letter.

Now mark yet further, Christ doth not give out the Letter for his Law, as it was delivered by Moses: but requireth somewhat of his Disciples, which comprehends the Letter. As now when he administers the Law against Revenge, from whence Murther proceeds, he doth not say, Thou shalt not kill, as Moses had said to them of old time, but saith, thou shalt not be angry without a cause, nor give thy Brother any provoking language, ver. 22. Nor does he say, Thou shalt not commit Adultery, but thou shalt not let out a lustful look, nor let in a lustful thought, v. 28. And had he spoken here about the Sabbath, would he have administred it in the letter, or would he have commanded the observation of the true Sabbath, where no Work is done, no Fire kindled (nor so much as any sticks gathered to make a fire with) nor no Burthen born; but the Man-servant, the Maid-servant, the Oxe, the Ass, and every Creature rests in the the Seed. The Son of man is Lord of the Sabbath. It is true he subjected himself under the Law, but yet he was still Lord: and he maketh all his, Kings and Priests to God, who being once baptised into his Death, know also his Resurrection and Reign.

Object. But all the other Commandements are to be kept according to the Letter; for although it should prove so, that Believers are not bound to observe them by vertue of Moses's ministration in the Letter, but by vertue of the ministration of the Spirit, yet the Commandments themselves are kept: but take away the outward observation of the Sabbath, and this Commandment hath no fulfilling at all according to the Letter.

Answ. This ariseth from the different nature of the thing: for the other Commandments require or forbid that which is either good or evil in its own nature; but this is but good or evil by institution or command. To keep a day, or not to keep a day, is not good or evil in it self, but as it is commanded, or forbidden, or left at liberty in the Lord, and according as it is done or forborn by him, who received the command or prohibition, or is let into the liberty of the Gospel, Rom. 14.6. So that if the Nature of the thing required in this Commandment, had been alike with the nature of the things required or forbidden in the other Commandments, it would have been as durable after the dissolution of that Covenant, as the other things therein contained were, which vanish not in themselves upon the dissolution of that Covenant, but only pass into an higher way of dispensation, where they retain their full vertue and strength, even according to the letter, though not by vertue of the administration of the letter, another higher and fuller administration of a better Covenant challenging and taking its own place.

Qu. 7. If the Seventh Days Sabbath be not Moral, but and Abrogated Ceremony, now since Death of Christ; Then wherefore should our Saviour instruct his Beloved Apostles, that must instruct Christian Churches to Pray, (Mat. 24. 20.) that they might not fly on the Sabbath, knowing that their flight would fall out more then thirty years after his death?

Answ. Great was the hardship the Jews under-went in the siege of Jerusalem, by that apprehension of theirs that they ought not to do any work (not so much as of defending themselves) on the Sabbath, which hardship such Disciples of Christs among the Jews, as could not easily be drawn off from the Law and Jewish Observations, but still were for circumcision and keeping of an outward Sabbath, might be liable to: Now Christ and the Apostles after him, were not hasty to draw them from such things, but for a time bore with them therein, insomuch that Paul circumcised Timothy, and became to the Jews as a Jew, and to them that were under the Law, as under the Law himself also. But the strength of the Query seems to lie in this, That it should bear the name of Sabbath from Christ's own mouth, in relation to somewhat which should happen on it more than thirty years after it should cease to be Sabbath. To which my Answer is plain, that that may as well bear the name of Sabbath, as Jerusalem or the Temple bear the name of the holy Place, ver. 15. of the same chap. For Jerusalem and the Temple did as much cease to be the holy place above thirty years after those Words were spoken, as the Jewish Sabbath could cease to be the Sabbath.

Now for the sakes of such as have been truly exercised in their Spirits by the Spirit of the Lord (and have felt the powerful work of his Grace, and a building raised up by him) and may yet be further exercised, I shall add this. Jerusalem was a type of an inward building in the Spirits of Gods people, both in its rearing up, in its situation, in its standing, in God's dealing with it all the time of its standing, and lastly in its downfal and utter desolation. There is an appearance and building of God in the Spirits of his People, which is to give way to, and be swallowed up in a fuller and higher appearance. But the fleshly Spirit, getting into this building, will not give way to the further and more inward and spiritual appearance of the Spirit, but will have the first building stand as the building, and will entertain no further appearance of God, then as it can comprehend it, subject it, and afford it a place in the first building. Hereupon God distresseth Ariel, even the City which David built (saying within his heart, surely that which I have built will I break down, and that which I have planted will I pluck up, even this whole Land, So he causeth the overflowing scourge to pass, even over Thy whole Land, O Immanuel) Now when the enemy enters within the holy City, and within the holy Temple, it is time to fly, and exceeding great distress will befal that Diſciple, whoſe flight is either on the Winter or on the Sabbath day. Do not imagine at this, but if the Lord open it not at preſent, wait his ſeaſon: for the thing is true and ſealed, both by the openings of the Light eternal, and by ſenſible exerciſes and experiences from that Light.

Disciple

Thus I have anſwered ſuch of the Queries as concern the ſeventh days Sabbath. Such as ſeem to argue the unwarrantableneſs of obſerving the firſt day of the week for a Sabbath, I leave to thoſe to whom they are tendred (and of whom an Anſwer ſeems ſo conſciencioufly and zealouſly defired, as I do not ſee how it can be reaſonably neglected or denied) that by weighty evidence of Scripture he may be reduced, if he hath erred: but if not, but it be truth which he hath therein held forth, the Lord may be honoured in mens bowing and ſubjecting to every truth of his, by what Inſtruments ſoever it pleaſeth him to make it manifeſt.

Some Queries ſent in Writing (upon occaſion of an Epiſtle directed to all ſuch as obſerve the Seventh Day of the Week for a Sabbath) Anſwered.

Query 1.

IF the whole Law of Moſes, the Law of the Ten Commandments, as well as the Law of Sacrifices, were both added upon one and the ſame account for Tranſgreſſions; Then why doth the Holy Spirit in the Scriptures lay forth ſuch an antiphitical uſe of them (I ſuppoſe he means anti-tipical) the one that ſin might abound, Rom. 5. 20. the other ſacrificing for Sin? Heb. 9. 7, 8, 9.

Anſw. That the Law of Moſes was added becauſe of Tranſgreſſion, is manifeſt from that Scripture quoted by me in my Epiſtle, as well as from other Scriptures: and one end, why it was added in relation to tranſgreſſion was, that the offence might abound, which would make the Sacrifice or propitiation for ſin appear more neceſſary and more acceptable. And the Sacrifices alſo relate to the Sinner, ſome referring to the Sin committed, others to the thankfulneſs and acknowledgement due for the peace, mercy and bleſſings of God towards his poor, ſinful, erring Creatures; both which were to laſt till the time of Reformation from the ſin, Heb. 9. 10. and Gal. 3. 19. (But that they were both added upon one and the ſame account, that I did not affirm, that is wrongfully put upon me.)

Now though both theſe were added becauſe of Tranſgreſſion, yet they had not both the ſame uſe and ſervice in relation to Tranſgreſſion, but the one was added to diſcover ſin, and to make it appear exceeding ſinful, Rom. 5. 20. the other to blot it out, to take it away, to make atonement for it, which the Sacrifices did, making the ſinner upright and perfect as relating to that outward ſtate and capacity, though they could not as pertaining to the Conſcience, Heb. 9. 9.

Quer. 2. If the whole Law, the ten Commandments as well as the Sacrifices, were repreſentations, figures, or ſhadows of ſomewhat relating to Chriſt the Seed: Then what did they in general, or either of them in particular repreſent, figure, or ſhadow forth, before they were written in Tables of Stone, or ſince they were written in Tables of Stone, more of Chriſt then, then now.

Anſw. That the ten Words were ſome of the Precepts of Moſes, and appertaining to the firſt Teſtament or Covenant, all which Precepts were ſprinkled with blood, cannot be denied: And the Apoſtle diſtinguiſheth the Precepts of Moſes under the Law, which were ſprinkled with the blood of the Sacrifices under the Law, Heb. 7. 19. from the Precepts of Chriſt which he writes in other Tables, ch. 10. 16. which alſo are ſprinkled with Blood, but not with the Blood of Bulls and Goats, but with his own blood: and he that receives any of theſe Precepts out of the blood of Chriſt, cannot truly and ſpiritually obey them, though he may ſtrive much to form his ſpirit into the obedience thereof. Now the time and ſeaſon of their ſignification, was the time which God alotted them under the Law, wherein was the uſe of ſigns: but the Goſpel is a ſtate of ſubſtance, of bringing the life and immortality into the heart, and into the poſſeſſion of believers, which the ſtate of the Law ſhadowed. So that they are not ſigns ſince the Goſpel, ſince Chriſt put an end to the Law-ſigns, ſhadows and figures, nor yet before the Law to Believers, ſo far as they were in the New Covenant: (For as the thing ſignified cometh, ſo that which ſignifieth it paſſeth away) though that was a mixed ſtate, wherein God gave a taſte of both Covenants, before his perfect diſpenſing or bringing forth of either.

Que. 3. If the whole diſpenſation of the Law was given to the Jews, and not to the Gentiles, and ſo the Gentiles not bound to that Law, but another way for them to know the mind of God: Then whether that Law cited Rom. 2. 15. which the Gentiles ſhewed (the work of in their hearts) be another Law contrary to that Law that was given to the Jews, even the ten Commandments.

Anſw. The Law which is the ſubſtance, is not contrary to the Law which is the ſhadow, but is the comprehending and fulfilling of it. The Law in the Spirit (written by Gods power and preſence in the heart and mind) is not contrary to the Law in the letter, but is an higher and more glorious miniſtration of it. The one Commandment which God gave by Moſes to the Jews, Deut. 30. 11. which was the commandment of life and death, as relating to their inward and eternal ſtate, ver. 15. was not contrary to the Ten Commandments, which God had commanded them before by another Covenant, which he had made with them as an outward people, and which was to be their Rule as to their outward ſtate: for they were choſen by God to be an holy People outwardly, and ſo an outward Rule of Holineſs and Obedience was preſcribed them: but by all their obedience thereto, they could not be juſtified, but only by hearing, believing and obeying Chriſt the Word nigh in the heart, and by feeling in the ſpirit the blood of that one offering.

Que. 4. If the Gentiles were not bound (under that Law that the Jews were) which carryed the Curſe with it: then which way have the Gentiles Redemption by Jeſus Chriſt: ſeeing all that are redeemed, are redeemed from the Law and the Curſe thereof, Gal. 4. 5. and 3. 13.

Anſ. As they were under the Curſe outwardly by tranſgreſſing that outward Law or Covenant, and ſo miſſed of the outward happineſs of the Holy Land, and ſtill met with Wrath and Judgements, and at laſt utter cutting off, as to their outward ſtate, and as to all their hope from that Covenant: ſo he that comes to receive the Miniſtration of the Law of the Spirit, will find the Curſe as abundantly inwardly, even till that be cut down by the Sword of the Spirit, which the Curſe is to, and that brought into Dominion, to which is the promiſe and bleſſing. So that the Gentiles find as great need to be redeemed from the Curſe inwardly, which the inward Law brings upon the Tranſgreſſor, as the Jews did outwardly; yea, and find a more heavy burthen and load than ever the Jews did outwardly. Paul when he was alive in the outward Adminiſtration of the Law, not being acquainted with the inward, he knew little of the Curſe, he was according to it blameleſs, Phil. 3. 6. but when he came to receive the living light of the ſpiritual Adminiſtration of it into his ſpirit, then he felt the burthen, and weight, and miſery of ſin, and the Curſe indeed, and cryed out, O Wretched Man, who ſhall Deliver!

Qu. 5. If the duration of the diſpenſation of Moſes Law in the Letter was till Chriſt the Seed ſhould come and fulfil it, and the diſpenſation of Moſes Law (ſo ſtated without diſtinction) between that that was perpetual, and that that was Ceremonially vaniſhing, and ſo in the fulfilling of it beſides: Then what Law or Commandments that or they were, which while Moſes diſpenſation was in full force, is ſaid to be perpetually ſure to ſtand faſt for ever and for ever, as Pſal. 10. 11, 7, 8. and when Chriſt the Seed was come, and had fulfilled all that the Father had appointed him to do, was eſtabliſhed, Rom. 3. 31. and not one jot or tittle of it to paſs ſo long as Heaven and Earth remain? Mat. 5. 18. and Luke 16. 17.

Anſ. That diſtinction between ſomething in Moſes Law being perpetual, and ſomething Ceremonial, is not found and proper in this place: For all that was under Moſes Law was but a ſhadow, as in that diſpenſation, and that Teſtament was dedicated with Blood (with the Blood which was a ſhadow) which related to every Precept, Heb. 9. 18, 19. and it was all ſubſtantial and perpetual in what it ſignified and related to: The Sacrifices were ſubſtantial in that Sacrifice which they ſignified, as well as the law and precepts were ſubſtantial in the law and precepts which they ſignified. And as the first Covenant pointed at a second Covenant, so the Laws of the first Covenant pointed at the Law of the second Covenant, the Ministration whereof is from the Mediator of that Covenant, and they come into the heart sprinkled with his Blood. Now the Law or Commandement, which even under that dispensation was to be perpetual and last for ever, was the Word in the heart, and the laws thereof, Deut. 30. 14. which Moses by especial order from God, and according to the tenor of another Covenant directed the Jews to v. 4. For the Law, as administred by Moses in the Letter is not perpetual or eternal; but as it comes from the Spirit, and is administred in the Spirit, so it is spiritual and eternal. That administration was fitted to that people: and (we know) the Lord, if he had pleased, could have given a fuller administration of his law in the letter than that was, as Christ plainly intimates divers times, Mat. 5. But if it had been never so full, yet the administration of it in the letter, is to give place to the administration of it in the Spirit; so that the administration of it in the letter is not perpetual, but for the time which God alotted it; but the administration of it in the Spirit is eternal and perpetual, and there it remains an eternal light, witness, and Sword against sin and the transgressor. And thus it is established in the hands of the Spirit, after the season of that ministration of it in the letter was ended; and thus not one jot or tittle of it was to pass away, after the other ministration with every jot and tittle of it was ended.

Que. 6. If the coming of Christ in the flesh: and his fulfilling all the righteousness of the Law; and being foretold by Moses to be that Prophet, that was to be heard in all things which is not denyed by us; but if by these he put an end to the Law of the Ten Commandments and gave forth another Law to his House or Family; Then what Law that is, and whether it be contrary to that Law that he with the Father gave forth as Deut. 33. 2. with Psal. 80. 17. which now is in Gospel ministration holy, just good as Rom. 7. 12. and Spiritual ver: 14.

Ans. It is the law of the Spirit, or the light of the Spirit in the heart, which discovers sin (not only in the outward acts, but in its principle, rise, first motions and inward nature) giving forth his living commands against it. This is the law now, in which the believer is to begin, Gal. 3. 3. and according to which he is to go on to perfection. For as the believer is begotten of the Spirit, and born of the Spirit, so he is to receive the ministration of his law from the Spirit, and in the Spirit, He receives a gift of Faith, a measure of Faith from the eternal spring of life, and that's his lavv. His lavv is the Law of Faith. The light of life, vvhich he receives in the Faith, opens the mind and vvill of Christ to him in the spirit, shevving him both sin and also the things of God more fully then the Law of Moses could, though opened by the Spirit; for it is a fuller, a deeper kind of ministration, and so opens the things which it ministers, more fully than a ministration of an inferiour nature can. Yet it is not contrary to Moses Law, but comprehends all the substance, all the righteousness and equity of it, (as I said before) which it as a shadow represented, and commanded to that outward or shadowie people the Jews. But the Law which Paul spake of, Rom. 7. was the Law of the Spirit, or such a ministration of the Law as Paul knew not, all the while he was under the ministration of Moses's Law blameless; but this Law found out sufficient blame in him, ver. 14 &c.

Que. 7. If Jesus Christ as he is the Son gave forth another Law to his House or Family: and that Law contrary to that that the Father gave forth; then whether there is not two Law givers, when the Scriptures say there is but one, Jam. 4. 12.

Ans. The substance, when it is shadowed out, or when it is nakedly dispensed, is one and the same thing; so that when ever it comes, it cannot be another thing, than what the shadow represented it to be. Moses his Dispensations and Christs are one in Spirit: and when he cometh in Spirit, he doth not destroy either Moses or the Prophets, but comprehends them: So that the Law is but one, although the dispensations of it have been various: but the proper dispensation of the Law now to Christians is Christs dispensation, not Moses his dispensation; and Christians are now to look for Light and Knowledge of it, in the Tables where Christ writes it, according to his Covenant. So that there have not been two Laws given out, but the one Law of God hath been variously dispensed: in and according to the letter by Moses to the Jews, in and according to the Spirit by Christ to his Disciples.

Que.

Query 8. If the Tables of Stone, the Writing of the Law of the ten Commandments in the Tables: and the Law of the ten Commandments it self which was written (were figures or representations) Then whether the Finger of God's Spirit doth write the Law of God (two ways in the inward Tables) So called, namely, in the heart of Christ's Family: In one way whilst Moses dispensation was on foot, Psal. 37. 31. For the Psalmist speaks in the present tense (which was under that dispensation:) Now is it another way in this latter dispensation expressed, 2 Cor. 3. 3.

Query 9th. If two ways, then how doth the Finger of Gods Spirit write them those ways.

Ans. The eternal Covenant was the same under the Law, as under the Gospel; and its Tables were the heart then, as well as now, and its way of writing the same then as now, even by the finger of God's Power or eternal Spirit: and thither the Jews were even then referred for the inward writing of the Law, Deut. 30. 14. So that they that truly hearkened, even to Moses, were to wait on this Word, which was nigh in the heart, for the Writing of his Laws there. And they that hearkened to this Law which endureth for ever, knew the Writings thereof in their hearts; whereas the Jews, who were very diligent to get the Law into their hearts from the letter, could never thereby attain the Writing of it there, but were still found breakers of it, and under that curse which belonged to the breach. Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, David and the Prophets knew the inward Jew, who becomes so by the inward Covenant, and by the inward dispensation of the Law in that Covenant and the Law which was after the promise, could not disannul the promise which was before it, but it stood good and firm to the Children, even to all the spiritual Seed, the whole time of that outward dispensation of the Law,

Que. 10. If not, then how doth the writing of the Law in Tables of Stone: represent the writing of the Law in the Tables of the heart: seeing the Tables of the heart were writ upon by the Finger of God's Spirit whilst the Tables of Stone were in full force and the dispensation had not ceased.

Ans. Though the Tables of Stone, or Law thereof was in force to that outward people of God the Jews, yet this did not destroy his inward people, nor his inward Tables in their hearts, nor hinder him from writing his inward Law there; but the inward and eternal Covenant ran underneath to them inwardly (even all the time of that outward dispensation) whereby they were made inwardly righteous and obedient to God. And as God had particularly directed by Moses, to the Word and Commandment of that Covenant: So he would not fail to write it thereby in the hearts of such, as turned to that Word and Commandment. So So that this was the Law, which God wrote in the heart even then, and was always the invvard substance, vvhile as Moses his dispensation vvas but an outvvard sign thereof.

Que. 11. If the Law of the ten Commandments it self: which enjoyed Love and Duty to God: and Love and Duty to Man, as, Matth. 22. 37, 38, 39, 40. Was, or is a Figure of another: Then what Law that is, that's the anti-type of this Law, which in succeeding of it, enjoyns not Love and Duty to God: And not Love and Duty to Man.

Ans. This Query ariseth from a great mistake, as if the Lavv in the Letter and the Lavv in the Spirit could not require the same thing, vvhereas they do require the very same thing in substance, but several vvays, according to the difference of each administration, to vvit, the one litterally of a litteral or outvvard people, the other spiritually of a spiritual or invvard people. The one requires love according to the tenour of the letter, the other according to the Spirit.

Que. 12. If the owning of the ten Commandments as they are plainly laid down in the Letter, be a breaking of them in the Spirit, and especially, those contained in the first Table: Then how doth the Truth of God written, which is Life and Truth, Acts 7. 38. and Eccl. 12. 10. And the Spirit which is given forth meet together, seeing the Spirit leads and guides into all Truth.

Ans. I do not know any, who hath said, That the owning of the ten Commandments as they are plainly laid down in the Letter, is a breaking of them in the Spirit, but he that hath the Spirit, owneth the dispensation of the letter in its place and season: but the Spirit doth not teach him to run from his own dispensation (where it is livingly administre nistred to such as wait on the eternal Word in his Covenant of Life for it) to that dispensation which was appointed for, and given forth to others. But that the truth, as it is written, (outwardly) is Life, I do not read, but otherwise, 2 Cor. 3. Where Paul saith, The Letter killeth, (speaking of the Letter of the New Testament.) The Spirit indeed guides into all truth, but it is the living Soul whom he guides, and it is the living Truth into which he guides in the New Covenant, though it was he also, who gave forth, required, and was able to lead into the letter of the Old Covenant.

Que. 13. Whether when Jehovah gave forth the ten Commandments plainly as a Law in the Letter, he did intend by the observation according to the Letter: the breach of them by the Spirit.

Ans. The Spirit doth not teach to break the Commands in the Letter, but such as are under the Ministration of the Letter, to observe them according to the Letter; and such as are under the ministration of the Spirit, to fulfil the righteousness of them in the Spirit. (Yet the Son of Man is Lord of the Sabbath: and if he bid a man Take up his Bed and walk, which was bearing a Burthen and doing of Work on the Sabbath day, it is no breach of the Sabbath.) Now this is most righteous, that as the Son's rest should be entred into under the Gospel, so his day of rest should be kept by his Disciples and Family.

Que. 14. Whether to say, the keeping the Law of God according to the Letter, is a breaking of it in the Spirit: be not a charging of God, that gave it forth to be kept, and the holy Spirit that incites (us so to do now in this administration, James 2. 8. and says we do well that do so) and yet thou saist they break it in Spirit: but tell us by any one Scripture, how a man assisted by the Spirit to own Jehovah alone to be his God according to the letter of the first Commandment doth break the Command in the Spirit. Or so the like of any other of them.

Ans. This Query is altogether from a mistake, for it was not said by me, That keeping the Law of God according to the Letter, is a breaking of it in the Spirit; but that he that runs back to the Law in the Letter, to take up any Command as held forth in it, will be found a breaker thereof in Spirit. And for this, the Jews in general, and Paul in particular, may be my instances, who was exceeding strict according to the Letter of the Law, but yet was a grievous breaker of it in Spirit, and did not love his Neighbour as himself, but in a blind zeal was a bitter Persecutor: And if the Jews had taken the direction of Moses, Deut. 30. 14. The observation of the Law in the Letter might have been more easie to them. So that the turning towards, and receiving the Word in the heart, from whence the Letter came, is the only way to fulfil the Letter; and the Law is not so much as to be known, much less fulfilled, by running to the letter of it in the first place. And this I certainly know, that there is no coming to the Lord of life, nor no keeping chast to him, but in the New-Covenant, and in the light of the Lord, as it is there dispensed: and till then, the mind cannot forbear making of Images and false Representations of him to it self, though being from the light of this Covenant, it cannot discern that it doth so, no more than Paul, by the Letter of the Law could discern how he was a breaker, thereof, in his Violent Persecutions.

Que. 15. Whether the Prophets, Jesus Christ, or the Apostles, their keeping the Law according to the Letter, that they did do so, is evident, did break the Law in the Spirit.

Ans. The Prophets were under the Law as to their outward state, though inwardly not without feeling the vertue of the New-Covenant. Christ also was made under the Law, and took upon him the fulfilling of that dispensation of Moses, that he might bring the believing Jews from under it, into the liberty of the Spirit, that they might receive the adoption of Sons, and the free Ministration which was appointed for the Sons, and might not be held under that Ministration of Bondage, which was appointed for the Servants. And the Apostle bids Believers to stand fast in the liberty wherewith Christ had made them free, not making themselves debtors to the Law, Gal. 5. 1. For they were Children of the Promise, Children of New Jerusalem, the Free-Woman, Children of the New-Covenant, and not Children of Mount Sinai, the Old-Covenant the Law in the Letter, v. 24. 25, 26.

Qu. 16. If there be but one day of rest holy to the Lord and all the Sabbaths of the Law were but signs of it, that is said to be the day of redemption that the Lord hath made. Then whether that day be a day natural, one of the seven Days of the Week, which either respect the Day on which our Redeemer suffered, or that on which he rose again from the dead, or any other?

Ans. As the Gospel is not natural, but spiritual: so its day of rest is not natural, but spiritual likewise. Yea, I may add this also, the six days Work in the new Creation are not natural neither.

Qu. 17. If not so, but that it should be intended applicable to the day or time of the Gospel Administration from the time that Christ suffered in the Flesh, unto the end of the World. Then whether this day that is intended as a Sabbath, is one with that day that the Scriptures intend and call a Sabbath, which Christ himself gave his Disciples charge to have respect unto in their flight, Mat. 24. 20.

Ans. The supposition here put, demonstrateth that those that put it, have no acquaintance with the Gospel-Sabbath, but propose another outward time for it, even the time from Christ's suffering in the Flesh, to the end of the World. Now if any should so affirm, it were as justly to be excepted against, as pressing the observation of the Jews Sabbath is. That which signifieth is outward or natural, and signifieth to that part which is without: that which is signified, is inward and spiritual, and is known, entred into, kept, and injoyed in the Spirit. It is a Spiritual Sabbath, not a natural, which God hath instituted for his spiritual People, after he hath led them out of spiritual Ægypt, into the spiritual Wilderness, where he administreth to them the Law in the Spirit, and teacheth them to worship him in Spirit and Truth.

Que. 18. If they intend one and the same Sabbath day, then how impossible was it for the Disciples of Christ to escape flying on that Sabbath day, though never so fervent in Prayer, in regard that this Sabbath spoken of began when Christ had suffered and put an end to the dispensation of Moses's Law: and the flight spoked of by Christ, which respects the Lord's Sabbat not until many years after sufferings. Supposed-Sabbath being before denied, the Foundation of this Query fails.

Ans. Christ's Sabbath is not an outward time or day in the Flesh, but a day in the Spirit, even a day of rest from all the labours of the fleshly part. But this was spoken to before, in the Answer to the last of W. Salter's Queries, whereto I may add this. Christ spake to his Disciples of things, as they were able to bear them. Now as they understood not his death, so then they understood not the abolishing of those things, which were to pass away after his death: so that Christ might very well call Jerusalem the holy place, and the seventh day the Sabbath, speaking to them in that state.

Que. 19. If they intend not one and the same Sabbath day, then which are the Disciples of Christ to have respect unto, whether that that Jesus Christ enjoyned his Disciples to have respect unto, or that that Isaac Penington would injoyn the Disciples to have respect unto.

Ans. This Query hath very little in it, save to shew the unsavourineſs of the Spirits of them that put it, and their want of acquaintance with the Ministration of the Spirit. They that know the Gospel-Sabbath (which is the substance of the Law-Sabbath) can tell who injoin'd it them, and can also tell, that he hath not required of them the observation of the Jews Sabbath. But they that are born after the Letter, have been always subject to revile and reproach the truths of the Spirit, and those that testifie thereto.

Que. 20. If the Lords holy Sabbath be that day which we may suppose is intended by this Paper sent unto us: to be the day that contains the time of Gospel-administration: then whether that Sabbath doth prohibit outward Labour as well as abstaining from Sin, if not, then which way must this Sabbath be kept. Seeing, that they that did and doth observe the weekly Sabbath, did and doth it in the Spirit. And rest by Faith in Christ, Worshipping the Father in Spirit and in Truth.

Ans. The Gospel-Sabbath begins not in the observation of outward time: but as it is spiritual, so it hath a spiritual beginning, increase, and perfecting, wherein there is rest to the Spirit from Sin, and from the creaturely Works, and a Worshipping in the Spirit, even as on the outward Sabbath there was a bodily ceasing from labours, and an outward worshipping. And he that heareth the joyful sound of deliverance from sin and Self-working, and entreth into the Faith (beginning to cease from his own Works and Working, and to wait in the Spirit on the Power for its working in him) hath a taste of the Gospel-Sabbath, and beginneth to see that day, which the type pointed to, and ends in.

Que. 21. If that that was ministred to Paul, Rom. 7. Thou shalt keep the Sabbath, or belive in the Light, follow the Light, and the observing of either of these in the Spirit, to be a keeping the whole Law. Then how are the Scriptures observed if the keeping of one Commandment be a keeping the whole Law when the holy Spirit in Scriptures says that he that offends in one point is guilty of all, James 2. 10.

Ans. I did not say, that the keeping of one Commandment is the keeping of the whole Law; but that the observing in Spirit of any one of those there mentioned by me, is the keeping of the Law: which was not barely said, but demonstrated, because no part of the Law can be broken, but every one of these must be broken. He that commit any sin, breaks the Gospel-Sabbath, which is a resting from all sin and Self-works, errs from the Law of love received in the Spirit, which shuts out all enmity and transgression both against God and Man; departs from the fear, which keeps from departing from God by any iniquity; and enters into the Lust, which is the Womb of sin, out of the compass of which Womb sin cannot be conceived, much less committed. So that Paul, in that Law received from the Spirit. Thou shalt not Lust, saw the whole Body of sin struck at, whereas before, under the Ministration of Moses in the Letter (according to which he said he was blameless) there was not so much as the life of one sin struck at, but for all his exact answering of the Law according to that ministration, he was alive still. To decide this Controversie, let it be put to tryal, let any one singly wait on the Lord for the administration of his Law in the Spirit, and if the Lord give forth this Command to him, Thou shalt not Lust, in the clearness of the light of his eternal Spirit let him try, if continuing in obedience and subjection thereto, he can commit any one sin whatsoever. I do not say, that a mans proposing to himself that he will not lust, or his striving of himself to love and fear the Lord, or his applying himself to keep the Sabbath or rest from sin to the Lord will do this. (Nay this is but an administration in the letter, and will prove Weak against the inward Strength of the Enemy) but receiving the Law in its pure living administration in the Spirit, and from the Spirit here comes strength against the Enemy, which is too hard for him, while it is abode in. And this the Apostle Paul taught the Galatians, who were running backward towards the Law, and not forwards in the Spirit: He bids them Walk in the Spirit, Gal. 5. 25. And so doing as they should not be under the Law, v. 18. So neither should they be breakers of the Law: For within those bounds sin enters not, but is kept out, not so much as a Lust against the Law being there known, much less any open Transgression against it: and against such as thus keep within the bounds of the Spirit there is no Law, ver: 22, 23. But against all that make themselves debtors to the Law of the Letter, there stands in force both the Law of the letter and and of the Spirit also; and they cannot in that state be free from the condemnation and curse thereof, whatsoever they may imagine concerning themselves, and their own state, from a mis-understanding and mis-application of the Scriptures.

The first Letter Answered.

THERE is a double Ministration of the Law: a Ministration in the letter, and a ministration in the Spirit. The Ministration of the letter was by Moses, from Mount Sinai, in Tables of Stone, to that outward people the Jews: The Ministration of the Spirit is by Christ from Mount Sion in Tables of Flesh, to Believers or his Disciples. Now this is it which the Lord hath made manifest to me, that the Disciples of Christ, or Believers, are to have recourse to their administration for the receiving of the Law from the Spirit, and not to run back to that Ministration which was litteral and outward, and fitted to a litteral and outward people. This was more fully set down in my Epistle in several particulars. Now in opposition to this, it is said, First

First, That all written in that Epistle, makes no more at all against a Gospel spiritual observing in love the seventh day Sabbath to the Lord, then they make against a Gospel Spiritual observing of the other nine Commandments.

Ans. My Epistle striketh not at a Gospel Spiritual Observation of any thing; but he that will obey Spiritually, must receive his command from the Spirit in that way which the Spirit hath chosen to dispense it to him in. Now the same Spirit, which wrote his Law in the letter under the old Covenant, writeth his Law in the hearts of believers under the New Covenant, Heb. 8. 10. which is a better Covenant, and of which Covenant Christ is the Mediator, ver. 6. and Christ is as faithful to give forth the Laws of his Spirit in the hearts of his people, as their condition requires them, as Moses was to give the Law written in the Tables of Stone to his House, Heb. 3. 5. 6. And as Moses pointed his Disciples to Christ coming in the Flesh, so Christ pointed believers or his Disciples to the Comforter, the Spirit of truth, first to wait for him, and then to receive light or his Law of life from him: And this is Gospel or New Covenant, even that which the Spirit speaks or writes in the heart, and this hath power in it and saveth, whereas the Letter killeth. Now consider seriously, whether should a believer go for these Laws? to which Covenant? to Moses's Covenant, or to Christs Covenant.

Secondly, That all these Commands being holy and good, are to be loved, and in love to be served, &c.

Ans. All the Statutes, and Judgements and Ordinances, and Precepts of the Lord are holy and good, and are to be loved: but each is to be obedient to that which God requires of him, and to have recourse to that ministration for the Law of God to him, unto which God hath set him. He that believes, he that hath received the Spirit, is to have recourse to the law of Faith, and to the Spirit for his light or law: he who was under the law of Moses, was to have recourse to the law of Moses: for the law of Moses spake to them who were under it in his Family, giving forth the Precepts, or the Commandments of that dispensation to them who are under his Testament, Heb. 9 20. And Christ speaks to his family by his Spirit, whom his Disciples are to hearken unto, and not to grieve him or quench his motions, or despise his Prophesyings, but give diligent heed thereto, until the day dawn, and the day-Star arise in their hearts.

Now to obey in love, doth not make the distinction of the ministrations: for love begeth to each ministration. The Jews in their day were to obey the Law in love, and have it in their hearts, Deut. 6. 5, 6. But this makes the difference, the Jews were to look to the letter for it, the Disciple is to receive it from the Spirit; for he is to begin in the Spirit, Gal. 3. 3. Whereas the Jews beginning was in the letter. And this is obedience in the newness of the Spirit, when the law is received fresh from the Spirit, who both writes new things and brings to remembrance old things livingly and powerfully: but to go to Moses ministration and learn it there, and get it into the heart from thence, thats according to the old ministration or Covenant, which was given in the letter to the Jews; as may appear in that place last cited, Deut. 6. 5. 6.

Thirdly, That in the same spirit and love, that we have the Lord for our God, &c. in same we are to remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy.

Ans. The Lord teacheth believers to know him to be the only true God, &c. by the Law of the Covenant of life in Christ Jesus, which he ministers to their Spirits in the Spirit, whereby he teacheth them so clearly and effectually, that they need not run back to the Tables of Moses his Covenant, from thence to teach one another to know the Lord, but they shall all know him from this teaching from the least to the greatest: yea, I may add this, This Covenant by its ministration teacheth more clearly, then the ministration of Moses his Law in the letter could teach, Heb. 8. 10 11. They that have been with Moses, and have learned the Law of him, under the ministration of his Covenant, have yet need of coming to Christ; but they that have been with Christ, and have learned the Law of his Spirit, by the teachings of the New Covenant in their hearts have not need of being sent back to Moses. Moses pointeth forward to Christ, but Christ (when in the flesh) sendeth not his Disciples from his own dispensation back to Moses, (though he also established the dispensation of Moses for its season) but pointeth them forward to the Comforter, or to his appearance in the spirit. And this is the mark of a Christian, which it is the intent of the Letter to direct him to, and not for him to rest in the Letter, as men have done since the Apostacy from the spirit.

This

This Argument is further inforced thus, becauſe he that ſaid the other, ſaid this, in the ſame Law and Spirit.

Anſ. It is true, he that ſaid the otherby Moſes to the Jews, ſaid this alſo to them, they were ſtrictly bound thereto; but that which binds the Diſciple is the miniſtration of the new Covenant, where Chriſt writes this Law in the minds and ſpirits of his people by which they are bound, and ſuch as are out of that the Lord when he cometh to examine them concerning their Faith and Obedience, will ſay to them, Who hath required this at your hands? Were ye Children of the New Covenant? Did ye receive the Spirit? Had ye a meaſure of Faith given you? were ye new Creatures? Why did ye not keep to your Rule? Why did ye not wait on the Spirit, and receive the Law from the New Jeruſalem, from whence it iſſues forth to the Family of Believers? The Jews were to be taught by Precepts and Judgments from Moſes, but all thy Children ſhall be taught of the Lord.

It is ſaid yet further, So that if thou keepeſt the other, and not this, thou art a Tranſgreſſor of the ROYAL LAW of LIBERTY.

Anſ. What is the Royal Law? what is the law of Liberty? Was the law as it was miniſtred by Moſes, the Royal law? or is it the Royal law as it is adminiſtred by the Son, who is the King of Saints, and writes his law in their hearts as their King? Again was the law, which Moſes adminiſtred to the Jews, a law of liberty, or a law of bondage? did not the miniſtration on mount Sinai gender to bondage, Gal. 4.24 but the miniſtration of the law by the Spirit is life and liberty, *ver.*26. and 2 Cor. 3.17. this very law, Thou ſhalt love thy Neighbour as thy ſelf is Royal, and a law of pure liberty, and there is no bondage in it thus adminiſtred: but let any man now read it in the letter, and ſtrive to obey it to the utmoſt he can, he ſhall find it weak through the fleſh, accuſing and inbondaging him. And this is the reaſon that Chriſtians ſo mourn in their prayers, even as perſons in bonds, becauſe they know not the Royal law of liberty, becauſe they feel not the love which the Spirit begets, but ſtrive to get the letter into their hearts, and to anſwer the Commands in the letter with what love and obedience they can come at; and this (through not ſeeing into the true Covenant and miniſtration of Chriſt) they call obeying in the Spirit. The teſtimony of Jeſus, Rev. 12. 17. is the Spirit of Prophecy, *chap.*19. 10. and his Commandments come freſh from that Spirit of Prophecy, which are to be taken heed to, till the day dawn, and the day-ſtar-ariſe, and then a fuller miniſtration is witneſſed then that of Prophecy, even the ſhining and appearance of that which was propheſied of, which every believer is to wait for in the Propheſie of the ſpirit, and in obedience to thoſe Commands, which come livingly into his heart in the ſpirit of Propheſie.

Fourthly. That the fourth Command is to be in love kept by all believers.

Anſ. All the Commands of Chriſts Covenant are to be kept by believers, according as he pleaſeth to diſpence them, under his adminiſtration in the New Covenant: but the Laws of the Old Covenant are not the Laws of the New Covenant, as ſo diſpenſed, but only as they are comprehended in the righteouſneſs, which is taught and required by the ſpirit, which is fuller, ſtricter and exacter, then that which the Law of Moſes required.

Nor do I hereby go about to teach any to break the leaſt of Chriſts Commands, but the way to fulfil them, which is, by keeping to the certain knowledge and obedience of them, in that miniſtration, where Chriſt hath promiſed to diſpenſe and make them known to believers, which is, under the miniſtry of his own Covenant, writing them in their hearts and minds by his Spirit. And here the keeping of all Chriſts Commands is poſſible, yea this is the only way to have the righteouſneſs of the Law fulfilled in us, for he that keeps the eye which the ſpirit hath opened in him, cloſe to the Spirit, ſhall not be able to break any law of righteouſneſs, but the righteouſneſs even of Moſes his Law ſhall be fulfilled in him.

Chriſt is the reſt of the Goſpel (as he is alſo the holy land) believing is the entring into this reſt, here's his Sabbath, and the keeping of it. Keep in the Faith, the Goſpel reſt kept. Parting with every Luſt that he makes manifeſt, obſerving every thing that the King calls for by his Spirit, and waiting for the further manifeſtation or ſhining of the light of his ſpirit in the heart, here's the obedience of the Faith, and the holy and ſpiritual life and ſubjection of the living Soul to its living King. Here's the beginning of a true Chriſtian, his growth, his perfection, but as for times, places, perſons, &c. the are of another nature, to another part, even to that part in man which is to be done away, as he comes into the Faith, and into the Rest. Let that which is invisible, whose Habitation is out of the reasoning part, feel and read me in that which is invisible: For I do not make void the Law by Faith, or through publishing the Ministry of the Spirit, but establish it in its Ministration in the Spirit to the Disciples of Christ; who keeping to the Spirit, cannot transgress the righteousness of it, though they may there learn not to esteem one day above another, but to esteem every day, no days having ever had any real holiness in them one above another, but only a figurative or representative, which the Substance, Christ and his Gospel swallow up: for as his day dawns, those things which were the shaddow of it fly away.

The second Letter Answered.

OBject. 1. It is said to be dangerous, so to hold forth the spiritual Sabbatism, as to deny the weekly Sabbath, wherein our Lord Jesus Christ rested, &c, And which he blessed and sanctified to Adam and his Posterity, &c.

Ans. The Gospel is a state of substance, of fulfilling the Types and Shaddows of the Law, by bringing believers into the Possession of that which they signified of, Canaan was a type of Christ, who is the Land of the living, in whom every believer hath an Habitation at present, according to the proportion of his Faith: and the Sabbath is the day of rest, which every believer is to celebrate to Christ in this holy Land, which he doth by believing and obeying his Spirit in the Faith, which keepeth him out of the sin, the unbelief, the unrest. But that the Sabbath of the Law, the Rest thereof, which pointed to the Faith, is still to be held up in the times of the Gospel, I know no Scripture which so teacheth, and I know somewhat which teacheth me otherwise. The day is dawned, blessed be the Lord God Almighty, the everlasting day is dawned and the shaddows of the Law are flown away.

Objection 2. It is said, that Heb. 4. Speaks of three Rests, The Seventh Day Sabbath Rest, Israels Rest in Canaan, and a remaining Rest, whereof David speaks, Psalm 95.

Ans. I grant it, There were two Rests under the Law, which were signs of the one rest under the Gospel. The two under the Law were outward and natural, the one under the Gospel inward and spiritual, answerable to the state of the Gospel. David was not only acquainted with the Law-state, but with the Free-spirit, (Psalm 51.) and the eternal Law thereof. He knew the new Creation, the creating of a new Spirit, (with its travel through the Law) and also the new rest. He knew the circumcision of the heart, the spiritual sacrifices of a broken heart and of praise, he could take the Cup of Salvation, and sing the Song of praise to the Lord, which none can do in the strange Land, nor on any other day but the day of rest. And he incites Israel to this rest, that they might not harden their hearts against it, but in the day of their visitation enter into it, by hearkening to the Word which was nigh them, which gives the entrance through the Faith. To day if ye will hear his Voice, harden not your Hearts, &c. There is a Rest ye are now called to enter into, as your Fathers were called to enter into the Land of Canaan: harden not your hearts as they did, but hear the Voice, hear the Word which calls to this rest, believe and enter. This rest remains says the Apostle, the others were types of it under the Law-state, which was to pass away.

Objection 3. It is said, Ceremonial Signs are done away, but the ten Commands under the Mercy-Seat are of another nature: and that there are Signs which are not yet abolished (as the Rain bow, Sun, Moon, and Stars) but still remain for us to make good use of.

Ans. The Mercy-Seat under the Law is done away, and the substance thereof is come and will ye not give him leave to write his Law in the Tables which he shall choose, where his Disciples may read it with the eye which he gives? Is his Law now to be read in the shadows, or with the outward eye, or to be looked for under the old Mercy-Seat of the outward Tabernacle? Or is it to be read with the eye of the new Creature, with the eye of Faith, with the eye of the Spirit, in the everlasting Gospel, where the life it self is read, and in other Books or Writings without, but tidings or relations of the life? Here Christ, here the spirit, here the Eternal life, here the love, the joy, the peace, the rest, the purity, which is eternal, is seen, is felt, is handled, is injoyed; for the true Faith is indeed the substance of the things hoped for, giving Victory over the enemies which disturb, and a quiet Habitation in him who is the rest.

And as touching Signs, I do not say that signs are so done away, as that there is now no good use to be made of them; but in reading the law and shadows thereof, the Lord may please by his Spirit, to enlighten the Spirit of him who reads in his fear, to see through them: but this I do not find, that so much as any one Sign or shadow under the Law, was to be continued in that way of service under the Gospel (for indeed to what end should it? When that is come, which it signified, is not its Work at an end?) and that that Sabbath was given for a sign (as well as any other Sabbaths of the Law) I find expresly, Exod. 31. 13. to 18.

Object. 4. It is said, That though Christ's Law be a new Law, yet it is also old, given of old to the Jews.

Ans. Yea, it is older then so: For it was Written in Abel's and the other holy ones hearts, long before this Covenant of the Law in Writing was made with the Jews. Consider well which is now to stand in the times of the Gospel, the writing of the Law by the Spirit in the hearts of Believers, as it was Written by vertue of the Promise before the Law was given, or the outward and visible Writing under the Law, which was done for the sake of, and as a suitable dispensation for that outward People. It was not thus from the beginning, but after a long time: for when God chose an outward People, he chose also this way of Writing to signifie somewhat by, which significant is concerning another state; in which state, that which was signified is to be set up and advanced, and not the shadows which were significant of it.

It is further said, That the Lord writes these things new in his Peoples hearts, to fear the Lord, as their God, and as the God and Father of Jesus Christ, and as their Father in him: and to love their Brethren as Christ loves them. And he Writes this Law in their hearts, Thou shalt have no other Gods but me, make no Image, exalt my Name, keep holy the Sabbath, &c.

Ans. If God write these things in the heart, are they not to be read there? If God write them in the New Covenant, and in the New Tables, shall not I read them there? And if I can read there in this living Book, what God writes in it by his Spirit, is not this nearer to me and clearer, and read by a more certain eye, then what is read with my outward eye in Tables of Stone? Oh! Do not turn the Believer out of his way: do not hinder him from reading in the Book, which is clear and infallible the clear and infallible things of God. Will God write in my heart, and will he not give me an eye to read? Shall he give me an eye to read, and shall I not read therein? Thou hast here confessed this to be the new Writing, and the new writing belongs to the new Covenant, both which are proper to the Gospel state, and to Christs Mediation, who is Mediatour of the new Covenant, Heb. 8. 6. And in that he saith, a new, he hath made the first old. Now that which decayeth and waxeth old, is ready to vanish away, verse 13.

Object. 5. It is said, that love being the sum and substance of the Law of the Spirit, makes no more against the Fourth Commandment, than against the rest.

Ans. Love is the substance of them all, and they are all fulfilled in it: but they are not after this manner fulfilled, to wit, that a man should strive particularly to keep them in his eye, and so labour to fulfil them in love, but rather thus, in waiting on the Lord, to receive love from him, and to be kept by him in the love, in this love received they are all fulfilled, and cannot be broken, and this is an easie Yoak! This is the new Birth, and the Path thereof, the other is but the old Creature, with its striving after the Path and Inheritance of life. And as this Love is the fulfilling of the Law, so the heart are the Tables of this Love, wherein God Writeth both the whole and all the parts of his Law. Now I am not against any man, who in singleness of heart applies himself to the Letter, but it is but the old way, and a conversing with Christ after the manner of Moses's dispensation: but I must confess that I am for the new Covenant, and for the Ministry of the Spirit, which is far beyond the Letter, and though I have known Christ, and the Laws of his life after the Flesh, yet henceforth my desire is not after knowing him so any more, but to know him in the eternal life of his Spirit, and to drink of the Fruit of the Vine, new with him in his Fathers Kingdom.

A brief Explication of the myſtery of the Six Days Labour, and Seventh days Sabbath, for ſuch to behold, the Eye of whoſe Spirit is opened by the pure anointing, and who are not ſo drowned in their Conceivings and Reaſonings about the ſence of the Letter, as moſt of the Profeſſors of this Age are.

MAT. 11. 28, 29, 30.

Come unto me all ye that Labour, and are heavy Laden, and I will give you Reſt. Take my Yoak upon you, and learn of me, for I am Meek and Lowly in heart, and ye ſhall find reſt unto your Souls. For my Yoak is eaſie, and my Burden is light.

HE that hears the joyful ſound of the ever-living power, calling him by the Voice of his eternal light out of the darkneſs, out of the death, out of the miſery, out of the Dominions, Territories, and deep Slavery of Satan unto himſelf, and cometh unto him in the vertue and power of that life which calleth, he hath a taſt given him of the eternal reſt, and a promiſe of entring into it.

But the entrance into the fulneſs thereof is not preſently, but he hath a long journey to take from Ægypt the dark Land, from Sodom the filthy Land, from Babylon, where all the Veſſels and holy Things of God have been defiled, through the Wilderneſs, unto Canaan; And many Battels are to be fought with Enemies by the way, and alſo with the Enemies which poſſeſs the holy Land, and many hardſhips to be undergone in following the Captain, who alſo leadeth his Iſrael by a Pillar of Cloud by day, and by a Pillar of Fire by night; and there muſt be a Circumciſion and Baptiſm in the Cloud and in the Sea, and the falling of all thoſe Carcaſſes in the Wilderneſs, which are not to enter, nor ſo much as ſee the good Land, before the entrance be miniſtred to the Seed, and to that which paſſeth through the Water and through the Fire with the Seed: In plain terms, there muſt be a taking up of the Yoak, and a learning of Chriſt under the Yoak, till the Proud, the Stiff, the Stubborn, the Wiſe, the Wilful, the Selfiſh Spirit, the hard ſtony Heart be waſted and worn out by the Croſs, and nothing left but what becomes one with the Seed, and ſo is fit to be married to it, and to enter with it into the everlaſting Kingdom.

Now this bearing the Yoak, this taking up of the Croſs, this following of Chriſt in the Wilderneſs, through the Corrections of the Father, through the Buffettings and Temptations of the Enemy, in the midſt of all the Weakneſſes and Frailties of the Fleſh, going when he bids go, ſtanding ſtill where he ſtops, fighting when he prepares to the Warfare, bearing the repulſe, when he ſuffers the Enemy to prevail, and hoping, even beyond hope, for his Relief and Victory in due ſeaſon; here's the Labour, here's the Travel, here's the Working under the Life, with the meaſure of Grace and Power received from the Life. So that firſt the Day-ſpring from on high viſits, from that viſitation there is Light entred into the heart: by cloſing with that Light there is Grace received: with this Grace received there is Work to be done for God, his Talent is to be improved all the ſix days, by all that will reſt with him on the ſeventh, and that deſire to ceaſe from their labours in the Fruition of the Faith, the Life, the Power, the Power living, becoming and performing all in them. And he that doth not improve the Talent, he that doth not follow on in the pure light, but either ſits down by the way, or is deceived with an Image of what once was true in him, he can never arrive at the Land of reſt, (though perhaps he may arrive at that which he may call ſo) but, when the eternal Witneſs awakes in him, he will find the want of it, and bitterly bewail his grievous miſtake.

Now in this hard Travel, and grievous labour under the cloſe Laws and ſpiritual Commandments of the life (hard I mean, yea, very hard to the renewed part, though eaſie and natural to that part which is renewed and born of God) it pleaſeth the Lord now and then to give a day of refreſhment, cauſing his life ſo powerfully to ſpring up, that it even ſenſibly is, and doth all in the heart. This is a Sabbath, wherein the Soul reſts in the powerful movings and operations of the life, and doth not find any ſtreſs of trouble or hardſhip, or labour upon it, but ſits ſtill in the power, is at eaſe in the life, in the eternal vertue, which lives and moves, and is all in it; and no pain, no trouble, no grievouſneſs of any Command is felt; but to it all is eaſie, all is natural, all is purely pleaſant, the life (to which all its own Laws, Statutes, Ordinances, Judgments, Ways and Paths are eaſie) performing all it calls for, even as faſt as it calls for it. And here not only a Sabbath of Days, but alſo a Sabbath of Weeks, yea ſometimes a Sabbath of Years (beſides the everlaſting Jubilee or Year of perfect Redemption it ſelf) are known and witneſſed by ſuch as have waited on the Lord, in ſingleneſs of heart under the Yoke of his Spirit, for the bringing down of the rough and untoward nature, and for the raiſing up of the meek and lowly heart.

But here it is exceeding eaſie, running out and ſtaring aſide; it is eaſie running out from under the Yoke to avoid the bitterneſs of the hardſhip to the earthly part; it is much eaſier running out on the day of reſt, and ſo loſing the truth in a joy and rejoicing, even ſuch an one as might have a true ground. Oh who can but think the bitterneſs of death is paſt, when all enemies are vaniſhed, and there is nothing left but the Lord and the Soul imbracing each other? and who can but be unwilling to come back again to his labour, and to the reſidue of his hard Travel afterwards! and yet it is far better to return to the work in the Vinyard, and to ſuffer again with the Seed, then to keep up the reſt in a notion, and ſo to loſe the life and pure preſence and vertue of the ſeed, when it returns unto, and calls back to the labour. Oh how many have periſhed here, ſuffering a divorce from that which led them into the reſt, not being willing to go back again with it to fill up the reſidue of its ſufferings, which were yet behind, and ſo have kept up a falſe, dead, notional reſt, after the true Sabbath was ended.

Now there is no way for ſuch, but to wait to feel the living breath, the quickning vertue, the day-ſpring from on high, which by the brightneſs of its riſing can diſcover this falſe reſt, this dead reſt, this notional reſt, this eaſe in the earthly, in the fleſhly, in the underſtanding part, which they uphold by things they have formerly gathered from the Scriptures, or from their own (perhaps once living) experiences; but now hold, out of the feeling and poſſeſſion of the life in the dead part. But that it is thus with them, they can never ſee, until the light, from which they have erred, ſpring up and diſcover it to them: and when the light doth ariſe and diſcover it, they will find the way of return and the path of Redemption much more difficult to them, then it was at firſt. Yet it is better to part with the eaſe of the fleſh, and to undergo the pangs of a new Birth, than to miſs of the Inheritance in the good land.

There are three ſteps or degrees of the bleſſed eſtate; First, There are deſires, thirſtings and breathings begotten after the life: Secondly, There is a labouring in the ſervice (under the yoke) by the vertue which ſprings from the life. Thirdly, There is a Reſt, or ſitting down at eaſe in the life: By the ſtirring of life in the Soul, deſires after life are kindled, he in whom the deſires are kindled and who feeleth the eternal virtue, cannot but be running the Race; he whom the ſpirit of the Lord findeth faithful in running the race, it pleaſeth the Lord ever and anon to be giving him a taſte of the reſt. Thus the ſpring ſtirring, the Soul cannot but move towards its Center; and as it entreth into, and fixeth in its Center, it partaketh of the reſt. Now to know the leadings of the Spirit forward and backward into theſe, into deſires, when he pleaſeth, into the labour and ſervice of the life, when he pleaſeth; into the ſweet reſt and perfect repoſe in the life, when he pleaſeth;) here is the ſafety and ſweet progreſs of the renewed ſpirit. That man who is born of the ſpirit, is to wait for the movings, breathings and kindlings of the ſpirit in him; and when the Sun ariſeth, he is to go forth to his labour in the light thereof, and in the night and withdrawing of the Sun to retire; And when his ſeventh day of reſt comes, he is to receive it from, and enjoy it in the Spirit; and afterward to be willing to begin his week again, even till his whole race and the full courſe of his Pilgrimage be finiſhed. Yet if it were poſſible for man after he is come to Chriſt, to abide perfectly with him, to ceaſe from Luſt, to keep within the Faith, to draw naturally in the Yoke, to bow in the Spirit continually to the Father of Spirits, there would be a continual Sabbath kept in the paſſage, even before the great, full and perfect Sabbath in the end. The hardneſs and uneaſe of the labour, is becauſe of a part contrary to the life, which when it is worn out, there will be no more labour, but the yoke will become the reſt, and all the motions and operations of life will flow forth naturally in the reſt. And here is the Patience and Faith of the Saints, to wait under the yoke, under the daily croſs to that part which is to be brought and kept under, till all the bonds of Captivity be broke through by the life, and the Vail of fleſh rent from the top to the bottom (the remaining of which, is that which ſtops the free current of life) and then ſhall the Soul enter into the Holy of Holyes, obtaining the full poſſeſſion of the everlaſting inheritance and of the eternal redemption, and know Sorrow, Tears, Bonds, Sickneſs, Death, Captivity (no nor ſo much as grapling with them, or travelling out of them) no more, but the enjoyment of the plenty and fulneſs of the life reaping all the pleaſant fruits of life in the rich land of life for evermore.

Some Conſiderations Propounded to the JEWS,

That they may hear and conſider, and their Hearts at length may be turned towards that which alone is able to Convert them to God, that they may once more become his People, and enter into an Everlaſting Covenant with him that may not be broken, that ſo they may abide in his Love and Covenant of Life, and remain his People for ever.

Conſideration I.

WHAT great Love, Mercy and Kindneſs God ſhewed to that People, above all Nations and Peoples under Heaven. Of his own free love he ſet his heart upon them, chuſing them to be a People to himſelf. He brought them out of Egypt by a mighty hand and outſtretched Arm; he mightily preſerved them in, and led them through the Wilderneſs. He entred into a Covenant with them to become their God, and betrothed them unto himſelf for his own Lot and Inheritance. He gave them righteous Laws, Judgements, Statutes and Ordinances, both of Worſhip towards him, and of an upright Demeanour and Converſation among themſelves and towards all men. He drove out the Heathen from before them, and gave them a pleaſant Land to poſſeſs, even the Glory of all Lands, a Land flowing with Milk and Honey. He built an habitation for himſelf among them, firſt a moving Sanctuary or Tabernacle, afterwards a more ſetled abiding place or Temple (which Solomon built) wherein was the Ark of his preſence, where he was to be ſought unto and enquired of by them, and towards which their Prayers were to be directed, and there was a Mercy-ſeat, whereof they had large experience, and he ever and anon ſent Prophets among them, to reprove their errors and backſlidings, and to ſet them to rights again. He raiſed up Judges likewiſe to defend them; and although they were weary of his Government, deſiring a King after the manner of the Nations ſo vehemently, that they even forced a King from him, yet he took him away from them, and after him choſe a man after his own heart, to feed Jacob his People and Iſrael his Inheritance, who fed them according to the integrity of his heart, and guided them by the skilfulneſs of his hands. What ſhould I ſay more? what was wanting of Love, of Care, of Goodneſs, of Kindneſs, of Mercy, of Gentleneſs, of any thing that a People could deſire of their God? I ſay, what was wanting of all this on Gods part? What could he have done more for his Vineyard than he did do? Nay he emptyed upon them all the Goodneſs, all the Mercy, Love, Favour, &c. that that Covenant would hold to the full, yea and more too; for he bare with them more than that Covenant required him to bear, and redeemed them ofter than that Covenant engaged him, yea many time turned he his anger away, and did not ſtir up all his Wrath, as he might often have done according to the tenour of that Covenant. Yea, in all their Afflictions he was afflicted, and the Angel of his presence saved them: And he was still ready to say in his heart, Surely they are my People, Children that will not Lye, at length they will see their error, repent, and be true to me; insomuch as he was never weary of saving them, of trying them again and again, of stirring up his Bowels of Love and Pity to redeem them, of sending his Servants and Prophets among them to warn and reclaim them, even till at last it was manifest that there was no remedy but he must cast them off, and provoke them to Jealousie by a foolish Nation (Deut. 32 20, 21.) drawing them nigh to him, who had been Worshipping Stocks and Stones, making them become a People, who had long been no people, and casting these out of his sight, making them become no People, who had so long been his chosen peculiar People, in Covenant with him, and nigh unto him above all the Families of the Earth.

Consid. 2. What constant Rebellion and stiffness of Spirit that People all along expressed towards the Lord. What wild sower Grapes they still brought forth to him, sower Love, sower Obedience, sower Worship and Sacrifices. such as the pure Pallate of the Lord could find no Relish nor Savour in: But as Moses had told them, that it was not for their Righteousness God chose them to give them the good Land to possess, for they were a Rebellious and Stiff-necked People, Deut. 9. 6, 7. So it was not for their Goodness that God continued his Love to them, for they were all along provoking him, Jer. 44. 4. When God came to shew that great Mery to them of Redeeming them out of Ægypt, and bid them cast away their Idols, they would not cast away their Idols, Ezek. 20. 7, 8. Neither did they regard that Mercy of Redemption from the house of Bondage, and from the Iron Furnace, but said to Moses it was better for them to stay in Ægypt, and to serve the Egyptians, Exod. 14. 12. Again in the Wilderness, how did they provoke him all that forty years of Mercy, how did they err in their hearts from his pure fear, and from Love to him, and from Faith and Confidence in him! how did they murmur against him, and against Moses and Aaron their Leaders! How did they forget his Works and his Wonders continually! When they came near the Land, and should have gone into possess it, then they would not, but repined and rebelled because of the tallness and strength of the enemy, and of their Cities: and when they were forbid to go, then they would go and fight with them. What should I mention the times of the Judges and of the Kings, how often the Lord made them smart by their Enemies in their own Land, how often he gave them up to Captivity out of their Land, even till at length that great Captivity of Babylon befel them, and since that a greater Captiuity and Desolation than that of Babylon?

Consid. 3. Whether God, having tryed this People even to the utmost, by that Covenant which he made with them by Moses in Mount Sinai, may ever please to try them so any more: Or if there yet remain any Mercy or Love from God towards them, whether it is not to be expected another Way, and upon another account? This is very necessary and profitable for them to consider, that they may not be looking that Way for Mercy and Favour from God, in which it is never to come, and so have their Eyes and Hearts diverted from that way according to which is to come: For this must needs put them back exceedingly. if their eyes be looking out one way, and the love of God hath chosen another Channel to run towards them in. This may make them refuse the very Mercy, Love, and Redemption, when it comes, suspecting it not to be it, because it comes not in the Way and after the Manner that they look for it. Now God hath expresly said, that when he shall be pacified them, and shall look again upon them with an eye of Favour, to do them good, it shall not be by their Covenant (which could never last, but was still broken on their parts) but by his own everlasting Covenant, which he would establish to them, Ezek. 16. 60. &c. It would therefore diligently be enquired by them, What Covenant it is which is called their Covenant, ver. 61. And what Covenant it is which is called God's Covenant, ver. 62. That they may withdraw their eyes and hopes from the one, from whence their Redemption, Recovery, and Mercy cannot come, towards the other from whence it is to come? To which Query, for their sakes, it is in my heart to return this Answer.

Answ. Their Covenant is that which they entred into with God, the Covenant that their hearts chose to unite with God by: and that was to this effect, That if God would shew them his Will, they would obey it, Go thou near (said they to Moses) and hear all that the Lord our God shall say, and speak thou unto us all that the Lord our God shall speak unto thee thee, and we will hear it and do it, Deut. 5. 27. Thus they thought, but the Lord knew otherwise, for O saith the Lord that there were such a Heart in them, &c. vers. 29. and Moses knew otherwise, he knew that they would corrupt themselves, and that evil would befal them in the latter days, Deut. 31. 29. But Gods Covenant was the free Covenant he made with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, the Covenant of his Grace, the Covenant of his free Love, whereby he was able to reach them in Egypt, upon the cry of the Seed in them (in the midst of their Idolatries, and to bring them out and do them good notwithstanding their stubbornness and stiff neckedness) even before the other Covenant was made: This Covenant of Love was Gods Covenant. This is the Covenant God remembred to them in the days of their Youth, while they were young and tender, and not yet grown up to be a people under the other Covenant; and this is the Covenant which lasts for ever, which is not founded upon their Obedience, but on Gods free Love to them for his own Names sake, and for their fathers sake with whom he freely made it.

Quest. What doth this Covenant contain?

Answ. Putting his fear in the Heart, writing his Laws in the mind, pouring of pure clear Water upon them to wash away the pollutions of their inward parts, circumcising the filth of the heart, healing the backsliding nature by creating of a right Spirit within, and keeping of the created Spirit right by the presence of that Spirit which created it, see Jer. 31. 31, 32. Ezek. 36. 25, &c. Hosea 14. 4. This is Gods Covenant, this is the new Covenant, which is to be made with the House of Israel and Judah when God redeems them, and they can never be redeemed but by this Covenant, but are to remain desolate, until the Spirit be poured out from on high upon them, Isai. 32. 15. until their Hearts be circumcised to love the Lord their God, until his fear be placed there, and they thereby caused to walk in his ways. As therefore they receive the Spirit are brought into the fear, have the Law written in their minds and become subject thereto, so will they taste of this Covenant, be brought into Redemption by it, and become a Glory inwardly, and outwardly also upon the Earth.

Quest. What is the way for them to have the fear of God put in their Hearts, to have their Hearts Circumcised, to receive the Spirit and his Laws into their minds, and so to come into this Covenant?

Answ. There is no other way but that to which Moses himself directed them, after God had made the other Covenant with them, and tryed them long by it, together with many Temptations, Signs and Wonders both before and after it; and seeing by all these they had not had an Heart to perceive, nor Eyes to see, nor Ears to hear, Moses at length directs them to another Covenant, the Word whereof would give them Eyes to see, and Ears to hear, and an Heart to understand. Which Covenant was a Covenant besides the former, Deut. 29. 1, And was indeed the Covenant concerning Life or Death eternal, chap. 30. 15. (the other bring but a Covenant of their outward state, made with them after their coming out of Egypt, upon their deliverance therefrom, and according to their choise to become a People to God according to it) This Word, Moses tells them, was near them (nearer than that which was spoken by God on the Mount, and afterwards written in Tables of Stone.) The voice of this Word and the Commandment thereof was nearer, that they need not seek any where abroad for it, but only listen at home to hear its speech, obey it in the faith and live for ever, Deut. 30. 11, &c. This is the way for them and all Men to come into this Covenant, and there is no other. There is a Light shining in the darkness of mans heart, which springs up in him, and casts forth its Rayes to discover and draw him out of the Darkness: Now as this Light is felt, loved, understood in Spirit, hearkned and cleaved to in the pure faith, which it begets; that which cleaves to it, is drawn out of the darkness by it, into the Covenant of the pure eternal light where God is, and whither all they are translated, who are drawn to or him in and by this Covenant, as they are kept, preserved, and continue in the Faith, Love, and Obedience of it. Now I would yet put these few things more to them.

First, Whether that People of the Jews, as they stood related to God in that Covenant (given by Moses at Mount Horeb) with the Covenant it self and all things appertaining thereto, were not a shadow of some inward and Spiritual thing afterwards to appear and be made manifest in its season. Whether they themselves were not a shadow of more inward and spiritual People, to be gathered to God by the inward and spiritual Covenant; and whether their outward Covenant was not a shadow or visible representation of that Covenant, and the Laws of it a shadow or representation of the inward Laws, which were to be written in the hearts of that spiritual People? Was not their Tabernacle, or Temple, a Shadow of the true Tabernacle, or Temple, seeing God dwelleth not in Temples made with hands, but in a poor, humble, contrite Spirit, and in the heart that trembles at his Word, Isa. 57. 15, and chap. 66. 1, 2. So was not their circumcision a shadow of the circumcision which is to pass upon the Hearts of Gods chosen? Were not their Sacrifices Types or Representations of the Sacrifices of praise and of a broken heart? Psal 51. 17. and Psal. 50. 14. Was not their Canaan, or Holy Land, a Type of the true holy spiritual Rest, which the Faith gives entrance into? Their City Jerusalem a Type of the Jehovah-shamma? Their Priests and Levites Types of the spiritual Priesthood, which was to offer the pure Offering and spiritual Sacrifices among the Gentiles? Malac. 1. 11. Mark that place, if it did not plainly fore-tell the casting off of the Jew, with the rejecting of their Offerings, Priests, and Levites, and God's raising up a Seed among the Gentiles, where he would have a more acceptable People and Worship, even a pure spiritual People, and a pure spiritual Offering.

Secondly, If they were Types, Representations, or Shaddows of somwhat Spiritual to come, then were they not to give place to that which is spiritual when it came, and so to be swallowed up in it? Is not the spiritual Glory the Glory? The inward Jew, the Jew indeed? The Circumcision of the Heart, the choice Circumcision? The offering up of Praise and of a broken Heart, the acceptable Sacrifice? The Land of Life and Righteousness, the true Land of Rest to the living by Faith? Is not the spiritual City, House, or Temple which God builds, the Jerusalem or Temple of the New Covenant? Is not this the choice House to God? And is not this Spiritual Glory to be expected in the days of the Messiah, and all the Types and Shadows of Moses, which pointed at him to end in him, when once he comes to set up his true, inward, invisible, substantial Glory among his inward and spiritual People? When the day of Messiah dawns, shall not Moses his shadows fly away? O that your Eyes were opened to behold the inward Glory of Life, the good things of the New Covenant, the great Treasure and Riches which are revealed and possessed in the Spirit; by the Spirits that are redeemed unto God, that ye might partake thereof, and then your Eye would not be so much on that which is outward, which if ye had even to the utmost of your desires, are not comparable to the inward.

Lastly, Search the Prophets, see if the Messiah is not first to come in a despicable way, as a man of sorrows, Isa. 53. 2, 3. Whose Visage in that appearance was to be more marred than any mans, Isa 52. 14. And consider whether he was not to be cut off, though not for himself, Dan 9. 26. And then to sit at the right Hand of God, until his Enemies be made his Footstool, Psal 110. 1. Before he come in that Glory wherein ye expect him. So that if he be not thus come already, then that coming of his is yet to be expected, and his Hands and Feet are yet to be pierced by you, and then afterward ye may look upon him whom you have pierced, Zach. 12. 10. And all the Families of Israel mourn bitterly apart for it, ver. 12.

When Moses gave the Law, the Vail was over his Face, your Fathers were not able to bear the Light wherein the Law was given, nor the Light wherein the Prophecies of the Prophets were given, and so they still erred from the Law, were offended at the Prophets while they were alive, and not understood their Words after their death. Now do not ye search into Moses and the Prophets, in the same Spirit of error as your Fathers did, being shut out from the Light of them, even as they were? If it be thus, if the Vail be over your hearts, if ye be ignorant of the true Light, of the true eternal Power wherein the Scriptures were given forth, ye must needs misunderstand them, misunderstand Moses, misunderstand the Prophets, misunderstand the things spoken concerning the Messiah, and so not be able to see unto the end of those things ministred by Moses, and of that ministration which was to pass away, nor into the beginning of the ministration of the Messiah, which was to succeed it. O turn within to the Word nigh in the Heart, that the true Jew may be begotten and formed in you, and his Light may arise and overspread you, that in that Light ye may see the Light of Moses, and the Light of the Prophets, and not gather false meanings from their Words, but understand them aright in the same holy Spirit, and injoy the Blessedness they spake of and directed to, which lies in the inward raising up of an inward Seed, and not in an outward Conformity of of the outward man, while the heart and mind remains unchanged and unrenewed, which can never be made new by any Ministry of the Letter without the Spirit, but alone by the Ministry of the Spirit, whether with or without the Letter, as he pleaseth.

I. P

Some few Queries and Considerations proposed to the CAVALIERS, Being of weighty importance to them.

Query I.

WHether all those Sufferings, which have befallen that Party for these many years, were just as relating to God or no? that is, whether they so sinned against him, forgetting his Name and Fear, dealing hardly with such as truly desired to fear him, (and who in his true fear did differ from their way of Worship) exalting man in an hard and arbitrary Government, both over the Consciences of the upright-hearted towards God, and over the Rights, Liberties, and Persons of the Nation, which, with many other things, as the Vanity and Excess of the Court, the looseness and prophaneness of the Gentry, swearing, drinking of Healths, and following the vain Pomps and Vanities of the World (which by their very Baptism they stand ingaged to deny) might fill up their Ephah, sway down their Ballance, and sink their Prosperity: I say, whether these and such like things, might not justly provoke the Lord to turn his hand upon them, to overturn their Church-Government, smite the King who was their strength, and bring them under the feet of those, whom before they had trampled upon and oppressed? Now though they may cry out against men, and in the day of their power fly out upon the Rod wherewith the Lord chastised them, yet this is more proper and safe, for them now, to consider what hand the Lord had in all these things, and whether he was just therein or no.

Que. 2. Whether in these their sufferings they have humbled themselves before the Lord, submitting to his hand, mourning over their sins and transgressions against him, and have more desired his gracious Mercy and Power, to pardon and deliver them from their sins, then to be freed of their sufferings; so that if ever it should please please him to take his hand from off them, and bring them again into place and power, they might not so provoke him any more, either against themselves or their King, but in true humility and in his fear (and in love to his Name, Truths, and People, and the People of this Nation) might walk Righteously, Meekly, and Faithfully in the exercising of authority for the good and peace of all, and not for the hurt of any?

Que. 3. Whether the cause (which they now may easily trample upon and despise) in those people who are engaged against them, was not just on their behalf also in its first rise, and at the beginning of the controversie; and whether their Spirits might not be stirred up by God thereunto? Wherein, if they had continued faithful, going on singly in the work of the Lord, and not seeking themselves, nor the hurt of any, but the just rights, liberties and good of all according to their engagements, this overturn might never have befallen them. But they letting God's Cause fall day after day, time after time, one opportunity after another, no marvel though the Lord hath suffered them to fall also: For it was not the intent of the Lord to set up their persons (as was often testified to them while they stood) but to set up Truth and Righteousness in these Nations, and to give his people full liberty of fearing and obeying him without fear of men. This the Lord began to effect by them, wherein their service was very precious and acceptable to him, which if they had gone on faithfully in, they had never seen this day.

Que. 4. Whether they consider the hand of the Lord in turning things thus about, or whether their eye be on inſtruments: on ſuch as were againſt them on the one hand, and on ſuch as were for them on the other hand? For is it not very wonderful to conſider, how many Plots and Contrivances they have had one after another to bring this about (ſome whereof were very likely to take, and hard to be diſappointed) and yet all have ſtill failed: and now at length unlooked for, it hath as it were dropped into their mouths in ſuch a way, and after ſuch a manner, and in ſo full a meaſure, as they could hardly have expected. O that they could eye the Lord herein, and fear before him, earneſtly deſiring and waiting for his grace to guide them, that at length one Generation on whom he ſhews mercy, might ſhew themſelves worthy of his Mercy, and not provoke him againſt them by abuſing it, and ſo on a ſudden forfeit and hazard the loſs again, of what they have been ſo long deſiring and aiming at!

Quer. V. Whether they conſider how eaſie it is for the Lord to turn things about again, in as unexpected a way to them, as this was to thoſe who are now overturn'd. Indeed they are ſetled as to the eye of man; what can withſtand them? what can riſe up againſt them? but alas what is the ſtrength of a Nation to the Lord? The whole Nation are men, and not God; and their whole ſtrength fleſh and not ſpirit; and if the Lord riſe up againſt them, what are they before him? O that they could fear the Lord for his goodneſs, and that thoſe that are fallen under them might fear him for his ſeverity, and that we might all give over upbraiding and fighting againſt one another, and every man fight againſt the Luſts of his own heart; againſt pride, paſſion, envy, covetouſneſs, hard heartedneſs, oppreſſion of mens conſciences, doing to others what we would not receive from others, &c. for the hand of God is ſwift againſt the unrighteous Spirit, and he overturns apace. And if this preſent ſettlement do not pleaſe him, but if this generation after all their afflictions prove unworthy of this mercy, not letting fall what the hand of the Lord hath gone forth againſt, but thinking again to ſettle upon former foundations what God hath all this while been ſhaking, the Lord will laugh at their Counſels and at all their Strength, and overturn them in a moment. This hath been it hath undone the foregoing Powers, they have been eyeing men, and ſtrengthning themſelves againſt men, and if they could but be ſtrong againſt the viſible powers, they thought they were ſafe and ſecure enough, and ſo have overlooked the inviſible hand, which was the ſtrength that went forth againſt them. Therefore O Cavaliers conſider in this your day, how ſtrong are ye againſt the inviſible Arm of the Lord? If ye are not able to deal therewith, fear before it, and make peace with it, leaſt it prove that the Lord hath raiſed you up to make his power known upon you, and to get himſelf a name by your overthrow. This is a warning of love to you, even from that which ſaw this your day before it came.

Quer. VI. Whether an evil Spirit, a looſe Spirit, a Spirit which is out of the fear of God (and againſt them that fear God) hath not riſen up in the Nation, and been too much encouraged ſince your coming into power? The end of Government is to bring men into, and encourage and preſerve them in the fear of God, which is the ſpring of all goodneſs, righteouſneſs and equity (not to bring men into a formal way of Worſhip, that the Lord always loathed; but to incourage in the true fear, which teacheth that Worſhip of him in Heart and Spirit which his Soul ever loved.) Now conſider ſeriouſly is not iniquity broke looſe? is not the Chain as it were taking off from the Wicked, and preparing to be laid on the Righteous? What Vanity, what Exceſs, abuſe of the Creatures, Swearing, Drinking, Scoffing, &c: is already broke forth? yea, and how are thoſe that in truth of heart fear the Lord, and apply themſelves to meet in his fear to Worſhip him, already derided, diſturbed, and threatned as if this ſhould not be lawful for them much longer? Alas, alas; If ye do not take heed, your ruine will be writ, on the very entrance into your proſperity! O Nation of England, why do ye thus provoke the Lord againſt your ſelves, againſt your King, againſt your Parliament, againſt that part of the Nation who have been ſo long ſufferers? will ye throw away the Lords mercy as ſoon as it is beſtowed on you? will ye haſten to ſtir up his anger and jealouſie againſt you? O how ſhort will your day be, if ye proceed after this manner! O remember God, and be troubled and deeply humbled for theſe things; and rejoyce with trembling, and do not ſhew vain expreſſions of joy out of his fear, but let your joy be in his fear, and then we alſo ſhall rejoyce with you, and hope that the Wrath of the Lord may be diverted from this Nation, which theſe things help to kindle and encreaſe.

Quer.

Quer. VII. Have ye conſidered, or do ye yet ſeriouſly apply your ſelves duly to conſider, what the Lords controverſie with this Nation and the powers thereof all this while hath been, and how it may be ended, that there may be no more ſtriving againſt him, neither by the powers nor people of the Nation? for what are men, that they ſhould contend with God? how can they proſper therein? had they never ſo great advantage of gaining or carrying a Cauſe againſt him, yet how certainly would they fall before him! Now look back honeſtly, ſingly, faithfully, in the ſimplicity of your hearts, ſearch and conſider, what God hath contended with the Powers of the Nation, for theſe many years: and if the Lord pleaſe (to ſuch as thus ſearch after it) to diſcover what it hath been for, let the Lord have his pleaſure; for aſſuredly he will not fail of recovering and advancing his cauſe, how much fallen ſoever it ſeemeth to men, and how impoſſible ſoever it ſeem to be recovered. Let me in the uprightneſs of my heart propoſe ſome few things to you.

Firſt, is not this a likely thing, that the Lord would have the Reformation from Popery perfected? If the Proteſtants did well to leave Popery, then ſurely the more they leave it and come out of it, cannot but be acceptable to God: and the ſame Spirit which drew out of Popery, will be drawing out of all the relicks of it, and ſtill bringing into a purer and more inward and ſpiritual Worſhip? Now conſider ſeriouſly of this matter, will ye give God leave to draw his people out of whatever is left of Popery in this Nation? Will ye forbear forcing of them to ſuch things as they verily believe in their hearts to be a denyal of Chriſt their Lord and Maſter? If ye ſuppoſe ſuch, or ſuch a Miniſtry and way of Worſhip to be good, can ye not enjoy it your ſelves without forcing others (who cannot but from their hearts diſown it in the ſight of God) to ſubmit to it, and to help to maintain it? how can they do this thing, and ſin againſt the Lord? O do not ſtrive, like Jeroboam the Son of Nebat, to make Gods Iſrael to ſin! The Lord God conſiders the Sufferings of his People for his Names-ſake. O England, take heed of this thing, and do not hinder any in reforming either their Lives or their Worſhips, but at length amend this thing, which hath been ſo long amiſs in the Government of this Nation. The Government of this Nation hath been gentle to the looſe Spirit, to the Prophane Spirit; but hard to the ſtrict Spirit, even to that which fears to offend the Lord, let it now at length, after thus much deſolation and diſtreſs, become gentle to that which fears the Lord, and more ſevere to that which is looſe and Prophane. Surely he that governs under God, it becomes him to cheriſh that which is tender to God. And let the Laws in this kind be conſidered of, and ſet ſtrait for the encouragement of the good, and for the curbing of the unrighteous, looſe and prophane Spirit, that it may no longer thus ſwim on top, and abound in the Nation, but be brought under.

2. Is not this alſo likely and a fitting thing, that the Lord God ſhould have the leading and guidance of thoſe whom he begets by his ſpirit, and who are born thereof? Shall not the everlaſting Father have the ordering and diſpoſe of his own Children, to whom he gives his ſpirit to that very end, that they may be led by it, Rom. 8, 14. The Wind bloweth where it liſteth, and thou hearest the ſound thereof, but canſt not tell whence it cometh, and whither it goeth: ſo is every one that is born of the ſpirit, John 3, 8. Now he that is begotten and brought forth by a free breath of the ſpirit, ſhall not the ſame Spirit guide and lead him out of the World to the Father, out of the love of it, out of the cuſtoms, faſhions, worſhips, and whole courſe of it? They are not of the World ſaith Chriſt, even as I am not of the World, John 17. 16. They walk not as men, or according to men, 1 Cor. 3. 3. Indeed he that is Chriſts is Crucified with him, the mans part is ſlain, and he can walk no more as a man, but as one redeemed out of the earthly nature and ſpirit; therefore the World hates him, John 17. 14. and is ready to cruſh and oppreſs him, Gal. 4 29. but this is not righteous before God, that his Children and People ſhould be hated, hunted and perſecuted, becauſe of their likeneſs to God by partaking of his Image, and becauſe of their obedience to his Spirit, which draweth them out of all the unrighteouſneſs of the World, yea and out of its righteouſneſs too, that they may be found in the righteouſneſs, faith, and obedience of Cods Spirit in every thing.

3. Is it not fitting that the Lord ſhould have and enjoy the Worſhip of ſuch, as he teaches and ſeeks to Worſhip him in Spirit and in Truth? The Worſhip in Spirit and in Truth is the Fathers Worſhip, that is the Worſhip which he hath appointed and choſen, and which he teacheth his Children, and ſuch Worſhippers the Father ſeeks to Worſhip him, John 4. 23. men ſeek ſuch Worſhippers as will own their form and way of Worſhip; but God ſeeks ſuch as are born of his ſpirit, and are willing to learn of him to Worſhip him in Spirit and in Truth. God is a Spirit, and ſuch as Worſhip him, muſt Worſhp in his Spirit, John 4. 24. and ſuch as live to him, muſt live in his Spirit, and ſuch as walk with him muſt walk in his ſpirit, Gal. 5: 25. this is the true Goſpel Religion, firſt to wait for the promiſe of the Spirit, and then to Worſhip and Walk with God in the Spirit. Now will ye not ſuffer God to enjoy the Worſhip of his own people, into whoſe ſpirits he breaths life, and whom he forms and begets into his own likeneſs? Conſider how provoking this muſt needs be to God, of what dangerous conſequence this hath been to the foregoing Powers, and how dangerous it may prove to you.

4. Conſider whether it be in your hearts to bring us back to Egypt, and whether ye be able indeed ſo to do. It was an heavy yoak which we lay under by the former Government, and our ſpirits cryed and groaned to the Lord, and he did deliver us, and hath brought us from under it. Now a power is riſen up which hath not felt nor known the Burthen of our ſpirits, nor been acquainted with our ſecret breathings and mournings to the Lord; nor ſeen his mighty hand in what he hath done for us, and ſo ye may eaſily be tempted to attempt either to bring us back into our old Bondage, or to fall upon us and cruſh us: But if this be your aim and intent, it will ſoon prove your ruin: for the Lord who hath given you a day (and in whoſe hand your breath is, and before whom all your power is nothing) if he ſee you thus make uſe of it can ſoon put an end to it. What is all your viſible ſtrength before the inviſible arm and power? Therefore be not high minded becauſe ye are outwardly ſo ſtrong and invincible, but fear before him who is ſtronger, whoſe eyes run to and fro through the earth to behold the carriage of things, that he may be ready to ſtretch forth his arm for the ſaving of his people, when there is none left to help them.

5. Conſider ſeriouſly and pray earneſtly, that ye may know what God hath put this opportunity into your hands for; and do not ſeek the regaining of the earthly glory and greatneſs (which we know to be falling, that the Lord alone may be exalted, as the Scripture alſo hath teſtified, Iſa. 2: 17.) but be ſober and moderate as to that, and ſeek the glory of the immortal God, who is to riſe in the Kingdom of the earth over all (Rev. 11. 15.) and ſeek righteouſneſs, meekneſs, the peace, good and welfare of all, neither doing nor ſuffering to be done to any ſort of perſons, what ye would not be willing to have done to you by them, if ye were in their caſe, ſtate and condition; and in any thing wherein ye have been injured in the time of your ſufferings and ſore viſitation by Gods hand, though ye may now blame, and ſeek to right your ſelves on the Inſtruments which God pleaſed to make uſe of to afflict you, yet it will be ſafer and better for you, if ye can forgive.

Theſe things belong to your peace, and by this means the Lords favour may turn towards you, who cannot but diſlike your beginnings; but if in a fleſhly confidence becauſe of your outward ſtrength, ye ſhall ſet your ſelves againſt the Work of the Lord, his Cauſe and People, we can ſay to you in the dread of our God, Who art thou O great Mountain? We do not doubt but before the Fanner of Babel, to ſee thee made a Plain, and are prepared in our Spirits to ſtand ſtill to ſee the Salvation of our God, whoſe arm is not ſhortned that it cannot ſave, even when the enemies ſtrength, reſolution and advantage is greateſt.

This from one who hath mourned for the oppreſſed, and becauſe of the Oppreſſions which have long abounded, praying to and waiting on the Lord for the good and proſperity of the Nation in general, and for the bringing forth of that righteouſneſs, fear of the Lord and true Peace, which alone can make it happy.

Iſaac Penington, the Younger.

Some

Some QUERIES concerning the WORK of GOD in the WORLD, which is to be expected in the latter Ages thereof; With a few plain Words to thee Nation of England, tending towards ſtopping the future breakings forth of Gods Wrath, both upon the People and Powers thereof; With an Advertiſement relating to the preſent State of Things.

Query 1.

WHether the Kingdoms of the Earth ſhall not one day become the Kingdoms of the Lord, and of his Chriſt, wherein the Lord God Omnipotent ſhall Reign, and Mans glory and greatneſs fall, that God alone may be exalted in that day? Rev. 11. 15, 17. Iſa. 2. 11, 12, 17, 22.

Que. 2. When ſhall this be? Whether this is not to be expected upon the recovery out of the Antichriſtian Apoſtacy? Whether the Man-child is not then to be expected to be ſo born and brought forth as to rule all Nations with a Rod of Iron? Rev. 19. 6. and chap 12. 5.

Que. 3. When the Son of Man comes to take the Government to himſelf, to give forth the Law out of Zion, and the Word of the Lord from Jeruſalem (Iſa. 2. 3.) whether he ſhall find Faith on the earth? Whether he ſhall find the Kings and Powers of the Earth ready to receive him, and the Profeſſors willing to ſubmit themſelves unto him? Or whether they ſhall generally combine againſt him, and he be fain to overcome them, before he can Reign over them? Luke 18. 8. Revlations 17. 12, 13, 14. Pſalm 2. 2, 3.

Que. 4. Why theſe things may not be expected in this our day, and be already begun in this our Nation, ſeeing ſo many ſtrange things have happened among us, as have not in many foregoing Ages, God having ſo ſtrangely raiſed up a Generation to do ſervice for him, and ſo ſtrangely again brought them down, when they had ſo long, and ſo often ſhewed themſelves unworthy of, and unfit for ſo great a ſervice, by ſtill ſeeking themſelves and forgetting the Lord that raiſed them?

Que. 5. How the Kingdoms of the Earth are to become the Kingdoms of the Lord and of his Chriſt? Whether it be not by taking his yoak upon them, by ſubmitting to his Laws, his Cords, and Bands? by giving up whatſoever is unjuſt, unrighteous, harſh, and oppreſſive, and coming under the Bands of Righteouſneſs, Meekneſs, and Equity? Pſal. 2. 10, 11. Mat. 11. 29.

Que. 6. Whether the Lord be ariſen to ſhake terribly or no (as was long ago propheſied he ſhould? Iſa. 2. 19.) For the Lord will once more ſhake both Heaven and Earth; Heb. 12. 26, There hath been a ſore ſhaking in this Nation, the Foundations of Government, yea the very Foundations of Religion have been ſhaken, that that which cannot ſtand might be removed out of the way, and give place to that which cannot be ſhaken, verſ. 27. Conſider therefore whether theſe be the beginnings of the great and terrible day of the Lord God Almighty, or only ſome ſuch ordinary ſhakings as uſe to happen according to the courſe of Kingdoms and States, which are ſubject to changes alterations and diſſettlements?

Que. 7. When God beginneth to ſhake the the Heaven and Earth in Nations (accor- to that great ſhaking which is to be after the Antichriſtian Apoſtacy, Rev. 6. and chap. 6.) Whether there ever can be any firm ſettlement again upon the old Foundations? There may appear ſome hopes and probability of a Settlement again, which man may be tempted to faſten upon; but this will but provoke God to ſhake more effectually: for when God once ariſeth to ſhake, he will not give over till he hath made that fall, which he began to ſhake, Rev. 11. 13. O England take heed.

Que. 8. How the Kings, Powers, and Nations of the Earth may ſecure their ſtanding in that day, whether there be any way for them ſo to do, and what is that way? Whether there be any other way but kiſſing the Son, ſubmitting to his bands, being willing to be bound with the Chains of Righteouſneſs, Love, and Meekneſs, from all unrighteouſneſs and oppreſſion, both relating to their fellow Creatures and to his People? Pſal. 2. 12. and 149. 8.

Com

Come O Nation of England, be bound: O Powers of this Nation, take the Lords yoak upon you, ſeek Righteouſneſs, ſeek Meekneſs, ſeek the good of all, not in Words and Pretences, but in truth and uprightneſs. Seek out that which is of God in every one of your hearts, and let that Govern for God. Do not ſmite any for obedience to the living God, but come ye alſo under his yoak, that what is not of God in your ſelves, but an enemy to your Souls, may be yoaked down: and let all Laws be formed, directed, and managed, to reach the unrighteous, that the Rod of the wicked may not always lie upon the Lot of the Righteous (Pſal. 125. 3.) nor oppreſſion and Self-will ſit in the Seat of Judgment, and paſs (becauſe of its power and authority) for righteouſneſs, Eccleſ. 3. 16 and 4. 1. O ye powers of England, ſave your ſelves and this Nation from the terrible ſtroak of God, which is very near. And let not this following advice be diſdained by you, but conſider ſeriouſly of it.

Take heed how you call any to account for what they have done againſt you. There was an extraordinary hand of God in theſe things: and in falling foul upon Inſtruments, ye may claſh againſt him before ye are aware. For their iniquity the Lord hath laid them aſide, and raiſed you up again, giving you another day of tryal: let that ſuffice, and look now to your own ſtanding, that ye alſo do not fall by following their example of iniquity and unrighteouſneſs. But if you will call them to account for any thing, let it be for being unfaithful to God and the People of this Nation, to whom they made large promiſes, but performed little. And that which God required of them (and the Nation had reaſon to expect from them) do ye now perform. Give all men the Liberty of their Conſciences towards God, let them follow him out of the Faſhions, Cuſtoms, and Worſhips of the World without interruption: And let there alſo be narrow ſearch after what is unjuſt, unrighteous, and oppreſſive in any kind; and as faſt as it is diſcovered let it be removed, that the Nation may grow out of vanity, out of unrighteouſneſs, into ſolidity and righteouſneſs, and that the fear of offending man may not affright any from from fearing, obeying, and worſhipping of God in Spirit and Truth, as he requireth, and then God will bleſs ths Nation and the Powers of it. For the Lord God taketh not pleaſure in overturning of Nations, or breaking in pieces the Powers thereof: Yet if they will by no means hearken, but harden their hearts and ſtand in the way of his Counſel and Deſign, he cannot ſpare them, Iſa. 27. 4. Therefore ſtand not in Battel againſt him, but bow before him, O ye great ones of the Earth, become low and little, that his wrath may paſs by you, let go your own ſtrength and greatneſs, and take hold of his ſtrength, that ye may make Peace with him, ver. 5. and do not go about to limit the Spirit of God in his People, that will moſt certainly ruine you. The Lord God hath begun to beſtow upon his Spirit, upon his Sons and Daughters, as in days of old, even as before the great Apoſtacy and Erring from it, and he requireth their obedience to it, and who may ſafely forbid or puniſh them therefore. Much lies upon this Land in this reſpect, O do not add more, leſt ye ſink the Nation and your ſelves. Now a little to help the Nation and Powers thereof the better to digeſt the Work of God that they may not run on headily againſt him to their own ruine and deſtruction, let theſe two things following be conſidered.

1. Whether the People of God in the days of the Apoſtles were not a ſeparated People, a People gathered out of Nations, Kindreds, Tongues and Languages, (gathered out of the Jewiſh worſhip, gathered out of the Heatheniſh worſhip) and ſeparated to God.

2. Whether after the Antichriſtian Apoſtacy, there are not a People to be gathered again, and ſeparated again, from all Antichriſtian ways of Worſhip, even after the manner as they were before the Apoſtacy from the Heatheniſh and Jewiſh Worſhip? And ſo the ſame Goſpel which gathered at firſt, is after the Apoſtacy to be Preached to gather men again, Rev. 14. 6, 7.

Conſider well of theſe things, that ye may not ſet your ſelves againſt the Lord to croſs him in his Work in this Nation. Ye cannot hinder him from gathering his People now out of this Apoſtatized State, no more than the Jews or Heathens could hinder him from gathering his Elect then out of their corrupt ſtates. The Reformation out of Popery was very weak and imperfect, the Lord waited long for the perfecting of it; but inſtead thereof, there was rather a running backwards towards it again. The Lord hath now at length begun the Work himſelf, letting forth his Spirit upon his People, and gathering many into it, and is preparing the Stones of his Temple for his Building, and he will will aſſuredly build up his Church again, ye cannot poſſibly ſtop him herein, ye may break your ſelves by attempting to remove this burthenſome ſtone out of your way (for indeed it doth lie ſomewhat offenſively in the way of all Settlements and Governments acccording to the fleſhly wiſdom) but it will fall upon and break all that burthen themſelves with it, though not by outward Might or Power, yet by that Spirit of Life and Righteouſneſs which is in it, which the Lord is with to proſper. Conſider theſe things in Meekneſs, Righteouſneſs, and in the fear of the Lord, even in that Spirit which is fit to act for God and not againſt him.

An Advertiſement to the Powers and People of this Nation.

BEcauſe of my dear love to my Native Country, and becauſe of the dregs of that Cup which the Lord hath already cauſed it to drink of, which cannot be ſpared unleſs the Lords Will be effected without it, which dregs are ſo bitter, terrible and dreadful, as will make the ſtouteſt hearts to faint, and the confidenteſt countenance wax pale: I ſay for this cauſe, in love am I conſtrained to add theſe few lines more, that if it be poſſible this Nation may apply it ſelf, in the fear and dread of the Eternal Majeſty and Power, to make its peace with him againſt whom it hath long Warred (not only by much outward Wickedneſs, Looſeneſs, Vanity, and Prophaneneſs, but more eſpecially by ſetting up an invented Form of Godlineſs, and perſecuting the Power) and to whom it is not yet reconciled in this matter, nor found ſo much as willing to be reconciled.

The Lord God of Heaven and Earth, of Glory, of Majeſty of everlaſting Power, Victory, and Dominion over all, who made both Heaven and Earth, and hath the command of all things therein, he diſpoſeth of Nations, of Governments, of Earthly Powers according to his pleaſure, and who may ſay unto him what doſt thou? Who may implead him for making a Rich Nation poor, a Strong Nation weak, or for bringing down the High and Mighty, the Strong, Stout, Honourable and Noble in a Nation, and exalting the poor, the mean, the perſecuted? And if he turn his hand again, and lay them flat whom he had lifted up, and exalt the other even unlookt for, who can withſtand him, or who may contradict him?

Now what is in the Lords heart (who is thus mighty and abſolute) he will certainly bring to paſs, how unlikely, how contrary, how impoſſible ſoever it ſeem to the Eye of Man. If he will exalt his deſpiſed truth (which alwayes was ſo to the Eye of the great and wiſe ones of this world) or give his People Liberty to fear, worſhip, and obey him; if he will have Truth and Righteouſneſs have the Dominion in mens Heats, and in the Nations, and not the wills and luſts of men, how great and powerful ſoever: I ſay, if this be his intent, though generation ſhould riſe up after generation to oppoſe him herein, yet will he be too hard for them all, and they will all fall before him, and his Truth, his People, his holy Eternal Counſel will he raiſe up, and cauſe to Triumph over them all.

It is mans way to ſettle himſelf by outward ſtrength againſt outward ſtrength, and then he thinks he is ſafe, not Eyeing the inviſible hand which turns the Wheels, and delights to overturn that which is outwardly ſtrong (and ſeemeth unremovable) when it forgetteth him, and oppoſeth it ſelf againſt him. The Lord God loves to take his Enemies at the ſtrongeſt, when they are moſt Wiſe, moſt Mighty, euen when nothing ſeems able to deal with them but himſelf. This was it overthrew the foregoing Powers one after another, they were Courting worldly intereſt, and ſtrengthening themſelues that way, but overlooking God who riſed them, and the work which he had raiſed them to accompliſh. This turned the hand againſt them which had been for them, and how then could they maintain their ſtanding.

O that the preſent Generation could ſee the tickliſhneſs of their ſtanding, and conſider that this is their day of Tryal, and that the Lord's Eye is upon them to obſerve their wayes, to ſee whether they will now mind Righteouſneſs and the Liberty of his People better than formerly they did, and that his truth may in its life and power and not in ſuch a form or way of worſhip as they may think good to preſcribe) have its ſcope in the Nation. The Lords Eye and Heart is upon his truth (and upon his People:) and as Nations or Powers deal with that, ſo will he deal with them. Oh therefore be not deceived, for though the Lord hath often times long ſuffered his People to lie under Reproach and Perſecution, (as he did Iſrael in Ægypt for diuers Ages) yet at length he hath ſtill heard their Groans, and hath ariſen to deliver them: And though Pharaoh afterwards with all its ſtrength went after them, and made no queſtion but to bring them back again under his ſubjection (and there was nothing in appearance able to deliver them from him) yet he could not, but overthrew himſelf and his ſtrength utterly. Ye know not what ſtrong cries and tears were put up to the Lord, before theſe late Changes, that Righteouſneſs might be eſtabliſhed in the Nation, and that his People might have liberty to Worſhip him in his Fear, and according to the leadings of his Spirit, without being yoaked under any Form of Worſhip, which their hearts could not own to be of God. And when the Long Parliament was unexpectedly raiſed up, that was looked upon by many to have been the Means God would have uſed towards the effecting of this: and we cannot yet deny, but that God did make uſe of them in ſome things for Good, for which his name was Honoured. But though that Inſtrument did warp becoming unfaithful to the Lord, diverting from his Work and Service, towards the ſeeking and eſtabliſhing of themſelves and their own Intereſts, and ſo are at length themſelves juſtly therefore fallen: yet the Work of the Lord is not fallen, as relating to himſelf, though, becauſe of the unfaithfulneſs and ſelf-ſeeking of the Inſtruments which he began to uſe; at preſent it lieth under much reproach (and that juſtly as relating to them) yet for all this the Lord himſelf can bring it about again, and carry it on with better advantage to his Name, Truth, and People than if it had gone on in their hand: And the more men ſet themſelves to oppoſe it, the more glory will God get to himſelf in effecting it.

Let not therefore my true love to the Nation, and to the preſent Powers thereof, be deſpiſed by them: but let them fear before the Mighty God of Heaven and Earth, and in their hearts bow to him that they may be humbled, and made fit Inſtruments in His hand for his ſervice, and not be found Enemies againſt Him. If they will be fit Inſtruments for God to Work by, they muſt be Meek, Lowly, Poor in Spirit, waiting in God's Fear for his Counſel, and not hearken to the fleſhly Wiſdom of Man, which is his utter Enemy, and will perſwade, adviſe, and inſtruct them to ſettle the Nation and Church (as they call it) in a way contrary to him, And remember this Word, Be ſure you ſmite none for Obedience to God. Limit not His holy Spirit in His People, but limit the unclean and evil Spirit in thoſe who manifeſt themſelves not too be his People. This is the true intent of Government. How can he which Governs aright under God, hurt that which is of God and for God? Or how can he ſpare that which his Sword is given him to cut down? O how happy were it for the Nation if they would let Truth have its ſcope, and let Righteouſneſs overcome them, and not contend for Shaddows againſt the Subſtance, but let the Subſtance overcome all thoſe Shaddows which have held it in Bondage, and upheld its Enemy.

The great Enemy of God, all this night of the Apoſtacy, hath been Antichriſt: who hath not been an open Enemy only, but hath appeared as if he had been for Chriſt, commanding the worſhipping and honouring of Chriſt, yea and with a great Zeal taking upon him to cauſe People to Worſhip, according to what he determined to be right: and thus he getteth into the Temple, erecting an Uſurping Authority over the Conſcience, ſetting up, and compelling to an invented Worſhip.

Againſt this kind of Worſhip God hath ſtill been raiſing Witneſſes (but he having the Powers of the Earth on his ſide, as was Prophecyed he ſhould, Revel. 17. 13.) hath often prevailed over them, Revelations 13. 7. And ſo the Truth hath been ſuppreſſed, and falſe Worſhips ſet up by the Powers of the Earth, according to that Proportion they have drunk of the Golden Cup of Fornication which doth not only deceive in one way of manifeſt and groſs falſe Worſhip, but hath many mixtures and myſteries of deceit in it, Revel. 17. 2. &c.

Now God hath a time to call for an account of the Sufferings and Bloud of his Saints, Saints, Revel. 6. 10, 11. He hath a time to Judge the great Whore, Revel. 17. 1. And when the time of God's Judgment comes upon the Earth, God begins with His own house first, and so with that which hath taken upon it to separate from Babylon, to see what he can find of Babylon therein; and he will judge that before he fall upon the great body of the Mystery of Iniquity, 1 Pet. 4. 17. Heb. 10. 30.

Now therefore it behoves this Nation to consider what of Babylon may be found in it, and to part with it, that it may escape the Plagues of Babylon, Revel. 18. 4. which are very bitter, as verse 7, 8, &c. These are the two main things whereof Babylon is guilty.

1. An invented Form of Worship, a Likeness of the true Worship, but not the true Worship it self.

2. A persecuting and endeavouring to Suppress the Power of the Truth; even of the Purity of the Godly Religion and Worship by means of this Form, because for conscience sake men who are taught otherwise by the Spirit of God, cannot submit and subject thereto.

This God is coming down to plead with in that great City Babylon, and this God will first plead within thee, O England. Consider what of this is yet remaining in thee (or what of this thy heart hankers after) and part with it as thou lovest thy peace. The Lord is the witness of the integrity and fidelity of my heart to thee in these Lines. It will be hard for thee to escape the Lords hand, yet it is not impossible: If thou bow before the Mighty God, and lie abased in Spirit at his feet, he can open that eye in thee which can let thee see thy danger, and also the way how to escape it.

THE CONSIDERATION of a POSITION Concerning the Book of Common-Prayer,

AS ALSO

Of some Particulars held forth for Truths, by one Edmund Elis stiled a Minister of the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

With a Warning of Tender Bowels to the Rulers, Teachers, and People of this Nation, concerning their Church and Ministry.

Likewise a few Words concerning the Kingdom, Laws, and Government of Christ in the Heart and Conscience; Its in-offensiveness to all just Laws and Governments of the Kingdoms of Men.

By ISAAC PENINGTON the Younger.

Behold, I come as a Thief. Blessed is he that watcheth and keepeth his Garments, lest he walk naked, and they see his shame, Rev. 16. 15.

The PREFACE.

CHRIST, the Eternal Son of God, the substance of all the Types and Shadows of the Law, was made a Priest to God, Not after the Law of a Carnal Commandment, but after the Power of an endless Life. He came in the Power of the Father, he received the Power, he Ministred the Power and in the Power. Thus he gathered together living Stones,

Built them into a living Temple for the Father of Life to dwell in, that they might be filled with the Power, dwell in the Power, and be to the glory of the Power. The Church of Iſrael, the Church of the Old Teſtament, the Church of Moſes, was gathered by the Letter, was to be ordered by the Letter, was to keep and obſerve the Law of the Letter: was to have Prieſts and Sacrifices according to the Letter: But the New-Teſtament-Church was to be of true Jews, of Jews gathered in the Power, Circumciſed by the Power, Renewed in the Power, &c. So that he is not a Jew any longer, who is one outward in that Circumciſion, which is outward in the Fleſh; But he is a Jew, which is one inwardly, and Circumciſion is that of the heart in the Spirit, and not in the Letter. We are the Circumciſion, ſaith the Apoſtle, which Worſhip God in the Spirit, and have no confidence in the Fleſh. The New-Teſtament-ſtate is a ſtate of Subſtance, even of that Spiritual Subſtance, which the Law held out in Shaddows. The Jew is inward, the Circumciſion inward, the Sacrifices inward, the Church inward, the Miniſtry inward, the Worſhip inward: All is in Spirit, in Life, in Power, in Vertue; The whole State is anſwerable to the High-Prieſt of our Profeſſion, even after the power of the endleſs Life. *By the Eternal Spirit was he made a Miniſter, by it he Preached (*the Spirit of the Lord is upon me, becauſe he hath anointed me to Preach the Goſpel, &c. Luke 4. 18.) through it he offered up himſelf a Sacrifice without ſpot to God. Heb. 9. 14. And in the ſame Power runs the Vein of the whole Diſpenſation of the Goſpel, for it is a Miniſtration of the Spirit, 2 Corinthians 3. 8. Take away the Life, take away the Spirit; Ye take away the Stones of this Building, ye take away the Church, ye take away the Miniſtry, ye take away all.

Now about this inward Building there was an outward Court, which had its Being, State and Honour from the preſence of the inward Life. The Vertue of the inward Building did caſt a reflection, and bring forth an outward ſtate (as it cannot but do, where-ever it appears in its Riches and Glory.) This State ſtood firm in the days of the Apoſtles, till Gods meaſuring and removing of his Temple, Altar, and Worſhippers, and his giving up of the outward Court (it having loſt the Life and Vertue, which flowed into it from the Temple, while the Temple remained within it) to the Gentiles, who under the Goſpel are ſuch as are Uncircumciſed in Spirit, and can Worſhip in the outward Court without the Spirit. The Enemy indeed fought hard againſt the Life and Power, but he could not there prevail, the Gates of Hell could not prevail againſt the true Church, which brought forth the Man-child, nor againſt the Man-child whom ſhe brought forth, but the Man-child was caught up to God, and the Woman fled into the Wilderneſs. Then that Church, State, and Worſhip, which depended upon their preſence, was diſſolved: For how could it be otherwiſe, when both the Man-child, which was the Head of the Church (from whence the Vertue, Life, and Influence did flow into the whole Body) and the Woman (or Church) her ſelf alſo were both gone out of ſight? So that the Miniſtry of Eternal life, and the Temple, wherein the life was Miniſtred, being both removed, they are neither of them henceforward to be found in that place, where they were beheld before (and where moſt eyes would be ready to look for them again) but there where the Spirit had hid them.

Now mark diligently, what kind of eſteem the true Church hath had in the World, ever ſince her diſrobing her ſelf of her outward Garments and flight into the Wilderneſs, and how her true true Seed have been handled. The Dragon immediately caſts a Flood after her; her beautiful Raiment being put off, and she clothed in the Habit of a Widow, the eye of the World could no longer see and acknowledge her to be the Church, but disdain, reproach, revile her. This is her Lot all the days of Antichrist, she is misrepresented by the Dragons Flood of Reproaches, and looked upon as a Strumpet, as one that pretends to Christ for her Lord and Husband, to his Spirit, to his Kingdom, to his Truth without a just Right, and the remnant of her Seed are still made War with by the Dragon. Who have been the hunted ones, the hated, the persecuted in all Nations, but the Tender-conscienced, who receive the Law of Christ into their hearts, bowing to him in their Worship and Conversation, and dare not Bow or Worship according to the Doctrines and Commandments of Men?

Now the true Church or Temple being thus removed, the Outward-Court becomes the Habitation and Place of Worship among the Gentiles, all the time of the Churches abode in the Wilderness. The Spirit of the Lord having left it, the heathenish Spirit (Man's earthly Nature and Wisdom) the Spirit of Antichrist enters into it, and upholds the Form of the former Building (so far as it judgeth necessary) and here it is found Worshipping, and making a great shew of Holiness and Devotion, but in the mean time makes War with the true Worshippers, who cannot Worship in the outward Court (since the Spirit of the Lord hath left it, and given it to the Gentiles) but follow the Church into the Wilderness, and Worship in that Temple which God hath removed thither.

O where is the Eye which can read these things, as they are Written either in the Letter, or in the Spirit. Antichrist is a Mystery of Iniquity, which Works, and gets Up, and Reigns, under an appearance of Godliness; And he that will discern him and his false Ways of Worship, must have that eye which sees beyond the appearance of things, into their Nature: And in this is the Discovery of him, and the Redemption from him. And happy is he, who is not defiled with Women, but abideth in the true Virginity, expecting and preparing for the appearance of the Bridegroom.

The Consideration of a Position concerning the Book of Common-Prayer: As also of some Particulars held forth for Truths, &c.

THere is a Position laid down in some Printed Letters, concerning the use of the Common-Prayer-Book, tendred by one Edm. Elis (who professeth himself to be a Minister of Jesus Christ) to Mr. Hughes, and Mr. Ford (as he stileth them) against which Position he entreateth me, if I find upon my Spirit any thing to be objected against it, to discover it in exact and punctual expressions. This desire of his is set down in Print after the Letters.

His Position or Assertion is this: That a man may Worship God in Spirit, and in Truth in the use of that form of Prayer for Morning and Evening, which we call the Common-Prayer.

Now whoever would weigh this Assertion aright, must have the Ballance of the Sanctuary, and must put it into the Scale with an equal hand; and then looking with that eye, which is given to see the Mysteries of the Kingdom of God, to him who is born of God, the Truth or Error of it is easily discerned.

True Prayer is the breathing of the Child to the Father which begat it, from the sense of its wants, for the supply of those wants.

The Wind bloweth where it listeth, and thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh, and whither it goeth: so is every one that is born of the Spirit, John 3. 8. God by the breath of his spirit, begets a man out of the spirit and likeness of this World, into his own Image and Likeness. He that is thus begotten, wants Nourishment, wants the Divine Warmth, the Breasts of Consolation, the Cloathing of the Spirit, the Garment of Salvation, wants the Bread of Life to feed on, wants the Water of Life to drink, wants strength against the enemies assaults, wisdom against his Snares and Temptations, wants the arm of the Deliverer to preserve and carry on the work of Redemption daily, wants Faith to deny the fleshly Wisdom, that so he may Trust and Feel the vertue of the Arm of the Deliverer, wants Hope, Patience, Meekness, a clear Guidance, an upright heart to follow after the Lord; yea very many are the daily wants of that which is begotten by the Breath of God, in its state of weakness, until it be drawn up into the unity of the Body, where the full Communion with the Life is felt, the Heart satisfied, and the wants drowned.

Now the breathing of this Child to the Father, from the sense of these wants, for his Supply, that's Prayer; nay though it be but a Groan, or Sigh, which cannot be uttered or expressed, yet that's Prayer, true Prayer, which hath an acceptance with the Lord, and receiveth a Gracious Answer from him. And he that begetteth the Child teacheth him to Pray, even by the same Spirit which begat him. In watching daily to the Spirit, the Child is kept sensible of the Will of the Father, and in his Light he sees the Way wherein he is to walk, he sees also the Enemie when he is coming, yea and the Snares he is privily laying, and he feels his own weakness to withstand or escape: and in this sense his Heart cries to the Father of Spirits for Preservation, for him to stand by him, for him to step in in the needful time, even in the season of distress. And thus watching to the Spirit, the Life of a Christian is a continual course of Prayer: He prays continually. This is the living Prayer of the living Child, which consists not in a Form of Words, either read out of a Book or conceived in the Mind; but in feeling the Breath of its Nature issuing out, from the Principle of Life in it, to the Living Spring, which is the Father of it; who by causing his vertues to spring up in it, nourisheth it to Everlasting Life.

But now, man who is not born of the Spirit, but (by conceiving some of the Truths of God in the Wisdom from below) hath attained to some change of Opinion and Conversation, he pretends to be this Birth from above, though indeed he is Born but of Blood, or of the Will of the flesh, or of the Will of Man, John 1. 13. and what God begets in, and gives to his True Child, he will be imitating, though he be out of the Nature and Spirit, where the True Child is begotten, and where the True gift of the Father is received by him. He will be believing, though he hath not received any Proportion of the Living Faith from the Hand of the Father; he will be forming Repentance and Sorrow for sin, though his heart be not turned from it; he will be hoping in Gods Mercy, although he be both from off the Foundation, and from under the shadow of the Mercy-seat, and he will be praying, though he hath neither received the Spirit, nor be taught by the Spirit to pray; And so being from that which should guide him, and teach him the truth and way of Worship as it is in Jesus, he runs out into the inventions and imaginations, and sets up a way of his own chusing; which he having much considered of, and beat out by reasonings, and fenced about with Arguments, he grows wise in his own eyes, and now verily believes it to be the way of God, and that he is able to maintain it against all opposers. Thus one man, he is for a Form; another man he is against a Form, and for conceived Prayers; and each think themselves able to maintain their own, and to overthrow each other. But Oh that that ear were open, which can hear the truth, that where there is any true, honest, upright desire after God, from the simplicity of the heart, it might not be thus betrayed through the subtilty of the fleshly Wisdom, which lies lurking in the wise, reasoning, knowing part, to betray the poor, weak Babe. The natural man, the reasoning man, the understanding man, the wise man according to the natural wisdom cannot understand the things of God. Here's no learning to pray aright, to believe aright, to hope aright, to mourn aright, to rejoyce aright, &c. But this wisdom must be brought to nothing (1 Cor. 1. 19.)

and a man muſt become as a Child to all knowledge, as let in this way; And he that ſo becomes a Child, is taught to pray, to believe, to wait, to hope, and all that is neceſſary to eternal life.

Now as the Father teacheth to pray, ſo he giveth deſires or words (if he pleaſe) according to the preſent need. Sometimes he gives but ability to ſigh, or groan (if he give no more, he accepts that.) Sometimes he gives ſtrong breathings, and plenty of words to pour out the Soul in before the Lord. But if a man ſhould catch thoſe words, and lay them up againſt another time, and offer them up to God in his own Will, this would be but Will-worſhip and abomination. This I have known experimentally, and have felt the Wrath of God for it. That is Prayer, which comes freſh from the Spirit; and that is a true deſire, which the Spirit begets; but the affections and ſparks of mans kindling pleaſe not the Lord, nor do they conduce to the Souls reſt, but will end in the Bed of Sorrow, Iſa. 50. 11.

Now as touching the Book of Common-Prayer, or Prayers conceived without the immediate breathings of the Spirit, I ſhall ſpeak mine own experience faithfully, which is this, I have felt both theſe ways draw out the wrong part, and keep that alive in me, which the true Prayer kills. And he that utters a word, beyond the ſenſe which God begets in his Spirit, takes Gods Name in vain, and provokes him to jealouſie againſt his own Soul. God is in Heaven, thou art on Earth, therefore let thy Words be few. The few words which the Spirit ſpeaks, or the few, ſtill, ſoft, gentle breathings which the Spirit begets, are pleaſing to God, and profitable to the Soul? but the many words, which mans wiſdom affects, hurt the precious life, and thicken the Vail of Death over the Soul, keeping that part alive, which ſeparates from God; which part muſt dye, e're the Soul can live.

The true Prayer is by that which God begets, in the vertue of his Spirit (praying always in the Spirit, Epheſ. 6. 18. Jude 20.) in the time he chuſes: for the Spirit breatheth as well when he liſteth, as where he liſteth; and man cannot limit him when he ſhall breath, or when he ſhall not breath, but is to wait the ſeaſon of his breathing, and ſo to watch into Prayer.

Now if the Prayer be in words (for there is a praying without Words) then it muſt be in thoſe words which he pleaſeth to give, from the ſence which he kindleth, and not in the words which mans wiſdom teacheth, or would chuſe to uſe. And indeed, in the true Religion, and in every exerciſe of it, mans wiſdom is kept out, and nail'd to the Croſs, by which means the immortal life is raiſed and grows in the true Diſciple. He believes, he hopes, he waits, he prays, he mourns, he rejoyces, he obeys, &c. in the Croſs to the mortal part; not as mans wiſdom teacheth, or would teach, or can teach any of theſe things; for his Sacrifice is ſtill an abomination, even to the wiſe Egyptian part in himſelf (O wiſe man, abaſe thy ſelf before the Lord in his Spirit, that thou mayeſt read this and live) but as the life teacheth, as the Wiſdom from above teacheth, which breaketh down, ſhutteth up, confoundeth and deſtroyeth mans wiſdom, while he is teaching his Babe.

Thus have I anſwered, in the ſimplicity of my heart, to the nature of the thing, ſo far as the Lord hath pleaſed to draw forth my ſpirit; and in ſinking down to that, which thus opened my ſpirit, my Anſwer may eaſily be read and aſſented to; but to that which is in the diſputing wiſdom, out of the feeling of the hidden life and vertue, it may prove a Myſtery.

Afterwards, he alſo intreateth me to peruſe ſeriouſly, and to lay deeply to heart (in the real fear and dread of the great God) ſome particulars which he teacheth for Truths.

I perceive he is offended at the queſtioning of his Miniſtry, and that the main intent of his propoſing theſe, is to juſtifie his Miniſtry; which if they were true, yet the Preaching of them would not prove him, or any man elſe, to be a Miniſter of Jeſus Chriſt: For it is not Preaching things that are true, which makes a true Miniſter, but the receiving of his Miniſtry from the Lord. The Goſpel is the Lord's, which is to be Preached, and it is to be Preached in his Power; And the Miniſters which Preach it, are to be endued with his Power, and to be ſent by him. The Apoſtles themſelves, though they had received inſtructions concerning the Kingdom from Chriſt's own Lips, both in his Life-time, and after his Reſurrection (Act. 1. 3.) and had received a Commiſ-

sion from him to teach all Nations, Matth. 28. 18, 19. Yet this was not sufficient to make them able Ministers of the New-Testament; But before they went abroad to Preach, they were to wait for the Power; Acts 1. 4, 8. And when they had received it, they were to Minister in it, that men might be converted to the Power and by the Power, that the Faith of Persons might not stand in the Wisdom of their Words, (which Paul might have abounded in, as well as others) But in the Power of God, 1 Cor. 2. 5. And this was it made Paul Minister in fear and trembling, lest the wrong part in him should Minister, lest the earthly understanding part should be holding forth the truths of God out of the Life, out of the Power, and so he should convert men to the Wisdom of the Words he spake, and not to the Power, ver. 2, 3. This was it he was sent for, to turn men from Darkness to Light, and from the Power of Satan to God (Acts 26. 18.) from the Spirit of Enmity and Death, to the Spirit of Love and Life: And this he was careful of in his Ministry, that men might not run away with his Words, and miss of the thing. And this also was the way whereby he discovered true and false Ministers, I will come and know (saith he) not the Speech of them which are puffed up, but the Power: for the Kingdom of God is not in Word, but in Power, 1 Cor. 4. 19, 20. Many men might catch their Words, and run away with them and Preach them, but they could not Minister in the Power. Now the Kingdom, which the Gospel-Ministers are the Preachers of, consists not in Words, but in Power. God hath made us able Ministers of the New-Testament, not of the Letter, but of the Spirit, 2 Cor. 3. 6. The Ministry of the New-Testament is a Ministry of the Spirit, and it cannot be without the Spirit. It is a reaching to Men's Consciences in the Demonstration of the Spirit and Power (1. Cor. 2. 4 and 2 Cor. 4. 1, 2.) which, being felt in the heart and turned to, this Converts them to God.

The Ministry of the Gospel doth not consist in a bare opening of the Letter (or raising of Doctrines and Uses from the Letter, which the Wisdom of man may easily perform) as the Ministry of the Law did: But in bringing men to the feeling of the Spirit, even of the eternal Power of God which redeems, in turning men from the darkness to the light, in setting their Faces towards the Power. The Gospel is the substance of what was shaddowed out in the Law; and he that Ministers it, must Minister substance. He must have the Heavenly Treasure (that is the substance) in his earthly Vessel, 2 Cor. 4 7. And he must give out of this Treasure into the Vessel which God prepares And that he may do this, he must Minister in the Spirit, and in the Power. His words must not be such as mans wisdom would teach, or as mans comprehension would gather, but such words as Gods wisdom prepares for him, and puts into his mouth He that will be a true Minister, must receive both his Gift, his Ministry, and the Exercise of both from the Lord; and must be sure in his Ministring to keep in the Power, or he will never win others to the power: But in keeping in the power, while he is ministring, and standing in the cross to his own understanding and wisdom, giving forth the truths which the Lord chuseth, to have him speak in the word which God chuseth, even in the words which are ministred to him by the power in thus ministring he shall save his own soul and those that hear him even all who in fear and Meekness receive the ingrafted Word, which is able to save the Soul. For alas, alas, many have received Words of truth, and apprehensions of Knowledge whereby they hope to be saved: but how few are acquainted with that knowledge which stands in the Power, which alone converts and keeps alive unto God! O how many Souls are to be answered for by them, who take upon them to be Pastors from God, who have fed the Flock with Words, with Discourses which they have made, and have ruled over them with force and cruelty, but have wanted the love, the tenderness, the light and power of the true Shepherd! O what will these do, when God requires his Sheep at their hands! O that there were an heart to consider. Ye Shepherds of England, little do ye know what is towards you.

Now for those things themselves, which he saith, he he principally endeavours to make known to the Sons of Men, There is a mixture in them; which, if he could singly apply himself to wait on the Lord, in the Meek Sober Spirit, out of the consultations, Wisdom, and Confidence of the Flesh, it might please the Lord to make manifest to him.

The first particular of those, which he lays down for Truths, is, That the good things of this Life, Honours, Riches, &c. Unless we make use of them in the service of God:

but Vanity, and Vexation of Spirit; And in no wiſe any more capable to ſatisfie, or content an immortal Soul, than Lime, and Aſhes, and Cobwebs, and ſuch like traſh are to ſatisfie, and keep in health the bodies of thoſe perſons, who through the depravedneſs of their appetite, deſire to feed on them.

Anſw. Chriſt by his Miniſtry, calleth his Dicip'es out of the World, up to the Father, out of the Honourr, Riches, and what ever elſe is of the World. How can ye believe, which receive Honour one of another, and ſeek not the honour that cometh from God only? John 5. 44, And the Rich man, he bids him Sell all and follow him. And the Apoſtle John ſaith, Love not the World, neither the things that are in the World. If any man love the World, the Love of the Father is not in him. For all that is in the World, the Luſt of the Fleſh, the Luſt of the Eyes, and the Pride of Life, is not of the Father, but is of the World, 1 John 2. 15, 16. He that will be a Diſciple of Chriſt, muſt travel out of the earthly into the heavenly, leaving all that is of this World behind him, poſſeſſing nothing as his Portion, but him who hath call'd him out of his Countrey, from among his Kindred, and from his Father's Houſe to another Land, Kindred, and Habitation. So that here they are Pilgrims, and Strangers, Sojourners, and Paſſengers, unknown to the World, and of a ſtrange Garb, Behaviour, and Appearance in it, not enjoying any thing as the World enjoys, not uſing any thing as the World uſeth, not honouring men or receiving honour from men, as the World gives or receives honour, but honouring men in the Lord, and receiving honour from the Lord: And what ever they ſeem to retain of the earthly things, they hold as Stewards under the Lord, not uſing or diſpoſing of them as they think good, but waiting for the diſcovery of the Maſter's pleaſure, who is to order, in his Counſel and Wiſdom, all that is his own to his own Glory. The Law required a Tenth Part to be given up to the Lord, the Goſpel requireth all; Soul, Body, Spirit, Good Name, &c. Even that the whole Poſſeſſion be ſold and laid at the Maſterr feet; And he that keepeth any thing back, cannot be a Diſciple, cannot be a Souldier of Chriſt, but muſt needs Entangle himſelf with the Affairs of this Life. This is Sound and Savoury, even the Truth of Jeſus, as it is known and felt in the renewed Spirit, but his Words, if he meaſure them in the pure Light of God, he will perceive not to have ſprung thence, but to have been formed in the earthly Wiſe part, even in that Wiſdom, Underſtanding, and Comprehenſion, which is ſhut out of the Myſterys of God's Kingdom.

For his ſecond, That nothong but the enjoyment of God, the Fountain of all Goodneſs, can truly and really content an immortal Soul. And for his third, That no man can enjoy God, but he that loves him with all his Heart and withal his Soul, and (for his ſake) his Neighbour as himſelf: I own both the things themſelves and theſe Words, and I felt a good Savour in them at the reading of them, only let me ſay this, if he put men upon ſtriving after theſe things, without pointing them to the gift where the ſtrength is received to perform, and where the waiting is to be for the ſtrength, he cannot Preach them profitably to his Hearers.

To his fourth, That, though every ſincere Convert, or regenerate Perſon loves God continually with his whole heart, as to the Habit, or Root of holy Love; yet whilſt he is in the Body, he may ſometimes fail of the Act, or Fruit of it, and may offend God through the love of the Creature. Which Truth (ſo much oppoſed in theſe days) is clear, and manifeſt in the holy Scriptures; Particularly, in the Records of the hainous ſins of the Prophet David, and Peter the Apoſtle.

Anſw. The Lord Circumciſeth the Heart of Believers under the New-Covenant, to love the Lord their God with all their Heart, that they may live: he cauſeth the Plant to ſpring up out of the dry and barren Ground, which he watereth with his Bleſſing; and he layeth his Ax to the Root of the old Tree, hewing at it, even till he hath cut it up: he engrafteth the Eternal Word into the heart, and by it is daily purifying thereof, fulfilling the good pleaſure of his goodneſs therein, and carrying on the Work of Faith with Power: And the Miniſtry which he gave, was for the perfecting the Saints (Epheſ 4: 12, 13.) which Miniſtry exhorted and encouraged Believers (from God's Promiſes of his preſence and powerful operation of his Spirit in the hearts of his Sons and Daughters) to cleanſe themſelves from all filthineſs of the Fleſh, and Spirit, prrfecting holineſs in the fear of God, 2 Cor. 7. 1. Now that the Corrupt-Tree ſhall never be cut down whilſt man is in the Body, that the heart ſhall never be throughly Circumciſed to love the Lord,

but be in danger of offending God through the love of the Creature: This Doctrine and Belief ſpringeth not from the pure Fountain of Life and Power, but the reaſoning part hath gathered it from its conceivings beneath the power.

The Seed of God cannot ſin (for as he is pure which begetteth, ſo is that pure which is begotten of him) nor can man ſin, who is born of it and abides in it: and if God pleaſe to perfect the Birth and the Work of Circumciſion, What can hinder a man from being wholly born from it and from abiding in it? Indeed a man that ſtrives in his own ſtrength, either againſt ſin or towards holineſs, may well doubt of ever having it accompliſhed: but he that feels the Eternal Power beginning the Work, and carrying it on daily, cannot doubt but he can perfect it, yea, and is encouraged (by the feeling thereof) to hope and wait on him for the perfecting of it.

As for his inſtances of David and Peter, they reach not the thing: For though David and Peter did fall, yet both David and Peter might attain an higher ſtate before they went out of the Body, then they were in before they fell. David was a great Prophet, and Peter a precious Diſciple, but yet there was an higher Eſtate to be adminiſtred, even the receiving that which the Prophets Propheſied of, and which the Diſciple was to wait for. The Diſciples who had known Chriſt, and had been taught by him, and had received a Commiſſion from him, to whom all Power in Heaven and Earth was given, yet were to wait for a further and higher State, even for receiving the Promiſe of the Father, the Power from on high, that he that was with them might be in them, John 14. 17. John was as great as any Prophet, and yet he that was leaſt in the Kingdom was greater than he. Read the Acts of the Apoſtles, behold what a preceious people was brought forth, even in the beginning of the Apoſtles Miniſtry, how full of Faith, how ſtripped of the World, how Single-hearted to God, and one towards another, Acts 2. 42. &c. and Acts 4. 32 &c. What would theſe be, abiding and growing up in the Vine? The cutting off of ſin, is neceſſary while in the Body, but to make the committing of ſin neceſſary while in the Body, is a great Derogation to the Power of Gods Grace, and to the Myſtery of Faith, which overcometh the evils of the Heart, and the Worldly Nature within; purifieth the Conſcience from dead Works, and is held in the Pure Conſcience. O that men knew the Power, and the Faith which ſtands in the Power: For then would not they judge it ſo impoſſible to be cleanſed by the Faith through the Power. O that Light, that Light, that Pure Light of the Spirit, wherein the Living Bloud runs, which cleanſeth from all ſin, and keepeth clean them that abide and walk in it! If this were but a little felt, ſuch Doctrines as theſe (which are gathered in the comprehenſion from Words read, without being let into the thing it ſelf) would ſoon vaniſh, and find no place in the Heart where the Power dwells, nor in the underſtanding which is renewed, preſerved, and fed by the Power. For the things of God are to be known, and held in the underſtanding which is given of God (which underſtanding is of the Spirit, and is ſpiritual) and not with the natural underſtanding, which cannot receive the things of the Spirit, but only a carnal apprehenſion and ſenſe of the Words of the Spirit, according as a man can beat them out with, and comprehend them in his reaſoning part.

To the fifth, That the Souls of the faithful are always growing in Grace, whilſt they are in the body? and at the inſtant of death, or ſeparation from the body, our Lord Jeſus ſhall preſent them to the Father without ſpot, or blemiſh.

Anſw Chriſt preſenteth to the Father, when he hath purified the heart and mind, and made it fit for Gods pure life and preſence. He hath received the fulneſs from the Father, and hath freely given of his Grace and of his Truth to the Sons of men, to regenerate them, to cleanſe and ſanctifie their hearts, and make them fit for God to dwell in. He ſitteth in his Temple as a Refiner and Purifier of Silver (who is like a Refiners Fire and like Fullers Soap) and when he hath purified his Diſciples, his Children, his Levites, he preſenteth them to the Lord, for the Lord to Tabernacle and dwell in, when he hath throughly conſecrated them, he preſenteth them as Kings and Prieſts to his Father, to offer up an Offering for Righteouſneſs, and to reign with him in his Kingdom, Mal. 3. 3. Rev 1. 5. And there were ſome ſo purified by the Leaven of the Kingdom (which purgeth out the old Leaven by degrees, even till at length it hath made the Lump wholly new) that to them all things were pure, Titus 1. 5. There were ſome come unto Mount Sion, and unto the City of the Living God, the Heavenly Jeruſalem, and to an innumerable merable company of Angels, to the general Aſſembly and Church of the firſt-Born, which are written in Heaven, and to God the Judge of all, and to the Spirits of Juſt men, made perfect, and to Jeſus the Mediator of the New Covenant, and to the Blood of Sprinkling, Heb. 12 22, 23, 24. Thus it was before the Apoſtacy: yea, and after the Apoſtacy there were ſome found ſtanding on Mount Sion again, ſuch as had learned the New Song, ſuch as were redeemed from the Earth, ſuch as were not defiled with Women, (with any of the falſe Churches or their falſe ways of Worſhip) but had kept their Virginity in the Wilderneſs. If ye would know who theſe were, they were the firſt fruits unto God and the Lamb after the Apoſtacy, who were throughly cleanſed by the Spirit of burning, inſomuch as in their mouth was found no guile, but they were without fault before the Throne of God, Revel. 14. ver. 1. to 6.

The Work of the Spirit of Chriſt in the heart is an inward work, and doth not conſiſt in outward times or ſeaſons, but in ſpiritual degrees and ſeaſons; which when they are finiſhed, the heart renewed, the ſpirit changed, the work wrought out; then the glory of the Father is revealed, the entrance into the everlaſting Kingdom Miniſtred, and then their is a ſitting down in the everlaſting Manſion, even with Chriſt in the Heavenly places which he hath prepared, where they that are redeemed, and purged and ſanctified, ſit together with him: and as the body cannot hinder his entring into the ſpirits of his Saints, and his dwelling in them, no more can it hinder their entring into him and dwelling in him.

Now there are ſeveral exerciſes of Spirit, ſeveral meaſures of Faith, and ſeveral degrees of Life and Glory. Some are under the Clouds, ſome in the Sea; ſome in Egypt, ſome in the Wilderneſs; ſome waiting for his appearance, ſome in the enjoyment of him already appeared. In ſome the work of Regeneration, of Sanctification, of newneſs of Spirit and Life is but begun, in others it is interrupted and they come to a loſs; in ſome it is much carryed on, even towards conſummation, and ſome are already compleat in him, finding fulneſs of ſatisfaction in him (in whom the everlaſting Springs are opened, to the full content of their hearts) and bring forth fruit to him, to the full content and ſatisfaction of his heart. In the Apoſtles days there were thoſe that waited for his coming, and there were thoſe alſo that knew him come, and had received the good underſtanding from him, and were in the Eternal life, John 5. 20.

Yet this doth not exclude growth, for the fulneſs is infinite; and though a perfect ſtate may be attained in the perfect Gift, yet there is a growth in the perfection (for Chriſt who was perfect, and in whom was no guile, grew in Wiſdom and Knowledge and in favour with God and men.) And as God is infinite, ſo to that which is tranſplanted into him, there is no end of growth in him; but the Tree, which ſtands in God's holy Earth, by his pure River of Waters, ſhall grow for ever and ever into his endleſs life and fulneſs.

To his ſixth, That no man can ſo know God as to love him with all his Heart, and with all his Soul, but through the knowledge of Jeſus Chriſt, and him Crucified: Who, by thoſe grievous ſufferings which he endur'd when he was upon Earth, made ſatisfaction to the Juſtice of God for the ſins of all thoſe that believe in his Name; ſo that it is as conſiſtent with the Juſtice, as with the Mercy of God, to forgive them their ſins, and make them heirs of Eternal Life, God is Juſt, and the Juſtifier of him that believeth in Jeſus.

Anſ. The knowledge of Chriſt is life Eternal, and in his Croſs is the ſpiritual vertue, which cuts off the uncircumciſion of the heart, whereby it is enabled to love the Lord. Now Chriſt is the Lord from Heaven, the quickning Spirit, who ſoweth the Seed of the Kingdom in the Heart, and cauſeth it to ſpring up; out of which Seed the Faith, the love, the hope, the meekneſs, the patience, and every ſpiritual fruit ſprings and grows. And he that is thus born of this Seed, and receives the knowledg of life which ſprings from this Seed, he cannot but love him which begat him, and he reapeth the fruit of all that Chriſt did and ſuffered in that prepared body: and God is both Juſt, and the Juſtifier of him who is thus united to Jeſus. But that man who knoweth not this Faith, nor is acquainted with the Love which ſpringeth from this Root, and which is of this Divine nature, but thinketh to be juſtified by applying to himſelf what is related in the Hiſtories concerning Chriſt; this man deceives his Soul, and miſſeth of the true Juſtification; for God is juſt, who hath made the Promiſe ſure to the Seed, and hath ſhut out man, further than he is born of the Seed, and found in the Seed. But he who abideth in the Seed, and in whom the Seed findeth pleaſure and abideth, he cannot miſs of the Promiſe, of the everlaſting Righteouſneſs, the Reconciliation, the Peace, the Joy, and whatever elſe God giveth to the Seed.

To his ſeventh and laſt, That the ready way to receive Chriſt, the only Light, by which we may ſee the way to Heaven: or ſo to believe in him that we may be ſaved by him, is, to forſake all that we have, that we may be his Diſciples: that is to ſay, to take off our affections from things on the earth, and to ſet them on things above, where Jeſus ſitteth on the right hand of God; putting our truſt and confidence in the free, and in the infinite mercy of God, through Chriſt, to be guided by him in all our ways, to be led by his good Spirit in all thoſe ways of Grace and Holineſs, through which we muſt paſs before we can attain to Glory.

Anſ. To know Chriſt as the Light eternal, (as he was yeſterday, is to day, and will be for ever) to truſt this Light in its convictions, calls, and free openings of love, to feel its living vertue, and in that virtue to give up all that is of the earthly nature and ſpirit, to ſell all for the everlaſting inheritance, this is indeed the way to life. But it is not the doing of things which is of value, for man may imitate and ſtrive to do much, and may go a great way in forſaking all, and in taking off his affections from things, (inaſmuch as he may give all his Goods to the Poor, and his Body to be burned, and yet it profit him nothing;) but it is the doing of things in the vertue, in the life, in the power which comes from Chriſt, which is of acceptance with God, and of advantage to the Soul. Every motion and operation of true life ſprings from the root of life, and hath the vertue of the root in it: and that which differenceth it from all mens imitations, and from all the likeneſſes which the earthly ſpirit can frame, is the nature and vertue of the root being found in it. Therefore he that will be a true Chriſtian, muſt eye Chriſt the ſpring of his life, and keep in the feeling of his living vertue, and in that offer up all his Sacrifices of faith, love, and obedience to God: and he that will be a true Miniſter, muſt wait upon the power himſelf, to be an Inſtrument (in the hand of the power) to direct men to this, and to preſerve and build them up therein.

But alas, this is the Stone, which the wiſe Builders have all along refuſed! The Builders before the coming of Chriſt, they got a knowledge concerning the Meſſiah to come, but being unacquainted with the thing it ſelf, rejected both it at its coming, and alſo the Veſſel wherein it appeared. And the Builders all along the Apoſtacy, got a knowledge of Chriſt come, and Preached Believing in him Crucified as the way to life; but the living Stone, the living thing it ſelf (which is both the Foundation, the Corner Stone, and the top Stone of the building) they have been ignorant of, and ready to perſecute every appearance of it. Chriſt can no more now appear in Spirit, than formerly he could in that prepared body of fleſh; but the wiſe Builders now are as ready to cry out againſt him for a Blaſphemer, a Prophaner of Gods Ordinances, a deceiver of the people (yea, a Witch or one that hath a Devil) as the wiſe Builders then were. But Wiſdom in all ages is juſtified by her Children, and of none elſe. He that is born of the Wiſdom, he can diſcern the Womb, and own the fruit and branchings forth thereof under the mean dark vail, whereby it hides it ſelf from all the fleſhly wiſe of every age. The Kingdom of God cometh not by Obſervation, the wiſeſt Scribes and Phariſees could not know it by all the Obſervations, which they could gather out of Moſes and the Prophets Writings, nor can any now know it, by any obſervations they can gather out of the Apoſtles Writings; but by being born of that ſpirit whereof they were born, and by being formed in that Womb wherein they were formed, by this means alone is the thing come to be known which they knew. He that receiveth the ſame eye, ſeeth the ſame thing, according to his meaſure; and coming to the life, wherein they received the Truth, the words which they ſpake concerning the Truth are eaſie. Thus as they were writ in the Spirit, ſo are they there along truly read; and being ſo read, they become exceeding profitable to that which ſo reads them; but man gueſſing, and imagining and reaſoning in his carnal wiſdom concerning the things of God, and ſo gathering ſentences and meanings about the words and expreſſions of Scripture, doth but build up a Babel, which the eternal Life and Power will throw down (when ever he appears) with that which built it. O that men were wiſe to wait for the diſcovery of the true Rock, and of the true Builder upon that Rock, that that City and Building might be raiſed raiſed in them, which God alone can rear, that they might not be left deſolate and miſerable in that ſtormy day, which will ſhake all Buildings and Foundations, and Rocks but our Rock; wherein all Profeſſors, and Preachers, and high Notioniſts, and whatever ſort elſe can be named (who have ſtumbled at Gods living Truth, and at the pure appearance of his redeeming Power, which in this age hath mightily broke forth, after the long dark night of Apoſtacy, to the ſight of every eye which is opened in the Spirit) ſhall confeſs with tears, ſorrow, anguiſh and ſhame, that their Rock is not as our Rock, they themſelves being Judges. For though all ſorts of Profeſſors generally own Chriſt as the Rock in words, yet moſt miſs of the thing: and the ſubtile Enemy hath made uſe of a Notion, or apprehenſion of the thing in the carnal mind, to deceive them of the thing, to keep them from feeling the eternal vertue, the living Power of Life in the heart, which is the Arm of Gods Salvation, whereby Chriſt draws mans loſt Soul and Spirit out of the Pit, out of the Grave of Sin and Corruption up to the Father. But O how are poor hearts deceived, who think by a believing of what Chriſt did, of a ſatisfaction he made for them while he was here on Earth, though they lye in the Pit all their days, though they carry the body of ſin about with them to the very laſt of their time here in the body, and have not felt the Arm of Gods Power breaking down their ſpiritual enemies, their luſts, their corruptions, and redeeming them from them, yet hope to be ſaved in the end, and to be preſented without ſpot or wrinkle to God! Chriſt had the name Jeſus given him, becauſe he was to ſave his People from their ſins: and no man can truly and livingly know the name Jeſus, further than he feels the ſaving vertue of it: but he that effectually feels the vertue, he indeed knows the name, and can bow at the name, feeling his luſts and enemies bowed under by the power thereof, and that raiſed up in him, which can Worſhip the Father in the Spirit and in the Truth. O that the Sons of men knew, O that the Teachers and Profeſſors of this Age knew, what they have ſo long reviled and trampled upon! Surely they would mourn bitterly, kiſs the Son, and eſcape the Wrath.

Now, if the Lord pleaſe to ſmite any ones earthly wiſdom and comprehenſion (which is the main thing which ſtands in the way of the pure openings and revelations of the life) and give him the feeling of any thing here written, let him in fear acknowledge the Lord, ſacrificing to his goodneſs, and waiting upon him to be kept in that feeling, not magnifying or villifying any of his Inſtruments, but in meekneſs and humility embracing the inſtructions of the Almighty, from the hand which he pleaſeth to give them forth by. As for me, I am but a Shell; and if this party knew me (who ſets me up ſo high, preferring me above many, whom the Lord hath preferred far above me) he would ſoon acknowledge me to be a very poor, weak contemptible one: yet this I muſt by no means deny, that the pure Liquor of the eternal Life, at its pleaſure ſpringeth up and iſſueth out through me; though I can alſo in true underſtanding ſay, that it iſſueth out far oftener and much more abundantly through others. Let it have its honour, wherever it appears; and the Lord bring down that in peoples hearts, which hindreth the owning and receiving of its vertue.

A Warning of tender Bowels to the Rulers, Teachers, and People of this Nation, concerning their Church and Miniſtry.

THat there was a Fight between the Dragon and his Angels, and Michael and his Angels, concerning the New-Teſtament-Church and Miniſtry, is manifeſt even from the Letter of the Scriptures, Rev. 12.

That the Dragon and his Angels, though they could not get the better, as relating to the Power, yet that they did get the better as relating to the Form, inſomuch as that they overcame the third part of the true Miniſters, and drew them from their ſtanding in the Firmament of Gods Power, off to their earthly Miniſtry, and that the Church her ſelf alſo was fain to fly into the Wilderneſs, from the face of the Dragon, for her ſafety and preſervation, where ſhe was to be nouriſhed and fed by God all the time of Antichriſts Reign; this likewiſe is not onely revealed in the Spirit, but is alſo manifeſt from the Letter, Rev. 12.

That after this Flight of the true Church, and overcoming of the true Miniſtry, the Dragon erected his falſe Church and Miniſtry (which had but at beſt the Form without the Power) over all Nations, Peoples, Multitudes and Tongues, this is alſo as evident, to them that read the Prophecies of the Revelation, in the Light of that Spirit that wrote them. Is not the falſe Woman (after the true Woman was fled) manifeſtly deſcribed? Rev. 17. which hath a bewitching Cup of Fornications, v 2, 4. Mark, She hath not the true Cup of Bleſſing, her Cup is not filled with the Wine of the Kingdom, it is not the Cup of the true Spouſe (which keeps Chaſt and Loyal to the Bed of the Husband) but the Cup of Fornications, wherein is a form of Doctrine, and Diſcipline, and Order, and Church-Government which leads from the Life, which bewitches from the Power, which luls aſleep in a Form of Profeſſion and Worſhip of Chriſt, without knowledge of, guidance by, and ſubjection to his Spirit. And this is the Government, Miniſtry, and way of Antichriſt, where-ever it is found: how curiouſly ſoever the Cup be guilded, yet it is but the Cup of Fornication, which bewitcheth the heart with its golden appearance, and then leads it into adultery from the Life. And the Dragon doth not only ſet up a falſe Church over the Nations (in many parts whereof the truth had before appeared) Rev. 17. 15. But a falſe Miniſtry alſo. There's a falſe Prophet (which deceiveth with Miracles and falſe appearances of Truth) advanced in this corrupt ſtate: which falſe Prophet continues and upholds his deceit over the Nations, till the mighty apperance of Chriſt in Spirit and Power, doth judge him, Rev. 19. 20. 2 Theſſ. 2. 8. There is a Beaſt with Horns like a Lamb, who doth great Wonders, ſo that he maketh Fire come down from Heaven on the Earth, in the ſight of Men, and deceiveth them that dwell on the Earth, &c. Rev. 13. 13, 14. Inſomuch as he draws the King and Inhabiters of the Earth (in a Myſtery of Deceit) into the Bed of Whoredom and falſe Worſhip, inſtead of the pure Way of Life, and pure Worſhip of the living God, in his Spirit, and in his Truth, Rev. 17. 2.

Is it not further manifeſt, that this falſe Church and falſe Miniſtry, ſet up in the World by the Power of the Dragon, perſecute Gods Witneſſes to the Truth, in all the Ages of Antichriſt's Reign? So ſoon as ever the Church was fled into the Wilderneſs, the Dragon forthwith went to make War with the remnant of her Seed, which kept the Commandments of God, and had the Teſtimony of Jeſus Chriſt, Rev. 12. 17. And it was given unto him to make War with the Saints, and to overcome them: and power was given him over all Kindreds, Tongues, and Nations. And all that dwell upon the Earth ſhall worſhip him, whoſe names are not written in the Book of Life, of the Lamb ſlain from the Foundation of the World. If any man have an Ear, let him hear, Rev. 13. 7, 8, 9. And he had power to give life unto the Image of the Beaſt, that the Image of the Beaſt ſhould both ſpeak, and cauſe that as many as would not worſhip the Image of the Beaſt ſhould be killed. And he cauſeth all, both ſmall and great, rich and poor, free and bond, to receive a Mark in their right Hand, or in their Fore-head. And that no man might buy or ſell, ſave he that had the Mark, or the Name of the Beaſt, or the Number of his Name, Rev. 13. 15, 16, 17. Yea, The Woman (the falſe Church, which the Dragon had ſet up, by his power in the Nations, inſtead of the true) was drunken with the Blood of the Saints, and with the Blood of the Martyrs of Jeſus, Rev. 17. 6. O the miſery, and lamentable hard uſage of the Witneſſes of Jeſus, who have been true Lambs, born of the Power, faithful to the Power, witneſſing againſt every form and appearance of Religion, Doctrine, and Worſhip, which hath appeared without the Power even in the days of greateſt Profeſſion and higheſt Devotion under the Apoſtacy from the Power) how have theſe been hunted perſecuted, devoured by the Wolves in the Sheeps cloathing, who had got the outſide, the garment, the Name of Chriſt and Chriſtianity, the Profeſſion of Church, Miniſtry, and Ordinances, but have wanted the Life, the Virtue, the thing it Self; and ſo have turned againſt it, and kept it down, that they might keep up their Form! For let but the power appear, the Form without the Power is ſoon detected to be what it is. And this is properly Antichriſt and Antichriſtianiſm, to wit, Not openly to appear in a direct denyal of Chriſt, his Truths and Worſhip, but to ſet up a way of Knowledge and Worſhip without his Spirit. Another Spirit creeping into the Form, that's Antichriſt (and the ſetting up obſervation and practice of the Form out of the Life and Power, that is Antichriſtianiſm) and this is the Perſecutor, Deſtroyer, and Devourer about Religion.

Now

Now though the Lord hath ſuffered this falſe Church, and falſe Prophet to Reign long in the Dragons Power, and to revile and worry his poor Lambs, in ever Age of Antichriſts Reign; yet the Lord hath appointed a ſeaſon to judge this falſe Church, Rev. 17. 1. to caſt the falſe Prophet into the Lake, Rev. 19. v. 20. Yea and to torment with fire and brimſtone, all the falſe Worſhippers, Rev. 14. 9, 10, 11.

O how deeply doth it concern England, her Rulers, her Teachers, ye the whole People thereof, to conſider their Ways, to conſider their Worſhip, to conſider their Church-ſtate, to conſider their Miniſtry, that they be not overwhelmed at unawars in the bitter Wrath of the Almighty, before which there is no ſtanding. O that they could mourn, and pray, and wait for the Eye of God's Spirit, for his pure Light, which ſearcheth and diſcovereth all the deceits of Antichriſt; that they might not be bewitched with any of the Wine of the Fornication of the falſe Woman, Whoſe Heart is Snares and Nets, and her Hands as Bands, to entangle her Lovers in, and keep them from the pure Bed of Life, where the Father of Life, with the Son and Spirit, are enjoyed and worſhipped.

If men conſult concerning theſe things in the Wiſdom of the fleſh, they will be entangled, and err, for that eye cannot ſee the Myſterys of the Kingdom, or the courſe either of Truth or Deceit. The Goſpel, the Eternal Truth, the true Church, the true Miniſtry, are all ſpiritual (not new ſhaddows, as the things under the miniſtration of the Law were, but Spirit and Subſtance) and they can only be ſeen by the ſpiritual Eye of the Children of Wiſdom. The wiſe Hunters, and diligent Enquirers, into the comprehending part, cannot find the Womb or the Way of Life, or the Way of the Worſhip of that which is begotten in the Life, or God's Way of Miniſtry, which he hath appointed for the feeding and preſerving of the Life. The Prophets of old could not be known, diſcerned, or owned by the fleſhly Eye of obſervation in Iſrael, after the fleſh (but they ſtill rejected them, eſteeming and magnifying the falſe Prophets above them) how much leſs can the Prophets and Miniſters of the New-Teſtament be ſeen by Mans eye? Are they the Prophets and Miniſters of Chriſt, which a Nation cries up for ſuch, and which the Eye of the Wiſe men therein admires, and pitches upon? Or, are thoſe they which the renewed eye, in the Light of the Lord, ſees to be fitted, ſanctified, and called forth by Chriſt unto that ſervice? Ah poor England, muſt thou fall into the Pit before thine eyes be opened.

The great Controverſie of this Age is about Church and Miniſtry, which muſt carry it, the Form or the Power? Whether the Church and Miniſtry ſhall take place which was before the Apoſtacy, or that which hath ſprung up in or ſince the Apoſtacy? Whether Mans Wiſdom ſhall determine which is the true Church, and its true Miniſtry, or whether the Spirit of God ſhall determine it? Whether a Nation, with the Miniſters it ſets up, ſhall be the Church and Miniſtry? Or whether God's holy Nation (which he calleth and ſanctifieth by his Spirit) and the Miniſters which he chuſeth, and ſendeth to gather and build up his in the holy Faith, and pure Power of Life, ſhall be the Church and Miniſtry? Our Eyes wait on the Lord to ſee this Controverſie determined, and our hope of help is in his Arm, nor are we at all affrighted at the riſing of any ſtrength againſt us (our hearts being given up to God's Truth, and to ſuffer for its Teſtimony, according to God's Will, meekly and patiently in his Strength) but we pity this poor Land, yea in the depth of Bowels we pity the Rulers, the Teachers, and People therein. O that they might be humbled, and in fear of the Great God, ſurrender to him his due, before he appear in his ſtrength to force it from them.

Of the Kingdom, Laws, and Government of Chriſt in the Heart and Conſcience, its Inoffenſiveneſs to all juſt Laws and Governments of the Kingdoms of Men.

CHriſt's Kingdom, God's Kingdom, the Kingdom of Heaven (for they are all one and the ſame) is that ſeed of Eternal Life, which God hath hid in the hearts of the Sons Sons of Men, whereby he gathereth them back unto himself, bringeth them under the Yoak of his Government, ruleth over them, and reigneth in them.

This Kingdom is likened to a Grain of Mustard-Seed, for its smalness; to a Pearl, for its Riches, Value, and Worth? to Leaven, for its spreading Nature. And many other Parables did Christ make use of to discover it by, as to a piece of Silver, which the Woman that lost it, lighting the Candle, sweeping the House, and searching it diligently, at length found it even there where she had lost it.

Man fallen from God, is become lost as to the Lord, and as to his own happiness in the Lord, being driven from his blessed Presence, and divine Image, Life, and Spirit, into the earthly Spirit, Image, and Life which he chose. Yet in this Earth, in this Field of the World, God hath hid somewhat, even the Everlasting Pearl; which, when man is awakened to seek, and findeth in the living Breath, in the eternal Light of Life, it is able to redeem him, it is able to overspread (he becoming subject to the Laws, Leadings, Teachings and Power of it) and leaven him into the Likeness and Image of the pure Life and Spirit.

O that men knew the Gift of God, O that men knew the Purchase of the Bloud of Christ, O that men knew that spiritual good thing, which Christ (who dyed for them) hath given to Redeem them by, that in that they might be united to Christ, and so by him be Renewed and Restored to God. For as the Father receiveth none but through the Son, so the Son receiveth none but in that gift which he bestoweth from the Father. He owneth no Faith, no Love, no Hope, no Repentance, no Obedience, but what springeth from that, and standeth in that.

Now as man is Born of this, is Leavened by this (as he becomes a Fool in his own Earthly Wisdom and excellency of the fallen Spirit, and becomes a Babe, Child, a Simple, Innocent, &c.) so he enters into the Kingdom, being ingrafted into the Root, through the Virtue of this which is given him from the Root, and so grows up in this, and this in him. And here's the new Nature, the new Life, the new Heart, the new Spirit, in which the Unity and Fellowship with God is again known, and the Distance with the World, the Wisdom, the Interests, the Fashions, the Customs, the Fears, the Hopes, the Delights, the Joys of this World, and whatever else is of it. For Christ, as he is not of the World, so he calleth men out of the World; and they which follow him, and become his Disciples, go out of the World after him; that is, travel in Spirit and Conversation from what is of the Earth, from what ever is not of the Father, but of the World. They are not of the World, as I am not of the World (saith Christ concerning his Disciples, John 17. Therefore the World hateth them.

The Laws of this Kingdom are given forth in the Kingdom, from the Covenant of Covenant of life, which is made there in Christ. They are written in the heart, in the mind, as far as it is renewed. There the Fear is put, there the Eternal Wisdom is opened, there is Sion known, and the Jerusalem which is from above, and the Laws of eternal Life issue fresh from it, and are revealed by the Life, in the heart which is turned towards the life. There sin is reproved, and everlasting Righteousnes manifested, in the Light which cannot deceive: and as the heart is made subject under the yoak, so sin is wrought out and righteousness brought in; and under the cross or yoke of life, the bloud of the everlasting Covenant runs through the Vessel, to keep it pure, sweet, clean and fresh in the life.

This then is the Government of Christ, to be subject to his Spirit, which appears and opens his Will, in the gift of Grace which comes from him: to feel his living Breath, by which the heart is begotten to God, out of the Region of Darkness; to know the movings, the stirrings, the leadings, the steps of the Lamb, who is the Captain of our Salvation; and to follow him where-ever he goes. doing all things that he commands, forbearing all things that he forbids, without Murmuring, without Disputing.

Who ever will be of the inward Israel, the spiritual Israel, which Christ redeems out of the spiritual Ægypt, and leads through the spiritual Wilderness, into the Land of Rest, must know his leader, must receive his Spirit, and follow it faithfully. If any man hath not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his, he is none of the spiritual Israel: And if any man follow not the Spirit of Christ through all the Travels in the Wilderness, (but either sits down by the Way, or lies overcome by any kind of Enemies, and comes not to

to the end of his Journey, finishing the Warfare and Fight of Faith) he falls short of the rest. O that men were awakened to consider of things as indeed they are: For Religion is not such an outward Form of Doctrine, or Worship of any sort, as men generally (whose poor Souls are deceived through the subtilty of the powers of darkness) are too apt and willing to apprehend; but it consists in Spirit, in Power, in Vertue, in Life: Not in the oldness of any Form which passeth away, but in the newness of the Spirit, which abideth for ever; in being born of the Spirit, in abiding in the Spirit, in living, walking, and worshipping in the Spirit, yea, in becoming and growing into Spirit, and into eternal Life: For that which is born of the Spirit, is Spirit. O that the Sons of Men would hearkened, that they might taste of the sweetness and riches of the goodness, which the Father in his free Love hath opened in the Spirits of many, and inclined the Spirits of many into. O that men would suffer the wearing out of this earthly Spirit and Wisdom, that they might become like God, be formed into and live in his Image: How long shall the Destroyer in every Age, prejudice men against them in that age, which seek their good with their hearts! How long will the World stand in enmity against the Generation of God's choice, and provoke the Lord to Wrath against them! Surely the Spirit of this World will try it out to the very last against the Spirit of God: For indeed the Spirit of this World is not subject to the Spirit of God, nor indeed can be, and so cannot endure the Government of his Kingdom (which is not of this World) to be set up in the sight of it.

Yet the Government of Christ and his Kingdom, is not opposite to any just Government of a Nation or People. Christs Government is a Righteous Government of the heart, or inner manchiefly, which doth not oppose a Righteous Government of the outward man. Nay, those who are Christs subjects, and singly obedient to his Law of Righteousness in their spirits; are more faithful to men, and more subject to any just Law of Government, than others can be: for their fidelity and subjection is out of love, and for Conscience sake. But this is it which offends the World, men many times make Laws in their own will, and according to their own Wisdom (now the wisdom of the World is corrupt, and hath erred from the guidance of God) and are not free from self-ends and interests, not being gathered into that, which cleanseth and keepeth pure the naturals. Now that which is of God, cannot bow to any thing which is corrupt in man: it can lye down and suffer, and bear the plowing of long and deep furrows upon its back, but it cannot act that which is against its life. It cannot be disloyal to its King, to gratifie the spirit of this World; but what Practice or Testimony its King calls for, against the evil and corruption of this World, it must obey singly and faithfully.

God in every age so bringeth forth and ordereth his innocent Lambs and People, as that they are still offensive to the present age. The Lord fitteth them, and calleth them forth to be Witnesses against the evils of the present age, How can they but offend it? Can darkness chuse but hate the light, which speaks against it? How can darkness in Power and Dominion, bear to be reproved by a mean contemptible appearance of the Light, in mean and contemptible Vessels? For God chuseth the weak, and foolish things of this World, and things that are not, to bring to nought things that are. Look into former ages, How did God reprove the Kings and Princes of Israel? Not by the eminent Priests and Prophets, whom they expected to be taught by, but by Herdsmen, by Plowmen, by Prophets which they despised. How did he overcome the Heathenish World, yea, and the Jewish corrupted state? Was it by wise learned men (by the learned Scribes and Pharisees among the Jews, or by the wise Grecians among the Heathen) or by Fishermen and Publicans? and how shall the recovery out of the Apostacy, and the reproof of the Antichristian World be? Shall it be by wise Synods and Councils of Learned and Orthodox men among them (as they speak?) Or shall it be by the learning of the spirit in such as these contemn? When God hath the rich Treasure of the Knowledge of his Kingdom to manifest in the World, he chuses earthen Vessels, weak vessels, poor contemptible persons (he appears there, (where the eye of man least looks for him) that the excellency of the Power might appear to be of him wholly, and that the Vessel might rob him of none of the Glory of it. Now the Lord hath not only chosen, in this day of his great appearance in spirit to the spirits of his People, mean Instruments, but mean things also, foolish things, weak things, the keeping on of an Hat, the use of ordinary Language, the appearing in mean habits and despised gestures, yea, and in a foolish way way of Preaching (indeed it is so, to that which hath not the savour of the Vertue and Power of the life in it) And how can the wisdom of man but stumble at it? Who would think that God should require such things, or appear in such things? O living eternal Power, how is thy mighty Presence and Appearance vailed from all, that look for it in any way of mans observation, or judge it with the eye of mans wisdom! Verily, thou art a God that hast hid thy self from the earthly spirit in its utmost Wisdom, yea, in its utmost search after the knowledge of, and in the midst of the highest profession of Religion! Which of the Wise, which of the Scribes in this Age can discern any of the Paths, or so much as one of thy Foot steps! Oh that men would fear before the Lord, and be sure to govern in that which is of God, and then they should harm none of his, nor hazard the shaking of their Government; but whatever is not of God, both within and without, must fall in the day of Gods power. O happy is he, who is now made willing to part with that, which God is determined to rend from man, that his standing may be in that which cannot be shaken. For there hath been a great Earthquake in this Nation, both of things without and of things within; and there yet remains somewhat to be shaken both without and within, that the Glory of God may have room to appear. O England, Kiss the Son lest he be angry: Let all such Laws and Customs as are not of him, fall before him, and whatever is of him, let it bow unto him (both within and without) that his Wrath break not forth like a fire, which none can quench. For the Lord hath mighty things to bring to pass, and he hath a mighty Arm of Power to effect them by, and what shall be able to stand before him, that stands in his way?

An ANSWER to that common Objection against the QUAKERS, That they condemn all but themselves, With a Loving and Faithful Advertisement to the Nation and Powers thereof.

OBJECTION.

IT is commonly Objected against us, That we condemn all but our selves, all the Protestant Churches, Martyrs, and Worthies formerly (many of whom were valiant Champions against Rome, and divers of them sealed their Testimony with their Blood) and all sorts of Christians and Professors at present, who are not just of our stamp and way, though otherwise never so zealous and upright hearted towards God.

ANSWER:

The Protestant Churches (as they are called in way of distinction from the Church of Rome) the blessed Martyrs, who suffered for the Testimony of a pure Conscience towards God, and all the Worthies of the Lord in their several Generations, who fought against that Scarlet Whore, were accepted of God in their Testimony against her, and are not disowned by us, but dearly owned and honoured therein: And for agreeing with them in their Testimony in several things, as against deriving of a Ministry from Rome (which Luther wrote against, and John Hus Propheſied of another Ministry to arise) and against maintaining the Gospel Ministry by Tythes, or any other way of forced maintainance, which (till Popery grew very strong and powerful) was known to have been free, and against swearing, &c. (Walter Brute said, the perfection of Christian men is not to swear at all, because they are so commanded of Christ, whose commandment must in no case be broken, although that the City of Rome is contrary to this Doctrine of Christ, Fox his Acts and Monuments, Page 460, 461. And see also Page 495. Thorp's Testimony both about Tythes and Swearing.) For these very things and such like (as for following of Christ, in not receiving or giving that honour which is out of the Faith, and for for testifying against the Hypocrisies and Corruptions of our age) do we suffer in this our day, even as they did in their day, from the same Spirit that persecuted them; which though it hath much changed its form and way of appearance, yet still retaineth the same nature.

But all things were not discovered at once. The times were then dark; and the light small: yet they being faithful according to what was discovered, were pretious in the Lords eyes; and what through ignorance they erred in, the Lord winked at and overlooked, being pleased with that sincerity and simplicity of heart, which he had stirred up in them towards himself. But if they were now alive in these our days, and should depart from the sincerity which was then in them, and oppose the Light of this age; they would not then be accepted of the Lord, but their former sincerity would be forgotten. For the Light shineth more and more towards the perfect day: and it is not the owning of the Light as it shone in the foregoing ages, which will now commend any man to God, but the knowing and subjecting to the Light of the present age. Even as in these our days, there was (some years ago) an honest zeal and true simplicity stirring in the Puritans (especially among the Non-conformists of them) which was of the Lord, and was very dear to him; And had the Generations of this age abode there, they would have been able to have followed the Lord in every further step and leading of his Spirit. But departing from that into some form or other, the true simplicity withered, and another thing began to live in them; and so they setled upon their lees, magnifying the form they had chose to themselves, till at length their hearts became hardned from the pure fear, even to the contracting of a spirit of Prophaneness, insomuch as they could mock at the next remove and discovery of the Spirit as some new Light: and so by degrees have grown persecutors of that spirit in its out-goings in the people of the Lord, which they themselves had once some taste of, while they were reproached for Puritans. And the God of this World, who at first tempted them aside into the form, hath at length prevailed so far to blind them therewith, that they can neither see what spirit they themselves are of, nor what spirit it is they persecute.

Let therefore people consider the truth of the thing, as it is before the Lord: We do not cast dirt upon any, in whom the truth of God hath stirred and appeared in any measure in former ages, or in this our age: but this we testifie against, to wit, the setting up of any form without the life; for it is the erring spirit which still cryeth up the form, to keep down the power by the form, and so by the help of it to bewitch from the Spirit, wherein is the life, and not in the form. This was the painted Jezabel of the Apostles Age, false teachers finely dressed up themselves with the form of godliness, and then under this cover they could deny the power, and make head against it, 2 Tim. 3. 5. how easie is it for them who appear in the form of the Doctrines of the Gospel, in the form of zeal, in the form of holiness, to pass in a Nation for the true Church, and then to asperse them for Hereticks, who (appearing in the power) cannot but deny that form which is without the power. This is the great Witch of this age (even that spirit of Zeal and Devotion, which is best clothed and decked with the form without the power) which though men (who judge of the things of God after the flesh) justifie, admire, and much contend for in her several shapes and dresses (some being for one, some for another) yet the Lord is searching after her, and will find her out with his eternal flames, which will make her manifest, and all her lovers shall dread her burning and bed of Torment. Now as all along the Apostacy, this bewitching spirit (this spirit which bewitcheth from the power) hath crept up under a form of Church Worship and Holiness; so the other Spirit (the pure Spirit of life, (the Spirit of true zeal, and fear of the Lord) hath still appeared more and more out of the Forms. Who were the best Preachers, and most eminent Christians in the Puritan days? Were they not those who least minded the form then, nay indeed, who were most against the Form, and persecuted for their conscientious stumbling at it? And who were the greatest Persecutors then, but they who were most zealous for the Form, both of the Government and Worship of the Church of England? And where is the persecuting Spirit next to be looked for, but in the forms which should next appear? And where likewise is the appearance of the true Spirit next to be looked for, but in those whom the Lord should raise up to testifie against those Forms, and to be the succeeding sufferers for their Testimony, as the Puritans had been foregoing sufferers for their Testimony?

Yet if there be any persons left, among any of the Forms which have appeared (whether former or latter) that have not lost their sincerity and true zeal towards God, them we own and have unity with, so far as they keep, or rather are kept thereto. If there be any among the Episcopal sort, that in truth of heart desire to fear the Lord, and look upon the Common-Prayer Book as an acceptable way of worshipping him; we pity their blindness, yet are tender towards them, and would not have the simplicity persecuted in them because of this, but rather cherished. If there be any among the Presbyterians, Independants, Anabaptists, Seekers, or any other sort, that in truth of heart wait upon the Lord in those ways, and do not find a deadness overgrown them, but a pure, fresh, lively zeal towards God, with an unfeigned love to his people, our hearts are one with this; and we cannot fight against this good thing in any of them, though in love to them we testifie, that their form and way of Worship, is their present loss and hinderance, yet we doubt not, but that the Lord (in his time) will make manifest to such the Light of this Age, which is the very thing the People of God in many foregoing Ages have been praying for. But this is our Lamentation, that forms and ways of Worship abound, but the Puritan-Principle, the Puritan-Spirit is lost and drowned in them all; and that men are hardened against our Testimony, not from the remainders of the simplicity in them, but because they are erred from the simplicity, and fallen in League with another Spirit, which hath lain lurking in Forms of Knowledge and Worship (to tempt aside from the simplicity, and to hide the sight of the Life and Power from the panting Soul) all this night of the Apostacy.

Now mark how easie and natural it is to that Spirit to enter into a form, to cry up a Form, to set up a Form in a Nation, City, or Countrey (doubtless it had been done in this Nation long ago, had not the mighty hand of the Lord withstood it.) When the evil and unclean Spirit is detected and driven out of one Form, if it doth not get another suddenly to appear in and tempt with, it must needs lose many of its Subjects. The Strumpet or false Church is forced (as God discovers her nakedness and lewdness) to change her dresses and appearances, to new trick and adorn her Bed: And then, as if she also were changed, and were now no longer the same, she comes forth again with boldness, and tempteth the young Man again to come in unto her. Prov. 7. 16. And thus she casteth down many Wounded, yea many strong men have been slain by her, ver. 26. Who otherwise would have pondered the Path of Life, chap. 5. 6. had they not been ensnared by her flatteries, who forsaketh the guide of her Youth, and forgetteth the Covenant of her God, chap. 2. 17. There is no more certain and ready way to suppress truth, and to betray the honesty which is singly searching after it, than to present a form of Godliness or Worship, as the proper way of meeting with it: For hereby the Soul is lulled asleep with a false hope, until the freshness of its desire begins to dy, and its Life to wither; and then the fleshly part easily grows into unity with, and zeal for that Form which indeed is of the flesh, though it appeared and tempted as if it had been otherwise. And how many have gone a great way towards Hell, and have been deeply entangled and distressed in the Chambers of death, by entring into this Strumpets Church or House which they then (through the subtilty of her deceit) took for the House or Church of God? Pro. 7. 27. Consider the thing a little seriously. When the evil Spirit is driven out of his strong Hold of gross Popery, whither should he run but into Episcopacy? When he is driven out of Episcopacy, whither should he run but into Presbytery? When he is driven out of Presbytery, whither should he run but into Independancy? When he is driven out of Independancy, whither should he run but into Anabaptism? When he is driven out of Anabaptism, whither should he run but into a Way of Seeking? And what is his end of running into Episcopacy, but to save alive that Spirit which was hunted out of Popery (and could abide no longer there) and so the better (and the safer from being discerned) to reproach and persecute the other Spirit (where-ever it appeared) under the Nick-names of Puritans, Separatists, Brownists, Round-heads, &c. And what is his end afterwards of running into Presbytery, but to save that alive which was hunted out of Episcopacy, and to persecute the former truly zealous Spirit (where it should further appear afterwards) by means of that Form? Thus the forms and appearances of things change, but the sight is still the same, the evil Spirit still getting uppermost, under a form of Godliness, and from thence shooting forth its Arrows at those that seek after purity of heart, and cannot but testifie against those forms where the impure one lodgeth.

This

This then is the sum of our answer in this respect; we are not against the true Life and Power of Godliness, where-ever it hath appeared, or yet appears under the Vail of any Form whatsoever. Nay all persons who singly wait upon the Lord, in the simplicity and sincerity of their hearts, whether under any form, or out of forms (that matters little to us) are very dear unto us in the Lord. But we are against all Forms, Images, Imitations, and Appearances, which betray the simplicity and sincerity of the heart, keep the Life in Bondage, and endanger the loss of the Soul. And too many such now there are, which hold the immortal Seed of Life in Captivity under death, over which we cannot but mourn, and wait for its breaking off the Chains, and its rising out of all its Graves into its own pure Life, Power, and fulness of Liberty in the Lord.

A Loving and Faithful Advertisement to the Nation and Powers thereof.

O King, O Parliament, O Nation of England, consider before the Decree come forth, before the ruine of the Nation (with the Powers thereof) be irrevocably sealed: for the Lord hath a controversie with this Nation, and he will plead with thee O England, who desirest not; nor canst not bear a Government in Righteousness, for the suppressing of the evil, and encouragement of the good, but the good is still suppressed in thee, and cannot grow as it ought, because of the Lust of the Nation against the purity of the life of God, and because of the corrupt wills, ends, and interests of those who still are in Power.

After King Henry the 8.th had renounced and shaken off in part, the Pope's Authority in this Nation, he did not let it fall to the ground as an evil thing, but took upon himself the exercise of it, assuming to himself the Headship and Government under Christ in all Ecclesiastical Causes and Matters in his Dominions. The same course his Successors followed, keeping the very Title which the Pope gave to him of Defender of the Faith. And so Parliaments in their days (as if the Government of the Church were a right and priviledge of the Nation, and not peculiar to Christ) have taken upon them to make Laws and Orders, about the Government of the Church and People of God in Spiritual things, as well as about matters of State.

Now it would fairly and honestly (with the Spirit of Meekness, and in the Fear of the Lord) be enquired into, Whether the Pope's Power and Authority in this Nation, was a true Church-Power and Authority? That is, Whether it was such a Church-Power and Authority as Christ had instituted, or of another Nature, even of a Nature contrary to Christ, and to his inward Government in the Spirits of his People? For if the Pope's Power and Authority was a true Church-power and Authority, then it may be lawful in another hand, though not in the Pope's: But if it was an usurped kind of Authority and Government in it self, then it cannot be lawful in it self, nor serviceable to Christ in any other hand, but will prove an Instrument of War against him, in whose hands soever it be put. And let it be singly considered, whether the Church Power in this Nation hath not been a curb to the rising of the purity of Religion, even a sharp check upon the tender Conscience, but such as the loose (yea prophane Spirit) would take pleasure in and contend for?

The true Church-Power is only the Power of the Spirit of Christ. That converts men to God, and that alone is able to govern them (in the affairs of his Kingdom; being converted. Man medling with Religion and Church-Government in his Wisdom, is but a Beast: and must govern like a Beast; namely, with Force and Cruelty over the Spirit and Conscience which is tender towards God. As the Lord God of Heaven and Earth, never gave the converting Power to any, so neither did he ever give this Governing Power to any, further than as they were endued with his Spirit: For that is the Scepter of his Church and Kingdom, which is a Scepter of Righteousness, which leads on in the love and gentleness of the Spirit, that which is to be dealt gentle with, and spiritually cuts off by its severity and sharpness that which is to be cut off. And here are Christs limits of Government, which that Spirit and Wisdom which exceeds, errs, and does hurt both to it self and others.

Now if in the mist of darkness, which hath long overspread the Earth, (for though there brake out a little Light to discover the thick blackness of Popery, and to cause some Reformation out of it, yet the mist was not expelled) this Nation hath erred, her Princes, her Teachers, her Parliaments, and all sorts of Persons, in laying hold on and establishing a wrong Church-Power, which Power hath had a bad effect, namely, in suppressing the progress of the reforming Spirit, and raising up a formal Spirit (if not a Spirit of loosness and prophaneness) which ran backwards towards Popery, and not forwards from it: Yet let them not love error, and so strive against the Light which shineth forth to discover the error to them. But let them humble themselves before Christ the Lord of all, and restore unto him that which is his due, lest they provoke him to Wrath, and cause him to take from them what they look upon as their due. For is it not just with Christ to take that power from men, which they (so long as they have it) will not forbear managing and making use of to keep him from his power? Consider these things, O England, for they belong to thy peace, and toward the mitigation of thy sorrow and misery in the day of thy calamity.

This is from one who hath mourned over thee, while thou hast been rejoycing, Isaac Penington the Younger.

O that thou couldst know, at least in this last hour of thy day, how to make thy peace with the Lord, and not begin that controversie afresh with him, which he hath already so much shattered and broken thee about, that the dregs of the Cup (wherof thou hast already so largly drunk) might pass from thee.

An Explanatory POSTSCRIPT.

WE read of the setting up of another Power than Christ's in the Church, after the dayes of the Apostles, 1 Thes. 2. 4. Rev. 13. 2. Which Power was to last 42 months, even all the time of Antichrist's Reign; by which Power the Beast should make War with, and overcome the Saints in all Kindreds, Tongues and Nations, ver. 5, 6, 7. And all this wickedness and persecutions of the Saints should be committed, under a pretence of righteousness, as if it were for Christ and the well-government of his Church, from a true and rightly-derived, and well-ballanced Power, 1 Thes. 2. 8, 9. Now this Power will last in one form or other, even till the very coming of Christ: and then shall that wicked Spirit (in all his workings, in all his various appearings and transformings, as if he still were for God, and for the right and orderly Government of his Church and Temple) be discovered, by degrees consumed, and at last destroyed, ver. 8. And then the Kings or Powers of the Earth, which give their power and strength to the Beast (helping him to cause men to worship, Rev. 13. 15, 16.) making War with the Lamb and his suffering Saints by their Laws, Whips, Prisons, Fines, &c. shall be overcome by him, who fighteth against them with the Spirit of his mouth, and by his Truth, Meekness, and Righteousness, which shines in the Hearts and Conversations of his Called, Faithful, and Chosen, Rev. 17. 13, 14. Psal. 45. 4, 5.

The power of Christ cannot hurt any of his Lambs (it never forced the weak ones, the tender conscienced, but he carrys the Lambs in his Bosom, and gently leads those that are with Young, Isa. 40. 11.) He had rather have many Hipocrites spared, than one Ear of Wheat plucked up, Mat. 13. 29. That power therefore in the Church which spares the Hypocrites (who can easily comply with an outward Conformity in Worship, without feeling an inward Life or Virtue) but lights heavy on that which is tender and shy in matters of Worship (knowing that it must give an account thereof to Christ) that is not the true Church-power, but at best but a counterfeit of the true.

WHether it be lawful for Chriſtians (who know Chriſt, the ſubſtance of all the Shadows under the Law, and are in the New Covenant) to Swear upon weighty occaſions, as it was lawful for the Jews to do under the Old Covenant? Or, Whether Chriſt alloweth his Diſciples to ſwear in ſolemn Caſes, as Moſes did allow his Diſciples.

Anſw. For the clearing of this weighty Controverſie, to all ſuch as ſingly deſire to know the Truth (as it is in Jeſus) in this particular, that their hearts may bow to Him therein, and not be overtaken with the Reaſonings and Subtilties of the Carnal Mind (which never knew nor can know the Power, but hath always been, and ſtill is ſetting up dead Images, of God's Truths and of his Worſhip, out of the Power) theſe few things following would be conſidered of; Firſt, What an Oath is? Or, The nature of a right and true Oath under the Law. Secondly, The ground or occaſion of its Inſtitution. Thirdly, The Caſes wherein an Oath was to be uſed. Fourthly, The proper end and ſervice of an Oath. Fifthly, the ſuitableneſs of its Nature, to its End and Service. Laſtly, The perſons to whom the uſe of an Oath was proper in it's ſelf, and intended and allowed by God; and whether there be any perſons to whom it is not proper, and to whom the Lord doth not allow it? This laſt is the main, and will of it ſelf determine the thing, but yet a brief Conſideration of the former may not be unprofitable, to make way for a clearer leading and inſight into it.

First, As touching an Oath, what it is, or the Nature of it. A true and lawful Oath under the Law was an Engagement or Bond upon the Soul (Numb. 30. 2.) by the Name of the Lord (Deut. 10. 20.) to the ſpeaking of Truth in things Affirmed, and to the performance of Truth in things Promiſed. It was as a Seal to bind fallen man (man fallen from the Truth, from the Uprightneſs) to Truth in his Words and Promiſes, either to God or Man. This is the nature and uſe of an Oath, to wit, to bind the Soul to Truth, to be ſuch an Engagement upon the Soul, as if there be any fear of God there, it cannot cannot but dread to break, knowing that the Lord will not hold him Guiltleſs, that taketh his Name in vain.

Secondly, The ground or occaſion of an Oath, is the Fall of Man from Truth, from Innocency, from the Uprightneſs which engaged him to Truth before his Fall. This made the Jews ſtand in need of this Bond under the Law, in their Purpoſes and Promiſes towards God; and the ſame thing likewiſe made them ſtand in need of it one from another, to Ratifie and Confirm Truth between them.

Thirdly, The Caſes wherein an Oath was to be uſed, which were chiefly theſe four:

1. In caſe of a promiſe or Vow to God.
2. In caſe of Promiſe to man.

} That the Truth, Integrity, and plain Intention of the Heart might ſtand, and there might be no departing therefrom, in the thing promiſed, either to God or man; an Oath in that ſtate was found uſeful to bind the ſoul thereto

3. In caſe of Pronouncing or Declaring the Truth of a Thing, which was weighty, that there might be a clear and ſatisfactory ground of belief.

4. In caſe of Controverſie between Parties, where the Controverſie could not be determined, but by taking the Confeſſion of the one Party for Truth; there that Party was to ſeal his Confeſſion with an Oath, and ſo the other to reſt ſatisfied therewith, and the Controverſie thereupon end.

Fourthly, The end of an Oath, which is, for final Confirmation, and avoiding of all further Strife and Contention about the Thing ſworn to: By binding the Thing (promiſed or affirmed) with an Oath, the thing is confirmed; and now there is no more ſtrife in the heart concerning the thing, if relating to God, or between man and man in things relating to them, but the ſtriving nature is bound down by the Oath of God, wherewith the Thing is ratified, and ſo the Doubt and Uncertainty removed, and the Conteſt ended. Thus of right it ought to be, and is where the Oath is forcible and in its proper ſervice.

Fifthly, The ſuitableneſs of its nature to the end aimed at by it. Man out of the Chriſtian Life, can go no further, than to engage himſelf by the fear and dread of that God, whom he profeſſeth to Worſhip and ſerve, and who cannot but be jealous of his Name and Honour, and ready to vindicate the taking of it in vain. Man under the Law, could not bind himſelf to God, in any promiſe or ſervice more than thus; nor can there be any greater Bond or Seal of Truth given by one man to another, in the fallen ſtate, than this. And he that will venture to break this, what but Deceit and Treachery can be expected from him? inſomuch as no other Engagement from him can be of weight, he hereby manifeſting the want of that in his mind and ſpirit, whereupon all ties are to faſten.

Sixthly, The perſons to whom the uſe of an Oath was proper and lawful, and for whom it was inſtituted; and whether there be any perſons to whom it is not proper and lawful, and for whoſe uſe it was not inſtituted?

To find out this diſtinctly and truly, we muſt conſider the ſeveral Conditions of Man ſince the Creation, and obſerve to which of thoſe it is uſeful and proper in it ſelf, and allowed by God; and to which it is not uſeful in it ſelf, nor allowed by God.

There have been four Eſtates or Conditions of Mankind ſince the Creation:

1. An Eſtate of Innocency, an Eſtate of Integrity, of Purity, of Righteouſneſs, wherein man could not lye or deceive; but his Promiſes to God, and his Words to Men, muſt needs be Yea and Amen: for it was impoſſible to man, who was made in Gods Image (which is Truth) to lye or deceive, until the Deceit entred him, and drew him out of the Truth.

2. There was (and ſtill is) an Eſtate of deep Captivity, wherein this Truth and Innocency was wholly loſt, and man wholly corrupted in his ſpirit and nature, and wholly degenerated from God. This was the Eſtate of the Heathen, who knew not God generally, nor deſired after Him, but walked in the vanity of their minds, and were given up to their own hearts luſts. Yet among ſome of theſe the Eternal Principle of Life was ſtirring, which did check them, and offer to guide them out of this Eſtate, which they that hearkened unto, did not remain in the Fall with the reſt, but felt the Power of that, which reproved and checked them, circumciſing their Hearts, and, in their Obedience thereto, juſtifying them in their Conſciences before God.

3. There

3. There was an Estate of shadowy Redemption, which was not the true Estate of Redemption it self, or they the true People which were to be redeemed, but a shaddow of the Redemption, a shaddow of the Redeemed People, a shaddow of the Way and Path of Life, wherein were Figures of the Heavenly Substance, the Heavenly People, the Heavenly Things, the Heavenly Inheritance, the Heavenly Food, &c. But all these Figures, in and under the Law, were not the true Heavenly and Invisible Things themselves, but Outward and Visible Signs and Representations of them.

4. There was, and, blessed be the Lord, now at length (after the great, long, and dark night of Apostacy) again is brought forth an Estate of True Redemption, wherein the Soul is brought back from the Death, from the Captivity, from the Fall, from the Deceit, and from the Shaddows, into the Truth, into the pure Life, into the Innocency, into the Uprightness; Wherein Christ (the Power of God) is witnessed, and the Soul new formed in his pure Image, and become a new Creature, having a new Eye, a new Ear, a new Heart, a new Nature, a new Life and Spirit (in the newness of which Life, it is to live and walk) a new Course and Conversation, a new Place to walk and have its Conversation in, even in that very Heaven, from whence it looks for the Saviour; wherein also all old things, which came in by the Fall, and all the old Shaddows of the Law are to pass away, and in this state all things to become new. And this is not only to be expected in the perfection of this state, but belongs (in its measure and degree) to the very beginning of it: for even so soon as a man is engrafted into Christ, even then he is a new Creature, and all things then begin to become new unto him, and he is then to begin, departing from all the old things, both of the Natural or Heathenish state, and of the Jewish state, until he hath left them all behind. The Apostle saith expresly, If any man be in Christ, he is a new Creature: Old things are passed away, all things are become new. Christ, the Lord and Master of all Believers, who himself was not of the World, calleth all his Disciples and Followers out of the World: How, out of the World? Doth He call them from having any being or commerce in the Earth, or in the World? Nay, not so, but to come out of the Evil and Corrupt state, Practices, and Ways of the World; out of the Earthly Ways of the Heathens, out of the Earthly Ordinances and Observations of the Jews; Yea, even out of every thing in both, which was not of the Father, but of the World; and this made them a gazing stock to both, and the scorn and hatred of both, where-ever they came.

These are the four Estates or Conditions of Man-kind since the Creation: In one of which, all men that ever were, have been to be found; and according to the Estate and Condition wherein Man is found, is the Law of God to him, and his requirings of him.

Now let any Man, in the Fear of the Lord God, weigh and consider. to which sort or sorts of these an Oath was useful in it self, and allowed by God, and to which not. Was it useful in the Innocent state? Or, did God appoint it there, when man could not but speak Truth? Or, is it useful in the Redeemed Estate, where a greater Bond is received, and professedly held forth, than the Innocency of Man's Nature was? Is not Christ the Truth, the Substance? Is not he that is in him, the New-Creature? Were not all the Oaths and Shaddows of the Law, to last till Christ the Substance came? Is not this the Bond of the Gospel? And doth not this seal Truth, and keep to Truth more firmly than the Oath under the Law could? And the greater Bond being come, doth not the lesser Bond which signified it) flee away and vanish, and the use of it now become both needless and unlawful? Men may reason subtilly, and perswade strongly against the Truth, but we know certainly and infallibly in the Light of the Lord, that the use of an Oath was not for Man in Innocency, nor for Man under the power and vertue of the Redemption by Christ (which brings Man back into the Truth, into the Innocency, and into that Life and Strength, which preserves in the Truth and Innocency) but for fallen Man, for Man erred from the Truth and Covenant of God: And it is very manifest to us, that for a Disciple of Christ, who hath received the Law from his Lips against Swearing, to be brought back again to Swearing (the Bond of Man in the fallen state, and under the Law) is no less than a denial of Christ, who is his Life and Redeemer out of the fallen state, and who also is the substance, which ends the Oaths: and he

that hath ever known the pure Power of His Life, and received the pure Law thereof in the clear Openings of his Spirit, muſt not depart from thence, from the feeling of that, into the fleſhly reaſonings, into conſultations with the fleſhly-wiſe part, which will be ſure to give ſuch Interpretations of Scriptures, as may avoid the Croſs; but keep to that Power which begat him, and to that Principle wherein he was begotten; and there he ſhall never be able to get beyond the Yea and Amen in Chriſt, beyond the Confeſſing of the Truth in the Preſence and Life of it, which is the end and ſubſtance of Swearing under the Law; and therefore the Apoſtle Paul, who ſeveral Times, and in ſeveral Caſes relates to the Prophecies of the Prophets (who foretold of things under the Goſpel, in Law-phraſes) renders the word Confeſs, inſtead of Swear, as may appear by comparing, Rom. 14 11. and Philip 2. 11.. with Iſa. 45. 23. That which the Law called Swearing, the Goſpel calls confeſſing (each of them ſpeaking of the ſame thing, in the proper dialect of each:) which Confeſſing in the Life, in the Truth, in the renewed Principle, is the weight and ſubſtance of that, whereof the Oath was but a ſhadow. For what is the ſubſtance and intent of an Oath? is not the intent of it to bind to the ſpeaking or performing of Truth? And what is it that binds? is it the ſhadow or the ſubſtance? is it the words of an Oath, or the ſenſe and weight of the thing upon the ſpirit? It was not the form of an Oath, but the weight and ſubſtance hid underneath, which bound the Jew under the Law; and if there be more weight and ſubſtance in the Yea and Nay of a Diſciple under the Goſpel, it muſt needs be more binding to them, and hath alſo more true ground of ſatisfaction in it (to other Chriſtians at leaſt) than a Jew or Heathens ſwearing; yea, and if the Men of the World would but freely ſpeak their hearts, it would be acknowledged to be of more weight with them alſo. Who of thoſe who have obſerved and known our Converſation, and upright ſpeaking and behaviour for theſe many years (both towards the various Rulers and Authorities of the Nation, and alſo towards all men of all ſorts) would not prefer our Yea and Nay before the Oaths of others.

Object. But though a Chriſtian may not ſwear in relation to himſelf, yet why may he not ſwear in relation to the ſatisfaction of others, ſeeing God himſelf ſware in that reſpect, whose as much in the Power and Virtue of that Life which binds from Swearing, as a Chriſtian can be?

Anſw. 1. God (being not bound Himſelf by the Laws, wherewith He binds the Creature) may either Himſelf, or by an Inſtrument (in his immediate Life and Power) do that, which the Creature hath not liberty from Him to do; but that is no warrant in general, but the Diſciple is particularly to eye the Rule from his Maſter CHRIST JESUS (who is Lord over the Houſhold of Faith, and who was as faithful in all his Houſe as a Lord, as Moſes the Servant was in his Houſe) by whom the ſame God, who once allowed Oaths to the Jews, hath now wholly forbidden Swearing. And let the Diſciple diligently and faithfully eye the Laws of the New Covenant (which are written by, and received from the ingrafted Word of Faith in the heart) he ſhall find Oaths excluded there as a part of the Old Covenant, even as a literal and ſhadowy Confirmation of Truth among the Jews, under Moſes his Diſpenſation, for the time of the Law; but the Grace and Truth it ſelf is the ſubſtance, and the Faith received is the ſeal of Truth under the Goſpel, both towards God and man.

Anſw. 2. A Chriſtian may not ſwear in relation to the ſatisfaction of others, Becauſe he is to hold forth his Light, his Life, his Principle in the eye of the World; He is to teſtifie to the Worth aud Excellency of it, that it is a greater and firmer Bond to him both towards God and man) than any Oaths either of the Heathen, or of the Jews can be. Now his entring into their way of Confirmation of things, which is ſhort of his own, is an undervaluing and diſparagement of the worth and weight of that Principle of Truth, which God hath given him and raiſed up in him: It is indeed a denying of it; for, entring into the Law-bond, is a laying of the Goſpel-bond by, and an offering of that as a Bond, which indeed once was ſo, but is now excluded by the Law of Faith from being a Bond any longer, and hath loſt its vertue. And if men would but open their eyes, they might eaſily ſee how little Oaths bind, and how unprofitable they are to the end and uſe for which they are intended: but the Yea and Amen in Chriſt (the Principle of Life) cannot be broken, but he that abides in Him, muſt perform the Yea and Amen, which is firm in him.

Anſw.

Anſw. 3. A Chriſtian or Diſciple may not ſwear under the Goſpel, Becauſe Chriſt hath brought in Confeſſion or Affirmation of the Truth, from the Principle of his Life, inſtead of Oaths: which is made good, not only by the Apoſtle Pauls rendring of Swearing in the Law-time, Confeſſing, in the fulfilling of it under the Goſpel; but alſo by Chriſts bringing in the Yea, Yea, and Nay, Nay, inſtead of the Laws Swearing. In the Jew the Oath was the Seal or Confirmation under the Law; in the Diſciple, who is in the Life, and hath learned the truth of Chriſt the Life, the Yea, Yea, the Nay, Nay, is appointed him by Chriſt inſtead of the Oath. And though the ſubtilty and fleſhly wiſdom ſtrive hard, to wreſt that place out of the hands of the Simplicity, yet they ſhall never be able to do it; but he that looks on it with a ſingle eye in the Light of that Spirit wherein it was wrote, ſhall plainly ſee Chriſts drift to be to take away the ſhadow, even to aboliſh that uſe of Swearing which was proper and allowed to the Jews under the Law, and to bring the Confeſſion or Denyal of the thing, the Yea, Yea, and Nay, Nay, (from the Goſpel-Spirit and Principle in the Diſciple) in the ſtead of it; Which, to make more manifeſt to the honeſt, ſimple, and naked heart, which is willing to take up the Will and Truth of God in every thing, with all the Croſſes that attend it, let theſe few things following be uprightly conſidered of.

Firſt, that ſlight, trivial and frequent Oaths were not allowed under the Law, but forbidden by the Law, as a taking of Gods Holy and Dreadful Name in vain.

Secondly, That though vain Oaths were then forbidden, yet ſolemn Oaths, weighty Oaths (ſuch as were needful and uſeful to the thing intended) were allowed under the Law. So in all thoſe Caſes before expreſſed, Oaths were allowed and juſtifiable, ſo that they were but careful to perform them, and did not forſwear themſelves.

Thirdly, Chriſt brings in an Exception againſt the uſe of this lawful Swearing under the Law, as the Word But doth plainly ſignifie, and forbiddeth Swearing wholly, altogether, or at all. The Law ſaith, Thou ſhalt not forſwear thy ſelf (that's the ſubſtance of what the Law forbids: it allows Swearing, but forbids Forſwearing) But I ſay unto you, Ye ſhall not only avoid Forſwearing, but Swearing alſo, and that wholly or altogether: But I ſay unto you, Swear not at all.

Fourthly, Chriſt brings in another thing inſtead of Swearing (a thing far more ſuitable to the truth, plainneſs and ſimplicity of the Goſpel) which is Confeſſing the thing, or ſpeaking the thing in truth, juſt as it is, either by way of Affirmation or Denyal; But let your Yea be Yea, and Nay, Nay:

And there is liberty enough left to a Diſciple, to ſatisfie any man concerning the truth of a thing by Confeſſion, as much as by an Oath: For is it not full as weighty, under the Goſpel to confeſs the Preſence of God, or that He is Witneſs, or that we ſpeak the thing in his Fear, and in the feeling of his Life and Power, as it was under the Law to Swear by his Life, by his Fear, by his Power, or the like? Is not the Confeſſing of God by a Chriſtian, of more weight, than the Swearing by Him from a Jew or Heathen? O Nations and Powers of the Earth, ſeek Truth, ſeek Righteouſneſs, and do not ſet up a Form or Image of things in your own wills (and according to your own wiſdom and inventions) above the Power of God.

And let it be duly conſidered, whether the Powers of this Nation deal kindly with the Lord, in exacting an Oath from his People, who not in the leaſt diſaffection to them, but only in fidelity of Conſcience to Chriſt their Lord and Maſter, cannot but refuſe it.

The Queſtion is, concerning their Fidelity and Obedience to the King, that is the thing which an Oath is required to ratifie and confirm. Now the Swearing it ſelf (or formal taking of an Oath) is of little value; but to be obedient, to be faithful, is the thing of value. The caſe then ſtands thus; The Lord hath ſo formed them, that they cannot but be faithful and obedient. The Lord hath raiſed up that Principle in them, which cannot hurt the King or any man, nor cannot ſtand by and ſee him or any man hurt, without endeavouring to prevent it. Here is their ſtrength of performing good and avoiding evil; and their Yea and Nay from this Principle, is the beſt Security which they can poſſibly give to any man (and he who hath thus formed them in the pure Principle of his Life, hath likewiſe forbidden them to Swear) But this cannot be accepted for want of the other Confirmation, to wit, of Swearing, which came in by the Fall, and was allowed among the ſhadows of the Law, but is forbidden by the Goſpel.

Now, O King, ſhal not Gods People be faithful and obedient to the Lord as well as to thee? ſhall they not be true to the Principle of Life, wherein they are begotten and brought forth, in the Love and Good-will to all, and out of enmity to any? Hath God raiſed up in them a Principle which cannot deceive, and will not the Yea and Nay of that ſerve (after ſo much experience, through ſo many changes) but they muſt either break Chriſts Command, and hazard their Souls, or elſe loſe their Liberties and Eſtates?

O that men would wait on the Lord, for his pure Fear to be written on their hearts by the finger of His Spirit, that they might come out of the fleſhly wiſdom into the Womb of the Eternal Wiſdom, from whence our Principle came; that they might be able to ſee and juſtifie the Purity, Righteouſneſs, Nobility and Worth of it, and that they might feel its ſecurity from all that is out of the Good-will, out of the Love, out of the Life, and out of the Peace, that ſo there might be an end of all Strife, Rebellion, Heart-burnings, Plots, and all manner of Wickedneſs and Ungodlineſs, which have no place in it, but daily waſte and wither where it is ſown and grows, even till they come to an end, and till Righteouſneſs and pure Innocency fill the room and place which they had, both in the heart and mind within, and in the life and converſation outwardly.

And let every one that nameth the Name of the Lord, depart from Iniqity, and look well to his goings: for the darkneſs of the thick night of Apoſtacy is already paſt, and the True Light now again ſhineth. Bleſſed is the Eye which ſeeth it, and the Heart which is eſtabliſhed in it, in the midſt of thoſe terrible and dreadful ſhakings and confuſions, which muſt not end here, but go over all Nations. O that this Nation could but bow to it, that it might be happy, and its rents and breaches healed for ever.

Somewhat ſpoken TO A Weighty Queſtion. CONCERNING

The Magiſtrates protection of the Innocent, wherein is held forth the bleſſing and Peace which Nations ought to wait for and embrace in the latter days.

With ſome conſiderations for the ſerious and and wiſe in heart throughout this Nation to ponder, for diverting Gods Wrath (if poſſible) from breaking forth upon it.

Alſo a brief Account of what the People called Quakers deſire, in reference to the Civil Government.

With a few words to ſuch as by the everlaſting Arm of Gods Power have been drawn and gathered out of the Apoſtacy into the living Truth and Worſhip.

By ISAAC PENINGTON the Younger. 1661.

And in that day will I make a Covenant for them with the Beaſts of the Field, and with the Fowls of Heaven, and with the creeping things of the Ground, and I will break the Bow, and the Sword, and the Battel out of the earth, and will make them to lye down ſafely. Hoſ. 2, 18.

Somewhat ſpoken to a Weighty Queſtion, concerning the Magiſtrates Protection of the Innocent, wherein is held forth the Bleſſing and Peace, which Nations ought to wait for, and embrace in theſe latter days.

Queſt. WHether the Magiſtrate in Righteouſneſs and Equity is engaged to defend ſuch, who (by the peaceableneſs and love which God hath wrought in their Spirits, and by that Law of life, mercy, good will, and forgiveneſs, which God by his own finger hath written in their hearts) are taken off from fighting, and cannot uſe a Weapon deſtructive to any Creature to defend him?

Anſw. Magiſtracy was intended by God for the defence of the people, not only of thoſe who have ability and can fight for them, but of ſuch alſo who cannot, or are forbidden by the Love and Law of God written in their hearts ſo to do. Thus Women, Children, Sick perſons, Aged perſons, and alſo Prieſts in Nations (who have ability to fight, but are exempted by their function, which is not equivalent to the exemption which God makes by the law of his Spirit in the heart) have the benefit of the Law and of the Magiſtrates Protection, without fighting for the defence of either: And is it not moſt righteous and equal, that fighting, which came in by the fall, ſhould come to an end in ſuch, whom God draws out of the fall; and that Magiſtrates (who have power given them to rule by God, and ought to rule under him) ſhould not require fighting of them, whom the Lord of Lords hath redeemed out of the fighting nature, and choſen to be as examples of meekneſs and peaceableneſs in the places were they live? how can he fight with Creatures in whom is love and good will towards thoſe Creatures, and whoſe Bowels are rowling over them, becauſe of their wandrings in the Luſts, in the Strife, and in the Wars? Fighting is not ſuitable to a Goſpel Spirit, but to the Spirit of the World and the Children thereof. The fighting in the Goſpel is turned inward againſt the Luſts, and not outward againſt the Creatures. There is to be a time, when Nation ſhall not lift up Sword againſt Nation, neither ſhall they learn War any more. When the power of the Goſpel ſpreads over the whole earth, thus ſhall it be throughout the earth; and where the power of the Spirit takes hold of and overcomes any heart at preſent, thus will it be at preſent with that heart. This bleſſed ſtate, which ſhall be brought forth in the general in Gods ſeaſon, muſt begin in particulars; aud they therein are not prejudicial to the World (nor would be ſo looked upon, if the right eye in man were but open to ſee with) but Emblems of that bleſſed ſtate, which the God of Glory hath promiſed to ſet up in the World in the days of the Goſpel. And though by this means, there may ſeem to be a weakning of the ſtrength of the Magiſtrate, and of the defence of that Nation, wherein God cauſeth the vertue and power of his Truth to ſpread in the hearts of people; yet in truth it is not ſo, but a great ſtrengthning. For if Righteouſneſs be the ſtrength of a Nation, and the Seed of God the ſupport of the Earth, then where Righteouſneſs is brought forth, and where the Seed of God ſprings up and flouriſheth, that Nation grows ſtrong; and inſtead of the Arms and Strength of man the eternal ſtrength overſpreads that Nation, and that wiſdom ſprings up in the Spirits of men, which is better than Weapons of War; And the wiſdom which is from above is pure and peaceable, and teacheth to make peace, and to remove the cauſe of Contentions and Wars, and uniteth the heart to the Lord in waiting upon him for Counſel, Strength, and Preſervation in this ſtate, who brought into it. Now is not this much better and ſafer, then the preſent eſtate of things in the World? Firſt, to have the cauſe of Wars removed, and a ſweet, peaceable, righteous Spirit in the ſtead thereof? Secondly, to have a peaceable and a righteous Generation (whom the Lord hath made and preſerved ſo) breathing to the Lord for Peace, Good and Proſperity to the Nation, and Magiſtrates thereof, and to ſtretch forth his Arm to be a defence about them? Thirdly, to have the God of Heaven engaged by his Power to defend that Power and Magiſtracy, which defends Righteouſneſs in general, and particularly his People in their Obedience unto him, whom it is moſt Righteous for them to obey, and for the Magiſtrate (who claims his Rule and Dominion under God) to protect them in? Were not this much better both for Magiſtrates and People, than the preſent Eſtate? O that that were awakened in men, which can rightly diſcern and judge.

Object. But this is an Utopian ſtate, or a World in the Moon? Is it poſſible that ever there ſhould be ſuch a ſtate here on Earth?

Anſw. 1. When the Principle of God, which lies hid in the hearts of men (over which the corrupt nature hath grown, and upon which the Spirit of darkneſs in men tramples) ſhall be raiſed and come into Dominion; Righteouſneſs Peace and good will ſhall ſpring up as naturally among men, as Wars, Strifes, Diviſions, Emulations, heart-burnings, &c. now do.

2. There is a promiſe of ſuch a ſtate, When the Lion ſhall eat Straw like the Ox, and lie down with the Lamb, when the Earth ſhall be filled with the knowledge of the Lord, as the Waters cover the Sea, and nothing ſhall hurt or deſtroy upon God's holy Mountain, but the Nations, who have been full of War, ſhall throw away their Weapons, become ſubject to the Spirit of Peace and Righteouſneſs, and learn War no more; When the Wiſdom of the Wiſe and Strength of the Strong ſhall be broken in pieces. and the little Child ſhall play on the Hole of the Aſp, and at the Cockatrice's Den, and lead all. As certainly as the Lord God is true, ſo this muſt be in the Lord's ſeaſon: And will it not be happy when it comes to paſs? Who would hinder it? Who would ſtrive to keep the old Heavens and the old Earth ſtanding, which muſt be diſſolved, before the new Heavens and the new Earth (wherein dwells Righteouſneſs) can be formed and brought forth?

3. This ſtate was in a fair forwardneſs once, before the univerſal Apoſtacy from the truth and power which God had ſown in the Earth, upon the breathing of and ſending forth his Spirit among his Diſciples, according to his promiſe. Precious was that Seed, great the growth of it, the Woman (or true Church) full of Beauty and Glory, and brought forth the Man-child, which was to rule all Nations; but it hath pleaſed the Lord to adjourn that day till after the night of Apoſtacy, catching up the Man-child to Heaven, and cauſing the Woman to flie into the Wilderneſs, where ſhe hath been hid ever ſince from all but the inward eye of the inward Iſrael; And the World in the Heathenish nature hath been crying up holy Church, holy Church, to her who hath ſate upon the Beaſt, and been drunk with the Bloud of the Martyrs of Jeſus; But the tender Spouſe, the Lambs Wife, the Mother of all the Lambs hath been baniſhed from the Earth, and a cruel bloudy Step-Mother ſet over all the tender-conſcienced ever ſince. O woful, woful hath been the ſtate of the true Church and of all the Children of Truth all this dark night of Apoſtacy, but the Lord is putting an end to it; And though this filthy Woman ſeem to be recovering ground, and ſetting her Feet over the Necks of the Lambs again, and begins to think ſhe ſhall prevail, and ſit as a Lady and Queen over the Conſciences of God's Heritage for ever, yet ſhe ſhall find that ſtrong is the Lord God who hath begun to judge her, and into the Sea which ſhe raiſeth ſhall ſhe ſink like a Stone, and her fall ſhall be great and ſpeedy, for even in one day ſhall her miſery overtake and devour her.

4. After this long night of Apoſtacy, the Lord hath begun to make ſome preparations towards this ſtate again. He hath opened his Treaſuries, he hath let forth the Power of his Truth, he hath poured down of his Spirit to ſanctifie and gather a people unto himſelf, he hath opened the Principle of Life in the hearts of many, and in a great meaſure drawn them into it, who ſo far as they are renewed thereby (and found there) are made peacable, pure, meek, gentle, innocent, upright-hearted, and tender-conſcienced, both towards God and Man. And though multitudes of reproaches have been caſt upon them, yet the Lord hath pleaſed to cauſe their innocency and integrity to ſhine, to the wiping of them off in a great degree, and will in due time bring forth their Righteouſneſs as the Light, and their Judgment as the Noon-day. And what remains toward the carrying on of this Work, but the Lord's proſpering of this Principle, and blowing upon the other? As the Lord doth this ſo will it go on, and the Nations, Kings, Princes, great Ones, as this Principle is raiſed in them, and the contrary Wiſdom, the earthly Policy (which un-undoes all) brought down, ſo will they feel the bleſſing of God in themſelves, and become a bleſſing to others. O that there were an ear to hear, for this is the only way of healing this Nation (which hath been ſo grievouſly torn) as will be acknowledged when woful experience makes it manifeſt. But man in proſperity cannot hear, and that enforceth from the Lord (by the turning of his hand) the bringing upon him the day of his adverſity, which could he have hearkened in the day of his proſperity might have been eſcaped: For God doth not afflict willingly, nor grieve the Children of men; he is neceſſitated to it for his own glories ſake, the preſervation and defence of his Truth and People, and for the carrying on of his Work.

Object. But if all men were of this Mind, and none would fight; Suppoſe a Nation ſhould be invaded, would not the Land of Neceſſity be ruined?

Anſw. Firſt, When ever ſuch a thing ſhall be brought forth in the World, it muſt have a beginning before it can grow and be perfected. And where ſhould it begin but in ſome Particulars in a Nation, and ſo ſpread by degrees, until it hath overſpread the Nation, and then from Nation to Nation, until the whole Earth be leavened? Therefore whoever deſires to ſee this lovely ſtate brought forth in the general, if he would further his own deſire, muſt cheriſh it in the Particular. And O that men would not ſpend their ſtrength, and hazzard the loſs of all in cheriſhing pretences and names of Chriſtianity, but would pray to the Lord at length to open that eye in them, which can ſee the lovelineſs of the Truth, Power, and Vertue of Chriſtianity, that they might cheriſh that tenderneſs of Conſcience, wherein the Truth grows and ſprings up in its Vertue and Power. (And then perhaps they would ſoon acknowledge the happineſs of the World to depend upon the growth of that Principle and of that People, who are now deſpiſed by the World, and cannot but be ſo, by the Spirit and Wiſdom of the World, which lies in Wickedneſs, they being drawn out of and teſtifying againſt it.)

2. It is not for a Nation (coming into the Goſpel, Life, and Principle) to take care before-hand how they ſhall be preſerved, but the Goſpel will teach a Nation (if they hearken to it) as well as a particular perſon to truſt the Lord, and to wait on him for preſervation. Iſrael of old ſtood not by their ſtrength and wiſdom, and preparations againſt their Enemies, but in quietneſs and confidence, and waiting on the Lord for Direction (Iſa. 30.15.) and ſhall not ſuch now, who are true Iſraelites, and have indeed attained to the true Goſpel-ſtate, follow the Lord into the peaceable Life and Spirit of the Goſpel, unleſs they ſee by rational demonſtration before-hand, how they ſhall be preſerved therein? I ſpeak not this againſt any Magiſtrates or Peoples defending themſelves againſt Forreign Invaſions, or making uſe of the Sword to ſuppreſs the violent and evil doers within their Borders (for this the preſent eſtate of things may and doth require, and a great bleſſing will attend the Sword where it is born uprightly to that end, and its uſe will be honourable; and while there is need of a Sword, the Lord will not ſuffer that government, or thoſe governours to want fitting Inſtruments under them for the managing thereof, who wait on him in his fear to have the Edge of it rightly directed:) but yet there is a better ſtate, which the Lord hath already brought ſome into, and which Nations are to expect and travel towards. Yea, it is far better to know the Lord to be the Defender, and to wait on him daily, and ſee the need of his Strength, Wiſdom, and Preſervation, than to be never ſo ſtrong and skilful in Weapons of War.

3. If the Lord God ſhall undertake the defence of a Nation by his Spirit and Power, what can hurt that Nation? What Power of man reach it, to diſturb the Peace of it? The Egyptians are Men, and not God, and their Horſes Fleſh, and not Spirit, Iſa. 31. 3. What could Senacherib with his Army do againſt one Angel in the time of the Law? How many of his Hoſt were ſlain in one night? And what power then ſhall be able to prevail over a Nation brought into the peaceable Spirit of the Goſpel, and defended therein by the mighty power of God himſelf? Will not God be as ſure a defence over the true Iſrael, in the way and diſpenſation wherein he leadeth them, as ever he was over the repreſentative Iſrael, in the way and diſpenſation wherein he led them? Will he not preſerve and defend that Nation, whom he firſt teacheth to leave off War, that they ſhall not be made a prey of, while he is teaching other Nations the ſame Leſſon?

God promiſed Iſrael of old, that when they went up thrice in the year to appear before fore the Lord, according to his command, he would keep it out of the hearts of the Nations from ſo much as deſiring their Land, much more from entring and taking it from them in the mean time, though they might ſeem watchful after, and ſufficiently greedy of ſuch an opportunity, they being caſt out of the Land, and having had it taken from them before, Ex. 34. 24. The Lord alſo can now keep it out of the hearts of the Nations, from invading or prejudicing that Nation, which he ſhall firſt draw into the peaceable Spirit: Or if he ſee not good to do that, he can defend thoſe that have followed him out of the earthly Spirit, Wiſdom, and Strength, by ways that man knows not of; nor may it be fit for him to know, till the Lord bring it forth. Iſrael of old was not to know the deliverance before-hand, but to truſt the Lord; under the Goſpel the Lord giveth more Faith than to Iſrael of old under the Law, and therefore may juſtly require greater confidence in greater ſtraits. And awaken O Earth, behold the Iſrael of the Lord, whom he hath begotten and brought forth in the Earth, after the long dark night of Apoſtacy, and ye ſhall ſee what hearts the Lord hath given them to truſt him, in all the Straits and Tryals wherewith he pleaſeth to exerciſe them, and what the Lord will do for them when they are brought to the brink of the Pit, and when it ſeemeth impoſſible for them to eſcape utter ruine and deſtruction, The eye which the Lord hath given them, ſeeth the Lord and his Strength; and the heart which he hath created anew in them, naturally feareth the everlaſting Power, which reacheth both to the Body and Soul for ever: But as for whole multitudes of Nations, they are but as the drop of a Bucket, and (in their greateſt Wiſdom and Strength) but as vanity, as the ſmall duſt of the Ballance, as nothing before him, and leſs than nothing to him.

Conſider this O ye great men, O ye Wiſe men, and deep Polititians; all ye have done or can ever do, in relation to overturning any thing that God hath purpoſed, what are ye therein? Or what will your Work come to? It is juſt like The ſmall duſt of the Ballance, it hinders not at all the Weight of his Power on the other hand, but he will carry on his Work, bring to paſs what he hath purpoſed in himſelf and promiſed to his people, and all your Councils, Wiſdom, Strength, Hopes, Reſolutions, and preſent or future advantages againſt him and his Work, ſhall hinder him no more than the ſmall duſt in the Scale of a Ballance, which the Wind blows away, and it is not. Be Wiſe therefore O ye Sons of Men, fear before your Maker, wait in his Fear for his Counſel, that ye may not be ſuffered by him to undertake any thing againſt him, left before ye are aware ye fall before him. O let every one in fear remember that paſſage. Lo, this is the man that made not God his Strength, but truſted in the abundance, &c. Forgetting the Lord in the day of Proſperity, cauſeth much increaſe of the anguiſh and ſorrow of heart in the day of adverſity. O ye that are in preſent Power, conſider how unwilling ye would be to have the Lord turn his hand upon you, and bring you under again: O provoke him not, for he is able to do it, as he was to overturn thoſe which went before. It were far better for you, now to fear the Lord and prevent it, then to bewail and repent afterwards. O reject not the Love and Counſel of the Moſt High (which would now preſerve you) as thoſe which went before you did.

There is a deſire in all men (in whom the Principle of God is not wholly ſlain) after Righteouſneſs, which deſire will be more and more kindled by God in Nations, before Righteouſneſs and Peace meet together and be eſtabliſhed in them. Now ſuch and ſo great hath been the kindling of this deſire in this Nation, and ſuch is the ſtate thereof, that nothing can ſatisfie the heart of it but Righteouſneſs; this it longeth after at the bottom. This the governours which were before might have, and the governours that now are (by asking counſel of the Principle of God in themſelves, and keeping cloſe thereto) may anſwer the Nation in. But if the conſultations be not with the Lord, in the principle of life which came from him, but with the Wiſdom and Policy which is of the earth, and from beneath, and not from above, that will incline to ſelf and to corruption, and never bring forth Righteouſneſs, nor can the Bleſſing of God attend it, nor the Peace which accompanieth Righteouſneſs be reaped from it.

Some Conſiderations for the ſerious and wiſe in heart throughout this Nation to ponder, that they may ſend up earneſt Prayers to Almighty God, and uſe their beſt endeavours in their ſeveral Places and Stations, to prevent that dreadful ſtorm of Wrath which hath long hung over this Nation, that at length it break not forth like a Fire which none can quench, or like a Floud which none can ſtop.

1. DID not God, by the power of his Spirit in the Apoſtles days, gather a people out of the World unto himſelf, and by his Wiſdom (and according to his Heavenly Will) build them up into a Church or Holy Temple, for his Spirit to inhabit and dwell in, and for himſelf to be Honoured and Worſhipped in Spirit and Truth, according as he ſhould teach them and require of them?

2. Did not the ſame Spirit, which built this Church, not only ſignifie that the love ſhould wax cold, and there be a falling away from the Truth, and warn the Churches of Aſia of the removal of their Candleſticks; but alſo foretel of the total diſſolution of that building as to its outward ſtate [upon the cloſe of the ſharp Battel by the Dragon and his Angels, or falſe Miniſters, with Michael and his true Church and Miniſters] inſomuch as the Church her ſelf ſhould fly into the Wilderneſs, and her Seed be made War with, and perſecuted up and down the Nations, all the time of the Apoſtacy afterwards? ſee Rev. 12.

3. Was not this deſolate eſtate of the Church to remain and laſt all the allotted time thereof, which is expreſſed to be 42 months, 1260 days, or a time, times, and half a time, wherein the Beaſt ſhould rule, Antichriſt ſit in Gods Temple, and the Dragon be Worſhipped there inſtead of the living God; and alſo the Lambs of Chriſt and Witneſſes of Jeſus (who retain the Worſhip in Spirit and Truth, and cannot joyn with any of the falſe ways of Worſhip ſet up in the Nations) torn and rent, by the Woman which appears inſtead of the true Church, but is not? (Revel. 11. 2. and 12: 6. 14. and 13, 4. and 17. 6.)

4. Doth not this Woman continue deceiving the Nations and Kings of the earth (whom ſhe cauſeth to drink of her Cup of Knowledge, Worſhip, Doctrine and Diſcipline, whereby ſhe blindeth their eyes, bewitcheth their hearts, and maketh them take her for the true Church; who, notwithſtanding all this her glorious appearance, is but Babylon in a myſtery, and notwithſtanding all her pretences for Chriſt, doth not drink the bloud of his true Saints and Witneſſes) I ſay, doth ſhe not continue her deceit till the very hour of her Judgement, and until ſhe hath brought the dreadful Vials of the Wrath of God, both upon her ſelf, and upon all that continue joyning with her? Rev. 17. 2. &c.

5. Is there not to be an end of this night of Apoſtacy, and of the falſe Church, with all her various habits, and dreſſes and new paints and arts of deceit (though both have continued long,) wherein Chriſt the Lamb comes forth in his power to fight with the Beaſt, and the Woman which rides thereon, and to ſmite the earth which remains infected with her Fornication (which withdraw and ſteal away the heart from the pure life and ſpirit of Chriſt, and from his pure, living, ſpiritual worſhip, into a falſe, invented, dead, formal Worſhip) that ſo he may reſtore, and ſet up his pure Spiritual Worſhip again, Rev. 19. 11.

6. Are not the Kings, Powers and Inhabitants of the earth in great danger of fighting againſt the Lamb, in defence of this falſe Church againſt his true Church (when he again comes to ſet it up in Nations, after the expiration of the long night of Apoſtacy) even to the hazard of utter ruining themſelves thereby? For thoſe that fight againſt the Lamb, muſt needs be overcome by him, his inviſible ſtrength and Armies being much ſtronger than the viſible Armies and all the outward ſtrength in Nations, though to the outward eye ſuch may appear very great and invincible? (Rev. 17. 14.)

7. Shall not the Kings of the Earth and the remaining powers at laſt (after the overthrow throw of many for joyning to her, and ſtriving to uphold her) hate the Whore (which hath corrupted the earth with her Fornications, drunk the Blood of the Saints and Martyrs of Jeſus, brought Miſery and Deſolation upon Nations, &c.) make her Deſolate, and burn her fleſh with fire? And were it not far better for them to do it before, rather than to hazard the ruining of themſelves by ſeeking to uphold her? (Rev. 17. 16.)

8. Is it poſſible for any Nation (or any power in any Nation) to hinder the ſhining forth of Gods light therein, after the long night of Apoſtacy? There is a Spiritual Day, as well as a Natural day. There was a Spiritual Day before the Apoſtacy, in the days of the Apoſtles, And there is to be a Spiritual day again after the Apoſtacy, upon the Spirit of Lifes entering into the Witneſſes, their riſing and ſtanding on their feet, and the Light of God ſhining forth from them. The Spiritual Day dependeth upon the ſhining of Gods Spirit in the Hearts of People (which did once ſhine forth, and doth begin to ſhine forth again) as the natural day dependeth upon the ſhining of the Sun. Now who can hinder the ariſing or ſhining of the Son of Righteouſneſs in the Hearts of Gods people? If ye can, then may ye prevent the carrying on of Gods work of Reformation in this Nation, and throughout the World; but it is eaſier for you to ſtop the ſhining of the Sun in the Firmament. O that the eye were opened which can ſee the way of Peace, that the preſent Governours might be bleſſed and the Nation bleſſed in them, and not the Spirit of the Nation (by a ſecret kindling, which none knows whence it comes) brought over them as a Flood, as it was over them that went before them.

In that fear which God works in the Heart (and out of the compaſs of that carnal wiſdom and ſtrength, on which man relies) is the Wiſdom, Council and Preſervation of the moſt high; both of particular perſons, and alſo of Nations. O Lord my God, if it may pleaſe thee, open the Ear that can hear thy Voice, that miſery may be avoided, and thy Peace and Bleſſing ſought after and enjoyed, or at leaſt ſome of the force of that bitter Storm (which ſweepeth away and maketh Deſolate, even as the abomination of Deſolation hath entred, and of a long time made the Earth deſolate of the Life and Power of Godlineſs) broken, that this Nation may not be ſwallowed up in the dreadful breakings forth of thy diſpleaſure, but may be prepared by thy Correcting hand, and fitted for the day of thy Mercy.

A Brief Account of what the People called QUAKERS deſire, in Reference to the Civil Government.

THere are three things which we cannot but earneſtly deſire in our hearts, and pray to the Lord for, as the proper means of ſetling aright the Spirit of this Nation, as alſo neceſſary for the growth of Gods pure Living Truth, and as juſt and equal in themſelves.

1. Univerſal Liberty for all ſorts to Worſhip God, according as Chriſt ſhall open mens eyes to ſee the Truth, and according as he ſhall perſwade their Hearts by his Spirit, who is every mans Maſter in Religion, to whom they muſt ſtand or fall in all they do therein, Rom. 14. 4

Now if any man Walk diſorderly, and contrary to the light of Chriſts Spirit either in Doctrine or Worſhip; that power which converts to God, is to reprove and correct ſuch an Offender with the Spiritual Rod and Sword, that he may be again reſtored to the Truth and Obedience of the Spirit: But the Magiſtrate is not for any ſuch thing to Impriſon, Fine, Baniſh, or put him to Death. For Chriſt is the Judge of his People in the things of his Kingdom, Heb. 10. 30. and he hath appointed to have his Spiritual Weapons in a readineſs, to revenge every Diſobedience and Rebellion againſt his Spirit, 2 Cor. 10 4. The bringing in and applying of the Magiſtrates Sword to this Work, was never by the True Church, in whoſe hand the Sword of the Spirit was ever found ſufficient; But the falſe Church not having the Sword of the Spirit, is fain to uphold her ſelf by the carnal Weapons, or elſe ſhe would ſoon fall. But the Lord God is wreſting theſe out of her hands, and then his light will break forth without interruption, and her ſhame and nakedneſs ſoon appear.

2. That no Laws formerly made, contrary to the Principle of equity and righteouſneſs ness in man, may remain in force; nor no new ones be made, but what are manifestly agreeable thereunto. All just Laws, say the Lawyers, have their Foundation in right reason, and must agree with, and proceed from it, if they be properly good for, and rightly servicable to Mankind. Now man hath a corrupt and carnal Reason, which sways him aside from Integrity and Righteousness, towards the favouring of himself and his own party: And whatever party is uppermost, they are apt to make such new Laws as they frame, and also the interpretation of the old ones bend towards the favour of their own party. Therefore we would have every man in Authority wait in the fear of God, to have that Principle of God raised up in him, which is for righteousness, and not selfish, and watch to be guided by that in all he does, either in making Laws for Government, or in governing by Laws already made.

3. Seeing this Nation is in such a shattered Condition, and there have been so many Breaches, Parties, and Factions in it, that no Party might be bolstered up in enmity and opposition against another, but that every Party might be considered, in what might be done for their Ease and Benefit, without danger and detriment to any other party. And if I might be hearkened to, I would perswade those now in Power, not to deal with their Enemies as they formerly dealt with them, but as they would have been dealt with by them when they were in Power.

I would also dehort and dissuade all people from Plotting or contriving against this present Government (for they must have their day, do all men what they can) but instead thereof to pray for them, that they may see the former errours in Government, humble themselves before the Lord, and (by their Meekness, Gentleness, and Righteousness towards all) shew forth the Fruit of his Long afflicting-hand upon them. But if they shall over-look, forget, and neglect the Lord, who hath shewn so great mercy to them, and not in his fear wait on him, to preserve for them the ground and interest he hath given them, and think that now they are able to stand on their own Leggs, and by their own Wisdom and Strength, and so assay to carry on things according to their own Will, and in the strength of their own Wisdom, and so not mind for what end the Lord brought them in again, and what he expecteth to have effected by them, but strive again to settle the Principles and Practices which he hath been shaking, according to what seems right and good in their own Eyes (measuring things by their own corrupt reason, selfish Wisdom and Interests, and not by the Principle of God, common Equity, and right Reason) I say, if it come to be thus with them, ye shall not need to Plot against them: for the Lord God Almighty, who with ease removed their Enemies and made way for them, can with as great ease remove them, and put the power into another hand

Therefore, all People, be still and quiet in your Minds, and wait for righteousness, for that is it which the Lord is making Way for in this Nation, and which he will set up therein; and he whose desire is not after that, and whose interest lies not there, will find himself disappointed, and at unawares surprized with what he expects not.

This is given forth that the Powers and People may see what is the desire of our hearts in these respects, and how upright our hearts are towards them in what is just and right, and that we are not at all against Magistracy, Laws, or Government, though we cannot flatter or bend to them in that which is selfish and corrupt, and indeed against God and not for the good of men. It was written long since, and intended then for service to the Lord and this Nation, and his People therein, but the Lord ordered it otherwise: If he please now to accompany it with his blessing, and make way for the reasonableness, Equity, and Righteousness of it, to enter into the Minds and Hearts of them that are in Power, it will be a good season for it, and they will find cause to bless the Lord, for putting of it into my Heart at first, and for the publishing of it now.

A few Words to such as have felt the power of the endless Life drawing, and have faithfully followed the Leader of the Flock of Israel, who hath of late led his Sheep in such Paths as hath not been known all the night of the Apostacy.

O Ye Children of the most High, who hath felt the breath of the eternal Spirit begetting you in the pure Life, and drawing you out of this World, out of the vanities, out of the corruptions, out of the course and fashions, out of the invented Ways and Forms of Worship (yea out of the very Root and Principle thereof) into the Worship and Spirit of Truth, and into the fear of the most high, which is Wisdoms Place and Habitation, where the pure Law of Life is received, and the Salvation begun, wrought out, and perfected. O ye dear Plants of the right hand of Eternity, fear not what is to come to pass in this visible Creation (to break the corrupt state thereof, and to make way for the springing up and spreading of his pure Life and Righteousness, which the corrupt Estate, Spirit, and Principle of the World cannot but oppose, until it be broken and subjected) but sanctifie the Lord of Hosts, and let him be your fear and dread, that he may compass you with the Arm of his Power, and hide you under the shadow of his hand, until he hath Planted the Heavens, and laid the Foundations of the Earth, and say to Sion, in the sight of all her Enemies, Thou art my People. The Lord my God watcheth over you Night and Day, and preserve his living Principle pure and fresh in you, and you in perfect subjection unto it; that he may delight in what he hath begotten and preserved in you, and ye may be satisfied in the openings and overflowings of the love of his heart towards you. Amen, saith my Soul.

From Alisbury Prison in Bucks: where my Life breath for the Consolation and Redemption of God's Israel, and for the turning of the captivity of the whole Creation 1661.

A few Words about the present Work of God in the World.

WOULD any know what God is now on doing in the Earth, and what changes he is making therein? Let him sink out of the earthly Part, even from that which blinds the pure eye, and waiting to have the understanding and eye of his Spirit opened in the Lord, let him read these things following.

The Lord God of Bowels and Compassion, and of everlasting Power and Strength, hath heard the Groans of Israel, whose Consciences have been burdened, and whose Souls have been bowed down under the Power of the Beast, under the hard Yoak of Antichrist for these many Generations; And he is arisen in his jealousie, in his indignation, and in his fury, to break the Yoak, and let oppressed Israel go free.

He hath already stretched forth the Arm of his Power, the Eye of Israel hath seen it, and hath in part felt the Redemption (both inwardly and outwardly) which he hath brought to pass by it; and a Song of Praise hath been sung to him, who hath begun to deliver his People, and who is able perfectly to accomplish the Work he hath begun, notwithstanding all the opposition he can meet with, whether from within or from without.

Lift up then the Eye of Faith, and behold a great part of Israel already passed out of the Land of Ægypt, and the Spirit of the Lord awakening and rouzing the rest, to leave their dark Habitations in the Land of Darkness, Oppression, and Bondage, and to travel towards the good Land of Light, Rest, and Peace:

Arise

Arise O Israel, shake thy self from the dust O Captive Daughter of Sion, behold the Courage of thy Leader, let thy heart consider the Arm of his Strength, and the Rod of his Power, wherewith he is able to dash in pieces all his Enemies. Fear not, Worm Jacob, because of thine own weakness and unworthiness: thy Strength is in thy Leader, and thy Comliness (not in what thou now appearest, but) in what thy Husband will put upon thee, when he shall circumcise thee throughly, and rowl away thy reproach for ever.

Was all the strength of Pharaoh able to keep Israel in the Land of Ægypt, or to drive them back after God had brought them forth? Were all the Enemies in the Wilderness able to stop their passage forward? Were all the Enemies in Canaan, or the Strength of their Cities (though their Walls might seem to reach to Heaven, and the Inhabitants thereof were Tall and Mighty) able to keep them out of the Inheritance which God alloted them? Thy God, O Worm Jacob, is the same for ever: he hath the same Arm of Power to stretch forth, yea and his heart loveth his inward Israel ful as dearly, as ever he did the outward. O wait on the Lord, believe in his Name, trust his Love, hope beyond hope for the appearance of his power, and the Red-Sea shall divide, and the Waters thereof stand on heaps, yea, Jordan shall be again driven back; the Mountains shall skip like Ramms, and the little Hills like Lambs; Yea, the whole Earth shall tremble at the presence of the Lord, at the presence of the God of Jacob: and Glory, Glory, Glory, everlasting Glory, Power, rich Praise, and endless Life, shall sound through all the Tents of Jacob in the Wilderness, and through all the Habitations of Israel in the holy Land, to the King of Glory, Power, and life, even to the Lamb that sits upon the Throne, who was, and is, and is to come; who hath reigned, doth reign, and will reign on his holy Hill of Sion, over all the Powers of darkness for evermore, Amen, Hallelujah.

O ye Sons of Men, how long will ye run after vanity, and seek to a Refuge of lies for succor and stability, and so lose your share in the everlasting Riches and Glory, which God is preparing for the Souls of his Chosen! Why will ye dy? Why will ye perish? why will ye undo your Souls? why do ye so greedily sow Misery, Anguish, Perplexity, and Wrath for your poor Souls to reap? O God of love, who knowest the value and price of Souls, pity thy poor Creatures, and put a stop to this course of perishing, wherein so many multitudes are overtaken and pass down to the Pit unawares: O thy Bowels, thy Bowels, thy wonderful Bowels! Let them rowl in thee, and work mightily, and in the strength of thy compassions bring forth thy judgment and thy mercy among the Sons of Men. Build up the Tents of Sem, perswade Japhet to dwell therein, and let Canaan become a Servant. Preserve the feet of thy Saints for ever: shut up and silence the wicked one in the darkness; let not his strength or subtilty prevail against thee or thine any more: but let the fresh Power of thy life, and the virtue of thy incomprehensible love redeem, fill, possess, and make glad the heart of thy Creation for ever, Amen, Amen.

CONCERNING

Which is,

The Afflicting or Puniſhing that which is GOOD, under the Pretence of its being EVIL.

Which Practice is contrary to the very Nature of Mankind (ſo far as it is drawn out of the Corruption and Depravation) which would be Good and do Good, and have Good Cheriſhed and Evil Suppreſſed, both in it ſelf and others.

It is contrary alſo to all Equal and Righteous Government, which is for the Suppreſſing of Evil, and Cheriſhing of Good, and not for the afflicting and cruſhing of that which is Good, upon pretence of its being Evil.

Yet this unhappy Error will always be committed in Nations and Governments, until the proper Right and juſt Liberty of Mens Conſciences be diſcerned, acknowledged and allowed.

LIKEWISE,

There are ſome Anſwers given to that common Objection, againſt affording CONSCIENCE its due Liberty, becauſe Evil Perſons may pretend Conſcience to eſcape the juſt Puniſhment of their Evil Deeds.

With a brief Account of that ſuppoſed STUBBORNNESS, which by many is objected againſt the People called QUAKERS.

Given forth in love to this Nation, that at length the true bottom and foundation of a laſting Peace and Settlement may be eſpied, the Spirits of the Governors and People fixed thereon, and that dangerous Rock of Perſecution (whereon both the Powers and People of this Nation have ſo often ſplit) carefully avoided by all.

The PREFACE.

THere hath been an Enmity in the Seed of the Serpent, againſt the Seed of the Woman, from the time of the Promiſe even until now. God in mercy to Mankind, hath given unto him ſince the Fall, a Seed or Principle of Life, in the Light and Strength whereof he is to War againſt, and ſubdue the Corrupt Principle, and ſo be freed from the Curſe, and become Heir of the Bleſſing. Againſt this Principle all the Powers of Darkneſs fight (even in every particular Man and Woman) until they be overcome and ſubjected there: And againſt thoſe in whom this pure Principle Reigns, all the Powers of Darkneſs in the World fight alſo, ſtriving to make it miſerable, and to bring it into Death and Captivity, that they might keep up the content and happineſs of the Corrupt State. All the Nations of the Earth have always warred againſt the Principle of God and the People of his choice. In the time of the Law, the Jews were the object of the Envy and Hatred of all the World: in the times of the Goſpel, the Jews in Spirit were hated and hunted, in that day and hour, not only by Heathens, but alſo by ſuch as were Jews according to the Letter; and ever ſince ſince the Apoſtacy by Chriſtians alſo, according to the Letter, who are as great enemies to the Spirit and Power as ever the Jews were.

Now all the Miſery of the World, as it at firſt came by departing from the Principle of Life; ſo it hath been ever ſince continued by mens joyning with the Principle of Death and Corruption, to oppoſe and withſtand the workings of the Principle of Life, both in themſelves and others. What man is there that hath not in him a Witneſs againſt that which is Evil? But where is that man, who joyns with this Witneſs in him againſt the Evil, and not with the Evil againſt this Witneſs? Oh how doth Gods Witneſs reprove for Sin, making the heart (which is not ſenſual and bruitiſh, but ſeriouſly conſiders its latter end) ſad becauſe of it, This is Gods way of making the Creature weary thereof, of weaning him from it! delivering him out of it, and ſo reſcuing him from the Wrath and Everlaſting Burnings, which are the portion and inheritance of the Wicked. But who is it that doth not ſtrive to ſtop, ſilence and ſuppreſs this Witneſs in himſelf, that he might enjoy his Luſts, eaſe and content in the fleſh, by keeping the ſight and remembrance of the Evil-day far from him? And if he can do ſo, then he rejoyceth and maketh merry over the Teſtimony of the Witneſs in himſelf; and when he hath ſo far prevailed, then he is in a good capacity to perſecute others, who hear and obey the Voice and Teſtimony thereof in themſelves.

That which is to redeem the World out of Miſery, is the Power of the Goſpel: and precious is the Peace which comes thereby, after the work of the Spiritual Sword (with the trouble thereof) is finiſhed. O how bleſſed would the Principle and Power of Life make the World, might it but have its free courſe therein! O how happy is that man, who bears the Condemnation becauſe of Sin, follows the guidance of the Living God, and waits for the day of his Salvation! O the ſweet inward Peace of Spirit which is enjoyed after the Storm, and after the Judgment of that which is to be judged and deſtroyed! And that which makes one perſon happy, the ſame muſt make Nations happy. There is no true ſettlement nor abiding ſecurity, but in the ſetled and abiding Principle. God is ariſen to ſhake the Earth, and it can ſettle no more upon the old Foundations: yea, the ſame God hath ſhriveled up the old Heavens, and they can no more be ſtretched forth again. Behold, I make all things new, ſaith the Lord in the days of the Goſpel, when he ſtretcheth forth the Arm of his Power: And who is he which ſhall venture to eſtabliſh the old Heavens and the old Earth, which the Lord God is removing and cauſing to paſs away, and aboliſh the new Heavens and the new Earth, which the Lord God hath Created and Formed and is eſtabliſhing? O that men knew the place of Wiſdom, that they might be Wiſe and not fight againſt their Creator, from whom their ſtrength comes, and againſt whom their ſtrength cannot prevail. O that men could ſee how induſtrious they are to keep up Miſery, and to keep out Happineſs. The eye of man (in the fallen and corrupt eſtate) cannot ſee aright: and miſ-ſeeing, how can he chuſe but miſ-aim and miſ-act? and miſ-aiming and miſ-acting, how can he attain his end? But the Lords Counſel ſhall ſtand, and he will fulfil all his pleaſure in every heart, and throughout the Earth. Happy is he who is weaned from himſelf, and begotten in the light of life which is incorruptible, he ſhall ſtand and be Bleſſed, when all fleſh falls before the Breath of the Lord and becomes miſerable; and the fall of all the fleſhly Will, Wiſdom and Strength haſtens apace; Happy is he who is delivered from them before the day of their ruine, which is nearer than man is aware of, or can believe.

Concerning

Concerning PERSECUTION, &c.

BEcauſe men, generally, in Perſecuting know not what they do (neither whom it is they perſecute, nor how they Sin againſt God therein, nor what danger they are expoſing themſelves to, and what miſery they are drawing upon themſelves thereby, both in this World and for ever) even as Chriſt ſaid concerning the Jews, who were Perſecuting him even to Death, Father forgive them, for they know not what they do: and afterward to Saul; Saul, Saul, why Perſecuteſt thou me? Therefore, in love to thoſe, who are at unawares running into this great error, that they may find the good hand of God ſtopping them therein for their own good, are theſe things following concerning Perſecution Written, wherein are manifeſted,

First, What it is that is Perſecuted.
2. Who it is that Perſecutes, or is the Perſecutor.
3. The Nature of Perſecution.
4. The Grounds or Cauſes of Perſecution.
5. The Ways and Means of Perſecution.
6. The Ends of Perſecuting, what men aim at therein, or rather what that Spirit in men, which puts them upon Perſecuting of others, aims at thereby.
7. The Colour or falſe Pretence of the Perſecuting Spirit.
8. The Bleſſedneſs of the Perſecuted.
9. The Miſery of the Perſecutors.
10. The Way and Means whereby men may come to avoid this great evil of Perſecuting others:

Whereunto (in the Laſt Place) are added, Some ſad Effects of Perſecution, to kindle in men a Deſire of avoiding ſo great an Evil in its ſelf, and ſo Pernicious an Enemy, (to all that is good in General, and Particularly to the Peace and Welfare of Mankind) as the Perſecuting Spirit is.

1. What or who it is that is Perſecuted.

The Perſecuted in all Ages, is that which is born after Gods Spirit, Gal. 4.29. He that is new-created in Chriſt Jeſus, who is formed in the Image and by the Spirit of God (which is contrary to the Image and Spirit of the World) and who follows Chriſt in the leadings and teachings of his Spirit (which is out of and contrary to the courſe, faſhions, ways and cuſtoms of the World) This is the man that is Perſecuted in all Ages. He that is of another Spirit and Principle than the World, and ſo cannot be as the World is (being made otherwiſe by God) nor walk as the World walks, nor Worſhip as the World worſhips, being taught and required of God to do otherwiſe, This is the man who is afflicted, reproached, hated, hunted, perſecuted. And ſo the Apoſtle lays it down, not only as a thing to be in his Age, but in after Ages alſo, 2 Tim. 3. 12. Yea and all that will live Godly in Chriſt Jeſus ſhall ſuffer Perſecution. Men may talk of Chriſt, profeſs Chriſt, worſhip Chriſt according to the way that is ſet up in Nations, and avoid Perſecution; but come under the new Principle, come into his life, live Godly in Him, become really ſubject unto the Power and direction of his Spirit; then there is no longer avoiding of Perſecution. That which comes into the Life of Chriſt, comes preſently into a proportion of Suffering from that which is contrary to his Life.

2. What or who it is that Perſecuteth, or is the Perſecutor.

The Perſecutor, in all Ages, is that which is after the fleſh. That Spirit and Principle in man which is from beneath, puts the men in whom it is upon perſecuting the other Principle, and the perſons in whom it appears; Or more plainly thus; That which is of the World, that which loves the World and preſent ſtate thereof; that which lies in the darkneſs, is in unity with it, loveth it, and the corrupt ways thereof; that hates the Light, and Perſecuteth the Children of the Light, who are witneſſes againſt, and reprovers vers of the darkneſs, John 3: 20. He that was born after the Fleſh, Perſecuted him that was after the Spirit. So it was formerly, ſo it is alſo now, ſaith the Apoſtle, Gal. 4. 29. Now there are ſeveral ſorts and ranks of theſe, as ſome in the way of open prophaneneſs and wickedneſs, ſome more civilized, and of a more Gentle, Noble, and Conſiderate Spirit and Temper, ſome more Religious and Devout in worſhips (though not rightly principled and guided, but turned aſide to ſome inventions or other of the earthly Spirit, all which are pleaſing to the earthly Spirit.) But all theſe, though they are different one from another, and agree not well among themſelves, but are full of diſlikes one toward another, yet they all agree in this, to wit, in a willingneſs to have that perſecuted and ſubjected, which is of a contrary Spirit and Nature to them all. They are all againſt this more or leſs, though not all againſt it in the ſame degree of heat and vehemency.

3. The Nature of Perſecution, or what it is to Perſecute.

Perſecution is the oppoſition of the Fleſh againſt the Spirit. The fretting or daſhing of the earthly Spirit, or Spirit of man corrupted, againſt that which is born of God. The fighting of the unregenerate and unrenewed Spirit in Man, againſt the Spirit of Man renewed by the regenerating Power of the Spirit of God. The fighting, the oppoſing of this Spirit againſt the other, is Perſecution. Whatever any man does in his own will, according to his own wiſdom, and after the inclination of his own heart, againſt another who deſires to fear the Lord, (who waits on him for the counſel and guidance of his Spirit, that he might obey and worſhip him aright) is Perſecution. The Principle of God teaches to fear the Lord, not according to the fear which is taught by the Precepts of Men, but according to the fear which God puts into the heart; It teaches likewiſe to worſhip the Lord, not according as man invents and thinks good to preſcribe, but as the Lord inſtructs and requires; It teacheth likewiſe not to conform to the World, but to deny it and come out of it: Now the hating, oppoſing, and puniſhing of that which is thus taught, becauſe of theſe teachings and its obedience thereto, this is Perſecution. The riſing of the heart againſt ſuch, is Perſecution in the heart. The Reproaching, Scoffing at, or ſpeaking evil of ſuch, is Perſecution with the Tongue. (So Iſhmael's mocking of Iſaac, Gen. 21. 9, 10. is called Perſecuting of him, Gal. 4. 29, 30.) The Smiting, Fining, Impriſoning of ſuch, &c. in relation to any thing that they do from this principle, is Perſecution with the hand, or lifting up of the power either of a particular Perſon, or of a Magiſtrate againſt ſuch.

4. The Grounds of Perſecution, or what are the things that cauſe the one Spirit and Principle to Perſecute, and the other to be Perſecuted.

The Grounds and Cauſes which expoſe the one to Perſecution, and kindle the heat of Perſecuting in the other, are chiefly theſe three enſuing.

1. The enmity of the Birth of the Fleſh againſt the Birth of the Spirit. There is enmity in the Serpent againſt the Woman, and in the Seed of the Serpent againſt the Seed of the Woman. That which is born of the corrupt Principle cannot endure that which is born of the pure Principle. That which Walks and Worſhips in the Will, and according to the Inventions of Man's Wiſdom, and in Shaddows and fleſhly Forms, pleaſing to the Fleſh, cannot endure that which Worſhips in Spirit and Truth.

2. The contrariety of that which is born of God and drawn out of the World, to that which is of the Fleſh (or of corrupt Man) and left in the World, this is that which incenſeth, and draweth forth the enmity in the corrupt Principle. They are not of the World, even as I am not of the World, John 17. 16. Therefore the World hateth them, v. 14. They are of another Spirit, of another Image, of another Make, of another Heart, of another Deſire, of another manner of Carriage and Demeanor, of another Principle, and have other Ends in all they do, than the World. And their whole Courſe and Converſation being in the Light, and in the Love, and in true Purity of Mind) reproves the World, which lies in the darkneſs and in the enmity, and walks in the Wickedneſs. And how can the World bear this, in the midſt of all their height, glory, and greatneſs, to be continually reproved by a poor and contemptible Generation, as God's choice in the World have for the generality of them always been, even looked upon by the World as the off ſcouring thereof, as not fit to be ſuffer'd to have a being in it, but rather as deſerving to be ſcowred off from it?

The Light, whereof the Children of Light are born, and which they hold forth (or rather which God holds forth by them) condemns the World. The evenneſs, ſweetneſs, and ſtraitneſs, of their Converſation and Practices condemns the unevenneſs, crookedneſs, and perverſneſs of the Spirit of the World. The integrity, ſeriouſneſs, and ſpirituality of their Worſhip (with the living power and preſence of God, appearing among them) condemns the deadneſs, formality, and hypocriſie of the Worſhips of the World, who draw nigh to God with their Lips, when it is manifeſt, that their Hearts are far from him, being enſnared, and captivated with Vanities and Self-intereſts, and love of the World and Earthly things. Indeed the whole courſe and manifeſtation of the Light and Power of God in them, is a continual upbraiding of the Principle and Ways of darkneſs in the men of the World. And how can the men of the World forbear making an unrighteous War, even a War of Perſecution againſt that which invades their Territories, and makes War with them in Righteouſneſs? Can darkneſs chuſe but fight to ſave its own Dominions? It muſt put out the light or it cannot ſave its own, but will be loſing ground daily.

3. Becauſe of the Children of Light leaving and coming out of the World. They were once of the World, as well as others; Of the ſame Nature, of the ſame Spirit, of the ſame corrupt Will, of the ſame corrupt Wiſdom, walking in their way, worſhipping according to their worſhips, approving and obſerving their cuſtoms, faſhions, and vanities. But when the Spirit of Chriſt called them out of the World, and created in them that which could hear his voice and was willing to follow him, then they left all theſe, and ſtood witneſſes (in God's Spirit which called, and in that Life which was begotten in them, and in the fear, love, and power of that God who quickned them) againſt all theſe. And this mads the World, in that they were once of them, but left them. Had they ſtaid in the World, and been ſtill of the World, the World would have loved them, as it doth the reſt of its own: but departing from the world, travelling towards another Countrey, ſubjecting themſelves to another Spirit, and teſtifying againſt that Spirit which formerly led them, and ſtill leads the world, and againſt thoſe ways and practices wherein formerly they walked, and wherein the world ſtill walks; this fills the worldly Spirit with rage againſt them.

5. The Ways and Means of Perſecution.

The Ways and Means of Perſecution are very many. Who can want Inſtruments to afflict the Innocent and Helpleſs, who can neither reſiſt the evil which is offered them, nor harm that which offers it? I ſhall only here mention three general heads, to which many particulars may be referred.

1: One great way of Perſecution is, by making uſe of Laws already made, either according to their proper tendency to that end and purpoſe, or by bending them aſide from their proper Intent, to reach thoſe whom they have a mind to afflict and perſecute. Thus the Jews, when they had a mind to have Chriſt put to death, told Pilate, We have a Law, and by our Law he ought to die, John 19. 7.

2. Another way is, by making new Laws fit for their purpoſe, whereby they may catch, enſnare, and ſuppreſs that which is contrary to their Spirit and Principle, and which will not bow thereto. This is a certain way to take that which is born of God and which cannot but be true to Him, and ſo cannot bow to the corrupt will of Man, nor to any Law made in the corrupt will, to ſtrengthen the corruption, and againſt the holy pure will and mind of God. Thus Daniel and the Three Children were caught in the Snare by Laws, Daniel for praying to his God, againſt the Royal Statute and firm Decree of the King, ſigned in writing, according to the deſire and advice of all the Preſidents of the Kingdom, the Governours, Princes, Counſellors, and Captains, Dan. 6. 7, 8. And the Three Children, for not worſhipping the Image Nebuchadnezzar had ſet up, accordinh to the Decree of the King. (obſerve this by the way, and conſider it well: what hath been ſet up all this night of the Apoſtacy, but Images of the true Worſhip worſhip? and what compelling hath there been thereto?) Thus have Articles been framed, and Statutes made here in England (as in King Henry the 8*th*. and Queen Mary's days) which have been great Engines of Perſecution: And thus have there been ſome late Laws made in New-England to the ſame Effect, though better might have juſtly been expected from them. And this is not only a certain way, but a very plauſible way likewiſe, whereby the Perſecutor hides himſelf from the imputation of Perſecution, and appears as a juſt Executer of the Law; and ſo repreſents him who is upright before God, and innocent in the ſight of God, as an Offender and Breaker of the Law, and ſo juſtly puniſhable. But this will not always cover the Unjuſt Spirits Perſecution of the Juſt. He that ſhall Perſecute the Lord of Glory (as he that Perſecuteth the leaſt Member of his, how contemptible ſoever he appears to his eye, doth no leſs, Acts 9. 4 Matth. 25. 40, 45. when Chriſt ſhall call him to account therefore, it will be a vain plea for him to ſay, there was a Law for it, and he acted according to Law. It is fit for all Men and Laws to bow before the Lord, and not to diſturb any in their Obedience to the Lord, or hurt the Principle of his Life in any, but cheriſh and nurſe it up as much as in them lies) in that tenderneſs which Chriſt begetteth in it, and in that ſpiritual Liberty which Chriſt allows it.

3. A third way of Perſecution is by the hand of Violence, without either Law, or ſo much as pretence to Law. Thus the perſecuting Spirit, when it hath power in its hand, and is out of fear, ſmiteth (with the open fiſt of wickedneſs) that which is an Enemy to, and ſtands a Witneſs againſt its wickedneſs.

6. The Ends of Perſecution, or what the perſecuting Spirit aims at in its Perſecuting, and would fain attain thereby.

1. The main end of Perſecution, is, to bring the Children of Light, (who have left the Evil, Darkneſs and Corruption of the World) back to the World again. That which they perſecute them for, is, for leaving the World, both in its Principle and Practice, and for profeſſing Obedience and Subjection to another Spirit: That which they drive at in Perſecuting them, is, to force them back from under ſubjection to that Spirit which hath led them out of the World, into ſubjection to the Spirit of the World again. There is a great Fight between the Spirit of God and the Spirit of the World, in the two Seeds; the Spirit of God ſtriving to bring the Spirit of the World under, and the Spirit of the World ſtriving to bring the Spirit of God under. This is well known in the heart, where the new Birth is witneſſed. O what ſtriving there is by the powers of darkneſs, with all manner of ſecret temptations and forcible oppoſitions (ſo far as the Lord permits) to bring the Heart (which the Lord hath begun to redeem, and in ſome meaſure ſet free from them) under their power again! And the ſame that ſtirs up the Darkneſs in the Heart againſt the Seed and Birth of Light there, the ſame ſtirs up in the darkneſs in other men againſt it alſo. The Lord knows what bitter Fights we have had with the Enemy in our own Hearts, before we could leave our Principles, Paths, and Practices of Darkneſs, how hard it hath been to us to deny the World, and come out of it: and yet when the Lord hath conquered and ſubjected the Darkneſs in our own hearts in any meaſure, then we meet with a new fight abroad in the World, the ſame Principle and Power in them fighting againſt us, as did at firſt in our ſelves. And as this was the aim and work of the Power of Darkneſs in our ſelves (and ſtill is, ſo far as any of it is left in any of us) to bring us back under the Darkneſs again, even from the Light and Leadings of the Spirit, and from ſingle Obedience thereto: So it is the aim and endeavour of the ſame Spirit in others. And if they could but bring us back from our God into the World again, they would be at peace with us as well as with other men, and love and cheriſh us as they do the reſt of the World.

2. A ſecond End of Perſecution in the Spirit that perſecuteth, is, to keep the Children of Light from gaining further ground. The Kingdom of God and his Truth is of a growing ſpreading nature. It is like Leaven, like Salt, like the Light of the Morning; Its Nature is to Leaven, to Seaſon, to Overſpread, and Gather Mankind from the Evil, from the Darkneſs, from the Corruption, from the Death and Deſtruction. Now the Spirit of the World, and that Spirit which ruleth the World, is loth to loſe ground; and therefore hunts and ſeeks to deſtroy the Veſſels wherein the Light appeareth, and from whom it ſhineth forth, and to make them appear as odious as they may, that they may keep all their own Territories and Dominions in a perfect deteſtation of them, and diſtance from them. Thus though the people of God have ſtill been an innocent people, and ſimple as to the ſubtilty and deceit of the Serpent, and weak and fooliſh in compare with the wiſe and ſtrong ones in the worldly nature and ſpirit: yet they are ſtill repreſented as moſt dangerous, moſt ſubtile and pernicious, as ſhrewd Deceivers, Witches, Jeſuites, &c. yea, any thing that is hateful and hated.

3. A third end of Perſecution, is, to afflict, grieve, vex, diſturb and torment thoſe, whoſe Principles and Practices are diſpleaſing to them. There is enmity in the nature and ſpirit of the World, againſt the holy pure Spirit and Seed of God; and if it cannot overcome and get its will one way in bringing back, yet it will ſtrive to have its will another way, even in vexing and afflicting. It is the pleaſure of hatred or enmity to do any thing which may hurt that, againſt which its hatred is. Thus the evil ſpirit rejoyceth in iniquity, in grieving and afflicting that which is good. As the Spirit of love delights in Love, and in doing good even to thoſe which perſecute: ſo the ſpirit of enmity delights in hatred and doing evil, even in vexing and oppreſſing thoſe which ſeek their good, becauſe they are not, nor cannot be one with them in their dark Principles and evil Practiſes.

7. The colour or pretence which men put upon their Perſecutions of that which is good.

Perſecution is ſo hateful (and hath ſuch a blackneſs of ſpirit in it) that it cannot endure to appear in its own colour. Where is the man that would appear to perſecute that which is good in men, or men becauſe of their goodneſs? Therefore all Perſecutors, though they ſtill perſecute that which is good, and thoſe which are good; yet they ſtill repreſent and charge them as evil, that they might thereby hide the badneſs and unjuſtneſs of their Perſecutions from their own eyes, and from the eyes of others. Thus the true Prophets of the Lord were always miſrepreſented by their Perſecutors, even as falſe Prophets, as Troublers of Iſrael, as mad men, as men not fit to be tolerated in the Kingdom or Common-Wealth of Iſrael: (ſee Jer. 29.26, 27.) And thoſe which condemned their fore-fathers, for perſecuting the true Prophets in former days, yet could alſo perſecute the true Prophets in their own days. Chriſt himſelf, when he asked the Jews, for which of his good works they ſtoned him? They ſaid, Not for a good work, or as a good man; but for his doing evil; for his Blaſphemy, in that he being a man would make himſelf God, Joh. 10. 32, 33. And the Phariſees did not repreſent him as a good man, as an Holy Teacher from God (as indeed He was, though his Doctrine and Converſation differed very much from theirs) but as a Deceiver, a Seducer of the people, a mean man, the Son of Joſeph the Carpenter, one whom none of the wiſe Scribes owned, but only ſuch ſilly people as knew not the Law (John 7, 49.) yea, as a very bad man, as one that was againſt the Worſhip and Ordinances of Moſes, againſt Gods Temple and Prieſts in his Doctrine and Principles, and a prophaner of Gods Holy Sabbath in his practices; yea, more than this, they repreſented him as a man that had a Devil; and when the mighty power of God appeared in him, they ſaid it was the power of the Devil, and that He was able to do ſuch great things beyond them, through the help of Beelzebub the Prince of Devils. Could the Jews think they did otherwiſe than well in deſiring ſuch a man as this to be put to Death? might they not well prefer Barrabbas before a man thus repreſented by their chief Prieſts and Teachers, who knew and could expound the Law, and were beſt able to judge (as they might well think) both what was the Truth, and who were Deceivers?

8. The Bleſſedneſs of the Perſecuted.

The Diſciple of Chriſt, who is perſecuted for Conſcience ſake, who ſuffers from men and their Laws for the uprightneſs of his heart towards, and for his obedience unto Chriſt, that man is precious in the eye of Chriſt, and hath his bleſſing with him; yea, the more men diſeſteem and hate him upon this account, the greater is his bleſſedneſs.

Bleſ-

Bleſſed are ye when men ſhall revile you, and perſecute you, and ſhall ſay all manner of Evil againſt you falſly for my ſake. Rejoyce and be exceeding glad, Mat. 5. 11. 12. He is bleſſed in ſeveral reſpects.

1. That man is in that Spirit and in that way which God hath choſen, and ſo he is in a happy ſtate and condition at preſent. He is in the path of Life, in the way of Peace, under the Leadings of Gods Spirit. The World loveth and cheriſheth that which is its own, that which is of it and walketh with it, but is at enmity and War with that which is of God. Therefore the Worlds diſlike, enmity and perſecution is an evidence of Gods choice, and of a Removal from it towards God. It is an happy thing in the eye of man, to be at unity with the World, to have the love and friendſhip thereof, to have all men ſpeak well of one, to be found doing that which is pleaſing in the eye of the World, and to be enjoying the pleaſures and profits thereof: but in the eye of God it is happy to be in unity with that which is contrary to the World, and procureth its ill will. Love not the World, neither the things that are in the World. If any man love the World, the Love of the Father (which begetteth out of the World) is not in him. But he that loſeth the love of the World (for the principle of God and his ſubjection thereto) is in that which the Father loveth, and feeleth the Love of the Father opened in him, and revealed to him: and this is truly an happy ſtate.

2. The Recompence, which God will give to them in the World to come, who cleave to Him and his Truth, for all the perſecutions which they endure in this World for his Truths ſake, is exceeding great. Great is your Reward in Heaven, Mat. 5. 14. Our light Affliction, which is but for a moment (but at moſt, for the time of this World) worketh for us a far more exceeding eternal weight of Glory, 2 Cor. 4. 17.

3. The Reward is great in this world alſo. There is an hundred fold Recompence to be reaped in this life. The peace of God in the Conſcience, the preſence of God, the Life of God, the Vertue of God, the Glory of the Spirit of God (which accompanieth, reſteth with, and abideth on the heart which is faithful, and waiteth upon God for patience, meekneſs, innocency and ſtrength to carry through Sufferings) may well be valued at above an hundred fold Income and Recompence, for all the Hardſhips and Tribulations which are undergone for his Name ſake. If ye be reproached for the Name of Chriſt happy are ye; for the Spirit of Glory and of God reſteth upon you, 1 Pet. 4. 14.

9. The grievous miſery of the Perſecutors.

It is a miſerable thing to be deceived about that which is good, to put Good for Evil, Light for Darkneſs, Sweet for Bitter, and ſo (under a miſtake at leaſt) become a Perſecutor of the Good. All Good is of God, and he that is againſt Good is againſt God; and it is a dreadful thing for the Creature to ſet himſelf in Battel againſt his Creator, and to engage the Power and Wrath of the Omnipotent One againſt him, though while the eye is ſhut, it doth not appear to men, either that they are againſt God, or that their danger is ſo great thereby, as indeed it is. The Children of God are as the Apple of his Eye: Who can touch them, and He not be deeply ſenſible? yea, and they are moſt dear to God in that, for which the World moſt perſecutes them. And therefore their danger and miſery muſt needs be great, which may further appear in theſe three reſpects.

1. In reſpect of the weight of Wrath, which their Perſecutions of others here will bring upon themſelves in the World to come. Then every hard word, with every thing they have done againſt any Lamb of Chriſt's, ſhall come upon them. There is a time of Judgement for all that is ſowed in this World; and then every one ſhall reap what he hath ſowed. And if he that hath not viſited the ſick and impriſoned for Chriſts ſake, ſhall hear that Sentence, Go ye curſed, &c. what will his portion be, who hath impriſoned them and cauſed their ſickneſs? Now is our time of trouble; but the Lord hath prepared a day of reſt for that Spirit which is troubled in this World by the ſpirit of this World, and then ſhall the troubleſom Spirit, which troubled the peaceable ſpirit (and would give it no reſt in its following and obeying the Lord) be troubled by the Spirit of the Lord, 2 Theſ. 1. 6, 7. And what ſhall the miſery of that ſpirit be, whom the Spirit of the Lord troubleth and filleth with anguiſh, and torments in his Fire and with his Brimſtone! Oh that men would awaken and conſider in time, and not fell away their everlaſting Inheritance for a meſs of Vanity, and tranſitory Luſts and Pleaſures.

2. The hand of God doth often overtake them in this World, and the Lord doth many times curſe their very Bleſſings to them, inſomuch as they cannot enjoy this World with that ſweetneſs and content they might, were it not for the rage and bitterneſs of their ſpirits againſt Gods people, and their provoking of God againſt them thereby. How many of his own people did Pharaoh loſe, and how did he break the ſtrength and glory of his Kingdom, by perſecuting Gods Iſrael of old? How did Amalek cauſe his name to be rooted out from under Heaven? How did the Nations and mighty Powers of the earth fall upon this account, one after another? And in this Nation how many powers have already fallen thereby! Jeruſalem is a burthenſome ſtone (it was ſo in the Type, it is much more ſo in the ſubſtance) which lyes in the way of every earthly ſpirit and power, which they know not how to build with, neither can they rear up their own building becauſe of it, and therefore every power ſtrives to remove it out of their way; but they know not the weight of it, nor who it is that hath ſquared it, and how firm it is fixed upon the Rock. The earthly ſpirit is never to enjoy any true or laſting peace and ſettlement (which is the gift of God) until it leave off perſecuting Gods Iſrael (which are the people whom God calleth out of the World) and leave them free for God to enjoy, command and diſpoſe of; and whatever holds Iſrael in Bondage, either within or without, muſt either be ſubject to the Lord, or be broken by that Arm of Power, which the Lord putteth forth to redeem Iſrael with.

3. By all their Perſecutions and Afflictions they ſhall but increaſe and cauſe to grow, that which they ſtrive to ſuppreſs: This is miſery indeed, for a man to hazard his Soul eternally, and his Peace and Proſperity in this World, to cruſh and ſuppreſs a People, and yet not be able to effect that neither, but even thereby occaſion their growth and encreaſe; and yet ſo it is in the day that God putteth forth his hand to redeem Iſrael. The ways that man takes to bring them back into Captivity ſhall be the means of perfecting their Redemption. Come, ſaid Pharaoh, this People multiply too faſt, they grow more and mightier than we; let us deal wiſely with them, and keep them down by hard labour, leſt they grow over-numerous and joyn with our Enemies againſt us, when they ſee their advantage: But they grew and ſpread the more, upon his wiſe plotting and contriving to diminiſh them. And what did he get by ſtriving to keep them from going forth of his Land and Idolatrous Worſhips, to worſhip the Lord aright, but Plagues and Judgments upon himſelf and his People from the Lord? Can the Powers of the Earth withſtand God any more now, than they could formerly? ſhall he not redeem and bring forth his People from the Land of Babylon? His ſpiritual Iſrael from the ſpiritual Egypt? Shall he not break the Antichriſtian Yoke from their Conſciences, that they may be free in ſpirit to ſerve the Lord? Can any hinder God from breathing his ſpirit upon People, and from begetting them in the Image and likeneſs of his Spirit unto himſelf? And ſhall not theſe be the Lords? ſhall not the ſame Spirit teach them to Worſhip the Lord? ſhall God call them to Worſhip him openly, and ſhall they not obey him, but worſhip him according to mans Inventions and Commandments, or not at all publickly? Oh ye ſons of men be wiſe, do not contend with the Lord; be not bewitched by the Cup of Fornications, from the pure ſpiritual Worſhip of the living God, into Mans Inventions, which the Lords Soul loaths; nor do not ſtrive to hold any back from the Lord, whom the Lord draws after him; but conſider his power, wait to know his Work in the World, and do not intrench upon his Dominions, but be thankful for and content with your own; and do not provoke him againſt you, who can more eaſily take yours from you, than ye can his from him. And conſider this Watchword, in that which can open and ſhew the truth of it; The Lord hath put forth his Arm to recover his Poſſeſſions from out of the hands of Antichriſt: and who ſhall be able to force it back again, to make it return into his Boſom without effecting what he ſtretched it forth for?

Therefore, O Magiſtrates of this Nation, do not make uſe of the Sword to ſuppreſs the Plants of God, but to cut down that which manifeſtly is not of God. Look abroad throughout this Nation, behold how much evil there is to grieve and provoke the Lord, and to divert good from the Nation, and to bring wrath upon it and the Government thereof; ſtrike at that in righteous and true Judgment, and with Mercy to Creatures Souls and Bodies; but that which certainly is of God, meddle not with; and that which may be of God, for ought ye know, be circumſpect in meddling with, leſt ye engage gage God againſt you. It were better to let many Tares grow, than pluck up one Ear of Corn. Chriſt hath abſolutely expreſſed it to be his Mind, that he would not have that done, which may ſo much as hazzard the plucking up of an Ear of Corn (Mat. 13. 29.) But oh how are the Laws and Governments of this World to be lamented over (and oh what need there is of their Reformation) whoſe common Work it is to pluck up the Ears of Corn, and leave the Tares ſtanding! The chief Cauſe of this miſery (from whence it principally ariſeth) is mens meddling with thoſe things which God hath reſerved for Himſelf, and aſſaying to do that carnally, which God once did ſpiritually, and will do ſpiritually again, in his due time, when he hath ſufficiently ſhewn how untoward and improper mans hand is to effect it. The Chriſtians in the Apoſtles days, were of one Heart and one Mind, which proceeded from the Power and Work of God upon them, and then they ſoon came into one Way and Worſhip; but men will have Unity and Uniformity in a way of Religion and Worſhip, before there is one Heart and one Mind. Now this is contrary to the Spirit of God, and to the very Nature of Religion, and the cauſe of much Cruelty upon mens Conſciences: And this hath been and will be the conſtant effect of it, even the cruſhing (as much as lies in man) of that which is tender, and of and for God, and the increaſing of that which is formal, dead, and earthly. Now if ever Chriſt appointed or intended ſuch a Church-Government, which naturally produceth this effect, let all that fear God, and are of ſober Spirits, judge.

10. The Way and Means to avoid Perſecution.

VVhere is the Man (in whom there is any good, who hath any love to Goodneſs and Righteouſneſs, who hateth Cruelty and Oppreſſion over mens outward Liberties and Eſtates, and much more over the Conſciences of People) that could not with his heart deſire to have this grand Enemy removed, both from Particular perſons, and alſo from Governours and Governments, that peace and ſettlement might be known, Righteouſneſs reaped, all Cruelty and hardneſs in one man towards another removed, and there be no more complaining in our Streets, either becauſe of Oppreſſions from Men, or fear of Wrath from God upon thoſe Governments which oppreſs? And who would not earneſtly pray to God for the diſcovery of that VVay and thoſe Means, and be very induſtrious in the uſe of them, whereby this perſecuting Spirit and Temper might be waſted and dryed up in him? Now the VVay and Means whereby the perſecuting Spirit may be ſubdued, are divers. As,

1. By a true Aw and Fear of God in the Heart. The Fear of God teacheth to depart from Iniquity, and to ſeek the crucifying and bringing under of the worldly Spirit in a man's ſelf, and to wait daily to have God's VVill revealed, and likewiſe to be made obedient thereunto. Now he that is in this temper of Spirit, will hardly be drawn to perſecute another, but rather rejoyce to ſee a tenderneſs of Spirit in him, and true ſubjection of heart to what he believes to be the Mind and Will of God; and dares not ſo much as judge him for differing, either in apprehenſions or practices about VVorſhip, much leſs perſecute him therefore. But that Man who is of a prophane Spirit, or comes eaſily by his Religion (even by the wiſdom, induſtry, and parts of man, and not by the gift of God) and is exerciſed in that Fear of God which is taught by the precepts of men, but knoweth not that Fear which God puts in the heart (from whence the true Religion and VVorſhip ſprings) either of theſe may be drawn to perſecute, yea indeed, it will be hard for either of them to abſtain there-from.

2. By meekneſs of Spirit. The Goſpel makes meek, tender, gentle, peaceable, fills with love and ſweetneſs of Spirit, teacheth to love, to forgive, to pray for and bleſs Enemies: And how ſhall this Man perſecute? Can a Lamb perſecute? Can a Dove perſecute? Indeed a Wolf in Sheeps clothing may Raven and Devour, but a true Sheep cannot. As the Power of the Goſpel is known, the Devouring and Perſecuting Nature is deſtroyed: And that being taken away, Perſecution ſoon comes to an end.

3. By a ſober and patient conſideration of their cauſe whom they perſecute, and what it is in themſelves which moves them to Perſecute them. The ſtrength of Perſecution lies in the darkneſs, in the dark thoughts, miſ-judgings, and miſ-apprehenſions about him, whom one one perſecutes or is inclined to perſecute, in prejudices and falſe judgments of Perſons and things received: which by a ſober hearing and conſidering of things in God's fear and in meekneſs, might be removed; and then the eager Perſecuting heat of Spirit would ſoon abate and fall, the Fewel (which kindled it) being taken away. The Jews ſtopped their Ears and ran upon Stephen, Acts 7. 57. This is the way of perſecuting Spirits; They take in prejudices againſt perſons, their Principles and Practices, ſtop their Ears againſt what may be ſaid to manifeſt either the equity of the thing in its ſelf, or their miſtake about it, and then run headlong in their fury of perſecuting and devouring. But he that is ſober and conſiderate and weighs the cauſe before he ingages againſt it, and obſerves what it is in him which moves ſo hotly againſt another, and which is ſo ready to believe ill afore-hand: He ſhall ſoon ſee that, which is always hid from the Eye of the Perſecutor, and find Water to caſt on this devouring Fire of Spirit in him.

4. By a righteous frame of Spirit, which is willing to do by another, as he would be done to in the like Caſe. Perſecution ariſeth from unrighteouſneſs and ſelfiſhneſs; Righteouſneſs and true Equity would ſoon end it. If no man would make another man's Conſcience bow by force who would not have his own ſo bowed, Perſecution would ſoon ceaſe. But this is the great Evil and Unrighteouſneſs of Man; Whoever is uppermoſt, thinks he hath right to bow all the reſt under him, and lookes upon them as guilty and offenders, if their Conſciences do not yield and bow under him. And he that newly complained of the Load laid on his Conſcience by others, yet if he can get eaſe and power into his hand, is preſently laying a Load upon others. Here is a wrong frame of Spirit within, and how can it chuſe but bring forth Injury and Perſecution outwardly?

5. By taking heed and watching againſt the corrupt and carnal Principle, with the reaſonings, ſelf-ends, and intereſts thereof, and hearkening to the Principle of God, which teacheth and ſpeaketh right Reaſon. Man, as he came from God and was by eſpecial favour formed in His Image: So it pleaſed God to place in him a Principle of his own Life to govern him: This Image was defaced by the Fall, and this Principle forfeited, yet for Chriſt's ſake (who is the Saviour of all Men, but eſpecially of them that believe) the Lord ſtirreth up and viſiteth all mankind more or leſs, by the pure eternal Principle of his own Light and Life in Chriſt. In hearkening to this, man's reaſon is rectified, purified, and preſerved pure; and his ſteps here are ſafe? But conſulting and contriving out of this, he meets with that which corrupts him (captivating and miſ-byaſſing his reaſon) and then all his Intents, Deſigns, and Contrivances become corrupt, and tend not only towards the prejudice of others at preſent, but alſo to his own loſs and detriment in the iſſue. He therefore that would be ſafe in the enjoyment of any bleſſing which he hath received from God, and faithful in doing him ſervice in his Generation, muſt know what of himſelf is ready to betray him, that he may watch againſt it, and turn from it, and what in himſelf is given him of God to enlighten, guide, inſtruct, and preſerve him, that he may hearken thereto, and be made happy thereby.

11. And Laſtly, To ſet it yet more home upon all that are ingenuous, and would be Worthy and Noble, and do that which is Worthy and Noble, abhorring cruelty, afflicting and oppreſſing of others, let them conſider the Fruits and Effects of Perſecution which are very many, and of the worſt kind, even ſuitable to the nature of the Root. At preſent I ſhall only mention theſe four.

1. In a great degree, It hindereth the growth of the preſent good in every Age and Generation. ſo far as the earthly Power or Sword of the Magiſtrate can well hinder. Perſecution of that which is good by the earthly Powers, in its proper tendency is an hinderance to the growth thereof in their age and day, though the Lord can overbear the malignity of it, and further the growth of his Seed thereby.

2. It wholly tends towards hindring the ſhooting up of any further Seeds of Good, which God hath to ſow in the Earth: For all the Seeds of Good which God hath to ſow in the Earth, at firſt they are looked upon as evil, until by God's bleſſing upon them, and opening of mens Eyes through the much ſuffering of thoſe Veſſels in whom God cauſeth the moſt excellent Seeds of his Virtue and Goodneſs firſt to appear, their innocency and beauty begins at length to ſhine in mens eyes, and be diſcerned.

3. If

3. It occaſioneth the growth of evil. For good withſtandeth, oppoſeth, and chaſeth away evil, even as light doth darkneſs; and therefore the preventing of the ſpringing up of the good, is a cheriſhing and ſtrengthening of the evil. Beſides, the ſame Spirit, Government or Power, which perſecuteth and keepeth down the good, under a pretence of its being evil, cannot chuſe but alſo cheriſh and nurſe up the evil, under a pretence of its being good. For the ſame Eye, Tongue, and Heart, that ſeeth, calleth, and acknowledgeth that which is indeed good to be evil, cannot chuſe but alſo miſtake the evil and think it good.

4. It draweth down the Wrath of God upon People, Powers, and Governments, where ſuch Perſecution is; where the evil is cheriſhed under a pretence of its being good, and the good endeavoured to be ſuppreſſed under a pretence of its being evil. If men from their hearts do acknowledge the being of God, and his diſpoſal of things: then ſurely what is truly good in Perſons or Nations is of him; and what is of him, his Eye is upon. He beholdeth the Plants which he hath Planted in the Earth, and the Plants which the envious one hath planted: and he cannot bleſs that Place, that People, thoſe Powers, that Government, where his Plants are cruſhed, under a pretence of their not being his, and where the evil Nature and Plants are cheriſhed as if they were the good.

Therefore he that would not be an Enemy to God, an Enemy to Goodneſs, an Enemy to Himſelf, an Enemy to Mankind, and a Friend and Promoter of Evil, let him wait on the Lord, for the fear of his Name and Power to be written on his Heart, and for a meek righteous frame of Spirit, &c. that he may conſider his ſteps and the reaſonings of his mind, and not miſtake evil for good, and good for evil, and ſo perſecute men for being and doing that, which (might it have its courſe and progreſs) would make the World happy.

Object. But will not this undermine Magiſtracy, and interrupt its puniſhing of Evildoers, if they ſhould be thus tender and conſiderate? For what Man cannot pretend Conſcience for what he does? And if the Magiſtrate ſhould hearken to every pretence of Conſcience, the Laws would ſoon be ſilent, Government at a ſtand, and every one do what they liſt, bringing in all manner of licentiouſneſs and diſobedience to Authority, under a pretence of Conſcience.

Anſw. 1. Conſcience is of God; and tenderneſs and conſcientiouſneſs towards him is neceſſary to the receiving of his pure fear, and towards the ſpringing up and growth of all good in the heart. The Seed of good is tender: and if it be not received into tender and well-prepared Earth (but into Thorny, Stony, or High-way-ground) it cannot grow. And it cannot reaſonably be ſuppoſed, to be the intent of God in appointing Governments, that ever their Laws or Authority ſhould hurt that tenderneſs of Conſcience, wherein his Seeds of good are ſown.

2. It is true, The corrupt Nature of Man, which is ſelfiſh, and ſeeketh covers for evil, may alſo ſeek this cover to hide Iniquity under, and may pretend Conſcience, when there is no matter of Conſcience at all, but Self-Will and Self-Ends at bottom.

3. Notwithſtanding this, God would not have the true Conſciencioufneſs and tenderneſs in any of his cruſhed; nor can it be done by any Perſon, Authority, or Law, without provoking God on the one hand, or without injury to ſuch who are ſo dealt with, viz. who are puniſhed by man for the exerciſe of that conſcientiouſneſs which is of God, and which he requireth and is pleaſing to him.

4. It were far better in it ſelf, ſafer for Governours, more agreeable to equity and righteous Government, and more pleaſing to God and good Men, rather to ſuffer ſome (by their craft and falſe covers) to eſcape due puniſhment, then to puniſh thoſe who (by the Goodneſs, Innocency, and Righteouſneſs which God hath planted in them) are exempted from puniſhment. Yea, it were better and much ſafer to ſpare many evil men, than to puniſh one good Man: For Mercy and Sparing (even of Offenders) is natural to that which is good, but Severity and Puniſhments are unnatural, and but for neceſſities ſake. And as for that man, who by his ſubtilty and deceit thus eſcapes mans hand, he will be no great gainer: For God, who is above all, will be ſure to meet with him. Yea that Magiſtrate (who ſpares ſome evil and evil-doers meerly upon this account, leſt he ſhould hurt that which is good) the Lord will help and bleſs: whereas that Power and Government which wilfully errs herein, the Lord may ſoon cut down; and that which errs thus through miſtake (it being a grievous miſtake to cut down the good inſtead of the evil) the Lord, who loveth the good and hateth the evil, may eaſily be provoked againſt.

5. As Government came from God; ſo the righteous execution of it depends upon God. Every man needs Gods help daily, elſe he may eaſily err in his courſe: and Governments and Governours need Gods help much more, in the many intricaſies and perplexities which they often meet with: And God is nigh to them in their difficult caſes, who wait upon him for counſel and direction. If the caſe be knotty, yet if God give wiſdom, hath the Magiſtrate cauſe to complain? And will not the Lord aſſiſt that Magiſtrate, who in his fear waits on him, and is not willing to ſpare the evil, and afraid to hurt the good? If there were not ſo much conſulting with mans wiſdom and policy, (nor ſuch laying of deſigns and intents at firſt, as ſpring from man and not from God) but a naked upright waiting on him for inſtruction, who can only guide the ſpirit of man aright, Governments would not prove ſo difficult, nor the ſucceſs therein of dangerous.

A Brief Account of that ſtiffneſs, reſolvedneſs, and ſuppoſed ſtubbornneſs, which by many is objected againſt the People called Quakers.

Object. That the People called Quakers, are an innocent and induſtrious People, that they aim at good, and might be ſerviceable and profitable to the Nation in many reſpects; this many believe concerning them, and in their hearts wiſh that the Powers would let them alone and make a Trial of them: the which they might be the more enclined to do, were it not for a certain ſtiffneſs which appears in them, they being ſo glued to their Principles and Practices that they will not bend in the leaſt, nor ſo much as meet the Magiſtrate one jot in any favour he would ſhew unto them. This is ſuch a temper as no Magiſtrate or Governour can bear, and therefore there is a neceſſity either of baniſhing or ſuppreſſing them one way or other.

Anſ. I freely confeſs, that (looking upon them with mans eye) it may eaſily appear ſo to man, who cannot ſee either whence that is, or what that is, which is wrought in their hearts by God. And how can I blame others for judging thus of them, when I my ſelf ſhould be liable ſo to judge, if I did ſo look upon them? But yet, if I had patience to hear them, and to conſider the thing in the fear of God, (watching againſt that wiſdom, from which the knowledge of the things of God and the ſtate of his People is hid) I ſee alſo, that there is ſome ground may appear unto man, to let him ſee that this is not ſuch a ſtiffneſs and ſtubborneſs of ſpirit as he judgeth, but ariſeth from, and neceſſarily accompanieth a true tenderneſs and conſcientiouſneſs towards God; which to make the more manifeſt to ſuch as are willing fairly to conſider the thing and know the truth thereof, I ſhall thus demonſtrate.

1. Stubbornneſs, or ſuch a kind of ſtiffneſs and reſolvedneſs, ariſeth from the ſtrength and corruption of the natural will and earthly wiſdom. The wiſdom which is from above is gentle, eaſie to be entreated; and the will which is created by God is mild and flexible, and eaſie to be led (by the leaſt Child) in the line of goodneſs. And I can truly ſay this, that I never in my whole courſe and converſation (who have long been a Spectator and un-intereſted perſon both as relating to the civil ſtate and the various profeſſions of Religion, till the power of Truth and preſence of God appearing in this people drew my heart after them) yea I cannot but ſay in the ſingleneſs of my heart, I never met with a more mild, gentle, flexible ſpirited People. And he that can reach the ground of the thing, cannot but ſee it to be thus; For he that is daily exerciſed in denying his will and wiſdom, he on whoſe back the Lord lays the Croſs and Crucifies him every day, his ſelf-will and ſelf-wiſdom (with all the conceitedneſs and ſtiffneſs which ariſeth therefrom) muſt needs be much broken in him.

2. In the tenderneſs and pliableneſs to good, which God begets, there is and cannot but be an unbendedneſs to evil. Conſider this, O ye that are wiſe; In the Birth which God begets in the heart, in the immortal Seed of life, which God hath ſown and cauſeth to ſpring up in his heritage, there is a bowing to God at every appearance of good, accompanied companied with a tenderneſs, gentleneſs and good will to man: But it cannot bow to that which is evil in any man upon the face of the Earth. Read then this Riddle with a true underſtanding: The tender one cannot yield, the ſtiffe one cannot bow, but naturally ſtandeth upright and ſtrait towards God, even in every thing he hath learned of him, and which he requireth of it. Thus in the Apoſtles days, the Chriſtians (though meek, though ſweet, though pliable to the Spirit of God and to all good, yet) could not bow to ſo much as an appearance of evil any where, but ſtood and avoid it every where. And if it were not for this kind of ſtiffneſs and unbendedneſs, the Children of God could never be preſerved in their departure out of the Worlds Spirit, Ways, Worſhips and Practices: but would ſoon be entnared and drawn back again, by the enticements and ſubtilties of the Worldly nature either in themſelves or others.

3. A ſtiffneſs then I grant, an unbendedneſs I grant; but not of the earthly, not of the ſelf-will, not according to the earthly; but ſuch as ariſeth from Truth in the heart, and from tenderneſs of Spirit towards God; ſuch as is begot in his fear, preſerved by his power, and is neceſſary towards their preſervation who are born of him, and called by him out of the World. And if thoſe who are apt and liable to misjudge of them, did but ſee the ſincere deſire of their hearts not to offend man, but to be ſubject to the utmoſt according to the will of God, and knew what breathings there are in their hearts to God (in relation to the Magiſtrate, and when they appear before him) that they may be preſerved in the pure fear, and in righteouſneſs and inoffenſiveneſs, and how they cannot but refuſe to break any of Gods Commands, becauſe He is their Supream Lord, and they dare not diſobey Him to pleaſe man, or avoid their own Sufferings from man: I ſay, if men did ſee this, ſurely they would not call it ſtubbornneſs and ſelf-willedneſs, but a pure ſubjection and denial of the ſelf-will in Gods fear, joyned with an holy and humble boldneſs in His power.

4. Let it be equally conſidered, and it will ſoon be acknowledged, That the leaſt thing which God requires (the Command being from ſo great a King, upon whom the Soul hath ſo great dependance, from whom it hath ſo great hopes, and to whom univerſal obedience is ſo due in it ſelf and ſo profitable to the Creature) is exceeding mighty: and it is impoſſible for the fear of him, and due tenderneſs towards his Commands, to be preſerved, without a ſtrict and cloſe giving up the Will to him, and ſtanding in his Strength, ſtrong and unbended againſt all temptations, provocations, allurements and affrightments to the contrary, (and how eaſily may men call this ſtubbornneſs and ſtiffneſs.) But this they receive from God, as well as the Law of obedience and power to obey; and this (which men call ſtubbornneſs) flows in upon them from him, when they are in the ſweeteſt and meekeſt frame of Spirit, moſt ready to deny themſelves and to yield up their own Wills, to whatſoever is good and righteous, and ſo of God.

5. The ſame thing, which is offended at this unbendedneſs and reſolvedneſs, which is wrought and preſerved in them by the fear of God, (calling it by way of reproach, ſtiffneſs and ſtubbornneſs,) I ſay, the very ſame thing will commend that reſolution and ſtiffneſs, which is taken up in mans wiſdom, and held in mans will. Is it not good to weigh and conſider things reaſonably, and then to chuſe and hold faſt to thoſe Principles which appear moſt reaſonable? what man, but will ſay it is? And is it not good to obey and keep to that Light which is higher than Reaſon, which comprehends Reaſon, rectifying and preſerving it, making it profitable and ſerviceable to God which made it, to the Veſſel in which it is, and to the reſt of the Creation? But Wiſdom is juſtified of her Children. He that knows not the Principle of the Eternal Light, who is not born of it (much leſs by unfeigned obedience and ſubjection formed into it) he cannot juſtifie it in his Paths: but he juſtifies the earthly wiſdom and reaſon of man, by its ſetting up appearances of Good, inſtead of Good, and would make all acknowledge and bow to them as Good; whereas that which is indeed acquainted with the Good, living in the Principle thereof, cannot bow to the falſe Appearance, but only to the Truth it ſelf. When mans ſpirit and wiſdom is wearied out of all its paths, and he broken with the miſery which will certainly overtake him therein, at laſt the Path of God will be welcome to him, and that Principle which (through the operation of God) is able to rectifie him and make him happy.

There hath long been a Peace and Proſperity throughout the World in Unrighteouſneſs; but the ſeaſon is at length come for the breaking thereof, and now there is not to be ſuch a ſettled falſe Peace in Unrighteouſneſs any longer: but Tribulation, Anguiſh, and Deſtruction is coming upon the ſelfiſh and unjuſt Spirit: and he that refuſeth the Path of Righteouſneſs, muſt not know Peace, but be overtaken with the overflowing ſcourge, and ſwept into and ſhut up in the Pit, which hath long been digging for the wicked (Pſal. 94. 13.) And mark this thing following, ye that would not find your ſelves deceived of your Souls hereafter, nor of your outward Peace and Proſperity here: for it deeply concerns both.

The Spirit of the Lord once raiſed up a ſpiritual Building, which the Spirit of the Dragon overturned (as to its outward ſtate, though the Gates of Hell could prevail againſt the Being and inward ſtate of the true Church) and inſtead thereof ſet up an earthly Image, agreeable to the earthly Spirit in Nations, but burthenſome to that which is innocent, pure, and ſpiritual. The Lord God ſuffered this to ſtand all its allotted time, and to have power to keep down the viſibility of his Truth and People: but the Lord hath appointed a ſeaſon to raiſe up his own Building again, and to throw down this Image. Now this I ſay to all men, in the fear and dread of the Almighty, ſtand ſtill and mark, if all the power of man be able to keep down God's ſpiritual Building which he is raiſing up; or to keep up any part of the earthly Image which he is throwing down. The Spirit of man (in various ways) hath ſhewed, what it judgeth beſt to have down, and to have up, and hath put forth its ſtrength to accompliſh its Will and Counſel. Stand ſtill a while, and ye ſhall ſee, that the Spirit of the Lord will alſo ſhew what he would have down, and what he would have up, and he will alſo put forth his Strength, to accompliſh his Will and Counſel. It is the Glory and Honour of the Lord to carry on his Work, in the midſt of all the Oppoſitions of man, and againſt the full current of his Strength and Will. This will make it to appear to be of God, and cauſe the Glory of his Name to ſhine. O that men could fear the Lord and bow before him, that he might be honoured in them, and ſee good to honour them in the carrying on of his Work, and ſo might not be forced (through their hearkening to the dark Spirit, and becauſe of their Ignorance of, and Diſobedience to the Light of his Spirit) to get himſelf a Name, by overturning their Strength and Councils, and cauſing his Glory to ſhine over them.

We have been a poor oppreſſed People, from the day that the power of the Lord brake forth upon us, and his Light ſprang in us, even until now: And now we are brought lower than ever, and are in greater danger (to the eye of man) than ever. Yet our confidence is ſtill in our God; and this we are certain of, that our Principle (and Practices there-from) ſhall ſtand, and man ſhall not be able to prevail againſt it: for God will preſerve his People in his Life and Power, and the heads of all that wait upon him in his fear, ſhall be lift up above all the ſwellings of the Waters; yea, a Song of praiſe is already prepared in the heart of God's Choſen, againſt the day of his Deliverance. We look not out, but give up our backs to the Smiter, as if their Stroaks were never to have an end: and yet we wait on our God and hope in him, as if Deliverance were ſpringing up every moment. And, Oh that God would ſmite the Spirit of Enmity and Darkneſs in Men and Powers, and then there would be Love, Peace, purſuing after God and Righteouſneſs, and no more Perſecuting and Smiting of God's People for the Uprightneſs of their hearts, and for their Obedience and Faithfulneſs to him. But be it known throughout all the Earth, We are the Lord's, and we muſt worſhip and ſerve him. He hath redeemed us, (even all of us in ſome meaſure, who have known Unity with his living Truth) in Soul, in Body, and Spirit: and they muſt all be his in the firſt place, and cannot bow to man (in the leaſt) againſt his Will, or contrary to the Law of his pure Life, and leadings of his Spirit in the Heart. Here is our ſtanding, in the ſtrength of our God, whatever become of us. And here we ſtand in love and good-will to mankind, yea, to theſe preſent Powers, however they judge of us; and have been praying for them, and mourning over them, while they have been ſmiting of us. And when they have drawn the Hand of the Lord upon themſelves; if the Lord ſhall pleaſe to open their Eyes, to ſee what we have been towards them (and how fain we would have had them ſet footing there, where they might have ſtood firm and have been preſerved) they will bewail as much their dealings with us, as what will befal themſelves ſelves: The Lord will manifeſt all things in his Time, and give his Truth a paſſage in the Earth, and his People a quiet Habitation therein, how black ſoever the Face of things now appear, as relating to them.

O how happy will the Day be when the Lord ſhall have wrought down the ſelfiſh Spirit in Man, and ſhall have raiſed up His own Noble and Equal Principle. Then ſhall Righteouſneſs ſpring up and ſpread abroad throughout the Nations: and the Work of Righteouſneſs ſhall be Peace, and the Effect of Righteouſneſs Quietneſs and Aſſurance for ever.

Some DIRECTIONS to the PANTING-SOUL, which hath been long travelling in the Letter, but hath not yet been acquainted with the Power, nor hardly ſo much as entred into the Miniſtration of the endleſs Life (which is the Miniſtration of the GOSPEL) that it may feel the Spring, and come to drink there of the living Waters.

MATTH. 11. 28, 29, 30.

Come unto me all ye that Labour and are heavy Laden, and I will give you Reſt. Take my Yoak upon you, and learn of me, for I am Meek and Lowly in Heart, and ye ſhall find Reſt unto your Souls. For my Yoak is eaſie, and my Burden is light.

Some ſweet Meditations ſprang in my Heart concerning this Portion of Scripture, with breathings of Spirit for, and rowlings of Bowels towards thoſe that Labour and are heavy Laden, which I find drawings to Communicate.

1. IN the Goſpel (which is the power of God unto Salv ation) is the Soul's Reſt. It is the Doctrine of the Kingdom, wherein is Life, Joy, Peace, and everlaſting Reſt to the Soul in God: The Law had the Shadow of the good things to come, but under it was not the poſſeſſion of the good things themſelves, but only a labouring after them, and a mourning and load becauſe of the want of them: but in the Goſpel is the Subſtance, the Enjoyment; Life and Immortality is there brought to Light, and an Entrance miniſtred into the everlaſting Kingdom, where they are felt, poſſeſſed, and enjoyed. The Kingdom of Heaven is at hand, ſaith the Fore-runnner: It is come, ſaith the Meſſiah: And in it there is Righteouſneſs, and Peace, and Joy in the pure Spirit of Life.

2. It is the Will of the King of Saints, that his People ſhould enjoy the Reſt and Peace of his Goſpel. He would not have them always labouring and heavy laden, as under the Law: but he would have their Souls feel and enjoy the Eaſe, the Liberty, the ſweetneſs, the pure Power and eternal Reſt of his Life. The Spirit of the Lord was upon him to preach glad Tidings to the Meek, Liberty to the Captives, Life to the Dead, the Opening of the Priſon to the Priſoner of Hope, the binding up of the Broken-hearted, the Pouring in of Oyl upon the Wounded: and he would have the Souls of his People enjoy that which he came to bring them.

3. Chriſt hath plainly chalked out the Path of his Reſt to every weary panting Soul, which he that walketh in cannot miſs of. He hath caſt up, caſt up, he hath made the way plain in the Goſpel, ſo plain that the wayfaring-man, though a Fool, yet keeping to the Light of the Goſpel, cannot err therein, or miſs of the bleſſed Reſt thereof How is it? Why, Come unto me; Take my Yoke upon you, and learn of me. He that walketh in this Path, cannot miss of it: The rest is at the end of it, nay the rest is in it: He that believeth entreth into the rest. The true Faith, the Faith which stands in the Power, and which is given to the Birth which is born from above, is the substance of the Rest hoped for, and there is a true taste and some enjoyment of it given to him that truly believeth.

4. The rest was once felt and injoyed, when the Gospel was known in Power. Believers, in the first day of the Gospel, before the night overtook that glorious dispensation, found Peace and joy in believing, yea they could rejoyce in the Lord always. They felt the Power and the Life, which stood over all the powers of Darkness, and brought good to them out of every Affliction, and out of every Temptation, and out of every Distress: so that they standing in the Life and in the Power which had quickened them and was present with them, they could count it all joy when they fell into manifold Temptations, knowing the advantage which would accrue to them thereby, and possessing their Souls in the pure patience, till God wrought it out for them. They had an entrance ministred to them into the everlasting Kingdom: They received the Kingdom which could not be shaken, and in it had fellowship with the Father and with the Son, and in the eternal Life the bloud ran in their Vessels, which cleansed them and kept them pure; and they sate down with Christ in the heavenly Places, even every one in the particular mansion which God had built in them by his Spirit. The Fear of the living God was put in their hearts; The Spirit of the Lord was within them, and there his Law was writ, and read in the Spirit, and the Treasures of his Kingdom were opened by the Key of David in the hand of the Spirit, and their Souls had true satisfaction and rest in measure, and were travelling on towards fulness.

5. There is no rest to the Soul, to be enjoyed in the Gospel, from under the Yoke. This stands Eternally, That which yoaks down that which would be at ease and liberty out of the Life, that is the Souls true rest, there is no other; and under the Yoke it is enjoyed, and not otherways: only, when that which is to be yoked down is consumed and destroyed, it is then no longer a Yoke, but perfect Liberty. But the same thing which is the Liberty, is the Yoke: And under the Yoke, the sweetness, the ease, the lightsomness, the safe possession of the Life is enjoyed. Mark this therefore diligently; The Yoke is not one thing and the Liberty another, but one and the same. The Power of God, the Life Everlasting, the pure Light, the divine Nature is a Yoke to the transgressing Nature; but it is the ease, the pleasure, the rest, the peace, the joy, the natural center of that which is born of God.

Now to the Soul that hath felt breathings towards the Lord formerly, and in whom there are yet any true breathings left, after his living presence, and after the feeling of his eternal vertue in the heart, I have this to say. Where art thou? Art thou in thy Souls rest? dost thou feel the vertue and power of the Gospel? dost thou feel the ease which comes from the living Arm, to the heart which is joyned to it in the Light of the Gospel? Is thy labouring for life in a good degree at an end? and dost thou feel the life and power flowing in upon thee from the free Fountain? Is the load really taken off from thy back? dost thou find the captive redeemed and set free from the power of sin, and the captivity broken, and he which led thee Captive from the life and from the eternal power, now let captive by the life, and by the redeeming power, which is eternal? Hast thou found this, or hast thou missed of it? let thine heart answer. Ah do not imagine and talk away the rest and salvation of thy soul. The Gospel-state is a state of substance, a State of enjoying the Life, a State of feeling the Presence and Power of the Lord in his pure holy Spirit, a state of binding up, a state of healing, a state of knowing the Lord, and walking with him in the Light of his own Spirit. It begins in a sweet powerful touch of Life, and there is a growth in the Life (in the Power, in the divine Virtue, in the Rest, Peace, and Satisfaction of the Soul in God) to be administred and waited for daily: Now art thou here, in the living power, in the divine Life, joyned to the spring of Life, drawing Water of Life out of the Well of Life with joy? Or art thou dry, dead, barren, sapless, or at best but unsatisfiedly mourning after what thou wanteſt?

Well, ye that are dry, dead, barren, as it were without the living God (that know not the shining of his Sun, nor the descending of his Dews from on high on his tender Plants, nor the care, diligence, and circumspection of the Husbandman over his Husbandry.) Oh wait for the quickening virtue, for the visitations of the day-spring from on on high; that ye may be quickened again to God, that ye may find his Life visiting you, his Spirit breathing upon you, that the Seed of Jacob may be raised in you to travel out of this barren state, even out of this Land of Darkness, and from under the shadow of Death, to the Land where Life lives and flourishes, and daily distributeth plentiful nourishment and refreshment to all its off-spring, who are taught to wait for it, and to feed on it in the holy place, out of the sight of the eye of the fleshly Wisdom.

And ye who are still gasping after the living God, on whom the breathings of Life still abide, (who remain unsatisfied inwardly for want of the presence of the Lord, and whose hearts still mourn and lament deeply after him) Oh consider what is the matter, that ye have mourned so long, and sought so long, and yet to this day are at a distance from the thing ye have mourned and sought after.

Strait is the Gate, narrow is the Way that leadeth unto Life, and few there be that find it. The way of unbelief is broad, yea the way of belief is broad also. It is easie for a man so to believe concerning Christ, or in Christ (as his heart may call it) as to miss of the nature of the true Faith, and of the sweet and blessed effects which accompany it. It is easie likewise to miss the Yoke (to take up a wrong Yoke, in the self-will, self-wisdom, self-interpretation of Scriptures) or easie starting aside from the true Yoke: but it is hard coming under the Yoke of the Life, and hard abiding under it. Again, It is easie mis-learning: A man may so read, and so hear, as that he may be always learning, and never come to the knowledge of the Truth; never come to the Truth as it is received and held in Jesus; but may so get and hold the Knowledge of the Truth, as man in his Wisdom may get and hold it from the Letter. And if a man thus miss the way, how can he attain the end? If a man begin not in the true Faith, in the living Faith, how can he attain the Rest which the true Faith alone leads to? If a man miss of the Yoke, or abide not constantly under the Yoke, how can he meet with the true ease and rest which is in it, and which it alone can administer? If a man learn not the Truth aright of the true Teacher, how can he ever reap the effects of the true Knowledge? Ah poor hearts! It is not enough to have breathings after God, nor to be very diligent and industrious either in outward Ordinances, or inward Exercises of Spirit, but the way of the Gospel must be cast up by God, and the Soul led into it by him, and daily preserved by him, and must walk in the path which is proper for it to walk in, or it may mourn and cry all its days, and never meet with that injoyment of God and satisfaction in God, which it waits for and cries after. It is one thing to mourn after a Gospel-state, but another thing to be brought into it by the Power. With my heart I own those that mourn after and feel the want of God, where-ever they are: But this I know certainly, that they can never come to the injoyment of him, but in that living Path which the Scriptures testifie of to be in him who is the Life, and which his Spirit is now found manifestly leading into. Blessed be his Name.

Quest. But how may my poor Soul, who have long mourned, and groaned, and been sick of Love after my Beloved, but could never attain to the satisfactory enjoyment of him, come to walk in this Path, that so I may meet with, and lie down in that power of Life and Salvation, which the Gospel holds forth to the true Believer, and which I have been long sensible of the deep want of?

Answ. Thou that wouldst enjoy thy Beloved, and feel the Rest of his Gospel, and walk in that Path which leads thereto, wait to learn of the Spirit these things following.

1. Know what it is that is to walk in the Path of Life, and indeed is alone capable of walking therein. It is that which groans, that which mourns, that which is begotten of God in thee. The Path of Life is for the Seed of Life. The true knowledge of the Way, with the walking in the Way, is reserved for Gods Child, for Gods Traveller. Therefore keep in the Regeneration, keep in the Birth. Be no more than God hath made thee. Give over thine own willing, give over thy own running, give over thine own desiring to know or to be any thing, and sink down to the Seed which God sows in the heart, and let that grow in thee, and be in thee, and breath in thee, and act in thee: and thou shalt find by sweet experience that the Lord knows that, and loves and owns that, and will lead it to the Inheritance of Life, which is its Portion. And as thou takest up the Croſs to thy ſelf, and ſuffereſt that to overſpread and become a Yoke over thee, thou ſhalt become renewed, and enjoy Life and the Everlaſting Inheritance in that.

2. Know in what Light it is to walk, which is the Light of the Spirit. There the Child is begotten (not in Satans Darkneſs, or higheſt Transformings into the likeneſs of Light, which is but Darkneſs; nor in the light of mans wiſdom, ſearching Knowledge or comprehenſion) and there it walks: in that Light it fetcheth every ſtep and motion towards the Land of Life. Therefore hold no knowledge out of the Spirit. If any knowledge concerning the things of God be held out of the freſhneſs of the Spirit, it preſently proves dead and unprofitable. The Spiritual Iſrael cannot travel without a Spiritual Light, which Light is Eternal and incomprehenſible, and cannot be held by mans ſpirit, but ſhineth freſh into the renewed Spirit every day, and ſo is daily gathering it more and more inwards into it ſelf, comprehending it in it ſelf, and preſerving it in its own Purity, Clearneſs and Brightneſs. Oh this is it hath undone many, even catching at Light from the Spirit, tranſplanting the Image of Divine things into the Earthly Principle, and there holding of them in the Earthly part, growing wiſe by them there, and making uſe of them from thence as man ſees good, and not ſeeing a neceſſity of depending on the Spirit for freſh Light and Life every day, to every ſpiritual motion. Thus the Traveller ſoon comes to loſe the true path, and inſtead thereof travels on in a Road of his own wiſdoms forming: and ſo though he ſeems to himſelf to make a large Progreſs, yet makes no true Progreſs at all, but is exceedingly run out aſide in a by-way, all which ground he muſt traverſe back again, ere he can come to the Truth of his former State, or proceed in the true Travel.

3: Know and keep to the Power, which alone began any true work in the heart, which alone alſo can preſerve it, and which alone can carry it on. Chriſt was made a Prieſt, not after the Law of a carnal Commandment, but after the Power of an endleſs life: and every Sacrificer under him (which every true Believer is) is ſo made by the ſame Power. The Powers of Darkneſs are continually at hand, which nothing can ſtand its ground againſt (much leſs walk on ſafely) without being in that Power which is above them. The firſt coming to Chriſt muſt be in the Power of the Fathers drawing: and no believing afterwards is of the true nature, nor will avail the Soul in its progreſs and travel towards Life, but what abides in, and goes forth in the ſame Power. So the taking up the Yoke and drawing in it, muſt be by the Power of the new Life. And ſo muſt the Diſciples learning be. As the Maſter teacheth in the Power of the Spirit, the things which alone can be ſeen with the new eye, heard with the new ear, and received into the new heart: ſo the Scholar muſt learn and receive his Leſſons of Life in the ſame Power. Let any Diſciple of Chriſt be from under the ſhadow of the Power, believe out of the Power, walk out of the Power, act out of the Power; he is from that wherein his Life ſtands, and wherein alone is his Preſervation, and ah, how liable is he then to falls, bruiſes, ſnares and temptations of the enemy.

4. Watch againſt the ſelfiſh Wiſdom, in every ſtep of thy growth, and in every ſpiritual motion, that that come not between thee and thy life; that that deceive thee not with a likeneſs, a ſhadow, making it appear more pleaſing to the eye than the ſubſtance. Every ſtep of thy way it will be laying baits for thee, and it is eaſie for deceit to enter thee at any time, and for that Wiſdom to get up in thee under an appearance of Spiritual wiſdom, unleſs the Lord tenderly and powerfully preſerve thee: and if it prevail, it will lead thee from the path of the true wiſdom; It will cozen thee with a falſe faith inſtead of the true faith, with falſe praying inſtead of the breathings of the true Child, with diligence and zeal in thy falſe way, inſtead of the true zeal and diligence; yea it will hurry thee on in the path of error, ſhutting that eye in thee which ſhould ſee, and hardening thy heart againſt thy boſom-friend. And being thus deceived, thou mayſt be as zealous in thy Age and Generation againſt the Truth, as the Jews were in theirs: and as certainly as they put Chriſt to Death, and perſecuted his Apoſtles, though they cried up the former Prophets; So certainly thou (under this deceit) canſt not but act againſt the preſent diſpenſation and appearance of Chriſt's Spirit, and wouldſt perſecute either the Prophets, Apoſtles or Chriſt himſelf, were it their preſent day now ſo to appear as formerly they did.

5. Le

5. Let not thine judge in thee (concerning thine own heart, or concerning others, or concerning any way or truth of God) but only the begotten of God in the heart. Let the light in which thou art begotten to God, and which shines upon his begotten, be the only Judge in thee, and then thou canst not err in judgment. Be not hasty, be not forward in Judgment, keep back to the life, still waiting for the appearance and openings of the life. A few steps fetched in the Life and Power of God are much safer and sweeter than an hasty progress in the hasty forward spirit.

Indeed this is the true Religion, to feel God beginning the work, and to wait on him for his carrying it on. The feeling of Gods Spirit beginning somewhat in the heart, the hearts waiting on him for more of his Spirit, and walking on with him in his Spirit, as he pleaseth to quicken, lead, draw and strengthen, this is the spiritual and true Religion: and there is no Duty or Ordinance of the Gospel out of the Spirit, but it is easie crying up, and observing the likeness of any of them out of the Spirit, into which observance a strange Spirit easily enters, and then that which was of God in the heart, soon withers, and a contrary Building is raised, and the state of the heart changed: Oh wait on the Lord, that he may give you to understand these things: for the Apostacy from God is very deep, and more provoking among the Protestants than among the Papists, yea most of all provoking, where it is most inward and spiritual.

Quest. But how may I know and keep to the begotten of God, and to the Light and Power of the Lord, and keep down the fleshly Wisdom and Comprehension concerning the things of God?

Answ. When God begets life in the heart, there is the savour of it in thy Vessel, and a secret living warmth and vertue, which the heart in some measure feels, whereby it is known. Lie low in the fear of the most high, that this leaven may grow and increase in thee. This is the leaven of the Kingdom, this is it which must change thy heart and nature, and make thy Vessel (which perhaps hath been long and much corrupted) fit to receive the Treasure of the Kingdom. Now while the savour is upon thee, while the vertue of the Life is fresh in thee, thou findest some strength towards God, with some little taste and discerning of the things of his Kingdom, know thy weakness, and go not beyond thy measure, but in what thou hast received bow before the fulness, worship God in that, and be patient in what he exercises thee withal, waiting for more from him. And when the night comes upon thee, and thou perhaps art at a loss, missing the savour and presence of the Life, and not knowing how to come by it again, Be patient and still, and thou wilt find breathings after a fresh visitation, and a meek humble, broken Spirit before the Lord. Thou wilt see thou canst do nothing to recover his presence again, nay thou canst not so much as wait for him, or breath after him without his help; but he is nigh to the poor, nigh to the broken, nigh to the distressed, nigh to the helpless. Oh do not with thy fleshly cries and roarings think to awaken thy Beloved before his season; but in the night of distress, feel after somewhat which may quiet and stay the heart till the next springing of the day. The Sun will arise, which will scatter the Clouds; and he is near thee who will give thee to hope that thou shalt yet see God, and find again the quicknings and leadings of his Spirit. And in the day of his Power thou wilt find strength to walk with him: yea, in the day of thy weakness his Grace will be sufficient for thee. And he will nurture thee up in his Life by his pure Spirit, causing thee to grow under his shadow: and he will be teaching thee to live, and to speak, and to move and act from the Principle and within the Compass of his light and life eternal. Only be not wise to catch the notions of things into the earthly part, where the Moth can corrupt, and where the Thief can break thorow and steal: but know the divine Treasury, where all the things of life are Treasured up by the Spirit: and handed forth to the living Child with fresh life, according to its need of them. And thus thy heart being kept close to God, and thy spiritual Senses continually exercised about the things of God, it will be easie to thee to know the Shepherds Voice, and to distinguish the sound of the Spirit in thine own heart. And that which tries spirits and motions in thine own heart, will also give thee the discerning of Truth and Error abroad, even of the Spirit of God, and the Spirit of Satan in others, so that thou wilt be able to try not only Words, but Spirits, becoming acquainted with the anointing, which savours all things, and will give thee to judge, not by the Words, but by the Power: for thou thy self being in the power, in the anointing, in the savour, it will become natural to thee to feel, to taste, to know and unite with what is one with thy life, what comes from the same spirit in others, and to turn from the contrary. And thus thy life, thy growth, thy path will be sweet, safe, clear, certain, demonstrative in the Spirit, and past all reasonings of flesh and blood, either in thy self or others. The beginning of life eternal is in an higher Principle, than man can come at. Mans Wisdom and knowledge of the things of God, is but brutish before it. As thou comest into that Principle, abidest and growest in that Principle, thou art beyond mans Judgement, and art able to judge man, and fathom his whole course as with a span, but art quite out of his reach in the lowest of thy motions, thoughts or actions, I mean such as flow from and are comprehended in the life.

Isaac Penington the Younger.

Concerning the Worship of the Living God, which he teacheth Israel his People, who know him to be the only true to God, and the Worship which he teacheth them, to be the only true Spiritual Worship.

With some Questions and Answers relating Conversion, and to Tenderness of Conscience.

BEcause the Worship of God is a weighty thing, and there have been (and still are) so many Errors about it, and the Errors therein are of such dangerous consequence, both in relation to mens Eternal Estate hereafter, and to their right Constitution, Peace and Welfare in this World; and because I have had deep experience concerning the Worship of God from a Child, having travelled in Spirit with my God in the right knowledge thereof, and in singleness of heart giving up unto him, according as he hath taught and led my poor, needy, depending Soul: I say, Therefore is it on my heart, to answer some few Questions concerning the Worship of God, for the service of such, as both desire and need instruction therein.

Quest. 1. Who is the Worshipper, the acceptable Worshipper in the sight of God? Or whom hath God chosen out, to hold forth his Worship in the sight of the World, since he rejected the Jews with their Worship?

That God hath appointed a chosen People to Worship him, that I presuppose: though if need were, the proof thereof might be ready at hand. It is not every man that would thrust himself upon the Lord, whom the Lord will accept: but the Father seeketh such to Worship him, John 4. 23. There is a capacity to be found in man, to make him a Worshipper, even such a capacity, as may enable him to perform that Worship, which God requireth of him. Now that is the thing to be enquired into, What this capacity is, and who are the persons that are found in this capacity?

Ans. The Worshipper in the times of the Gospel, the Worshipper under the New-Testament is he that is born of God. He that is drawn out of the dark spirit of this World, and formed anew in the light of Gods Spirit. He that is a Jew inward, he that hath the Uncircumcision of his heart cut off by the power of God. This is the Worshipper, whom the Father seeks to Worship him. This is the sort of Worshippers God chose, when he cast off the Jews. God did not chuse any one Nation, or many Nations, instead of that one which he cast off: but he sent his Apostles and Ministers among all Nations, to gather a Spiritual seed instead of the natural. And these alone are capable of setting up, and holding forth his spiritual Worship unto the World, and to provoke them to wait for, and and press towards the capacity of coming into the same spiritual Worship with them.

Quest. 2. Which is the place of Worship?

Answ. The only place of Worship in the New-Testament, is where the spiritual Worshippers meet together. The place is spiritual. As the Worship is spiritual: so is the place where it is to be offered. It hath a spiritual consideration, not outward as under the Law. It is to be offered in the Spirit, that's the place. Where doth my Soul offer its private Worship to God? Hath it relation to any outward place? Or is it in the building, which God hath reared up in my heart by his Spirit? Which building stands in, and is comprehended in his Spirit. And I can offer his publick Worship in no other place, but in a building of the same Nature, in an house built of more of the same Stones. This then is the way of Worshipping in the true Light; Divers living Stones meeting together, every one retiring in Spirit into the living Name, into the Power which begat them, they all meet in one and the same Place, in one and the same Power, in one and the same Fountain of Life: and here they bow down to the Father of Life, offering up living Sacrifices to him, and receiving the Bread and Water of Life from him, and feeding in the rich Pastures of his infinite Fulness: In the holy City, in the living Temple which is built by God, of the Stone which all other builders refuse, is the place of the Worship of the living God, where the true Jews meet to offer up their Spirits, Souls, and Bodies, a living Sacrifice to the Father of Life, and where they meet with such a glorious Presence and Power of the Father, as none but the true Jews were ever acquainted with.

Quest. 3. What is the Worship, or what are the Sacrifices, which the true Worshippers offer up to God, in this holy place?

Answ. The Gifts of his Spirit. These they offer up, and nothing else. The breathings which the Father gives into the heart of the Child, they are breathed back unto him in the same Spirit of Life, in the living Sense, in the quickening Power. Nothing of Man's Wisdom, nothing of Man's Invention, nothing according to Man's Will, nothing that would please the Flesh, or seem glorious in its Eye, is offered up here: but the Exhortations, or Directions, or Reproofs that spring up in God's Light, in God's Wisdom, they are given forth in the Leadings, and by the Guidance of his Spirit, and they reach to the hearts of those, to whom he pleaseth to direct them. And this is the ground of such meltings, and breakings, and convictions of Soul (and such like inward operations) as are frequently found in such Assemblies. For the living God is there, and the dread of his power overspreads the hearts of such, as are gathered into and assembled in his Name; and the Life springs in the earthen Vessels, and the savour is precious to all that have their spiritual Senses.

Quest. 4. What is the season of offering up these Gifts?

Answ. The seasons of the true Worship stand in the Will of God. They are Gifts, and the time of them stands in the Will of the Giver. Prayer is a Gift. A man cannot pray when he will: but he is to Watch and to Wait, when the Father will kindle in him living breathings towards himself. So the Word of God (whether of Exhortation or Instruction) is a Gift, which is to be waited for, and then to be given forth in the life and strength of that Spirit, which causeth it to spring. Indeed it is an hard matter either to speak the Word of the Lord, or to hear the Word of the Lord. A man may easily speak what he invents, and another may easily hear and judge of such Words: but to speak the Word of Life, requires the Tongue of the Learned in the Language of God's Spirit; and to hear the Word of Life, requires a quickened ear: and to know the times and seasons of the Spirit, requires both being begotten of the Spirit, and being acquainted with it.

Quest. 5. Was this the Worship of the Former Christians in the Apostles days?

Answ. Search the Scriptures: Were not they come to the New-Jerusalem? And where did they offer their Sacrifices? Did they offer them in the Old-Jerusalem, or at Samaria, or the Mountain where the Fathers Worshipped? Or did they not rather offer them at the Mount Sion to which they were come; where the Male of the Flock (even the Lamb without spot) is known, and the bloud of sprinkling felt? Heb. 12. 22, 23, 24. and 1 Pet. 2. 5. O read, read in the Life of God, the nature of the things themselves, and do not feed upon your own imaginations, or the imaginations of any other men concerning them. Sweet is our God: His living presence is exceedingly nourishing to the Soul: precious is his power felt in the heart: it is no less than life Eternal to Worship him in his Spirit. O let not the Enemy of the Soul cheat your Souls any longer of the Precious Things of his Kingdom, with husky and dry Food instead thereof, which only gratifieth the earthly part, but nourisheth not the immortal Life.

Quest. 6. How came the Worship of God to be transformed, and changed so from the Living Power, into such dead formal Ways, as generally Worshippers in the World are found in?

Answ. The Enemy hath done this, by God's permission. The Lord pleased to suffer him thus far to prevail against the Truth; even to get into the Form of it, and there to beget men into the Form, and then deny and turn against the power. And this is the Way of Antichrist in Kingdoms and Nations, even to set up a formal way of Worship, and by it to fight against the true Power.

Quest. 7. How long hath this been done, and how long is it yet to last?

Answ. From Antichrist's beginning, all the time of his Reign, until his overthrow. The formal way of Religion will never be overturned, nor the power of Religion find place in the Earth, but there will be still countenancing of formal ways of Worship, and turning head against the power and life of the Spirit, until Antichrist's time come to an end, and the Lord consume him by the Spirit of his Mouth, and destroy him by the brightness of his coming.

Quest. 8. When shall this be?

Answ. The Lord is about this Work. He hath already raised up that, which hath not been raised up for many Generations: and the Lord hath sorely smote down the Spirit of Antichrist in many hearts already; and he is fetching a great and universal blow at him: which stroke, when it cometh from the Throne of God, the Nations shall tremble before him; and it will be as honourable to wait for the movings of his Spirit, and to Worship him alone therein, as now it is reproachful.

Some Questions and Answers relating to Conversion, and to Tenderness of Conscience.

Quest. What is the way of Conversion?

Answ. To turn men from Darkness unto Light, and from the power of Satan unto God.

Quest. When is a man Converted?

Answ. When he is gathered into the Light and into the Power: out of the Darkness of Sin and Dominions of Satan.

Quest. How is man Converted?

Answ. By the operation of the Light and Power of God upon his Conscience.

Quest. In what condition is the Conscience, before God works upon it?

Answ. Hard and corrupt: hardened by selfish reasonings and dark imaginations, against the convictions of the Light and operations of the Power of God, and corrupted with the sin and iniquity that dwells in it.

Quest, What doth God make it, in his Working upon it?

Answ. Gentle and tender, fit to receive the impressions of his Spirit. By the influence and power of his Spirit on the Conscience, he openeth the ear to hearken to his Voice, and prepareth the heart to follow him in his leadings.

Quest. How doth God carry on his Work in the converted Soul?

Answ. By keeping it low and tender, out of the self-wisdom and hardening reasonings of the humane understanding: by this means he keeps it pliable to the light and power of his Spirit.

Quest. Is only the tender Conscience then fit to be wrought upon by God?

Answ. Yea indeed, that alone. The heart that is hard is inconsiderate of the Voice of God, and stiff and stubborn against it, having ever at hand some Wisdom or Will of the the Flesh, to withstand the voice and leadings of God by.

Quest. Who is it that preserves the Conscience tender?

Answ. The Lord of the Conscience. He, who made it, knoweth the proper temper of it, and his light and power is alone able to preserve it in that tenderness, which he formeth it in.

Quest. What is it that hardens the Conscience?

Answ. The Wisdom of the Flesh. Man having gained a Wisdom out of the light of God; by the imaginations, reasonings, and strength thereof, hardens himself against God.

Quest. What is most necessary for a man to be vigilant in, that desires to have the Work of Conversion to go on in his heart?

Answ. To be careful to turn from and avoid the reasonings of mans Wisdom, and to have his eye and ear open to the light and voice of Gods Spirit, that his Conscience may be kept upright and clear before the Lord.

Quest. What stains the Conscience?

Answ. Any Disobedience to Gods Spirit, any hearkening to or following the voice of a strange Spirit. This lets in the Darkness, which defiles, even as the Light cleanses.

Quest. Is it a man then to expect such a thing as the Leadings of God's Spirit in his Conscience?

Answ. A man cannot inherit the Kingdom of God, but he must be first born again, even born of the Spirit, (so saith the Scripture, and so saith the experience of every one who feels the new Birth) And when he is born of the Spirit, he is to abide with him, and learn the law of the new life, and receive power from him daily; or the Spirit of darkness will soon get ground upon him, and by degrees be recovering him back again into his Dominions.

Quest. Surely if it be thus; Hard is the way of Religion, and few there be, who are found in the truth of it.

Answ. The Way of Religion is hard indeed, and wholly contrary both to Man's Wisdom and Will, insomuch as he cannot enter into it nor walk therein, but as they are cut down. He that will be a Disciple of Christ, and follow the leadings of his Spirit, must deny himself wholly, and become another, and be content to stand or fall to his own Master. He cannot please men, no not in his worshipping of God, but must turn from that which is glorious in their eyes, and sacrifice that which is to them an abomination. So that he must look to be condemned by men, who will be approved in the sight of God.

Quest. Why hath God put his People upon such hardship, as still (in all Ages and Generations) to walk in a way contrary to the World, and still to be the Object of its hatred, scorn, and Persecution?

Answ. How can it be otherwise, He begetting them in a Spirit contrary to the World, and which testifieth against the World, shewing that the deeds thereof are Evil? How can the Spirit of the World but still turn against such, and Hate and Persecute them?

Quest. How long shall it be thus?

Answ. Till Truth be raised by the power of God, into Dominion over the Spirit and Power of Darkness. The Spirit of Life now suffers under the burden of man's corruptions, in love to them striving to save them therefrom. There is somewhat in every Sinner, that at seasons groans under the weight of his Sins, and in some proportion strives against the Burthen thereof. This shall not always lie underneath, but in the Day of the Lord rise over the Transgressor: And in that Day shall Israel be Glorious with his God, and receive praise of him, and be eased of all that hath oppressed him.

Quest. Is there such a day to be?

Answ. The Scriptures testifie of such a Day, wherein the Lord alone shall be exalted, and wherein He will take away the Rebuke of his People from off all the Earth, and bring down all that is High and Lifted up above the Fear and Spirit of the Lord. And in this our Age, the Lord hath chosen many Messengers to run up and down and Proclaim this Day. And as sure as the Lord liveth, what he hath spoken shall come to pass, and not a tittle of it fall to the ground. God did not make man for him to serve his own Lusts; nor this Creation to serve the Lusts of man: But he made man to Fear before and serve his Creator; and he made the Creatures to be ordered by man in the Fear and Wisdom of God to the Glory of God. The Spirit of God now groaneth under Man's Iniquity, the Spirits of his People mourn and sigh also, yea and the very Creatures groan under the Bondage of Corruption: And the God of Bowels heareth their Cry, and a day, even a mighty day of Redemption and Deliverance is determined, wherein the Spirit of the World shall be sunk down, with all its weight of Wickedness, and the Spirit of life and righteousness rise in its Glory.

Amen, Halelujah. Everlasting Praises to the Omnipotent One, Who was, and is, and is a coming; Who hath reigned, doth reign, and will reign over all the Powers of Darkness, in the pure power and glory of his Life for evermore. Let all the Lambs skip for joy, let all the Stars of the Morning shout: For, the darkness vanisheth and is passing away, and the light of life shall cover the Earth, as the Waters cover the Sea. Amen, Halelujah.

Happy is the Eye that seeth this, and the heart that prepareth for it, overlooking all that stands between, This is the Hope of Israel, and the Expectation of all that wait for the Lord, which he is hastening upon the Earth.

SOME QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS,

For the opening of the Eyes of the JEWS NATURAL, that they may see the Hope of Israel, which hath so long been hid from them.

WITH

Some Questions and Answers, for the Direction, Comfort, Help, and Furtherance of God's Spiritual Israel, in their Travels in Spirit from Spiritual Egypt, through the Spiritual Wilderness to Spiritual Canaan, which is the Land where the Redeemed Soul flourisheth in the Life, walking with God, and worshipping him in Spirit and Truth.

By Isaac Penington the Younger.

The PREFACE.

SEveral things hath the Life, begotten by the Eternal Vertue, breathed in me towards my Father for, in relation both to my self and others, from my Childhood. As touching my self; First, that I might be a Vessel for him, that I might be freed from the bondage of Corruption and brought brought forth in the Image of his Life. Secondly, that I might be filled with his Life, that I might be satisfied in the Presence and with the Fulness of the Spring of my Life: Even that I might have enough of my God in my heart continually. Thirdly, that he would of his own meer Goodness both preserve the Vessel and dwell in it for ever: that so my Tenure and Possession of him, and fulness for him might be of his Grace, of his Love, of his Good-will, of his own Nature, depending wholly and altogether on him, and not at all on any thing that can be expected from the Creature-hood in its pure State. And likewise, that if he pleased to use me in any service, it might be of him, and for him, and to him: That he would bring me so low in my self, that I might not be able to detain any of his Glory and Vertue from him, but the meanness of the Vessel might still so appear to me, and also be so sensibly discerned and acknowledged by all other eyes also, that the excellency of the Power and of the Glory might run back entirely into his pure Bosom.

Besides these, there have been vehement desires in me concerning others also. First, towards Mankind in general, that they might have an exceeding merciful and powerful day of Visitation, even that the whole Earth might be touched with the Power of Life and drawn out of the Darkness. O how hath my Soul breathed for poor lost Mankind, and how hath my Spirit travelled (with unutterable pangs and earnestness) for unheard of, unthought of, and altogether unexpected Mercy and Good-will towards the Sons of Men in general! Secondly, towards my Brethren in Spirit, that they might know the day of Redemption and Power in Spirit, and not always lie groveling on the Earth, and groaning and mourning because of the Lusts and Corruptions, but might know Deliverance in Power, and might sing the Song of Moses and the Song of the Lamb (because of their feeling Victory over Pharaoh and the Dragon) and might serve and worship the living God in Spirit and Truth, without fear of Interruption and Captivity from the Enemy any more. Thirdly, towards the Jews after the Flesh, that their Iniquity might be blotted out, their Wound healed, the pure Eye opened in them, and the pure Glory revealed to them: that they might know the Shepherd of Israel in Spirit, the Spiritual Tents of Jacob, the Beauty of the Footsteps of the Spiritual Flock, and might Travel out of their Darkness, Earthliness, and literal Knowledge into the Land of pure Life, Rest, Peace, and fresh Joy in the living God, (whereof their Land of Canaan, with all the good things thereof, was but a shadow) and might be anointed with the fresh Oyl of the Salvation of the Messiah, and might become indeed an holy Nation, yea a Kingdom of Priests to offer up spiritual Sacrifices on God's spiritual Altar.

My Soul still breatheth to the Lord, and waiteth on him for all these things: and as he draweth my Spirit forth, so am I ready in Spirit to be serviceable unto him therein. These present drawings and openings of my Life, in the Questions and Answers following, are both towards the Jews in Flesh, and also the Jews in Spirit, that they may meet in one, even in the one Path and Pasture of Life, where there is one Shepherd, one Seed, one Flock, one Spirit, one Beginning, one Progress, one End in one and the same Circle of Life. The Lord my God take it into his own hand, dispose of it for good, manage and bless it according to his pleasure.

SOME

Some Queſtions and Anſwers for the opening of the eyes of the Jews natural, that they may ſee the Hope of Iſrael, which hath ſo long been hid from them.

Queſt: WHAT was the Riſe of that People the Jews?

Anſ. They came of Abraham after the fleſh, who was Gods Friend, whom God took from his Fathers Houſe and from his Native Country (where he was worſhipping and ſerving Idols) to be the Stock and Pattern of the Faithful, both of the Jews according to the fleſh, and of the Jews in Spirit. Of this Root, of this Stock came this People according to the Fleſh, who were an Holy Nation, a Circumciſed People, a Sanctified People outwardly: and (as long as their day laſted) were the Beloved of God, the Pitied, the Pardoned, the Redeemed Ones, even until the ſhadows were finiſhed, and the ſeaſon came, for the Subſtance to appear and be ſet up in the World; whereof they had the firſt offer alſo, and out of whom was the firſt gathering for the Spiritual building. But they generally hardening their hearts, and cleaving to the Wiſdom and Knowledge which their wiſe Ones had taught them (from their miſ-underſtanding the Letter of the Scriptures) miſſed of the Spirit, Rebelled againſt the Redeeming Power, and ſo loſt their ſhare in the Inward Glory, and by Gods Righteous hand were cut off from their outward alſo, their day being ſpent, and the Blood not only of the Prophets, but of the Son and Heir himſelf alſo required at their hands.

Queſt. How came this People to be the choſen People at firſt, and ſo long to continue ſuch?

Anſw. It was not for their Righteouſneſs, not for their lovelineſs, or pliableneſs to God above other people; but becauſe it pleaſed the Lord freely to love them, and to pitch upon them for the people of his choice after the Fleſh, in the free Covenant which he made with Abraham. The Earth is the Lords, with the fulneſs thereof, and he may chuſe whom he will to fill with his Inward and Spiritual Glory (even with the manifeſtations of his pure love, life and preſence) and he may alſo chuſe whom he will to make outwardly or typically Beloved, Great and Glorious: He choſe Abraham freely, he gave to Abraham an heart to follow him, he gave him the Faith and Obedience which made him accepted with him: and he choſe his ſeed after the Spirit to be his Eternal Heir, and his ſeed after the Fleſh to be his Temporary Heir. Thus of Iſaac in Spirit came the Children of the promiſe in ſpirit, and of Iſaac after the Fleſh came the ſeed of Promiſe after the Fleſh. Sarah after the Fleſh bare one of theſe, the Sarah repreſented by her (or the Free Woman which is from above) bare the other. And of Iſaac comes Jacob, Worm Jacob, who ſerves for his Wife, who flies from the face of Eſau, yet afterwards finds favour in his eyes; from this Worm do the Twelve Patriarks branch forth, who were the heads of the Tribes of Iſrael. Thus hath it been with that Nation according to the letter; and thus it hath alſo been and is ſtill inwardly in Spirit, as the Iſrael of God, the Jews in Spirit (who are learned in the Law of the Spirit of life) can very well read. Thus outwardly Iſrael was Gods Child, Ephraim his Dear, his Beloved, his pleaſant Son, Judah his Praiſe; whom his heart was towards, and to whom he ſtretched forth his Arm of Salvation all the day long: In all their Affliction he was afflicted, and the Angel of his preſence ſaved them: and he ſaid, Surely they are my People, Children that will not lie, ſo he became their Saviour. Thus it was with them till the day of Iſrael after the Fleſh expired, and the day of Iſrael in Spirit was to ſucceed in the ſight of the World.

Queſt. What was the end for which God choſe that People?

Anſ. It was to be a Veſſel for him to form, to try and experiment what his Love could ould bring them to, and bring forth in them in that way of Manifestation and Opera-ion. This God opens to Jeremiah concerning them, bidding him go down to the house f the Potter, where, in a Parable, they might read their own State, and what they ere to expect from God, even to be formed by God unto the utmost, until he had made perfect tryal of them, and then to be broken and laid aside, as a Vessel that could ever be fitted for the Masters use in this way of Dispensation, Jer. 18. 4. On the Lords art there was no defect towards his Child, his Spouse, his Vineyard, his Garden of leasant Plants (as this people was in that Dispensation:) for he was still a Father to hem, Faithful in Covenant, Tender in Bowels, abundant in loving Kindness and Mer-ies: Yea what could be expected from the Lord towards a people, according to that ispensation, which the Lord failed in? But they were still faithless, continually break-g Covenant, erring from his dear and tender love, and drawing down the strokes of is Wrath upon them, forsaking the guide of their Youth, forgetting the love of their spousals, continually starting aside from the right state, wherein God pleased at first o set them, or at any time afterwards in any measure to reduce them.

Quest. How did God exercise and try them to the utmost, even till at length it was plain-y manifest, that there was no firm keeping a People to him by Vertue of that Dispenation, but he must necessarily cut them off, choose another People, and take another ourse, if he would have a People for his Heart to love and delight in, and for them o enjoy and possess him?

Ans. He tryed them several ways, and in several States and Conditions; as First, in state of Captivity in the Land of Egypt: Secondly, in a state of Straits and continual Dependance upon God, even for Necessaries, in the Wilderness. Thirdly, in a state of nlargedness in the Land of Canaan, which flowed with plentiful provisions for the outward man (which were also shadows and instructions concerning the inward Bles-edness) Fourthly, in often Captivities. Fifthly, in Returns to their Land again, with Settlement and Peace and many Blessings therein.

Quest. How did God try them in Egypt?

Ans. First, with sore Bondage and Oppression from Pharaoh and the Egyptians. Se-ondly, with giving them the feeling of their state, the sence of their Bondage, and causing them to cry unto the Lord for Deliverance. Thirdly, in raising up a Deliverer, and giving them a Sign of the Deliverance by the hand of the Deliverer, in his slaying of an Egyptian and saving an Hebrew. Fourthly, in sending the Deliverer to them with Promises of Deliverance, and with Signs and Symptoms of the Delivering Power. Fifthly, in Pardoning their Unbelief and Rebellions against him in Egypt, and shewing many Signs and Wonders for them in that Land, till at length he had brought them forth by his Mighty out-stretched Arm, even against the will and mind of Pharah and their Task-masters.

Quest. How did God find them in Egypt upon this Tryal?

Ans. Very unbelieving, very stubborn, mis-interpreting his Sign of Deliverance, reasoning against his Promise, because it came not so soon and after the manner they expected. When he lift up his hand to them to redeem them from under Pharaoh, to bring them forth of the Land of Bondage, to the good Land he had espied for them, and bid them forsake the Idolatrous Worships of Egypt, and not defile themselves any longer therewith; because he was now to become the Lord their God, and to appear in his power for them; yet they would not, Ezek. 20. 5. &c. When Moses would have reconciled an Hebrew to his Brother, he would not hear him, but upbraided him for slaying the Egyptian, not waiting on God to understand the Figure, but misinterpreting and abusing it in the Fleshly mind. When the Deliverance succeeded not according to their expectations, they murmured against Moses and Aaron: and when God sent them again with a fresh Promise, they would not mind it. Yet God bare with all this in them, and did not cast them off, but asswaged his Wrath, and stirred up his Love to make a further Tryal of them.

Quest. How did God try them in the Wilderness?

Ans. By many Temptations, Signs and Wonders; by powerful appearances for them against their Enemies; by bringing them into many straits, by unexpected and impossible supplies (I mean impossible to the sight or expectation of the outward eye) as with bread from Heaven, Multitudes of Quails, Water from the Rock, keeping their Cloaths

and

and Shoes from wearing out and decaying. Likewise he gave them an Holy and Righteous Law to inform their Minds in Equity and Righteousness, directing them in an holy way, walking with God, and one towards another, and chalking out unto them an acceptable path of Worship: and this Law was delivered in great Majesty, dread and terrour, to cause a deep impression thereof upon their minds.

Quest. How did God find them in the Wilderness?

Ans. Full of discontent, full of murmuring, full of self-will, full of doubts and questionings concerning Gods Power. They did not wait on him, who had delivered them out of the hand of Pharaoh and from under the Egyptian Task-masters, but they murmured against him. They did not wait for food, or water when they wanted, but distrusted and complained, repining at Moses and Aaron, and sometimes talking of making a Captain to lead them backward. Neither were they content with the Provision on which God allotted them (that was mean in their eyes) but they would have had Though the Manna, the light Bread as they esteemed it) of Gods choice and with Gods Blessing, had been far better for them, than the flesh with his Curse, upon that Lust which asked it, and would not be content without it. Again, They would not go on towards Canaan or Fight when God would have them, and when his strength would have gone along with them: but when he forbad them, of their own will, and trusting to their own strength, they would go on and Fight. It is a sad record which Moses their tender Shepherd (who with the Eye of true Light had faithfully observed them) left concerning them, Deut. 9. 24. You have been rebellious against the Lord from the day that I knew you,

Quest. How did God deal with them in reference to the Land of Canaan?

Answ. First, He prepared them for it, Secondly, He dispossessed their Enemies, and placed them in it, giving them an Inheritance according to their own Will. Thirdly, He poured down Blessings upon them therein.

Quest. How did God prepare them for the good Land?

Answ. First, By many Afflictions and Exercises in the Wilderness, wherein he judged and wore out the rebellious Generation (who were consumed with dying) and raised up their Children in the aw and dread of his mighty Power. Secondly, by giving them a righteous Law to walk by in every respect, that they might not be to seek how to please God, or how to walk one towards another, or towards the Heathen among them, or round about them but in every thing might be rightly instructed. Thirdly, By working them of their own proneness to err from God, and of the Danger thereof, both in Relation to the loss of Mercies and drawing down of Judgments, that they might watch against the erring Nature and transgressing Spirit in their Hearts. Fourthly, by appointing a way of Sacrifice and Mediation, whereby God might be attoned, either for particular Persons, or for the Land in general. Fifthly, By directing them to a Principle near to them, and more strong than the unrighteous Principle; whereby they might be preserved in the Obedience of the Law, and from out of the reach of the Curse.

Quest. How did God find them in their own Land?

Answ. That Generation which was thus prepared, thus taught, thus directed, walked sweetly with the Lord, and was a precious Savour in his Nostrils: but soon after the evil thing sprang up again in the Generations following, and they did quickly corrupt themselves, departing from the Lord, and running a whoring after their own base lusts, Judg. 2. 7, &c.

Quest. How did God deal with them then?

Answ. He brought Judgment upon Judgment, still weightier and weightier upon them, according as their need required, exercising loving kindness and mercy towards them, as much as possibly their Estate could bear. He sent his Prophets to forewarn them of the Wrath, that they might be spared, if possible: and when his Judgments and Severity came he mingled Mercy therewith, that by both he might try to the utmost, what they might be wrought to. He tryed them along while under the Judges and a long while under the Kings, often recovering them and setting them to right, expecting the Fruit of his Rod and of his Love towards them.

Quest. What was the Result of God's trying them under the Judges and Kings?

Answ. They wearied out God's Prophets, yea, they wearied out the Lord also in that way of his Dispensation. They chose the false Prophets before the true, lying vinations before the openings of Life, and dead Idols before the living God. The kindnesses and Mercies of God were wasted upon them, for with his Love they were not drawn: the Bellows also were burnt, the Lead consumed, the heat of the Furnace spent upon them, and yet their tin and dross not purged away. Under the Judges they tried out the Lord's patient expectation of Good from his Delivering hand, insomuch as he resolved to deliver them no more; Judg. 10. 13. Under the Kings they were as unruly, (whether good Kings or bad Kings, given in Love or Wrath) insomuch as the Lord said, Why should ye be striken any more? Ye will revolt more and more, Isa. 1. 5: There was indeed no bending of Israel after the Flesh, and keeping him strait to God, in that way of Dispensation: therefore must he be cast off, even becoming reprobate Silver in the sight of the whole Earth, because the Lord would reject him.

Quest. How came Israel after the Flesh to be rejected?

Answ. His day of Flesh was out, and the day of Spirit was come, wherein the spiritual Glory (which was to succeed the shadows of the Fleshly) was to be set up; and so he not seeing that, nor entring into that, his own Sun set, and he hath abode in the darkness unto this day, Quest. How came he not to see the spiritual Glory?

Answ. Because the Eye of the Flesh was open in him, which Eye cannot see it. He read the Law in a gathered Light, in the Light of the earthly Wisdom, and not in the Light of the Spring from whence it came, and then how could he possibly understand the Law aright? Could he then chuse but set up the shadows of the Law, in the stead of the substance which was vailed therein? He read Moses with the Eye which can see but to the Vail and not to the Glory which was revealed to Moses, and which Moses hid under the Vail. And thus likewise he beheld the Prophets, in the days of their appearance; not in the Light in which they appeared, but in the Light of his own Reason and Imaginations: and upon this ground the Jews still chose and cryed up the false Prophets but persecuted the true. Now not seeing Moses in Spirit, nor the Prophets in Spirit, how could they see him who was greater than the Prophets, he looking so contemptibly to the sight of that Eye, wherewith they expected to see him? It is the Jew in Spirit, who alone can see and own the Messiah in Spirit: yea no fleshly Jew could possibly discern him then, whose eternal Life (Light and Power) was hid under so mean a Vail. He must be more than a Jew after the Flesh: who can own so much as the Law, or any of the Prophets in Spirit: and then surely it can require no less than inward Jewship, to discern the Messiah himself. They knew by the Letter, that then he was to come and to appear; but they could not know by their observations from the Letter which was he, but alone by the pointing of the Finger of the Spirit, which they were unacquainted with.

Quest. What did they do to him, not seeing his Glory?

Answ. They dealt with him as they had dealt with the Prophets before him, disdained him that he should claim to be the Son of God, slighted him, reviled him, reproached him, preferred Moses and the Prophets above him (who all did but declare of him) yea at last they preferred a Thief and Murderer before him, and put him to Death after that manner that the Prophets had foretold they would do.

Quest. Did the Prophets foretel that the Jews would put the Messiah to Death?

Answ. Yea, very manifestly, with the manner and circumstances thereof: Daniel said plainly that the Messiah should be cut off; though not for himself, Chap 9. 26. Isaiah shews the Cause why he was cut off, to wit, For the Transgression of my People was the Stroke upon him, chap. 53. 8. He was the Lamb without Spot, there was no Iniquity found in his Heart nor guile in his Mouth, but he offered up his spotless Soul (through the Eternal Spirit) as a ransom for the Souls of Transgressors, and with his Bruise are they healed. David shews yet more particularly how he should be cut off, They pierced my Hands and my Feet, Psal. 22. 16. And Zachary saith, that afterwards in the day of their Visitation, They shall look upon him whom they have pierced, Ch. 12. 10. Was he not betrayed by one of his own Table? (Psal. 41. 9.) Did they not cast Lots for his Garments? (Psal. 22: 18.) Was not Gall also given him, and Vinegar to drink? (Psal. 69.) 21. Were not his Bones kept from being broken, according to the paschal Lamb the type; (Exod. 12. 46.) O that the Jews could read the Words of their own Prophets, in the Light of the Prophets, and not in the Light of man's Imagination, and then they could not but bow before the Spring and Fountain of that Light, as it was revealed in Flesh according to the Scriptures, and see how that Body was prepared for the Light to shine in, and for it to do the Will in, and to offer up the Sacrifice which God would have, that so an end might be put to all the Sacrifices and Offerings which God would not have, Psal. 40 6. Dan. 9. 27.

Quest. What was to befal the Jews for refusing the Day of their Visitation by the Messiah and for the putting of him to Death?

Answ. They were to be cast off, to become no People, their Covenant to be broken, their Glory turned into shame, their Light set in obscurity, their House made desolate and the hand of God pursuing this desolate People, making them a scorn and reproach throughout all Nations. (Dan 9. 27.) And is not this come to pass upon them? For what person hath been more hateful and hated than a Jew, who was once the Glory and Envy of all Nations? Yea, hardness and blindness hath so happened to them, that they cannot see the plainest things written in the Prophets, concerning the Expiration of the day of Moses with all his Shaddows, and the succeeding of the spiritual Glory in the days of the Messiah, but their Eyes and Hearts are still blinded, and held Captive in the Figures of things.

Quest. Is there any Scripture of the Prophets, which declareth that they should be thus blind and hard?

Answ. The Spirit of the Lord in the Prophet David (the beloved King and Figure of the Messiah) prayed for this righteous Recompence to them. Let their Table become a Snare before them, and for Welfare a Trap. Let their Eyes be darkned that they see not, &c. Let their Habitation be Desolate, &c. Psal. 69. 22, &c. What is their Table? Where and on what do they Feed? Is it not on the Writings of Moses and the Prophets? Now all the meanings, observations and hopes which they gather from these (being under the Curse, and out of the Spirit of the Prophets) cannot but be their Snare and Trap: and that which entangleth them deeply to this day, is, their mis-understanding and mis-interpreting of Moses and the Prophets. O Lord my God, in the abundant Riches of thy Goodness, at length pity them, and let the fierceness of thine Indignation abate towards them, and in thy Love open their Eyes to see their state, and what they have refused, and against whom they have lift up their heel, in their conceited Wisdom and Knowledge, which they have gathered from Moses and the Prophets Writings, that they may mourn after thee, and wait for thee in the way of thy Redemption.

Quest. How long is this Desolation and Hardness to abide upon them?

Answ. Until God visit them with his Spirit, and open their eyes to see his spiritual Glory, and turn their hearts towards it. Then their outward expectations, and desires after an outward glorious Kingdom, will soon come to an end; and the Messiah will be known, owned, and received by them in Spirit: Yet any outward Glory that the Lord God sees good for them, they shall not want neither. This the Prophet Isaiah plainly relates to the Ear that is spiritual, Chap. 32. 15. (Until the Spirit be poured upon us from on High, and the Wilderness be a fruitful Field, and the fruitful Field be counted for a Forrest.) They must lie waste, until the Lord God please to let forth his Spirit upon them, to gather them into his spiritual Glory: For the day of their outward Glory did end, and a spiritual succeeded, which they are to be gathered into, when the days of their Distress and Tribulation are accomplished.

The spirit was once poured down from on high on the Disciples of the Messiah, upon his Ascending into his Glory, and the Wilderness then became a fruitful Field, and the fruitful Field was accounted for a Forrest: but over that Glory the Defence was not so stretched forth, but that a night overtook that day, and the wild Beasts made a Prey of that Vineyard and fruitful Field also, as well as of the former. But there is to be a more general pouring out of the Spirit, even upon all Flesh, and the Wilderness is more generally to be visited and become a fruitful Field, and the fruitful Field is more generally to be blasted and made a Forrest: Insomuch as all Flesh every where shall appear Grass, and the Glory thereof as the Flower of the Field, which shall fade and wither before the breath of God's Spirit. Then Judgment shall dwell in the Wilderness which is then visited, and Righteousness shall remain in the Field which is then made fruitful: and Righteousness shall be Powerfully-operative, working out the lasting Peace, and the effect of it shall be Quietness and Assurance for ever. No more War, no more Fighting ing with Creatures, no more burthening and oppreſſing of the Creation, no more ſinning and offended againſt the Creator, no more being diſpoſſeſſed of his Life and Glory, but the Dwellings, which God reareth up in the laſt days for Iſrael his People, ſhall be peacable Habitations, ſure Dwellings and quiet Reſting-places for evermore. O let Iſrael feel that which is able to awaken him, and wait for this.

Queſt. How ſhall they be viſited and gathered?

Anſw. By the new Covenant, by the new Law of the Meſſiah, which is to go forth out of the new Sion, and by the Word of the Lord, which is to iſſue out of the new Jeruſalem. Not by the Covenant of Moſes (their Eyes may fail in hoping and looking out that way) but by the Covenant of the Meſſiah, where the Law of Life is written, not in Tables of Stone or outward writtings of the Letter, but in the heart by the Spirit. There they ſhall be cleanſed by inward Water, receive the inward Circumciſion and Mark of the inward Jew, be ſprinkled with the everlaſting Bloud of the Lamb, and taught to offer up the ſpiritual Sacrifice, and ſhall hear the Voice which will tell them of the way, and which will lead them in Paths they have not known. There the ſpiritual Seed, the ſpiritual Iſrael ſhall find the Shepherd of Iſrael, who leads into the Land of Life, puts forth his Sheep into the paſtures of Life, gives them of the living Streams do drink, begetting them as Heirs of, and bringing them up in the everlaſting Power and Dominion of the Life.

Queſt. How may Old Iſrael enter into this Path, and ſo become New Iſrael?

Anſw. By waiting on the Lord for the cloſing of that Eye, which is Wiſe according to the Fleſh; and for the opening of that eye which is at firſt weak in Spirit. There muſt be a low beginning. Iſrael muſt know and not deſpiſe the day of ſmall things, if ever he will grow up into the Riches and Inheritance of this Glory. There is a Light in every heart, at firſt which gives a ſound in the natural Veſſel, which is very hardly diſtinguiſhable from the natural, till (by obedience and ſubjection thereto) its living Touch, Vertue, and Power comes to be felt and diſtinguiſhed: but in the Meek, Humble, Believing and Obedient, it daily appears more and more, and makes it ſelf more clearly manifeſt to them, who are walking on unto the Kingdom and Inheritance in it, while others are diſputing about it.

Queſt. How may Iſrael believe, and become ſubject to the Light?

Anſw. When there is a drawing felt in the heart, either to good, or againſt evil, he muſt not diſpute concerning it on the one hand, nor run on in the forwardneſs on the other (for both theſe ways, the breathings of the Spirit on him, and ſpringings up of the good Seed in him, are eaſily quenched) but in the Fear he is to truſt himſelf with what his heart certainly feels in the drawing vertue, and in the humility to give up the Members to the Good, and to with-hold them from the Evil, waiting for ſtrength from the Fountain of ſtrength towards both. By this means there is a travel and removal out of the Corruption and Filth of the heart, into the pure holy Law, Nature, Image and Will of God.

Queſt. Where doth God find the heart, when he firſt viſiteth it with his Light?

Anſw. In Egypt, in the Darkneſs, in the Bonds and Captivity of Death:

Queſt. What doth the Lord do with it there?

Anſw. He exerciſeth it a while there, till he hath made it fit for a Wilderneſs-ſtate.

Queſt. What doth he do with it then?

Anſw. He bringeth it into the Wilderneſs which he hath fitted it for:

Queſt. What doth he do with it in the Wilderneſs?

Anſw. He prepareth it for, and leadeth it towards the Land of Life.

Queſt. What doth he do with it then?

Anſw. He giveth it an entrance into the everlaſting Kingdom (which is the Land of Life) according as he hath prepared and fitted it. That which is New-begotten, New-created and formed, New-born in the Meſſiah's Eternal Light, findeth an entrance into, and an habitation in the Light, and is not turned back into the Land of Darkneſs, it abiding in the Virtue and Principle of its Life, although ſometimes it may be exerciſed with the Darkneſs, for its further advantage. Thou art our Habitation, from Everlaſting to Everlaſting, ſaith the Child of Light unto the Father of Spirits in all Ages and Generations.

Now that Israel after the Flesh may the better understand the Path of the spiritual Israel in the way of Redemption, by the powerful visitations of the Light of the Messiah in their Hearts and Consciences; and may know the Gospel of his Salvation, which is able to effect that which the Law of Moses could not, because of the weakness of the Flesh on their parts; let them in fear and silence of the natural Wisdom, and in waiting on the Lord in Spirit, consider these Questions and Answers following, relating to spiritual Israel.

Some Questions and Answers, for the Direction, Comfort, Help, and Furtherance of God's Spiritual Israel, in their Travels in Spirit from Spiritual Egypt, through the Spiritual Wilderness to Spiritual Canaan; which is the Land where the Redeemed Soul flourisheth in the Life, walking with God, and Worshipping Him in Spirit and Truth.

Quest. What is the Gospel?

Answ. A good Message or glad Tydings to man in the fallen Estate, concerning a Promise of Redemption out of it.

Quest. Is man then in a fallen Estate?

Ans. His present Temper, Constitution, Disposition and whole course, upon the least touch of God upon his Spirit, do in some measure discover his fall unto him, though the insensibleness which is come upon him by his grievous Wound, and Death through the fall, maketh him very unapt to take notice thereof.

Quest. What was his Estate before his Fall?

Answ. A State of Glory and Blessedness, wherein he came pure out of the hands of his Creator, was fitted for his use, service, enjoyment and delight, even for him to appear or disappear in, and exercise according to his pleasure.

Quest. Wherein did his Glory and Blessedness consist?

Ans. Chiefly in these four things, to wit, in the Light, in the Life, in the Liberty in which the Vessel was formed, and in the In-dwelling and appearing of the Creator there, according to his pleasure.

Quest. Open this a little further.

Ans. Man was made a Vessel of Light, a Vessel of Life, a Vessel of pure Freedom. He was formed in the Eternal Image, and had a pure being in that Image. He was light in the Lord, living in the Lord, free unto all good, and from all evil in the Lord. This was the state of his being at first, and thus was he made in the Image a pure resemblance of the eternal Purity and Blessedness; but besides this he had the eternal Life, the eternal Substance, the eternal Purity it self dwelling in the Vessel, shining in it, and manifesting it self from it according to its pleasure.

Quest. How came Man to fall from this Estate?

Ans. Not willingly, not of an inclination of his own, but he was deceived, through the subtilty of Temptation, to entertain a desire of enlarging his blessedness, out of the limits of the Will of his Creator.

Quest. How could such a Temptation enter man, he being Pure and Holy, inclined to Good and against Evil, after the Image of his Creator?

Ans. Man was not made to enjoy a Perfection in himself separate from his Creator, or to live of himself, but by dependance. Now though he had no inclination in him not to to depend, or to seek a Life in himself out of the Fountain, yet there was a Capacity of so doing: before which Capacity the Tempter laid his Bait of advancing him to a greater Wisdom, Glory, and Excellency, than his Creator had placed him in; with which he consulting out of the dependance upon his Creator, fell from that which alone was able to uphold him in the pure state, wherein he was made. Thus was he taken in the Snare of misery, and brought to that loss, which all the Sons of Adam lie groveling under to this day, when the Lord at any time awakens the sence thereof in them.

Quest. What was the State of man in and since the fall?

Ans. A state of Darkness, a state of Death, a state of deep Captivity, wherein his Soul, Body, and Spirit are become dark as to the Light of God, dead as to the Life of Righteousness, and Captive unto that Spirit which hath entred them by their hearkening thereto, who dwelleth and ruleth in them in the Darkness, as God did before in the Light.

Quest. How is man dark? How is man dead? Is his Soul or Body dead as to their being? Or how else is it?

Ans. Man is not dead as to his being either in Soul or Body, but as to the right, pure and sanctified state of each. The Vessels still remain the same in being, but they are emptied of their proper Liquor, and filled with other Wine. The Understanding is the same, the Reason the same, the Will the same, the Memory the same, the bodily Members the same, as to their being or matter: but they are all otherwise leavened, and another King now dwells in them and reigns over them.

Quest. Then there needs not any dissolution of mans reason, or bringing it to nothing, in relation to mans recovery, but only a changing of the Leaven.

Answ. Man is become another thing by degeneration from the Life. He is so poisoned by Sin and Corruption, that he is to be wholly broken down and brought to nothing, even in the very Naturals, that he may be new made and built up in the newness of the Spirit. Thus he is to become as a Fool, as a little Child, or rather as a Seed to be cast into the Womb of Life, there to be formed and born of the Spirit. And as he springs up in the Life, he is to forget his own Country, living in the Spirit and walking in the Spirit: where watching to the Spirit, and against his own Reason in the pure Childishness, in the simple instinct and naturalness of the Life, he shall at length find a Reason new formed and springing up in him, which waiting on the Lord in Obedience and Subjection, shall be taken into Unity with the Life: but if the Eye of Reason open too fast, and be not kept down to the Light of Life, the Betrayer will enter again at that door, and bring the Soul into Death, after it hath had sweet and precious tasts of the redeeming Vertue and Power.

Quest. Can Man in the Fall see his fallen Estate, and so seek after a recovery out of it?

Ans. It is not possible for him so to do, without some Light shining upon him from the Redeemer. How can Darkness discover Darkness? That which maketh manifest the Darkness is Light, When the Vessel is dark, and the Prince of Darkness filleth it and dwelleth in it, what can that Eye see but according to the Darkness, judging Evil Good and Good Evil, Bitter Sweet and Sweet Bitter?

Quest. But there is no man but hath some Light, no man but at some time or other seeth Good or Evil in some measure.

Ans. That ariseth not from the light of Man's Nature, as it now stands in the Fall, (which being wholly in the Enemie's hands, and being it self become darkness, cannot at all give man notice of or light him out of the darkness) but from a fresh Visitation of the Life, which giveth all men a day of Visitation by the shining of its Light, wherein is some manifestation to man, and some certain sight by him both of the Good and of the Evil: and not only so, but there is also the living Spirit striving with him, and attracting him from the one to the other, according to the Lord's good pleasure, whose is both the light, and also the determination of the proportion of every Man's Visitation by it.

Quest. But hath not man naturally a Light in the fallen Estate, which discovereth unto him Good and Evil?

Ans: Not a true Light, not a true Discovery, but only somewhat which the Enemy setteth ſetteth up in man as ſuch, to keep him in the entanglements of the Deceit, and out of the ſuſpicion of it. For the enemy entring into him, by his ſubtilty blindeth and deceiveth his Eye (that he may the better hold him Captive in the deceit) inſomuch as he diſcerneth not the falſe Image which the Enemy hath ſtamped upon him: for though the Enemy bringeth man into a ſtate of real Darkneſs, Death, and Captivity; yet theſe do not at preſent appear to man what they are, but are miſ-coloured or painted, to appear what they are not, the better to deceive, bewitch, and entangle man therein. The Enemy did not repreſent Darkneſs in its black hue, Death and Captivity in its dreadful Appearance to Adam, but as Wiſdom, as Light, as a better Life, as a greater Freedom. And thus he ſtill enters man, and after this manner he ſtill dwells in man, until the true Light purſue him, opening and diſcovering his Deceit, and drawing man back from this falſe Paradiſe of Pleaſure in Wiſdom and Liberty out of the Life, into a ſenſe of his want of, and breathings after the true Garden of the living God.

Queſt. Is Man then miſtaken in his Judgement of Good and Evil ſince the Fall?

Anſ. Yes, altogether: and by this means doth he ſo pleaſingly ſcituate himſelf and take up his Habitation in the Kingdom of Darkneſs, wherein are ſtrong Holds and wiſe Reaſonings againſt the true God, and for the falſe Appearances of Good, which the Enemy of the Soul ſtrongly makes men believe to be ſuch as he repreſents them for, in the darkneſs. Thus in particular perſons, and alſo in Societies evil is purſued after, and advanced for good, and the true good ſuppreſſed as evil, through the working of the Myſtery of Darkneſs in mens hearts.

Queſt. What then is the proper Eſtate and Condition of man in the Fall?

Anſ. A State of falſe Light, of falſe Life, of falſe Liberty. He ſeemeth to himſelf advanced in Wiſdom above the low, empty, naked Eſtate of Innocency, which is nothing and hath nothing, but by a continual dependance on the goodneſs of the Creator. He ſeemeth alſo advanced in Life, advanced in Liberty. He can ſpeak his own Words, think his own Thoughts, do his own Will, ſeek himſelf, pleaſe himſelf, ſatisfie himſelf. The Life of Righteouſneſs is a Yoak, a Bond in his Eye: He is free from the reſtraint of it. He hath Life in himſelf, and is exceeding wiſe in the compaſs of his own Dominions. Thus doth the Enemy transform the Kingdom of Darkneſs and Death, giving fallen man a ſhare with him in it, while he remains his willing Subject. And here the Goods of the Enemy, the heart eſtranged from God, yea, not only the Devout and Zealous Worſhipper in invented Forms but alſo the groſs Sinner, the envious, luſtful, and wicked Mind, the perverſe Tongue, the bloudy Hands and Feet are at peace, and have joy and pleaſure in their Courſe and Circuit in the Earth. But all this is but the Deceit of the Enemy, wherewith he hath cheated Man, with falſe appearances and repreſentations inſtead of the true, as man himſelf will ſee, whenever the Eye of his Soul comes to be throughly awakened by the Eternal Light, whether here or hereafter.

Queſt. What is the Work of Redemption?

Anſ. To purge this old leaven out of the Veſſel, to purifie the Veſſel from all the falſe Appearances of Light, to batter down all the ſtrong Holds of the Enemy in the Mind, all the Reaſonings, Thoughts, Imaginations and Conſultations, which are not of the pure nor in the pure; and ſo to New-create and New-form the Veſſel in the Image of the Wiſdom and Purity, wherein it was at firſt formed.

Queſt. Who doth this VVork, or who is mans Redeemmer out of the Fall?

Anſ. The Eternal Word or Son of the Father, even the Wiſdom and Power which went forth from the Fountain in the Creation, the ſame goeth forth from the Boſom of the Father to purifie the Creature, and ſo bringeth the Creature back (being purified and cleanſed) into his Boſom again.

Queſt. VVith what doth this VVord or Redeemer redeem?

Anſ. With his own Life, with his own Bloud, with his own Eternal virtue and purity. He deſcendeth into the lower parts of the Earth, becomes Fleſh there, ſows his own Seed in his prepared Earth, begets of his Fleſh and of his Bone in his own likeneſs, and nouriſheth up his Birth with his Fleſh Bloud and unto Life Everlaſting.

Queſt.

Quest. What is this Life? Or how doth it first manifest it self in the Darkness?

Ans. It is the Light of Men. It is that which gave Light to Adam at first, and again to him after the Fall, and to all men since the Fall: It enlightens in Nature, it enlightened under the Law: it did enlighten under the Gospel before the Apostacy, and again since the Apostacy.

Quest. How doth the Light enlighten?

Ans. By its shining. The Eternal Word moves, the Life opens, the Light shines: This in the least degree is a beginning of Redemption; in its fulness it is Redemption perfected.

Quest. How doth the Light work Redemption in its shining?

Ans. Two ways. First, by turning the heart from the darkness towards it self. Secondly, by exercising the heart being turned.

Quest. How doth it turn the heart from the Darkness?

Ans. The Light by its shining and enlightening findeth out its own, openeth it, toucheth it with a secret Virtue, which perswades out of, and draws the heart, from the Principle and Power of Death and Darkness, towards its own Native Spring.

Quest. May not these Drawings be quenched, and the Work of God stopped?

Ans. The Plant of the Lord is exceeding tender, his pure Spirit jealous, the Enemy very strong and subtil; insomuch as the Plant it self may easily be crushed, the Spirit grieved and quenched, and the Captivity redoubled.

Quest. If Adam was betrayed in his full strength, how shall this poor weak Plant spring up and grow, without being supplanted by the Violence and Treachery of the Enemy? Or how shall the grieving of the Spirit be avoided, by an heart so full of corruption and provocations, as man in the alienated state is, when the Light first visits him?

Ans. The Lord God is nigh to help, nigh to pity, nigh to pardon, nigh to watch over and support Worm Jacob, yea nigh to revive life and spirit in him freely, and to heal his backslidings and multiply Pardons, or it could never be. Yea, the Creature can never be brought so low or so far lost, but there is still help in the nature of God concerning him, though there may not be help in any revealed Promise.

Quest. How doth God exercise the heart that is turned?

Ans. In Faith and Obedience through very great varieties and changes of conditions. He exerciseth it in believing his voice and in obeying his voice and following him, in whatever and into whatsoever he draws and requires.

Quest. How is the Voice of God known? Doth not the Enemy speak inwardly also, and resemble his voice? how then is the voice of the Redeemer distinguished from him, who counterfeiteth the Shepherd and his voice?

Ans. By these two means.

First, The Soul lying low, out of the Wisdom in which the Enemy appears and forms his likenesses, in the simplicity which the Lord hath begotten, the Life opens to it, and the true Light appears, which manifests the false light and false appearances of the Deceiver.

Secondly, In that which is begotten of God there is not an hastiness or suddenness to determine, but a silent waiting on the Lord in Subjection, till the Life speak and make things manifest. Thus the knowledge and light of the Child is held in the will of the Father, and received from his hand, and according to his pleasure. Thus what he will he hides, and what he will he makes manifest, and the Child which is born of his Will is content with his Will, and lying down there, it keeps out of the Enemie's Territories, and out of the reach of his Temptations.

Quest. What are the several Estates or Conditions wherein God exerciseth the Spirit of man in Faith and Obedience?

Ans. The particular Estates and Conditions are innumerable, but they may be referred to these three general heads. First, An Estate of breaking down the former Building. Secondly, An Estate of Devastation or Preparation to be New-built. Thirdly, An Estate of Rebuilding. God doth not forget, but exercise his People in Egypt, even even while they are in Bondage, before they come to receive his Law: he is visiting them in the dark Land, opening the eye that can see the Captivity, causing Groans and Sighs in their oppressed Spirits; and then holding forth to them the Promise, and preparing them for a departure from that Land. Secondly, He hath a time of stripping them, of Nurturing and bringing them up under his Discipline and close Exercises, wherein they are Desolate and ready to sin and perish every moment, but as they are wonderfully provided for and abundantly helped and pardoned. Thirdly, There is a State of Rebuilding the Stones, when they are prepared therefore, into a New-building for the Life to dwell in, and for their entrance into the Land of Life.

Quest. Declare these Estates and the Exercises therein more plainly, and first shew VVhat is the Estate of the Soul in Egypt Spiritually, when the Lord visiteth it there with his Light?

Ans. An Estate of deep Bondage and Groaning under the Powers of Darkness, whose bitter Oppressions thereof increase, even as the sensibleness and tyredness of the Soul increases. The Soul then sees its Captivity from the Life, and finds a building of Death and Corruption raised up in it, in which the Prince of Darkness dwells and bears rule: and then Oh how it groans and longs after departure from that Land, and waits for the Promise of Redemption out of it! But yet it is still left in the hand of the Enemy, and daily feels the bitter Bondage, from the powerful Law of Sin and Death springing up in the heart, and issuing out through the Members.

Quest. How is Faith and Obedience here exercised?

Ans. In believing the Promise, in waiting for the Promise, in feeling some remote drawings of the Life and uniting therewith, so far as is possible in this Dark and Captived Estate. There is an acknowledgment of the true Prince, and a bowing to him even in this Estate of Captivity, until he please to break the Bands thereof and receive under his guidance.

Quest. VVhat is the Estate of the VVilderness Spiritually?

Answ. It is an Estate of waiting for the guidance of the leader, of receiving Direction and Laws from the leader, of following the leader as he pleaseth to lead, through the entanglements, temptations, straits, and necessities which he seeth fit to exercise the Spirit with, for the wearing out of that which is not to Inherit, and for preparing the Heir for the Inheritance.

Quest. How is Faith and Obedience here exercised?

Answ. In waiting on the Light for the leadings in the Law of Life, and then in subjecting to the leader, being content with all his Dispensations therein: with the time he chuseth for standing still, and with the time he chuseth for travelling on, with the Proportion of light and leading that he judgeth fit, with the Food and Cloathing which he prepares and preserves, with the Enemies which he sees fit to have avoided or encountred with. Hereby the own Wisdom, the own Will, the own Strength, the own Desires, the own Delights, with all the murmurings, weariness and discontents, which arise from the earthly part, are by degrees worn out, and a pure Vessel prepared for the pure Birth to spring up and appear in.

Quest. VVhat is Spiritual Canaan, or the Heavenly-Built State, or State of the Gospel?

Ans. A State of regenerating or renewing in the Life and pure Image, where the Building is reared up which is made without hands, where there is a Sweet and Peaceable growth in the Life, and a Fresh and Satisfactory enjoyment of the Life.

Quest: How is Faith and Obedience here exercised?

Ans. In abiding in the Vine, in drawing from the Vine, in returning the Sap and Vertue back into the Vine, and living according to the Will and in the free Dispensation thereof. Thus Works are excluded with Self from whom they proceed, and the Vine becomes all in all.

Quest. Are Egypt with the Wilderness and Canaan Spiritually as distinct Estates, as they were Literally?

Ans. There are such distinct several Estates Spiritually, wherein a man may be Spiritually in Egypt, and neither in the Wilderness nor Canaan. So there is an Estate in in the Wilderneſs, which is out of Egypt and not in Canaan: and an Eſtate in Canaan, which is beyond both Egypt and the Wilderneſs. Yet theſe Eſtates in Spirit are oftentimes inter-woven, with the Exerciſes thereof; inſomuch as the Soul may in part, or in ſome reſpect (to his own underſtanding) be in Egypt, in part in the Wilderneſs, and in part in the reſt, Life and Peace. But theſe things are not to be curiouſly ſought into, leaſt a wrong Wiſdom and a Knowledge get up; but abiding low and little in the little Seed, the Kingdom and everlaſting Inheritance grows dayly in the Soul, and the Soul dayly ſhoots up into it and is enlarged in it.

Queſt. Is there any return back into Egypt or into the Wilderneſs, after the State of the Soul is advanced higher, the entrance into the everlaſting Inheritance being adminiſtred, and the Soul partly taken into and having found a place of reſt in the Life?

Anſw. The Enemy lies near to deceive: and while he hath Power to tempt, if there be an hearkening to his Temptations, there is a departure from the pure Life, and a return of the Captivity or bewildering in ſome meaſure. In the Faith and in the Obedience to the Light of Life is the preſervation, out of it is Death and Deſtruction Eternally.

Queſt. Is not the pure being untouched by Death and Deſtruction? and ſhall not the Creature, when it is Redeemed into him, be as he is?

Anſw. The pure being cannot be impure, evil cannot enter upon him, it hath no place in him, his nature excluding it: nor can it enter into the Principle of Life that comes from him, and is always preſerved by him: nor can it enter upon that man, who is begotten of that Principle, abideth with it and is preſerved in it. But ſo to be in him, as to abide and not go forth is a great State, even higher then the firſt Adam knew.

Queſt. But is not Light and Darkneſs, Good and Evil all alike to God? and ſhall they not be ſo alſo to him, who is in perfect Unity and Fellowſhip with God?

Anſw. All the Light and Darkneſs, Good and Evil which can iſſue from the Creature, cannot reach God's being as it is in it ſelf, but only ſo far as he hath pleaſed to expoſe his Life (in the various manifeſtations thereof) to be reached thereby. Yet his Eye ſeeth the Evil and the Good, the Perfection and the Imperfection, and his Nature is perfectly excluded from all Evil and Imperfection, inſomuch as he cannot poſſibly lie or deceive, or be unrighteous or unmerciful in any of his Diſpenſations; and that which is gathered into him, is thus one with him. But that which can do any thing which is ſinful and evil in it ſelf, is not in the true Unity with the Eternal being, but in the deceit of that Spirit which Erreth from him, and centereth the creature in the Imagined likeneſs of his Life and Happineſs.

Queſt. How far may Perſons go, and yet be lyable to the Enemies Snare?

Anſw. Very far. They may come out of Egypt, they may paſs through the Wilderneſs, they may receive an Inheritance or Portion in the Holy Land, they may have Houſes and Vineyards which they Builded not nor Planted, they may have had deep Draughts of the Life, deep Incomes of the Love, large Riches of the Grace, and precious Taſts of the Fulneſs: They may have been in the Paradiſe of God, may have been Anointed by God, may have ſtood upon his Holy Mountain, and walked up and down in the midſt of the ſtones of Fire, &c. and yet the Enemy may have leave to Tempt, and may find entrance for his Temptation, advancing above this Eſtate in the Deceivableneſs, and increaſing the Glory in the Eye of the Wiſdom which he ſteals in, and ſo hold the Spirit Captive in his Golden Chains, and lead it back again to the Chambers of Death.

Queſt. How doth or can the Enemy prevail over Perſons in ſo Glorious an Eſtate?

Anſw. By opening a larger Eye in them, than is given them in the Life to ſee with. The Eye of Life is limited in Man, and Man is to be held within the limits and openings of Life, and his Heart and Mind to be bounded within the Deſires and Delights, which ariſe from the Life: he is to wait on the Life for its living, moving and being: all in his Being: and here he ſhall be large enough, and full enough, and wiſe enough, and happy enough. But there is ſomewhat which preſents to him a Kingdom, a Riches, a Dominion, a Vaſtneſs of Perfection in himſelf and at his own command; the which he beginning to liſten unto, the ſame opens an Eye in him to ſee the Beauty and Glory thereof, and then Immediately his Heart is taken, and he cannot avoid the Snare: nor can he henceforth know where he is, until that which he hath forſaken, again pleaſe to viſit him, and to diſcover to him his Iniquity and Errour from the true Root.

Queſt. What is the way of ſafety, when God enlargeth the Territories of Life in the Soul, and cauſeth his Love and Grace to abound?

Anſw. To drink the Draughts of Joy and Sweetneſs in the pure Fear and Trembling, not departing therefrom in what ever it doth for God or receives from him, till the Salvation be wholly wrought out and perfected, the Habitation of unſpotted Love prepared, and the Soul led into, and ſeated in its compleat Manſion therein. And then the Name of Fear is no more heard of in the Land of Life, though the Principle from whence the Fear ſprang, and the Birth and building (which was begotten, raiſed up, formed and perfected in the Fear) abideth for ever. So that the pure Love doth not caſt out the pure Fear (wherein is no Bondage of the Life, but the preſervation of the Life from the Bondage) but ſwallows it up and comprehends it, for the pure Fear is but Love deſcended, and the pure Love is but Fear aſcended, the Eternal Principle or Subſtance being one and the ſame in both.

Queſt. Is there then ſuch a State of Safety, upon which the Enemy cannot Intrench?

Anſw. There is a State of ſuch Union with the Life, as the Enemy cannot come between, where there is lying down and riſing up in the Power of the Life, and no Beaſt of prey can make afraid any more; nor can any Root of bitterneſs ſpring up from within, to trouble or make any diſturbance between the Life and the Soul any more.

Some Queſtions and Anſwers conducing towards the further manifeſtation, and opening the Path of Redemption and Eternal Life to the Eye of Spiritual ISRAEL.

Queſt. HOw doth the Son of God, or Eternal Word, in whom is the Light of Life Redeem man out of the fallen Eſtate, out of the Kingdom of Darkneſs and Death, into the Kingdom of everlaſting Righteouſneſs and Peace in the Life?

Anſw. Three wayes. Firſt, by wounding him in the Natural and corrupt Eſtate, and ſo breaking his Peace and Pleaſure in the Kingdom of Darkneſs and making him weary thereof. Secondly, By weakening him under the Teachings and Chaſtizement of the Law. Thirdly, By healing and binding him up with the Oyl of Salvation in the Power of the endleſs Life, which is the Goſpel.

Queſt. How doth God wound him in the natural and corrupt State?

Anſw. By purſuing him with his Light, which letteth him ſee what it is, diſcovering the Evil and Danger of it, and ſo weaning his heart from it, and making him look out after and long for a Redeemer. O how Burthenſome is the Captivity to the awakened Soul, when he hath a glimpſe of what man was before his fall (when he had a place and being in the Life, with a Spirit ſuitable to the Life) and what he is now in his Eſtate of eſtrangedneſs and alienation from the Life, and whither he is going in his paths of unrighteouſneſs, eſtrangedneſs and alienation! And while his heart is thus returning from the Land of Death and Captivity, and longing after the Redeeming Power and Vertue of the Life, the Enemy (the Power of Darkneſs) lays load upon him, drawing him more and more under the Chains and Bonds of iniquity to the utmoſt of its ſtrength: So that now Luſts abound, Evils increaſe, Temptations and Snares multiply; and in the Land of Captivity their ſtrength is great, the Soul weak and faint, and the Redeeming Power and Vertue ſeems very far off. Now this is the Eſtate of Converſion; when the Lord, in the midſt of the Powers of Death and Darkneſs, turns the heart from them towards himſelf, cauſing it to wait (under the Captivity) for the Appearance of the Arm of his ſtrength, to break the yoak of the Oppreſſor from off the Necks of the oppreſſed, and ſo to bring out of the Land of Death and Darkneſs, into the Travels towards the Land of Promiſe, where the Peace, the Life, the Liberty in the Lord, the Reſt, the Joy, the full Content and Happineſs is Reaped by the Soul, which follows the Lamb thither.

Queſt.

Queſt. How doth God weaken the Creature under the Teachings and Chaſtiſements of the Law?

Anſw. By exerciſing him towards Good and Evil, and correcting him for his unbeleif and diſobedience, as he finds good, juſt and neceſſary for him.

Queſt. How doth God exerciſe him towards Good and Evil, and correct him?

Anſ. When he hath brought him from under the Power of Darkneſs in ſome meaſure; and in ſome meaſure ſet the Spirit free there-from, by the Vertue of his Life ſpringing up in the heart, then he exerciſeth the Heart and Converſation towards the Good and from the Evil: then he giveth out Laws for, or againſt things, according as he findeth moſt proper to the Eſtate of every Particular Soul. Now upon the giving forth of the Law, (the Life being in ſome meaſure raiſed) there is that which loves its Teachings and pure Path, and there is that alſo which draws back from it, and that being yet ſtrong, there come many ſtrokes and Chaſtiſements from the Lord upon his own Dear Child. And theſe are bitter, and to be forced into the Sin which it loaths and in Heart is turned from, and to be kept from the Good which it longs after, and in heart is United to, (partly by the ſtrength of the Enemy, and partly by reaſon of its own weakneſs and negligence) this is bitter alſo: inſomuch as it eryeth out Day after Day, and findeth this Adminiſtration of the Law almoſt as heavy a yoak, as the Land of Captivity it ſelf was, becauſe of the weakneſs of it through the Fleſh, and the ſtrength and advantages which the corruption of the Heart and Prince of Darkneſs gather thereby.

Queſt. What is the benefit of theſe Exerciſes upon the Soul?

Anſw. They melt, they break, they make the Heart tender and fit to be moulded by the Eternal Vertue and Power, into a Veſſel for the Power.

Queſt. What frames of Spirit do they work the Heart or Mind into?

Anſw. Into very many Precious Ones. As for Inſtance,

Firſt, They make the Spirit poor. The daily inroads of Sin and Corruption daſhing againſt the Holy and Righteous Law of Life, the overbearing the ſtrong Deſires after Purity and leaving into the Defilement hindring the Soul from doing what it loves, and making it to do what it hates and would not, this makes it become poorer and poorer, and more Afflicted Day by Day. Upon ſome Viſitations of the pure Life and ſome freſh Vertue received, Oh how ſtrong doth the Soul ſeem! but when it ſuddenly Forfeits its Mercies, loſes its freſhneſs, and is Plunged deeper in the Pit than before, how poor and weak doth it then feel it ſelf, trembling at the next openings of the Life and ſpringings up of the Vertue thereof in it, not knowing what weakneſs, Captivity, Entanglements and Miſery from the Snares of Death remain to follow!

Secondly, They bring into a mourning Eſtate. They fill the Eyes with Tears and the Heart with Sorrow, yea they cauſe an entrance into the Houſe of Mourning. To be accuſtomed to Wounds, Bruiſes, Snares, grieving of the Spirit, provoking of the Deliverer, ſuffering and giving Advantages to the Enemy, &c. the ſenſe of this overwhelms the Heart with grief, and cauſeth continual Sorrow and Lamentation to that which is upright towards God.

Thirdly, They bring into a meek, Merciful and Tender-hearted frame towards others. He that is tempted, he that often falls, and is ſo often wounded and made miſerable, he pities thoſe that err, he mourns over the miſerable. His heart is broken with the Sins and Afflictions of others, and he knoweth not how to be hard towards them, feeling ſuch continual need of abundant mercy himſelf. It is the rich man, the ſound man in Religion, that is rough and hard: but he that is once throughly melted in the Furnace and made up again, is made up tender, and retaineth the impreſſion of the Meekneſs, Love and Mercy for ever. Now a broken Eſtate in Religion, or a ſtate of waiting for the Life is much more precious, than that which is rich and full by what it had formerly received and ſtill holdeth, out of the immediate feeling and freſh Vertue of the Life.

Fourthly, They bring into an hungry and thirſty ſtate after Holineſs and Righteouſneſs. O how the Soul, that is ſenſible of its filth longeth to be waſhed! How it panteth after the Paſtures of Life, the Food of Life, the living Waters: to appear before and enjoy God in the Land of the Living! O how doth the heart, that is daily afflicted with its Unbeleif and Diſobedience, long for the Faith that ſtands in the Power, and the Obedience that flows from the Power! O Teach me thy Statutes, ſhew me the pure Path of Obedience in the way of Life, guide my Feet in the way everlaſting: O write thy Fear in my Heart, that I may not depart from thee: Create a clean heart in me, and put thy Spirit within me to be my strength. O continue thy Loving-kindness to them that know thee, and thy Righteousness to the upright in Heart. O what unutterable Breathings daily issue out from the broken Spirit, towards the Spring of its Life!

Fifthly, They bring into a pure frame, into a cleanness of inside, Cleanse first the inside of the Cup and Platter, said Christ to the Pharisees, and he doth so in his Disciples. With the Mind I serve the Law of God, said Paul when he cried out, O wretched man that I am, who shall deliver! It is not conceivable what purity of heart is formed by God in his Israel, by the Fire which he kindleth in his Sion, and by the Furnace which he setteth up in his Jerusalem; for though in the Furnace the Dross still appears, the sight whereof is apt to grieve and afflict the precious Heart, yet the melting and purifying sweetly goes on, and the Soul (which abideth the heat) is effectually cleansed thereby, as is very manifest afterwards, when Righteousness springs up with the quiet Fruit thereof; but this cannot be discerned, while the flames are discovering and taking hold of the Unrighteousness.

Sixthly, They bring into a Patient frame; fit to bear Reproaches and Persecutions from the World, who in the midst of all this weakness (misery and distress) lay load upon the poor Soul, persecuting him whom God hath smitten, and speaking to the grief of him whom God hath wounded. God smites for want of Obedience, for too much propensity to please the World, for not coming soon enough out of their Customs, Vanities, earthly ways and Worships: and so soon as the Heart and Conversation is given up in Obedience to the Lord, the World is discontent, and they smite, and persecute because of the Obedience. Now the more the Spirit is broken by the hand of the Lord, and taught thereby to fear him; and the less strength it hath in it self, to grapple with the Persecuting Spirit of the world, the fitter it is to stand in God's Counsel, to wait for his strength and preservation, which is able to bear up its head above all the rage and swelling of the Waters of the Worldly Spirit in the men of this World.

Much more might be said, but this may suffice. What is behind will be felt inwardly as the Soul waits on God in the leadings of his Spirit, through the teachings, chastisements and distresses of the Law.

Quest. With what kind of things doth the Lord exercise the Spirits of his Israel, to bring their hearts into these and such other like precious frames?

Ans. With several sorts and kinds of things both outward and inward. As,

First, With oppositions, reproaches and interruptions from the earthly part, both in the men of this World and in themselves. There is abundance within and abundance without to resist, disdain and interrupt the Work of God in the heart, to oppose and withstand that which he hath begotten there, his leadings of it, and its Obedience to him.

Secondly, With Temptations from the Enemy even of many kinds, natures and degrees, according to the present temper and condition of the Soul; as either to doubt and so despair, or be confident in the Flesh from Knowledge received, out of the pure fear and fresh feeling of the Life: so again either to halt or draw back, or to be over-hasty and forward: so likewise either not to obey and act for God, or to act in that will and wisdom which is against God. Now these, with such like, are very numerous, frequent, and sometimes very violent and impetuous.

Thirdly, By withdrawings of the Life and sweet presence of God from the Soul. These are very frequent from the Lord towards his people, insomuch as he is called by this Title; The God that hideth his Face from the House of Jacob, Isai. 8. 17. chap. 45. 15.

Fourthly, By buffettings and prevailings of the Enemy. When the Spirit is grieved, the Life wounded and withdraws inward, the Enemy often gets ground, giving wounds and causing bruises to the Soul; not only tempting, but finding entrance and taking in the Snare the Bird, which once escaped and was delivered.

Fifthly, By doubts, fears and confused reasonings concerning the Voice of God and the Voice of the Enemy. In the hour of darkness (when the Lord seeth good to let forth the power thereof, and to withdraw the Beams of his Light) how can that be clearly distinguished, which alone is known and seen in the Light? how can the motions, drawings and pure low workings of the Life be discerned from the false Images and Transf-Transformings of the Enemy? O the miſery and anguiſh of the poor Soul in this condition! how is the poor Upright-heart pained between Faith and Unbelief, Obedience and Diſobedience, &c. not knowing when it is drawn forward or backward, or by whom.

Queſt. When do theſe Exerciſes begin? and how long do they continue?

Anſ. The Lord doth begin to exerciſe the Soul even in Ægypt: for after the Promiſe (of deliverance from ſpiritual Pharaoh) the Bonds increaſe, the Yoak grows more heavy, Pharaoh grows more violent and furious, the Captivity increaſeth much; but there is no ſight of Redemption at all, ſave to that Eye which is weak and eaſily over-born in Iſrael. But the exerciſes are much more full and ſharp in the Wilderneſs, where Iſrael is led about, tried, afflicted, conſumed day by day, as if he ſhould never come to the holy Land, nor any of Iſrael be left to enter therein. Yea, in Canaan, in the rich Poſſeſſion, in the plentious overflowings of the Life, there is ſtill ſomewhat left to try Iſrael and bring him low with, if at any time he be exalted with the Glory and Fulneſs of his own Eſtate, and begin to forget his God.

Queſt. Why doth God thus exerciſe his Iſrael? Why doth he lead them in ſuch a knotty, and not in a more eaſie and ready Way to the everlaſting Poſſeſſion, and to the fulneſs thereof?

Anſ. Becauſe their Eſtate and Condition requires it. They could not be ſo purified nor fitted for the Life, their Veſſels would not be ſo inlarged to receive it in, nor they ſo ſafely enjoy it, were it not for this courſe of Wiſdom, wherein God exerciſes and tryeth every cranny of their Spirits, until he hath perfected them and ſtopped up the entrance of Death every where.

Queſt. How do theſe Exerciſes purifie and enlarge them?

Anſ. Firſt, They try the Strength and Vertue of the Life in them, and diſcover to them their further want thereof. In the time of the Souls proſperity there ſeems to be enough: but the day of diſtreſs maketh manifeſt the Eſtate and Condition as it is. Then the Faith, the Love, the Patience, the Meekneſs, the Conſtancy and Chaſtneſs to the Spouſe (loving him, and cleaving to him above all, and in all) many times is found to be leſs than it was judged to be.

Secondly, It brings to a waiting on God for ſupport, and for receiving of more from him. Then the Life breaths vigorouſly, and the Soul hankers after, cleaves to, and ſees indeed both of the preſence and increaſe of the Vertue of the Life. Then he that was rich becomes poor, and he that was full becomes empty and nothing; yea he that had enough to live on and to ſpare, is now preſſed with hunger, want and penury.

Thirdly, It prepares for a clearer entrance into, and ſafer enjoyment of the fulneſs. As the Soul is more emptied of the Strength and Riches it received from God: ſo it is more prepared to enter into and live in the pure Being it ſelf. For nothing can live there, which Vails. In the Life God was, and is, and is to be all in all for ever. That therefore which enters there, and lives and abides there, muſt be poor, empty, naked, nothing, and remain nothing for ever. As it gathers any thing from the fulneſs and becomes any thing in it ſelf thereby, it is ſhut out.

Queſt. How doth God heal and bind up that which he hath wounded and broken to pieces with his various and frequent Exerciſes?

Anſ. By opening the Power of the endleſs Life, in the Veſſel which he hath throughly purified and prepared, and filling it with the Power. The free power of Life, that's the Goſpel. To the Meek, to the Broken-hearted, to the Cleanſed it is propheſied: and when the Work of cleanſing is finiſhed, the Wound made wide enough, and kept open long enough, and the Death to the firſt Husband fully accompliſhed, then the perfect Oyl is perfectly poured in, and everlaſting Health and Salvation obtained. This is the end which God aims at in the Viſitations and leadings of his Seed; happy are they that paſs through the Vail of Miſery, and drink off the dregs of the Cup of Trembling, not fainting nor ſetting down by the way, but following the faithful Shepherd and leader of Iſrael till they arrive here.

Queſt. What is the great danger in the Path of Life?

Anſ. The great danger is of aſcending a ſtep higher than the preſent Eſtate and Condition will bear: for by this means the aſpiring Mind gets up, and is exalted and holdeth ſomewhat received from the Life, out of the pure fear which preſerves the heart clean, and and out of the ſenſible feeling which keepeth freſh and living to God? and then the ſimplicity is betrayed, and a wrong Spirit lives, and a wrong eye is opened: ſo that there is nothing now but Whoredom from the Life, and the heart exalted and conceited in the way of its Whoredoms, as if it were the pure Bed and moſt excellent way of enjoyment of the Life.

Queſt. What way is there of preſervation here-from?

Anſ. Watching to the Life, keeping low in the fear and cloſe to the feeling. Here the aſpirer is ſhut out, or ſoon eſpied at his beginning to enter, and then the living Croſs received, which crucifieth and driveth him back. And indeed there is no way of ſafety in the travels towards the enjoyment of Life, or under any enjoyment before the ſtate of perfect Death, but under the Croſs to that Spirit and Nature which would dwell there, and pleaſe it ſelf therewith, and be ſomewhat therein, and ſo forget the pure everlaſting Spring. Adulterating with the ſtreamings forth of it.

Man was made for God to be a Veſſel of his pleaſure, to receive his content, enjoyment, and happineſs by reflection. So that man's proper Work was to watch to the ſpring from whence he came; to be diſpoſed of, ordered, and to be according to his pleaſure. This was natural to man before his Fall, till a corrupt Spirit by deceit entred him and corrupted him. And while any thing of that corrupt Spirit or fallen Nature remains, he is apt to aſpire in the ſelf-hood, and to ſeek the enjoyment of what comes from the Fountain (yea and of the Fountain it ſelf alſo) in and according to the Will and Wiſdom of the ſelf-hood. And here let man receive what Gifts ſoever from God, be advanced to never ſo high an habitation in the Land of Life, yea have the very Fountain it ſelf given him, yet by this means he will corrupt, loſe the Gift or Spring, be ſeperated from it, and adulterate with what he can ſtill retain or gather in his own Principle. And here do deep travellers loſe their way, falling from their Portion in the Land of Life, and from their enjoyments in the Paradice of the pleaſure of the Life, into the earthly and ſenſual Spirit, holding things wiſely and richly there in the earthly Principle, not knowing the remove of their Habitation thither, nor thinking that they are there.

He that readeth theſe things, let him not ſtrive to comprehend them, but be content with what he feeleth thereof ſuitable to his own preſent Eſtate: and as the Life grows in him and he in the Life: and he comes to meet with the things and exercifes ſpoken of, the Words and Experiences concerning them will of themſelves open to him, and be uſeful and ſerviceable to him ſo far as the Lord pleaſeth, he keeping to the leadings, favour and principle of Life in himſelf, wherein alone his knowledge, ſight, growth and experiences are ſafe.

Now he that would travel ſafely in Spirit unto the Land of Life, let him wait to have theſe things following, written by the Finger of God in his heart, and the ſence and Impreſſion thereof preſerved freſh in him.

Firſt, It is the free Grace of God which begins the work of Redemption, which cauſeth the Light to ſhine, which worketh the Repentance or turning from the dead State, and alſo the belief in and turning towards the living God.

Secondly, It is the ſame Grace alone that can preſerve and cauſe the Plant of Grace to grow. If there be a withdrawing of the Light, a with-holding of the free influence, that which depends thereupon cannot retain its freſhneſs; which the Lord may do as often as he pleaſeth, for the chaſtiſement of the rebellious part, or for the tryal of his pure Life and Vertue in his Plants.

Thirdly, The Grace of God viſiting the Soul in the death, in the darkneſs, in the fallen Eſtate, begetteth Life anew in it, maketh it in ſome meaſure Light in the Lord, openeth an Eye in it to ſee the things of God, an Ear to hear and diſtinguiſh between the ſound of life and of death, an Heart to turn from and refuſe the Vanity, and to turn towards and abide in the living Subſtance.

Fourthly, The Spirit of God carries on the Work of Redemption by drawing, leading, and acting the quickened Soul, by exerciſing that which he hath begotten in the Life, under the Law of the Life. Thus the Life draws the Soul daily nearer and nearer towards the everlaſting Spring, and from the fading emptineſs of Sin, Vanity and the Creature-hood; and the Soul, by the enlivened Vertue, daily follows on after the Life, in the Leadings, Spirit, and Power thereof. There is a living Soul begotten by the Vertue of the the Grace, and the living Soul daily lives in the Grace, and travels in the Vertue thereof from the Unbelief to the Faith, from the Enmity to the Love, from the perverſneſs to the Straitneſs, from the Iniquity to the Righteouſneſs, even from all the Territories of the Darkneſs, and alſo from the weak Meaſures and Degrees of the Grace and Life towards the Fulneſs it ſelf, even until it perfectly center in, and be fully filled therewith.

Fifthly, Where there is a ſtopping of the Vertue received from the Grace, and not an Anſwer of it in the heart, there the Work of Redemption is ſtopped. If the Soul follow not in the drawing, the drawing is loſt, as to it. If the Ear open not to hear the Voice of the Word, or if it be not mixed with Faith in the heart hearing, it proves ineffectual. If ſtrength iſſue forth from the Lord, yet if the Soul receive not the ſtrength which iſſueth forth and bubbleth up in it, or anſwer it not in giving up to it and travelling on, the Soul abideth where it was at leaſt, if it alſo retire not backward from that Eſtate and Condition, whereto the Life had advanced it: for if the Vertue of the Life and Grace be refuſed, there is an advantage given to Death to re-enter, and gain ground by its contrary Vertue and Power.

Sixthly, Mark therefore diligently, how the Lord doth carry on the diſpenſation of his Love and free Grace, even as if there were much done by the ſtrength and diligence of the Creature. What wounding of it ſelf by Repentance! What ſtriving to believe! What wreſtling againſt Enemies and for the influences of the Grace, and to keep the Hope up and the Diſtruſt out! What ſtrict watching and waiting, even as if the Creature did work out its whole Salvation!

Seventhly, Though the Creature ſeemeth to do much it ſelf (having received Life from the Grace, and acting abundantly towards God in the Grace) yet it is the Grace and Vertue which comes from the Creator (who is alſo the Redeemer) which indeed doth all: For though the Creature repent really, and turn from the darkneſs with its whole heart, yet the Repentance is of the Vertue which flows from the Grace, and not of the Creature which receives the Grace: and ſo likewiſe is the Faith, the Love, the Obedience, the Meekneſs, the Patience, the Watching, the Waiting, the Hoping, &c. Yea the very receiving the Grace, is not of the Creature, but of the Grace: for the Creature is dead, until it be viſited by the Grace; and by the viſitation of the Grace alone is made alive, and able to receive it.

Behold then the Myſtery of Redemption. God is all in Redemption. God doth all therein as fully as in Creation (it is a new Creation) even the whole Work thereof; yet the Creature quickened and renewed is in Unity with him in his Operations, Phil. 2. 12, 13. He whoſe Eyes are opened can read the Myſtery, and in true underſtanding ſay (if he hath been led and hath proceeded ſo far) I am able to do all things through Chriſt that ſtrengtheneth me; yet not I, but the Grace of God in me. Now to bring the Creature to this, the Lord exerciſeth it daily in Obedience unto him, in the Life and Vertue which floweth forth from him, cauſing it to feel its weakneſs as it forgets the Vertue, or aſpires to live of it ſelf on the Vertue received, out of the ſenſible feeling of its dependence upon the Spring. And indeed, the Vertue that comes from God can alone Anſwer God, and the Creature is only accepted with the Spring and Father of Life, as it is found therein.

Queſt. But if the Work of Redemption be wrought by God's creating Power, how cometh it to meet with ſo many rubs and interruptions, and ſometimes overturnings? Can any thing ſtop God's creating Power?

Anſ. So far as God abſolutely pleaſeth to create, nothing can ſtop or hinder: but the entrance of that which he beginneth to create into the Creature, and its getting a Being there, as alſo the growth and preſervation of it there, may be hindred by the Force of ſpiritual Enemies, if the Lord pleaſe to permit, or by the grieving and provoking of that free Power, which alone begetteth and preſerveth Life in the heart.

Objection. Then the Work of Redemption is not carried on by an abſolute free-creating Power.

Anſ. The creating Power and preſerving Power is the ſame, but the Work is ſomewhat different, both in the outward viſible Creation, and in the inward new Creation. The preſervation of that which is created and planted (unto its growth and perfection) is by the ſame Power which created and planted: but rather in a way of Care, Induſtry, Art,

Art, and Skill, than of such immediate Force and Power, though by the exercise and putting forth of the same Vertue and Power.

There are three things in Redemption.

First, There is the issuing out of the free Grace, Love, Vertue and divine Power towards the Creature.

Secondly, There is the opening of the Estate of the Creature thereby, convincing and drawing it out of the Alienation from the Life, towards Unity with the Life.

Thirdly, There is the following of the Creature after the Life, in the quickning Vertue of the drawings through all the Snares, Temptations, Diversions and Oppositions of the Enemy.

Now there is no hindring of the issuing forth of the free Grace towards the Creature, or of those convictions and inclinations of the Creature to follow, which necessarily ensue thereupon. But the pursuit and progress of the Creature (or its abiding with the quickning Vertue and Power) may many ways be interrupted and diverted, and so the Creature drawn from under the influence of the free Covenant: for though the Covenant be free, yet the Creature only partakes of it, as it is drawn into it and preserved in it.

Therefore let those fear, who feel the Power and redeeming Vertue, and know, that notwithstanding the free and certain Promise to the Seed, yet the Creature is as Clay in the hands of the Potter; which may be made a Vessel of Honour or Dishonour, as he pleaseth to favour it or take occasion against it. And whoever would pass through the Work of Salvation and Redemption, unto the Salvation and Redemption it self; in the living Vertue received from the Life, let him keep fast hold on the good Pleasure, and in it give all diligence to make his Calling and Election sure, working out his Salvation with Fear and Trembling, because God worketh in him both to will and to do of his good Will. And walking diligently and industriously in this Path, he may attain the Seal of the Redemption, even that Mark which can never be worn out, and to full Assurance of Faith in the redeeming Power: though it is also possible for him afterwards, through much negligence and grieving the Spirit whereby he was sealed, to lose the sight of the Mark, and the comfort of the Assurance, which was once fresh and clear in his Spirit.

For a close at this time, I shall add a few Words concerning the Unity of God's Grace (or free Light of his Spirit) notwithstanding the various Estates and Conditions of man whom it visits, and the variety of its Operations.

There is a three-fold State of Man, wherein the Grace of God visits Him.

First, The Gentile-state, or state of Nature.

Secondly, The Jew-state or Administration of the Law, wherein God takes him under his own Tuition, making known his Will to him, and requiring Obedience of him: and not only so, but also directs him to the inward Teacher, and to the Principle of the pure Fear, which is the place of Wisdom's teaching and instructions.

Thirdly, The Gospel-state or state of Faith, where the Principle is raised, the Seed lives, and that is felt springing up, known and enjoyned, which does the Will and receives the Promise.

Now in all these, the Law, the Light, the Life, the Wisdom, the Power is one and the same; but the Administrations are different.

In the Gentile-state or state of Nature, the Light which man receives there (to discover Evil and work him into Good) is of the Spirit and by Vertue of the Promise. For he had been everlastingly shut up in the Darkness, had it not been for the Promise: and it is for the Promise sake and from the Free-grace, that he hath any Visitation in the state of Nature, and any desires after or leadings towards the good and from the evil; which spring not nor can spring from corrupted Nature, but from the free Fountain of the new Life.

In the Law-state the Light grows more clear; the Teacher is there discerned and acknowledged, his drawings, warnings, instructions and reproofs felt more distinctly, and the Soul (that is watchful) continually exercised therein. In

In the Gospel-state the Principle of Life is raised, the promised Seed come, the Power which doth the Will received, and the Light of Life entring into and possessing the Vessel.

Now this is the whole of Man, to wait on the Ministration of the Life to him in his present Estate, whether he be yet in the Estate of Nature, or under the Law, or under Grace. To know whence his Redemption springs, and to wait on the redeeming Arm for the beginnings, progress, and perfecting of it: And if he be in the feeling of that Vertue, it is enough: or if he be but kept longing and panting after it, it is well: yea, if there be but a desire in him after a thirst, there is hope: nay, if there be but the least feeling of his dead, barren and sensless estate, there is some Life in him, which the Lord loves, and will find a time to express his Bowels towards: yea, that which is wholly in the Darkness and shut up in the Pit, the Lord hath Bowels in him towards, and after many days may please to visit. Oh the height, the depth, the length, the breadth of the Riches of the Mercy and Love of God! Who knows his yearning towards Souls, and his ways of visiting and redeeming! O my Soul, hope thou in the Lord for evermore, and leave not breathing towards him, till thou and his whole Creation be filled and satisfied with him; and then fetch the full Breath of Life in him for ever.

A POSTSCRIPT.

I Have been treating of the inward Work, as it is wrought in the Heart by the Power, and brought to the sensible experimental Knowledge of the Creature; yet would not be so understood, as if I made void what was done without by Christ in his own person, or any of those ends and purposes for which it was wrought, and appointed so to be done by the Father: though this I know, that the knowledge of those things with the belief therein, or any Practices and Observations there-from without the Life, can no more profit now, than the Jews literal knowledge of the Law could profit them, when they were rejected therewith. And since the Apostacy, of this latter Age especially, I have clearly seen in the Spirit of the Lord, that the professors knowledge of the Letter of the Gospel, and cleaving to their apprehensions which they gather there-from, is become a Snare and Trap to them, to keep them from feeling the Power, and living in the sensibility of the Vertue of the Grace, even as the Jews Table (or gathered knowledge from Moses and the Prophets) became their Snare and Trap. The Lord open their Eyes in his due time to discern it, that they may not withstand that Ministration and Revelation of his everlasting Gospel, which God seeth good to visit the Apostatized World with, after this long dark night of the Apostacy; whereof those that stick in forms, or knowledge of things from the Letter without the Power, cannot but prove the greatest Enemies, Opposers and Persecutors.

Now to help them a little, if the Lord please in the rowling of my Bowels towards them I find my heart opened, to lay a few things before them.

First, With my heart, in the sight of the Lord do I own that Principle, which formerly wrought in some of them, which I my self was wrought upon by, and knew not onely the outward knowledge which they were acquainted with, but also the inward Work: and I also knew what I called the Light of Nature, and what I called the Light of the Spirit, the one whereof was not the other, but differed as far as Spirit and Flesh.

Secondly, I also own all the openings and refreshments which they received from the Lord in reading of the Scriptures, in their publick or private Exercises, and the Experiences which they had from God in their own hearts: and I know that these things in themselves were true, in their proportion; however their present sence, and holding of them out of that wherein they received them, may justly be judged by the Spirit of the Lord in his Servants.

Thirdly, Though those things were true in their day, and in their proportion and measure, yet in them they might lose their vertue and die; and so they not retain the thing in its Life, in its own Principle, in the newneſs of the Spirit, in that Birth to which God gave it, but only an Image of it in the natural Underſtanding, in the earthly part in the dead Principle: and then their knowledge of God and their Experiences cannot but be corrupted, and now become the poſſeſſion of death, and the Engines of death in their hearts. Again, God had ſomewhat further to manifeſt, even to bring forth that which they earneſtly prayed for in that day; which they having abided in that Vertue wherein they prayed, might eaſily have diſcerned and embraced: but being out of that, and pleaſing themſelves with the literal knowledge of the things they then received, holding them in the wiſe earthly part, that part cannot but ſtumble at the low and contemptible appearances of God, which are ſtill offenſive to that part. The great Glory of God is hid in a little Seed, and how can the great Eye of the Fleſhly-wiſe ſee it? We have Moſes and the Prophets, ſaid the Jews after the Fleſh; But as for this man, we know not whence he is. Even ſo it is now: We know the Relation which the Scriptures have given of Chriſt by the Apoſtles, we are ſure this is of God, ſay the Profeſſors: but as for this little Seed of the Kingdom, or Light of God in the heart, we cannot believe that all we want is to ſpring up in it.

Now Fourthly, there is neceſſity both of the knowledge of Perſons to paſs away, and alſo of their Experiences to be given up and let fall, in theſe two Caſes following.

Firſt, When the Vertue is withdrawn from them, when Death hath caught them, when they become Death's Goods. For that which is received from the Life, is only profitable to the Soul in the vertue of the Life. When the earthly part hath caught them and ſeated it ſelf there, they then become the ſtrong Holds of the Enemy, and the Engines of Death to the Heart: ſo that then Life and true Relief is not to be had in them but where the eternal Vertue pleaſes next to appear.

Secondly, When God hath ſomewhat to bring forth further in the World or in any particular heart, to make way for it, he brings death upon that which was before living. Thus when God is pleaſed to bring forth a greater Meaſure of Faith, and Power of his Spirit, he diſtreſſeth the Heart, making the fore-going Faith and Power appear weak and paſs away, and many times for a ſeaſon ſhutteth up the Soul in the unbelief, until the freſh Faith and freſh Power ſpring up and ariſe. And this cauſeth the neceſſity of the further Diſpenſations of his eternal Vertue to appear, and the Beauty of them to ſhine, which they would not have done ſo abundantly, had it not been for the fore-going diſtreſs of the Heart.

There are yet ſome things further weighty upon my Heart to lay before them, needful for them to conſider of, which may ſerviceable and be helpful to them in their preſent Condition, if the Lord pleaſe to open their Hearts and impreſs them thereon. They are four Propoſitions, relating to the right Knowledge of the things of God, which are theſe following.

Firſt, That the Knowledge of the things of God comes from the Spirit, As the Scriptures themſelves came from the Spirit: ſo the true Knowledge of them is alone given, to any man which receiveth it, by the ſame Spirit. And no man living can know the mind of the Words which the Spirit ſpake, but as the ſame Spirit which ſpake them, gives the meaning of them.

Secondly, That the Knowledge of God (the living Knowledge, the ſerviceable Knowledge) is alone held in the Spirit, and in the Birth which is of the Spirit. Man's natural Part is not the true Treaſury, nor is man's Reaſon to be Maſter of any of the things of God's Spirit; but that which holds the Knowledge of the Kingdom, the Grace of the Kingdom, the living Experiences, is that which is born of the Seed of the Kingdom; and man's Reaſon is for ever to be ſhut out of the things of God, further than it bows, is limited and ſubjected.

Thirdly, That the Knowledge received from the Spirit, is ſtill to be tryed by the Spirit. The Spirit alone can keep it living, and the Spirit alone can tell whether the Life and Vertue be ſtill in it, or whether Death hath caught it; whether it be Manna fit for the Soul's Food; or Manna once given, but now corrupted. O my dear Friends, wait to underſtand my Experience concerning this thing, which is this. That which I had certainly received from God, and which the true Birth at firſt had fed on, the earthly Birth would be catching at, laying hold of, and treaſuring up to feed on at another time. Likewise in my reading of the Scriptures, I lay open to this great Snare of reading in my own Will, and of gathering from thence in mine own Understanding, and so growing Wise concerning the things of God after the Flesh. for though, at that time, I was not without living Knowledge and Experiences of God, yet I knew not how to turn from the Death, nor to keep to the Life; and so the bad, the lean, the earthly, the ill-favoured overgrew the good and well pleasing to God, and brought it into bitter misery and death. O that ye knew being begotten of the Will of the Father, and keeping to the Will of the Father, and receiving the Bread daily from his hand. That which man conceiveth concerning the Scriptures, is not the pure Milk of the Word, but that which the Breasts gives out: that is it which hath the immediate Life, Vertue and true Nourishment in it. And this must be returned back into the Treasury, and not held in the earthly Part, in the earthly Will and Understanding, but received from the Life again when it is again needed; yea, this have I often known, that when I have been in great distress, I have received fresh comfort from the Lord: but running to that afterwards, it never was able to comfort me, but more deeply wounded me. And thus hath the Lord been teaching me to live upon himself, and not upon any thing received from him, but upon the Life it self, the Mercy, the good Pleasure which proportions out the living Bread daily to the living Birth.

Fourthly, It is easie receiving of Knowledge in the earthly Part, in the earthly Wisdom, out of the Spirit and living Vertue. When one readeth a Scripture, it is easie conceiving and apprehending a meaning ones self, or taking in another man's meaning; but it is hard abstaining from all conceivings and reasonings of the Mind, and waiting for the pure Will and Opening of the Spirit therein. Also it is easie retaining of Knowledge, and making use of it in the Will and Wisdom of the earthly Mind (for both these are natural:) but it is hard denying the reason, the thoughts and imaginations, and watching to the Spirit.

O Professors! wait for the living Appearance of God, even for the freshness of his Spirit in your Spirits, that in that which cometh from the Spirit ye may know the Spirit, and may also know how to turn to him and abide with him, having the watch set against that Wisdom in your selves, which in all Ages and Generations is eternally shut out of the things of the Kingdom, although it may gather, get and hold a vast Knowledge of the things of the Kingdom in the earthly Treasury. Thus Fleshly-Israel hath the Wisdom of the Letter, but Spiritual-Israel the Wisdom, Vertue and Life of the Spirit in all Ages and Generations. And though he that is born after the Flesh, despiseth him who is born after the Spirit, yet this is God's Heir: and the Bond-woman, the earthly Wisdom, with all her Children (even the greatest Gyants in Knowledge, Profession of Religion and Scripture-observations) must be cast out, and not inherit the Land of Life. This is written that that might be raised in you by the Power, which is to inherit the Life eternal: and ye not find your Souls deceived when the Light of that day fully opens, which hath already dawned.

I was in a poor low Condition, when the Lord formerly visited me, as lost, as undone, as miserable as any. What Knowledge, what Life, what precious Vertue I then received, was from God's Grace; which was still his own, and he might call for it at his pleasure. And surely, he which hath received from the Fountain, ought to trust and to give back again to the Fountain, when he calleth for it: and then to remain empty, naked and desolate, until he be again freely visited. This is an hard Lesson. who can learn it? Who can trust his Life with the Fountain, and lie open to what follows? Yet this did the Lord require of me: and my heart being not willing to part with my Life, but striving to retain it, and grow in the first way of the dispensation of the Grace unto Perfection, he brake it after an unutterable manner, and brought such a misery and desolation upon me as I could not possibly have suspected, having been sealed by him. And now he is teaching me to live more fully upon his Grace, or rather upon the Spring, where I am nothing, where I can be nothing for ever: but he is and will be what he will be, and when he will be; and nothing in me can be satisfied with him, but what is of him and lives in him. And here all that I have known, or formerly tasted of him, springs up again at his pleasure; and I drink of the old Wine, and also of the new, but have nothing at my own dispose. And when I catch at any thing, or would be any thing, I lose the Spring, and am corrected for my Backsliding and Adultery of Spirit, but am still again viſited with freſh Love, and the ſpringings up of freſh Power and Life, and freſh Viſitations of the rich Mercy and Grace, which the everlaſting Fountain naturally openeth in its own. The Pearl is exceeding rich, the Treaſure of Life unutterable; and he that will poſſeſs it, muſt ſell all for it, even all his Luſts and Corruptions, yea all the riches of his Nature (the beſt of his Will, the beſt of his Wiſdom moſt refined) nay not only ſo, but all the riches of his Spirit, all that he hath held or can hold out of the Life. Then, when he is poor in Spirit, and hath nothing in himſelf but emptineſs, nothing ſo much as to receive or retain the Life, but what is formed, groweth up in, and is preſerved in the Life, according to its own meer Will and good pleaſure; then alone is he fit to be comprehended and brought forth in the eternal Spring. Perfectly happy is he who is perfectly poſſeſſed thereof: yet he is not without a Proportion of bleſſedneſs alſo, who is mourning after it and travelling towards it; which can never be attained by the natural Parts retaining the Letter of any ſpiritual Revelation or Knowledge, but onely by beginning in the eternal Vertue, abiding in it, and travelling from death to death, and from life to life, till all be ſlain which is to die and periſh in the way, and all be raiſed and perfected which is to receive, and live in the Kingdom and Crown of Life for ever, which the Lord lays before all to run after, but none but the ſpiritual Seed (begotten of and abiding in the Spirit) can obtain. Mind then this brief Sum.

The loſt Creature, the undone Creature, is graciouſly ſought after and viſited by the Fountain of its Life and Being.

Being viſited with the Mercy and Grace, and impreſſed, it receiveth ſomewhat of the Grace and living Vertue from the Fountain.

Having received ſomewhat, the Creature is apt to retain it in the creaturely Veſſel (even in the own Will, and to inlarge the own Wiſdom thereby, and ſo to become ſomewhat again in it ſelf) forgetting the Spring:

As the Creature retaineth any thing in the natural Part out of the immediate feeling of the living Vertue, it corrupts, it adulterates from the living Spring.

And that which any one hath thus adulterated with, muſt be taken from him, and he be made dead to it, and it to him, before he can be recovered into a living State, fit to enjoy what he formerly received, or further to receive of and grow up in the freſh living Vertue.

Some QUESTIONS and ANSWERS concerning the Seed of Jacob, and the true CHURCH.

By Isaac Penington the Younger.

The PREFACE.

THE Goodness of God endureth for ever. And though his Creature Man (who should have been subject and obedient to him) hath sinned against him, and by motions and inclinations of his own Will and Wisdom (out of the Principle of his pure Life, which was to have been his Guide and Governour) hath fallen short of his Glory: Yet he still pleaseth to visit his poor lost Creature with Loving-kindness and Mercy, and with various dispensations of his Life, according to his Pleasure. What Man is there that hath not received a Soul from the Breath of the Almighty? And what Soul is it that hath not some Visitations of Life from that living Breath? The Bowels of Eternity

most

most naturally roul towards all its Off-spring, who seeketh the gathering of them all in the variety, and according to the limitations of his Will, in his pure Wisdom.

There is a Current or Stream of Life before the Promise is known, which secretly visits all, discovering the darkness in some measure unto all, and drawing from it. And happy is he who falls in with, and follows the leadings of the Almighty here: for then he cannot abide in the darkness, but (still according to the need of his Condition) will meet with a true Guide out of it, and with the true Power which redeemeth and delivereth from it. For as the Promise made to Adam, had relation to all his Posterity: so whoever is visited with any Light by vertue of the promise, that Light will lead him to the promise, and he (in the obedience thereof) will meet with the sweetness and vertue of the promise. So that the lowest dispensation of God (the Creature being exercised therein, feeling the want of God's Power, and drawn to depend upon him for mercy and strength) will lead fallen man back again to his Maker, by the vertue which flows into man from the promise, though never so secretly and hiddenly. For it is not the distinct knowledge of the promise (though that is a very great advantage) but the vertue flowing from the promise, which saves. Man being touched by that vertue, and by the touch thereof quickened towards God, and in that vertue which comes from the redeeming mercy, cleaving to his Maker, and hoping in his tender bowels, and feeling the weakness, insufficiency and corruption of his own will and understanding, and so going forth from himself towards the Spring which quickened him: Here is Christ known in spirit, received in spirit, believed and relied on in spirit, and his living vertue already felt and further waited for. And can this man, thus walking, thus believing, thus obeying, thus cleaving to the Principle which gives life, thus receiving vertue from it, and growing up (in that vertue) out of the self-hood into it, I say, Can this man miss of eternal life which runs along in all the streamings forth of this living vertue?

But O how sweet is the Stream of Life in the sensible Manifestation of the Promise! He who feels the Covenant in Christ, and Life streaming into his heart through the Covenant, and the Seal of eternal Peace to his Soul, and that he shall never be left nor forsaken by the Fountain of Mercy, but all that ever befals him, shall conduce towards the working out of the perfect Redemption and Salvation of his Soul. This is a precious state indeed; and this is the state, which the feeling of the Faith, and the living Obedience in the Spirit leads to. Happy are they that walk in the Path thereof, who content not themselves with Man's Knowledge of Christ, with Man's Belief of the things written concerning him, with Man's Obedience to the Precepts left on Record by the Apostles; but whose living Soul cannot be satisfied, without the feeling and pressing after Christ the Life, and without a true engrafting into him in Spirit, through the living Word or Testimony of Life, received into, and believed on in the Heart.

And how sweet also is the Ministration of the Law, which comes from the Promise, and is manag'd to the Soul by the hand of the Mediator! How sweet is it to see the Creature fall daily! To find ones own strength to Believe, to Obey, to Suffer, to abide with Christ, to wait on Christ, to hope for Christ, daily battered and brought to nothing, and no Life left, but what issues from the Spring, and is alone maintained by the free Current thereof into the Heart daily! Here the stroke of the Law is received, by degrees unto perfect Death. Here are the openings of the pure Prophesies in the Spirit concerning a new Kingdom, a new Birth, a new Heir, a new Life. Here is the Ax laid to the Root of the Tree, and that cut down in the Heart which is not to live, and which hinders the Heir from his Inheritance. Here is the vale of Tears, which Tears spring from the Life, whose Virtue washeth away the corruptible day by day. Here is the House of Mourning, and that state of Darkness entred into, which swallows up all the joy of the dark earthly Spirit, and consumes its Nature. Here the Light of Life is sown, and through these Exercises it springs up; and after the passing away of this Ministration, breaks forth in strength upon that Soul, which hath been throughly exercised herein.

I desire the good of all Mankind, waiting for the swallowing up of the dispensations of Death, and the breaking forth of Life upon them in the seasons thereof, according to the good pleasure of him whose Gift Life is, and whose are all the dispensations of it. And in that Love, through the openings and drawings of Life in me, have I writ what follows; not to upbraid or strike at any, but to be an help unto such as the Lord shall please to make it serviceable to. Wait on the Lord, eye him, read in Fear, praying to be touched by, and gathered into that, which gives the feeling of the weight of Truth. O that mens Souls were awakened, that they might know what it is to perish from God, and what to be saved by him. The proper Portion of Man's Soul is the Fountain of eternal Life, and he can never be happy (nor in true Rest, Peace, or Joy) while seperated from it. Let him who is not bruitish in Understanding, and whose Soul is not wholly dead God-wards, consider this.

Some Questions and Answers shewing Man his Duty, &c.

Quest. WHAT is the proper Work of Man here in this World?

Ans. To fear God and keep his Commandments. This is all that God requires of him, and this is enough to make him happy.

Quest. What is God?

Answ. The Fountain of Beings and Natures, the inward Substance of all that appears, who createth, upholdeth, consumeth, and bringeth to nothing as he pleaseth.

Quest. How may I know that there is a God?

Answ. By sinking down into the Principle of his own Life, wherein he revealeth himself to the Creature. There the Soul receiveth such Tasts and Knowledge of him, as cannot be questioned by him that abideth there.

Quest. What is it to fear this God?

Answ. The Spirit and Soul of the Creature standing in aw of his Nature, and waiting to be kept in due subjection thereto, this is to fear him. And this is the proper means of preserving the Spirit of the Creature right in its motion towards him, attendance upon him, and expectations from him.

Quest. What are his Commandments?

Answ. They are such as are either general to all mankind, common to some sorts of men, or proper to particular persons.

Quest. What are those which are general to all mankind?

Answ. They are very many, but may all be referred to those two heads, to wit, To love love God above all, and one's Neighbour as one's ſelf, even ſo in every reſpect doing to him as one would be done to by him in the like caſe.

Queſt. How may Man perform theſe?

Anſw. Only by receiving a Principle of Life from God, and keeping cloſe thereto.

Queſt. How may a Man come by a Principle of Life from God?

Anſw. God is near to every Man with the Breath of his Life, breathing upon him at times according to his pleaſure, which Man's Spirit opening unto, and drinking in, it becometh a Seed or Principle of Life in him, overſpreading and leavening him up to eternal Life.

Queſt. What hinders Man from receiving this Principle of Life, and from keeping cloſe thereto?

Anſw. A fleſhly Principle, which is contrary to the Knowledge, Fear, and Obedience of the Lord, and to all that Springs from the Principle and Power of his Life.

Queſt. How comes this fleſhly Principle to be found in Man?

Anſw. It was ſown there by the Enemy of Man's Soul, man giving him entrance into his Spirit, by hearkening to his ſuggeſtions and allurements.

Queſt. What help hath Man againſt this fleſhly Principle?

Anſw. None of himſelf: but being touched freely by the other Principle, and taſting thereof, he is to wait on God's Mercy and Grace, for the manifeſttation of his Light and Power, to diſcover to him the evil nature and courſe of his own heart, and to cut down the corrupt deſires, reaſonings and imaginations thereof.

Queſt. In what Way is this effected upon the heart?

Anſw. In the hearts belief of this Principle, and in its Obedience thereto.

Queſt. How may a man come to believe in this Principle?

Anſw. In feeling its nature, in waiting to feel ſomewhat begotten by it: in this its Light ſprings, its Life ſprings, its Love ſprings, its hidden Power appears, and its preſerving Wiſdom and Goodneſs is made manifeſt to the Soul that clings to it in the living ſenſe, which its preſence and appearance begets in the Soul.

Queſt. How may a Man come to obey this Principle?

Anſw. In the Faith, in the eying of it, in the clinging to it, the ſtrength iſſues from it into the Creature, which maketh it able to perform all that it calleth for.

Queſt. How come perſons to be ſo weak, and to complain ſo much for want of power, who feel a true beginning of Life, and earneſt breathings after God?

Anſw. From the Enemies interpoſing of reaſonings between them and their Faith. The darkneſs, the principle of unbelief lies near, and is ſtill raiſing mud (as much as poſſible) between the principle of Life and the Soul; and ſo far as it can come between, it diſturbeth both the Motions of the Soul towards its Spring or Principle of Life, and alſo the Springs clear bubbling up in, and running through the Soul.

Queſt. What is to be done in this Caſe?

Anſw. The Soul is to wait God's ſeaſons of Deliverance from theſe, and to hope for an hidden ſupport from his Grace, while the viſitations and leadings of his Life are not made manifeſt.

Queſt. What ground is there for this hope?

Anſw. There is ground of hope for the Creature in God's goodneſs, who naturally loveth and ſeeketh after the Souls which he hath made, and doth not readily nor eaſily caſt off in any of his diſpenſations. Beſides, where he hath begotten ſomewhat, and where the bent of the heart is towards him, and the deſire after his pure Life and Spirit (above all things) kindled: there hath he laid the Foundation of a Building, which (though at preſent it may lie in the duſt, and under heaps of ruines) he cannot forget.

Queſt. Are there other Commands beſides theſe, common to all Men?

Anſw. Yes, according to that diſpenſation of Life and Mercy unto which they are called, and into which they are admitted by the Love and Kindneſs of God, which overſpreadeth all his Works, and who forgetteth not his Creatures in their eſtate of ſeperation and alienation from him.

Queſt. Are there then more diſpenſations of Life and Mercy than one?

Anſw. Yes. For though the Life and Mercy in it ſelf is but one, yet it hath ſeveral ways of ſeeking out after, and gathering into it ſelf the loſt Sons of Adam.

Queſt:

Queſt. What have been the chief ways of diſpenſing the Light of Life towards Mankind?

Anſ. Firſt, By a ſecret ſhining into their hearts. Thus the Soul of the Lord holdeth forth ſome Beams of his eternal Light to all Mankind, according to his pleaſure, at ſome time or other viſiting the darkeſt corners of the Earth, and making ſome way therein for the ſcattering of that darkneſs which ſeperates the Soul from the Light of Life, and from the ſweet preſence and enjoyment of its Creator, which naturally flows into every Soul in its believing and obeying of that Light.

Queſt. Were ever any thus gathered to the Lord?

Anſ. The Lord is able to make any diſpenſation of his Life effectual. And as many of the Jews were not gathered by the Law; ſo many of the Gentiles might be gathered without the Law.

Queſt. But the Law gave the Knowledge of the Meſſiah to come through Faith, in whom was the remiſſion of ſins known, and ſtrength againſt ſin?

Anſ. The Knowledge of Chriſt runs along in all the diſpenſations of the Eternal Light, The Light cometh from him, and it manifeſts him in Spirit, and the remiſſion by his Bloud is ſpiritually known in the Souls feeling the living vertue thereof. The Law and the Goſpel are both known in Spirit, where-ever the eternal Light viſiteth and is received.

Queſt. What are the Commands common to thoſe?

Anſ. They are known to thoſe who are thus gathered, who in the Life thus diſpenſed feel the leadings of it, and in its Light are ſenſible of thoſe requirings, which univerſally ſtream forth from it among thoſe who are thus gathered.

Queſt. What other way of diſpenſing the Light of Life hath there been?

Anſ. That of the promiſe to the Fathers, which was before the Law, wherein they ſaw the day of the Meſſiah, and were glad. This was a glorious Diſpenſation, in which they taſted the Son-ſhip, and felt Power to walk with God, and Faith to truſt him in his leadings, and were tranſlated by him (in a ſweet and precious degree) into the meaſure of his Life, which made them Pilgrims and Strangers in this World, and ſteered their Spirits towards another Country.

Queſt. What were the Commands common to theſe?

Anſ. They were ſeen by them in the ſtreamings forth of that Diſpenſation of Life among them, a taſte whereof the quickened Spirit may have, in reading the Words concerning them up and down the Scriptures.

Queſt. What further diſpenſation of Life hath there been?

Anſ. That of the Law to the Jews.

Queſt. Was that a Miniſtration of Life? Was it not rather a Miniſtration of Death and Condemnation?

Anſw. It proved ſo in its effect through the weakneſs of their ſtate; but its natural tendency and proper effect, in caſe of Obedience thereto, was Life. And alſo in the midſt of its adminiſtring Death and Condemnation, it pointed to him who was the juſtification and the Life: inſomuch as the Law was kind to them in ſlaying them, and ſerviceable to the Life of ſuch Souls, as kindly received the ſtroke thereof, and fled to the Hope ſet before them.

Queſt. What were the common Laws amongſt theſe?

Anſ. They are to be read in the Writings of Moſes and the Prophets, wherein God's Law and Teſtimonies were abundantly given forth to that People.

Queſt. Have there been yet any further diſpenſations of Life?

Anſ. Yes, That of the Goſpel, before the Apoſtacy and falling away from the living Truth and Power of the Spirit, into mans Wiſdom, Inventions, and Imitations.

Queſt. What were the Laws common to theſe?

Anſ. They may be read in the Writings of the Evangeliſts and Apoſtles, where the Record of this Miniſtration is to be found.

Queſt. What hath the Miniſtration of Life been ſince the Apoſtles days?

Anſ. Very low, very weak, very dark, very hidden, exceedingly retired. Yet true Children have been begotten, and food hath been handed to them from the Father, and they have been nouriſhed up in the Faith, and have kept the Commandments of their day, and died in the Faith: And those who have thus been led and preserved, their Souls are at rest, and in the peace of God. But these have not been in any particular distinct gathering, and clear seperation out of the World, but scattered up and down in several mistaken forms, and loaded with the inventions of the earthly Wisdom, and with the bondage and weight of corruption, not knowing that clearness of Spirit, and Victory over sin, by the presence of the Life, which was felt and enjoyed by the Christians before the Apostacy.

Quest. Had these any common Commandments?

Ans. Not so distinctly as the former; for the lying in an heap of Confusion, in a Wilderness or Chaos, scattered in the Mists and Fogs of Antichristian darkness one from another, had not such common Beams of Light, or clear Streams of Life running among them, as those that had a more distinct gathering. Yet some Testimony for God and against the corruption of the times, according to what was in their day and age to be testified for and against, did run among every sort (of such as were true-hearted) in some kind or other. And for this they were hated and persecuted by men (even by such as were formal, and of another Spirit) and also dearly tendred and beloved of the Lord.

Quest. Hath there been any further dispensation of Life since the Apostacy?

Answ. There is another begun, whose glory is to exceed the former, after the darkness (which overspread and clouded the beauty of the former) is expelled by the growing brightness of this appearance.

Quest. How may it appear that there is another?

Answ. There is no knowing this dispensation, but by being gathered into the Light of it. Wisdom hath been alone justified of her Children in former ages, and she can be justified by none else, in her appearance in this age.

Quest. What is the difference of this from the former?

Answ. It is more inward, more retired, more closely depending upon the principle of Life in the Spirit, than the former.

Quest. It is then the same in substance?

Answ. Yes, the very same. The very same truth of Christ Jesus, the very same building of God in the spirit, the very same Church is to be again brought forth: but in greater glory, that being now to to be left out whereby the Enemy then entered, and also degrees of beauty, strength and perfection, being to be added.

Quest. But surely a greater glory than that in the Apostles days is not to be expected; nay it is not the belief of many that ever that shall be restored?

Answ. This ariseth from the unbelief, and want of the sight of the thing by the right eye in the true Light. For the travel of the Eternal Spirit in its Dispensation, is towards perfection: and after the darkness of Antichrist, the brightness of the Light of Life is to shine more clear than ever, as is abundantly testified in the Scriptures (especially in the Book of the Revelations) and also seen by many in the clear openings of the same Eternal Spirit.

Quest. Are there any common Commands given forth in this Dispensation?

Answ. Yes, unto all who are gathered into the Spirit of it. They all feel the same common Commands unto several things according to the nature and drift of this Dispensation.

Quest. What are they?

Answ. They are many, and concern many things (to wit, their Meetings to worship and wait on the Lord, who hath visited and gathered them, together with their way of worshipping, as also their Converse and Conversation amongst men, &c.) which are not easily specified; neither indeed are they fit to be held forth to man's disputing Wisdom, but to be waited for in the Spirit, where the Light of them is evident, and the strength to perform them received and held.

Quest. But how may men know that these are true Commands of the Lord, and not Imaginations or Opinions of their own?

Answ. When the Principle of Life is known, and that which God hath begotten felt in the heart; the distinction between what God opens and requires there, and what springs up in mans Wisdom, Reason and Imagination, is very manifest.

Quest. Are there particular Commands to particular Persons besides these?

Answ.

Answ. As every heart hath its own particular state, which is only fully known to the Spirit of the Lord, who is the Leader of the Soul out of its Darkness and Captivity, and the Exerciser of it in what he judgeth proper to its present state: so the Lord giveth out particular Commands as he pleaseth, either to do or forbear such a thing, as he judgeth it necessary for the Soul.

Quest. How may these be known?

Answ. By coming into acquaintance with the Lord, and the Movings and Voice of his Spirit. First, the quickenings of the Spirit of the Lord are to be receiv'd into the heart: then the eye fixed, in that which is quickened, on him that quickened it, and all the inward senses waiting upon him, and exercised towards him. Thus the Sheep come to know the Voice of the Shepherd, and to follow his leadings into the Pastures of Life, and out of the Paths and Feedings of Death, and is drawn on by him towards any thing, or stopt by him from any thing at his Pleasure.

O that the Sons of Men knew their God, and were gathered into any living Dispensation by him, wherein they might have the true sense and seeking of him. O that mens Souls were awakened to feel the want of the breath of Life from whence they came. O that the Seed of Israel were redeemed by their God, that their Glory and Beauty in his pure Life might awaken the Nations. O God, hasten thy Work in the World; bring the Glory and Wisdom of man into Contempt, and bring forth thine own Glory and Wisdom in its pure brightness.

Some Questions and Answers concerning the Seed of Israel and the true Church.

Quest. Who are the Seed of Israel?

Answ. They who are begotten of the Spirit and Nature of the Eternal Father and Fountain of Life, out of the Spirit and Nature of this World.

Quest. Are there such a Seed in the Earth?

Answ. Yea, and have always been, who have still been the blessing of this World though constantly hated and persecuted by it.

Quest. Why are they hated by the World?

Answ. Because they are not of the World, but faithful Witnesses against it, testifying unto it, that its ways are evil, and its end misery.

Quest. Why do they thus testifie?

Answ. It is their Nature, and God calleth them thereunto. He hath set up his Light in their hearts, to shine forth in the World, and scatter the darkness.

Quest. How do they scatter the Darkneß? Doth not the Darkneß rather scatter them?

Answ. The Darkness doth indeed often prevail against them outwardly, hunting and scattering them up and down upon the face of the Earth: but they still prevail inwardly, in the Testimony of Mens Consciences, over the darkness, who at one time or other are generally made to acknowledge in the secrets of their hearts, that they are of God.

Quest. Why doth the Lord suffer it to be thus, that that which is precious and of him should be trodden under foot by that which is not of him?

Answ. The Lord hath his season for the discovery of all things: He hath given the Kingdom of Darkness its time and power to Reign over the Just, and to keep the holy Seed in Bondage and Captivity; and he hath also appointed his suffering Seed its season of suffering in all Ages and Generations. And by these, and through these the Nature of each is discovered, their ends, and their suitableness to their ends.

Quest. But shall this holy Seed always suffer in this World?

Answ. Nay, not so; for the Lord hath a day to raise the Just into Dominion over the unjust, even here in this World.

Quest. When shall this be?

Anſw. When the Malice and Perſecution of the Enemies of the pure Seed are filled up, and the meaſure of its ſufferings finiſhed.

Queſt. Where are this Seed?

Anſw. They are (as yet, for the generality) ſcattered up and down under the face of the whole Heaven. Not to be found in a viſible Body gathered together, but ſcattered up and down, here a few, and there a few; here one and there another.

Queſt. Were they then once in a Body?

Anſw. Yea; they were once embodied: for after God had caſt off the natural Seed, the Jews, he gathered the ſpiritual Seed into a Body, ſetting them as a City on a Hill, and making them the Light of the World.

Queſt. How came they afterwards to be ſcattered?

Anſw. The Dragon hath done this, God ſuffering him many ways to aſſault this Building, and ſo far at length to prevail over it, even to ſcatter his Church out of her built ſtate, into a wilderneſs ſtate, where no eye can diſcern her any more, but that which is of God: (Wait to read Rev. 12. in the Light of that Spirit which wrote it.)

Queſt. Why did God ſuffer the Dragon to prevail over ſo Precious and Glorious a Building?

Anſw. Becauſe there was ſomewhat of the power of darkneſs neceſſary to be made manifeſt which could not be otherwiſe ſo made manifeſt, as by this its prevailing: and alſo that he might ſhew the neceſſity of, and make way for the bringing forth of that, over which the power of darkneſs cannot prevail.

Queſt. Is there then ſuch a thing to be brought forth?

Anſw. Yea, There is a Church, there is a ſpiritual Building, againſt which the Gates of Hell can never prevail, which is ſo united to the Rock, as the powers of Darkneſs can by no means come between the Rock and it.

Queſt. Is this Church and the Church in the Apoſtles days different or the ſame?

Anſw. This Church hath been in all Ages, but a more full and perfect bringing forth in the Apoſtles days, than in any Age before: yet not ſuch a bringing forth outwardly, as might not be driven back. And therefore did the Lord ſuffer it to be aſſaulted and prevailed over, in that wherein it was weak through the outwardneſs of it, that, (after many days,) he might manifeſt his ſtrength in bringing it forth more perfectly.

Queſt. Where hath this Church been theſe many Ages, ſince the Dragons ſore aſſault and overcoming it, as to its outwardneſs?

Anſw. In the Wilderneſs, Rev. 12.

Queſt. What Wilderneſs? Any outward viſible Wilderneſs?

Anſw. It is a Parable, repreſenting the ſcattered ſtate of the Seed, after God's preſence was withdrawn from the viſible Building, and it laid waſt as to his Life, and the appearances of his Spirit, and the Dragon got into, and ſeated in the form. (2 Theſ. 2. 4.) then the Seed and Appearances of God were to be found elſewhere, and not in thoſe Buildings.

Queſt. How were thoſe Churches or Buildings in the Apoſtles days laid waſt?

Anſw. The Preſence of the Life and Power makes the form living: and no longer is it, or can it be ſo, than the Life and Power remains with it. Now they not abiding in the Life and in the Power, (the Apoſtacy coming, ſpoken of 2 Theſ. 2 3.) the Life and the Power alſo withdrew from them, and left them the dead form, into which the Prince of Death immediately enters: and ſo that which was a Church unto God, while the Life abode there, and they in the Life, becomes a Synagogue of Satan, he entring into the dead form, and being worſhipped there in the dead form. So that it is not any outward gathering or profeſſion that makes a Church under the New-Teſtament, but only the Life and Power. That gathering which is in the Life and Power, is a true Church: That which is not, is a Synagogue of Satan, let them profeſs what they will. For the living God dwells in living Temples only, and the Prince of Death dwells in all the Territories of Death.

Queſt. According to this Rule there are, or have been few true Churches of God in the World, ſince the days of the Apoſtles.

Anſw. The true Church hath been in a Wilderneſs-ſtate ſince the days of the Apoſtles. A ſcattered Seed have her Children been, and ſhe a Widow forſaken, God providing a place place for the inward part of his Building, and giving up the outward part to the formal Spirit, to the possession of the powers of Darkness. Read Rev. 11. 1, 2. The Lord by the withdrawing of his Spirit took down his own Building, gave up the outward Court to the Gentiles, removed the inward Temple, Altar and Worshippers into the Wilderness. And since that time, men have built many Buildings, in the imitation of that which God built (every sort according to their Skill, and Reasonings of their Wisdom about the thing) but they are not the same Building. But the true Building, the true Church is reproached by all these Builders, and not known to be the thing, because hid from their eye.

Quest. When shall this true Church appear again?

Answ. When God, who gave her the Wings of an Eagle to fly into the Wilderness, bringeth her the same Wings again, to fly out. Then shall she come forth cloathed with the Sun again, with the Moon under her Feet, and with her Crown of Stars.

Quest. How may it appear that those present Buildings which are to be found in the World, are not true Churches?

Answ. Because they are built by men, and their strength stands not in the demonstration and power of the Spirit, but in the Wisdom and Power of man; take away that, they soon crumble and molder of themselves, Besides, they are not cloathed with the Sun, have not the Moon under their Feet, nor know not the travel to bring forth the Man-child, which the true Church knows, even in the Wilderness.

Quest. Why do men keep such Buildings, and not rather mourn after the true Building of God, which is built and preserved in the Light and Power of his Spirit?

Answ. Antichrist's time is not yet fully ended, nor the Mysts wherewith he blinds mens eyes scattered, nor the Cup of his Fornications which makes every one drunk and besotted, as to the sight and knowledge of the true Church, which drinks of it, taken from mens Lips.

Quest. How may I know the true Church?

Answ. By being born of God's Spirit, and looking with that eye which he gives to those whom he begets, in that Light of Life which shineth from his Presence: Here his holy Church and true Spouse is discerned and distinguished from all false resemblances and vain pretenders.

Quest. Are there then many resemblances of the true Church, and pretenders to be such, which are not so indeed?

Answ. Yes, There is the Mother of Harlots, Rev. 17. 5. and her many Daughters, all which pretend to be the true Churches of Christ but want that Life in themselves, and that Union in Spirit with him, which alone can make such.

Quest. What makes a true Church?

Answ. That alone which makes a spiritual Body, and which unites that Body to the Head. There must be a true Nature, and the union of that Nature to the Head, or there cannot be a Marriage in Spirit to the Lamb. Now the true Church is Christ's Spouse, Bone of his Bone, and Flesh of his Flesh; as truly of the Seed of Abraham after the Spirit, as the Jews were after the Flesh. And as he that saith he is a Jew, but wanteth the true Circumcision of the Heart and Spirit, doth but lie and is not indeed so. So they that say they are a Church, but want the Nature of the Church, they also lie, and are not a true gathering of Christians out of the World, but a Synagogue of Satan, still abiding and worshipping in the Spirit of the World. (Rev. 2. 9. & c. 3. 9.)

Quest. May not the true Church be known by outward visible Marks, as most persons describe and seek to find and distinguish her by?

Answ. No, not possibly in her Wilderness-state, nor hardly in her Built-state.

Quest. Why not possibly in her Wilderness-state?

Answ. Because there she is stripped of them, and the Harlots or false Churches are cloathed with them. Mark the thing. In the very Apostles days, the false Ministers and false Christians got into the form, and denied the power, 2 Tim. 3. 5. Now after a season God leaves the form to them, (Revel. 11. 2.) gathering his Church out of that appearance into the hidden power. Here is the Wilderness into which the Church fled, the Life, the Power, which before appeared in the form, being withdrawn and seperated from from the Form, and the living Seed gathered into it, and worshipping in it. And who can now find the Church, or learn the Worship? Here the eye of the Seed is tried, and the Wisdom of the Spirit of the true Disciple. And here, ever since, all the World have been jangling about the Form, while the true Witnesses have been mourning after the Power, testifying concerning the Power, and enjoying what was to be given forth of it, in the present way of its dispensation in the Wilderness.

Quest. Why hardly in her Built-state?

Answ. Because even then such variety of resemblances and likenesses of the true Church may be built, as cannot be distinguished from the true it self by any outward Marks. There were in the Apostles days false Apostles, false Ministers, and false Churches; which though they appeared as the Apostles of Christ, as the Ministers of Righteousness, as the Churches of Christ; yet they were not so, but false Prophets, deceitful Workers, and Synagogues of Satan. Now they which intend to deceive, appear most exactly in the Form, and with the outward Marks, if need require: And that which is true and substantial is not so regardful of the outward form, but minds the inward Life, Truth and Substance. He therefore that judges by the Form and outward Marks, cannot but judge that to be the true Spouse which appears most in the Form, and with the outward Marks, and so is very liable to be deceived and err, by judging some of the false Churches to be true, and the true to be false:

Quest. What am I to do when I know the true Church?

Answ. To wait in that which gives to be a Member of it, and gives true Union with it, whether it be in its Wilderness-state, or in its Built-state. For the same Spirit which begets the Child in the true Life, will also lead to the Church, and in that Wisdom which is from above, the true Church will never be missed of, but in the earthly reasonings and guessings of Man's Wisdom, God's Church, (or New-Testament-Building in the Power of his Spirit) is easily missed. And he that misseth of this, and is out of the Pale of it, Is it possible he should meet with the true Salvation? He that hath an Ear to hear, let him hear; and he that hath but so much as the heart of a man, let him consider, for the thing is of great weight, and of deep concernment to the Soul.

Well, have but patience a while, and the true Church (which God's Spirit builds) shall be known, and all the false Churches of mens Building shall be known also. And that which God hath built shall have the Power from God, and the Praise among Men; and all the Babylonish Buildings of man's confused Spirit, and inconsistent Wisdom, shall vanish away like Smoke, and become a stink in all Nostrils. For strong is the Lord God of Heaven and Earth, who is confounding Babylon in all her Gaudy Attire, and Glorious Appearances, and raising up his Sion out of the Dust. Amen. Hallelujah.

Some further Questions and Answers concerning the Seed of Israel.

Quest. Out of what Womb doth the Seed of Israel spring?

Answ. Out of the Nature of Eternal Life, out of the Bosom of Eternal Love, out of the Jerusalem which is above, which is free, and the Mother of all that are born of the Spirit.

Quest. By what Covenant are the Children of Israel brought up?

Answ. By the Covenant of Faith in the Love of the Father, which gives Life and Strength to obey.

Quest. Is there Obedience required in the New-Covenant?

Answ. Yes, the Obedience of Faith, the Subjection of the Nature and Heart of the Child to the Nature and Will of the Father, which is as fully natural in the substance, as it can be represented in any figure or shadow.

Quest. What if there be Disobedience?

Answ.

Answ. The Seed it self cannot disobey: but the Vessel in which it is sown, and to which it is united, may prove weak, frail, brittle, yea sometimes stubborn, the weight and chastisement whereof the Seed also bears, and in patient suffering helps and cleanses the Vessel through the vertue of the Bloud of Jesus, which is felt in the Seed which comes from Jesus. And here is the Bloud of sprinkling known in the Soul, which cleanses the Conscience from dead Works, and washes away the Iniquity thereof.

Quest. Can any fall from this Covenant?

Answ. The Covenant is with the Seed for ever, and with the Seeds Seed also is it firm: but the streamings forth of the Light of the Covenant do not always beget a Seed, but only sometimes set mans Nature on work, drawing forth the Faith, Love, and Obedience thereof. Now this will not hold. All Flesh is Grass, and at one time or other will fade and wither: but there must be a being begotten of the Word, to live and abide for ever.

Quest. How is this begotting?

Answ. In the weakening of Man's Strength day by day, and raising up the Seed, which Seed gives Life and Strength to him that is weakened in the Manhood.

Quest. How is this done?

Answ. First by drawing forth what is in the Man, and then by trying its strength, distressing the Man with Exercises beyond him. Thus the working man is brought down by the requirings of the Law, they being too hard for him, and the believing Seed is raised up, who in the vertue of the living Faith (whereof he receiveth supplies from the Breath of Eternal Life) fulfils the Righteousness of the Law in the Man, and also communicates a Righteousness of an higher Nature unto him.

Quest. Why doth God take this course with man?

Answ. It is proper and natural. How can an higher Principle be raised in Man, but by the Death of the former? And how can the former die but by such Exercises, Trials and Distresses as are proper to wear out the strength of its nature, and bring it into the nothingness, where that which is, springs up, when it hath brought down that which appeared, but was not?

Oh who can understand God's Works in the World? Who can read the Mystery of Life and Death in Man? O what a Worm is Man before his God? What is his Nature? In what state is he able to walk with his God? God can keep Covenant with man in any kind of Dispensation: but man still fails; his heart deceives him, and he is not able to attain unto, or maintain any considerable proportion of happiness to his Soul by his Covenant?

Quest. What is man's Covenant?

Answ. That which his Nature desires of God to make him happy. That Light, that Counsel, that Strength, that Presence which his Nature thinks sufficient, will not carry him through. Nay, let God shew Grace and Mercy, and add helps unto him in the Riches of his Love, yet this will not do. How doth Man fall in every Dispensation, where there is any stress laid on this Covenant, though God is able to be a Father and an Husband therein!

Quest. What is God's Covenant?

Answ. That which his Nature sees needful to make man happy in him, and to keep man in the enjoyment of his happiness. This, so far as it is dispensed, carries through; and when it is dispensed perfectly, will bring forth the perfect Redemption and Happiness of the Creature.

Now then that Soul that would travel towards Life Eternal;

First, Wait to feel a Principle of Life awakened, raised up, sown in thy Earth by the living God.

2ly. Wait to receive all the Light of Life in every kind, that the Father of Lights shall please to cause to shine in thy heart, from this Principle.

3ly. Be content to be tried and distressed, and have thy strength broken day by day, and thy Wisdom confounded, that thou maist sink into and pass away in the weakness and foolishness which the Lord will bring upon thee before the Wisdom and Strength of his Life appear in thee.

4ly. Keep

4ly. Keep thine eye and heart on the Grace that first visited thee, that there thy footing may be, and thy hopes fastened. O receive the Light still from the hand of Grace, and look up thither for Strength to obey the Light, that the earthly Man get not a Life in the Obedience, and thou forget the Grace, and thy need of Christ the anointed of the Lord; and so thou live on what thou hast received from God, and not Christ live in thee, and look upon thy working Obedience as the Righteousness, and feel not the Righteousness of Christ, which is the free justification of his Life and Power, washing away the Guilt of the Ungodly.

Ah! narrow is the Path that leads unto Life, none can enter in at it, but the Seed, and the Seeds Seed, even that which dies in the creatureship, in the principle which Adam received from the Lord, and springs up in the Nature and Being of this Seed.

Read this, O Travellers towards the Holy Land, with the eye which God creates, that ye may run certainly in his begettings, in his Creatings, in his leadings towards his Land of eternal Rest, even in the certain Law and Power of his endless Life, and not in the uncertain reasonings, imaginings and guessings at things by the humane understanding.

To all such as complain that they want Power, not applying themselves to yield Subjection to what of God is made manifest in them, upon a pretence of waiting for Power so to do.

THE Lord God of Eternal Power, who made Man in his own Image, he stretcheth forth his Arm to save and redeem his lost Creature: It is his Power alone that effecteth the Work of Redemption: He quickeneth man, who is dead in Trespasses and Sins: He keepeth alive, and leadeth on the quickened Soul in the Path of Life: He conquereth, scattereth and subdueth all the Enemies round about the Soul, even all the Lusts, Corruptions and Temptations, which lead unto, and entangle in Perdition.

Yet the Lord God requireth somewhat of the man whom he saveth, without which being found in man, and returned to him from man, he saveth him not.

Quest. What doth he require of Man?

Answ. He requireth of Man, Repentance, Faith and Obedience. That he should turn at his Call, from the Darkness to the Light; that he should trust in, and cleave to the Light, but believe the Spirit of Darkness no more; and lastly, that he should obey the Light, follow the Light, walk in the Foot-steps of the Living towards the Land of Light; work the Works of God in the Light.

Quest. How can Man do this?

Answ. Of himself he cannot: But being touched, being quickened by the Eternal Power, being turned by a secret vertue and stirring of Life in his heart, then he can turn towards that which turneth him. Being drawn by the Life, by the Power; he can follow after the Life, and after the Power. Finding the sweetness of the living Vine, and his Soul made alive by the Sap of the Vine, his heart can now cleave to, and abide in the Vine, and bring forth the Fruit of the living Faith and Obedience to the Husband-man, who daily dresseth the Heart, that waiteth in the living Principle for further Life from the Fountain, that it may bring forth the Fruits of Life more and more.

Now mark: Is it possible for any man to come to the Eternal Rest, that travels not in the Path? Or is there any Path, but the Repentance, Faith and Obedience of the nite living Spirit, even of the Child begotten by the Eternal Power, who is taught by its Father to abide and walk in the Life and in the Power?

God putteth forth his hand all the day long, to fetch home lost man. He hath given him a Talent, a living Talent, which is able to work man into Life, and to bring forth the Fruits of Life in Man. Man over-looks the Talent, joyns not his heart to it, brings not forth the Fruits of Life to the Giver, but cries he wants power, and what is he? what can he do? can he cleanse his own heart? can he kill his Corruptions? can he quicken himself? &c.

Now mark again. There are several dispensations of God to Mankind, in all which man (of himself) falls short of the Life, of the Power, of the Glory, and comes under Condemnation. God lays the blame on man, for not hearkening, for not believing, for not walking with him. Man lays the blame on God, and says he wants Power. Look on him who is not obedient to the Light, which he cannot but confess to shine in his heart, and often to reprove him; ask him why he doth not obey it? Is not this his Plea, that he wants Power? Now let men consider, will this stand before the Throne of God? This is the condemnation, that men do not believe the Light of Life, do not obey the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ, do not trust and follow the Light which would lead them to Life, but trust and follow the Darkness, which leads into Death, and into everlasting Condemnation. Their Plea is, they want Power so to do. Is this true?

I confess the Power doth not so flow forth to man, as man expects it: but the Power of Life works man out of Death in a Mystery, and begins in him as weakness. There is all the Strength, all the Power of the Enemy, against the Work of God in the heart. There is but a little thing (like a Grain of Mustard-seed) a weak thing, a foolish thing, even that which is not (to man's eye) to overcome all this; and yet in this is the Power. And here is the great deceit of man; He looks for a great manifest Power in or upon him to begin with, and doth not see how the Power is in the little weak stirrings of Life in the heart, in the rising up of somewhat against the mighty strength of corruption in him; which he returning towards, cleaving to, and waiting upon the Lord in, the strength of the Lord will be made manifest in its season, and he will be drawn nearer and nearer to the Lord, and his Enemies be overcome and fall he knows not how. But he that waits for such a mighty appearance of power at first, looking so to begin, and after that manner to be preserved and carried on, can never in this capacity so much as walk in the Path Eternal; nor is not in the way of receiving the Power, which springs up as weakness, and leads on and overcomes Enemies in a mysterious way of working, and not in such a manifest and direct way of conquest, as man's Wisdom expects.

The Seed of the Kingdom is sown man knows not how, even by a sound of the eternal Spirit, which he is not a fit Judge of: and it grows up he knows not how: and the power appears and works in it, in a way that he is not aware of. He looks for the Kingdom, the Power and the Life, in a way of his observation, answerable to the thoughts and expectations of his heart. But thus it never comes, but in the way of its own eternal Motion, it springs in the hearts of many, and they over-look the thing, and turn from it daily, not knowing its proper way of appearance, but expecting it some other way. And thus the Enemy holds them in the Bands of Death, and they are Captives in the strange Land, refusing the Prince of Life, in his daily offers of Life, because they look not for him thus, but after another way and manner. And till this eye of observation be put out in them, they can never clearly see the appearance of the Saviour to them, nor feel the efficacy of his saving of them from that, from which none but he can deliver.

Now for the sakes of such as are single-hearted, and yet with-held from the enjoyment of the Life of God and of his pure Power, through a way of wrong expecting it, I shall say a little concerning the operation of the power in quickening and leading on the quickened Soul, as also concerning the way of its springing up in the heart, and the necessity of this way. I my self was long with-held from Obedience to the Light Eternal, in its low appearance of discovering and convincing of sin, through this very deceit, believing that my condition required the manifest appearance of a very great Power to help me: And so when Sin overcame me, I did only mourn over it, crying after and waiting for Power, but was kept from joyning with and cleaving to that, wherein the Power springs up and manifests it self according to its own pleasure, quite contrary to the way of man's expectation.

The Operations of the Power are divers and gradual, according to the condition and necessity of the Soul whom it visits, and reacheth forth its hand unto.

1. There is a discovery of the darkness, and of the erring of the heart from God. This is Power; for this should never be in any heart, could all the Powers of darkness there withstand it.

2. There is a rising of the heart against the Evil, with a desire of deliverance from it, and of the springing up of the good in such Power as might conquer it. This is a further appearance of Power than the former, and a good beginning towards believing or joyning with the redeeming Arm, which all the Powers of darkness (with all manner of subtilty) endeavour to divert the heart from.

3. There is an upright frame of Spirit begotten, and a truth of heart formed towards the Lord, from which desires, and cries and groans after his life and presence, and for deliverance from the Enemy, and from under the power of his deceit, spring more and more.

4. There is a fear begotten in the heart of being deceived by the Enemy, of being drawn from the feeling of, and panting after the Life and Power of God.

5. There is an Hope and Trust in the Lord's Goodness and Mercy, with a daily waiting for his appearance, for the manifestation of his Spirit and pure Presence, and for the springings up of his fresh Life and precious Vertue.

6. There are overturnings of the Enemy, battering down his strong Holds, breakings of many Snares, beating back of many furious Assaults, and causing the Plant of Life to grow up and triumph over all the Powers of Darkness.

7. There are secret stayings and upholdings of the heart in the hour of darkness, when God sees necessary to let forth the Power thereof upon the Soul, and to Eclipse his own Power. When the Enemy buffets, tempts, prevails and gets ground upon the Soul, is drawing it back under the vail, even into the Pit, and nothing appears near to stop it or rescue the Soul from Death, and from the power of the Grave, but the sting thereof enters and deeply wounds the Soul; yet even then the power is near, secretly upholding, preserving and watching over the Soul, and waiting for the proper season of Deliverance. Nevertheless I am continually with thee, thou hast holden me by my right hand, said David, when his feet had almost slipped into the grievous Snare of desperate unbelief, and murmuring, against God's dealings with him and the rest of his People.

Many more Operations of the Power might be mentioned, even of its tabernacling and glorious appearing in some Vessels in various ways, both delighting it self in the heart, and also filling the heart with delight and joy in the pure Life: but these things are better enjoyed and sweetly felt, in the silence of the fleshly part, then spoken of to that Ear, which is not fit to hear the sound thereof.

2dly. The way of the Powers springing up in the heart; which is,

1. In its turning from the Darkness, in the Faith and in the pure Obedience, which flows from the Faith. For as the Soul turns from the power of Darkness and Death towards the Power of the Eternal Spirit of Light: so the Power meets it, embraces it, appears to it, and manifests it self in it, proportionable to its present Capacity and Condition. And as the Soul, being touched with the living Vertue, gives it self up to believe, and to trust the power which draws: so the Power manifests it self in the heart, according to the proportion of the Faith which the Eternal Vertue hath begotten there. And as the Soul in the Faith gives it self up to obey, so the Power appears and works the Obedience. For we can do nothing of our selves: but being called, being drawn, being required to do that which is far beyond our Strength, and giving up thereto, the Life springs, the Power appears, which does the Work. This the Philippians had experience of, to whom the Apostle gave that Exhortation; Work out your own Salvation with fear and trembling: for it is God which worketh in you, both to will and to do of his good pleasure. It is the unbeliever hangs back, and cries where shall shall I have Power? But the Faith follows the moving and drawing of the Spirit, and the Power never fails the Faith. But that which cries, how shall I get out of Egypt? Which way shall I ever be able to pass through this intricate Wilderness? How shall I overcome those mighty Enemies, which already have the Possession of the Land I should Inherit, and are strongly fenced in it, and mighty in strength to keep their hold thereof? This is not the right Seed, this is not the true Israel, for whom the everlasting Inheritance of the Life, and of the pure Power is prepared.

2. Under the Cross, under the Yoak to the corrupt (yea and to the very natural) the Power springs: The false Birth would have the Power spring in a way pleasing to it self, at the time its Wisdom sees necessary, and in the way its Will would have it: but the Power springs up according to its own Wisdom, at its own time, and after its own way. When the man would have it, then it flies from him, and when it is not expected, nor perhaps desired, (at least in that way wherein it chuses to appear) then it springs up and puts forth it self. Most men, that have felt any thing of God, cannot but desire his Life and Power: But most flie the Cross, wherein it hath chosen to appear; and so they can never meet with, but are still complaining for the want of it. In the Power is the ease, the rest of the Gospel. Take my Yoak upon you, and learn of me, saith Christ, and ye shall find the Rest which flows from the Power. This made Paul rejoyce in the Cross of Christ, whereby the fleshly Lusts were brought down in him; and the Life and Eternal Power sprang in the Seed of the Kingdom: For under the Cross the Seed grows up and flourishes, and the Flesh withers and dies. And as the Power of Flesh and Death wasts, so the Power of Spirit and Life increases.

3. The power springs under the fear, and in the uprightness and love which God hath begotten. I put these together, for there is a close unity between them. The fear is the dwelling of the upright heart, and the love is within the fear. He that distrusts himself, feels his own nothingness, finds no Power to do any thing God requireth and yet also fears to stay behind the Light of God's Spirit, in any thing it requires, and so finds a putting on forwards in the Faith: in him the Power delights to appear. He that would feel strength before-hand, and act in the sence of that strength, from him the Power withdraws: But he that is weak, and hath no strength, but still as it freely drops into him from moment to moment, this is the Vessel the Power chuseth to manifest it self to, and to be continually appearing in. This is the New-Covenant I will put my Fear in their hearts, and where the fear of the New-Covenant is found, so much Life, Power, and eternal Vertue, as is necessary for the present state of that heart, cannot be far off. So in the upright-hearted, in the heart that is true to God, the power of Deceit cannot dwell, but the Power of Truth delights to fill it, in a way suitable to the state of the Spirit, and so as may be seen by the eye of the Spirit, and felt by the spiritual sence. And in the Love is the constraining Power, which constrains from the evil Path, from the Path of Unbelief and Disobedience, into the Path of Life.

4dly. The necessity of this way of the springing up of the Power, and not in such a manifest way as man's heart desires, and as man's eye expects.

It is necessary in several respects. In respect of God, in reference to the Creature, and in reference to the Soul's Enemies.

1. In respect of God. It is necessary that his Power and Life should spring up in the Creature in its own way, according to the Counsel of his own Wisdom, suitable to his own Nature, and not in the way which the Creature chalks out and expects it in. God must be like himself, and walk in his own Path in every thing he does. He is a God that hideth himself in the Mystery of his Working, throughout the whole track of man's Redemption: and man must be wrought out of himself, out of his own thoughts, expectations, gathered apprehensions concerning the Kingdom and way to Life, and led in a Path he doth not know, (nor ever can know any longer than he is in it,) and in ways he hath not been acquainted with. The way of Life is still new, every moment fresh and living; and the earthly part of those, who may have in some measure felt the Power of Regeneration, cannot know it, nor walk in it. Consider this, O ye that fence your selves against the present appearance of the Spirit, and against the Convictions, Demonstrations and Drawings of its Eternal Light and Power, by somewhat which ye have formerly felt and known.

2. In reference to the Creature, the Power of God must needs appear thus hiddenly and in such a mysterious way.

1. That the Creature might go through all those exercises of Spirit, which are necessary to fit it for its Inheritance in the Holy Land. There are Straits, Wants, Tryals, Temptations, inward Weaknesses, Buffettings from the Enemy, withdrawings of the Life, &c. God seeth necessary to exercise the Spirits of his with, that he might fit them for himself, and for a safe enjoyment of his life in fulness; which could not be, if there were such a manifest power to begin with, and continually at hand to perform all in and for the Soul, as many men wait for and think necessary to have.

2 That the fleshly part might be throughly worn out and destroyed. When the Power appears and works mightily in Soul, there is somewhat apt to get up, to exalt himself by the Power, and to abuse the Power; and if the Power were not withdrawn, and this tormented and famished in the absence of the Power, and in the withdrawing of the sweet appearance of Life, a wrong thing would be stealing into the Inheritance, and the Soul would never be throughly purified, nor come to a pure enjoyment of the Power. Therefore doth the Lord appear in this mysterious way, That the Promise might be sure to the Seed; that the Seed which is the right Heir of the Power, might come alone to inherit the Power, and the false Birth not touch the least enjoyment of it, but feel the bitter strokes of Death and Destruction from it. What had become of Paul, if he had had Power to resist the buffettings of the Enemy, as he desired? Would not his fleshly part have remained in the exaltation, and not have been brought down? (2 Cor. 12. 7.)

3. In reference to the Enemy. The Enemy could never be wholly conquered, his strong Holds in the heart broken down, and the Redemption from under his hand perfected, were it not for this mysterious way of the appearing and working of the Power, even out of the sight of man's eye, and contrary to his will and expectation. For had man such a power as he desires, still present with him; had he Faith in his power, or Obedience in his power, or could he take up the Cross in his Power, or have Strength to fight against the Enemy as he desires and expects, the Enemy would still find entrance into him, and keep his hold of him. But God, who knoweth the state of the Creature, with the strength and passages of the Enemy into man, by working with his mighty power in man according to his own will, and in the way of his own Wisdom (contrary to what man can desire or expect, but as he is taken into, and comprehended in the eternal Will) carries on his Work sweetly, and safely, and perfects the Salvations of those who will not, who run not, who desire not to be any thing, but wait to feel and know his Power, and to become subject to it, and be under, even in the lowest way of its manifestation and appearance.

Object. This may be true in the ordinary way of Redemption of Souls; but, there are deep captivities (even the captivity of Babylon inwardly spiritually) which surely will need a very great appearance of the Power of God to deliver out of: and what can that Soul do, but wait there under the Captivity, until that mighty Power arise?

Answ. It is true; The Power must needs be very great, and the appearance of it wonderful, which delivers out of such Captivity, but yet the beginnings of it may be small, and out of the sight of that eye, which looks and waits for so great an appearance. Hast thou not light enough already to begin thy travel out of Babylon? Hast thou begun thy travel? Dost thou walk in the Light which shineth upon thee in that dark Land, to gather and lead thee out of it? Or wilt thou not begin to come out, till the very glory and brightness of Sion shine upon thee? If there be but Light and Power enough to lead thee one step out of the Land of darkness and confusion of Spirit, towards Obedience to the lowest or meanest Truth, that is sufficient for thee at present: and as thou art found faithful here, more will spring in thee; but if thou stop here (or at any time after thou hast begun and made some progress, because of any thing which falleth out contrary to thy expectation) then that which should lead thee on, and strengthen thee, stops also; and thou meetest not with that which is found and enjoyed by others in the way, because thou passest not on in it, but baulkest thy proper Path, judging somewhat more necessary towards thy beginning or progress, than the Lord judgeth, or yet seeth fit to impart to thee.

Thus the Enemy betrays thee, and holds thee in his Chains, which might be loosed and and cast off by little and little, didst thou singly give up to the little appearance of that light and power which is able to unbind them, and not expect more at first (or afterwards) then the Lord hath alotted for thy present condition. And let me tell thee this from certain knowledge and experience; That thou, who hast been high, and hast tasted much of God, but hast abused it, and fed the wrong part with it, both in thy self and others: Thou must be brought lower than the rest, and for a long season be kept lower, that the pure Seed (which hath deeply been buried in thee) may overgrow and sink all thy knowledge, experiences and observations concerning the Eternal Life, and its way of appearance, which formerly thou hadst some true taste of, but now holdst out of the Life.

Thou must come down, thou must become nothing by degrees, thou must lie at the door of the reprovings of that Light, which thou thinkest thou hast gone far beyond, and be glad of a little help now and then in the lowliness and humility of thy heart, which must not chuse what appearance and manifestation it will have from God, before it will begin to follow him, but be glad of never so little, that the infinite Wisdom sees good to give forth by the hand of his Mercy.

Who ever have been high, and are still waiting and expecting in the heights of their own Wisdom and Observations concerning the Kingdom, let them take heed of despising the day of small things, and know that their proper beginning (yea the very Path of Eternal Life it self) lies in the lowness, in the humility, even into that nothingness which bows before the least light of the day, and with gladness of heart enters into, and walks in it. For this I certainly know, the wise, the observing Eye, the vast comprehending heart, which waits for such an extraordinary Power, judging it cannot begin following the Light, which daily appears to check and reprove, without some great manifest appearance of Power; This cannot see the low little Path of Life, which is proper for it to walk in, and to the end whereof it must travel, if ever it come to sit down in the Kingdom, or to inherit the Power of the endless Life: Precious is the dispensation of this Age, great is the power and glory which is arising: but the wise and knowing of this Age, are shut out of it, as they have been out of the life and truth of the dispensations of God in all Ages. Happy is he who is not above that, wherewith God visiteth his Soul to redeem it.

A POSTSCRIPT.

THat persons, who have not travelled into the Land of life, want Power, that is out of doubt. The state of Israel in its travels, is a state of weaknesses and wants. How can they in the Wilderness but want that, which is to be possessed in the Holy Land? But dost thou want power to begin the travel with? Dost thou want what proportion of power the Lord sees necessary for thee in thy present Estate? Is there nothing at all discovered to thee which is contrary to God, either in thy Heart, or in thy Conversation, or in thy Worship, which thou dost not so much as strive to give up to the Lord in, waiting upon him for his power and strength to appear in helping thee. The light appears to discover and lead out of the Darkness: Now in giving up to the light, and not doubting but that, which calls and draws out will give strength; and enable to come out, the Power is met with unawares. But that which stands gazing and looking out after a power, which it expects to meet with, before it will so much as begin to follow the light; that cannot but abide in the Captivity, and miss of that power which redeemeth from it. Therefore,

1. Wait to feel the light of life discovering and drawing from the evil: and let it chuse what it shall please first to discover and draw from. And though it be little, and very inconsiderable in thine eyes, yet dispute not, but where the light first begins to lead, do thou there begin to follow.

Then in this waiting and subjecting to the manifestations of the light, out of the self-will, self-wisdom, self-knowledge, self-judgment, in the lowliness and abasedness of the the mind and spirit before the Lord, the begettings of life in the light are felt, and the renewing into his pure Image.

Afterwards that which is begotten, (and begun to be renewed in the Divine Image) is by degrees taught more distinctly to know, discern and walk in the path of Life.

And after this, to that which is thus begotten, and taught the living Faith and Obedience (which is wrought by the mighty power of God, though running in a low, secret, hidden way, from the eye of the Creature) the great Power is revealed, and he grows strong in the Power for God, and against the Enemies of his Soul: and by this strength and feeling of God's presence, they fall daily and continually before him, and then his Victory over them goes on with joy.

But he that stops at first may grow wise and conceited, concerning the things of the Kingdom after the Flesh, and may hope for great things at last; but by the deceit of the subtilty, is kept out of the living Path, wherein they are to be waited for, reaped and enjoyed.

Now for the encouragement of such as are willing to travel on in the weakness, yielding up their members to the present manifestation of the light, and waiting for the further appearance of the Power: It is on my heart to add a Letter of a dear Friend and Brother of mine in the Truth, who hath been a deep Traveller and Fellow-sufferer with me formerly, before this help came forth from the Throne of God, since the day-spring from on high hath vouchsafed to visit us, and to guide our Feet in the way of everlasting Peace.

The Letter is as followeth.

Dear Friend,

MY dear and tender love salutes thee, in that love from whence I had my being, and from whence sprang all my Father's Children, who are born from above, Heirs of an everlasting Inheritance. Oh! how sweet and pleasant are the Pastures which my Father causeth all his Sheep to feed in; there is variety of plenty in his Pastures, Milk for Babes, and strong Meat for them of riper Age, and Wine to refresh those that are ready to faint, even the Wine of the Kingdom, that makes glad the heart, when it is ready to faint, by reason of the infirmities; Sure I am, none can be so weary but he takes care of them, nor none so nigh fainting but he puts his Arm under their Head, nor none can be so beset with Enemies on every side, but he will arise and scatter; nor none so heavy laden and big with young but he takes notice of them, and gently leads them, and will not leave them behind, unto the merciless Wolf because they are his own, and his life is the price of their Redemption, and his blood of their Ransome, and if they be so young that they cannot go, he carries them in his Arms, and when they can feel nothing stirring after him, his Bowels yearn after them; so tender is this good Shepherd after all his Flock, I can tell, for I was as one that once went astray and wandered upon the barren Mountains, and when I had wearied my self with wandering, I went into the Wilderness, and there I was torn with Bryars, and pricked as with Thorns, sometimes thinking this was the way, and sometimes concluding that was the way, and by and by concluding all was out of the way, and then bitter mourning came upon me, and weeping for want of the Interpreter; for when I sought to know what the matter, and where I was, it was too hard for me; then I thought I would venture on some way where it was most likely to find a lost God, and I would pray with them that prayed, and fast with them that fasted, and mourn with them that mourned, if by any means I might come to rest, but found it not, until I came to see the Candle lighted in my own house, and my heart swept from those thoughts and imaginations, and willings, and runnings, and so die unto them all, not heeding of them, but watching against them, lest I should let my mind go a whoring after them; and here I dwelt for a time as in a desolate Land uninhabited, where I sate alone as a Sparrow upon the House-top, and was hunted and down like a Partridge upon the Mountains, and could rest no where, but some Lust or Thought or other followed me at the heels, and disquieted me night and day, until I came to know him in whom was rest, and no occasion of stumbling, in whom the Devil hath no part, and he became unto me as a hiding-place from the Storms, and from the Tempests; then came my eyes to see my Saviour, and my sorrow to flie away, and he became made unto me all in all, my Wisdom, my Righteousness, and my Sanctification, in whom I was, and am compleat, to the praise of the riches of his Grace and Goodness that endures for ever Therefore be not discouraged, O thou tossed as with Tempests, nor dismayed in thy self; because thou seest such mighty Hosts of Enemies rising up against thee, and besetting thee on every side, for none was so beset and tried, and tempted, as the true Seed was, who was a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief, but be thou still in thy mind, and let the Billows pass over, and Wave upon Wave, and fret not thy self because of them, neither be cast down, as if it should never be otherwise with thee; Sorrow comes at night, but joy in the morning, and the days of thy mourning shall be over, and the accuser will God cast out for ever; for therefore was I afflicted, and not comforted, and tempted, and tried, for this end, that I might know how to speak a word in due season, unto those who are tempted and afflicted as I once was: as it was said unto me in that day when sorrow lay heavy upon me, therefore be not disconsolated, neither give heed unto the reasonings and disputings of thy own heart: nor the fears that rise therefrom, but be strong in the Faith, believing in the Light which lets thee see them, and his Grace thou wilt know to be sufficient for thee, and his strength to be made perfect in thy weakness, and so wilt thou rather glory in thy infirmities, that his power may rest upon thee, then in thy earnest desires to be rid of them, for by these things thou wilt come to live in the Life of God, and joy in God, and glory in Tribulation, when thou hast learned in all conditions to be contented, and through Tryals, and deep Exercises, is the way to learn this Lesson. These things in dear love to thee I have written, being somewhat sensible of thy condition, and the many Snares thou art daily lyable unto; therefore watch that thou fall not into temptation, and my God and Father keep thee in the Arms of eternal Love, over all, unto the end, unto his Praise: Amen.

John Crooke.

Some QUERIES to the strict and zealous Professors of this Age, (such as stick in the Letter, but are strangers to the Life and Power) to provoke them to jealousie, lest the Heathen and open Sinners out strip them, and enter into the Kingdom of the pure everlasting Light before them.

Query I.

WHether God, since the Fall of Man from the purity and glory of his state, doth truly and really desire the Salvation of all Mankind; and so would have them come to the knowledge of the Truth, that they might believe it, receive it, walk in it, and so obtain Salvation thereby? or whether he would have only some few of them to receive it and be saved, and the rest to perish?

Query II. If God would all men to be saved, and to come to the knowledge of the Truth, which is the means of Salvation: Then, whether there is sufficient done by God to convey the knowledge of his Truth to all men, so as they may come to the knowledge thereof and be saved? Or whether there is such a defect on God's part, that some men never had sufficient means to come ſo far to the knowledge of his Truth, as that they might come into that way of Salvation thereby?

Query III. Though God doth pleaſe to add ſuper-abundant means, in the Riches of his Grace, towards the ſame more than others; as to the Jews under the Law, and to the Diſciples of Chriſt under the Goſpel; yet whether there is not ſo much Light of the Spirit communicated to all, as if followed, might lead them out of the Darkneſs, and from under the Power of it?

Query IV. Whether God be not ſo near to every man, as that poſſibly he may ſeek after him and find him? and if he do not find him, and his heart cleave to him: Whether it can poſſibly be, but vertue ſhould iſſue forth from God, to draw him out of the alienation from him, and out of the power of Sin, Death and Hell?

Query V. Whether if a man feel God, and cleave to God, and begin to diſcern the ſtrivings of Light from him, and follow the Lord therein; Whether God will not accept this man therein? and whether his divine Light let into him (being believed in and obeyed) will not purifie him from the darkneſs, unbelief and diſobedience? And whether God will not impute to this man what Chriſt performed on man's behalf in the Fleſh, he being in unity with, and in ſubjection to the Light and Power whereby it was wrought (wherein is the fellowſhip with the Blood, and wherein alone it waſheth from the ſin) though as to the outward knowledge of what was outwardly done, the man may poſſibly be ignorant? And ſeeing it is not abſolutely neceſſary towards the involving in the guilt of Adam's Sin, the outward knowing what Adam did; but the proceeding from, and being found in the ſame Spirit and Nature doth ſufficiently convey it; So whether being gathered into, and found in Chriſts Spirit, even in Faith, Obedience, and Subjection to the Light thereof in the heart; whether this is not alſo ſufficient to convey the Righteouſneſs of Chriſt? and whether God will fail to impute it to that man?

Query VI. Whether true Religion, ſpiritual Worſhip, and the Salvation of the Soul, do not depend upon the Spirit of the Lord, who is near to every heart with his Eternal Light, which he can eaſily convey to any heart, whoſe ear is opened, to hearken to his breathings and drawings? So that it is eaſie to the Lord to ſave any of the Sons of men, even in the darkeſt and remoteſt corners of the Earth; and he can caſt off thoſe who ſeem higheſt in zeal, and moſt flouriſhing under any outward means of Salvation.

Oh wonderfully infinite is the Lord! who ſhall bound his Spirit? Happy is he that feareth before him, and in his fear learneth to depart from Iniquity, and walk in the good Path that his Spirit teacheth. He is near to God, and ſhall taſt of the good things, and ſhall not be rejected for want of outward knowledge; but what ever was done for loſt man, he that is found in the Light of Life (and in the obedience to the Spirit of Life) ſhall reap the benefit of. But he that boaſts in his knowledge of theſe things, and of his Faith in Chriſt Jeſus, yet not being found in the true, living, eternal Light of the Spirit (but an Enemy to it, and ignorant of it) the Lord will rend his confidence from him, in a day that he is not aware of.

Glorious was the diſpenſation of the Law, and great was the advantage to the Jews thereby above the Gentiles. Yet they miſſing the Spirit and Life of it, (and growing wiſe in their own apprehenſions, and interpretations about it) fell beneath the Gentiles, becoming greater ſtrangers to the Power and Wiſdom of God, and harder to be reached and brought in under the ſubjection of the Goſpel. More glorious was the diſpenſation of the Goſpel to the Chriſtians, and much greater was their advantage, than that of the Jews. But an Apoſtacy coming, and they loſing the true Power and Spirit, and growing wiſe by a literal knowledge of ſome of the things of God in the earthly part, and forming interpretations of Scriptures, and entring into practices in that Wiſdom; they are now become at as great a diſtance from this powerful viſitation of God by his Spirit (which raiſeth the Seed, and ſpringeth up freſhly in the hearts of thoſe, whom the Lord our God doth call out of their Fenced Cities, and allure into the Wilderneſs) as the Jews were at from that appearance before the Apoſtacy, and in as great danger are the Children of the Kingdom to be caſt out now, as then. Oh that my God would pleaſe to open the ear of ſome tender and upright-hearted among them to hear this Teſtimony. that they might no longer ſtumble at that, which alone is able to lead them to God, and to make them happy in God.

Is

Is there any uniting with God, or enjoying of God, but by his Spirit? Is there any receiving of God's Spirit, but within the heart? Doth he not appear there by his Light, and in his Power? What if God please to give forth a measure of his eternal Light in the heart of his Chosen, to open that to them which they could never see before, and to bring them into a nearer unity with him than ever they knew before? may he not do it? Nay, is not such a thing needful to help out of the deep and intricate Apostacy (wherein have been so many twistings and twinings of the subtle Serpent, about every step or appearance of Reformation) and to gather the wandring Sheep, who were scattered up and down, and sorely distressed for want of the Tongue of the Learned, to speak a word in season to their States and Conditions? Have not every sort bent the Scriptures, in the Reasonings of their own minds, and made them speak according to their own hearts Lusts? and is not every one wise in his own eyes, and strong in his own Tower and fenced City? Surely there was great need of an appearance of the Lord to shut out the Wisdom of Man, and to help the Poor, the Needy, the Fatherless, the weak panting Babes. And blessed be the Lord God, who hath appeared; and blessed are those who have seen his Light, and bowed at the Feet of his living appearance, and felt the Vertue of his saving Arm, scattering their Lusts and Corruptions, yea, also raising up and bringing forth his pure Seed in the fresh Power, Dominion and Authority of his perfect Life, which reigneth in the hearts which the Lord hath regenerated and sanctified for evermore.

O my Friends, my Friends; that that eye might be once blinded in you, which hinders your sight of God, and the eye opened which beholds his Glory, and also taketh pleasure in his lowest Appearance. The Babe alone hath the Mysteries of the Kingdom revealed to him (the Wise and Prudent are excluded: the Birth after the Flesh in every one must be famished and destroyed) and he alone can see in the eternal Light, this Dispensation of the everlasting Gospel after the Apostacy which the Lord hideth from those who are wise in the Letter of the former Dispensation of the same Gospel, but cannot read it as it was given forth in the Spirit then, nor as it is now again held forth in the same Spirit and Power. O my Friends, this is the Truth to you (wait on the Lord that ye may understand it from him) Your right Eye must be put out, (which will never cease offending you and causing you to stumble, so long as it is able to see) and all your knowledge which ye hold out of the Life, become as Dross and Dung to you, if ever ye tast and come to enjoy the excellency and glory of this appearance of God in his eternal Spirit, who hath descended from on high into the hearts of his Chosen, to prepare them for his spiritual Temple, that he may dwell in them, and they in him. And he will dwell in them, and they shall dwell in him, to the full delight and satisfaction of their hearts, and to the confusion of all those who remain despising and reproaching this his glorious appearance, and his people in whom he hath appeared. The day is not far off, wherein this will be made manifest, wherein great bitterness and anguish of Spirit will befal those who can only see the Glory afar off, but cannot inherit it, being found in that nature and spirit which is separated from it, and eternally shut out of it.

SOME OBSERVATIONS,

Upon that Portion of Scripture,

ROMANS 14. 20.

For the Service of ſuch in this preſent Age, whoſe Eyes, and Hearts the Lord ſhall pleaſe to open to ſee and conſider the weight of the Truth thereof.

With ſome few weighty words of Advice to ſeveral ſorts of People, according to their different States.

By Iſaac Penington.

Romans 14. 20. For Meat deſtroy not the Work of God.

Obſerv. 1. GOd hath a Work in ſome mens hearts: The mighty God, who made Heaven and Earth, and whoſe eyes run to and fro through both, he by the finger of his pure Power toucheth ſome of the hearts of the Children of men, and in the pure Demonſtration of his living Spirit is found working there. Religion, true Religion is not a matter of opinion (as men, who have not taſted of the Power, are apt to imagine) but a New-Creation and work of God in the heart of the creature, ſowing the Light and Life of his Spirit there, and by it working man out of the darkneſs and Death of Sin (which is the deſtruction and miſery of the Soul) into his Life and Bleſſedneſs.

Obſerv. 2. That this Work of God in man, is lyable to be deſtroyed. God could ſo have made man, as that he could not have fell: he could ſo have comprehended mans ſpirit in the pure Power of his Life, as that man could not have broke out of it. But it pleaſed him to make him under a Law: wherein, waiting upon and watching to the Power of Life, he might be preſerved and remain happy; but departing from it, he ſhould loſe his ſtate and ſink into miſery. God could alſo ſo redeem man, as that no Power ſhould ſtop or interrupt his Work: but it pleaſeth him alſo to hold forth a Law of Redemption; according to which, his Work of Redemption may either go forward or backward. As man is drawn by the Spirit of God, and followeth his leadings out of the corruption, out of the vanity, out of the earthly Nature, out of the wiſdom, reaſonings and ſpirit of this world, ſo the work goeth forward: As man is tempted, hearkneth unto, and is drawn back from the leadings of Gods Spirit by any of theſe; ſo the work goeth backward, and degrees of deſtruction overtake and come upon the Work of God in that heart.

Obſerv. 3. A little thing will deſtroy the Work of God in the heart: A matter of meat, eating but a little meat doubtingly, out of the Faith, (wherein is the preſervation from the deſtruction) this leads into the Sin, where death and deſtruction is ſtill met with. For in the Path of Life, in the Faith, in the Obedience to Gods Spirit, there alone is the preſervation of the Work of God: but in the unbelief, in the diſobedience, in the doubting (though about never ſo ſmall a matter) there is death and deſtruction met with, if the perſon venture upon that, which it doubteth of. Thoſe who have travelled in the path of Life, I know can witneſs this. O how ſmall a thing brings a vail over the Life! What a little giving way to the reaſonings of the earthly ſpirit, about a ſmall matter, drives back the Work of God in the heart, and brings anguiſh and miſery upon the Soul, cauſing the hiding of the Light of God's Countenance, which is the Life and Joy of the renewed Spirit. God is a great King, and all his leadings and Teachings are weighty: and he that rebelleth, or neglecteth in the leaſt thing, muſt bear his burthen, unleſs he feel the Humiliation of his Soul, and the Remiſſion from the Spirit of the Lord, the Grace of God pitying him, and the blood of his Son waſhing him.

Obſerv. 4. No man ſhould do that, which tendeth to deſtroy the Work of God in himſelf, or the Work of God in another. There is no ſuch thing allowable by God for any man to do (whether in Publick Government, or in any kind of Commerce or Converſation amongſt men, or in ones private courſe of walking) which tendeth to deſtroy the Work of God. The intent of Government, either in Church or State, was never to deſtroy the Work of God in any man. Government is of God, both in Church and State; but that way of Government, which deſtroyeth his work in any, is not of him, but contrary to him and againſt him. O that men could conſider, and had the ballance of Truth to weigh things in, that they might bow before the God of Truth, and not ſtrive with their Maker, about his Work in the World.

My Soul hath mourned, I may ſay, almoſt from my Cradle, about the eſtate of this Creation, To behold man fallen from his Glory, departed from his God, living without the ſence of him, and ſowing the Seeds of Eternal Miſery for his poor Soul (which he muſt as certainly reap, as he hath ſown, unleſs he travel the path of Redemption in the powerful leadings and guidance of God's Holy Spirit) This hath ſo broken my Heart (together with the cloſe exerciſes, which have continually attended this poor wearied Spirit) that I have often wondered, how the natural Life could be contained in the natural veſſel.

I am a lover of mankind in general, and have been a deep ſufferer with, and traveller for all the miſerable. None knows the path of my Sorrows, or the extent of my Bowels, but he that made me. It is not natural or kindly to me to upbraid any man with any kind of wickedneſs, or never ſo juſtly deſerved miſery, but my Bowels work concerning him towards the Spring of Eternal Power and Compaſſions, even as I would be pitied and repreſented to the Father of Mercies in the like Condition. Indeed I have been emptied from Veſſel to Veſſel, and toſſed with multitudes of ſtorms and tempeſts, yet the favour of my life remaineth with me to this day, and the Spirit of my God breatheth on my heart, Bleſſed be his Holy Name for ever. And though I walk with one ſort of people, becauſe my heart ſaith (yea the Spirit of the Eternal God hath witneſſed unto me, and ſhewn me in that Light which cannot deceive, and to that eye which cannot be deceived) that they are the people whom he hath choſen, out of all the gatherings (throughout the Earth) from the Apoſtacy, to manifeſt his Power in, and his preſence among: I ſay, though I have been guided and led by the Spirit of the Lord to walk among theſe, yet am I not bounded there, either in the love or in the unity of my heart; But I have unity with the Integrity and Zeal for God which is in others, of what ſort or gathering ſoever, and I have tender Bowels for all, even for thoſe which hate and perſecute that, which is my life, and hath the love of my heart for ever.

O how have I prayed for the loſt World! For all the Souls of man-kind, how hath my Soul bowed in unutterable breathings of Spirit before my God, and could not be ſilenced, until he quieted my ſpirit in the Righteouſneſs and Excellency of his Will, and bid me leave it to him. And as touching this Nation and the ſeveral ſorts in it, even those who seem most cast off and without all sense, yet the preciousness of their Souls have I spread before the Lord my God with tears.

And now, I have somewhat to say, in the love of my heart, and in the shinings of the Light of my God, to several sorts of people, which nearly concerns them, as those whose hearts are weighty and serious (and who are not drunk up in the earthliness of the sensual Nature, or mis-byassed by pre-assumed Principles from the wrong ground) may easily perceive.

First.

To such as never knew what belonged to tenderness of Conscience towards God, but have spent all their days either in licentiousness of spirit, or in a dead formality, To such my Soul saith.

Oh Friends, wait to feel the power of God upon your hearts (which is present with that, which sometimes lets you see the evils thereof) that they may be melted and made tender by him, fit to receive the impressions of his Life. Why should ye go down to the pit in a Dream, and center in the Land of Misery? Ye have immortal Souls in these earthen vessels, which must either be Redeemed to God by the power of his Life, or be shut up from his Glorious Presence in the Chambers of Death. It is a dreadful thing to appear before God after Death, and receive the sentence of Condemnation for the things done in the body. O that the eye of your Souls were awakened, that ye might see the hazard and danger ye are incurring daily, and might know the hope of escape set before mankind, by the appearance of the Grace in you, and learn of the living God to flie thereto for succour, that ye might be sheltered in the evil hour, which hasteneth apace upon all Flesh.

Secondly.

To such as formerly have been tender and sensible, but are now grown hard, and deaf to the voice of God's Spirit in their hearts and Consciences. This is the Language of my Soul to the Love and Life of my God.

Oh that ye could wait to feel the hammer and stroke of God upon that which is hard, that it might be broken by him, and that that which is high and lifted up above his pure fear (where the Law of his Life is learned, and the Souls of his Saints preserved) might be brought down and abased before him. Great is your danger, exceeding difficult is your recovery: yet there is strength in the Arm of the Lord God to strike through your deadness, and to quicken the immortal Principle of his Life in you. Why should ye, who have once tasted of the goodness of God, become more miserable then the rest of the Sons of men? Why have you departed from that, which once gave you a true taste of Life, and of the sweetness of Redemption by it, into that Spirit which is sealed up in the Death, in the midst of its greatest wisdom and surest footing? O return, return to that which leadeth to the living God, that ye may travel (in the exercises of his Spirit) out of the Wisdom and Spirit of this World, unto the Land of the Souls peace and rest.

Thirdly.

To such as are still tender, and dare not but exercise a Conscience towards God, even in these searching and trying times.

Friends, Keep your standing in the Life of God. What God hath begotten in you, let it depend upon him. Let him do what he will with his own in you, and let the creature be subject to that living Principle, which God hath sown and raised in your hearts: Sell not your peace with God for any ease or advantage in this World. Let the tenderness of your Consciences, which is of value with God, be precious also in your eyes. The Times and Seasons are in the Fathers hand, and he seeth good to let this Day of Tryal come upon you. His Grace is able to carry you all through. It will be for his honour, to let all the World see how dear your God is to you, and how able ye are (in the meekness and strength of the Lamb's Spirit) to suffer for his Names sake. Thy will, O God, be done. The cup which our Father gives us, shall we not drink it? The Lord preserve you in uprightness of heart towards him, in meekness of spirit towards those that afflict you, and in true love and good will towards all; that his Light which hath gathered you may shine over all the darkness which opposeth it, and his Life which hath quickened and preserved you, may be famous over all the Territories and Dominions of Death.

Fourthly.

Fourthly.

To such as are hard-hearted, and of a persecuting spirit towards the tender-conscienced.

O that ye knew what ye did. Ye are enemies to the most precious thing, that is to be found among the Sons of men. Ye strike at what God loves, and cherishes, and takes great pains to bring the creature to. Ye strive to keep that down upon which the happiness of mankind depends: yea, ye consult and take much pains to remove that out of the way, which stands between you and the Judgments of God. O that your eyes were opened: for surely then ye could not proceed in this course.

Well; The Lord will open the eyes of many, and mercy towards mankind is issuing from his Throne, and he will smite that through and through, which maketh the Earth miserable and desolate of his Life. But, O that man could hear in the day of his prosperity, that adversity might not come upon him.

Wait to read these things in the Life from which they sprang, and then tell me whether there is not a cause for what I write.

A POSTSCRIPT.

There hath been a great Apostacy (since the dayes of the Apostles) from the living Power, into dead forms of Worship and Devotion, where likenesses of truth have been set up, instead of the Truth it self. Now the Lord is gathering his true seed (even Israel his beloved offspring) out of all dead forms of all kinds, into his living Truth, and into the true Spiritual Worship: and who is he, that shall be able to stop him herein? Let him consider his strength, who girds himself to the Battle against him: for not by might, nor by the Power of man, but by the Spirit of Life in his Called, Faithful, Chosen and Innocent Lambs, will the Lord of Glory carry on his Work in the World.

THREE

Propounded to the King and Parliament,

In the Fear of the Most High, and in the tender love of my Soul to them.

The PREFACE.

The main thing conducible towards mans safety and happiness, is to see things aright: and he that seeth aright, must see with a right eye. There is an eye which cannot see the things of God; there is an heart also which is insensible of his warnings, and so runs into the pit. There is also an eye, to which God giveth the true sight, which foreseeth the evil and seeketh an hiding place; and and an heart which feareth its Maker, and waiteth on him for counſel, diſtruſting its own underſtanding, which it feeleth ſhallow and apt to err. O that man might feel his want of God, and receive a principle of divine life from him, and be fixed and eſtabliſhed therein. If I ſhould pray thus particularly for every one of you, would ye be offended with me? I have written ſomewhat here in the kindlings of my love, and in the Light of Life which ſhineth in my heart; O that the Lord would pleaſe to open a vein of the ſame Life in you, and then would ye read them in the ſame, and (in a ſecret ſence of ſpirit) feel what they are and from whence they come. Now if it ſhould pleaſe the Lord that any of you ſhould feel any touches of heart, and ſecret aſſent of ſoul to the truth of them, O take heed of the fleſhly wiſdom and reaſonings of the earthly mind, which will ſoon riſe up afterwards, to wear out the ſence of any good that God begets in the heart.

The QUERIES.

Quer. 1. WHether ye do certainly and infallibly know, what was the ground or cauſe why the hand of the Lord was ſo heavy upon this Nation, and why he overturned the Government thereof, and brought the Honourable into contempt?

Three things are ſuppoſed or taken for granted in this Query.

Firſt, That it was the hand of the Lord that did this. It is he that hath the anguiſh of ſoul and the diſeaſes of body at his command, and afflicteth both mens bodies and ſouls at his pleaſure. And he alſo afflicteth Nations, with the Powers and Authorities thereof, when it ſeemeth good unto him. Now this is the thing which is mainly to be eyed by particular perſons, and alſo by Nations in whatever befalleth them, to wit, the hand of the Lord in things.

2. That there was a ground and cauſe for which the Lord did it. The Lord is tender-hearted, and loveth his creature, delighting to do it good, and doth not afflict it out of any pleaſure he hath therein, but upon a kind of neceſſity, that he may bring down evil and bring up a good in a Nation. He doth not afflict willingly, nor grieve the children of men. It is no pleaſure to the Lord to torment his creatures: but to deſtroy the ſeeds of corruption and unrighteouſneſs, and to bring up the good Seed which he hath ſown in the hearts of men, this is a pleaſure to him. Now as your afflictions were exceſſive great, and the alterations in this Nation ſtrange; ſo there was a conſideration in the Lord's eye to countervail them, or they had never been.

3. That it is requiſite and neceſſary for you, certainly and infallibly to underſtand the ground why the Lord did this: what his meaning was: what he was offended at and intended to bring down; what he was pleaſed with and intended to give ſcope to ſpring up and grow under this confuſion, which could not under the former ſettlement.

The reaſon, why this is neceſſary for you, is this. Becauſe unleſs ye certainly underſtand this thing, ye may err and miſtake in your preſent courſe, ſetting up the ſame things now, which the heart of the Lord was then againſt, and endeavouring to ſuppreſs the ſame things, which it is the will of the Lord ſhould grow up, and ſo may provoke the ſame hand againſt you again; which truly I think is not good for you to do, nor indeed can I think ſo of you, as that ye willingly would do it. Therefore pray to the Lord for the upright ballance to weigh a thing of ſuch a nature in, and of ſo deep concernment to you: for if ye do run a contrary courſe to the mind of the Lord, and he be provoked againſt you, and ſtretch forth his mighty Arm and overthrow you, it will then be too late for you to conſider of theſe things.

Quer. 2. Whether when the Lord did overturn the former Powers, with the glory and beauty of this Nation, and raiſe up other Powers out of the duſt (as I may ſay) even from among them of low degree: If they had then anſwered what the Lord expected and required of them in their day, whether they ſhould have been continued by him in their dominion or no, no, and whether ye ſhould have had this day of tryal, which it hath pleaſed the Lord now to afford you?

The day of Power and Government which the Lord had given you formerly, was manifeſtly by his Providence come to an end; and whether ever ye ſhould have a day more, was very doubtful. All your Councils and Strength availed nothing, ſave only to make the work the more difficult, if not at length almoſt impoſſible. And now the Lord was buſie in trying ſeveral ſorts of theſe, what they would do for his Name: and truly this I may ſay concerning them all (though I would not reproach any) that they did not anſwer the expectation of the Lord. But this I leave to you to conſider, Whether if they had anſwered the expectation of the Lord, and done what his Soul delighted in, and what in part they promiſed, whether the Lord would have continued them in Authority or no? I propoſe this, that ye may take notice upon what tickliſh terms ye then ſtood, as to your future hopes, and how eaſily your Authority and Greatneſs might have been for ever buried, and that which was lately uppermoſt have continued ſo, if it had ſeemed good unto the Lord; that ſo ye may be ſenſible of what the Lord hath done in relation to you, and pray that ye may walk worthy of it, making uſe of it in the fear of his Name, who hath all ſtill in his hand, and can ſtill do what he pleaſeth in this Nation. Indeed he can yet bring down whom he will, and he can yet ſet up whom he will; and what he will do, ye know not: but in the fear of his dreadful Name, and in holding your ſtanding out of ſelf-confidence (becauſe of your preſent ſtrength) is your ſafety.

Quer. 3. If ye do not certainly know what was the cauſe of the Lord's former diſpleaſure againſt you, and of his ſo ſore afflicting you, but ſhall err in judgment and ſet up the ſame things again, which the Lord then put forth his hand to throw down, and alſo endeavour to cruſh and ſuppreſs that, which the Lord then made way for the growth of, whether this will not endanger your overthrow from the hand of the Lord?

Sure I am the Lord is able to overturn you as eaſily, as he overturned them that were in power before you. What is man to the Lord? what is his fleſh to the Lord's Spirit? What great tree could ſtand before the late vehement-wind (where the Lord gave it power) which was terrible and dreadful, tearing up by the very roots, which might be a figure and warning where the Lord gives eyes to read. After ye have done all ye can, even made Laws as ſtrong as ye can, and put them in the ſtricteſt courſe of execution ye can, one night from the Lord may end the controverſie, and ſhew whether we pleaſe the Lord in obeying him, or ye in making Laws againſt us for our fidelity and obedience to him.

And as the Lord is able to overturn you, ſo if ye miſtake your work, miſ-interpreting the paſſages of his Providence, and erring in heart concerning the ground of his former diſpleaſure; and ſo (through the error of judgment) ſet your ſelves in oppoſition againſt him, replanting the Plants which he will not have grow, and plucking up the Plants of his planting; do ye not in this caſe provoke the Lord, even to put forth the ſtrength which is in him againſt you? We are poor Worms. Alas, if ye had only us to deal with, we ſhould be nothing in your hands! But if his ſtrength ſtand behind us, we ſhall prove a very burdenſome ſtone, and ye will hardly be able to remove us out of the place wherein God hath ſet us, and where he pleaſeth to have us diſpoſed of. And happy were it for you, if inſtead of perſecuting us, ye your ſelves were drawn to wait for the ſame begettings of God (which we have felt) out of the earthly nature into his Life and Nature, and did learn of him to govern in that; then might ye be eſtabliſhed indeed, and be freed from the danger of thoſe ſhakings and overturnings, which God is haſtening upon the Earth.

Now becauſe ye may be apt to think, that I write theſe things for my own ſake, and the ſakes of my Friends and Companions in the Truth of God, that we might eſcape the ſufferings and ſeverity which we are like to undergo from you, and not ſo mainly and chiefly for your ſakes, leſt ye ſhould bring the wrath of God and miſery upon your ſouls and bodies: to prevent this miſtake in you, I ſhall add what followeth. Indeed this is not the intent of my heart: For I have long expected, and do ſtill expect this cup of outward affliction and perſecution from you, and my heart is quieted and ſatisfied therein, knowing that the Lord will bring glory to his Name and good to us out of it: But I am ſure it is not good for you to afflict us for that which the Lord requireth of us, and wherein he accepteth us; and ye will find it the bittereſt work that ever ye went about about, and in the end will wish that the Lord had rather never given you this day of prosperity, than that he should suffer you thus to make use of it. Now that ye may the more clearly see the temper of my spirit, and how my heart stands in this thing, I shall a little open unto you my faith and hope about it, in these ensuing particulars.

First, I am assured in my heart and soul, that this despised people (called Quakers) is of the Lord's begetting in his own Life and Nature. Indeed had I not seen the power of God in them, and received from the Lord an unquestionable Testimony concerning them, I had never looked towards them: for they were otherwise very despisable in my eyes. And this I cannot but testifie concerning them, that I have found the Life of God in me owning them, and that which God hath begotten in my heart, refreshed by the Power of Life in them: and none but the Lord knows the beauty and excellency of Glory, which he hath hid under this mean appearance.

Secondly, The Lord hath hitherto preserved them against great oppositions, and is still able to preserve them. Every Power hitherto hath made nothing of over-running them; yet they have hitherto stood, by the care and tender-mercy of the Lord; and the several Powers which have persecuted them, have fallen one after another.

Thirdly, I have had experience my self of the Lord's goodness and preservation of me, in my suffering with them for the Testimony of his Truth, who made my Bonds pleasant to me, and my noisom Prison (enough to have destroyed my weakly and tenderly-educated nature) a place of pleasure and delight, where I was comforted by my God night and day and filled with Prayers for his People, as also with love to and Prayers for those who had been the means of outwardly-afflicting me and others upon the Lord's account.

Fourthly, I have no doubt in my heart that the Lord will deliver us. The strength of man, the resolution of man is nothing in my eye, in compare with the Lord. Whom the Lord loveth he can save at his pleasure. Hath he begun to break our Bonds and deliver us, and shall we now distrust him? Are we in a worse condition than Israel was, when the Sea was before them, the Mountains on each side, and the Ægyptians behind pursuing them? He indeed that looketh with man's eye can see no ground of hope, nor hardly a possibility of deliverance; but (to the eye of Faith) it is now nearer than when God began at first to deliver.

Fifthly, It is the delight of the Lord, and his glory to deliver his People, when to the eye of sense it seemeth impossible. Then doth the Lord delight to stretch forth his Arm, when none else can help: and then doth it please him to deal with the Enemies of his Truth and People, when they are lifted up above the fear of him, and are ready to say in their hearts concerning them; They are now in our hands; Who can deliver them?

Well, were it not in love to you, and in pity, (in relation to what will certainly befal you, if ye go on in this course) I could say in the joy of my heart, and in the sense of the Good-will of my God to us, who suffereth these things to come to pass; Come, try it out with the Spirit of the Lord, come forth with your Laws, and Prisons, and spoiling of our Goods, and Banishment, and Death (if the Lord please) and see if ye can carry it: For we come not forth against you in our own wills, or in any enmity against your Persons or Government, or in any stubbornness or refractoriness of Spirit; but with the Lamb-like nature which the Lord our God hath begotten in us, which is taught and enabled by him, both to do his Will and to suffer for his Name sake. And if we cannot thus overcome you (even in patience of Spirit, and in love to you), and if the Lord our God please not to appear for us, we are content to be overcome by you. So the Will of the Lord be done, saith my Soul.

A POSTSCRIPT.

O Dear Friends, hearken to the Voice of the Love of my heart, which ſpeaketh thus unto you; O wait, wait to feel ſomewhat of God. ſomewhat of his divine Life and Power ſtirring in your hearts, and travel (in the Light and Leadings of it) out of the earthly Nature, leaving the corruption of man behind, which makes you miſerable, and putting on the Holineſs and Righteouſneſs of the Nature of God day by day, which will make you happy, as ye are made partakers of it; Yea, do but come into the Power of that Religion which ye your ſelves profeſs, not ſo much minding the outward Form (for it is not of ſo much value) and ye ſhall find that we ſhall agree in Religion ſooner then ye are aware. Now if in your hearts ye ſhall ask me, What it is to come into the Power of that Religion, which ye your ſelves profeſs? I ſhall appeal unto your own Souls, whether it be not this, even To forſake the Devil and all his Works, taking up the Croſs unto your own hearts Luſt and corrupt Ways, and under this Croſs (wherein is the Power of God felt by them that mind it, and wait upon God there with humble and ſubject Spirits) to fight the Battels of Chriſt againſt Temptations to Sin and the Souls Enemies, even until Death. Here (if ye will enter at this Narrow Gate, and walk on in this ſtreight-way unto the Kingdom, into which Fleſh and Blood cannot enter, but the ſelfiſh Nature, and earthly Spirit muſt be left behind) in this Religion, which is indeed the ſubſtance of all true ſubſtance of all true Religion, we can readily meet and unite with you. But if ye will ſet up a Form to ſtop the power and progreſs of the Spirit of the Lord, in the hearts of his people in this Nation, and not mind the Power of Religion your ſelves, but with vehemency go about to force others to your Form (which ye cannot truly ſay is of God, but of man) in this we cannot cloſe with you, but muſt be content in the will of God to ſuffer under you, the time which the Lord hath alotted, which ye cannot go beyond. And bleſſed for ever be the Name of the Lord our God, who hath made us acquainted with that Life and Power, which was before all Forms and Ways of Religion and Worſhip of man's inventing, and which will be after them; and who hath hitherto born up our Spirits in the Teſtimony, which he hath given us to bear to his living Truth and Worſhip, and who we doubt not but will yet bear us up, even to a Conqueſt in his Spirit over all that he hath called us forth to teſtifie againſt. And that great City or Building of Religion, which is built up by man's Wiſdom, and maintained by man's Strength, we are ſure is falling and ſhall fall throughout all the Earth: Yea man's ſtriving to re-edifie and re-eſtabliſh it, will but make the Ruins thereof more ſpeedy and more dreadful. The Mouth of the Lord hath ſpoken it, both in the Scriptures of Truth which cannot be broken, and in the hearts of many of his Servants, in this day of his appearance in Spirit to thoſe the eyes of whoſe Spirits he hath opened, and by whom he hath given a Viſit and Warning to the Earth, which the earthly ear cannot hear, but will be overtaken and ſurprized with the Day of the Lord: And O what running and ſeeking will there be to the Rocks, and Hills, and Mountains for an hiding-place from the Wrath of the Lamb, but none will be then found. O miſerable earthly-ſpirited man (who haſt paſſed away thy time in a Dream, and haſt little minded or regarded the Salvation of thy Soul, or conſidered what thy preſent vain Pleaſures and Courſes would tend to) what wilt thou then do? There is a Pit prepared for the wicked (I ſpeak not an imagination of mine own, indeed it is the Truth of God.)

Now the Lord ſeeks the Souls of loſt men to ſave them from the Pit: But their Ears are dull of hearing, their eyes vailed, their eyes vailed, their hearts groſly fatted and made inſenſible with the ſenſes and delights of the earthly nature, and the Voice of God (with the things that concern their eternal Peace, yea their preſent welfare alſo) cannot enter into them: And ſo they let ſlip the time of their Redemption, and waſte away the ſeaſon of their Viſitation, hardly ever ſo much as thinking what will become of them in the end. O Lord my God, awaken thy poor Creatures, that they may live and not die: rather let thy Judgments break forth to awaken them, than that they ſhould thus run on towards utter Deſtruction, even to periſh from thy Life and Bleſſedneſs, and to be ſwallowed up in the miſery, torment and wrath due to that nature, which they have contracted and wallowed like Swine in. Every Nature, Principle and Spirit is travelling towards its end. O man, take heed what nature thou art of, in what Principle and Spirit thou acteſt, and towards what thou travelleſt. And remember that God loveth his creature; thy Deſtruction is not of him, if thou periſh: but in him is thy help, if thou hearken to his Voice, and turn at the Reproofs of that which he hath placed near thee, even in thy heart to reprove Sin in thee, and to beget thee into the Love and Holineſs of his Life and Nature, leavening thee into a new Man, as thou becomeſt ſubject to the checks and leadings thereof. This is pleaſing to the Lord; that which proceeds from this, and is performed in this, is the true Worſhip, and not that which man hath invented, and with which the earthly nature is gratified and ſatisfied, but the power of Life turns from.

It is the great Mercy of the Lord to ſtop any man in the way of his Error; and happy is he that is ſtopped by him.

Another POSTSCRIPT.

YEt one thing, perhaps as my laſt unto you, let me freely propoſe: and be not haſty in Spirit, but wait on God for skill and ability to weigh the thing aright, and to give an upright Anſwer thereto, as before him, in the ſecrets of your Conſciences. It is briefly this, Why may not the power of Religion be permitted to flouriſh under you? Cannot the Government of God's Spirit and your Government ſtand together? I beſeech you conſider it. No man knoweth how ſhort his time is, nor what is to come after his preſent determination of things. It is now your day: O that ye had the true Light to walk by in it, that ye might not afterwards repent, and that my heart might be gladded concerning you, who have ſo prayed for you, as if I had felt mine own Soul in your conditions.

A

Salutation of Love and tender Good-Will

TO THE

Commiſſioners of the PEACE

FOR THE

County of Bucks,

And ſuch others in that County, and alſo throughout the Nation, as are concerned in the contents hereof.

IF I ſhould warn you of the Day of the Lord (which is a day of terrible wrath to the tranſgreſſing Nature, but of Peace, Love, and tender Mercy to the righteous, innocent, ſuffering Seed.) If I ſhould tell you that this Day is haſtening upon this Nation, and upon the whole Earth; and if this ſhould affright you, and cauſe you to cry unto the Lord to deliver you from that Nature, and from theſe ſinful Courſes, which make you but as fit Fuel for his Fire in the day of its hot burning: I ſay, If by this means ye ſhould be thus prepared for this Day, and yet this Day comes not ſo ſuddenly as ye might expect, yet that would be no loſs, or cauſe of grief unto you. But if this

Day

Day should suddenly come, and find you in your Sins, and so the fierce wrath of the Lord break forth upon, and afflict your Souls, and the Day of your Mercy and Redemption be wholly passed over by you. This would be matter of unutterable grief and sorrow to you, and the remembrance of your former ease and pleasures, would but increase the sense and anguish of your misery,

Certain I am, There is a Day of giving account for sinning against God, and for oppressing that in your Consciences which discovers to you, and checks you for your Sins; and this will as certainly come, as the Day of sinning now is: And then every man must receive from God according to his Works, and reap the fruit of the Deeds done in the Body: Then every Soul must Inherit according to its Nature, and every Vessel be filled with what it is fitted to receive; that which is fitted for Mercy with Mercy, that which is fitted for Wrath and Misery, with wrath and Misery: And then the distressed sinner will wish, O that I had an hour to escape; O that God would once more give me a moment of repentance, and of turning from sin.

O consider Is it a slight thing with you, that the infinite God, who is little concern'd in you (being perfectly blessed and happy for ever without you, but as his Love, Mercy and tender Nature maketh him concern himself about the Salvation of your Souls) should give you so large a space of Repentance, and so many discoveries of the evils of your ways (when at any time ye are retired and serious) and so many checks and warnings in your hearts, as the vilest of Sinners, at times, have more or less from God? Can ye lengthen out the Day of mercy? Can ye limit God how long he should strive with you? Oh why do you harden your hearts? Why do ye hearken to the Lusts, Desires, Temptations and Counsels of the earthly mind, whose Ages hath undone all that have listened thereunto?

There is no way of avoiding the eternal insupportable Wrath of God, but by travelling out of that Nature, Spirit and Course which it is to. Him that sowed to sin and corruption under the Law, the Sacrifices would not save then; nor him that soweth to sin and corruption under the Gospel, the Sacrifice of Christ will not save now: But he that is saved by Christ, must be Sanctified and Redeemed from sin and corruption by him; which Christ worketh by his principle of Life sown in the heart, which principle turneth against the contrary principle, discovering its nature, and evil dark ways, and drawing from, and leading out of them. O therefore, let me in love intreat you, all my dear Country-men (indeed I have no end in it but your good) to mind that in your hearts which discovers your evils to you, that therein ye may feel the power of Life drawing you from them, and helping you against them: Greater is the power in this, than the power that is in the contrary principle, as those that hearken to it, and become subject, by experience feel. And what if ye lose a few fond pleasures for the present (which indeed are beneath the true state of a man) ye will lose a great deal of misery too, and your gain at last will be exceeding great.

If ye would know whether I speak truth in these things, come to the true Ballance, and wait on the Lord, till by him ye be made able to weigh. My meaning is, joyn to the good Spirit of the Lord, when ye find it stirring in your own hearts: give up unto it, let in its strength upon you, in its warmth and drawing Vertue, give up to forsake the evil and pursue the good: fear not the multitude of evils in the heart, nor the long accustomedness unto evil, the Lord will help the willing Soul out of them. And in this Obedience to the good Spirit of the Lord, there will be an understanding received to know the things of God, and to try words and sayings, whether they be of him, or of man. And he that tries in this Ballance cannot be deceived (the measure being equal and just, and proper to the things which are therewith to be measured) whereas the wisest of men, trusting either to their own Understandings and Judgments, or to the Judgments and Understandings of others, are liable to be deceived: And then ye will acknowledge what love this sprang from, and what Light and Life it sprang up in, though through a weak and contemptible Vessel.

Isaac Penington.

Concerning PEACE and GOOD-WILL.

THe true Peace is in the new Nature, which puts an end to the warring and fighting ſpirit inwardly, and turns the whole ſtrength of the Battel againſt the enemies of the ſoul. In the old Nature there are luſts after Dominion, and after Liberty to the fleſh, and fulfilling the ſelf-will of the earthly mind: But theſe are all brought down in the renewed Spirit, by the Power, Love, and ſweetneſs of the Goſpel of Peace. Here is indeed uprightneſs of heart to the Lord, quietneſs of ſpirit under whatever the Lord ſuffers to be, and good-will towards all men, waiting on the Lord for his ſeaſons of tender Bowels, with ſtrong cries and tears, even for thoſe, who, to the eye of man, may ſeem ſo hardened againſt God and his Truth, as to be out of the reach of mercy.

Weighty Queſtion

Propounded to the

KING,

And both HOUSES of PARLIAMENT.

Together, with ſome QUERIES about RELIGION, for the good of mens Souls, that they may ſeek after, and be eſtabliſhed in that which gives Life.

By Iſaac Penington.

The Queſtion is this which followeth.

Queſt. WHether Laws made by Man, in Equity, ought to extend any further, than there is power in man to obey? Is it not cruel to require obedience in ſuch caſes, wherein the party hath not a capacity in him of obeying?

Now in things concerning the Worſhip of God, wherein a man is limited by God, both what Worſhip he ſhall perform, and what Worſhip he ſhall abſtain from, here he is not left at liberty to obey what Laws ſhall be made by man contrary hereunto.

The New-Teſtament Worſhip is to be in Spirit and Truth, which is a principle above man's reaſon, and cannot righteouſly be limited by a lower principle; but the lower Prinprinciple in every man ſhould be ſubjected to the higher, both in himſelf and others.

Theſe things I write, not in pride or conceitedneſs, but with an humble heart and in love, that God may have his due, Cæſar his, and all men theirs, and that Wrath from God may not break forth upon this Nation: for ſurely it cannot but greatly provoke him, to ſee his people ſo deeply ſuffer, for their obedience to him in what he requireth of them.

I am a lover of Peace, Truth and Righteouſneſs, and an hearty deſirer of the Welfare and Proſperity of this Nation, and that it may no more be broken up in the Wrath and Indignation of the Lord; but that the peaceable and righteous Seed, which he hath ſown in the hearts of many, may be quietly ſuffered to grow up, to the praiſe of the Lord, and to the good of mankind.

This is from one, who was a Mourner over You in your affliction, and is now alſo a Mourner over thoſe whom ye afflict.

I. P.

Some Queries about Religion.

Query 1. WHat is true Religion? Is it a gift from God, beſtowed on thoſe whom he begets by the power of his Life? Or, is it a profeſſion or worſhip of the nature of this world, which a man by natural parts and induſtry may attain to, as well as to other things?

Query 2. What is the ſum and ſubſtance of the true Religion? Is it not love from a principle of Life? Is it not a travail out of the Enmity of the creature, into the Love of God? Doth not the Light of Life ſpring in the Love, and gather into the Love? Doth not Chriſt revealed in the heart, and leavening the heart with the ſavour of his Life, teach love to Enemies; to bear with them in love, to ſeek them in love, to forgive them in love, to pray for them in love, to wiſh good to them, and wreſtle with God for mercy towards them, even while they are hating and perſecuting?

Quer. 3. Are the Papiſts or Proteſtants, or any other ſort of religious perſons, found in this Love? Do they manifeſt by it their Diſcipleſhip to Chriſt, and the Power of Chriſt in them? or rather, do they not ſet up their ſeveral Forms, and maintain them in wrath and enmity againſt each other? Nay, would they not deſtroy each other, if they could? Surely this ſpirit is in too many of them. And doth not this give a ſtrong evidence againſt their Religion, that it hath but a Form, and not the true Power in it, and that in heart they are not the Diſciples of Chriſt? for if they were ſuch, they would of him learn the Love.

Query 4. Whether any Form of Religion (if not held in the Power, and ſubjected to the Power) doth not fight againſt the Power, keeping up an outſide ſhew without the ſubſtance, and thereby cruſhing the ſubſtance? What form of Religion, at this day in the world, can ſuffer the Love to grow, and the Life to lead and rule in the Love, and the Lord of Life to exerciſe his Authority in the hearts and conſciences of men? And this is for want of Power within, and becauſe of Forms forcibly ſet up without: for the Religion of the Goſpel began in Spirit and in Power, and it never can be reſtored and preſerved, but by the ſame Spirit and Power. The renting of the Proteſtants from the Papiſts was no further good, than it was in the power of the Life: and the renting of others from the Proteſtants is no further good, than it is begun and held in the ſame Power: Nay, any party though beginning never ſo uprightly, and by never ſo true and clear a leading of the Spirit of God; yet ſo ſoon as it begins to invent and turn aſide to a Form of its own chuſing, and is upheld by the reaſonings and underſtandings of man, it preſently corrupts.

Quer. 5. Whether the power of Religion (and the true Love) if it were raiſed up and reſtored again, would not make the world happy, and ſet every thing in its proper per place, both inwardly and outwardly? Is not Senſe an excellent thing in man, if it be guided by Reaſon? And is not Reaſon a much more excellent thing, if it be guided by an inward Principle of Life? But Senſe left to it ſelf, without the guidance of Reaſon, how brutiſh is it? and Reaſon left to it ſelf, without the guidance of a Principle of Life, falls below Senſe. How cruel, how blind, how ſelfiſh, how unrighteous is man, that follows the dictates of his own corrupt reaſon, without knowing and becoming ſubject to that, which ſhould enlighten it, and give him the right uſe thereof!

Quer. 6. Whether God will reſtore Religion again in the Power? whether he hath ſuch a work to do in the world? and whether the time be near, that God is about ſuch a work? and whether he hath already begun it, and made any progreſs in it? Is there ſuch a thing as the Power of Religion ſought after? Do men grow weary of their Forms of Worſhip, and find them empty, and unſatisfactory to the hungry ſoul, that pants after life? Nay have there not been ſome touches and appearances of Life and Power, and of the true Love in ſome poor, weak, deſpiſed ones? O that men knew the times and ſeaſons, and then perhaps they would ſee, that this is not a day for ſetting up of Forms, but of longing and crying out after Life and Power.

Quer. 7. When God reſtoreth Religion and raiſeth it up in Power, whether then Forms and Wayes of Worſhip without the Power, muſt not needs wither and decay? When the Power firſt appeared in the diſpenſation of the Goſpel, did not all the ſhadows of Moſes's Ceremonies fly away and vaniſh before it? And when it appears again, ſhall not all the ſhadows and inventions of man, which have ſprung up ſince in the time of the Night, vaniſh before the brightneſs of the Light of the Day? Where the Power ariſeth in any heart, what becomes of the man there, with all that ſprings from him? where is his wiſdom? where is his former Worſhip? what becomes of all his Forms of Religion? do they not all moulder and come to nothing, and he become as a little child, to be formed again in the Power of Life, and born of the Spirit of Life, that he may enter into God's Kingdom? Do not all the old things paſs away, and new things ſpring up from the Seed of Life, which God ſows and preſerves in the hearts of his by his Power?

Now, who is wiſe to underſtand theſe things? who hath the Key to open the Myſteries of Life? who knoweth the times and the ſeaſons? (the times and ſeaſons of Forms, and the times and ſeaſons of Life and Power?) Who ſeeth what God is about to do in the World, and prepareth his heart for his adminiſtrations on the earth? Who is a friend to God, and to mankind, and willing to travel in ſpirit out of this dark, corrupt, earthly ſtate of things, into the heavenly nature and being, where man was at firſt, from whence he came, out of which he departed, and can never be happy till he return thither again; and can never return thither by his own ſtrength and reaſon, but only by the power and leadings of God, revealed in him in an inward Principle of Life? And he that will follow this, muſt firſt feel it in his heart, and then turn his back upon the earthly nature and wiſdom, and war againſt his own corrupt reaſonings, in and with the Light of the Principle of Life, as it ariſeth and is further and further made manifeſt in his heart, through the Grace and Mercy of God, which thereby offereth its help to miſerable loſt man, to redeem him out of his miſery and undone eſtate.

Man hath a time here allotted him by God: and when the time is over, it is determined concerning him. He is a Seeds-man in this World; and what he ſows here, he muſt reap hereafter. He ſoweth either to the fleſh or to the ſpirit; either to his own will or to Gods will. He followeth either the ways of his own heart, or of Gods ſpirit. He either feels the power of Religion, and is renewed thereby and fitted for God, or contents himſelf with a form without the Power, and in effect remains what he was.

He that is renewed, he that is changed in heart and life, he that ſoweth to the will and nature of God, ſhall inherit life with God. He that liveth in a form of Religion without the power, and followeth the vanities of his own mind (going out of this world unrenewed and unfitted for God) ſhall be cut off from God, and lie down in ſorrow and anguiſh of ſoul, where he will bitterly bewail his miſ-ſpent time, and the loſing of his ſouls life and happineſs, for the enjoying of a few earthly nature and ſpirit in its corrupt and degenerated eſtate.

O man, whoever thou art, that art drowned in the luſts and pleaſures of this world which anſwer only to the ſenſual and corrupt part; O remember that thou haſt alſo precious ſoul, which wants redemption, by the power of God, to make thee happy. And one day this ſoul will be awakened in thee, and when it is awakened it will feel its want of God. This is the day of Gods ſtretching out his Arm to thee, O ſlip it not out, for if thou doſt, Terrible will the day of thy awaking be, and thy miſery unavoidable and intolerable. And if now the pains of thy body be ſo dreadful to thee, what will the tearings of thy ſoul be by the wrath of the Almighty? Lay it to heart and retire inwardly, ſeeking to feel ſomewhat of God gathering and guiding thy ſoul, out of thine own worldly nature and ſpirit, into the nature and life of his Spirit, that thy ſoul (at preſent ſeperated from God and drowned in the earth) may return to and be happy in the center of life, from whence it came. For there is a center of ſouls as well as of the earthly nature: and the ſpirit of man returneth to God that gave it, as well as the body to the earth. And then the Lord appointeth it to its proper place, which is according to the nature it is found in. If it be Wheat, if it be of the renewed nature, if it hath taken up the Croſs and followed Chriſt in the Regeneration, then he gathereth it into his Garner. If it be of the Chaffie nature, of the earthly ſpirit, the mind remaining unrenewed and unreconciled to the Nature of God, then to the unquenchable fire (even the fire which will burn and ſcorch unquenchably) and to the worm which dieth not, but gnaweth perpetually, and bringeth to mind all the former vanity and miſ-ſpent time, to encreaſe the heat and flames of the fire. O where is the ſoul, that if it were not wholly bewitched and lulled into a dead ſleep, by the ſtupifying ſpirit of this world, would run ſo great a hazard, for the enjoying of a few momentary pleaſures in the ſenſual part, and loſe thereby the inward enjoyment of Peace and Reconciliation with God here, and of the pleaſures of his Kingdom of true Glory afterwards.

Now for a cloſe, let me ſay one word (in the upright love and true good-will of my heart) to this preſent generation, that they may conſider and take heed (if poſſibly, if poſſibly) it is this.

Even as a Father after the fleſh, is tender of the Children he begets according to his nature, and would not ſuffer them to be wronged or deſtroyed, if he could help it: ſo is the Lord tender of thoſe whom he begets in the Nature of his Life, and in his due ſeaſon will appear for them as ſurely as he is God, and as ſurely as he hath begotten them out of the worldly nature unto himſelf, by the Spirit and Power of his Life. Therefore, O touch not any whom the Lord hath in the leaſt meaſure anointed with his holy oyl: For what is done unto the leaſt of theſe poor, naked, ſick, impriſoned ones, &c. he looketh upon as done unto himſelf; Becauſe he is one with them in the ſufferings of their fleſh, whom he hath made one with himſelf in Spirit.

Concerning the Perſwaſions of Reaſon and Faith in Matters of RELIGION.

THere is the Natural man and the Spiritual man, and there are the perſwaſions of each in and about matters of Religion. There is the Perſwaſion of Reaſon, and the Perſwaſion of Faith:

The Perſwaſion of Reaſon is that belief which man receives into his mind or heart from the exerciſe of the Reaſoning Faculty: and this Perſwaſion in Matters of Religion is but Man's Opinion or Judgment, which how certain or infallible ſoever it appear to him, yet may be ſhaken by a demonſtration or evidence of an higher kind and nature.

The Perſwaſion of Faith is that Belief, which the New-Creature receives in the renewed mind, from the Evidence and Demonſtration of the Spirit, which openeth and manifeſteth the things of the Spirit, unto that mind which is begotten and renewed by it. And this Perſwaſion is certain and Infallible, however it may be ſtruck at and ſhaken by the reaſonings of the wiſe earthly part, even in that very man, whoſe heart heart is thus perſwaded, by the Light of the Spirit of God, concerning the things of God's Kingdom.

Now the loweſt Perſwaſion of Faith is higher and of a more noble nature than the higheſt Perſwaſion of Reaſon: becauſe Faith is of an higher Principle, and of a deeper nature and ground, than man's Reaſon is. But this becauſe it appears not in mans ſphear, but rather out of it, and is contrary to the line and reach of his wiſdom) is accounted by him Fooliſhneſs and madneſs. Thus is the Wiſdom of God (and the Children thereof) judged and condemned by Man in this day.

And how can it be otherwiſe? How can the wiſdom of Man but judge that as fooliſhneſs, whoſe beauty and excellency is hid from its eye? But this is becauſe the wiſdom of Man is out of its place, not ſubjected to the Wiſdom of God, but exalted above it; therefore (as a curſe unto it) is it ſuffered to lift up it ſelf in its conceitedneſs againſt, and ſo to perſecute the pure wiſdom of God and the births thereof, that it might fall, and be broken, and ſnared, and taken, and its day deſervedly come to an end, and be ſhut up in the ſhadows and chambers of eternal darkneſs.

But what ear of Man can hear this, Surely none that is whole in the line of Man's wiſdom, reaſon and underſtanding; but that alone that is bruiſed, broken and in ſome meaſure daſhed in pieces, by the inroads of a diviner Life and Nature. This, in the leadings of that Life which hath broken it, and in the ſhinings of the Light Eternal upon it and into it, may be enabled to take up the Croſs to the natural part, and do die that Death with Chriſt, which preſerves from the ſecond Death, with the miſery thereof.

Happy is he, who knows and hearkens to the Perſwaſions of God's Spirit, who is born of God, and taught to wait upon him and worſhip him in Spirit, who receives his Religion from the Light of Faith, into the renewed Nature and Mind, and not from the Reaſon of Man into the natural underſtanding, which is eaſily corrupted and cannot be kept pure, but alone by the indwelling of the Principle of Eternal Life in it.

For though ſuch may ſuffer very deeply in this world, from the men of this World (as the Subjects and Servants to the Principle of Life have done in all Ages and Generations) yet their Principle will bear them out, in which God will apear to ſtrengthen and refreſh their ſpirits, and carry them up above all their Sufferings in the Patience, Meekneſs, and Faith of the Lamb. And keeping to their Principle, they cannot be overcome, but muſt either live or die Conquerors, according to the Will and good Pleaſure of Him who ordereth and diſpoſeth of all things well, and bringeth good out of every evil, in deſpight of all the Powers of darkneſs. And he that overcometh (whether by life or death) in the Lamb's Spirit, ſhall wear the Lamb's Crown, and ſit down in that perfect Reſt in the Kingdom of the Father, which will give the hearts of all his Children full Satisfaction. In which aſſured hope (Life ſtirring in our boſoms, and quickening our hearts with Love unto God, and Zeal for his Truth) we can freely give up all that is near and dear unto us in this world, and lay down our heads in inward Peace, in the midſt of the greateſt outward Perſecution and Trouble. Even ſo O Lord, thy Will be done concerning this Generation of thy People, whom thou haſt begotten to thy ſelf, and brought forth by thy mighty Power, to teſtify to thy Truth in this preſent day. Diſpoſe of them as it pleaſeth Thee, and let not their Faith in Thee, nor thy Faithfulneſs to Them fail, but let them be a Praiſe to thy Name throughout all Generations, and tendred by Thee as the Firſt-fruits of thine Appearance, in the glorious Light of the everlaſting Day, after this great, long, thick and dark night of Apoſtacy from the Life and Spirit of the Apoſtles, which hath ſo long eclipſed and covered the brightneſs of thy Beauty from the ſight of the Earth.

Some of the Myſteries of Gods Kingdom, Glanced at.

For the ſervice of the upright-hearted among ſeveral ſorts of Profeſſors, who have formerly had a feeling of moſt of theſe things in meaſure, To which feeling, and that which gave it them, they are hereby allured and invited to return, that the many Names and various Ways may periſh and vaniſh, and the one Spirit, one Life, one new living Name and Way may be waited for and purſued after, that ſo all the Tribes, and Families, and ſeveral Diviſions of Iſrael may know one another, and heartily unite in one Nature and inward Power of Life, which doth good to all, and harm to none, neither inwardly nor outwardly.

By a Traveller towards the living Subſtance, and a Mourner over the wandrings of the ſcattered Sheep.

ISAAC PENINGTON.

The PREFACE.

NOne but Chriſt, none but Chriſt ſaith my Soul, from the ſence of my continual need of him, and from the deep love of my heart unto him. Now there is a twofold way of knowing Chriſt, both which are of uſe, and have their ſervice in their ſeveral ſeaſons, according to the eſtate and condition of the Soul, and according to the diſpenſation which it pleaſeth God to ſet up among his people: The one whereof is literal, the other ſpiritual; the one is according to a deſcription of him received into the Underſtanding, the other is according to the Revelation or unvailing of him in the heart. As for inſtance, Chriſt may be preached as Light, as Life, as Power, as the eternal Word and Wiſdom of the Father, &c. Now the receiving the Knowledge of theſe things meerly into the Underſtanding, is a receiving and knowing Chriſt according to the Letter, or according to a literal deſcription of him: And the receiving of any of theſe things in the living ſenſe and ſhinings of the eternal Light of God in the heart, and ſo becoming ſubject in that Life, Senſe, and Power, is a knowing and receiving of them in Spirit, and the ſpiritual ſubmiſſion and obedience of the Goſpel. This is the excellent way and path of Life which God in this laſt Age of the World is making mani- ſeſt; though the other is not quite laid aſide, nor to be rejected or deſpiſed, where there is any of the light of Life ſtirring in it. But the main thing now to be minded is the heavenly Birth, with Gods diſpenſation of Life to it, and its ſeperation from the earthly Birth, and its way of feeding on the heavenly things. For Hagar and Iſhmael (which are the Mother and Child after the Letter) are now to be caſt out, and the Seed of promiſe with its Mother to abide in the Houſe alone (with the Father of bleſſings) for ever. So that now the ſeparation goeth very near and cloſe. The Birth that is now raiſed is very inward and ſpiritual, even the Seed it ſelf; and its Food is the Life it ſelf, even that which the earthly Birth cannot feed on or digeſt; and the way and knowledge of Life is very inward and ſpiritual, to cut off the earthly nature and ſpirit in its cloſeſt inſinuations and transformings. The Lamb in his appearances in this day is very hidden and retired, and none can ſee his paths and follow him, but ſuch as receive of his preſent Oyntment, and feel the guidance of the opening of his eye in them. The Lord is bringing about great things, both inwardly and outwardly, happy are they whoſe hearts and ſpirits are prepared for them: for great Miſery, Death and Deſtruction is coming upon the earthly, and great Joy and Bleſſedneſs is breaking up in and ſhowring down upon the heavenly; which that all Souls that have the Breath of Life in them, and that pant after the living God may partake of, is the earneſt deſire of my Soul.

Concerning Chriſt.

Queſt. 1. WHat is Chriſt?

Anſ. He is the immediate off-ſpring of eternal Life in himſelf, and the fountain or ſpring of Life unto the Creation. Even as the Father hath Life in himſelf, ſo hath he given to the Son to have Life in himſelf: And in and through his Son he communicateth of his Life unto his Creatures.

Queſt. 2. How doth Chriſt convey life?

Anſw. As the living Word, as the promiſed Seed. He ſoweth the ſeed of the Kingdom in the heart, in which is life: and as he maketh way for this to ſpread and grow up in and leaven the veſſel, even ſo he quickneth and gathereth into his life: Again, He is the enlightning Word, the quickning Word, the Word of wiſdom, the Word of power, the Word of love and reconciliation, whoſe voice worketh mightily towards the deſtroying of ſin, and ſaving of the ſoul from it.

Queſt. 3. Where is this Word or Seed to be waited for?

Anſw. Its appearance is in the hearts of the ſons of men, and there it is to be waited for. There God ſows this ſeed, and there it is nigh to them, whom God viſits with his loving-kindneſs and mercy.

Queſt. 4. How is this Word received?

Anſw. By Faith in the vertue which floweth from it. Its nature is to turn againſt ſin, and to draw towards the Father. Its light ſhineth to diſcover ſin, and its life ſtirreth to quicken againſt it. Now in the hearts believing, and being perſwaded againſt that which the light diſcovereth to be evil, and won to that which it ſheweth to be good, the Word is thus far received, and a foundation of union between it and the ſoul laid. And ſo on the other hand, in the rejecting or turning from any thing that comes from Chriſt in the heart, Chriſt is rejected and turned from.

Queſt. 5. How doth this Word work in or upon the heart?

Anſwer.

Answ. According to the entrance it gets into the heart, or according as it is rejected or refused. As it gets entrance, it works life there, and works the creature into its life. It brings in its nature, its righteousness, its holiness, its sweetness, its peace, its love, its joy, its meekness, its patience, &c. As it makes room in the heart by working out the contrary. But where it is rejected, it works death and condemnation, and increaseth the captivity and misery of the soul: so that it were better never to hear any sound of Christ in the heart, than not to hearken and become subject thereto.

Quest. 6. What hinders Union with Christ?

Answ. The strong man armed, whom he cometh to dispossess, who doth what he can to blind the eye from seeing the lovely nature of Christ, and to harden the heart against his visits and appearances.

Quest. 7. How may the Soul be helped against him?

Answ. Receiving the Truth in the Love, and giving up the heart in the vertue that flows from Christ in his visits and appearances, brings in that strength into the Soul, which conquers him. He is not able to stand before the power of Christ, which power is the Souls, as it is let in by the Soul. It is the unbelief of the heart, and the earthly thoughts and imaginations which give the Enemy strength: But before the Faith (even in the weakest) he is weak, and his strength falls.

Concerning the way of knowing Christ.

CHrist is the Minister of the true Sanctuary, which God hath pitched and not man. There is a City whose builder and maker is God. The Foundation-stone, the Corner-stone, the Top-stone of this City or Building is Christ. He therefore that would know Christ, and be built upon Christ, must find an holy thing revealed in his heart, and his Soul built thereon by him, who alone can raise this building, who can rear up the Tabernacle that hath long been fallen down, who can build up the old waste places, and restore the paths for the ransomed and redeemed of the Lord to walk and travel on in.

Now he which can find any thing of God built up in his heart (yea if he can find but the beginning of the true Sanctuary) he may also find Christ ministring there, even the true High-Priest offering up the sacrifices and interceding with the Father, as also giving the Soul the food of the holy things to eat of. Now this is the way of knowing Christ indeed, to wit, in his begettings in the heart, in his presence there, in his ministrations there between the Soul and the Father. And he that thus knoweth him, even in that which is begotten of him, watching in singleness of heart with the true eye, cannot be deceived concerning him, but knoweth the voice of his Spirit and readily embraceth it, but a stranger or deceiver it knoweth not nor will not hear, but by the instinct of life turneth from it. So that the knowledge and preservation of the sheep, is not by the wise reasonings of the mind, concerning the shepherds voice and the strangers voice; but by an instinct of the new hidden nature, which teacheth the simple-hearted to avoid the snares, which the earthly wisdom is easily entangled in. The meek, the humble, the broken-hearted, the weak, the poor, the babes, the little children, these are they whom the Father teacheth, these have that preservation and instruction, which the wise, knowing, judicious minds (in man's account) miss of. Thus the foolishness of God is wiser than man, and the weakness of God stronger than man: And God hath chosen in every man that which is not, to bring to nought all that is in him, that no flesh might glory in his presence, nor no man be able to boast before the Lord of the salvation of his Soul.

Concerning Repentance.

Quest. 1. WHat is Repentance?

Ans. It is Christ's turning of the heart from the dead nature and from the dead works, towards the living Principle and the living works thereof.

Quest 2 Cannot a man turn from sin and turn to God, when he will?

Ans. No, man is a captive, his Understanding captive, his Will captive, all his Affections and Nature in captivity; and nothing can turn him towards God, but that which is stronger than that power which captivateth him.

Queſt. 3. How is Repentance wrought?

Anſ. It is Chriſts gift, whom God hath appointed a Prince and a Saviour, to give repentance and remiſſion of ſins, who giveth it in his enlightning and drawing vertue, wherein ſins nature is opened, and the bent of the ſoul by him ſecretly turned againſt it.

Queſt. 4. What is the heart turned from, and what is it turned towards?

Anſ. From one nature to another, from one principle to another, from one ſpirit to another, from one courſe to another, from one end to another.

Queſt. 5. Is Repentance wholly given, or perfected at firſt?

Anſw. No, but it encreaſeth, and is given daily more and more to the heart that waiteth on the Lord. Sin, the nature of it, the courſe of the mind and body in it, is diſcovered daily more and more, and the loathing and deteſting of it encreaſed, as the new nature gathers ſtrength in the mind, and encreaſeth in the light and power of life.

Queſt. 6. Is there never to be any reconciliation or turning back to ſin?

Anſw. No, but a farther removing and ſeparation from it; which ſeparation is eternal, even as the beginning of it is in an eternal Nature. The Seed at its firſt appearance and ſpringing up ſhutteth out ſin, as being of a contrary nature to it; and the ſtronger it groweth, the more it ſhutteth ſin out: and where it wholly leaveneth and poſſeſſeth the creature, it wholly expelleth the old leaven, and leaveth no place for it to re-enter. This is perfect ſalvation, where there is no turning back to folly any more, but a perpetual abiding in the Nature of the eternal Wiſdom.

Queſt. 7. What if there be a committing of ſin, after one is turned from it?

Anſw. The Repentance is not there perfected, the enemy is not there wholly caſt out, nor his ſtrength quite broken, the Law is not there fulfilled, the Covenant of Grace is not there fully witneſſed, but the ſoul ſtill in a degree of captivity under the power of the enemy: yet if the bent of the heart be againſt the ſin committed, God chargeth it upon the enemy, and not upon the ſoul. Now if I do that I would not, it is no more I that do it, but ſin that dwelleth in me, Rom. 7. 20.

Queſt. 8. But is there any ſin where there is no Law? What makes ſin but the Law? When a man hath travelled through the Law into the eternal Nature, can he then commit ſin?

Anſ. Where there is no Law, there can be no tranſgreſſion: but while any of that nature remains, to which the Law naturally belongs, there may be ſin and tranſgreſſion. Now that only is capable of being out of the reach of the Law, whoſe nature is perfect, and which comprehends and cannot but bring forth the righteouſneſs of the Law in it. That therefore which falleth ſhort of the righteouſneſs of the Law, and pleads it is not ſin to it, is in the deceit and errour from the perfection, and not in the perfect righteouſneſs, which eternally comprehends and brings forth the righteouſneſs of the Law, but is not comprehended or judged by it, becauſe its nature, life and righteouſneſs is above it.

Concerning Faith.

Queſt. 1. WHat is Faith?

Anſ. It is a belief in the appearances of the Lord to the ſoul, and a cleaving to and drinking in of their vertue. There are divers appearances of the Lord, even as a quickning Spirit, quickning and enlivening the ſoul; alſo as a diſcoverer, reprover and condemner of ſin, and juſtifier of righteouſneſs; likewiſe as a ſtrengthner and comforter of that, which wants his ſtrength and comfort, and as a fountain of perfect love, ſweetneſs, and of all good, &c. Now however the Lord pleaſeth to appear, that which ſeeth, knoweth, owneth and falleth in with his appearances, drinking in the vertue thereof, That is Faith.

Queſt. 2. By what Means is Faith wrought?

Anſ. By the Word in the heart, by the living Word from which the ſoul came, and which is nigh to the ſoul. This was the Word of Faith, or the Word which wrought Faith under the Law, Deut. 30. This was the word of Faith which the Apoſtles Preached, and which wrought Faith under the Goſpel, Rom. 10. This is the Word which we feel working Faith in us now, yea and which worketh it in all thoſe, in whomſoever it is wrought, though they may not know what works it: yea this is the Seed of life, from which every ſpiritual thing ſprings and grows in the heart.

Queſt.

Queſt. 3. How is Faith received?

Anſ. In the quickning power. The Seed of life ſhoots forth its Light, its Life, its Nature, its Vertue into the heart. The heart being touched with this, is in ſome meaſure quickened towards God, and in and from this quickning Vertue Faith flows into the ſoul. For in the death of ſin, in the dead ſtate there is nothing but unbelief, Faith therefore muſt needs flow from the quicknings of life.

Queſt. 4. What doth Faith do in the heart?

Anſ. It uniteth to God and ſeparateth from ſin. It beginneth and carryeth on the work of Redemption in the ſoul. It receiveth in that which is of God, and beateth back the contrary. It keepeth the mind chaſte, pure, living and freſh before the Lord. It draweth out the vertue, and ſucketh in the ſweetneſs of every appearance of God in the heart. It keepeth in the love of God, and expelleth the love to ſin, creature, ſelf, or any thing as it ſtands out of God. Indeed Faith is the natural ſucker in of the breath of life, and the purger out of the breath and power of death.

Queſt. 5. Wherein doth Faith ſtand?

Anſ. In that wherein it is received, even in the quickning power. Faith muſt be continually kept alive by the Seed of life, or it cannot live. It ſprings in the power, it dwells in the power, it acts in the power, and is never found out of it. Man cannot believe when he will, it is a continual Gift, depending upon the continual quicknings and nouriſhment of that life, from whence it ſprang.

Queſt. 6. But doth not God withdraw? doth not the power often clap in? Where is Faith then?

Anſ. There is the ſecret preſence of the power, when it is not viſibly manifeſt, enabling the ſoul to keep to and depend upon that, which is not ſeen, but truſted in, though unſeen and not ſenſibly felt: and there is a ſecret turning from and reſiſting of temptations, and a ſecret overcoming (the heart being kept true and entire to the Lord) while the enemy ſeemeth ſenſibly to prevail and overcome.

Queſt. 7. Why doth the enemy ſo aſſault with unbelief, and fight ſo ſtifly againſt the Faith of the ſoul?

Anſ. Becauſe all depends upon it. Stop that, he ſtops all. Overcome that, he overcomes all. If that ſtand and abide in ſtrength, he gains nothing, but loſes by every temptation and ſeeming victory: for Faith gets ground and advantage, not only by a temptation, but alſo by a fall.

Concerning Hope.

Queſt. 1. WHat is Hope?

Anſ. The expectation of ſomewhat from the Lord, in the ſeaſon of his good-will. The expectation of the Crown of life at laſt, the expectation of deliverance from ſnares and temptations at preſent, the expectation of receiving his promiſes of the Divine Nature, or of any mercy or bleſſing which he hath given to pray for, This is Hope.

Queſt. 2. What are the Grounds of Hope to the ſoul?

Anſ. There are manifeſt and viſible Grounds, or a ſecret and inviſible Ground.

Queſt. 3. What are the manifeſt and viſible Grounds?

Anſ. They are many and of divers kinds. The Lords love manifeſted to the ſoul, the Lords Promiſes made to the ſoul particularly, or generally to that condition wherein the ſoul is, the ſouls experience of the Lords helping it in former diſtreſſes; yea the very tender Nature of the Lord towards ſouls and their deſcent from him, notwithſtanding their preſent alienation and corrupt eſtate, is a ground of Hope, where the Lord quickens it to the heart.

Queſt. 4. What is the inviſible or ſecret Ground of Hope?

Anſ. That cannot be diſcerned, which is ſecret and inviſible: but yet there is ſometimes an hope in the heart, when it is not perceived, which is maintain'd and fed by the inviſible life, which is hid there.

Queſt. 5. What is the nature and proper effects of Hope?

Anſ. It ſtays the mind, even in the midſt of ſtorms and tempeſts, that they do not overturn, overwhelm and ſink the ſoul. It keeps up the head above the many waters, and keeps the heart from utterly fainting. It preserves life in the many Famins and strait Sieges of the enemy. Hope of relief keeps from yielding to the enemy, and preserves from distrusting the Lord. Distrust cannot enter and prevail, where hope abides. Hope adds strength to the soul in its pursuit of all that is good, and in its flying from and eschewing all that is evil, and is the succourer of Faith in the needful hour: yea how often would the Faith be given up and foyled, were it not for the hope which relieves it!

and

Concerning Love.

Quest. What is Love?

Answ. What shall I say of it, or how shall I in words express its nature! It is the sweetness of life, it is the sweet, tender, melting nature of God, flowing up through his seed of life into the creature, and of all things making the creature most like unto himself, both in nature and operation. It fulfils the Law, it fulfils the Gospel; it wraps up all in one, and brings forth all in the oneness. It excludes all evil out of the heart, it perfects all good in the heart. A touch of Love doth this in measure, perfect Love doth this in fulness. But how can I proceed to speak of it! O that the souls of all, that fear and wait on the Lord, might feel its nature fully; and then would they not fail of its sweet overcoming operations, both towards one another and towards enemies. The great healing, the great conquest, the great salvation is reserved for the full manifestation of the love of God. His judgements, his cuttings, his hewings by the word of his mouth are but to prepare for, but not to do the great work of raising up the sweet building of his life, which is to be done in love and in peace, and by the power thereof. And this my soul waits and cryes after, even the full springing up of eternal love in my heart, and the swallowing of me wholly into it, and the bringing of my soul wholly forth in it, that the life of God in its own perfect sweetness may freely run forth through this Vessel, and not be at all tinctured by the vessel, but perfectly tincture and change the vessel into its own nature; and then shall no fault be found in my soul before the Lord, but the spotless life be fully enjoyed by me, and become a perfectly pleasant sacrifice to my God.

O how sweet is love, how pleasant is its nature! how takingly doth it behave itself in every condition, upon every occasion, to every person and about every thing! How tenderly, how readily doth it help and serve the meanest! How patiently, how meekly doth it bear all things either from God or man, how unexpectedly soever they come, or how hard soever they seem! How doth it believe, how doth it hope, how doth it excuse, how doth it cover, even that which seemeth not to be excusable and not fit to be covered! How kind is it, even in its interpretations and charges concerning miscarriages! It never overchargeth, it never grates upon the spirit of him whom it reprehends, it never hardens, it never provokes, but carrieth a meltingness and power of conviction with it. This in the nature of God: This in the vessels capacitated to receive and bring it forth in its glory, the power of enmity is not able to stand against, but falls before and is overcome by.

Concerning Obedience.

Quest. What is Obedience?

Answ. It is the subjection of the Soul, to the Law of the Spirit, which subjection floweth from and is strengthned by love. To wait to know the mind of God and perform his will in every thing, through the vertue of the Principle of life revealed within, this is the Obedience of Faith. This is the Obedience of the Seed, conveighed into the creature by the Seed, as it is made partaker of the Seed. He is the Son who naturally doth the Will, he is the faithful Witness, who testifies concerning the Will, yea and he is the choice servant also.

Mark how every thing in the Kingdom, every spiritual thing, refers to Christ and centers in him. His nature, his vertue, his presence, his power makes up all. Indeed he is all in all to a Believer, only variously manifested and opened in the heart by the Spirit. He is the Volume of the whole Book, every leaf and line whereof speaks of him, and writes out him in some or other of his sweet and beautiful lineaments. So that if I should should yet speak further of other things, as of Meekness, tenderness, humility, mercy, gentleness, patience, long-suffering, contentedness, &c. (all which I had much rather, should be read in his book, even in the living Book of the Eternal Word, then in my writings) I should but speak further of his nature brought up, manifested and displaying it self in and through the creatures, by his turning the wheel of his life in their hearts. But my spirit hastneth from words, therefore can I not but cut short and pass over these openings in me, that neither my own soul nor others may fix or stay upon words concerning the thing, but may sink in spirit into the feelling of the life it self, and may learn what it is to enjoy it there and to be comprehended of it, and cease striving to know or comprehend concerning it. And then I am sure, he that hath a taste of this, cannot but be willing to sell all the knowledge that can be held in the creaturely vessel, for that knowledge which is living, and is laid up in that treasury, into which the thief and corrupter can by no means steal or break. Yet somewhat I cannot but further add concerning Peace, Joy, Liberty, Prayer, as also concerning Regeneration, Justification, Sanctification, Reconciliation and Redemption, because my heart believeth that it may prove serviceable to some, in the guidance and mercy of the good Spirit of the Lord.

Concerning Peace or Rest.

True Peace is the stilness, the quietness, the satisfiednes of the heart in God, which floweth from and with the Spirit of life into the soul, that is subjected to Christ. There is indeed a kind of peace, to wit, a false Peace or Rest in sin and unrighteousness: but that is is not truly natural to the soul while it lasts, and is likewise suddenly disturbed, when the true light shines in the heart, and when Gods witness awakens it. Then there is no peace to the wicked, saith my God. O the trouble and perplexity of the sinner, when the light of God's Spirit makes his heart and ways manifest to him! yea, and that soul also, which in its day of visitation pants after the Lord, and is willing to give up to the guidance of his light, and waiteth for the directing and redeeming power of his Spirit; yet oh what a bitter war, noise and tumults doth the enemy raise within! how doth it disturb every step of his way, and strive to darken every drawing, motion and leading of the soul out of his dominion! But as the redemption is felt, the snares broken, the life manifested, and the soul feels it self entred into the nature and obedience of it: So the Peace springs, and the rest in God is tasted of and enjoyed.

Concerning Joy.

Joy is the gladness of the heart in God, chiefly springing from the refreshings and presence of his life, which carries through and over all, even the greatest tryals and tribulations. When the poor, panting, weary soul, which hath longed after God, and long felt the bitterness and misery of its separation, begins to feel his love and its union with him, in his letting of it forth into the heart, and its assurance of his goodness, righteousness, power, wisdom and salvation, oh how is it filled with Joy and Delight in the earnest of its portion! Now saith it, in the strength of life, My soul rejoyceth in God my Saviour: for he hath regarded my low estate, his bowels have rouled towards me, his day-spring from on high and his mercies from beneath have visited me; and I who long have been desolate and forsaken, have now found favour in the eyes of my beloved, and my heart feeleth (in measure) that I am his and he mine, who hath touched me, won my heart, undertaken for me, and what can separate? He hath tyed the knot himself, and what can break it! and how can my heart but rejoyce in his name, over all my fears, false reasonings, doubts and misgivings, which long held me captive, and with-held my eye from reading love, the which was written both in his heart and in his dealings towards me?

Concerning Liberty.

Liberty is the enlargedness of the heart in the Spirit of the Lord, wherein it hath scope in all that is good, and is shut out of all that is evil. The Spirit of the Lord is free, and maketh free. The earthly spirit is in bondage with her children: but they which are begotten of the Lord, and wrapped up in his Spirit, find the power and freedom of the the new Life therein, and are thereby perfectly out of the reach of that, which (let in into the mind) hath power to captivate and enthral. Therefore it is not all manner of ſcope and latitude, wherein the true Liberty conſiſteth: but in the ſcope and latitude proper to its nature. And thus the infinite and unlimitable One is limited (if it be proper ſo to expreſt it) even within the limits and bounds of his own Nature and Spirit, which he cannot tranſgreſs, or in any wiſe conſent to do what is contrary thereunto.

Concerning Prayer.

PRayer is the Breath of the living Child to the Father of Life, in that Spirit which quickened it, which giveth it the right ſenſe of its wants, and ſuitable cries proportionable to its ſtate, in the proper ſeaſon thereof. So that mark, Prayer is wholly out of the Will of the Creature, wholly out of the time of the Creature, wholly out of the power of the Creature, in the Spirit of the Father, who is the Fountain of Life, and giveth forth breathings of life to his child at his pleaſure.

Concerning Regeneration.

Queſt. 1. WHat is Regeneration?

Anſ. It is the New-Birth of the Creature, or its being born again of the immortal Seed of the Word of eternal life.

Queſt. 2. How is this Birth obtained?

Anſ. By the ſpringing up of the Seed of eternal Life in the heart, and the heart being changed into it, and brought forth in it.

Queſt. 3. How is the heart changed into and brought forth in the Seed?

Anſ. By being leavened with the power and vertue of its nature by a new ſap received from it, which ſpreadeth by degrees and at length becometh all in it.

Queſt. 4. How is this vertue received from the Seed?

Anſ. In giving up to it in the Faith which flows from it: This lets in the new ſap and nature of Life, which purgeth out the old.

Queſt. 5. How doth the Seed appear and manifeſt it ſelf? and how is it given up to in the Faith?

Anſ. It doth appear in its own light and quickening vertue, which diſcovers the darkneſs and death of Sin, and draws the heart, which it makes willing, out of it. Now its drawings being felt, it's well known the thing required by it made manifeſt, there is a Faith herein begotten in the heart; and then the Soul is to give up in the Obedience of the Faith, without conſulting with the reaſonings and wiſdom of the fleſhly mind, where the Enemy lies ready to damp this light of Faith, and betraying into the unbelief.

Concerning Juſtification.

Queſt. 1. WHat is Juſtification?

Anſ. It is the owning or clearing of a perſon in his obedience to the Lord, or the pardoning, paſſing by, and ſo clearing him from his diſobedience.

Queſt. 2. Who is it that juſtifieth?

Anſ. It is the Lord, who giveth the Law to mankind according to his pleaſure; he it is that is alſo the Judge of mans obedience or diſobedience thereto, and the proper juſtifier or condemner of him therein.

Queſt. 3. But is not man in a fallen ſtate? and can he ſo obey God in any thing, as to be juſtified by him?

Anſ. Man is indeed fallen, and hath no ſtrength or will of himſelf to ſerve or obey the Lord: but there is a viſitation of Life and Love (for Chriſt's ſake) iſſuing forth towards mankind in general, wherein there goeth forth a quickning Life and a ſecret hidden vertue, which giveth ability to the hearts, which the Lord maketh willing to follow his drawings. And this diſpenſation is ſo managed by the Lord, that no man periſheth for want of Power, but only from the ſtubbornneſs and choice of his own will.

will. So that mans Deſtruction is indeed of himſelf every where, but no where of God, whoſe delight is to ſave, and not to deſtroy his Creature, under every diſpenſation of his Life.

Queſt. 4. But many men do not know Chriſt, and how can they obtain juſtification by him?

Anſw. There is a double knowledge of Chriſt: outwardly by a Relation concerning him, and inwardly by feeling the vertue of his Nature. Now thus many know Chriſt who know him not outwardly. They may have ſomewhat ſown, touched and raiſed by God of the nature of Chriſt in them, and in this they may know the Father and ſpring of the ſame nature, and be gathered in heart into it, and ſo come within the line or compaſs of the ſpiritual life, wherein the ſpiritual bleſſings and mercies run and flow, through Chriſt and for his ſake. And ſo here they may ſee their ſins and be loaded with them, and feel the life and vertue that waſheth from them, and that it is in the meer mercy of God, and ſo be drawn out of ſelf into the Nature, Life, Virtue and Power of Chriſt, which is conveyed in ſubſtance in the inward feeling and new-creating of the heart.

Queſt. 5. How is this juſtification wrought?

Anſw. By faith in the vertue which floweth from Chriſt. God letting in of the Nature of his Son into the heart, and begetting therein ſomewhat of his own likeneſs, in which he draweth, and which he giveth to believe in, this Faith is imputed by God for righteouſneſs, in every heart where-ever it is found: and where this Faith in the living vertue is found, there God blotteth out the iniquities for his name's ſake; yea and remiſſion is felt in that which is made living. And there is one near, who hath power to bind or looſe in the conſcience, according to the nature of the diſpenſation; and who doth bind or looſe in every diſpenſation, as he findeth cauſe. But all looſing of ſins is for Chriſt's ſake & through his blood, though every one in every diſpenſation is not able diſtinctly ſo to read it. Yea under the Law the remiſſion was by this Sacrifice, though many of the Jews could not read the Type. The Promiſe is to the Seed of the Kingdom, and to man in the Seed; and there it reacheth him when-ever it findeth him, for in all his gatherings into and being found in that, he is bleſſed.

Queſt. 6. Then may a man be juſtified, who never heard outwardly of Chriſt?

Anſ. If he feel the Seed of life, be overcome by its nature, give up to its Law, as it is made manifeſt in his heart, abhor the nature and Law of ſin and death, and thus in ſoul cleave unto the Lord and follow him, as he pleaſeth to lead, The Spirit and Life of the Lord cannot but herein juſtifie him, and the grace and mercy of the Lord cannot withhold giving him out his pardon for his ſins paſt (and alſo paſs by his future frailties) although he diſtinctly know not how to ſue out & plead it. The redemption & pardon of ſin is through the unlimited grace of God; which is not reſtrained to the outward knowledge of the creature, but iſſueth forth according to the capacity that God creates any where to receive it. Life, Mercy, Grace, Pardon, &c. iſſue forth from God into the Veſſels of every kind, under every diſpenſation, that he prepareth for them: and the inward ſence of life is the thing that God aims at in all his diſpenſations, & not the outward skill or knowledge, but thruſts that by in every diſpenſation, except as his inward life & vertue is found in it.

Queſt. 7. How is juſtification by grace?

Anſ. No man in his fallen eſtate can deſerve any thing of God It is of grace that God viſits him by any diſpenſation of his love and mercy. It is of grace that he giveth him any ability to turn unto him. It is of grace that he accepts him in turning, giving him a ſhare in the ranſome he hath found, which is ſtill in Gods eye in whatever he does for man, however man may be off from it. Indeed ſuch is the weakneſs of man, that no man can be juſtified by the works of obedience, that he can perform under any diſpenſation, but only by the remiſſion and ability which he receives from grace, and wherein alone he can be preſerved unto the end by grace. So that in every diſpenſation it is grace alone that ſaves (through the Redemption which is in Jeſus Chriſt) though from the eye of man this hath been very much hidden in divers diſpenſations. Yet notwithſtanding, the broken and humble hearted ones (who have felt the inward power of life to change their natures, and to preſerve them in that which God hath begotten in them) the grace prevaileth to ſave in every diſpenſation. For it is not the outwardneſs of any diſpenſation, but the vertue let forth from God in the heart, which ſaves.

And by this the Lord can ſave under any diſpenſation, and without this there is no ſalvation in any.

Queſt. 8. What is the righteouſneſs that juſtifieth in the ſight of God?

Anſ. The Righteouſneſs of Chriſt alone. This conveyed to the creature in and through the Seed, and brought forth in the creature by the Seed, and the creature united to Chriſt in the Seed; here is the juſtification of the life. Indeed there is alſo a juſtification according to the works of the Law, or the creaturely obedience, which the Lord will ſo far own, as the creature is able to bring it forth: but it is the obedience of faith, which is the pleaſure of his ſoul. And the other can hardly ever be perfect, ſo as the Lord can ſpy no fault in it, and may alſo eaſily fail, depending upon the brittle nature and Spirit of the creature; whereas this is of an abiding nature, having its root not in the creature, but in the Seed. Therefore, O all that love life, deſcend from the outwardneſs of diſpenſation into the hidden Seed, where we may feel the living God, and all that are in any living diſpenſation of his life, as the Lord pleaſeth to let our ſpirits into him and into one another. And wait for the light and power of this bleſſed day (which in the tender mercy of the Lord hath dawn from on high upon us) which diſcovereth and maketh things known, not after the letter of a diſpenſation, but by manifeſting their inward nature, power and vertue in the endleſs life. of which Chriſt is now become the Miniſter in the living Sanctuary in thoſe, whoſe hearts he hath new-formed and dwelleth in.

Concerning Sanctification.

Queſt. 1. What is Sanctification?

Anſ. It is the cleanſing of the Veſſel by the Spirit of the Lord, and the pollution both of fleſh and ſpirit.

Queſt. 2. And by what doth the Spirit of the Lord cleanſe the Veſſel from its pollution?

Anſ. By the living truth, which hath power in it to waſh away the deceit, enmity, impurity, and whatever evil hath formerly defiled, or may yet again at any time defile the Veſſel.

Queſt. 3. How doth the ſoul receive this cleanſing or purifying from the Spirit of the Lord?

Anſ. In its obedience to his truth made manifeſt in the heart: for thereby the power of the Word enters into the ſoul, and ſheds abroad its living vertue in the ſoul.

Queſt. 4. What then is chiefly to be minded by the ſoul, that would be cleanſed from its filthineſs?

Anſ. The obedience of faith, or the obedience which ſprings from faith. For as all the benefits and bleſſings of the Law depended upon obedience to the Law: So all the benefits and bleſſings of the Goſpel, depend upon obedience to the Goſpel. Yea, and this is the glory and excellency of the Goſpel, that the principle of faith there doth that which the principle of the Law could never do.

Concerning Reconciliation.

Queſt. 1. What is Reconciliation?

Anſ. It is a bringing together the minds and hearts of God and man into one.

Queſt. 2. How is this wrought?

Anſ. By taking away the enmity of man's nature, which is therein againſt God, and by planting him into, and cauſing him to grow up in that nature and life which God loveth, whereby that is removed from man which God hateth, and which is the cauſe of ſeparation, and man brought into and brought up in that, which is the love and delight of God's heart.

Queſt. 3. By what is this Reconciliation wrought?

Anſ. By the word of God's power. That comes forth from the love of God unto man, and man being gathered out of himſelf into that, the evil Seed is thereby deſtroyed, and the good Seed of the Kingdom thereby cheriſhed and groweth up in its ſhadow and nouriſhment.

Queſt. 4. How doth the Word work this?

Anſ. By winning upon man, and gathering him in to its Light, out of mans own Darkneſs ness, exercising man various ways to empty him of himself, and make him weak in himself, and putting forth its own strength in and for man, as it hath emptied and weakened him in himself.

Quest. 5. What then is mans great advantage towards Reconciliation with God?

Ans. To become weak, to become poor, to become helpless, to become nothing by the frequent exercises of the word of Reconciliation in the heart: For the poor receive the Gospel, and the weak receive God's strength, and the helpless his Mercy, and the nothing-ones his fulness.

Concerning Redemption.

Quest. 1. What is Redemption?

Ans. It is the purchasing of the vessel out of the captivity and misery of death, into the liberty and blessedness of the divine Life sown, revealed, grown up and perfected in the heart.

Quest. 2. Who is the Redeemer?

Ans. The Son of God, the Child of God's begetting, the divine Image, who naturally believes and fulfils the will of the Father, in every vessel which it hath prepared.

Quest. 3. By what doth he redeem?

Ans. By his Bloud, by his Life, by his Power, by his Nature sown in the vessel, and transforming the vessel into its own likeness. Yea, this is indeed Redemption, when the creature is changed into, and brought forth in the Image, Power, Nature, Vertue, and divine Life of him that redeemeth, and the old contrary Image perfectly blotted out, by the presence and indwelling of the new. This is perfect Redemption, the least measure whereof is Redemption in a degree.

And after this springs up the glory of the Life in the vessel, even the glory which it had with the Father before the World was. In the nature of the Life the glory is hid: It is sown in the Seed, it dies with the Seed, it is raised with the Seed. When Sion, in any heart is built up, it is natural to the Lord to appear there in his glory; and the pure eye sees it, and the pure heart enjoys and is one with it. So that as there is a true entrance into, fellowship in and enjoyment of the Death of Christ; so is there also of the Resurrection and Glory of the redeemed Life, which is the Portion and Inheritance which God hath prepared for Sion, after her long Desolation and sore Widowhood, which he will give unto her in the sight of all the World, whereby she shall become the beauty, joy and praise of the whole Earth, who hath hitherto been the reproached, despised and afflicted and made a prey of, by the several sorts of devouring Spirits.

A Postscript to Professors.

THis I am assured of, that it were an easie matter with the Lord, to give forth a literal description of all the things of his Kingdom, so exact, full and natural to the thing, as might answer and satisfie every enquiring mind. But this would not effect the work which God is now about. This would not raise his Seed, which would lie dead and buried under all this, unless quickened and raised by the immediate Power and Life of the Father. Nay, might not the earthly Spirit be easily building with this an earthly Fabrick, which would not come within the measure of the true Temple? May I speak freely; I would not deny any thing of God among you, nor be an Instrument to quench the least good in any of you: but indeed I have seen, I have felt and known some of your Snares; yet have rather spent the strength of my Spirit in crying to God for you, that he would break them, and dis-entangle your Souls, than in endeavours to demonstrate and manifest them unto you. And I am now touching at one of them, which is not the meanest, to wit, a getting the knowledge of things into the mind and comprehension, striving to grow rich there, and wise to understand and dispute about them. Indeed, this is not the poor one which receives the Gospel, and is acquainted with the power and vertue of eternal Life. And if the Lord did not teach my soul, continually to give up the outword knowledge of every thing, and press after the inward Life, I might soon grow wise after the Flesh, but lose the fresh Oyl which suppleth and nouriſheth me. My Spirit boweth and preſſeth within me, in great earneſtneſs to the God of mercies, that ye may not be left behind the flock, whoſe path is living, and who follow the living footſteps of the Lamb, who leadeth by his living Spirit, from life to life into his Kingdom.

Some Queſtions and Anſwers of deep concernment to the Jews, from one who hath been a wreſtler and traveller with the Lord of life, for the day of their mercy and redemption.

Queſt. 1. WHether the people of the Jews do err in their hearts from the God of their Fathers (in this their ſore diſperſion and final captivity) and are not acquainted with his ways, wherein he would have them walk with him, and wait for his mercy and redemption?

Anſ. That there is mercy towards, and redemption for that poor ſcattered, forſaken people, my heart hath from my child-hood, and doth ſtill ſtedfaſtly believe.

That there is a way wherein they are to worſhip the God of their Fathers, and wait for this mercy and redemption is alſo the belief of my heart.

But whether they do indeed know the Lord their God, and the preſent path wherein he requireth them to walk, and ſo are brought into the capacity and fitneſs for the mercy and redemption which is in the heart of the Lord towards them, that I very much doubt of, and in the tender love and good will of my heart, am drawn to propoſe the conſideration thereof to them.

The Grounds of this my doubt are chiefly theſe two.

1. Becauſe their Fathers, who had Moſes and the Prophets to inſtruct them in the Law of the Lord, and in his ways of worſhip and obedience, yet did err in their hearts from the Lord their God, both under the teachings of Moſes and of the Prophets. It is a people that do err in their heart, and they have not known my ways, ſaid the Lord concerning them, upon forty years trial of them in the wilderneſs, Pſal. 95. 10. And Moſes alſo complained unto all Iſrael, that notwithſtanding all that they had ſeen done by the Lord in the Land of Egypt, and the great temptations, ſigns and miracles in the wilderneſs, yet the Lord had not given them an heart to perceive, and eys to ſee, and ears to hear unto this day, Deut. 29. 2, 3, 4. Neither did they more underſtand the mind of the Lord by the Miniſtry of the Prophets, then by Moſes, but miſ-underſtood his way of worſhip, miſ-underſtood his intent about their ſacrifices, and offered up the abomination of his ſoul, even when they offered up the very ſacrifices which he required, as the Spirit of the Lord in the Prophets often teſtified unto them. See Iſa. 1. Iſa. 66. Jer. 6. Ezek. 20. with many more teſtimonies of the Prophets, pleading with them from the mouth of the Lord.

Now if their Fathers in the days of Moſes, and in the days of the Prophets, when they had certain information from the mouth of the Lord concerning his ways, yet then did err in heart, and did not underſtand the mind of his Spirit. How much more probable is it, that theſe in the cloudy and dark day, when the light (that ſhone upon their Fathers) is hid from their eyes, that theſe may miſs of the mind of the Lord, and not underſtand the way of peace and acceptance with their God?

2. Becauſe the Prophets foretel of their Idols cleaving to them and their uncleanneſs being not removed, but their ſtubbornneſs and hardneſs remaining, untill the great and terrible day of the Lord God Almighty, wherein his Spirit ſhall be powred down from on high, and they viſited and redeemed in the light and power thereof. Then ſhall Ephraim ſay to his Idols, Get ye hence, what have I to do any more with Idols? yea in that day, ſhall they caſt their Idols to the Moles and to the Bats, Iſa. 2. 20. For the Lord will cleanſe them from all their uncleanneſs, Ezek. 36. 29. and take away the ſtone out of their heart, and make their ſpirits tender towards the God of their Fathers, inſomuch as

Ephraim

Ephraim shall smite upon his thigh, and bemoan his unaccustomedness to the yoak, and eternal Law of the spirit of his God, which he hath not understood in Spirit, but been blinded about the Ordinances of Moses and Testimonies of the Prophets.

Quest. 2. Whether the Jews can possibly meet with the blessings of the Messiah, while their heart errs from the God of their Fathers, and they do not know his way?

Ans. It is utterly impossible while the miss of the Path wherein blessedness is to be found to meet with that blessedness which the Path thereof alone leads to. How can the heart in erring from God, meet with that which is alone to be found in union and walking with him? Have they met with it to this day? Or can they ever meet with it, till they be taught and led of the Lord to walk towards it? O that Israel knew the way of Life, O that their heart were turned towards their God, that they might no more die, nor be estranged from him like the Heathen, but live the life of the blessed, and enjoy an Inheritance in the Land of the living.

Quest. 3. Is there any way for Israel to be cured of the error of their heart, that their miss-knowledge of God and his ways may be removed from them, and they may come to a right understanding and a clearness of Light?

Ans. There is Balm in the Land of the living, which is able to cure all the diseases and distempers of the dead, and there is a Physician who is able to apply it. The God of Israel knoweth the very core of evil in the heart, and all the issues of death from thence, and how to take out the core, and stop all the issues of sin, death and misery. The Shepherd of Israel understandeth the lost state, the wandring state, the sick state of every lost Soul in Israel, and hath skill and remedies to recover and heal them all, Ezek. 34.

Quest. 4. What way hath this skilful Physician for the cure of the erring heart of his Israel, and to bring them to an acquaintance with him and his ways?

Ans. He hath divers, which are able throughly to affect it,

As,

1. By circumcising their hearts, or by sprinkling clean water upon them to wash away the filth of their hearts. With him is the fountain of living waters, and with them can he wash away the filth of the Daughter of Sion, yea his fire is in Sion, and his furnace in Jerusalem, with him is the the spirit of judgement and the spirit of burning, wherewith he can search out and judge all the evil in the hearts of his people Israel, and burn it up.

2. By creating a new heart and a new spirit within them. He cannot only take away the heart of stone, but he can give an heart of flesh, which shall be sensible and tender to every motion and impression of his Spirit, as the other was dull and hard.

3. He can write his Law in their heart, that they may no more read in the oldness of the Letter, where Life can never be learned (which is to pass away for the weakness and unprofitableness thereof) but in the newness of the Spirit, where the new eye easily reads and understands, what God writes in the new heart and mind.

4. He can put his Spirit within them, and cause them to walk in his ways, and to keep the statutes and judgments which God writes in this new Book, even the renewed heart: For this is the Book of the new Covenant, these are the Tables thereof, wherein God writes the Law of Life eternal for his Israel, wherein they are to read and live for ever. And happy is that Israelite who waits for and receives the Spirit. To him none of the Commandments of Life are grievous, being all quickned to him in and by the Spirit. So that the more the Lord writes in his heart, the happier is he, he thereby receiving more of the Life and Power of God's Spirit, and learning thereby more of his God, and travelling therethrough further with him into his purity and divine sweetness.

Quest. 5. What way is there for Israel to come by this cure?

Ans. None but God's Covenant, the Covenant which God made with their Fathers. Not the Covenant of the Law by Moses, but the Covenant before the Law, which was also renewed by Moses, but was not that Covenant which God made with them in Horeb, but a Covenant besides, as they may read, Deut. 29. Alass, alass, man can never come to Life by his Obedience, he still falls short there; but by receiving the promised Seed, he comes to be Heir of the promise with the Seed, and finds the obedience of the Seed brought forth in him, through the grace and mercy of God, which

breaketh forth upon his Israel. O that the hearts of Israel after the flesh were circumcised to hear this sound, that they might be turned in spirit towards the God of life and salvation, that from him they might receive the seed of life into their vessels, that their hearts might be purified and made living by the seed, and they might there meet with that, which their Fathers could never meet with by the Law of Moses: nor indeed is never so to be obtained, but by the promise to their Fathers, which was afore the Law. And this must be the way of their restoration into favour with God, to wit, Not the Covenant which God made with their Fathers when he took them by the hand to bring them out of the Land of Egypt, but the Covenant by which God writes the Law and knowledge of himself in the heart, Jer. 31. v. 32, 33.

Quest. 6. How may Israel come into this Covenant with God? or is there any thing for them to do, that they may enter into it and reap the blessings of it?

Ans. They must mind the small beginnings of it, and subject to God therein, that they may know its further growth and progress in them. He that withstands the beginning of a thing, can never come to the end thereof. Now the blessedness is chiefly in the end: but it is not found and enjoyed but by him that meets with the beginning, and so by degrees travels along till he comes to the end. And here is a great Mystery, which the wisdom of man cannot learn or understand; in that, though the greatest blessings are contained in this Covenant, yet the beginnings of it are the smallest and most contemptible. The Seed of the promise, the Seed of the Kingdom is the least of all Seeds. Man easily overlooks it, or if he have a little glimmering of it, readily despises it, as unlikely ever to have that in it, or to bring that to pass for the soul, which it desires and expects. Yet there is no other way to the Kingdom, but by this Seed of the Kingdom opening and growing in the heart, and gathering the heart into it self, leavening it (by its spreading) with the leaven of life eternal, and purging out the sowr leaven of sin and death: This then is the path of life, Thou must wait to feel the Seed of the Kingdom sown in thy heart by the good Seedsman, and then wait for thy gathering into it and growth in it: and by thy subjection unto it, and its overspreading thee with the power of life eternal (which is in it, though hidden from thee) thou wilt find sin and death and the power of Hell vanquished in thy heart, and thy heart fitted for the God of thy life to dwell and appear in, whose dwelling and appearance there, will make thee compleatly happy. Only if thou wouldst come out of thy captivity by the enemy of thy soul (whereof thy present outward captivity is but a shadow) into the life and rest of thy God, Take heed of despising the day of small things, or the low voice of thy God in thy heart: for therein is the beginnings of life. And thou must begin at the lowest step that the God of thy life chuseth for thee (and find that wisdom shut out, which would begin or go on otherwise, then the Lord seeth fit to lead and teach) if ever thou enter into the path of life, or walk on therein with thy God.

Quest. 7. How may I know this Seed of life, or feel when God begins to sowe it in my heart, that I may not turn from the small beginnings thereof, but may find an entrance into this blessed Covenant of God with my fathers before the Law?

Ans. The word or voice of this Seed is nigh thee, and it hath a living testimony with it for good and against evil. It hath a living sparkling in the heart, whereby it is felt and known by those that wait for its appearance. It naturally turneth from the evil and towards the good: and its moving and appearing in thee, it will be turning thee towards that which it naturally loves, and from that which it naturally hates. In any such stirring in thy heart, there is the beginning of light eternal to shine upon thy Tabernacle, and by giving up and being gathered into its warnings and motions, thou wilt feel a touch of life, even a quickening and warmth towards good, and a beginning of a deadness and dis-union with that which is evil. And as this is waited for more and more, it will appear more and more in the seasons it sees fit: and as it finds entrance into thee, so will it lead thee into its Covenant with its God. Remember therefore what Moses said to thy Fathers concerning the Word of this Covenant. It is very nigh unto thee, in thy mouth and in thy heart, that thou mayest do it. Deut. 30. 14. Thy Fathers never knew the vertue of this Covenant, but were drowned in misery for want of minding it. And if thou wert gathered into it, thou wouldst meet with the Circumcision of heart, and the new creation of thy mind and spirit, and the writing of the eternal Law of life there, and the putting of the holy Spirit of God into thee, all which are are contained in this Covenant, yea wrapped up in the very Seed thereof, which is (in the Lords times and ſeaſons) ſmiting the Seed of the evil-doer in the heart of the ſons of men, and ſtriving to gather them out of the diſobedient ſtate and nature, into the obedience of the glimmerings of his light in their hearts; which becomes a Law of life and power in them, as it finds entrance into and place in them. Therefore, O ye ſons of Abraham after the fleſh, wait for, know and believe in the light of this Covenant, and give up to be gathered into the holy Seed thereof, that ye may become his children after the Spirit, in this new Covenant, in this living Covenant; wherein all that enter live in ſpirit and power to the God of Abraham, and not by the works of the Law of Moſes, but by faith in the living Seed become heirs and inheritors of the promiſe of eternal life, which is to Abraham and his Seed for ever.

O poor wandring Jew, wait to hear the cry of Wiſdoms voice in thy ſtreets, diſcovering unto thee and counſelling thee againſt the evil of thy heart and ways, by the Word which is very nigh thee in thy mouth and in thy heart. And be won upon by the voice of Wiſdom, give it thy heart, let its power enter into thee. Take up its croſs, be willing to be bound by it from what thy heart would run after, and learn of it to draw in its yoke, that all may be yoaked down and ſubdued in thee, which make thee miſerable, that thou mayeſt find a place and honour in Wiſdoms Courts, and be adorned with her Ornaments, and partake of her durable Riches.

Watch unto that which reproves thee in thy heart, and watch unto its reproofs, that thou mayeſt be reformed by it, and transformed into its nature, and then thou wilt become a Jew indeed, even a Jew inward, born of the immortal Seed of the divine Wiſdom.

And be not diſcouraged either for want of light, to diſtinguiſh between the good and the evil, or for want of power, to turn from the one or to the other, O tender hearted Ones, who find a warmth and a willingneſs within to give up to the Lord, but wait his ſeaſon, and hope in his tender bowels, in the midſt of all the roarings and cruel uſages of the enemy, who will be ſtriving to the utmoſt to keep his hold of his captive, and to keep it back from travelling out of his Dominions of death and darkneſs towards the Land of life, light and peace eternal. I have had a very hard travel, and have felt his power and cruelty beyond meaſure, yet the Lord my God hath helped me, and my breathings abound toward the God of my life for his helping hand unto all that are in heart turned towards him, how difficult, intricate and impoſſible ſoever the enemy ſtrives to make the path of life unto them. O remember the mercy of the Lord towards your Fathers, who never felt the ſtrength of the love of this Covenant, which the Lord is now gathering his ſpiritual Iſrael into, how he pitied them, how he forgave them, how he viſited them with loving kindneſs and mercy time after time. What a ſtiff-necked people they were when he firſt choſe them, how ready to run a whoring from him and rebel afterwards. And ſurely much more is to be forgiven in this Covenant, and much more is the help and healing thereof: only let the heart be true to him according to the vertue and power of this Covenant, yea and wait to receive that alſo of him, for it is the fruit and bleſſing of the Covenant in which God healeth the backſlidings of his Iſrael, and loveth them freely. Amen, Amen, O Lord God of everlaſting and moſt tender Bowels of compaſſion, ſaith my ſoul.

Iſaac Penington.

Some

Some QUERIES concerning the Order and Government of the Church of CHRIST.

Query 1.

WHether Christ, who is the Head, Lord, King, &c. hath not appointed a Spiritual Order and Government to be in his Church and Congregation?

Qu. 2. Whether a Spiritual Order and Government is not useful, profitable and necessary, for the well-being and right-managing of this Spiritual Body and Holy Society in the Faith and Life of our Lord Jesus Christ? In Natural Societies, Natural Government and Order is profitable and necessary, and is not Spiritual Government as profitable and necessary in Spiritual Societies?

Qu. 3. Did not Christ give power of Government to his Apostles and Ministers, at the first publication of his everlasting Gospel? All Power was given him in Heaven and in Earth; and did not he who had all Power given him, give Power to his Apostles and Ministers to preach his everlasting Gospel to the World, to gather his Sheep out of the World, and to watch over them, oversee them, reprove, exhort, admonish, build up in the holy Faith, and cut off and cast out that which was unholy, and would dispute against, but not submit unto the Spirit, Life and Power of Truth?

Qu. 4. Did not Christ give them Gifts also answerable, Spirits of Discerning, that they might be Eyes to the Body; and quick Ears, that they might hear for the Body? For though the Lord hath given every one an Eye and an Ear, as to themselves; yet every one is not made by the Lord an Eye or Ear unto the Body: but this is appointed for, and given to those to whom the Lord pleases, who hath ordered all things wisely, carefully and tenderly for the good of all.

Qu. 5. Were there not Titles given them suitable to their Offices and Services in this kind, as Pastors or Shepherds after Gods heart, according to the Promise of the New-Covenant, Overseers or Bishops, such as watch for the Soul; such as were not only to lay the Foundation, but also carry on the Building even to perfection, even till they were able to present the gathered and quickned Souls a Chast Virgin to Christ? and were they not to watch against, testify against, and in the Power and Authority of the Lord to strike at all that was contrary, and would endeavour to interrupt, overturn, and destroy their work, which was of, in, and from the Lord?

Qu. 6. Whether the Body and common Members of the Churches, were not to hearken to these (He that knoweth God, heareth us, 1 Joh. 4. 6) to obey them in the Lord, to submit to this Ministry, and their work in it, in the Lord, to receive the Word of Truth and holy Exhortations and Admonitions milked out by these to them from the Breast of Life? And were not they that did hearken and obey, commended? and were not the other that were not subjected, but slighted them and their Ministry and Authority, testified against as disorderly and unruly?

Qu. 7. Were there not some reliques of this Order and Government all along the Apostacy, in the true Church and Ministry thereof? for there hath been a Church and a Ministry all along the Apostacy, blessed be the Name of the Lord, though not so visible and outwardly glorious, as many who have erred from the Spirit and way of Truth and are out of the holy Understanding) would make it. It is true, the Church hath been as in a Wilderness, desolate, as a woman forsaken, as a Widow, bereft of her Husband, stripped of her Children, her Visage marred, her Witnesses mourning, nothing of her beauty, former estate or glory, to be discerned or found out: yet all hath been preserved in the root, and there have been some shootings and sproutings of it forth, which have been inwardly felt by that which is of God in the heart, though not outwardly seen by mans eye. Thus the Witnesses have had a Ministry, have had the Testimony of Jesus, even the Spirit of Prophecy, all this dark night of Apostacy, and in it have spoken mourningly to the World, and to the captivated Souls, which that which was of God in his hath hearkened to, and there hath been a bowing and subjection of spirit in the Lord. O read this, and praise the Name of the Lord for his mercy to his in former generations, ye who are now gathered into his pure Light and living Power, from whom the Night is past, and on whom the Day, the everlasting Day-spring from on high is risen.

Qu. 8.

Qu. 8. After the Apostacy, doth not God renew his Commission, and send forth his Angel (for they are all but one) to preach his everlasting Gospel? and doth not he give them power to preach to the World, and to gather those, that hear the everlasting Voice through them, into Holy Assemblies, separated in spirit, nature and appearance from the World? and have they not authority and gifts as well to build up as to plant? and ought not those that are gathered by them, as well to be subject to the Light, Spirit, Power and Authority of the Lord in them, as the former to the former Ministers of the Lord? O that the World knew them, O that the World knew the appearance of God in them! Surely then they would bow to the Word of Truth and the glorious appearance thereof, and happiness both inward and outward would break forth upon the Earth. There would be no more misery, sorrow nor distress in Nations, if the Dispensations of Life from God had but their course in the Earth; yea Nations and Persons, that are now deadly sick, would soon be healed, did they but eat of the Leaves of the Tree of Life, which are appointed by God for their healing, and can easily heal those wounds and repair those breaches, which the wisdom or counsels of man cannot heal or repair. And O that they that are gathered might keep and be preserved in that sense and subjection, which they had and received from the Lord in the day of their Convincement. O how beautiful, how precious, how glorious was the Ministry and Ministers of God in their eye then! And to those that are still there, they are still precious; and to those that grow there, they are yet more precious. But those that enter into, or are ensnared in another thing, which leadeth from the true Spirit, lose the sight and sense which they then had, and instead thereof are filled with prejudices and wise reasonings, which to them may seem very strong and undeniable, though Truth and the true spiritual eye, sense and understanding easily pierces through them, and preserveth those, who abide single in it, to the Lord.

Now against this holy Order and Government appointed by God, there may arise in some hearts some such Objections as these following.

Object. 1. But is not this a turning away from the measure of Life in a mans own vessel, to another mans measure?

Ans. Waiting on God in his Ordinances and Appointments, and upon the Ministry which he hath set up, the measure of Life in him teacheth; and it is not a turning from the measure, but a subjecting to the Lord in the measure of his Life, so to teach and do. The measure of his Life taught me thus to do at first, and teacheth me to do so still; and will teach so still, all that hearken to it. It did not teach subjection in the Apostles days to the Ministry then, and another thing now to the Ministry now. But Christ is the same to day as yesterday; his Life the same, his Spirit the same, its Doctrine and Teaching the same: and that of God, in the Conscience within, answers the pure Voice, when it comes to the Ear without. If Life speak in one Vessel, and its voice be not heard or owned by another Vessel, the pure Ear (in that other Vessel) is not at that time open; but there is somewhat there that obstructs. And if the pure Ear of the Sheep be not open to hear the voice of the Shepherd, but it be accounted strange: it is much, if the other Ear in that Vessel be not opened to hear the Voice of the Stranger, and to look upon it as the Voice of the Shepherd, it agreeing with that and answering to that, which now goeth for the Voice of the measure of Life in that Heart. He that hath an ear, let him hear: for it is easie being taken in this snare, and the danger thereof is very great.

Object. 2. Is not the least measure of Life in any vessel, (if subjected to, waited on and believed in) sufficient to instruct and build up into a perfect man in God?

Ans. The sufficiency of the Grace of God, turned to and waited upon, there is nothing in my heart either to undervalue my self, or to teach others so to do: Nor, when God did appoint a Ministry to gather and build up his Church, do I believe he did intend therein to undervalue the sufficiency of his Grace: Yea, I very believe, that the Grace of God turned and hearkened to, and followed by any Soul in the darkest part of the Earth, hath sufficiency in it to save, and will save that Soul, though there be none outwardly to minister to it or help it. Yet this I also believe, That as there is a sufficiency in every measure of life, to the Work God hath appointed for that measure: so there is a greater sufficiency in the growth and fuller proportion of Life; and the lesser, the weaker, the poor, the afflicted, the babes are to be helped by the stronger, especially in their darknesses, afflictions, temptations, &c. And so the greater and ſtronger in the Life, Spirit and Power of the Lord, is a ſtrength and bleſſing to the weaker, which the weaker making uſe of in the guidance of the Spirit of the Lord (in the ſenſe and benefit of the ſweet help and relief which often the Lord pleaſeth to give forth thereby) will find juſt cauſe and be often drawn to bleſs the Name of the Lord for.

The meaſure of Life in the Veſſel, teacheth to ſubject to the Spirit of the Lord and his Life in others, which the meaſure of Life in any never refuſeth, but ſtill knoweth (when awake and living in the Veſſel) its own, and hath (at leaſt) a ſecret ſenſe of it and unity with it. But that which pretends to ſet up the meaſure of Life as a Teacher, otherwiſe than God hath appointed, and in oppoſition to the Teaching and Miniſtry which he hath appointed, and to his Gift in thoſe Veſſels, which is as well for the building up and perfecting of the Body, as for the gathering: That is another thing in that Veſſel that doth ſo, than the meaſure of Life; another Spirit, another Nature, another Ear than that, that firſt heard. And though it ſeem to cry up the ſufficiency of the meaſure of Life, and to plead for that (and perhaps the creature thinks it is really ſo:) yet that is not the intent of the Spirit in the Veſſel, but to cry up it ſelf, and to make its voice go for the Voice of the Meaſure of Life: and ſo ſuch err from the Faith, the Truth, the Spirit, the meaſure of Life, and are in the nature, ſpirit and meaſure of another thing, which is indeed Death, though they ſee it not, but look upon themſelves as glorioufly living, and abiding in the pure Doctrine and Principle above others.

Now to help theſe a little out of the ſnares and deep entanglements of the Enemy, if the Lord pleaſe, I would earneſtly preſs the conſideration of this upon them. Did not the Apoſtles preach up the Meaſure of Life, the Grace of God in their day, Chriſt within, the Word of Faith nigh in the mouth and heart, the Anointing within, its ſufficiency to teach all things, &c. And yet did they ſo preach it, as to overthrow the Miniſtry, or their Gifts or Service, either towards them that were without or them that were within? Had they nor power over them in the Lord? were they not to teach them, to inſtruct them, to build them up in the holy Faith, and alſo to watch againſt Wolves and devouring Spirits, which would ſtrive to enter the Flock in Sheeps cloathing (and as Preachers of Righteouſneſs) to make a prey of the Innocent Life in the Upright-hearted, if poſſible.

Object. 3. But thoſe who have miniſtred from the Lord, and whoſe Miniſtry I have felt and owned, and in the diſtreſs and affliction of my ſoul have had recourſe to, hoping that they might have a ſenſe of my condition and give me proper advice; yet they (inſtead thereof) have turned me to his Witneſs that wounded me, counſelling me to wait on the Lord there: and have they not alſo told us, That if they themſelves ſhould turn from the things they have declared, this Truth would abide for ever, to wit, that man is to keep to the meaſure of Life in his particular?

Anſ. It is true, A man is to keep to the Meaſure of Life in his own particular. They taught this then: they teach it now. We practiſed it then: we are to practiſe it now. In this Meaſure of Life we received them then: and in this Meaſure of Life (if we abide ſtill in it) we ſhall receive them now, and feel their growth in the Ability, Gift, and Power of the Lord.

And when any come to them for advice, they are to wait on the Lord to feel in him their ſtate who come, and to give forth what the Lord gives them; Whether words from the Lord to the party concerning his ſtate, or directions to retire in and wait for his more immediate appearance in their own meaſures. For, when we feel the Preſence and mighty Power of God in them, we are too apt to look at them, and then a word may come (proper to our eſtates) to recall us to retire to our meaſure. And when we feel immediate relief from the Lord and his appearing to us, in our retiredneſs in our own ſpirits, then we may be apt to deſpiſe the gifts and ſervice of others; and then another word may come from them, proper to our ſtate then, to warn us not to deſpiſe Propheſying, or the Gifts, Power and Authority of Life in others. Now both theſe are proper, uſeful and weighty in their ſeaſons, when given forth by the Spirit of the Lord. Nor are they contradictory one to the other, but ſubſervient in their ſeaſons and places, which that which is of God feels; but that which is erred from God, and joyned to another (under a falſe repreſentation and belief of things) feels feels not, but finds a seeming difference, and sets them at variance one with another, as if they could not stand together. And this is the false nature, the false spirit, the false appearance of Life, which appears as if it were the Measure of the pure true Life, but is not. This is the false Woman, the false Wisdom, whose heart is as Snares and Nets, and her hands Bands: Who so pleaseth God, (abiding in the measure of his Truth) shall escape her; but the sinner (that departs therefrom) shall be taken by her. Therefore fear the Lord, come to that which first convinced; to the first Truth, to the first Sense, to the first Love, &c. And all these imaginations of the mind, and subtle devices of the Enemy will flie away, and thy poor entangled Soul be delivered, at a Bird out of the Snare of the Fowler.

If the Enemy should directly cry out against God, or his Christ, or his Grace, or the measure of his Truth, he would easily be espied and turned from. Therefore he teacheth to cry up these in a wrong spirit and judgment, and after a wrong manner, to undermine, betray and lead the heart from that secretly, which openly it would never hear any thing against. Now those that are thus deceived, are exceedingly to be pitied, and their deliverance from their entanglements and captivities to be breathed after and waited for. For I may say in truth and upright sense of heart, There are many that look towards Sion, who yet are ignorant of the devices and sleights of Satan, to entangle them in their way; and some are caught in his snares (like foolish Birds catching at the Chaff, which makes the bigger shew, instead of the Wheat) losing the substance for a shadow; the Life and Power in the Heart, for a Notion and Conceit in the Brain. And these are wise in their own eyes, so that indeed it is very hard to reach or recover them; yea much harder than it was at first, because they are become more robbed and settled in the wrong Ground (yea in a worse Earth) than they were, when they were first reached to by the power of Truth. Yet over these there is a deep Lamentation, and for these a sore Travel, which the Lord God bless and prosper for their recovery unto that from which through mistake they have erred.

Object. 4. If any man hath received a gift of Ministry, he hath received it of the Lord: and its end being to gather to the Lord, they that by it are gathered, are to be delivered up to the Lord, that he (as King, Priest and Prophet) may govern, &c.

Answ. The end of the Ministry is not only to gather, but also to preserve and build up what is gathered, even to perfection. And the Soul being (especially at first, if not for a long time) weak and babish, not so fully acquainted with the measure of Life, (having had but some touches and demonstrations of it, but not being gathered fully into it, nor rooted and settled in it) I say the Soul in this state, hath as much need of the Ministry to preserve, direct and watch over it in the Truth, as to gather it out of the World. Therefore the Father, in his tender Mercy and Love, hath appointed those who are grown in his Life (and in the Power and Authority of his Spirit) to oversee, watch over, instruct and take care of the Flock, so as they may give to him an account of their Souls, and in their care, diligence and faithfulness, they are owned and blessed of the Lord; and the other in their holy fear, reverence and subjection. Now this is right order from God, wherein the safety of the Flock consists; but out of this is danger and confusion, which the measure of Life teacheth to avoid.

Object. 5. But in a case of doubt or difference, which shall be the judge; the measure of Life within, or the Testimony of others without? Shall I judge, as I feel the thing, in the measure of my own Life? or shall I submit to others against my own sense and judgment, because I have an esteem of them, as being much above me in the growth, sense, and understanding of Truth?

Answ. It is a great matter to judge aright, and to discern and know the measure of Truth (the voice, motion and judgment thereof) from all the Enemies false appearances, and from all the deceits of the heart. This is most certain, Jerusalem (the heavenly Building, the Church of the First-born) is at unity with it self. Truth is pure, eternal, unchangable, always the same; the same in every Member, in every Vessel throughout the whole Body.

And this I may say concerning its appearance in this our Age, Was ever the like Unity known and brought forth since the days of the Apostles? How hath the Spirit been One, the demonstration and testimony of Truth One, the Doctrine One, the Conversation and Practices One in us all! Why, or how so? Because we have had our begetting, birth and teaching from the ſame Life, the ſame Spirit; (the ſame Fountain ſpringing up, and opening in us all, that have been gathered into its Nature and Power.) Now from this Fountain, from this Spring of Life, never iſſueth any thing that is contrary to the Life in any. Therefore if there appear a contrariety, there muſt be a waiting to feel who is erred from, or at leaſt not yet fully gathered into the meaſure of Life. And ſuch as are of an inferiour ſtature and growth in the Body, are (in an eſpecial manner) to watch and wait in ſobriety and fear, till the Lord clear up and make things manifeſt; and likewiſe in the mean time to take heed of an haſty concluding, according to what riſeth up in the Underſtanding or Judgment (though with never ſo great a ſeeming clearneſs and ſatisfaction) as if it muſt needs be of and from the Life in the Veſſel.

It is not an eaſie matter, in all caſes clearly and underſtandingly to diſcern the Voice of the Shepherd, the motions of God's Spirit, and certainly to diſtinguiſh the meaſure of Life from all other voices, motions and appearances whatſoever. Through much growth in the Truth, through much waiting on the Lord, through much fear and trembling, through much ſobriety and meekneſs, through much exerciſe of the ſenſes, this is at length given and obtained. And yet there is a preſervation in the mean time, to that which is lowly and ſubmiſſive, looking up to the Lord continually, and not truſting to its own underſtanding, ſenſe and judgment. But that which is haſty and confident, and ſo ready to plead for its own ſenſe and judgment, according to the meaſure of Life, as it calls it; that is commonly out, entred into the erring Spirit, pleading and contending for it knows not what, and is very apt to judge and condemn others in that very reſpect, wherein it ſelf is moſt juſtly and righteouſly judged and condemned by the Lord, even by his pure Life and Spirit in his people.

This then is in my heart; to ſay in ſhort to this objection. Let the meaſure of Life judge freely in thee at any time concerning any thing: and that judgment will ſtand for ever. But be thou wary, wait on the Lord, that thou mayeſt be ſure thou doſt not miſtake in thy own particular, calling that Life, which the Lord and his people know to be otherwiſe. For if ſo, thou departeſt from the unity and bond of the Spirit, and from the true Senſe and Judgment, and giveſt Deceit an advantage over thee, even to lay a Foundation of deſtroying thee. Likewiſe thoſe who are to watch over thee in the Lord (to lay his Truth before thee, to exhort and reprove thee, as occaſion is) that they may give an account of thy Soul to him, cannot do it with joy and rejoycing in his preſence, but with grief and lamentation of heart, which is not at all profitable, but very unprofitable for thee.

Now, for a cloſe, There are ſome Conſiderations ſpringing up in my heart concerning Unity, which I find drawings here to annex, in true love and tenderneſs, for the uſe and ſervice of others; which are as follow.

1. Unity in the ſpiritual Body, which is gathered into and knit together in the pure Life, is a moſt natural and comely thing. Yea, it is exceeding lovely to find all that are of the Lord, of one heart, of one mind, of one judgment, in one way of practice and order in all things.

2. The Lord is to be waited upon for the bringing forth of this in the Body: That as there is a Foundation of it laid in all (the Life and Spirit being over all:) ſo all may be brought by him into the true and full oneneſs.

3. The Lord is to be acknowledged and praiſed in the bringing of it forth (ſo far as it is brought forth) and to be waited upon for the further perfecting of it.

4. A Watch is to be kept (throughout the whole Body, and in every heart) for the preſerving of it, ſo far as it is brought forth: that the Enemy by no device or ſubtilty cauſe diſunion or difference in any reſpect, wherein there was once a true unity and oneneſs. For the Enemy will watch to divide, and if he be not watched againſt, in that which is able to diſcover and keep him out, by ſome device or other he will take his advantage to make a rent (in thoſe that are not watchful) from the pure Truth and Unity of Life in the Body. For he that in the leaſt thing rents from the Body (in any reſpect or particular, which was brought forth by the Life) he in that reſpect hearkens to another Spirit (even the dividing Spirit) and by its inſtigation rents from the Life it ſelf, and ſo doth not keep his Habitation, nor his Unity with that which abides in its Habitation.

Now

Now it is also in my heart (for the perfecting of this close) to mention a few things (in the same love and tenderness) which I have found helpful to me towards the preserving of me in unity with the Body: Perhaps it may please the Lord to refresh some others by the mention of them, and to make them useful and helpful to them also.

1. The first is, The pure fear of the Lord. This poizeth and guardeth the mind, keeping down fleshly confidence and conceitedness (which is very apt to spring up) making it wary and considerate either of what it receives or rejects, of what it practiseth or forbeareth practising, causing it to wait much, try much, and consult much with the Lord, and with his Ministers and people, and preserves out of that suddenness and inconsiderateness of spirit, at which the Enemy often enters. For Truth is weighty, and will bear trial; and the more it is tried in the ballance, the more manifest its nature and ways appear: but the Enemies appearances and likenesses are not so, but their deceit by a thorow trial comes to be made manifest.

2. The second is, Humility of heart. This is very precious and of a preserving nature. Yea in this state the Lord helpeth and teacheth, and the Soul also (in this state) is fit to receive the help and teachings of the Lord. That which is lifted up and conceited (ready to justifie its own way, and condemn even the whole Body) is neither fit to be taught by the Lord, nor doth the Lord delight (but rather disdain) to teach it. And so not being taught by him, it must needs be liable to err, yea to hearken to that spirit, whose voice is more pleasing and suitable to the erring mind, than the Lord's Voice is.

3. A third great help, which in the tender mercy of the Lord I have had experience of, is, Sobriety of Judgment, Not to value or set up mine own Judgment, or that which I account the Judgment of Life in me, above the Judgment of others, or that which is indeed Life in others. For the Lord hath appeared to others as well as to me: yea, there are others, who are in the growth of his Truth, and in the purity and dominion of his Life far beyond me. Now for me to set up, or hold forth a sense or judgment of a thing in opposition to them; this is out of the sobriety which is of the Truth. Therefore in such cases I am to retire, and fear before the Lord, and wait upon him for a clear discerning and sense of his Truth, in the unity and demonstration of his Spirit with others, who are of him and see in him. And this will prevent the rents, which the want of his Sobriety may occasion.

4. The last thing which I have now to mention, is, Tenderness, meekness, coolness and stillness of spirit. I wrap up these together, because they are much of a nature, and go much together. These are of an uniting preserving nature. He that differs and divides from the Body, cannot be thus: and he that is thus, cannot rend or divide. Thus is the pure heavenly Wisdom, which is peaceable and keepeth the peace. But the other wisdom is rough, stiff, hard, clamourous, ready to take offence, ready to give offence; exceeding deep in the justification of it self, exceeding deep in the condemnation of others, and dares (in this temper) appeal to the Lord, as if it were right in its wayes, but wronged by others; as if it did abide in the measure of his Truth and Life, which others are departed from. And how can it be otherwise? how can the wrong eye, the wrong spirit, the wrong wisdom, but judge wrong; justifying the wrong practices, and condemning the right? But such shall find (if they come to the true Touchstone, even the Measure of Life indeed) that they are not in the true Tenderness, which proceeds from the Life, in the true Meekness and Gentleness, in the true Coolness and Stilness: but rather in the Reasonings, Noises, Clamours and Disturbances wich arise from another spirit, mind and nature, than that which is of the Truth. And in coming back from this wisdom to the pure Wisdom, from the pretended measure of life to the true Measure, and becoming tender, meek, cool and still in it, they shall there feel their error from the Spirit and Power of the Lord, and therein own their Condemnation therefore from him, and also justifie them who have abode in the Power, and been guided by the Spirit and pure Measure of Life, which is from God and in God, while they have departed from it. For though the Spirit of Error (wherewith they have been deceived and entangled) hath made them believe, that they have faithfully abode in the Principle and Doctrine of Truth, while others have departed; yet that will soon vanish, as Truth comes again to be felt and heard speak in them, and the Measure of Life to live again in them, and to redeem them afresh into its holy Nature and pure living Sense. And blessed is he who is not deceived, about Truth, but is of the pure Nature, and in the pure Power of it: in whom the true Eye ſees, the true Ear hears, the true Heart underſtands; who is of a right Spirit, and walketh uprightly before the Lord and among his People. The bleſſing of the Seed, the peace, comfort, and joy which is from the moſt High, ſhall deſcend upon him, fill his veſſel and continue with him, to the ſatisfying of his heart and the overflowing of his cup, in the midſt of his Brethren, and in the very ſight of his Enemies. The Lord God of his tender mercy, who is the great Shepherd of the Sheep, watch over, preſerve and mightily defend all his, from all devouring ſpirits and inward devices and deceits of the Enemy; carrying on and perfecting the work of his Goodneſs, Love and Mercy in them, to his own glorious, eternal, everlaſting Praiſe. Amen.

Written by Iſaac Penington in Alisbury Priſon.

To Friends in England, Ireland, Scotland, Holland, New-England, Barbadoes, or any where elſe, where the Lord God ſhall order this to come, in the tender Spirit of Life and Love, greeting.

O Friends,

IN the pure love of God, and freſh Breath of his living Spirit, is it now on my heart to write unto you, in fear, in tenderneſs, in meltings, and true ſenſe of Spirit; and the Lord God ſo guide my heart and words, as that they may reach the witneſs in the hearts of all that ſhall read, and may be felt by that to be purely of God, and not at all of the birth, will, or wiſdom of the fleſh.

I remember, I remember, O Friends, and it is in my heart to put you in remembrance of the cloudy, diſmal and dark day, wherein the Shepherd of Iſrael viſited our Souls, and what condition we were in, when he cauſed the Light of Life to ſhine upon our Tabernacles, and to ſpring up in us. O the deſolation, the deſolation that our Souls were in, in that day! O the wandrings up and down, the ſeekings, huntings, mournings, bitter complaints, and deep diſtreſſes for want of our God, and for want of the guidance of his good Spirit! who can utter now what was then felt of the thickneſs of darkneſs, of the miſery, the loſs, the dreadful captivity that poor Souls were entangled and wrapped up in? O how acceptable was the Viſitation of God then! how deep was the ſenſe of his tender Mercy in viſiting! how glad was the Soul then of the living Path revealed! how unfeigned did it cleave unto the Lord, and embrace the meaſure of his Life revealed inwardly to the mind! how did it fear! how did it wait! how did it watch againſt the Enemy, and cry to the Father for his help! how beautiful were the Feet, and how pleaſant the viſitations of them, who brought the tydings of this Life and Peace! What love, what unity, what embracing one another in this life, was then witneſſed in the hearts of one another! and where this lives and grows to this day, O how precious is that Veſſel! but where the Life in any is departed from, where another thing (of another nature) hath entred and been entertained by any, there it is not ſo, but there the love is grown cold, the mind changed, the goodneſs of the Lord forgotten, and the poor Soul again entangled in that which formerly it felt ſome releaſe and deliverance from.

Now that the enemy would endeavour to entangle the minds of the Redeemed, and to draw them back from the Lord, and his pure meaſure of Life in the heart, towards Perdition again, that is not to be queſtioned, it being his Nature and Property ſo to do; and that he would uſe, not only his ſtrength, but alſo all his ſubtilty and deceivableneſs to effect this (his aim being at the Church and Redeemed of God, more then at the World) appearing as an Angel of Light, in motions like Light, in ways like Life, this is not to be doubted of neither; for how else could he gain upon that, whose eye is towards, and whose aim is after the Lord? But this is the great thing for my heart, and the hearts of Friends, to be exercised in, to wait on the Lord, in his true Light, clearly to discern how far we have been assaulted by this Enemy; and how far the Lord hath preserved us from his Assaults, or suffered him to prevail upon us; for he hath prevailed in former Ages, under the ministration of the Law in the Prophets days, and under the ministration of the Gospel in the Apostles days; yea, and I must needs say, he hath also prevailed in our days, on all that have not watched in the pure Fear, and been preserved by the pure Power of the Lord. Now doth it not concern every one to look up to the Lord, to guide his heart in searching, that he may truly understand his state? that, if he can witness the preservation of the Power, he may sing praise to the Power; but if he hath been betrayed and come to a loss, he may seek after the power of Life again, and wait for deliverance and restoring by it. For with the Lord God is Mercy and Bowels, and he seeketh after and saveth the Lost, not once only, but again and again; onely here is the great danger of Souls when they are ignorant of their Captivity, and judge in themselves, and are guided by that, which should be judged down and destroyed in them; When Darkness is the light and leader in the Mind, O whither doth that Soul travel! how doth it judge, think, act! how sure doth the Enemy hold it in his Bonds and Chains! how easily doth he prejudice it against that, which is of God and for its good; and incline it to think favourably of that, which only appeareth to be of God, but is not, and is to its hurt.

Now Friends, there were three things on my heart this morning, which sprang up in true sense and demonstration of God's Spirit, as subtil engines, which the Enemy hath endeavoured to make use of to hurt our Souls; which any that have been entangled in, have received hurt by, and those that have escaped, have cause to bless the Name of the Preserver of ISRAEL.

The first is this, By getting in persons prejudices against those whom the Lord hath chosen, and pleaseth to make use of in Ministring to his people. Precious is the Ministry that is in the Spirit, for the building up in Life, as well as for begetting How doth the Enemy strive to prejudice the World against them, that there may be no begetting to God from amongst them? And how doth he also endeavour to raise prejudices among the Begotten, that he may interrupt, and (if possibly) stop their building up?

The second is this, To draw men from eying and subjecting to the present dispensation, by an earnest looking after and waiting for another or further. The security and blessing of the Soul lies in the present dispensation, in bowing to God there, in being diligent under the exercises of his Spirit therein. Now that which draws the mind another way, from the present exercise, from belief in the present gift, under a specious pretence of waiting for somewhat more glorious to appear, betrayes and deceives, & thus turning the mind out of the Path which God holds forth and guides into, towards expectation of a Path as yet to be revealed.

The third is this, Under a pretence of sticking to the enlightning and guidance of ones own measure, to set up a fence and judgement in the mind, both concerning persons, practices, and things, which is not truly of the measure, but secretly instilled into and raised up in the mind, contrary to the pure measure of Life. All these have I not only seen in Spirit, but been sorely assaulted with; and that they have not prevailed upon me, even to destruction, is the tender mercy and kindness of the Lord unto me; and in that tenderness and love, for the preservation of others do I write these things: And indeed, I have somewhat in my heart to say singly and nakedly concerning each of these, which the Lord guide and bless to the conditions of those who stand in need thereof.

First, Concerning those prejudices which the Enemy is apt to lay before the minds of Friends concerning those whom the Lord hath chosen to minister to them in the Power of his Truth, I shall say this: Look over the former dispensations of God; There were false Prophets under the Law, and false Apostles and Ministers in the time of that dispensation of the Gospel, who did strive and labour hard to disturb, undermine and overturn the Building and Work of God in the Spirits of his People then? but did God

ſuffer the True Prophets under the Law, or his True Apoſtles to fall and loſe their Miniſtry? And is not this preſent diſpenſation pure and living, and able to preſerve both the Inſtructers and Inſtructed in the Lord? It is natural to the Enemy to ſuggeſt ſuch a thing; but let all that fear the Lord and love his Truth, take heed how they entertain ſuch a ſuggeſtion. Beſides, he that hath felt the pure Power in his heart, and waited to be carried through the work of it, and hath been carried through and brought into the dominion, and ſet as a Pillar in the Temple of the Lord; it is not eaſie (if poſſible) for him to fall, the Lord having undertaken for him, that he ſhall go no more forth as Rev. 3. 12. But let me ſay this to thee, O Soul, who ever haſt entertained this prejudice, Thou through prejudices and ſuggeſtions judgeſt them fallen; but do not they, in the true Eternal Light of the Spirit of Life, ſee thee fallen? Nay, if thou couldſt but retire to the pure meaſure that at firſt quickened thee, mighteſt not thou feel thy own fall?

To the ſecond, Of drawing out the mind to look after another or further diſpenſation, I have this to ſay: Conſider what this diſpenſation is; Is it not of the Seed it ſelf? Is it not of the Light, Life and Power of the Father, manifeſted in the Seed, and in the Soul through the Seed? Is not the ſence quick, and the love pure, where this is felt? What wouldſt thou have, poor Soul? O that thou felteſt the vertue and power of this, ſurely thou wouldſt then find, that thou mighteſt ſet down here in the Peace, Purity, Power, Dominion and Perfection of Life; for it is all in the Seed, and to be revealed to thee, and become thine, as thou art gathered into the Seed, and the Seed opened in thee. Beſides, are there not many that have witneſſed, and that can witneſs from God, that this is the diſpenſation which is to go through the whole earth? and ſhall it be laid aſide in the beginning of its work? If there had been a Law given, which could have given Life, (ſaid the Apoſtle) Righteouſneſs ſhould have been by the Law. God doth not change. When he hath brought forth that which will do the thing, why ſhould he change it? Now of the ability of this, there are many witneſſes; Yea it hath brought forth Life and Righteouſneſs in thoſe that have been ſubject to it, and was once owned as the deſire of our Souls, and became a covering to our eyes that we could look no further; our hearts in the ſence and life of Truth, being ſatisfied that this was the very thing we had long mourned after, and waited for. O that which begets another ſence in any of us, (under what pretence or appearance ſoever) let it be the abomination of our Souls, that we hearken not, nor give the leaſt entertainment to it, leſt by it we be betrayed of our portion in the bleſſed Treaſure and Inheritance.

To the third I ſay; It is a ſtanding Truth, the Standard we were invited to, and to which we are to keep for ever, even the meaſure of Life in our own Veſſels. This will juſtifie us in our ſubjection to whatever it reveals; and its juſtification will ſtand, whatſoever any man elſe ſhall ſay to the contrary. But this is at unity in it ſelf, and never oppoſeth the motion or appearance of Life in another. Now this is certain, the Enemy will appear as neer life and its motion, as he can; and if I receive his appearance, I am not ſubject to the meaſure of life in me, but to him under his deceitful appearance: Therefore if that, which appears like Life in thee, contradict a practice or appearance of Life in others, (who were in the Truth before thee, and are in the growth thereof far beyond thee) oughteſt thou not to be ſober in Spirit, and to wait in fear, leſt thou ſhouldeſt be deceived, leſt thou ſhouldeſt exalt Self and the Enemy in thee, and not the Truth, yea leſt thy heart ſhould grow hard, and thy neck ſtiff againſt thoſe who are over thee in the Lord, and ſo thou loſe the benefit of their watching over thee and counſel to thee, and of God's preſervation? For out of the Truth, in the deceitful appearance, there is no preſervation, nor true Light, nor juſtification of Life, but ſelf-conceit, fleſhly confidence, and the juſtification of a mans own ſpirit; and his wiſdom then gets up, and exalts it ſelf, as if it were the right thing. The Lord gave the meaſure of Life to thee, and the Lord alſo hath given Fathers, Guides, Inſtructers, Watchmen, in his Iſrael. Theſe have a ſervice from the Lord towards thee, who knoweth that thy Soul hath need of that ſervice; now if the Enemy can prejudice thee againſt, and withdraw thee from the uſe of what thou needeſt, art thou not in danger of falling and miſcarriage? Doſt not thou ſet up the meaſure of Life in thee (if not another thing) beyond its place, ſtate and growth? And can any thing grow and thrive out of the Order and Wiſdom of God? Nay, nay, the very meaſure of life it ſelf will this way come to wither and die in thee, and another thing live in its place, and the Sword of the Lord will be drawn againſt thee, and thou wilt be cut off from the Body, and alſo from him who is the quickner and preſerver of the Body. Therefore my Friends, as the Enemy watcheth to deceive and deſtroy, ſo the Lord keep our Souls in the true Watch and looking up to him, who (to thoſe that fear him) diſcovereth the deceit, and preſerveth from the ſnare.

And this is witneſſed concerning the meaſure of Life in the heart, and the way of its acting and operation, that it always acts in its place, even in due ſubjection to the Father of Spirits, and to his Life in others according to its growth: for there is no rent nor diviſion in the living Body, no ſetting up one meaſure of Life againſt another meaſure, or one motion of Life againſt another motion, or one practice againſt another, but all there is in the unity, in the love, in the tenderneſs, in the ſence, in the peace, in the dominion, in the ſubjection; and that which differeth or diſſenteth from the Life, interrupting the Union and Uniformity in the Life, is not of the Life; which when it is every-where caſt out, Life to Life will anſwer every-where; which day my Soul breatheth and waiteth for, even the day wherein Life alone ſhall live and reign in every Veſſel, and all the devices and ſnares of the Enemy not be able to enter upon, or catch any of God's little ſimple-hearted ones; but ſtill by the power of Life riſing in clearneſs againſt them, be thrown back upon the Enemy, to his torment and diſadvantage.

And O dear Lambs, conſider how eaſie it is for you to miſtake, err, and wander from the Truth; and do not refuſe the care, watchfulneſs and tender counſel of thoſe who were inſtrumental to beget you to, and are yet over you in the Lord. Alas, how eaſie is it for the Enemy to deceive your ſimplicity, and get between you and your Life; and then ye are liable to miſ-ſee and miſ act in all ye do, and to follow the Enemy, as if he were your right guide; and to fight againſt, and reſiſt him who is your true Leader, as if he were your Enemy. The Life in you is to be your Guide and Leader, as it groweth up and receiveth ability, ſtrength and dominion from the Lord; but the Heir is to be under Tutors and Governours, till the time appointed of the Father. And the Seed is meek, humble, tender, lowly, ſenſible of its own ſtate and weakneſs, and ſubject to the exaltation, dominion and pure authority of Life in others where the Lord hath ſo exalted it. That which is otherwiſe in you (which is high, exalted, conceited of itſelf, and not ſubject to every degree of Life in others, according to its ſtate) is another thing; which is not of the true kind, but only under a guize appears to you as the true, and as it gets enterance, corrupts your hearts from the true, and diſtils its poiſon into your Spirits, which ye believing, entertaining and feeding upon, as if it were the true, grow up in his poiſonful nature (loſing the pure nature and fellowſhip of the Body) and are travelling whither ye are not aware, being gone from that which at firſt gathered, into that which through ſubtilty hath deceived, appearing to you as if it was ſtill the ſame, and that ye ſtill keep to it, but others are departed; whereas the thing is clean contrary in the ſight of the Lord, and in the ſight of thoſe who keep to the Anointing, and ſee with his eye. Therefore O dear Lambs and Babes, what need have we to wait, in tender ſenſe, for the Lord's preſervation of us in that Nature, Spirit and Life, whereof we were begotten, and wherein we were taught, that there we may ſtill learn and keep to the true teaching, in the innocency and ſimplicity of love, and not hearken to the wiſdom and reaſonings of another ſpirit, who lieth at watch to catch the mind with his wiles, and draw from the true thing. Mark how we learned at firſt; Was it not in a Nature, by a ſecret inſtinct and inclination of our minds towards the Life, and the Path, Wayes and Practiſes thereof; whereinto the Body (which before had been gathered) was led and walked before us? The ſame Life, when it maketh us part of the flock, bringeth us into the ſame footſteps, and there we walk with them, in the unity of the ſame Life, and ſenſe of the ſame Leader; but if the Enemy can at any time draw us from this ſenſe, and from the belief and practices or practice, which we received in this ſenſe, (even out of the limits of this nature and its naturalneſs) how eaſie is it for him to perſwade us to queſtion right things in our minds and underſtandings, as if they were wrong, (darkening our eye, and cauſing us to overlook and forget the leading and motion, which we had in the true ſenſe and nature, from the Anointing it ſelf) and ſo confidently to think and conclude, that we took up ſuch or ſuch a practice by imitation, and have held it up in form? whereas the Lord (who forgetteth not what and how he hath wrought in us) knoweth that we took it up in the sense and leading of his Truth, and are now tempted from that in the reasoning subtilty, which we formerly practised in the true innocent simplicity. And thus getting into us a belief and entertainment of his snare, he draws us from that which at first led us, and from the practices we were at first led into, to hearken to him and follow him, who instructeth us in a way we were not instructed in before while the Lord instructed us; and so destroyeth his Nature, and the work of his Spirit in us, dividing us both from the Head and living Body; and so our standing, growth, sense and judgment is altered, and we are neither to the Lord what we were before, nor is he to us what he was before; for he hates that Spirit in all its appearances, and cannot have unity with the Souls that are entangled by it. Therefore, dear Friends, as we prize our gathering to and abiding with the Lord, and the enjoyment of his Love, Peace, Joy and Presence at present, and the Crown and Inheritance of Life with him for ever; so let us fear, so let us watch, so let us cry unto him, to be preserved by him, which gathered us, in that into which he gathered, and not by any means betrayed (through subtilty of the Enemy) into another thing, where the life of the Body (and union with the Body) cannot possibly be witnessed, nor the true justification of the Lord, but only an appearing-justification of a mans's own spirit, which must afterwards come under condemnation. Ye, who are in the living and true sense, will feel my love, tenderness and faithfulness in what I write; and ye who are not, the Lord God of Bowels pity, and recover out of the snare and wrong judgment, that ye may feel it; and feeling that which is true, may be joyned to it, drinking of its vertue and preservation, and live; which is the earnest desire of my Soul to the Lord, who am

Your Brother and Companion, in the tribulation and mercies which attend the Living.

A POSTSCRIPT.

DEar Friends, Brethren, Lambs and Plants of the most High, it is in my heart to add one thing, which I have been deeply exercised about, and have received help from the Lord in, wherein I am truly willing (in faithfulness and tenderness) to be helpful to any of you that stand in need thereof, as the Lord shall give me ability and opportunity; It is this, Among other things, wherewith the Enemy endeavoureth to reproach those whom the Lord hath sent forth amongst us, he maketh use of this, as if they wanted Bowels and Tenderness. Now Friends, I beseech you consider it, that the Enemy may not thus enter you; Did not the Lord consider of his work, and whom he sent forth in this his service and labour of Love? Doth he not know the need of bowels and tenderness in them, and would he not especially furnish them therewith? Yea, have they not bowels from, and in the Lord? and doth not the eye that is open see, and acknowledge their bowels, and bless the Lord for them? I have lately been often warmed in the true sense of it, and have felt, that therein I have not blessed his Name in vain; but the thing is so in the sense of Truth, and so acknowledged before the Lord, in that which erreth not: Onely as true judgment and severity hath its proper place in the Lord as well as his Mercy, and is made use of by him towards his people, as all by experience know, so must it be in them also who bear his Image, who must know, in his Wisdom and Authority, whom to smite with his Rod and sharp Reproofs, and when, and whom to cherish in the tenderness and meltings of Love. And this is also love and tenderness (and hath sweet and precious vertue and usefulness in it, both for the recovery and restoring of those whose condition calls for the sharp stroke, and for the preservation of the rest) though it doth not so appear to that, which by no means can endure the judgment, but would have the tenderness and mercy which belongs not to it; for the mercy is to the broken, to the humble, to the meek, to the afflicted and bowed down ones under the sense of judgment, not to the stiff and stubborn against the righteous judgments and testimonies of the Lord. And my Friends consider, Could the Lord carry on his glorious Work, in the hearts of his Children, without his judgments? Or

Or can they, who are sent by him, possibly carry on his work among his people, without making use of his pruning-knife, to cut off that which sprouted out unnaturally and unseasonably, which (if it be let alone) will draw away the sap from that which should be fed and nourished with it. Dear Friends, the Lord give you a true sense, that in his Light, Life, Wisdom and Presence ye may justifie what is of him, discerning between things that differ, and not call any thing that is evil (as the rendernesse which is out of him is) good, nor any thing that is good (as the judgment and severity which is of him is) evil, but may rightly distinguish between the nature of things, knowing every thing that is of God, and owning it in its place.

One more tender Visitation to the Men of this Generation, sent to them in bowels of Love and tender Compassion, before their day be over.

Oh that those who read this, might read with a right understanding, and have a true sense of what is here proposed for the good of their Souls.

IF there be a God; and if this God hath let down a Principle of life from himself into the hearts of the sons of Men, to gather them out of the World unto himself by; and if we have been directed to and enlightened by this Principle, and have heard his voice and been gathered to him in it, and therein have been taught his true Spiritual Worship, and drawn out of the worships, fashions, customs and ways of the World, who are estranged from God, and walk in their own wisdom, satisfying the lusts of the flesh, and of the mind, and doing what is right in their own eyes: I say, if it be indeed so with us; then, that which any do against us in this respect, they do against God. The risings of heart against us, the hard words and reproaches, the contriving to destroy or root us out of the Land, the making and executing sharp laws against us, &c. All this, and what ever else is done against us on this account, must needs be done against him.

And what will this produce? will it not also engage the wisdom and power of the Lord against you? He may let us suffer long, and let you be hardened against us, as if we were not of God, by the slips and foolishness of such who have seemed to be of us, but have not kept to his Truth: yet still those that keep to the Spirit and Truth of God are of God, and he is tender of them. And if he that touched Israel after the flesh, touched the apple of his eye: what doth he, that toucheth his Spiritual Israel? We are content and quiet under what the Lord suffers to befall us from you: but ye will find, in the end, it will not be well for you to deal so with us. The Lord hath a spiritual crown, dignity and dominion in the hearts of many in this Nation: why should he not enjoy it; why should not Men let him enjoy his Heavenly rule, who giveth to them their earthly, and who can take it from them when he pleaseth? See Dan. 4.32, and 35.

Therefore my dear Country-men (and ye especially that are in Authority) consider, oh consider before it be too late. I hope, I hope (though the Provocations have been very great) that it is not yet too late for many of you to find a place of repentance and remission with the Lord. If ye can plead ignorance before the Lord, and that ye have not known what ye have done herein; He pittieth that, if ye yet hearken to his Councel and reproof, and return unto him. He hath power to deſtroy this Nation, he hath power to do what he will in this Nation; Oh fear before him, and take heed of fighting againſt him before whom none can ſtand.

Alas, if ye knew what we were doing, while ye are afflicting and perſecuting us for our ſubjection to the Lord, ſurely it could not but melt and overcome you, even how we have been mourning and wreſtling many times with our God, in earneſt Prayers and Supplications to him for you, not that we might eſcape your wrath (which he enableth us to bear) but that ye might eſcape his fury and terrible indignation, which we know is ready to break forth, and that ye will not be able to bear it, when it doth break forth, but it will purſue, overtake, break to pieces and ſcatter, and there will be none to deliver.

Are not theſe things ſerious? are they not true? are they not written in love? why ſhould they not take place in you? Oh come out of the circle and miſt of darkneſs, that ye may ſee the truth of them. If ye be not in the nature of Chriſtians, do not deceive your ſelves and provoke God, in taking the name unto you. If ye be true Chriſtians, do not judge or walk as men, even in and according to the wiſdom of the earthly principle; but feel that principle which is of God, and in that wait for, and learn, to hear and know the voice of God, and that will lead (out of all prophane wayes, out of all ſuperſtitious wayes, yea out of all the wayes that Man's fallen wiſdom hath taught and erred in) into the way of true and ſound judgment, where the true reformation within will be witneſſed by you, and the true reformation without brought forth through you (thus acting) and no ſeparation or rent from you heard of by them that fear the Lord.

But till then, the principle of God, the life of God in the heart, the pure wiſdom, which is from above, cannot own that which is from below, in its fall, in its ſeparation from the true, but muſt remain diſtinct from it, and a faithful witneſs againſt it. And I ſay again and again in the love and fear of God unto you, take heed how ye perſecute this in any, or any, becauſe of this: for it will lie more heavy upon you in the day of Gods pleading with you, and executing his Righteous Judgments, then all your other ſins. If ye have ears to hear, oh hear, and caſt up your accounts, making your peace with God, before his wrath break forth againſt you like a flood, which none can ſtop.

Feel my love, and the meltings of my ſpirit for you before the Lord, and be not hardened againſt the truth, leaſt ye remember my words, and the warnings of many of the precious Servants of the Lord, to the increaſe of your grief, and not to your benefit, in the day of your calamity.

Under the Goſpel.

Whereby it may appear what a miſerable Apoſtacy from the Truth hath overſpread and covered the Earth for many Ages and Generations, and how groſs and thick the darkneſs yet lies upon it, though the Light of God in his tender Mercy hath broke forth and ſhined upon the people of his gathering, and through them hath alſo viſited the World.

The guidance of this in my heart, was particularly and chiefly towards the Papiſts, but I afterwards had a true ſenſe, that it alſo extended to the ſtate of ſuch Proteſtants, as had not waited on the Lord, for him (in his Wiſdom and Power) to rear up his own Building, but had ventured to build of themſelves, and ſo had reared up Churches in the ſame ſpirit of Error, Darkneſs, and Apoſtacy, which they ſeemed to depart from: againſt all which the Lord will fight, and all which he will break down, in the day of the revelation of the glorious Light and Power of his Truth, which will overcome, ſubdue and reign over the Earth, not after the manner of men, but in the heavenly dominion of his Life.

Some Obſervations upon the Eternal Judgment, as it is expreſſed by Chriſt, Mat. 25. 31. to the end of the Chapter.

The Preface.

BEcauſe the corruption of the Chriſtian Doctrine and Worſhip hath been great (yea indeed very great) ſince the dayes of the Apoſtles; and the Judgments alſo are to be very great, becauſe of this Corruption, even dreadful Woes, Plagues, Cups of Wrath and Thunders unutterable, as is expreſſed in the Book of the Revelations. Therefore, that men may avoid the terrible Wrath of God, which is breaking and to break forth, by diſcerning and and forſaking that, which his Wrath is againſt; therefore, I ſay, in tender bowels was it in my heart to diſcover ſomewhat of that, which the Lord hath made manifeſt to me (among many others) concerning the creeping in of this corrupt ſtate, and its getting up after the dayes of the Apoſtles, with its continuance to this day; that Men and Churches may conſider their ſtate, ſee their nakedneſs, and look after the pure Garment, that they may be cloathed with the Spirit of the Lord, and found in the righteouſneſs thereof, that ſo they may ſtand boldly before him, when the tranſgreſſors and hypocrites (of all ſorts) ſhall have their fig-leaf coverings ripped off, and lie open to the ſtrokes of his Indignation. And this I ſay to all; Take heed of two things, in this Day of the Lord's Love and Vengeance; Take heed of retaining or ſetting up any thing, which the Lord is coming forth againſt; and take heed of ſlighting or appearing againſt that, which the Lord is preparing to ſet up. The appearance of his Spirit, the ſhining of his Day is precious, even in the meaneſt glimmerings of it. O who ſhall be guiltleſs before him, who defendeth or ſetteth up any thing of man's will or wiſdom (his Sun, Moon and Stars, in all their glory, being to fall and loſe their ſhining) or who debaſeth the loweſt appearance of his Seed! And if the Jews ſuffered ſo deeply, for refuſing and deſpiſing Chriſt's appearance in the fleſh, what will light on thoſe who refuſe and deſpiſe his appearance in Spirit? I know this, that Chriſtians now overlook and ſlight this, as the Jews did that, and by the ſame ſnare, even by a prejudice they have drunk in, that this is contrary to the Scriptures, as the Jews then did conclude, that that coming of Chriſt then was not agreeable to, but different from what the Scriptures had ſaid concerning his coming. But what ſaid Chriſt then? Wiſdom is juſtified of her Children. They, who then were of the Spirit, and in the Spirit, knew the voice of the Bridegroom then. And ſuch alſo know it now, and rejoyce in it; though the wiſe in another wiſdom (according to the Scriptures, as they think) refuſe and diſdain it; and not knowing the Righteouſneſs of Chriſt in Spirit, ſet up a Righteouſneſs of their own in fleſh: for their believing (and applying to themſelves the Righteouſneſs of Chriſt) out of the true limits of Life, according to their own apprehenſion of things, is no other. And this muſt fall. Man's knowledge of Scriptures, the faith of man, through his own apprehenſions, muſt fall; and man appear naked underneath; that the glorious Righteouſneſs of Chriſt in Spirit, and the precious covering thereof may be magnified over all. And in this Light of Life, and newneſs of Nature in Chriſt, runs the Blood which cleanſeth, and not elſewhere. It runs not according to mens notions, but in its own life, virtue and power in the heart: where (where it is livingly felt) the iniquity is waſhed away, the ſin is gone, the everlaſting Righteouſneſs appears, yea the Water-ſprings, which waſheth and keepeth clean continually. Away with your Notions and empty huſks. O ſeveral ſorts of Profeſſors, come to the thing it ſelf, or rather wait on the Lord to be led to it, that ye may feel the Seed, the pure Seed, the living Seed, the Holy One of God, and may know its planting and growth in you, and your unclothing and emptying of all elſe, that ye may be cloathed upon and filled with it. And in the ſenſe of it, and unity with it, ye will own and love what comes from it, and rejoyce in all the ſpringings of its Light, either within or without.

O

Of the Church-ſtate under the Goſpel.

THe Jews Church-ſtate under the Law was precious, (who walking with God, according to the Covenant of the Law) were an holy People, nigh and dear unto God above all other People. But they provoked him ſo continually and grievouſly, that inſtead of bleſſings) they drew plagues upon themſelves, and were at laſt by his righteous Judgments made deſolate, and cut off from being any longer his ſelect Nation and People.

The Church-ſtate of the Chriſtians under the Goſpel, is much more precious and glorious, they being gathered into the ſubſtance of that , whereof the Jews State had but the ſhadow. The Preſence of God, the manifeſtation of his Life and Power is more inward and bright among them; their union with him more cloſe, their communion and joy more full, he tabernacling among them, dwelling and walking with them, and advancing them into the ſtate of ſons and daughters, whereas the Law-ſtate was but a ſtate of ſervitude. And their ſtanding alſo is more firm; the Covenant wherein they ſtand, being more able to hold them together with God than the other was. The ſtanding of the other was by the works of the Law, which they were to obſerve and live. The ſtanding of theſe is in the Faith, which is from the Power, which worketh their works in them and for them.

Yet, as they are gathered in the Faith: ſo their ſtanding is in the Faith; and out of it they cannot be preſerved. So that (before they are eſtabliſhed) there is a poſſibility of their fall from the Faith, wherein their ſtanding is, and from the Power which preſerveth. And if they ſo fall, they are liable to be cut off, as the Jews were, as their Apoſtle tells them, Rom. 11. 20, 21, 22. In the fear, in the humility before the Lord, in keeping to the Faith their ſafety is: but if they become high-minded, becauſe of their State and Church-priviledges; if they think their ſtanding ſo ſure, as that they are out of the danger of falling: then they are out of the fear, out of the humility, out of the Faith which preſerves; and being out of the Preſervation, they muſt needs fall, and ſo continuing muſt needs be cut off.

Now the ſame Apoſtle doth not only warn them to take heed of falling from the Faith, but afterwards expreſly foretels of a falling away, even that there muſt come ſuch a thing among them alſo; yea, and of ſuch a falling away from the Truth and Power of Life, as ſhould give Antichriſt advantage to get into God's Temple, and ſit there as God, taking upon him the power and authority, as if he had the true Power and Authority of God, 2 Theſſ. 2 ver. 3, 4. And what doth he then? doth he not corrupt all? even as God's Power and Preſence purifies and preſerves all. And as he ſhews himſelf as God: ſo doth he not alſo ſhew forth his Church, as God's Church? Yes, it goes ſo in the World, as God's. All that drink of his Spouſes Cup take it to be ſo, who are very many and great ones, even Kings and Inhabitants of the Earth, Peoples, Multitudes, Nations and Tongues (Rev. 17. 2, 15. and chap 18. 3.) and none are able to diſcern that it is not ſo, but thoſe that are anointed with the true eye-ſalve, which giveth to ſee through his deceits, 1 John 2 20. For he cometh with all deceivableneſs of unrighteouſneſs (2 Theſſ. 2. 9, 10.) he makes the Church (after he hath got poſſeſſion of it and made it his, ſitting as God in it) appear as like the true Church as poſſibly he can, that he may hold up his myſtery of deceit in the World, which if once diſcerned, would ſoon fall and come to nothing; 2 Theſſ 2. 7. Rev. 17. 5.

To open theſe things a little more fully and further from the Scriptures, that they who yet cannot read otherwiſe, may read them there, and come in ſome meaſure to the acknowledgment of the Truth, and wait for the power from on high, from whence is the true Faith (wherein is the true Church, and its ſtanding) for want of which the World is become a Wilderneſs, full indeed of Profeſſion, but very empty of the nature and life of Chriſtianity.

Chriſt tells his Diſciples, that falſe Chriſts and falſe Prophets ſhould come and deceive many; yea that they ſhould prevail ſo far, as if it were poſſible, to deceive the very Elect, Mat. 7. 15. and ch. 24. 11, 24. The Lord God had ſent forth his truth, and now now after it he suffers to go forth a power of Deceit, a mighty power, even having all manner of Deceivableness of unrighteousness in it, 2 Thess. 2 9, 10, 11. And it works according to its power, it gathers all its own every where. Not one, but he that is of the Elect Seed can stand before it. Now the reason, why God suffered this to go forth, was in Judgment. Men had dallied with the Truth, had took up a Form of Godliness, and rejected the Power: therefore God withdraws from the Form, and suffers the unclean spirit to enter it, and the uncircumcised nature of man to shelter it self there: It arose also from the Devil's subtilty, who finding himself dispossessing of his kingdom, played this Masterpiece (both to save what he could at present, and to recover the rest again in process of time.) He (in his Apostles and Ministers) takes upon him the profession of Christianity, sending them forth as the Ministers of Righteousness, (2 Cor. 11. 13, 15.) but for all that, they were still of the worldly nature, of the worldly root, spirit and principle: And so by them, he brings forth Christianity (or the profession and observation of the Christian Religion) in such a way, as would please the worldly mind and nature: And bringing it forth so, he gathers to him all, that were not gathered and preserved by the Power, and so becomes the greater Body and Church in view, and the rest (as to the outwardness of their Church-state) are fain to give way, and retire into the Power, out of their former place and station in the world, Rev. 12.

Now as Christ had said, that false Christs and false Prophets should come: so John said they were come, 1 Joh. 2. 18. and also shewed from whence they come, They went out from us, ver. 19. They were such as came into the Form among us, but were not begotten of the Life, nor subject to the Power with us. And there were many of them, chap. 4. 1. and such they were as had a great power of Deceit, and came therewith to seduce them, 1 Joh. 2. 26. Therefore he bids them (in the Unction which they had received, v. 27. which searcheth and discerneth all) try the spirits. If their spirit (or the spirit that is in them) confess Christ (who is the power of the endless life, the sum, substance and end of all that which shadowed-forth life) they are of God, chap. 4. 2. But if their spirit confess not Christ come in the flesh, though they may seem never so much to preach him, they are not of God, ver. 3. Now whose spirit confesseth Christ? Surely his only that is subject to him. He that preacheth Christ in words, and denieth him in works, (whose works are not wrought in Christ, nor brought forth by Christ) his confession is but outward, but formal; it is no true confession. It is but the confession of his mouth, not of his spirit: and he is, in the sight of God, not a confessor, but a denier of him. And whoso is enabled by God to try spirits (and waiteth in his Light and Anointing to try such) findeth him to be so, notwithstanding all his fair words and speeches of Christ, and his pretending to be his Minister, Rev. 2. 2. For men with fine words and fair speeches may deceive the hearts of the simple: but they cannot deceive those, to whom God giveth ability to try spirits. Could the Devil deceive Christ, when he said, Thou art the Son of God? No, Christ knew his spirit to be against him, notwithstanding those words. And can the Ministers of Antichrist deceive the Elect of God, when they preach up Christ (in words) to be the Saviour and Redeemer, and yet own not that Life and Power which saves, but persecute it where ever they find it? No, The same Spirit of Christ in them discerneth quite through their words, to their spirit. My Sheep, saith Christ, hear my voice, Joh. 10. 27. Man may be deceived and caught in the snare: but the Elect, the Sheep know the voice of the Shepherd from the voice of the Stranger. If the Stranger say, Christ is the Son of God: though he believes and owns the thing, yet they receive it not from his mouth. Well; whence are these false Prophets and false Christs? They are of the World. That's their root. Thence they come. They are of the worldly spirit, the worldly wisdom, the worldly nature, only cloathed outwardly with a profession and shew of the Doctrine and Practices of Christ and his Apostles. And what do they do? They preach worldly things. They suit their doctrine to the worldly nature, principle and spirit. And what is their success? The World heareth them, 1 Joh. 4. 5. The earthly wisdom in man falls in with them, judges them to be right, owns them, sets up their way of Christianity and Worship in the World: and thus the World become Christians. Those which came in the Name of Christ, the World could not receive. (He that knoweth God, heareth us; not the World, 1 John 4. 6.) There were but a few (in comparison) gathered here and there then: a few in one place, a few few in another. The Doctrine that comes forth in the Power, scatters the worldly part. Man's wisdom, man's nature cannot receive it, in the Love and Life of it. But when these false Christs and false Prophets come, the World can turn Christians; then a whole City, or a whole Nation can presently become a Church. Why so? These come in that, which the World can receive, which their wisdom can answer, fall in with, and subject to. These can bring forth a Cross, which the World can like, fall down and worship; but the Cross of Christ they cannot: for that crucifies and slayes the worldly nature, wherever it is felt, taken up, and subjected to. The way of Life is strait and narrow, and few there be that can walk therein: but a broader way more may walk in. The true Church is not easily found or entered into; but the false is wider and far larger, yea, desirable to the flesh. The true Church is circumspect, will admit none but in the way of God's Wisdom and Power; but the false Church prostitutes and thrusts her self upon all. She meets men in the streets and forceth them into her bed; whereas the voice of the true Church is, Wait for the preparation, for the being changed by that which giveth entrance into the Truth: for the Builder of the Church is God, Heb. 3. 4. (he builds this House by Christ, ver. 6. as by Moses he built the House under the Law) and he is the Ladder to the Building, Act. 2. 47.

So Paul also writing to Timothy, tells him of perillous times in the last days, 2 Tim. 3. 1. For when the last days come, and the Antichrists and false Prophets appear, then men are in great danger of being deceived, and of making shipwrack of Faith and a good Conscience. Then he that is not in the Truth, but only in the form and outward appearance, will be swallowed up by the deceit, and take up his dwelling in the Form without the Power: for so saith the Apostle concerning them, v. 5. they have a Form of Godliness, but deny the Power of it. And all manner of Wickedness will shelter it self under this Form, Self-love, Covetousness, Boastings, Pride, Blasphemy, Disobedience to Parents, Unthankfulness, Unholyness, &c ver 2, 3, 4. and indeed what not? For what is so evil, which cannot shelter it self under that Form of Religion and Profession, where there is not the true Power and Life of Religion to resist and subdue it?

Now mark; When these Antichrists and false Prophets had got up into a body and strength, gaining Authority and Credit in the World; what did they then do, but endeavour wholly to crush and suppress the Truth, with those that abode still in it? Then the Dragon, with his Angels, fighteth with Michael and his Angels. They had still been fighting with the Apostles and Ministers of Christ, endeavouring to disparage them, and eat out their esteem in the Churches (as 2 Cor. 11.) but they could not prevail, Satan, in all his enterprizes, fell down like Lightning, before the Glory and Power of Christ in his Apostles and Ministers. But when the Apostacy encreased, and the Churches provoked their Preserver, growing cold in Love and faint in Faith (being lifted up with their Gifts, thinking highly of themselves, and their standing to be firm) and many received not the love of the Truth, but only a profession of it for by-ends, &c. Then the Lord began to threaten some with the removal of their Candlestick, and did afterwards proceed in Judgment, even to let the false Prophets and Antichrists prevail, and strong Delusions enter, that they who had dallied with the Truth, might be frustrated of the Salvation they expected by it, meeting with a lie (which destroyeth) in the stead of it, 2 Thess. 2 10, 11. 12 And so God, who before built up, in his jealousie and indignation afterwards threw down men abiding not in the Faith, nor in the Power, but in the Form and outward Profession which separated from the Power, the Lord abhorreth.) What he loves, he secures for himself, (his holy Temple, his holy Altar, his spiritual Worshippers:) and what he regarded not (which was the Form and outward Ordinances, now polluted) he gave to the heathenishly-professing spirit; and there they worship, and magnifie their own state, prizing it by its outward glory and appearance, and not by a right sence and knowledge of it in the Truth. Read these things outwardly, in the letter (or rather wait upon God that ye may read them, who caused them to be writ to that end, for to be read and understood) Rev. 12. and chap. 11. 1, 2. Where the battel of the Dragon is related, and God's taking down his Building, and disposing of it according to his pleasure.

Again mark. Antichrist gets into the Temple (upon the falling away) sits there as God, ruling, giving Laws, and exacting Obedience in the Name of God: But when was this to be? In the last times, 1 Tim. 4. 1. (which would be very perillous, through the power of wickedness and deceit, then getting up) when did those times begin? They began in the Apostles days. The Mystery of Iniquity was then at work, 2 Thess. 2. 7. Yea, saith John, it is the last time; by the coming of the Antichrists and Deceivers we know it to be so, 1 Joh. 2. 18. Christ said, They should come; John said, they are come; Paul saw them then at work in the Mysterious Power of Darkness. But they could not carry their work through; the Spirit and Power of Christ in his Apostles stood so much in their way: but after they were removed out of the way, Antichrist got up his Mystery of Deceit apace. Well, how long doth he raign? Even till the very coming of Christ in his Spirit and Power; yea, there is some remainder of him, till the very brightness of his coming, 2 Thess. 2. 8. This Mystery of Iniquity hath power and authority over all the wisdom of man: but the appearance of Christ, in the Spirits of his people, hath power over it, and tormenteth it, by opening its nakedness and causing its darkness to appear; and the brightness of his coming shall quite dissolve and scatter it: For it is but a mist of darkness, it hath no being in the Truth, nor can it stand before the Truth. So Babylon is found standing at the very last; just before the breaking forth and coming down of the new Jerusalem, and the Marriage of the Lamb with his Bride, Rev. 19. 6, 7. What is Babylon? A Mystery of Iniquity in a Form of Godliness. A Profession, a People, a Religion, that seem to set up Christ; but set up another nature, spirit and power in his stead. A Church that is not of God, not formed in his Divine Wisdom, not brought forth in his Light and Power, and in the season of his Will; but of man, and by man, that can go no further in Religion than the number of a man. Sion, under the Gospel, is not literal, but mystical: and so is Babylon also, who is the mother of Fornications, who teacheth her daughters to adulterate from the Life and from the Power, who never knew the Marriage of the Lamb in his Spirit, nor his pure Bed of Life, but enter into the chambers and bed of a strange spirit.

Qu. But what is the state of the Church all this while, from this hour of corruption, till the coming of Christ in his Spirit and Power?

Ans. A state of desolation, a state of widowhood, a wilderness-state, where her living body is not discerned by the vulgous eye; but her children, whenever they appear witnessing for her, are persecuted, hunted, afflicted, and sometimes slain. This bloody Church, which comes from the red Dragon, and rules in his spirit and nature, drinks the blood of the Lambs and Martyrs of JESUS, who in their several Ages are his faithful Witnesses, and love not their lives unto the death. And here the Truth, and that which hath appeared of the true Church in the world, for Ages and Generations (ever since this night of the Dragon's and Antichrists darkness, and his sitting in the Temple under an appearance of light) hath only been to be found, even among the Persecuted Ones, who have been dear to God, of whom the Professing World hath not been worthy, no not at all, of that heavenly life, spirit and power, which dwelt in them, and through which they have been able to testifie for the Truth, and bear up their heads against the malice and persecutions of their enemies, Rev. 12. 11, 17, &c. and chap. 11. 3, 7. chap. 13. 15, 16, 17. chap. 14. 12. chap. 17. 6.

Now, for a close, There are a few Questions in my heart, briefly to propound and answer, which it may please God to reach forth to his witness in such, who in distrust of themselves and their own wisdom, shall wait upon him for understanding. The Questions are these. First, what a true Church is? 2*dly*. How a true Church may be known? 3. How a true Church may continue so? 4 How a Church may lose its state and being? 5. When a Church hath lost its state and being?

Quest. 1. What a true Church is?

Ans. A true Church is a truly Spiritual Body, gathered out of the World, or worldly nature and spirit, into God's Spirit and Nature, there to live and walk with him, and worship him in Spirit and Truth, and for him to tabernacle in and walk among, and fill with his glorious Presence and powerful Life. Eph. 2. 21, 22. 1 Pet. 2. 5. Joh. 4 23. 2 Cor. 6. 16. It is not the Profession of the Truth, makes a true Believer; nor is it a company of Professors makes a true Church: but their proceeding from, and union with the Truth it self, and their abiding in the Life and Power of that which they profess; Eph. 4 16.

Quest. 2. How a true Church may be known?

Ans.

Anſ. There muſt be ſomewhat in man to know them, and ſomewhat in them to be known by. That in man which knows them, muſt be ſomewhat of God in him: for that which is of man cannot meaſure or judge of the things of God. As the worldly wiſdom and ſpirit could not know Chriſt formerly: ſo neither now can it know his Church. Many may appear to be Churches of Chriſt, and yet not be ſo: and that which is ſo, may not appear ſo. In this caſe, who ſhall diſtinguiſh? Not he that judgeth according to the appearance, but he that judgeth the Righteous Judgment. Therefore it is not for every man to take upon him to judge, which is the true Church: but firſt to wait upon God to be led into that, and in ſome meaſure born of that, which giveth ability to judge. Wiſdom is juſtified of her Children: but of others ſhe is condemned for fooliſhneſs, and the fooliſhneſs juſtified in her ſtead.

And there is alſo ſomewhat for the Church to be known by, which is that which diſtinguiſheth her from all other Aſſemblies and Gatherings, which is the nature, life and preſence of the Head with her and in her. This none hath, but the true Church, the gathered Body, the ſeparate Body of the Lamb, which is of his fleſh and of his bones, Eph. 5. 29, 30. Her Husband is with her, his life is in her: for ſhe is a living body, or gathering of living ſtones. So that find the true life of the Lamb any where, there is ſomewhat of his Church: find a gathering in his Life, Name and Power, there is his Church, and he alſo: For where two or three are gathered together in my Name, there am I in the midſt of them, Mat. 18. 20.

Queſt. 3. How a true Church may continue ſo?

Anſ. By abiding in the Spirit, Life, and Power, that gathered and built them up into a Church. This firſt gave them their being; and this ſtill preſerves them in their being: (if they abide till they be perfected and eſtabliſhed) but falling or being cut off from this, thy wither, die, and come to nothing. Even as a Diſciple, departing out of the Vine, making ſhipwrack of the Faith, loſeth that which made him a Diſciple or Chriſtian, John 15. 6. So a Church, departing from the Spirit and Life of what they profeſs, languiſh by degrees, even till their life be wholly extinct and they wholly loſe that ſtate and being which they had by their gathering. Thus the Churches in Aſia, beginning to corrupt, grew formal, lukewarm, dead, &c. Were warned to repent and ſtrengthen that which remained, leſt they were ſpued out, the Candleſtick removed, &c. Rev. 2d and 3d chapters.

Queſt. 4. How may a Church loſe its ſtate and being?

Anſ. Several wayes; as firſt, By departing from the Truth and Simplicity of the Goſpel, letting in Doctrines, Principles, Obſervations, Cuſtoms and Practices, which are not of the pure Spirit, nor in the unity of it, but from the corrupt ſpirit, and which corrupt the minds of them that are entangled in them. Corrupt doctrines, corrupt principles, corrupt practices, &c. They all have of the nature and poiſon of death in them; and as they prevail, they bring death upon (and engage God againſt) that Perſon or Church where they get dominion. See what danger one corrupt Doctrine of the Nicolaitans brought the Church of Pergamus unto, even of God's coming forth with his ſword and fighting againſt her, Rev. 2. 16. And if God, who is the Defender of his Church, Himſelf fight againſt her, how ſhall ſhe ſtand?

2. By negligence and ſluggiſhneſs in the Truth: by this means alſo life may languiſh and extinguiſh by degrees, even till death come wholly over and ſwallow it up, Rev. 3. 1, 2, 3. If the firſt Love do but abate and wax cold, Iniquity will be abounding, Mat. 24 12. and the Church will be in danger of loſing its Candleſtick, Rev. 2. 4, 5.

3. By God's withdrawing his Preſence and Power (for theſe or ſuch cauſes aboveſaid) which nouriſheth and preſerveth. For the life of a Church (as well as of a Diſciple) is fed and nouriſhed from the Fountain or Vine; and if it miſs of the nouriſhment, its life cannot long continue. The Jews may keep up their Sacrifices, and reading of the Law; But yet they are a dead people to God after their cutting off from the Olive-tree. And the Gentiles may worſhip in the outward Court, and keep up the outward Ordinances, after God's rejecting and cutting them off alſo, and be as dead to God therein, as the Jews in theirs, Rev 11. 1, 2. and Rom. 11. 21, 22.

4. By their liſtening and yielding to the power of the Enemy, who quickly deceiveth, (with his Lies, inſtead of the Truth) deſtroyeth, and layeth waſte ſuch buildings, where God in his juſt Judgement letteth him forth upon them. For the Gates of Hell will prevail against that building, which the Arm of Christ is not stretched forth (or ceaseth) to defend. And as the defence of every particular Building upon the Rock, is in its abiding there, and subjecting to the Head; so the defence of larger Gatherings, or Churches, is no otherwise. As their union and gathering is; so is their standing, to wit, in believing and giving up to their Leader, hearkning to his voice, and obeying him only. But if they hearken to a Stranger, if they hear another voice than his; if they follow another spirit, letting in his lies and deceit; they cannot keep their standing in the Truth, but in so doing depart from it, and lose the promise and protection of it. For, as before, by God's gathering them from the spirit of darkness, they became His and met with his Power, Presence and Blessing; so afterwards, being again (by any subtilty of deceit) gathered from the Truth it self, into some likeness and appearance of it, which the Enemy hath formed, they become the Enemies Synagogue, not God's Church, into which he entereth again, and dwelleth there, in that likeness and appearance. And this House, which was once cleansed, swept and garnished by God, being again recovered and repossessed by the Enemy, becomes worse and more filthy in the nature of wickedness, than it was before. What is more pure, glorious and excellent, than a true Church of God, which is sanctified by his Spirit, and holds forth the vertues and pure nature of his Life in the world? What is more filthy and abominable, and where doth Satan more strongly dwell and act, than in that which pretends to be a Church and is not? The Promises of God are only to the Seed absolutely; but not so to any man or society of men, but as (in the tender mercy of the Lord) they are gathered into, and preserved in the Seed, in the way that the Lord hath chosen and appointed. For the way of Life is glorious and perfect, and the Lord will honour it; so that those that expect to reap Salvation from him, must walk and abide with Him therein; for besides Him there is no Saviour; and besides his Way, there is no way of Salvation, either for any man or Church.

Quest. 5. When hath a Church lost its state and being?

Ans. When its nature is changed, when it is overcome by and gathered into another power and spirit, than it was first gathered into by the Lord; when its standing is not in the Spirit, nor after the Spirit, but in the flesh and after the flesh; when its wayes are carnal, its weapons carnal; when its hedge or wall is broken down, and the spirit of the world not kept out, but entred into it and become one with it. Then it is no longer of God, and separate from the world, but one in nature, state and being with the world, Rev. 2. 9.

These things are written in the love and good-will of God, that men may see that spirit, which hath bewitched and entangled them from him, with the wayes and false appearances wherein it hath entangled them, and may wait on the Lord (in truth of heart) for his Light, Guidance and Power to deliver them; that so they may come into his Holy Land, and within the limits of his Holy City, out of all polluted Lands and Buildings (where his Holy Nature dwelleth not, and the Pure Dominion of his Holy Life and Power is not felt) that they may sing Praise to Him among his Redeemed Ones, for his precious Redemption; who is breaking the bonds of Captivity, and redeeming His out of all Lands and Countries, wherein they have been scattered in the cloudy and dark day, Glory in the Highest to his Name for evermore.

Some Queries to the Professors of Christianity, to provoke them to jealousie for their good.

Qu. 1. Have ye eat of the Bread and drank of the Wine in the Father's Kingdom, which they that have received the Kingdom, and are in the Kingdom, eat and drink of?

Qu. 2. Have ye known the heavenly Jerusalem, and are ye come to it, as the Christians were in the Apostles dayes? Heb. 12. 22.

Qu. 3. Are ye in Him that is true, and your Churches and Gatherings in God, and in the Name of his Son? Is your being and dwelling in the Eternal Life?

Qu. 4. Have ye received the Promise of the Father, even the excellent Spirit of the Son?

Qu. 5.

Qu. 5. Have ye the true Faith? Do the living Waters spring out of your bowels, according as the Scriptures have said? He that believeth on me, out of his belly shall flow rivers of living water, Joh. 7. 38. and chap. 4. 14.

Qu. 6. Doth God tabernacle in you? is his dwelling among you? doth he walk up and down in your spirits, and sup with you, and you with him?

Qu. 7. Are ye in the New Covenant; taught of God so, as ye need no man to teach you? and your sins so blotted out (according to the Covenant) as to hinder no good things from you?

These things were spoken of in the Law and Prophets, to be fulfilled, witnessed and enjoyed under the Power and Life of the Gospel; which is not a state of the names and forerellings of things, as under the Law, but of the presence and enjoyment of the things themselves: and so far as ye fall short of them, ye fall short of the state of Christianity.

SOME OBSERVATIONS UPON THE Eternal Judgment,

As it is expressed by CHRIST, Matth. 25. 31. to the end of the Chapter.

Obser. 1.

THe condition of Christ here in this world, in many of his Members, in their several Ages and Generations. He is hungry, thirsty, a stranger, naked, sick, and in prison: yea indeed, what is there of misery, shame and reproach, which he is not exposed to, or which they are not exposed to, who entertain Him as their Lord and King, and are faithful in their obedience and subjection to him? ver. 35, 36 and 43.

Obser. 2.

The notice Christ takes of what is done in this kind, or not done in this kind, to any of his suffering Members; which extends to all, even the very least. Insomuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these ye have done it unto me, ver. 40. Insomuch as ye did it not to one of the least of these, ye did it not to me, ver. 45.

Obser. 3.

The honourable esteem Christ hath of his poor suffering Members, with what eye of contempt soever the World looks upon them, yet he looks upon them as his Brethren, ver. 40.

Obser. 4.

The different carriages of persons towards Christ, in this his low condition in his Members. Some gave him meat, some gave him drink, some took him in, some cloathed him, some visited and came unto him; ver. 35, 36. Others did none of these things unto him, ver. 43.

Obser. 5.

The different Judgment Christ passeth upon these, according to their different carriages. The one he pronounceth blessed of his Father, judging them to the inheritance of of a Kingdom of Eternal Life, ver. 34, and 46. The other he pronounceth Curſed, and adjudgeth to Everlaſting Puniſhment in the fire of his Wrath, ver. 41. 46.

Obſer. 6.

The ground or reaſon why thoſe, who did not miniſter to him, neglected him, which was their ignorance of him. They ſaw indeed, and knew ſeveral perſons to be in ſuch kind of conditions, but they did not know that it was Chriſt which ſuffered in them; This is implied in their Anſwer to him, ver. 44. When ſaw we thee an hungry, or athirſt, or a ſtranger, or naked, or ſick, or in priſon, and did not miniſter unto thee? ver. 45.

Obſer. 7.

That it will not excuſe men from the Judgment, their not knowing of Chriſt in his Members: but if they neglect and have not done this thing (though they may plead never ſo ſtrongly that they did not know any ſuch) they will incur and muſt ſuffer the Judgment. The Jews cryed up Moſes and the Prophets, which had been before, and yet perſecuted Chriſt and his Apoſtles: And many now cry up the Prophets, and Chriſt's appearance in a body of fleſh (with his Death, Reſurrection, Aſcenſion, &c.) and alſo the Apoſtles, both their words and Practices; and yet perſecute him (and the ſame practices) in his preſent Servants and Members. How will theſe poſſibly eſcape this Judgment?

Object.

But they that did miniſter unto him, they knew not that it was he neither, as ver. 37, 38, 39. Therefore they doing of it ignorantly (as we may ſay) it ſeemeth to want its due weight, and not to render them ſo worthy of the reward, as if they had done it in a clear and diſtinct underſtanding.

Anſwer.

They did not know it ſo, as to put ſo great a value upon it, as Chriſt here doth: but they knew that they had done things of this kind, and that they had done them on Chriſt's account. But that Chriſt was ſo in thoſe to whom they did them, as he now ſpeaks; and that he would ſet ſo high an eſteem of it, that they were not aware of. Was it thou thy ſelf that waſt naked, ſick, in priſon, &c. and didſt thou take all this as done to thee? This is wonderful to us, that thou ſhouldſt ſo ſet by what we poor worms did to thy ſuffering Saints, in thy Name and Fear.

Queſt.

But why doth Chriſt make this the ground of the General and Univerſal Judgment? Men have committed many other ſins (ſome of which are in appearance far greater:) why doth Chriſt mention none of them, but fix the Judgment only upon this?

Anſw.

Surely becauſe this is more in his eye, and more hateful to him than them all. This argues an evil nature and ſpirit, and the joyning of the mind to the wicked one, more than them all. For it plainly ſhews, that there is none of the Love and Nature of Chriſt in ſuch perſons: for if there be of the Love and Nature of Chriſt in any perſon, it will encline his heart towards thoſe which are Chriſt's, and eſpecially in their ſuffering conditions. He therefore that hath no ſenſe of thoſe that belong to Chriſt, in their ſuffering conditions, ſheweth plainly, that he hath none of Chriſt's Nature in him, and ſo is not at all found in that which Chriſt comes to ſave, but in that which he comes to judge and deſtroy for ever.

Now I have three Queſtions more to propoſe, which I deſire that all men that read, may judge of it in that, which giveth the true ſenſe and judgment of their weight.

1. If this be the cauſe and ground of the Eternal Judgment, whether it may not alſo be the ground of Temporal Judgments on Perſons and Nations, to wit, if there be ſuch a thing to be found in them, as neglecting to miniſter to Chriſt in his ſuffering Members?

2. If there be not only this to be found, but alſo a cauſing of him in his Members thus to ſuffer (a cauſing of their hunger, thirſt, nakedneſs, ſickneſs, impriſonment, &c.) whether this is not of very great force to draw down Plagues, Judgments and Miſeries upon a Nation?

3. If there have been ſuch ſins committed, God's Anger provoked, and his Judgments drawn down, whether it be poſſible to ſtop them, or there can be any reaſonable hope of the diverting of them, without a deep humbling before God, confeſſing the thing thing in the sight of the World (as it hath been done in the sight of the World) and laying such a foundation for the future, as the Lord and men may be satisfied and assured, that no such thing shall be done any more? Was it not a shameful thing, that Jerusalem the outwardly holy City (and chief, if not only professing People of the world) should stone, cast out, persecute, put to death, &c. the Prophets and Christ of God, and set up Priests and Prophets of their own? And where and by whom are the Witnesses and Martyrs hunted and slain? Is it not still in that which is called the Christian World? do not they strive (each sort) for their Forms, persecuting the Life and Power, and those which follow the Lamb therein, out of their Forms, from which his Life and Spirit calleth and gathereth? O that the World were awaked! O that this Nation were awakened! Have there not been Judgments enow to awaken it! O do not dally: ye have God to deal with, who hath brought his Truth and People upon the Stage; who is arisen against the Darkness (which hath long possessed the hearts of men, and held his People in captivity under their corrupt wills and wisdom) and to bind down sin and iniquity in men. O do not say, Let us break their bonds asunder, and cast away their cords from us; but rather let every one be willing to be found by the pure Light of God, by that which is holy of God in him (from the King that sits upon the Throne, even to the very Beggar on the dunghil) that iniquity may be purged out of the hearts of men, and they become, not a vainly-professing Nation, but indeed an Holy Nation to the Lord; that Peace and Righteousness, Love and Mercy, yea sweet and tender Bowels may dwell within it, and flow up and down in all its borders; to the glory of God's Truth, which is able to work this (were it but let in, received and subjected to in the minds of men) and to the delight and joy of the hearts of all in the Nation.

CONCERNING

OF OUR

RELIGION,

Who are called

QUAKERS,

And the Exercises and Travels of our Spirits therein.

THis is the Sum or Substance of our Religion, to wit, to feel and discern the two Seeds: the Seed of Enmity, the Seed of Love; the Seed of the Flesh, the Seed of the Spirit; the Seed of Hagar, the Seed of Sarah; the Seed of the Egyptian womb, the holy Seed of Israel: and to feel the Judgments of God administred to the one one of theſe, till it be brought into bondage and death; and the other raiſed up in the Love and Mercy of the Lord to live in us, and our Souls gathered into it, to live to God in it.

Now when the Light of Gods holy Spirit breaketh in upon man, and his quickning vertue is felt; then life enters into that which was ſlain, and there is a deſire begotten in the heart to travel out of the Egyptian ſtate, into the good Land, that the Soul which came from God, might return back again to him (out of the ſinful, wandring miſerable loſt eſtate) and might live and walk with him, in the purity, vertue and power of his own Life and Spirit.

But then the other birth ſtrives for its life, and Pharaoh (the King of Egypt) takes part with his Egyptians againſt Iſrael; and there is no help to the poor ſoul, but as God pours out his Judgments upon that hard nature and ſpirit in man, which is of the Birth of the Fleſh, and receives the influences and ſtrength of its father, which hardens it againſt the true Seed. And now what a condition is this poor Soul in! The Light of Gods Spirit giveth it the ſenſe of its ſtate, and the quickenings of Life make it ſenſible of its bondage, there are alſo ſome deſires and longings after deliverance; but this doth but provoke the Enemy, and the Soul being yet in his Territories, and under his power, he dealeth the more hardly with it, increaſing its burdens and oppreſſions daily. And O the out-cries of the Soul in this ſtate! how is its ſpirit pained, anguiſhed and vexed within it, ſo that it could almoſt many times chuſe rather to lie ſtill in Egypt then undergo the heavy burdens, oppreſſions, fears and dangers, that it daily meets with in this ſtate?

Yet there is a Secret hope ſpringing up in the heart from the true Seed, which often encourageth it to truſt him, and wait upon him who hath viſited, in his pure miniſtration of Judgment. For this is felt many times (as the Soul is made truly ſenſible by the Lord) that the Judgment is not to the Seed, not to Iſrael; but to Pharaoh and his Egyptians: and by every ſtroke of Gods wrath upon them, the Seed is eaſed, and its deliverance working out.

And ſo at laſt when the Judgment is finiſhed in the Land of Egypt, the ſtrength of Pharaoh and his Egyptians broken, their firſt-born ſlain, out comes Iſrael, out of the Dark land, out of the Houſe of Bondage, to travel towards its reſting place. Then the Paſcal Lamb is known and fed on; yea, it is becauſe of the Blood of the Lamb, ſprinkled upon the Door-poſts, that Iſrael is paſſed over and ſaved, in the day of Egypts viſitation. O who can read truly, that hath not felt and been a living witneſs thereof?

But now, when the ſeed is come out of Egypt, there is not the end, but rather the beginning of its Travels. Pharaoh and his Egyptians (with their Horſes and Chariots) may purſue again and even overtake; and there may ſeem no way of eſcape or help to the Soul, but only to ſtand ſtill, hope in the Lord and wait to ſee his Salvation. Then ſhall the Sea be divided, which ſtopped Iſraels courſe, and Pharaoh with his Egyptians (the Enemies of the Soul in this appearance of dreadful oppreſſing power) be deſtroyed and ſeen no more.

Yet in the Wilderneſs in the paſſage through the entanglements to the holy Land, there are many ſtraits, trials and ſore Enemies to be met with, who will ſtrive by open force and alſo with enchantments to betray Iſrael: yea there is a part yet unbrought down, yet unwrought out, at which they will be ſtriving to enter the mind. And as Iſrael forgets his God, walking out of his Counſel, hearkning to that which his ear ſhould be ſhut againſt, and ſo joyning to the contrary Seed: the Plagues, the Judgments, the Indignation and Wo will be felt by him, and many Carkaſes may fall there. So that there may be a great outcry in the heart, Who can ſtand before this holy Lord God? ſhall we be conſuming with dying? yes, there is ſomewhat muſt be conſumed with dying. Yea, if a man came ſo far, as to witneſs dominion and victory over his Souls Enemies, the evil Seed brought into death in him; and a poſſeſſion and inheritance in the pure reſt of Life: yet if that part be not kept in the death, if there be not a praying and watching to the preſerver of Iſrael (in the pure fear and humility) the Enemy will be ſowing to the fleſh again; he will be getting ſome of his corrupt Seeds into the heart again (if the Soul do but ſleep and become negligent) and ſo corruption will take root again, and the contrary Birth grow up again, and the Foxes break into the Vineyard and ſpoil the tender grapes.

So

So that this is our Religion, to witneſs the two Seeds, with the Power of the Lord bringing down the one, and bringing up the other; and then to witneſs and experience daily the ſame Power, keeping the one in Death and the other in Life, by the holy miniſtration of God's pure living Covenant. And ſo, to know God in this Covenant (in this Covenant which lives, gives Life and keeps in Life) and to walk with God and worſhip and ſerve him therein, even in his Son, in the Light of his Son, in the Life of his Son, in the vertue and ability which flows from his Son into our Spirits. This is our Religion, which the Lord our God in his tender mercy hath beſtowed upon us: And indeed we find this to be a pure, living and undefiled Religion before God, daily witneſſing his acceptance of it in and through his Son, whoſe Name is here known and confeſſed, worſhipped and honoured, according to the very heart of the Father.

This may be further illuſtrated, and perhaps made more manifeſt to ſome, by a Scripture or two.

The Fleſh luſteth againſt the Spirit, and the Spirit againſt the Fleſh, and theſe are contrary one to the other, ſaith the Apoſtle, Gal. 5. 17.

Here are the two Seeds (the Seed of the Serpent, the Seed of the woman) whoſe driving and fight is in man, when God awakens the Soul, the one whereof hath a nature, a deſire or luſt contrary to the other. Now as the one of theſe prevails in any heart; ſo the other goes down. As the one gains Life and Power: ſo the other is brought into Death and Captivity. So that this is it every one is to wait for, after they once come to the ſenſible knowledge and experience of theſe two, to feel the Fleſh brought down, the luſts of it denied, the Judgments of the Lord adminiſtred to it; that ſo the other may come up to live, thrive and prevail in the Soul, and ſo the Soul witneſs Salvation and Redemption under its ſhadow. Thus Sion is Redeemed with Judgment, and her Converts with Righteouſneſs, Iſa. 1. 27. What is Sion? Is it not the holy hill of God, whereon his Son is ſet King to reign, whereon the holy City is to be built, and God to be worſhipped in Spirit? what condition is Sion in, when God viſits her to redeem her? Is ſhe not laid waſte, deſolate, lying in the duſt? (as Pſal. 102. 13, 14.) Well: how will God redeem her? Zion ſhall be redeemed with Judgment, and her Converts with Righteouſneſs. By bringing Judgment upon that which keeps her under, upon her Enemies, the contrary Seed, God redeems her: and by bringing forth Righteouſneſs (the righteous Life and Spirit of his own Son) in thoſe whoſe minds are turned to her, whoſe faces are ſet Sion-ward, thus God redeems her Converts. Yes, yes; it is truly felt and witneſſed, The living Righteouſneſs of Chriſt, revealed in the heart and having power there ſets free from all the unrighteouſneſs which was there before. And then, when the unrighteous one is caſt out, and the righteous one revealed, and the Soul united to him and receives vertue and power from him; then he becomes a Servant of righteouſneſs, and doth not commit ſin, but doth righteouſneſs: and he that doth righteouſneſs is righteous, even as he is righteous, 1 Joh. 3. 7. For how can it be otherwiſe, when the righteous Life is revealed and brought up into dominion in him? How can the ſame righteous Spirit and Life (revealed in the members, as it was in the head) but live and act after the ſame manner in the members, as it did in the head? (O that men were turned to that, which would give them the certain knowledge and ſenſible experience of this!) Now this is exceeding comfortable and precious to them that are in the true travel towards it: much more to them that enjoy it.

This is the ſum of all, even to know and experience what is to be brought down into death and kept in death, what to be brought up out of the grave, to live to God and reign in his dominion, and what to be kept in ſubjection and obedience to him who is to reign. Now to experience it thus done in the heart; the Fleſh brought down, the Seed of Life raiſed, and the Soul ſubject to the pure heavenly Power, whoſe right it is to reign in the heart in and by the Seed, this is a bleſſed ſtate indeed. For here the work is done: here the Throne of God is exalted, and his King reigns in righteouſneſs and peace, and all his Enemies are under his feet, and this Soul, this true Iſraelite, this redeemed one may wear the white Robe, and ſerve God in righteouſneſs and holineſs without fear of his Enemies (keeping in and to the Covenant, which miniſters Life and Power abundantly) all the days of his life. For that was to be the outward ſtate of the outward Iſrael, keeping to God in the outward Covenant: and it is to be the inward ſtate of the inward Iſrael, keeping to God in the inward Covenant, which is a pure Covenant of Life and peace, of all inward and spirtual blessings and mercies in Christ, wherewith the Souls are blessed that are obedient to God, and walk humbly with him in this Covenant. And I beseech you to consider (O tender people, who are grieved because of sin and corruption in your hearts; and would fain witness victory and dominion over it, in the Name and Strength of the Lord Jesus Christ) Whom did that Prophesie of Zachary (Luke 1. 17. 72, 74, 75.) concern? What was that holy Covenant? who were to be so redeemed? who were the Israel that was to inherit this promise? All the Promises are yea and amen in Christ to the Israel of God. Why should not the Israel of God hope to enjoy this? even so to be acquainted with Gods holy Spirit and to wait upon him, that they may witness it granted to them, that they being delivered out of the hands of their Enemies, might serve him without fear, in holiness and righteousness before him (whose eyes are piercing, and can behold no iniquity) all the dayes of their lives? Surely they who witness that promise (mentioned Isa. 35. 8.) fulfilled to them, cannot fall short of this. And truly, the Children of the new Covenant can never come throughly to live to God, till they witness the inward circumcision of the heart, so as to love the Lord with all the heart and soul, Deut. 30. 6. Now where it is so, the Devil or Lust can find no place of entrance: and how then should they be able to sow their Seed and bring forth sin? Out of the evil heart proceeds all evil; but out of that heart which is throughly circumcised, to love the Lord God wholly, evil cannot proceed. If Lust be not conceived, it cannot bring forth Sin: and where the womb, which conceived it, is kept dry and barren; it cannot conceive again. And is not this the Promise of the Gospel, that the womb, which was once barren, shall be very fruitful and bear abundantly; but the other grow feeble, and be able to bear no more? O that people had experience of Gods power, and did believe therein! what should stand in the way of it? It was Israels sin of old, when they looked at their enemies, and saw their footing and strength in the Land which God had promised to Abrahams Seed for an Inheritance, they could not believe that they could be overcome. O take heed of the same unbelief now.

Concerning Christ, coming to the Father by him, receiving him, walking in him (not in the oldness of the letter, but in the newness of the Spirit) and concerning reading the Scriptures aright.

I am the Way, the Truth and the Life: no man cometh unto the Father but by me, saith Christ, Joh. 14. 6.

MAn in the corrupt, degenerate estate, is fallen from God, hath lost his Image (the holy, heavenly Image of the Father of Spirits) is driven out from his presence, dwells in the Land of darkness and confusion, under the Government of the Prince of the power of the Air, who rules in and hath power over all the Children of Disobedience.

Now this should be mans work, even to return to the Father: to come back, out of the prodigal lost state, to the Fathers house; where there is sufficiency and fulness of true Bread and Water of Life, to satisfie every hungry and thirsty Soul.

The Way whereby a man must come, the Truth wherein he must be renewed, the Life wherewith a man must be quickned, is Christ, the Son of the living God; and he must know him as the Son of the living God, and feel him revealed in him and received by him, and so walk in him the Way, in him the Truth, in him the Life, if ever he come to the Father. He must not rest in the description of things; but feel and know receive and walk in the thing, which by the Spirit of the Lord hath been often formerly and is still described, in what words and by what means the Spirit pleaseth. But to receive all the descriptions of him that were formerly given forth, or all the descriptions that are now given forth, that will not do: but the soul that will live by him, must receive him and feel the ingrafting into him, the holy Root, the living Word of Gods eternal Power, and must feel this Word ingrafted into his heart, so that there be a real becoming one in nature and spirit with him. And then he is truly in the Vine, in the Olive-tree, and partakes of the verue and sap thereof, he abiding therein and walking in the Spirit, Life and power thereof. Now

Now here a man walks not, nor cannot walk in the oldneſs of the Letter; but in the newneſs of the Spirit only. Paul, notwithſtanding all his knowledge of the Scriptures, walked but in the oldneſs of the Letter, before Chriſt was revealed in him. And thoſe in the Apoſtles dayes, who had got the form of godlineſs, but turned from and denied the power, they walked but in the oldneſs of the Letter. Yea, the Church of Sardis (for the moſt part) and the Church of Laodicea, who had received the right order and ordinances, and the true deſcriptions of things, and thought they were full and rich and wanted nothing, they walked but according to the oldneſs of the Letter, and not in the newneſs and power of the Spirit of Life. But alas, how far are many (who pretend to Chriſt in this day) from this ſtate! who never came ſo far as to walk in the oldneſs of the Letter, from a true underſtanding thereof; but have only learned and continued to walk in the oldneſs of their own apprehenſions and conceivings upon the Letter.

Can theſe, in this ſtate, poſſibly underſtand Truth, or know the inward ſpiritual, precious appearances thereof, either in their own hearts and others? Surely no. Why ſo? Why this is the reaſon; becauſe they meaſure the appearances of Truth (either in themſelves or others (by their own old apprehenſions and conceivings upon Scriptures concerning Truth, which is not the proper meaſure of it. Now all ſuch are yet in darkneſs, let them pretend what they will, and grow never ſo high in knowledge, exerciſes and experiences after this manner: and ſo the beſt, zealouſeſt and moſt knowing of them in this ſtate, are but blind leaders of the blind, and (thus going on) ſhall moſt certainly fall into the Ditch of perdition. O that men could feel that which makes rightly ſenſible, and might lay it to heart! For no man can confeſs Chriſt (how then can he receive him and walk in him?) but by the holy Spirit.

And he that knoweth not the Spirit rightly, knoweth not Chriſt rightly: and he that doth not know him rightly, doth not confeſs him rightly: and none can know him rightly, but by the revelation of the Father inwardly. The myſtery muſt be opened within, or there is no true knowing. The myſtery of deceit is diſcovered within; and the myſtery of Life is diſcovered within alſo. And though the heart of man (in the unregenerate eſtate) is deceitful above all things, and deſperately wicked, and no man of himſelf can ſearch or know it; yet that is not the eſtate of the true Iſraelites whom God hath cleanſed, and taught to deny themſelves daily; but they have boldneſs before that God who hath ſearched them, and removed from them the iniquities which he found therein. Yea, whoever witneſſeth Chriſt revealed within, ſhall find him revealed within for this very end, to deſtroy the works of the Devil there; and he is a powerful Saviour of the Soul from ſin, and a powerful Deſtroyer of the works of the Devil within.

Now concerning reading the Scriptures, mind this, It is ſaid of the Jews, that when they read Moſes (or in reading the old Teſtament) the vail was upon their heart, which vail is done away in Chriſt, 2 Cor. 3. 14, 15. O conſider ſeriouſly, is the vail done away from thee? Doſt thou read the Scriptures with the unvailed eye? doſt thou read in the Anointing, in Chriſts Spirit, in the pure heavenly Wiſdom of the divine Birth? It was promiſed of old, that God would take away the face of the covering caſt over all people, and the vail ſpread over all Nations Doſt thou witneſs this Promiſe fulfilled to thee? Doſt thou know the difference between reading the Scriptures with the vail on thee, and with the vail off? Are the Scriptures opened and unlocked to thee by the Key of David, ſo that thou readeſt and underſtandeſt them in the Light and Demonſtration of Gods holy Spirit; or is thy own underſtanding and will at work of it ſelf, in ſearching into the Scriptures? If the wrong birth, the wrong wiſdom, the wrong underſtanding be at work; it can gather but that which will feed and ſtrengthen it ſelf: and if thou beeſt not in Chriſt, and doſt not read in Chriſt, the vail is not taken away from thee; (for the vail is only done away in him;) but thou readeſt and walkeſt in the oldneſs of thy apprehenſions upon the Letter, and not in the newneſs of the Spirit; and ſo knoweſt neither the Scriptures nor the power of God, what ever thou profeſſeſt to men, or dreameſt concerning thy ſelf. For it is no other indeed; Thy knowledge, thy apprehenſions, thy faith, thy hope, thy peace, thy joy (being out of the compaſs of the pure living Truth, in which the Subſtance, the vertue, the kernel of all is compriſed and comprehended for ever) are but as ſo many dreams.

O that men that are any whit tender, and have any sincere desires in them towards the Lord, could read that one Scripture (Psal. 43. 3, 4.) sensibly and experimentally, O send out thy Light and thy Truth; let them lead me, let them bring me unto thy holy Hill and to thy Tabernacles. (what, did not David know how to go to the Hill and Tabernacles of God, without a particular sending forth of Light and Truth from God to lead him thither?) Then may men go unto the Altar of God, unto God their exceeding joy, and witness his Hill and House their dwelling-place, when God by his Light and Truth, send forth from him into them, leads them thither.

The Scriptures are words, whose chief end, drift and service is, to bring men to the Word from which the Scriptures came. And when men are there; then they are in the Life of the Scriptures, and witness the fulfilling of the Scriptures, even the executing of the righteous judgments of God upon that spirit, mind and nature in them, which is contrary to his image; and the fulfilling of the Promises and sure Mercies, which belong to Christ the Seed, and to them who are gathered into, and abide in Christ the Seed. Here's the Covenant, the new Covenant. That which is said, or those things which are said concerning the Covenant in the Scriptures, are but descriptions of the new Covenant: but Christ within, the Hope of glory, the Spirit within, the Fear within, the Power of Life within, breaking down and reigning over the power of sin and death (so that the Lord is served in the dominion and power of his own Life, in righteousness and holiness before him, out of the fear of sin and death, all the days of our lives; so that captivity can lead captive nor break the Souls peace no more, nay not so much as make afraid those, that keep their Habitation on Gods holy Mountain) Here is the Covenant indeed: the strength and vertue whereof is witnessed in the Soul, as the Soul feels the power of Life revealed in it, and is made subject by the power of Christ who reigns in righteousness, love, mercy and peace, in the hearts of those whom he redeems out of the earthly nature and spirit, up to the Mind and Spirit of his Father. And here the Psalms, Hymns and spiritual Songs, the pure Songs, (the Song of Moses, the Song of the Lamb) are sung to the Father of Spirits, to the Redeemer of Israel, which never were sung, nor can be sung in any part of Babylon: but all those Songs are but Dreams of the night, which will be turned into howling and bitter lamentation, when the Whore (that which hath whored from God, and is not in the Wisdom of his Spirit, what ever she may pretend) is stripped, and the nakedness of her Profession and Religion (with all her Duties and Ordinances, as she calls them) made manifest.

Concerning the Gospel Ministration.

IF the Gospel be not a Ministration of Words or Letter; but of Spirit, Life and Power; and if it was the intent of God, that men should not stick in Words or Testimonies concerning the thing, but come to the thing it self, and live in the Sons Life and Power, and feel the Son living in them: Then they are greatly mistaken, who think to gather a Rule to themselves out of the Testimonies and Declarations of things in the Scriptures, and do not wait upon the Lord to receive the Spirit it self to become their Rule, Guide and Way. For these are all one. The Truth is the Way. The Truth, which lives and abides in the heart (where it is received and entertained) is the Way: the Rule is the Guide. For God is one. There are many names, but the thing is one. The Life, the Power, the Wisdom in the Father, Son and Spirit, is all one: yea they themselves are one, perfectly one, not at all divided or separated; but where the Father is, the Son is; and where the Son is, the Spirit is; and where the Spirit is, there is both the Father and the Son, who tabernacle in man in the day of the Gospel. And where these are, there that is which is to be preferred before all words, which was afore them, and is in Nature, Spirit and Glory above them. He that hath the Son, hath Life, even the Life Eternal, which the words testifie of. He that hath the Son, hath him which is true: and he that is in the Son, is in him that is true; and abiding there, cannot be deceived: but he that is not there, is deceived, let him apprehend and gather out of the Scriptures what he can. O how is God glorified, and how is Redemption and real Salvation of the Soul witnessed in this despised Dispensation of Truth, which God hath held forth fords in these latter days! Blessed be the Name of the Lord, who hath hid this pure Dispensation of Life from the eye of the prudent, worldly wise part in every man, revealing it only to the babish simplicity which is of his Son, and which lives in him and by him.

Concerning Christs being manifested without, and his being also manifested within, and how both are owned by them that know the Truth.

IT is objected against us, who are called Quakers, That we deny Christ (and look not to be saved by him) as he was manifested without us, but look only to be saved by a Christ in us. To which this is in my heart to answer such as singly desire satisfaction therein.

We do indeed expect to be saved (yea and not only so, but do already in our several measures witness Salvation) by the revelation and operation of the Life of Christ within us; yet not without relation to what he did without us. For all that he did in that Body of Flesh, was of the Father, and had its place and service in the Will and according to the Counsel of the Father. But the knowledge and belief of that, since the dayes of the Apostles, hath been very much held in the unrighteousness, and in the separation from the inward work of the Power and Life of Christ in the heart: which, as so held, cannot save any. But whoever feels the Light and Life of Christ revealed in him, and comes into union with God therethrough; he feels the work of Regeneration, of Sanctification, of Justification, of Life and Redemption; and so comes to reap benefit inwardly, and to partake of the blessed fruits of all that Christ did outwardly. Yea, he that is thus one with Christ in the Spirit, cannot exclude himself, nor is excluded by God from the advantage of any thing, nor every thing Christ did in that body of Flesh.

This indeed is the main thing, to witness Salvation wrought out in the heart: to witness the eternal Power and Arm of the Lord, laying hold on the Soul to save it; and not only laying hold on it to save it, but to witness the working out and the effecting of the Salvation, as really in the Substance, as Israel of old did in the shadow. For as they witnessed Moses and Joshua outwardly: so the true Israelite, the inward Israelite, the spiritual Israelite) is to witness that which is the Substance of these, even the Son of God revealed inwardly. Now they were not saved outwardly by a bare outward believing, that Moses and Joshua were sent of God to save them: but by following them, in faith and obedience to what from God they required. So to the inward Israel Christ is given for a Leader and Commander, who appears to the distressed, enbondaged Soul in Egypt, brings out of Egypt, and so leads on towards the good Land and into it. Now, as the Soul follows; as the Soul believes in his Appearances, and obeys his voice in the holy pure Covenant of Life; so he works out the Redemption thereof. But as unbelief and disobedience gets up, and the heart is hardened at any time against his Voice and Counsel, and the ear open to the temptations of the Enemy; the Redemption thereby goes backward, and the distress and captivity returns again. This is witnessed, known and experienced by every true Traveller towards Sion, therefore the main thing requisite, is to abide in the sense of the Redeemers Power, as also in waiting for his motions and appearances, and in the Faith and Obedience thereof. For sin gathers strength and is brought forth, by letting in and giving way to the motions thereof: and so also Holiness and Righteousness is brought forth and getteth ground in the mind, by hearkening and giving up to the stirrings and movings of Gods holy Spirit. Therefore it is of great necessity to every true Traveller, to come to a right understanding and distinguishing of these; and then that the heart be kept with all diligence, because out of it are the issues both of life and death. And most happy is he, who knows the issues of death stopped, and the issues of Life opened, and whose Spirit is naked and open before the Lord, for Life to spring up in him and issue forth through him at its pleasure. O it is a precious state to witness Captivity led Captive by Life, and the power of Life reigning over it. And truly, there is as real deliverance witnessed inwardly, by those that wait upon the Lord and are faithful to the leadings of his holy Spirit, as ever there was by the Jews outwardly, in their faithful following

Moses

Moſes and Joſhua: and Chriſt is as truly an Healer of his People, in this miniſtration of Life to them by his holy Spirit, as ever he was an Healer of Perſons outwardly in the days of the Fleſh. That (with the other Miracles which he wrought then) was but a ſhadow of what he would work and perform inwardly in the day of his Spirit and holy Power: and ſhall he or can he (to thoſe that faithfully wait upon him) fall ſhort in the one, of what he ſhadowed out in the other? Nay ſurely, it was the intent of his heart, and he will not fail to perform it, to ſave to the very utmoſt all that come to God by him and abide in his holy, pure, righteous, living Covenant. Here is the skill of Chriſtianity, to abide in him: and here the living Vertue and pure Power is felt, which overcometh all, but nothing can overcome it; but Victory, Dominion, Glory, Majeſty and Power is ſung unto him, who is King of Saints, who reigns in righteouſneſs, and who eſtabliſheth Peace and Truth within his Borders.

A few words concerning the Principle of Truth, what it is, how it may be diſcerned, and how it may be purchaſed and poſſeſſed.

Queſt. 1. What is the Principle of Truth?

Anſw. It is the Light which reproves and makes ſin manifeſt. Whatſoever doth make manifeſt is Light. Wherefore he ſaith, Awake thou that ſleepeſt, ariſe from the dead, &c. Eph. 5. 13, 14. There is no other way of awaking out of ſleep and ariſing from the dead, but by the Light which makes ſin manifeſt. And O how precious is that Light!

Queſt. 2. How may the Principle of Truth be diſcerned?

Anſw. By its piercing, quickning nature, which diſcovereth it ſelf in its appearances and operations. For it appears and works, not like mans reaſon, or like motions of his mind which he takes into his underſtanding part; but it appears and works livingly powerfully and effectually in the heart.

Mans reaſon is corrupt, dark, impure, ſince the fall; and in the hand and under the power of the wicked one. Its nature is to hide and cover ſin, not to diſcover it. Now the Light of the Law, which diſcovers ſin, ariſeth not hence. Who can bring the clean, pure Light of the Law, out of the unclean, impure reaſon of man? The Light indeed may ſhine in the Darkneſs: but it is no part of it, but of another nature and deſcent. It is from Gods Spirit, and given to man in his love unto him, to lead him out of his dark ways and ſpirit, into the pure Spirit and Way of Holineſs. For the Light which diſcovers ſin, is all holy and pure, like the Fountain from whence it comes. Now a man that is acquainted both with reaſon and with this Light, he can diſtinguiſh the nature and operations of both. For there is a great difference between Truth held in the reaſoning part, and Truth held in its own Principle. It is very powerful in the one: it effecteth little in the other. In the pure quicknings of Life this diſtinction is perceived and alſo held. Therefore our advice is to all men, to retire from all mortality, that they may come to feel the Spring of Life in themſelves (and ſomething ſpringing therefrom into them to quicken them) and to wait to have their underſtandings opened and kept open by that; that ſo they may receive, retain, and not again loſe the capacity of underſtanding the things of Gods Kingdom.

Queſt. 3. How may this Principle (Seed or Pearl) be purchaſed and poſſeſſed?

Anſw. By dying to a mans own wiſdom and will. There is not another way. For the Light is wholly contrary to man, as he ſtands in the alienation from God. It croſſeth his ſpirit, his thoughts, his deſires, his knowledge, his reaſon, his underſtanding; even all that is of himſelf. He muſt therefore conſult with none of theſe, but prefer the little, pure Demonſtration of the Light of Chriſts Spirit above all theſe, and ſtand in the parting with and loſs of them all for ever. O this is an hard ſaying, who can bear it? Surely none but thoſe that are taught and learn of the Father, can thus come to give up to and follow the Light of the Son.

The Law of the Lord is perfect, converting (or reſtoring) the Soul, (Pſal. 19 7.) What Law was this, or what Law is this? Was it the Law of works in the hand of Moſes? or is it the Law of Faith in the hand of Chriſt? Doth not Chriſt enlighten every man that cometh into the World? Would not God have all men to be ſaved? and doth he not not give to all, a proportion of the true Light whereby they may be ſaved? And is it not the property of this Light to convert to God? Can any man receive this and be united to this, and it not change his nature? ſo that he muſt needs have a new nature, and from that new nature do that naturally, which the Jews by all their endeavours without this, could never do.

Can any thing convert fallen man to God, but Chriſt? hath any thing power to convert to God, but his pure Law of Life? Can Chriſt and his Light be ſeparated? Can any man receive his Light and be united thereto, and not receive him? O that mens hearts and underſtandings were opened by the Spirit and Power of the Lord! For this is a direct riddle to all men, who have not Gods Heifer to Plow with, to underſtand it by. And ſo for want of a true underſtanding, it is deſpiſed and rejected among the Builders: but with us it is elect and precious, choſen of God, and precious in the eye of our Souls.

Now this doth not exclude or make void any thing, that Chriſt did in his Body of Fleſh here on Earth, or that he doth in Heaven for his: but this brings unto a Right, and into a Poſſeſſion and Enjoyment of his Purchaſe. For all that are in the Darkneſs, and walk in the Darkneſs, have nothing to do with Chriſt in truth and reallity, what ever they may profeſs, and what hopes ſoever they may feed themſelves with: but all that are in any meaſure of his Light, and walk therein, they are ſo far of him, and have a right to and ſhare in all that he did in and from the ſame Light and Spirit.

And this I dare poſitively hold forth as a ſtanding Truth, which hath been ſealed unto me by conſtant experience; That no man can fall in with and obey the Light wherewith he is enlightned, but he muſt deny himſelf, and take up a croſs to his own wiſdom and will, which Croſs is the Croſs of Chriſt, which is the power of God to the Salvation of the Soul. And he that takes it up daily and waits upon the Lord therein, ſhall witneſs the Power of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt to the redemption of his Soul: yea then he ſhall be able in true underſtanding to ſay, This is Light indeed, Life indeed, Power indeed. That powerful Arm which hath ſaved me from Sin, and breaks the Snares, Devices and Strength of the Enemy before me (delivering me daily when no elſe can, and when my own ſtrength and wiſdom is as nothing) I cannot but call Chriſt, the living Power and Wiſdom of God revealed in me, who will not give his glory to another. For he is the Lord God of pure Power and Life for evermore; and beſide him there is no ſuch Saviour. Yea, bleſſed be the Name of the Lord for ever, the dayes of mourning after Salvation are over with many, and the dayes of reaping and enjoying Salvation are come, which ſhall endure with the Iſrael of God for evermore, Amen.

SOME

SOME THINGS OF Great Weight AND CONCERNMENT to ALL;

Briefly opened, and held forth from a true ſenſe and underſtanding, for the healing of the Ruines and Breaches, which the Enemy of Mankind hath made in Mens Souls:

AS,

I. Some Aſſertions concerning the Principle and Way of Life.
II. Some further Directions to Chriſt, the Principle and Fountain of Life.
III. The End of Chriſt's Manifeſtation, his Salvation, and whom he ſaves.
IV. Three Queſtions anſwered concerning Juſtification.
V. Of the pure, conſtant, eternal, unchangeable Nature of God's Truth.

Written in the time of my Confinement in Alisbury, when Love was working in me, and the Life of God in me travelling and wreſtling with the Lord for the Salvation of others.

ISAAC PENINGTON.

Some Aſſertions concerning the Principle and Way of Life.

THat it is a great and hard matter to come into a capacity of knowing and receiving the Truth. It is no hard matter to take up any Religion that a man finds in the World. To read Scriptures, to believe what a man finds related there, according to his underſtanding of them; yea, to believe that he hath the Light and help of the Spirit in his reading and underſtanding, to apply himſelf alſo to practiſe and obſerve what he finds therein required, and to aim at Holineſs, &c. This is no hard matter, every man that is ſerious, and ſeeks Religion of any kind but in the weight of a mans ſpirit, may go thus far. But all this adminiſters not the true capacity, but he that meets with it, muſt go further then thus.

2. That which gives the true capacity is a Principle of Life from God, and there alone and no where elſe can man meet with it and receive it. This principle is the Seed of the Kingdom or Heavenly Leaven, with which the mind muſt be in ſome leavened, ere it can come into a true capacity of underſtanding and receiving the truth. And in this Leaven muſt it abide and grow up, if it abide and grow in the true knowledge, &c.

3. That

3. That from this principle and in this principle, not only the true Light and knowledge of the Lord Jesus Christ and all Spiritual things is given and received, but also the true Faith, the true Love, the true Sanctification, the true Justification, the true Peace, the true Joy, &c. And what of these is not received and held here, is not of the Truth, but a garment of mens own forming and not the covering of the Spirit.

4. That the Spirit himself sows this principle, and is received in this principle. And he that receives this principle, and is born of this principle, receives and is born of the Spirit; and he that receives it not, nor is born of it, neither hath received nor is born of the Spirit, but is but in the imagination and self-conceit about the things of God, but is not in the Truth, as it is in Jesus.

5. That in this Principle the new Covenant is made with the soul and entred into; and he that receives this principle from the hand of God, receives Life, and enters into the Covenant of Life, and feels the pure fear, wherein God cleanseth the heart, and whereby he keeps the heart clean, and feels the Laws of God daily writing there by the finger of Gods Spirit, and feels the power and sense of the Spirit to teach and cause obedience; so that the yoke, which is hard to the transgressing nature (alienated from the Life and Power) is easie (and as I may say natural) to him that is born of this nature. For being dead with Christ, and risen with Christ, and changed into the nature of Christ, by the principle which is of him, through the Power and Spirit of Christ which worketh therein, he can say as Christ did, when the Lord calls him to any thing, Lo I come, 'tis my meat and drink, yea my great delight to do thy will O God, yea thy Law is written in the midst of my bowels.

6. Among those who are gathered into this Principle, and abide in the Sense, Light and Life of this Principle, there is great love and unity. They are of one mind, of one heart, of one soul, of one spirit, of one life, gathered into one demonstration of truth, and there is no jarring, no doubting, no dissenting, &c. All this is out, in the World, in the earthly wisdom, in the earthly professions and walkings, but it is excluded the Principle of Truth, and them that are gathered into and abide therein.

7. That all that are not gathered into, nor walk nor live in this Principle, they are yet in the darkness and error from the pure power of God, and stand and walk in slippery places: and though their way may seem very right, and their estate and condition sure (unto God-wards) in their own eyes and judgment, yet is not really so; but they are but in a dream concerning the Truth, not in the Truth it self, which (how strange soever it may seem to them at present to be affirmed concerning them) yet they shall certainly feel to be so, when the Lord by his powerful voice and bright appearance of his Spirit awaketh them. For many things go for truth now with men in the dark, which will vanish like smoak before the light of the day, and then that only which is Truth indeed shall have the glory and praise of being accounted so; and then what will become of those who have mistook about Truth, and are not clothed with the pure Wedding-Garment (the spotless life and righteousness of the Sun) but only with that which they have accounted so.

8. That to those that see in the Light of this Principle, the Mountain of the Lords house is discovered, and those that abide and grow up therein, they know and experience it established above all Mountains and exalted above all Hills: all earthly knowledge, earthly Religions, earthly Ways, earthly Worships, earthly Spirits and Minds, &c. in their greatest exaltations and glory, being far beneath it. And here the feast of fat things, and Wines on the lees well refined, even the fruit of the Vine which gladdeth and refresheth the very heart of God, is fed and partaked of by those that dwell here. For the Father and the Son and the Spirit is here revealed, in the holy House and Tabernacles which are built here: and here they make their feast, bringing forth the riches of their Nature, Spirit and pretious Life, on which they feed with the soul, and give unto the soul savour and ability to feed with them; in which food there is the life, strength, righteousness and joy of the Kingdom given forth and received.

9. That in the heart which discovers iniquity, reproveth it, witnesseth against it, and striveth with the mind to turn it from it, and to wait for life and power from on high, that is this very principle. In that is the Divine Nature, even the nature of God's Spirit, which was always against sin and ever will so be, and in all its appearances

teſtifieth againſt it, and in love to the creature ſtriveth with the creature to convince it of that in it which is contrary to God, and to draw it to that ſtrength and divine vertue which ſtoppeth it, beateth it back, and worketh it out of the mind and nature of the creature, as it can get entrance, and is hearkned and ſubjected to. For there is no Salvation, but by the Croſs and Yoke of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt: for in that is the power to crucifie the affections and luſts, which lead into ſin and death, and will not ceaſe to tempt and lead aſide, till the Soul be gathered into unity with that, and become ſubject to that which is contrary to them. So that this is the main thing in Religion, even to know Chriſt revealed in the ſoul as a Standard againſt corruption, and to be gathered under his Banner, which is the Croſs, or that living Principle in the heart, which reſiſteth the corrupt principle: and that he is gathered hither and continueth faithfully fighting here, ſhall receive mercy, help and ſtrength from on high, in every time of need.

10. That the true and certain way of knowledge of the things of God, is in the faith and obedience of this Principle. It is not by reaſoning and conſidering things in the mind (after the manner of men) that a man comes to know ſpiritual things: but they are ſpiritually revealed by God, after a ſpiritual manner, to the Believer, to the Obeyer; and they are revealed to him in his believing, in his obeying, in his waiting, in his holy fearing, in his diſtruſting of himſelf, and feeling his own inſufficiency, either to attain them or retain them, but as the Lord God makes them manifeſt in him, and preſerves him in the ſence of them. He that hath my will, ſhall know of my Doctrine, ſaith Chriſt. This is the way. Wouldſt thou know what God requires of thee, what this or that is which appears in this or that ſort as Truth, whether it be ſo or no? Mind this Principle in thee, mind the pure, the holy Light, inward touches and leanings of this pure Divine Principle: that will make manifeſt to thee whatever is fit for thee in thy preſent ſtate to know; and thou art not to deſire more, but as a Child to reſt contented with that proportion of knowledge and ſtrength, which the wiſe and tender Father judgeth fit for thee: and as thy ſtate groweth capable of more, he will not fail to adminiſter to thee. And what he giveth thee is good, ſeaſonable and proper for thee, which thou mayeſt ſafely feed upon and enjoy in the ſence and fear of him. But if thou preſs after what he would not as yet have thee know, thou entereſt into the will and wiſdom of the fleſh, and there are the diſputes, diſcontents, murmurings and ill tempers and diſpoſitions of the mind, which there will increaſe and grow upon thee to thy hurt.
